Court's First Session In First "Real" Home Due To Be Historic

By SIGRID ARNE
WASHINGTON, (AP)—The United States supreme court, without ceremony or even so much as a gesture of dedication, will assemble in its new palace of justice Oct. 7 for what observers predict will be its most momentous session in history. Whatever the significance of its decisions, the court's term will be historic, marking occupation of its only real "home" since its first meeting in the Royal Exchange at the foot of Broad street in New York in February, 1790.

When the justices file into their new chamber they will seat themselves at a long, simple mahogany desk which faces a high-ceilinged room flanked by tall, Ionic columns of faintly pink Sienna marble. Between each of the columns, to right and left of the bench, are gleaming bronze gates through which are visible sun-filled courtyards and splashing fountains. Deep friezes above the columns, carved from large blocks of marble, picture the famous law-givers of the centuries and such allegorical figures as "the power of government" and "the majesty of the law."

Chief Justice Hughes, seen above, will lead the United States supreme court to its bench in the new building. The picture shows the facade of the new building.

Reading about the cheers that greet Mussolini every time he makes a speech to his constituents, and the acclaim with which Hitler's public appearances are greeted, one is forced to admit that the dictators are not the only people who want war these days.

The huge light which will illuminate the room from the ornate ceiling is designed with a series of fanlike blades to throw a bright light so diffused as to prevent glare in any part of the room. Decisions On "New Deal" Due

The people themselves seem to want it. They are, in fact, ready to go. Italian soldiers leave for Africa with laughter and shouts, cheer to the guards with morale—which is an army man's way of saying that they are eager for a fuss.

It is in this room that vital "new deal" legislation is due to come before the court immediately, including the agricultural adjustment act, the Bankhead cotton production act, the TVA and the slum clearance and low-cost housing bill.

And although we are fond of saying that wars are made by selfish men who have life-sized axes to grind, it must be admitted that the common people have a way of getting the bit in their teeth and dashing enthusiastically toward the abyss.

Ultimately it is expected the court also will have to pass on the life or death of social security, the utility holding company regulations, the Wagner labor bill, and the Guffey coal bill.

Indeed, they often outrun the dictators themselves. It is quite possible, for instance, that Mussolini would accept a compromise solution of the Ethiopian crisis if it were not for Italian public sentiment. His people have their mouths fixed for a war; it's up to Il Duce to give it to them.

self wondering how consumption can be adjusted to production, how the unemployed can be put back to work, or how the budget can be balanced.

What a dictator, or a militaristic government, does is to take this widespread human impatience, intensify it, and focus it on some external foe.

The record of human silliness sometimes makes strange reading. A chief petty officer in the United States navy sued for an annulment of his marriage the other day and disclosed a story which, for pure and unadorned goofiness, it would be hard to match anywhere.

President's Tour Of West Opening Gun Of Campaign

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington
President Roosevelt's western trip brings the campaign of 1936 into full stride, long before its time. Whatever the President's intentions, however sincere may be the protestations of Democratic leaders that the swing round the circle is "non-political," practical politics concerns itself with results, rather than intent.

These are some of the reasons why no politician doubts for a moment that the trip will make important political history, one way or another.

The rest of the building includes all manner of conveniences; such as book stacks, filing rooms, clerks' rooms and a public cafeteria; in the hope, as the architect says, "that this will really be a building adequate for the ages."

The word "important" always is included in these estimates for the precise reason that it is the west which the President is visiting.

Some of the effects of Mr. Roosevelt's journey into the west are obvious beforehand. He is the leader of his party. He is supposed universally to be a candidate for reelection. His trip comes at a time when both parties are actively preparing for the campaign, and takes him through a part of the country recognized generally as the chief battleground of 1936 politics.

Thus it is over a territory already criss-crossed by preliminary entrenchments that Mr. Roosevelt has chosen to travel. That fact focuses public notice very intently on everything he says and does there.

Dictator Leads, But People Push Him On

What a dictator, or a militaristic government, does is to take this widespread human impatience, intensify it, and focus it on some external foe. The citizen of a nation which is eagerly preparing for war no longer feels that he is marking time, or that his country is helplessly waiting for the inscrutable currents of economics to straighten themselves out. He has a definite, clearly visible goal to look at, a tangible enemy to face.

The Big Spring Week

At last, highway surfacing in Howard county is just around the corner, and we have the corner spotted. Last week actual work on the topping of highway No. 1 east got started in earnest. Then the state highway commission let contract for 9 miles of topping on highway No. 9 south to the county line and for four miles of grading and ditching on the same road north. Contract was also let for an underpass on highway No. 1 east. The west overpass is nearing completion. Howard county, pouring out more than $100,000 in road taxes yearly, seems destined to receive a bit in return. Perseverance triumphs.

Illness Of Lewis Recalls Anecdotes

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON, (AP)—Few members of the United States senate have had such a store of personal anecdotes and stories built up around them as has the articularly elegant "Jim Ham" Lewis of Illinois, who is reported critically ill in Moscow.

JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS

Everything about him—from his deep resonant voice that so reminds one of a bass violin to his latest choice in waistcoats—has been made the subject of a story. He never seems to mind, however. Even the jibes at his choice of wearing apparel count neither here nor there.

statestomach and what a man wears," he once observed.

People can hardly realize the full benefit of the rainy season this fall until they see sleek cattle emerging from the ranges next spring instead of gaunt collections of walking bones.

It was revealed in the report of the federal savings and loans association here this week (AW) that the need is pressing. Private groups could assume the load. Those who abused the privilege of relief are in for some deserved rebuffs.

Local pastors this week received a letter from Franklin Roosevelt asking their opinions and criticism. Whether he got any from here, we do not know as yet.

The first WPA project in this district will start in Gaines county on Tuesday. Saturday the second one will start here when the city park drive paving program starts. Much can be learned from observing how cheaply and well paving can be done on these roads.

And he may be sure of plenty of criticism. But seriously doubt if FBE will resent the sound of the answer greatly affecting his policies. Preachers are in close touch with the rank and file, but they very often speak as individuals and not for the mass. If they were always mouthpieces for the mass, they would be miserable failures as ministers.

We all believe what we want to believe. It makes no difference what George Mahon, capable congressman for the newly formed district, made a trip over the district last week to feel the public pulse. Instead he ran into a senatorial election. In one town, he told us a man advised him not to be so outspoken in support of one candidate. Mahon, of course, advised him to do so would be bad taste. Soon afterwards he encountered another man who wanted to know why he was supporting another candidate. That's human nature and politics for you.

FARM DEBT ADJUSTMENT WORK REORGANIZED, TAKEN OVER BY U. S. RESETTLEMENT DIVISION

Farm debt adjustment work throughout the nation has been reorganized and taken over by the Resettlement Administration and greatly strengthened by recent legislative enactment providing an effective legal procedure to meet foreclosure on farms in the recent Amendment to the Bankruptcy law taking the place of the Frazier-Lemke Act ruled unconstitutional. To Distressed Farm Home Owners in Howard County:

This is to advise you if you are in debt districts, a committee of these men, with whom you are personally acquainted, have been carefully selected because of their known public spirit and worthiness, and appointed by the Governor of the state of Texas to assist you as arbitrators or conciliators. Call on them for advice and help. In Howard county Fox Stripling is chairman. Offices will be with the Rural County Supervisor, W. A. French of Colorado, Texas.

If your case assumes the seriousness of foreclosure and all efforts to settle through the Committee fail, then you should meet this legal action by filing your case with the Conciliation Commissioner, appointed by the Federal Judge for your county. The Conciliation Commissioner of your county is B. Reagan. The objective of the whole procedure is to stop wholesale foreclosure of farm homes and to help worthy debt-distressed farmers. Many hundreds of cases have been settled by the procuring of extension of time and composition agreements, and many worthy farmers now in need of this service do not know how to obtain it or do not know that such service is available. The Resettlement Administration have set up a Divisional office in Lubbock, Tex., to which distressed farmers may appeal, if in doubt what to do and this Divisional office is in charge of what is known as a Regional F. D. A. Specialist. This with assistance of "Advisory Board" to give information to both distressed-debtors and attorneys concerning what is commonly known as the "Frazier-Lemke Act" and the procedure in Conciliation Commissioners' Courts.

Letters addressed to the Divisional Office, Lubbock, Tex., will have immediate attention and the case will be referred to the proper parties for settlement. There is also provided two District Supervisors in the Lubbock Division, same being Hugh F. Weaver, of Lubbock, who has under his supervision A. & M. Extension Districts Nos. 2 and 3. And J. S. Fischer of Amarillo, who has under his supervision A. & M. Extension Districts Nos. 1 and 10. Remember, if in debt trouble, either contact your local committeemen, your conciliation commissioner, your rural supervisor, or your local county agent, who will advise you; or address a letter direct to the district supervisor, or to Guion Gregg, Regional F. D. A. Specialist, Divisional Office, Lubbock, Tex.

The AAA-ers have quietly built up a political machine which disproves the old adage that you can't organize the farmers in their own behalf or against alien interests.

Whenever Washington wants a blast from the farm belt it simply sends a message by wire or letter or phone to organizers and agents in the field. Overnight the response pours in as ordered.

The farmers have learned a lesson from this kind of regimentation. They have always known that Washington responds most speedily to threats.

MIDLAND FAIR OPENS OCT. 19, TO RUN THROUGH OCTOBER 26

MIDLAND—Extension of Midland Fair dates through October 26, making full eight days, and increasing the purses and prizes to more than $10,000 was announced today by Foy Proctor, president.

Six days of horse racing have been approved by the state racing commission, the meet opening on the third day of the fair Monday, October 21, and continuing through the week.

Rodeo performances will begin Saturday afternoon, October 19, with night shows Saturday and Monday and an afternoon show Sunday.

Race purses will total approximately $1,000 daily for the six days, Tom Stacey, racing chairman, said.

The racing personnel, approved by the commission, follows: steward, Fisher Pollard; placing judges, C. C. Duffey, I. E. Daniel and A. N. Henderson;

The McMillan starting gate will be used in all races. A feeder cattle show and sale with approximately 2,000 head of choice Hereford cattle going on the auction block, will be held.

The "longest parade ever staged in West Texas" is being organized for the opening day of the fair.

Oklahoma Youth Meets Death As Struck By Car

MIDLAND—Willard Spears, approximately 23, of Salina, Okla., was killed Thursday night on the highway west of Midland, near the airport, when, about 11:30, he walked in front of an approaching car.

Spears, with two friends, were stopped on the highway with car trouble and he stepped around from in front of his car directly in front of one driven by G. N. Taylor, Odessa youth.

Taylor was accompanied by two boys and three girls, all of Odessa, and they were returning to that place after visiting here Thursday evening.

Officers, called to the scene of the accident, exonerated Taylor of any blame and expressed an opinion that the accident was unavoidable.

Spears, a commercial artist, was on his way to the San Diego Exposition in company with two friends.

Funeral arrangements have not been made pending word from relatives of the deceased youth.

What's the use of spending money for the government's benefit? Also a number of railroad presidents don't like Mr. Roosevelt and just don't care to cooperate with his plans for boosting heavy industry.

 Emily lifted her head and stared at Anne. He was playing, with feel- ing and a beautiful precision the Chopin scherzo in C sharp minor. Anne answered the question in her eyes.

for a brief span; but afterwards himself.
 He was finishing the little house, "because it had no market value as it stood," and was planning to put it on the market at once un- less—
 "If only he would threaten to tear me," she thought wildly. "It would do us both good."
 She wrote urging him to divorce her if he wished, and Edwin replied quite characteristically that he was de- cidedly scrupulously, was not en- viling for her to divorce him if it would mean her happiness, but he would never take the step He added very wistfully that the place was very attractive now; even more so than the plans had indi- cated. He had put out a number of shrubs; too; blue spruces and boxwoods (Emily had suggested them both, he refrained from add- ing).

 She put the letter away with the momentary throb of tenderness that Edwin, at a distance, always inspired.
 Frances wrote once a week; not from inclination, since she felt that Emily had acted incredibly and should be severely punished, but because she wanted if possible, to point so moving a picture that Emily would soon return, crowned with remorse and humility.
 So potent was the menace of Dr. Warde that she neither reproached nor urged; she merely catalogued, glowingly and touchingly, the beauties of Elston and the matliness of Edwin.
 She also managed to insert insidi- ous bits of information that tore at her daughter's heartstrings. "Your father has looked very bad- ly of late. I had him go to Dr. Mor- gan for an examination, and there is no organic trouble; but he seems to me to have broken a good deal lately. In spite of his protests I'm having William drive him to and from the office regularly now; his walk was tiring him too much."
 Dr. Warde's note came too; a brief, paternal scrawl saying that he would be in town next week, and that he hoped she would have dinner with him. His talk was at 6 o'clock, and the meeting would surely be over by 6.
 She answered the note promptly, assuring him that she would be ready any time after six.
 Dr. Warde arrived at the appoint- ed time, greeted her brusquely but warmly, and took her to dinner at the Southern Club.
 Having ordered dinner, he looked at her keenly and professionally across the snowy table.

Will Rogers In 'Steamboat Round The Bend' At Ritz Theatre 2 Days

Late Comedian Appears In New Film This Week

Romance still lives along the stretches of the Mississippi, America's most majestic river. Along the bayous, hidden away in the dark swamps and on the muddy bosom of the grand dandy of rivers, the Mississippi, there are still many stories filled with the romance, drama, tragedy and robust comedy found in the lives of simple people as ever Mark Twain wrote. And Ben Lucien Burman, who has been dubbed the modern Mark Twain, is the man to bring them to paper.

From Burman's latest tale of Mississippi romance Fox Film has made Will Rogers' new starring picture, "Steamboat Round the Bend," which comes today and Monday to the Ritz theatre. But, if Burman had not been positively obsessed with the idea of writing about the river, if he had not refused the opportunity of making an easier living and finally persuaded publishers to give him a hearing, this story would have never come to light.

Lived on the River
A mild-mannered southerner, slow in speech and slight in appearance, Burman is attached to the river people, the legends and comic stories of steamboating, the swamp folk and their lawless attitude and all the strange phenomena of Mississippi's abundant life.

A few years ago Burman was aboard one of the boats that competed in the last of the river races from Cincinnati to Pittsburgh.

From this experience Burman derived many of the details which make the climactic river race in "Steamboat Round the Bend" a riotous, thrill-filled adventure. Burman's knowledge of the shanty and swamp people, whom he characterizes as the most lawless and bold within the United States, was picked up at first hand while he served as a pilot on a river boat. They are sullen, clannish, handy with their squirrel rifles and not particular about whom they aim them at. Yet the romance of "Steamboat Round the Bend" is drawn from the overpowering love of a river pilot for a swamp girl, and it is the solution of their love problems which afford Will Rogers one of his greatest acting opportunities.

Great Supporting Cast
For the rest, the picture is strongly colored with the curious superstitions of Mississippi folk, their colorful speech, their spasmodic and affecting religious revivals and the marvelous melody of colored folks singing their spirituals. One song in particular, "The Eagle's Nest," was borrowed from the Negroes who had long forgotten its origin or its author, by Burman.

Skilfully rewritten for the screen by Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti, and directed by John Ford, the film version of "Steamboat Round the Bend" is a warm, emotional picture, filled with laughter and tears. Supporting Will Rogers, in what is probably his greatest role, are Irvin S. Cobb, Anne Shirley, Berton Churchill and Eugene Palette.

IDEAL BRIDGE CLUB
The Ideal Bridge club will meet Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Fred Stephens.

Starred in Fox Film's "The Gay Deception", Francis Lederer and Frances Dee discover that it's fun to be fooled! They are the gay deceivers of this light-hearted comedy, and when they finish pretending to be what they aren't they find themselves in each other's arms and intoxicatingly in love. This gayest of comedy films comes to the Lyric Theatre for a three day showing, beginning today.

Wearing Kilts, They Prove Funnier Than Ever In New Film

The team of Laurel and Hardy, deservedly a necessary institution in the entertainment world, tops any past performance with their "reunion" feature comedy "Bonnie Scotland," which opens at the Queen theatre today. The deluge of protesting mail which poured in on the producer, Hal Roach, when it became known that Laurel and Hardy planned to part several months ago, is understandable, for this duo has few rivals in universal popularity.

V. F. W. Fair Begins Oct. 14

Plans Progress For Staging Event Which Gains In Interest

As plans progress for the presentation of the Big Spring Fall Fair to be held here the week of Oct. 14th, the committee in charge for the Veterans of Foreign Wars under whose sponsorship it is being staged, find the event looms much larger in scope than at first anticipated. Aside from the usual amusement features to be found at all similar affairs, more than a score of events of a purely local character will have a prominent place on the program for the week. One entire tent measuring more than two hundred feet in length will be used to house the thirty or more industrial and business displays of local firms. These displays will include automobiles, radio, refrigeration units, furniture, paints, building supplies, and others of a nature with an appeal to home-owners and housewives. Space in this tent has also been allotted to civic and welfare organizations that the public may be made acquainted with their aims and purposes. Among these will be the Red Cross, Home Demonstration, 4-H clubs, Forestry, Chamber of Commerce, and Soil Erosion. Lectures and demonstrations will be a daily feature of these presentations.

Among the features of a local flavor will be an auto-pulling contest for six-cylinder cars to be participated in by owners of machines of that type. Judging will be done by a dynamometer in plain view of the onlookers, and a series of prizes will be awarded to winners of this event. Entries for this event are now being accepted.

Another event will be a real, actual "Cellophane" wedding, with bride and groom both well-known residents of this vicinity. This is scheduled for Thursday night, October 17th. The whole affair has been carefully planned and patrons will witness as elaborate and gorgeous wedding ceremony as has ever been presented hereabouts. A full complement of groomsmen, bridesmaids, flower-girls and attendants will accompany the couple, and the ceremony will be celebrated with a special musical score written for such occasions. As an incentive to prospective couples, the fair management have set aside a sum of money which will be expended upon the usual marriage necessities and to give them a start in life. License, ring, bridal-bouquet, wedding veil, music and services of an officiating cleric will be furnished. Moreover, many stores and merchants of the city have entered into the spirit of the affair and have offered to participate by gifts of merchandise from their stocks.

While a certain young couple is being considered to play the principal parts in this little drama, other applications are also being taken under advisement. Applications from prospective brides and grooms will continue to be accepted until a few days before the ceremony when one will be selected. Names of this couple will be kept secret until a few hours before the ceremony. The fair secretary will continue to accept names until further notice.

An unusual contest has been set for Wednesday night at the fair when a number of young ladies will participate in a milking contest. Winners will be determined upon the quantity of milk drawn in a given time, and prizes will be awarded successful contestants.

A series of baby events have been planned for each afternoon of the entire week with chief interest in the parade of decorated floats, baby carriages and other children's vehicles on Tuesday afternoon, and a promenade of children in fancy costumes on Wednesday. Indications from entries already received point that floats will be of many and varied designs, depicting in many instances replicas of yachts, airplanes, racing autos, historical events and other scenes of local and national interest. Costumed children will impersonate famous characters of history, personages from fairy tales, and various periods of dress and fashion. Friday afternoon, a movie impersonation parade will be held with the children imitating and impersonating famous movie stars. A contest for handsome baby boys and beautiful baby girls will take place Tuesday afternoon at which time the many prizes will be awarded in the 100 per cent perfect baby contest which has been under way here in Big Spring for the past thirty days. All baby events will be climaxed Saturday evening by the selection of "Baby Monarch" or the Grand Prize Baby of this section of Texas.

Chief interest for the entire week will culminate on Saturday, the closing night of the fair, with the election of "Miss Prosperity," which will be the selection of some one of a group of sixty or more young ladies who will be chosen to preside as the personification of this mystical personage for the ensuing year. Hundreds of dollars in cash and jewelry will be awarded candidates in this election. To close the Fair, a new 1935 sedan automobile will be given away to some fortunate ticket-holder.

All activities in connection with the presentation of the fair has been under the supervision of Dr. C. W. Dentz, acting as fair secretary for the Veterans of Foreign Wars.
