

Meeting Called On Flood Control At Williams July 15

The Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District has announced that a meeting will be held Tuesday, July 15, at 7:30 p. m. in the Williams school gymnasium. The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the upstream flood prevention program in the Middle Colorado River watershed. This program was authorized by Congress in 1936. It is a program requiring joint participation by the Department of Agriculture, the Soil Conservation District and local farmers and ranchers.

Before a watershed is approved by the Department of Agriculture, construction of flood retention dams and other works of improvement it must be determined economically feasible, it was explained. This determination is made after the SCD and local people in the watershed request

The Department of Agriculture requires the SCD and local people to assume responsibility for operating and maintaining all dams and other works of improvement after construction. In addition, local farmers and ranchers are requested to carry out planned soil conservation program on their farms and ranches. W. H. Cook, Brown-Mills SCD supervisor, who lives in the Williams community, has urged all farmers and ranchers living north of Pecan Bayou and the Maynard's store road to attend this meeting.

If the people along Lost Creek, Red River, Paint creek, Hog creek and Elm Creek are interested in the Middle Colorado's Flood Prevention Program, they should attend this meeting at Williams and express themselves. The Brown-Mills SCD will sponsor their request to the Department of Agriculture should it be requested," Cook said.

The Brown-Mills SCD has recently requested the USDA to determine the need and feasibility of the flood prevention program in the Turkey Creek Watershed in Brown County.

He is survived by his wife, Martha, three brothers, James of Cors Christi, Dave of Brownwood and George of May, and two sisters, Mrs. Woods of Brownwood and Mrs. Evie Hawkins of Cors Christi.

MOTHER OF RISING STAR BURIED AT McCAULEY
Brownwood—Funeral services for Mrs. J. D. Faulkenberry, who died Friday night of last week, were held Saturday at McCauley Baptist Church, with burial in McCauley cemetery.

Mrs. Faulkenberry, the mother of W. W. Faulkenberry of Rising Star, was a native of North Carolina where she was born July 25, 1870. She came to Texas with her husband in 1898. Mr. Faulkenberry died in 1939. She had made her home in Brownwood for the last seven years.

Besides her son here she is survived by two daughters, five grandsons, 33 grandchildren, 75 great-grandchildren and seven great-great-grandchildren.

City OKs Phone Systems Merger

The City Council Monday night approved an increase in local telephone rates sufficient to make possible the extended area service plan by which the Kizer Telephone Co. would eliminate toll charges between Rising Star and Cross Plains and tie the two systems into one.

The city's action was taken in response to a petition by local business men and other patrons of the system published in the Record and presented to the Council.

The new rate is contingent upon a similar action by the Cross Plains Council. When and if the Cross Plains Council approves a similar rate structure the company can go ahead with its program of installing equipment and revising the present system so that patrons in Rising Star may dial patrons in Cross Plains directly and vice versa.

The rates call for increases of $1.25 in the cost of business and 50 cents in the cost of residential phones, making the former $9.25 per month and the latter $5.25 for single line service.

President R. O. Kizer of the company said that an immediate request for a similar approval would be made to the Cross Plains Council. He pointed out that the new rate would give telephone subscribers in the two towns double the number of connections they can now reach by direct dialing. He expressed the company's appreciation for the support given the program by Rising Star subscribers and said justified in going ahead with further improvements and additions which have already given the Rising Star and Cross Plains areas a telephone service second to none.

Addition of the May territory to the Rising Star system, by a sales agreement with Southwestern States, will add further potentially. Total number of telephones which may be dialed direct from Rising Star without toll when and if the two systems are consolidated and the May area is added will be approximately 1,300, Ralph Kizer said.

Eastland County Calves Bring Top Prices Monday

FORT WORTH, July 7.—The highest price for mixed steer and heifer calves in some weeks was recorded in the livestock trade at Fort Worth Monday by good Eastland County calves. The 77 mixed calves weighed nearly 300 pounds at $35 per hundred and were part of a shipment of 84 pairs of cows and calves consigned by W. H. Cooper of Eastland.

Cooper also had seven calves out at $33. The 84 cows sold at $18.25 with ten head out at $17. The sale accurately mirrors the strong demand for stockers in Texas and the Southwest, and recent rains have freshened pastures and supplemented stock water supplies, so that pastures in most of Texas are good now until late summer or early fall.

Trade on Monday reflected the short supplies and optimism of the livestock trade. Sales were strong to 25 or 50 cents higher in both cattle and sheep divisions. Hogs were steady, as choice hogs topped at $24.50 to $24.75, and sows sold from $21.50 downward. Feeder pigs drew $18 to $21.

Crop Prospect 'Never Better' After Rains

Rains ranging from .40 of an inch in Rising Star to two inches or more in the Rising Star territory, Sunday put a perfecting touch to crop conditions which, at this stage, were never finer within the memory of the oldest farmer.

Peanuts in most cases were up to a perfect stand and growing rapidly with prospect of an early harvest and a high yield, given a minimum amount of summer moisture.

The Pioneer area received one and one-half inches. Northward the showers ranged up to two inches and beyond. The precipitation was lighter toward the south while toward the north-west, in the Okra area, the rains were reported heavy in places.

Absentee Ballots Now At Clerk's Office At Eastland

Absentee voting for the July Democratic Primary Election began Monday, July 7, in Eastland County and will continue through July 22, according to a report by Johnson Smith, county clerk.

In announcing the opening of absentee voting, Mr. Smith gave some rules of the voting. He pointed out that any person who expects to be out of the county on the day of the election may cast his vote during the absentee voting period at the county clerk's office.

Mr. Smith also explained that persons prevented from going to the polls because of illness or physical disability may cast their votes by applying for an application by mail from the clerk's office and having it signed by a physician with an explanation of why they will be unable to appear at the polls on July 26.

Persons who are now outside the county and will not return during the time absentee voting is going on or on election day can also cast their ballots by mail. They must send for application forms, he said.

Persons who are in the county between the dates of July 7 and July 22 and are physically able must go to the county clerk's office for absentee voting, Mr. Smith concluded.

The Democratic Primary Election is scheduled for Saturday,

Rising Star Bank Gains Over $160,000 Deposits

The June 26 statement of condition of the First State Bank of Rising Star, issued in response to the call of the State Comptroller, reflects the best financial condition in the history of the institution, according to President Wm. E. (Bill) Tyler.

The statement shows a gain of $163,574.92 in deposits over the figure for June 6, 1957. Total deposits rose during that period from $2,173,605.96 to $2,337,180.88.

Total assets of the bank were $2,406,781.91 on June 26 of this year. The statement reflects a most healthful financial condition despite the extended drought which had seriously reduced income to the area from its chief resource — agriculture — during the past seven years.

Mr. McClung is a well known evangelist, speaker and author, and the people of Rising Star and vicinity were invited to attend the services each week-day morning and evening at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday services will be held at the usual hours.

Harry A. Tansil is minister of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cox had as their guests over the July 4 holidays their son, Nick Fox, and family of White Settlement, Fort Worth, and Mrs. Fox's two sisters, Mrs. F. M. Farmer and family from Lometa and Mrs. Frank Gardner and son from Midland.

The most extensive and promising development of gas and oil resources in this area in years was understood to be under way this summer on a block of between 12,000 and 15,000 acres of leases east of Rising Star. Coastal States Gas Company of Houston, Texas, is the developer.

Three wells drilled about the margins of the block at widely separated points were either completed or in process of completion this week, the Record learned. The operations were understood to be part of a planned program of development aimed at exploring the gas resources of the area with the possible installation of hydrocarbons plants and other installations in the future.

Another development of significance to this area and its natural gas potential is the projected construction of a large gas line across the eastern end of the county. There was no reported connection between the two projects.

Latest to be drilled in the block is a well on the J. D. (Skeet) Clark ranch four miles east of Rising Star. This well is being completed in the Duffer sand, a chert, for considerable oil and heavy, wet gas. Completion depth is 3,120 feet. The well was heavily sandracted.

The first well drilled was on the Whiteside Estate, eight miles northwest of Rising Star. It was completed for some oil and heavy gas flow. A third well is now in process of completion on the Anderson Brothers land four miles north of Sipe Springs. It is a good gasser.

The Clark well was unofficially said to be one of the best oil and gas prospects encountered in this area in many years. All of the operations are on the edges of the block which was taken by Luther T. McClung, Ft. Worth operator.

While there was much speculation regarding the development, the scope of the activity and the results so far reported are looked upon as having much significance both as to the character of oil and gas operations in this area in the future and the economic returns that may be anticipated from it. In this connection the increasing demand for natural gas is being pointed out. Of more meaning is the fact that the development is being planned over large areas, in this case a block of near 15,000 acres. Of significance, also, is that fact that a number of the major companies are coming into the picture with large blocks of acreage. Several such have been taken in Eastland, Brown, Comanche and other counties and around the area of the Coastal operations.

LOCATION MADE FOR WELL SOUTH OF TOWN

C. E. Joyce, et al, have made location for a 3,000-foot oil and gas well on the A. Agnew farm two miles south of Rising Star.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

GRAIN STUBBLE—How should it be handled? Grain Stubble can be used to insure more moisture penetration into the soil. It can be used as a blanket to hold down evaporation of soil moisture and to hold soil temperature down.

To get the maximum benefits from stubble it should be left on the surface of the ground. Many farmers ask how weeds can be controlled without breaking the field. Weeds can be controlled by using sweeps, preferably large 30 inch sweeps. Some farmers say their stubble is too heavy and it will ball up. Where there is extra heavy stubble, a rolling coultter will have to be used ahead of the sweep to cut through the stubble.

Many farmers in the Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District have found the following method of handling their stubble fields very profitable.

1. Immediately following the grain harvest, the field is chiseled to 12 to 14 inches deep. This is done to insure that all moisture received during the summer will go into the ground to be stored to produce Johnson grass or for the next grain crop.
2. If the field is not to be used for grazing, weeds will be controlled by using large sweeps.
3. At planting time the seed bed is prepared by using tandem disk and the grain drill is tied on behind the tandem.

Advantages of this method of handling grain stubble land are (1) more moisture in the soil for crop production (2) lower soil temperature (3) less evaporation (4) less runoff.

Fred Clark, conservation rancher north of Blanket, plowed a fire guard around his rangeland last week. Clark says, "with the fine growth of grass I have this year, a fire would ruin me."

Clark started ranching soon after retiring from the army in the late forties. There are two things that are outstanding about his operations. He keeps books on his ranching business and he applies all of the practices necessary to maintain his range in good condition. A range in this condition will produce more grass than a range that is kept short. The more top growth a grass produces the deeper and more root system it develops. A plant with top cover to hold the temperature down and a good root system to feed it will stay green and growing through the hot dry summer months.

The most important practices Clark applies to maintain his good range are proper stocking and deferred grazing. He stocks his range so that he leaves from two to three thousand pounds of cover on the ground at all times. He rests his rangeland to give the better grasses a chance to seed out.

The Fourth being Sabbath, the morning of the 5th was ushered in by the firing of one gun for each of our thirty-three sovereign States which adorn the glorious glaxy. The booming sound was echoed back from an hundred hills and re-echoed through the whole extent of the country. At an early hour our streets were thronged with hundreds of our citizens mostly wearing happy faces. At half past eleven the thundering cannon told us that the Quitman Rifles were marching to the Capitol in their blue and white uniforms and appropriate small caps, under the command of their gallant, Captain, Washington Hill.

We have elsewhere spoken of the prospects of this road, and now lay before our readers the following condensation by the editor of the Galveston News. Our citizens must feel an interest in the completion of this road to Brenham, since it is impossible that the terminus can remain in the very centre of the richest country in the world. — The mode of the building by the people themselves must heartily commend itself to every man: "The company expects to complete the road from Hempstead to the River, within sixty days from the present time — it being an air line from Hempstead to the river, and the grading very light. It is thought $1000 per mile will complete the road but ready for the cross-ties, on this portion of the road. Thirty dollars per month for first class hands are allowed, payable in the stock of the company, which, it is supposed, can be made the best paying stock in the State." The first crop of figs ripened in our garden about two weeks ago; and last Tuesday, the 22nd inst., we had fine, large, ripe Early York peaches. (Texian Advocate)

We were presented, a day or two ago, with a lot of fine June Apples, raised near this city on the farm of Mr. Compton. They were fine flavored, very juicy, and very good sized. Some things can grow in Texas as well as "America," and we advise all who can, to at once put out an orchard, and not depend on the "States" for every luxury.

Hereafter the Houston mail will be due every day at 7 a. m., and depart at half past 3 p. m., the mail closing at 3. The San Antonio mail will arrive at 6 p. m. and depart at 7 a. m., every day; for the present the coaches will only run every alternate day and the mail will be carried on horseback every other day. No Sunday service. The Waco mails will arrive and depart at the same hours.

Other foods considered in plentiful enough supply to rate spots on the July Plentiful List are watermelons, fresh and processed lemons, potatoes, summer vegetables and vegetable fats and oils.

Among the summer vegetables expected to be in good supply are such items as sweet corn, tomatoes, cabbage, green beans, lettuce, cucumbers, green peppers and onions.

Those extra pounds may add up to added discomfort during the hot weather months ahead. Some careful planning now plus lots of will power will lighten the load a bit.

There is no safe way to get rid of excess weight overnight. There are some important factors to consider in starting a weight reducing campaign. First, check with your doctor before starting any plan to lose weight. Many factors play a part in whether a person should reduce and how fast he should lose weight.

Studies have shown that the most effective weight reduction diets are low calorie, high protein, and low carbohydrates. However, a variety and a balance of essential foods is still needed by the body. Nutritionists point out also it's easier for a person to stay on a reducing diet which includes a variety of foods as well as foods which are familiar to the individual.

A good breakfast is always important, even in a reducing diet. Each day's food intake should include two to three cups of milk (may be skim milk), one or more servings of meat, fish, or poultry, one egg (or at least four or five a week), two servings of vegetables (one dark green or yellow), two or three servings of fruit including one citrus, at least one tablespoon of butter and two or three servings of bread or cereal.

If you're really concerned about losing weight, get a calorie chart and start counting your calories. Remember that you can reduce the number of calories amazingly by omitting rich desserts — like pie, cake, and doughnuts.

It's commonplace nowadays to have a long life. Proper food can help to make those extra years happier and healthier. Complaints of chronic tired feeling, gloomy outlook on life, anxiety over small things, and loss of sleep often are caused from being poorly nourished. The right food helps the body to be at its best, and if illness strikes, a well-nourished body responds better to treatment than one in a run-down condition.

Age doesn't change the kinds of food needed by the body for proper functioning. Some adjustments may be needed to take care of special problems. For instance, overweight may become a problem as activities decrease unless the amount of food is decreased too. A good plan is to cut down on the amount of food eaten, but not to cut out any food as long as it does not cause discomfort.

Watch Cows For Sign Of Pinkeye

A "weeping" discharge from the eyes of cattle at this season of the year may be a warning sign of pinkeye, the American Foundation for Animal Health cautioned farmers today.

Pinkeye is most common during hot summer months, and causes substantial losses in production.

The disease usually starts as a small, red, wart-like growth on the colored part of the eye and is accompanied by the "weeping" discharge. Affected cattle also may show evidence of pain, especially when in strong sunlight. Temporary blindness may result.

Young calves with pinkeye may be unable to follow their mothers around the pasture and older, temporarily blinded animals, may easily injure themselves. Also, cattle with advanced pinkeye cannot graze efficiently.

There are no specific vaccines, bacterins or serums to prevent pinkeye. Veterinarians treat the disease medically, and recommend providing darkened shelter during the day, and placing feed and water so the animals do not have to search for it.

Texas Is Growing Dairy Business In

College Station, — If the trend toward handling bulk milk experienced in Texas during 1956 and 1957 continues at the same rate, it is doubtful that any Grade "A" milk will be handled in cans in the state by the end of 1962.

This statement is made in a bulletin just released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entitled "Bulk Handling of Milk on Texas Dairy Farms." The bulletin is a summary of information obtained in the North Texas and Corpus Christi areas during the spring and summer of 1957 on dairy farms which have converted their operations to the bulk system of producing and handling milk.

According to the bulletin, Texas dairy farmers are operating larger units, milking more cows, selling more milk and generally becoming more commercialized. They also are making efforts to increase their efficiency by utilizing methods which contribute to more efficient production and marketing of fluid milk.

Armed Forces Gobbling Up Land At Alarming Rate Warns Digest Article

The armed forces are "gobbling up" valuable farm, oil and mineral land at an alarming rate, an article warns in the July Reader's Digest. In the article, "Do the Armed Forces Need a 35-Million-Acre Empire?" Charles Stevenson reports that the services now are in possession of 29 million acres, and demand six millions more. Yet, he says, they acknowledge that at least 200 installations they now control are idle, and 7,500,000 acres they hold are no longer required.

Rep. Overton Brooks (D., La.) chairman of a committee which investigated, commented: "The basic trouble is that members of Congress aren't given the time to analyze the legitimacy of the military's demands. Requests are described as so immediately essential that any delay will jeopardize our national safety." The American Farm Bureau Federation has protested some of the grabs, and the Secretary of Agriculture has added his voice to the appeals.

Here is a state-by-state rundown:

California — The most popular state with the military. The services have put more than $2,500-

000,000 into nearly 5,500,000 acres — an area larger than Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island combined. A tenth of all California skies are reserved for the military's exclusive use, while off the coast the services have blocked off another area as big as the state itself. From there, submarines already are zipping missiles over the heavily populated coastline to land 100 miles inland.

Nevada — The Air Force has a bombing range, 135 miles long and 50 miles wide, adjacent to Las Vegas. Two-thirds of it is unused. The Navy demanded one of its own in northern Nevada. The area contained 35 ranches of from 200 to 19,000 acres, 22,400 head of cattle, 14,000 sheep and operating mines worth millions of dollars. Nevadans battled the invasion for three years, finally won a "compromise" giving the Navy more than 700,000 acres.

New Mexico — The services already held three million acres of missile range that cut a swath 30 by 100 miles from the Texas border north. Next the army moved in on an adjacent 470,000 acres of public property embracing some of the lushest grazing land in the state. Then, declaring that 21 adjacent ranch properties were essential, it ordered the ranchers to get out in 90 days. More seizures are contemplated, including one to put a vast missile range close to the main line of the Santa Fe Railroad.

Utah — The Navy demanded 128,000 state-owned acres at Great Salt Lake for a skip-bombing range. The Air Force already had a 1,400,000 acre range, nearly part of which it had not used for 15 years. It offered this to the Navy, but the Navy wanted none of it, until Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson turned on the pressure.

Louisiana — In 1956, the Navy seized 4,337 acres of intensely cultivated land near New Iberia, for jet training. The owners resisted with shotguns for a while, but ultimately capitulated. Last fall, it developed that the jet base would be almost useless without a target area. Quietly, the Navy mapped out an additional 20-by-40 mile zone along the Gulf of Mexico which would doom three wildlife sanctuaries, eight oil and gas fields, seven communities, fishing grounds, rice fields and trapping lands. Then the Navy abruptly called off the entire jet training program there. The base now is used for a kind of routine training which could be carried on at any of a dozen idle bases nearby.

Oklahoma — The Army has unveiled a program for taking over a minimum of 281,500 private acres for an expanded missile training center, destroying farms and ranches of nearly 1000 families, and wiping out 96 producing oil wells. Residents of

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health.
HENRY A. HOLLE, M.D., Commissioner

With the blanks unfilled, Form Number 68-R573 is nothing but rows of cold and impersonal lines of type on a printed page.

It is only when a doctor enters a boy or girl's name, or a man or woman's . . . an age . . . an address . . . a telephone number . . . that Form Number 68-R573 relates its story of personal tragedy and human error.

Form Number 68-R573 is impressively titled "Poliomyelitis Surveillance Case Record." More simply it is the State Health Department's way of keeping checks on victims of the disease which by all right of reason should be practically a thing of the past.

Seventy-two times so far this year the form has lost its impersonal character and become grimly personal. At first blush you think 72 cases of polio among some eight million Texans is an insignificant number.

But is it really? Can even a single case be "insignificant" when it costs an active youngster the use of arms or legs, or an adult the ability to support a family?

The thing that heightens tragedy is that it might have been avoided. That's where the man error, or "apathy," or "ignorance" comes in.

Like a 37-year-old North T. man who firmly insisted that four of his children be properly vaccinated, while at the time complacently considered himself too old to be in danger, also a check mark in the "blue square" on the form.

Or like the 13-year-old I. League infielder and his 3-year-old sister, neither of whom had a single shot of vaccine would have added hurt to it to ask their parents why.

This human error — and is the charitable name for it has caused one major manufacturer of Salk vaccine to discontinue production of the fluid for which parents all the nation were piously praying just a few short years ago. reason: vaccine stocks simply not being used. By the 11 gallons, vaccine is growing and impotent on drug shelves.

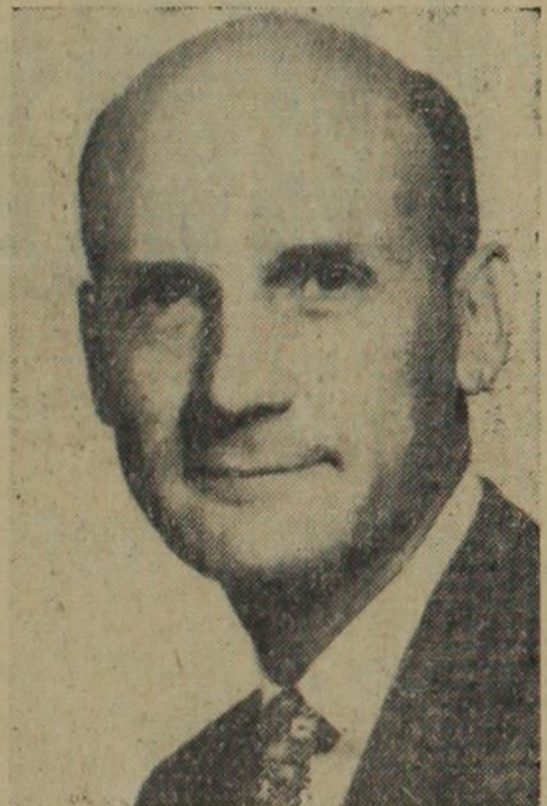

It is a sad thing to see the surveillance forms come in week. It is sadder still to see people to numbers for public and mailing each Thursday city and county health offices of Texas and to the Federal government.

Somehow it makes you think those famous lines by Whitman . . . "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these that might have been."

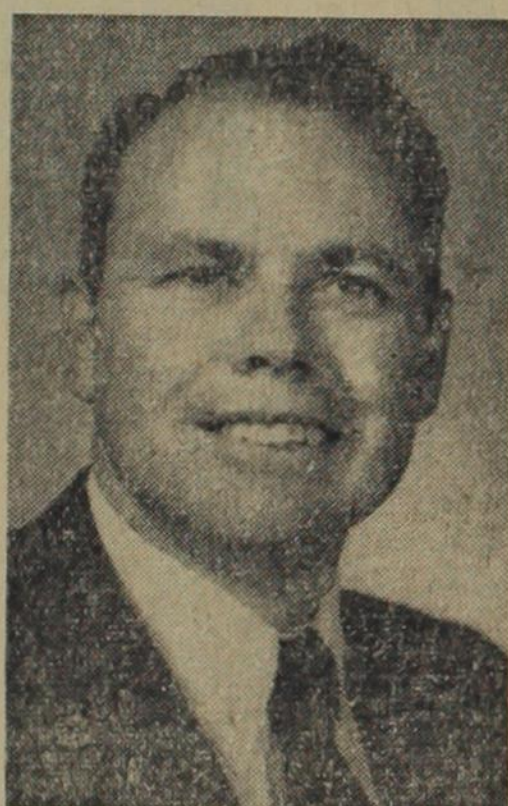

four counties have banded together to oppose the move.

Virginia — In one stretch of Chesapeake Bay waterfront, a traditional vacation retreat, there are more than 50 major military installations. Last year, three Navy attack bombers mistook a bay lighthouse for their target and fired five-inch rockets through it. A crew at the Navy Ordnance Proving Ground on the Potomac below Washington fired a one-ton projectile at the middle of the river; it landed in a backyard at Erica, Va., missing five children. The Virginia legislature has adopted a resolution condemning the military efforts to pre-empt its shoreline.

Mrs. Tyer To Help Shepherd Group of Young Methodists

A Rising Star girl, Mrs. Doris McCollum Tyer, will be nurse for a group of Methodist youth who are taking a trip through the Old South. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bullis McCollum.

Miss Gaila Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Walters of Eastland high school senior and president of the MYF group of the First Methodist Church in Eastland, left this week with a group of youngsters from the Central Texas Conference of the Methodist Church for a tour of eight states.

Thirty-one young people from throughout the conference are making an extended tour of Methodist missions and educational institutions in the South. They are traveling by chartered bus and will be away from home approximately 10 days.

The Central Texas Conference includes Eastland County and the extreme eastern portion of Calhoun. Cross Plains and Putnam churches are in the Cisco district of the Central Texas Conference.

The trip, held for the first time last summer, will be made up of 23 girls and eight boys. All making the trip expressed interest in Methodist mission work by writing essays on the subject of Methodist missions.

Between Monday, July 7, and July 18 the day they are scheduled to return to the Texas Wesleyan College campus in Fort Worth, the youngsters will have toured eight southern States and visited numerous important Methodist church and mission centers.

At night, the kids will sleep on their own air mattresses in churches from Fort Worth to Worth to Atlanta. They will cook most of their own meals in church fellowship halls in route.

To Smokies
The tour will take them to Little Rock Arkansas, Jackson, Knoxville and Nashville, Tennessee with two days to spend in Nashville, national headquarters of Methodism.

In the Smoky Mountains, they will visit the Pittman Center, a Methodist retreat and school. They will go to the Cherokee Reservation to inspect an Indian mission and later on to Lake Junaluska in North Carolina to the big Methodist camp there.

In Atlanta, the youngsters will visit Emory University and the Bethlem Center for Negroes, going from there to Tuskegee, Alabama, to visit Tuskegee Institute and the George Washington Carver Museum.

After stopping in Meridian and Raleigh, Mississippi, they go to Ruston, Louisiana, and the Wesley Foundation of Polytechnic Institute of Louisiana.

The annual mission tours of the Central Texas Conference Methodist Youth are a project of Mrs. Roy Johnson of Azle, wife of the Methodist minister there and conference secretary of youth for the Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Mrs. Johnson has made all the contacts and advance scheduling for the trippers.

Along with Mrs. Tyer, adults who will be making the trip are Rev. Robert Robertson of Cleburne, Director of Youth Work for the Central Texas Conference, and Mrs. H. W. Rosenberg, trip co-directors, and Mrs. Byron Cavnar, Jr., of Fort Worth, who will serve as dietitian.

Mrs. Rosenberg said the eight-state tour is budgeted at $70 to $75 a youngster so there will be little eating in fancy restaurants or staying at fancy hotels or motels.

She said the main purpose of the annual tours is to encourage the young people in Methodist churches throughout the conference area to dedicate themselves to a lifetime work with various missions of the church.

Request Birth Certificate Early Parents Advised

If you are the parent of a youngster who will start school for the first time this fall, you can help yourself and the State Department of Health by requesting a copy of his birth record now.

Most school systems require a birth certificate to prove the child was six years old on September 1. By making early requests for birth records, parents can save themselves needless anxiety, their children some missed classwork, and the Department a great deal of time.

Several hundred parents have already requested and received records of their children's birth, but tens of thousands of additional records have to be processed between now and the time school doors swing open for the new term. If too many people delay until August — as they usually do — the resulting bottleneck could very well mean your youngster will be barred when that first school bell rings.

The reason is obvious: The limited staff of the Division of Vital Statistics — despite long hours of night and week-end work without overtime pay—can search just so many files, extract just so many records, and photostat just so many copies in time for school's opening.

Birth record keepers shudder when they think of the 247,500 children — an estimate supplied by the Texas Education Agency—who will be eligible to enter school for the first time this September.

Many of them have copies of birth records and will create no problem. Others live in areas where school officials do not require proof of age before admitting the child to classes.
