READING AND WRITING

Miss America Still Ducks Fame; Prefers Textbooks To Scripts

By JOHN SELBY

"DEFOE: A BIOGRAPHY," by James Sutherland (Lippincott; $2.50).

There is no use pretending that James Sutherland has written the most exhaustive, or even the most readable, biography of Daniel Defoe in the book he publishes today.

It has been to write an accurate biography in a reasonable compass, in which scholarship of approach is blended properly with readability.

In America particularly, Defoe always has been merely the author of "Robinson Crusoe."

He was a business man to begin with, failing after many operations both legitimate and shady for the sum of 17,000 pounds.

HACKETTSTOWN, N. J. — Blonde, dimpled Bette Cooper, an "old-fashioned girl," surprised herself by winning the Atlantic City beauty contest last September—and then ran out on her role as Miss America.

She didn't like the arrangements and besides she wanted to get home to Hackettstown. Not even offers of $400 a week on the stage and a chance in the movies could change her attitude.

School Is Across the Street Now, four months later, she hasn't changed her mind yet.

She neither drinks nor smokes and she doesn't "care a bit" for Hollywood's No. 1 male screen star.

Must Have "Some Money" And, she added, "a fellow has to have some money, too, you know. No girl wants a boy friend who can't take her some place."

Rising at 7:30 every morning, Bette helps her mother with breakfast and house-cleaning before starting for school.

Wants To See America Although Bette ran out on the Miss America life, she isn't forgotten.

Play Pool, Dance, Sock The Other Fellow On The Jaw—These Among Minister's Suggestions To Boys

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 7 (AP)—"Play pool—dance—hit the other fellow on the jaw—and don't depend on dad to be a pal."

That's Dr. Burris Jenkins' advice to the American boy. Dr. Jenkins, pastor of the Community church, set down ten maxims in addressing two troops of Boy Scouts yesterday. They were:

1. "Play pool—it is good exercise and recreation."

2. "Hit the other fellow on the jaw—despite what your elders may say, boxing is a manly art, much less dangerous than football and baseball."

3. "Dance—it is instinctive and x x x does not excite dangerous sex manifestations but is a means of expressing and getting rid of those very manifestations."

4. "Ask your dad questions when puzzled about your development." (But see No. 9).

5. "Get a dog."

6. "Go camping."

7. "Run away—but tell your dad so he can stock you up with money for chess and crackers."

8. "Love your teachers—x x x much more must be learned about schools and boys before you can fulfill this."

9. "Dad can't be a pal—he is too old. He will sacrifice more for you than anyone else will, and should be a close friend; but as for father and son being buddies and pals, it can't be done."

10. "Do! Do! Do!—All your life you have heard don't—that is wrong. Live life positively."

Dr. Jenkins, former president of Kentucky University and University of Indianapolis, was editor and publisher of the old Kansas City Post during its brief ownership by Frederick Bonfils and Harry Tamm of Denver Post fame.

Francis is planning to install the world's most powerful television station in the Eiffel tower.

THE SPORTS PARADE

By HANK HART

DEWEY MAYHEW, who walked out on the Saturday meeting of the district committeemen in Abilene when they refused to bargain with him on whether the Eagles should play night or day football games next fall, was finally made to see the light but not until the issue was voted on. As a result the Abilene gridder will play night football for the first time in his history... The weekend Longhorns oppose the Eagles in Abilene, there will be no interference from any college games or any sort. All three of the Abilene colleges will be playing on foreign fields...

CLARENCE GARNES, KIBST announcer, who dashed out a swell announcing job here during the Golden Gloves boxing tournament, is taking out choice odds on his new dining and dancing spot atop Socale mountain. ... Do you ever stop to think how many different kinds of balls there are used for sports? ... EDDIE ALLEN of Cincinnati Maguire recently brought to light the fact that 16 different kinds of balls are employed today: viz, ping pong, golf, pool, billiard, field hockey, baseball, tennis, regulation softball, indoor softball, bowling, football, soccer, volley, Duck Pin bowling and basketball.

MANAGER W. L. THOMPSON of the Trojans, local independent basketball team which won its first game of the season last week in Odessa, is still looking for ball games. ... A schedule is especially hard to arrange since Big Spring has no gym. ... One of THOMPSON'S ace cagers is H. C. BURRUS, who recently dropped out of Garden-Simmons for a year. ... COACH FRANK KIMBROUGH, who had watched him play freshman football, says BURRUS is too young for varsity football, which is a pumkin. ... H. C. will be remembered as the pass snagging end of the '26 Steer eleven. ... Another toward county athletes who did not report back to school was BOBBY SHERRY, star Forsan guard of a few years back. ... BOBBY lettered as a freshman cager on the Daniel Baker quintet last year but was elected to work this season. ... He's playing for BERL CRAMER'S Magnolia Oilers of Forsan.

PEPPER MARTIN, who may announce for a public office within a few days, doesn't believe he will play much baseball this year, all because of a sore arm developed when he saw a boy shoulder a bat across town the other day.

Only girl members of the Forsan basketball team made all-tournament honors in the Big Lake tournament last week. ... They were HEBA GRIBSON and MARY REGORY, just about the best of several stars in this section, and DRENA JORDAN and EVA LOU DWE. ... They helped defeat Noces in the final game, 33-15. ... OLLIS PARKER, Forsan boys' captain, made 15 points in the first round game with Crews but the EXMEN still lost out, 33-26.

It should be quite a battle between Forsan and Garner tomorrow night in the Forsan gym, especially if DEE FROMAN, ace Garner guard, is declared eligible. ... Each team has recorded the victory over the other this season. ... Coahoma is not expected to supply much of a threat to the winner in the finals Friday since LEADY BYFON lost a leg in JAMES HUNTER last week. ... Our all-county teams will be the present time would shape up with DON WREZEL, Forsan, and PARKER at forwards; LALPH MARSHALL, Coahoma, center, and the two Garner boys, FROMAN and E. C. THOMAS in the backcourt.

FLOYD WILLIAMS, who gave in West Texas golfing leaders such a fit last season, will probably be a candidate for the district color golfing honors here in July. ... The San Angelo boy is but 18 years old, three years under the bit.

Lloyd Burnett, Boone Cramer To Hold Meets

Coahoma Invitational To Take Place Feb. 18-19

Two independent basketball tournaments to be held in Howard county gyms will serve to attract some of the best quintets in this section of the state within the near future. Boone Cramer's Coahoma All-Invitational meeting at the Coahoma Invitational meeting will take place Feb. 18 and 19 in Coahoma gym. He has invited six teams, one of them the Big Ring Trojans. Entrance fee for the meeting has been set at $3. First place winner will be given $25 and $10 going to runnersup. Lloyd Burnett has tendered an invitation to all surrounding teams in this vicinity to a meeting scheduled for the Garner gym Feb. 24. A tournament will be a one day affair, Burnett announced. Entrance fee for that meeting will be $3 with $25 going to the victor and $10 to second place winner.

S'west Cage Race Gains Momentum Steers Battle Porkers In Arkansas

Champions Swing In to Action Against Frogs Tuesday

By FELIX B. BERNIGHT

No different from their football brethren, basketballers of the Southwest Conference today had settled down to a little feuding that promised to send the league race right into the stretch before a winner is determined.

Borrowing the "anything-can-happen" slogan from the annual grid scramble, the race presented three teams as possible winners—Arkansas, Baylor and Southern Methodist.

Baylor's off to the same unbeaten spurt its gridder put on during the fall, could, by the easiest reasoning, be occupying the top spot after a heavy week of seven games among the contenders.

Tough, but not unmanageable, were expected to be the Texas Aggies in Baylor's only game at College Station Wednesday night, while Arkansas, boasting six straight victories in the league, has the toughest opposition in the league in a remodeled University of Texas team in two week-end games at Fayetteville.

Together for the first time, a new Texas five, boasting two sophomores who became eligible at mid-term and Capt. Don White, back for the first time in weeks after nursing injuries, lost a close, 46-45 game to the rampaging Baylorites last week. Inability to stop Hugh Kirkpatrick, mangling center who set a new conference scoring record recently, cost the Texans.

Texas starts its week by playing Rice at Houston Tuesday night and then barges into Arkansas' new $100,000 gym for a Friday and Saturday series. It's almost even money that the Texans will take one of the two games.

Arkansas buried hapless Texas Christian beneath two overwhelming scores in their only games of last week.

Baylor kept pace by smothering T.C.U., 66-39, in an earlier game.

Rice, idle for two weeks during mid-term examinations, hits into action twice, first against Texas and then against a Southern Methodist crew that is anything but out of the race.

The Methodists, defending their title, are expecting no trouble from Texas Christian in a Tuesday night game at Dallas, and, on the basis of comparisons, should erase Rice at Houston Saturday.

To round out the week, Texas Christian and the Aggies, both out of contention, tussle for a consolation prize at College Station Saturday night.

MEDWICK WANTS TO MAKE HAY WHILE HE CAN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP)—Joe Medwick is concerned about the future and not the present in his holdout differences with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"You've got to make your pile when you're going good," said the Cardinal outfielder who captured just about all the senior loop's honors in 1927.

"When I've passed my peak as a ball player the club isn't going to remember what I did in 1927. It will pay me what it figures I'm worth and that's all," said Medwick.

"That's why I want to get every cent I think is coming to me now," he added. "It's just a matter of business with me."

HE MADE GOOD Jim Doesn't Expect 20 Wins In '38

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—James Riley Turner, the "greybeard rookie" of the Boston Bees, got more of a kick out of winning 20 games as a freshman than out of his top ranking in earned-run averages.

"Earned-run records are considered a true gauge of pitching ability," said Turner, a dairyman here during the off season, "but still I am more gratified by winning 20 games in my first year."

Getting his first big league trial after 14 years in the minors, Turner turned in his fine performance using, he says, "a pretty fast ball, better-than-average curve and control."

He'll Work Hard

The 33-year-old hurler thinks he may be able to escape a second-year jinx that gets so many sophomores by reporting in condition and ready for hard work at the training camp.

"I may have a poor season like many other second-year men," Turner says, "but I believe I stand a better chance of getting by it than lots of young fellows without my experience."

"I have always felt that second-year men failed to duplicate their rookie records because they reported out of shape and maybe a little overconfident.

"I'm down to playing weight right now and my legs are in good shape. The 1937 season is history so far as I am concerned and I'm going to training camp ready for as much conditioning as the rawest rookie."

PITCHER JIM TURNER He doesn't believe he will win 20 games in 1938. Because: "You have to get the breaks to win 20, regardless of how good you are. You can't make many mistakes. In the majors, one poorly pitched ball may cost you the game and usually does so. Why, I lost three games last year because I gave Ducky Medwick his favorite pitch. He broke up the game and beat me on those three days. That's the difference between the majors and the minors."

Forsan High School Files Protest On Eligibility Of Dee Froman

Committee To Meet Tonight For Decision

Garner Athlete Said To Be Over Age; Two Teams Meet Tuesday

Forsan High school filed an official protest on the eligibility of Willie Dee Froman, Garner High school basketball player Sunday afternoon. Members of the two schools will meet with the county athletic committee in the office of Ann Martin, county school superintendent, this evening to thresh out the problem before the opening game of the county basketball playoff.

The two teams are scheduled to meet Tuesday night in the Forsan gym to play for the right to oppose Coahoma in the championship game Friday.

Froman moved to Howard county from Arkansas several years ago and his age has been a question with county authorities since he began playing basketball this season. He transferred from Brown High school to the Garner system last year and the committee will also decide whether he moved in time to become eligible for the tournament.

Froman has been the spark plug of the Forsan attack this season. Coach Floyd Barnett of the Garner quintet did not play him in the first few games but had intended to start him tomorrow evening.

Athletes Move To Penn Club, 7th Regiment

Towns, Tolmich, G. Cunningham And Twins Set Marks

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—The 1938 indoor track and field season still is in its infancy but three world records, one of them of long standing, already have been smashed. The incomparable Glenn Cunningham again has asserted his supremacy over the nation's best milers and Pittsburgh's "Long John" Woodruff has lost his first half-mile race in nearly two years.

As the nation's greatest athletes separated today for the Penn A. C. and Seventh Regiment of New York games on Friday before coming together again at Boston on Saturday, they looked back on one of the most thrilling meets in the history of the Mileres A. A.

Ben Johnson, Columbia's negro captain, stamped himself as the newest "fastest human" with a new world record for 60 yards and Forrest (Spec) Towns of Georgia and Allan Tolmich of Wayne university (Detroit) rung up a new international mark for the 60-yard hurdles.

Johnson obliterated such famous names as Jesse Owens, Eulace Peacock, Emmett Toppino, Chester Bowman and Loren Murchison from the record books as he stepped down the straightaway in six seconds flat.

The performance gave Johnson ranking as the outstanding performer of the meet.

Although Towns whipped Tolmich in the finals of the hurdles, the lanky German was forced to share the new record of 74 with the green-shirted boy from Michigan. Both made the time in their trial heats and Towns did it again in the final. The old mark of 74 was established by John Collier in 1934 and equaled by Sam Allen of Bristow, Okla., who failed to get into the finals Saturday.

The twin combination of Delmer and Elmer Brown and Wayne and Blaine Rideout from North Texas State Teachers chalked up a new mark in the mile and seven-eighths medley relay. With Blaine Rideout getting up in the final strides to nose out Indiana's Jimmy Smith on the anchor leg, the Texas team was timed in 7:57.5. The old mark of 7:59.6 was made by New York university in 1932.

Cunningham tied the Millrose mark of 4:11 and whipped his Kansas teammate, Archie San Romani, by ten yards.

Just to prove his versatility, Cunningham came back later in the evening and ripped off a 50.4-second anchor quarter on the New York Exchange relay team. The Exchange quartet, starting from scratch in the handicap event, lost its chance for victory, however, when Sam Romani was spiked while receiving the baton for the third leg.

The league's new member, Brown, is scheduled to meet the Fish.

Steers May Play Austin Next Season

Schedule Will Allow Locals To Take Part In Warmup Games

The rearrangement of the Oil Belt football district whereby Big Spring, Sweetwater, Abilene and San Angelo will meet each other twice during the regular season, will allow Big Spring to play more than one "warmup" game, the first time in three seasons.

For the past two years the Steers have plunged into the conference schedule following an opening game with Wink high school.

A game has been tentatively arranged with Austin High, El Paso, in September, the game to be played in El Paso, but no definite plans have been completed.

Twins Compete On Two Tracks

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Two sets of foot-racing twins from North Texas State Teachers college will split up to compete in four races in the Seventh Regiment indoor track meet next Friday.

It was announced today that Blaine Rideout will face Glenn Cunningham in the special invitation mile; his twin brother, Wayne, will start in the 1,000-yard handicap; Delmer Brown, who won the Princeton 440 last spring, will be a featured starter in the 600-yard special against such stars as Jimmy Herbert of New York university, and Howie Dorck, of Manhattan, and his twin, Elmer, will run in the 300-yard handicap.

In addition the two Browns and Wayne Rideout are slated to run on the North Texas mile relay team with Alvin Chrisman as the fourth member. Chrisman also is a twin but his brother, Alton, isn't a runner.

During this period the companies have operated a total of 4,472,280,166 passenger miles.

HOGAN TAKES THIRD MONEY IN SACRAMENTO GOLF OPEN

Texas Trails Revolta And Ghezzi

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 7 (AP)—Johnny Revolta, as reliable a shot maker as the game has produced in many a year, added the Sacramento open tournament to his list of golfing conquests today, thus increasing his lead as top money winner of the winter tournament season.

He conquered rain, wind and other provoking playing conditions to post a 72-hole total of 290, two strokes over par.

Revolta fired a par 72 for his opening round and capped his final eighteen with a similar score.

In between he carded 73's. His play was consistent during severe weather conditions.

Revolta, who has accumulated $5,250 since the winter swing began last December, opened the tour with a victory in the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore tournament. His Sacramento netted him $750.

Revolta finished a stroke ahead of Vie Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., who had a 72-hole score of 291. A 5 on the par 4 last hole cost Ghezzi a chance to tie for the lead.

He pulled his second shot forty yards to the side of the green, pitched up and missed a 20-foot by inches. He had a 69 and 73 for his last two rounds.

Ben Hogan of Fort Worth, Tex., took third money with a 292 while Earl Fry, Alameda, Calif., Tony Penna, Dayton, O.; Horton Smith and John Bulla, both of Chicago, tied for fourth positions with 293's.

Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., and Frank Toronto, Sacramento, finished with 294's. Toronto was low scoring amateur.

Among the pre-tournament favorites who finished far back were Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., with 298; Jimmy Hines, Garden City, N. Y., and Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., with 299; Harry Cooper of Chicago, Mass., with 301 and Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-on-Deleware, Pa., with 303.

The San Francisco match play open tournament, starting Wednesday, was the next stop on the schedule.

Name Referee For Annual Relays

Major J. L. Griffith Chosen For April Events

AUSTIN, Feb. 7 —The drums started beating for the Southwest's greatest spring sports festival when Clyde Littlefield, University of Texas track coach, announced this week that Maj. John L. Griffith will be honorary referee of the 11th Texas Relays here April 2.

Maj. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, will have the additional honor of being the first "repeater" on the Texas Relays' long list of famous referees. He was head man for the '26 show—the second of the Relays. There was no honorary referee for the inaugural carnival in '25.

Other referees have been Fielding Post of Michigan, A. A. Slaggs, then of Chicago, the late Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, Henry F. "Indian" Schulte of Nebraska, Steve Farrell of Michigan, Bill Hargis of Kansas, Bernie Moore of Louisiana State and Billy Hayes of Indiana.

Maj. Griffith is one of the most prominent figures in intercollegiate athletics—past editor of The Athletics Journal, past president of the N.C.A.A., and founder of the Drake Relays.

Conec Littlefield stated he was already receiving inquiries from all over the nation as to the '28 Relays, Minnesota, Idaho, Dartmouth—to mention only three of the inquiring universities indicates the sweeping range of interest.

The Texas coach is in communication with Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani, Don Lash and Forrest Towns and hopes to bring some or all of these international stars as special performers.

Preliminary information already has gone out to 500 colleges and 100 high schools. Entry blanks will be mailed March 6.

The Oilers lost to Coahoma last Friday, 30-17, but were not at full strength.

Cramer will probably use Tommy Hutto, T. J. Turner, Bobby Asbury, Johnny Fitzgerald, Bob Childers, Bob Weaver and Rayford Loyles along.

Dear Son:

We welcome you and Helen back from your honeymoon. After you've settled a bit, we'll drop in to see your new home.

I remember the day, some thirty years ago, when your Mother and I came back to our first home. I split kindling for the cast-iron kitchen stove, and it took Mother all afternoon to bake some bread. Instead of her vacuum-cleaner, Mother had a broom . . . and how she made it fly. But our prize possession was in the parlor . . . a real talking-machine, with chubby cylinder-records and a big morning-glory horn.

We used to march for miles over town on our shopping trips. How I fidgeted while Mother shopped. We were both worn out.

Things have changed a lot since then, all right—and you'll both be better off for it. Helen won't have to spend half her days in the kitchen like Mother used to. The advertisements in the daily newspaper will save her those punishing miles of shopping. They'll keep her posted on current values, give her the names of dependable products, tell her all about special sales. When you come home nights you'll find her fresh as a daisy . . . ready for a jolly evening with your friends.

I'll trade the "good old days" for the good NEW days any day.

But enough of reminiscence . . . I rejoice in the exciting years of youth that are ahead for you both.

Affectionately,
Dad

THE FUTURE'S OIL NEEDS

At a time when Texas oil wells are shut down one full day each week to forestall overproduction, the prediction of a serious gasoline shortage within the next 20 years is hard for oil men to take seriously.

This country is going to need 1,700,000,000 barrels of crude per year to meet its gasoline requirements, the economists believe.

New fields must be discovered and explored, the conference was told at a rate fully as rapid as that which has been maintained since 1917, if supply is to keep pace with demand.

It is estimated that at least 900,000 new wells must be drilled in the 10-year period, making due allowance for dry holes, in order to develop the production needed.

The conclusion may be drawn that the oil industry has some big and profitable years ahead of it, whatever discomfort it may suffer from a seasonal over-supply.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

WASHINGTON — We have just been reading a story about holdout trouble in the baseball fields and can say that there is practically no holdout trouble in Washington.

It is true that there is a baseball club here which has not been much in the pennant race of recent years and there may be holdout trouble there. But there is a playing team of about 435 Congressmen who will be glad to sign two-year contracts at the same old $10,000-a-year pay they have been getting for years past.

Such a one is Senator Steiwer of Oregon who has resigned after nearly a dozen years in the Senate. But almost before he had turned in his equipment a substitute had been found in Oregon who, the administration claimed, was better for its purposes even than Senator Steiwer, since Steiwer, being a Republican, has not battled 300 for the New Deal.

You would think there might be holdout trouble among some of the first string players. All are getting the top salary the league allows so they can't hold out on that account. Yet there are little sweeteners in the way of patronage appointments for friends and appropriations for schoolhouses and tugboat landings for the home town and it seems that some of the boys who consider themselves indispensable should be asking a larger take before they sign up for spring camp.

Such is not the case and the only reason they ask for patronage and concrete dams is to keep the steam throwing bottles back home when election time comes around.

Senators Willing, Too The same applies to the 22 senators who also will be up. No coaxing will be required to get them to sign six-year contracts. Traditionally senators play a header game than the more numerous players in the other house. They get longer contracts and they ask more money to ignore the boss signals. Some of them will grit their teeth and swing away for an attempted home-run even though the boss whispered to them that a snappy sacrifice hit past shortstop would do the team more good.

But regardless of their independence, when contract signing comes around they are a fairly amiable lot and if the chief says to them: "Play away out," they will back far out into the outfield and try to understand a play the likes of which they never heard of before.

There will be months at a time when the boys will insist on batting fungoes to each other when the boss is trying to wrangle them into the field for a little serious playing. Yet when contract signing time comes around they will be there ready to play dumb or better ball as the case may be, and eager to wield a knife and fork at the training table.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK — Your correspondent bit off more than he could chew today: 40,000,000 hamburgers.

A man who knows about such things is saying that never in history were such vast quantities of ground up meat being inserted in split buns as during 1937.

One chain of bite-and-run commissaries alone reported selling 40,000,000 separate and distinct hamburgers. Most of them with mustard. The man who knows about such things said your correspondent could go right on from there, adding the hamburgers of other restaurants of chain or independent variety.

He said he could not tell exactly how many there were altogether without his crystal ball, but he wouldn't be surprised if there were about five hundred million of them. That is a lot of hamburgers, especially with mustard.

George Rector, who writes generally about cuisine of a somewhat higher social status, was telling his readers only the other day that he believed the most popular food in New York and America was the hot dog.

Mr. Rector plainly called them hot dogs. More fastidious literateurs might have said frankfurter sandwiches, but Mr. Rector believes in calling a dog a dog.

The famous food authority made no attempt to be statistical about the matter, but your correspondent has no computations about his hearing an opinion; and it seems reasonable to believe that if Americans swallowed half a billion hamburgers in 1937, they also made away with at least a similar quantity of hot dogs, with mustard.

Now we've got a figure that looks like something — a billion sandwiches. Even Hollywood will go a long way before it can dig up a billion of anything. Certainly anything with mustard.

What does this vast hamburger

Sights And Sounds

by ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Groucho Marx is going to wear a moustache—a real one—in the Marx trio's next picture, "Room Service."

And Harpo and Chico will appear in more conservative attire, although Harpo will retain his red wig and his wild-eyed insanity.

All of which portends a Big Step for the brothers. For the first time they will attempt characters that have been previously created on the stage by others, for the first time they will appear in a ready-made play that was not fashioned for their own exclusive amuse.

"If we succeed," says Groucho, the sad-eyed, the soft-voiced, "we'll be opening up an entirely new field for ourselves. If we don't—"

Groucho seriously has his doubts about the pleas as a Marxian vehicle, thinks it is worth the gamble for the reward it will bring if happily received.

"We make only one picture a year, to keep the public from catching on to us," he explains. "When the public catches on to an actor, he may as well fold up. I know—I myself have caught on to some of our best stars, and they're the ones I don't go out of my way to see on the screen. 'Room Service' will be something new for us, and we hope will serve to defer the evil day when the public does catch on."

Alterations However, there is yet hope for those who prefer their Marxes unhampered by such sanities as play construction. "Room Service" will be tailored to fit, partially at least, the starring brothers. Already, as is their custom, they are going into conferences with gag-writers, producer, director and themselves. In these sessions they elaborate, discuss, suggest innovations. In the heat of creation, they have been known to laugh uproariously, sulk gloomily, or mutter madly.

"We put gags in and we throw gags out. We sometimes throw the writers out, and the producer—and there are times when we throw ourselves out," thus Groucho summarizing the technique of conferences.

"If you," he says to me with hidden meaning which I think I resent, "should laugh at one of our gags in conference, we most certainly would throw that one out, but if an audience laughs—even though we know the gag is terrible—we leave it in. We operate on the idea that the public pays for what it wants, and it's up to us to give it to them. No actor, though some of us think so, is out there to entertain himself. He's there to amuse the public."

As is their custom, the Marxes will take their version of "Room Service" on the road in tabloid form, to get audience reaction before they start filming. In preparation, Groucho already has begun growing his real moustache. His usual grease-paint lip-ornament he deems out of place for the character he is to play: "In a real play we can't appear as caricatures of cartoons."

The passing of the painted moustache is to be lamented for all that. It has had a long and honorable history. It was born years ago, in a New York theater, when the Marxes were doing four and five shows a day. In those days Groucho, for each performance, pasted on a crepe moustache. But repeated application and removal made his skin rebel. One day he painted the ornament on, and nobody cared — except the theater manager.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

Chapter 15 THE ONLY WAY OPEN

Christine Forrester met me at the Avon's rail. "I wish you would look at my brother," she was worried and upset; after all, she was under a strain as great as my own. "This isn't a new thing. He's just one of the people who cannot live in the tropics. That's why he's spent most of his life in England. The fever always punned him as soon as he comes into the islands. But this time is different. He's not coming out of it as he ought."

I went below with her to the tiny cabin where her brother was bunked. Robert Forrester lay mumbling vaguely, and his forehead burned my hand. His eyes were half open, but through their fever-glass he could recognize no one. A Malay boy stood by the bunk, fanning him, perpetually with a big palm leaf.

"How much quinine is he getting?" "He can't hold it down any more. Everything we put into him comes up again."

Marvin Stocker came to the door, in white trousers and a loose pajama coat. He was grey-faced and unsteady, his eyes bloodshot; here was another very sick man, able to keep his feet part of the time only by the proved tenacity of the chronic fever victim.

"You got to have a strong stomach," he said. "That's the whole secret of getting along in the tropics. You got to have strong stomach."

We sent the girl on deck, and I held Robert Forrester down while Stocker pumped 25 grains of quinine into him. He squaled and fought, and what we put down him didn't stay; but it was all I knew to do.

I went on deck and lied to his sister. "He'll be better now, I think."

She started to say, "I want you to know I appreciate this—more than—"

"Miss Forrester," I said soberly, "let it go. I have to talk to you. I've run into a bad thing. I no longer know what I'm going to do, or how."

I told her then what the soundings showed. There was no longer any question of whether the Linkang could get up the Siderong to the stockades or not. She couldn't even get into the mouth of the river.

Christine Forrester's face was troubled, though of course that was not because of the Linkang. "I wondered about that," she admitted. "It seems strange—Clyde should have known."

"The delta may have shifted since he sounded it last."

I talked a little more, telling her something about my plans to land several aprons of Clyde's orders, admitting, of course, that no hope at all lay there.

"Come here and sit down," her voice was gentle, and now she took my hand and led me to where the chairs were. I recognized that this girl pined me; she could understand the box I was in, and she was sorry, opposed, though we might be.

Behind her, where we sat now, a great cascade of white orchids hung upon an awning stanchion. Those white flowers are rarities even in the Sumatran jungle; many men must have worked, and worked faithfully, to collect so many at one time. In effect, that mass of blooms was a testimonial to how the Dyaks revered these people of the Avon—they must have brought the flowers when they came for their puna. I was in humble mood, unable any longer to deny that the Avon had a definite relationship to what was happening in the Siderong.

And, though I still held Robert Forrester in disesteem, I had lost confidence in my belief that these people were fools. The boy was the silent type of young Englishman—the really reserved sort, stiffly aloof from anything but direct action. The cut of his nose and jaw promised tenacity, and a certain durable strength, but I had long since come to the belief that these good looking young men are silent because nothing is moving in their heads.

But the girl was something else. She was unbelievably rash, perhaps, and she had an idealistic way of looking at things which might be well removed from the practical facts, but some of Anthony Forrester was perpetuated here. Certainly she was no fool. It was very hard to distinguish between her undue hopefulness and her genuine courage.

"It's impossible," I said, to exaggerate the danger. James Clyde is in. He's more than just a hostage to good intentions. If Mantusen is finished, Clyde's death is the last satisfaction that Mantusen can get out of this world. There's no way to talk Mantusen out of that. It's a real and definite thing, like an ocean current, or the teeth of a coral reef."

"I've been thinking so much about him," Christine Forrester said, her voice very low. "I've thought of almost nothing else since I left you this morning. There must be a way to save James Clyde. There has to be a way."

"There has to be," I agreed. "I think I see the way. I was surprised, of course, but the opposite of hopeful. My life was running with the tide, and I resented blind leads of fate. I was interested in all it was because there was uncertainty in her voice, unlike the vehemence of people who don't know what they are talking about.

"It's a way that may fail; it may fail, or more than one reason. But I think we have to try it, because I simply don't see any other way open."

"The darkness had closed, but there was a moon up—half a moon that gave a sharper light than a full moon any place else. The moonlight gave the girl's face some of that same unearthly pallor, and laid a heavy gleam along the curve of her shoulder."

"Head-hungry!" "We can try this," she said. "We can't after Mantusen safe conduct from Balingong to the sea with his people. I don't know how safe the safe conduct will be. The Tenzalang will obey; but we'll have to come very close to turning the Tenzalang against the rest. The tribes are head-hungry—terribly, savagely. They have the first big victory in their hands in 100 years—and they want the heads. But all we can do is everything we can."

"For a moment an eager stirring of hope unsettled me. Almost I believed in the bare possibility that what she suggested could be done. The hope did not live long."

"Mantusen must leave everything he has," the girl said. "Each Malay must keep his own personal arms. He can't take their religious things; but nothing else must be moved, and nothing else must be destroyed. The Dyak knives must be freed, and he must not burn Balingong. After all, everything there and everything the Malays have collected there, belong to the Dyaks in true right."

"That founders it!" I exploded. "Mantusen wouldn't give that consideration for so much as a single moment."

"He will have to. He will have to, because it's the only way open to him. Anything else is death, and he knows it. That's not what I am worrying about."

"Then you'd better begin worrying about it. You're putting such a humiliation upon Mantusen that he would rather be dead."

"To be dead is his actual choice," Christine said, her voice strained. "It's a choice he will take, if he accepted he would never raise his head among Malays again. He would feel that he'd failed to support the true faith before Allah—he would even doubt his hold upon Paradise. You should know that a Malay prince would not do that."

"No man wants to die, whatever he believes."

"If you knew Malays as you seem to know Dyaks, you would know that that isn't so. These people have a faith which they really believe, and really act upon. I admit that this is a thing very hard for white people to conceive of. But there it is. It is absolutely true that Mantusen doesn't fear to die. If he can rush out with his kris and die slashing, that's his idea of fixing everything up for himself."

She said unsteadily, "Of course you know, this rajah. I've never even seen him. But there surely must be a way to persuade him to accept."

"Under certain conditions, it's possible that he might. He would have to be allowed his possessions and his slaves. A great part of what he owns is owed to his sultan, and he wouldn't dare be shamed in this. And I may as well say this—his acceptance would not mean that the war is over. He would hold Clyde until he obtained the arms that Clyde promised him. And he wouldn't accept at all unless he thought that afterward he could raise the friendly tribes, arm them, and retake Balingong in the name of Saremah."

"It's out of the question to offer him such terms," Christine said shortly. (Copyright, 1933, Alan LeMay)

Ickes Lays Down New Rules For The Government's Bath Houses

By EDDIE GILMORE WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP) - Secretary Ickes got washed back into the bathing news today—this time as the abutments arbiter of government bath houses. "Bath houses or hotels," read new regulations for federal washeries, "will be allowed such number of tubs as the secretary may, in his discretion, deem proper and necessary for the public service, and the amount of hot water will justify." Don't get alarmed. Don't hide the soap. Don't lock up the towels. The government is not going to move into the private bath field. Secretary Ickes' realm includes only those commercial bath houses which get their water from Hot Springs national park. The regulations—which are seven and a half pages long—cover the subject pretty thoroughly. For instance: Children can't come in at half price. No free bath tickets without written permission from the superintendent.

Athletes Not The Only Ones Sought By Colleges

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Competition for students among colleges and universities no longer is restricted to athletes, says the 32nd annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. It extends even to drum majors and tuba players.

Written by Dr. Walter A. Jessep, foundation president, and issued yesterday, part of the report said:

"Jobs and scholarships are dangled before the eyes of impetuous high school pupils. Fraternities and sororities vie in recruiting students who can pay their bills and bring glory (in press notices) to a chapter. . . ."

NEED FOR PEACE IS LEGION'S THEME

ALEXANDRIA, La., Feb. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Malcolm Douglas of Seattle, Wash., stressed necessity for peace yesterday at the close of the two-day conference of more than 300 American Legion and auxiliary members.

Mrs. Douglas, national president of the auxiliary, spoke in place of Daniel J. Doherty, national legion commander who was ill in New York. Speaking of the legion's "universal service" program to conscript all industry and manpower in time of war, she said:

"We must maintain peace at any cost. This can be done by taking the profit from war. The universal service movement is the answer."

DETROIT, Feb. 7 (AP)—Death of Harvey S. Firestone today left Henry Ford as the only survivor of a quartet of famous men, all nature lovers, who enjoyed vacations together for years.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Boy Scouts all over the nation will rededicate themselves this week—National Boy Scout Week—to the principles which have attracted 1,129,877 American youngsters to their world-wide organization.

President Roosevelt will address the boys tonight on a 15-minute program, beginning at 9:45 C. S. T. on three major radio channels.

Britain's Counter-Spy 'Miss X,' Tells How She Trapped Suspects

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—"Miss X," swiftest blonde of the British counter-espionage service, today finished her story of springing the trap on four men accused as arms plane thieves, during a lightning appearance in Bow street police court.

The heroine of Britain's latest spy thriller, wearing a two-piece ensemble and a smart black hat, told in low tones of the climax of nearly three years work to foil the copying of munitions plans taken from the big Woolwich arsenal, allegedly for a foreign power.

"Miss X" told how last Jan. 21 she had telephoned the intelligence service after P. E. Glading, former arsenal employe and chief accused, told her he was going to meet some one at Charing Cross preparatory to a big photographing "job."

Officers converging on Charing Cross arrested Glading and Albert Williams after Williams had handed Glading a brown paper bag alleged to have contained plans for a detonator-testing apparatus smuggled from the arsenal.

Defense counsel declined to cross-examine "Miss X" today and she was whisked away through a door behind the witness stand.

She was followed to the stand by a little man whose name also was undisclosed.

The little man who followed "Miss X" on the stand told of shadowing the girl agent, Glading and others involved, since April 29, 1937.

Accused with Glading and Williams under the official secrets act are George Whomack, assistant foreman of the gun section at Woolwich, and W. C. Munday, assistant chemist. Whomack and Munday were arrested a few days after the other two.

The hearing was continued until Feb. 11.

Report Given On WPA Sewing Room Work

Despite a short working month, occasioned by rescheduling of the project for 1938, the county-WPA sewing room project produced 469 garments during January.

Mrs. Anna L. Lee, project superintendent, said the month was shortened by six working days due to the change.

Into the garments, men's and girls' apparel, went 1,102 yards of material and 32,000 yards of thread—more than six miles of it. At the end of the month a total of 13,628 yards of material were left on hand.

Howard county, sponsor of the project which required 26 workers for an aggregate of 1,099 hours, contributed $65.94 during January to rent, utilities, thread, buttons and freight on materials.

Garments produced by the project are turned over to the Texas Relief commission for distribution. Most of the things produced here are distributed in Howard and Martin counties.

FARMERS GIN CO. STOCKHOLDERS TO MEET MAR. 23

Directors of the Farmers Gin Co. in meeting Saturday fixed March 23 as the date for the annual stockholders meeting.

The session, at which officers will be elected, will be held in the ballroom of the Crawford hotel. It is to be a luncheon affair.

An announcement of the dividends and other fiscal affairs of the company is expected within the week. During the bumper season now ending the company ginned just short of 7,000 bales of cotton.

To Push Formation Of A Flying Club

Actual organization of a flying club for those wishing to learn to fly or gain flying experience will be pushed, Hudson Landers, airport manager, said Monday following a second meeting of aviation enthusiasts Sunday evening.

"Several of those interested in the club have shown reluctance to participate in the immediate organization, said Landers, but the decision was reached Sunday to go ahead with the idea in the hope of drawing in those who are waiting for the proposition to get started."

LIQUOR DEALERS ACT TO AVOID 'SIT-DOWNS'

AUSTIN, Feb. 7 (AP)—C. A. Paxton, chief supervisor of the liquor control board, said today three Wichita Falls dealers had posted $1,000 cash bonds and accepted injunctions as guarantees against law violation rather than risk "sit-downs" by inspectors.

"The Wichita Falls instance illustrates the apprehension with which dealers regard the 'continuing inspection' tactics used successfully in Fort Worth and Dallas," Paxton said. "Some are even eager to go under injunctions in order to avoid the cash bond which will be forfeited if the law is violated."

HUNTERS RESCUED FROM ARCTIC ICE

BARROW, Alaska, Feb. 7 (AP)—The second set in a drama of men against the Arctic ended happily yesterday with the rescue of a party of seal hunters from drifting ice floes.

Harold Hillam, Fairbanks aviator, resting after his rescue from the Tundra 80 miles south was prepared to take off to seek the missing hunters by a vagary of the Arctic brought the sealers' close to shore and a rescue party from Barrow put out to them by a sloop. The party made shore after battling an offshore wind that carried the boat over a mile of hummock ice.

Gilliam and his mechanic, George Saunders, told of two days of hardship while mushers were struggling through to them. Their plane had been forced down.

Floods Sweep Wide Area

Much Damage Results In The Great Lakes Region

DETROIT, Feb. 7 (AP)—Spreading floods in Michigan, Wisconsin and Ontario inundated thousands of acres, flooded basements, washed out bridges, blocked highways and threatened human lives today.

Pouring from swollen streams after week-end rains and springlike temperatures which melted snow and ice, the floods drove many families from their homes.

Crews of rescuers prepared to evacuate families, particularly in Michigan where ice-laden streams threatened in the west, central and southeastern sections.

Two bridges were washed out at Vassar, Mich.

Dynamiters of an ice jam in the Pine river at Alma, in general Michigan hoped the worst was over with the river receding, but in the Mt. Clemens vicinity, in southeastern Michigan, the Clinton river rose ominously.

CHURCHMAN TRIED AS ANTI-NAZI

BERLIN, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Rev. Martin Niemöller protested bitterly in a 45-minute speech today against the decision of three presiding judges to bar the public from his trial on grave charges growing out of his unyielding opposition to Nazi church policies.

"Why am I here under the accusation of a traitor?" demanded the black-clad Protestant churchman, who served in the World War as a submarine commander. "I've done nothing to justify such a charge."

"You'll find that out later," the state attorney retorted.

The accusations made against the Rev. Niemöller allege malignant attacks upon the state and party, continuous misuse of the pulpit for political purposes and public incitation to disobey state laws.

Scout Week Underway

100 Boys Hear Minister In Sunday Service

Off to a good start with nearly 100 boys attending the special services at the First Presbyterian church Sunday evening, observance of the 28th anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scout movement in America continued here Monday.

Dr. D. F. McConnell, pastor of the church, held the scouts in attention with a message about David, whom he termed the first "boy scout." Dr. McConnell stressed the qualities of trustworthiness, loyalty, bravery and reverence in the life of David.

Virtually every boy in the audience came down to the pulpit after the worship had picked up from Dr. McConnell had picked up from the same brook David was believed to have selected from in choosing the stone which felled Goliath.

Ed McCurtain, field executive, reminded scouts that there would be a board of review at the high school at 7:30 p. m. Monday. All scouts having advancement to be checked were expected to appear before the board.

The district board meeting scheduled for Monday evening has been postponed until next week when it can be given more time, McCurtain said.

Tuesday scouts will participate in a mobilization on the steps of the city auditorium at 6 p. m. There will be a surprise assignment which, when done, will be followed by a party at one of the motion picture houses. Each boy with his registration card will be admitted for 10 cents. At 8:15 p. m. a scout will step forward on the stage of the show and lead the scouts in recitation of the scout oath.

Army Shakeup In Germany Not Over, Some Predict

BERLIN, Feb. 7 (AP)—High "S.S." (guard troops) sources expressed the belief today that the army shakeup Friday which ousted a number of conservative generals for ardent nazis was not yet over.

A story was circulating among the higher ranks of Hitler's Black-shirted Lieutenants that "there are many more on Der Fuehrer's list whose days in the army are counted."

New Traffic Lights Go Up This Week

Seven new automatic traffic signal lights will go up in the downtown section this week, E. J. McDaniel, superintendent of city operations, said Monday.

Preliminary work was being done on the lights at the city warehouse Monday while other crews installed parking signs in the downtown section.

The new lights will be placed on 4th street at the Johnson, Rumsels, Main and Scurry street intersections, and on 3rd street at the Gregg and Johnson street intersections and one at the intersection of 2nd and Rumsels.

All the lights on 3rd street, including those now intact, will be swung, said McDaniel, in accordance with a request from the state highway department. Four automatic traffic signals are now in use in the downtown section.

Holding Company Brief Attacked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Electric Bond and Share company and 26 subsidiaries told the supreme court today that a brief filed by the government in defense of the 1935 act regulating public utility holding companies was evasive and misleading.

Preparatory to arguments late today, or tomorrow, on validity of the legislation, the utility companies filed a brief in reply to the government's contentions that the legislation was constitutional.

"The government's brief" the utilities contended, "evades, or misconceives the fundamental issue in this case."

The utilities said that the "fundamental issue" in the main case was whether section four (a) can be enforced. This section prohibits holding companies from engaging in interstate commerce unless they register with the securities commission.
