Lying on my desk at home there is one of those official pamphlets of 100 pages, more or less, neatly labelled in blue and reminding me that I have a confrontation with my conscience coming up not later than April 15.

Uncle Sam is very anxious that I complete that obligation on time and in full. He has gone to a great deal of pains to help me do it, even to the point of collecting in advance. But he has been very nice and courteous about the extraction. There are even places in the book where he says "Please".

It does make for a little pleasant reading to have the old gentleman recognize you as a sovereign individual and be nice to you although in a formal and distant sort of way (helped along, of course, by the comforting knowledge that you have already remitted, and all that now remains is the business of balancing the account).

But haven't we read that when the royal method of disposing of the loyal opposition was the chopping block, the executioner used to plead forgiveness of his victim before cancelling him out with the ax. He wanted to be certain that when he, himself, arrived at the place to which he was assisting the condemned there wouldn't be any hard feelings.

Uncle Sam, of course, does not go around chopping off people's heads, that method having some to great disrepute in this age of brotherly love. But he can sure chop a chunk out of the bankroll if said bankroll tries to get funny with him.

But I have noticed, in recent years, that he has been getting more sentimental and less like the computers now replacing the hired help in checking returns. It is something of a paradox, as though a machine could be more sympathetic and heart-feeling than a man with a pencil. (You recall the ancient story about the banker with the glass eye?)

Especially since Spiro Agnew tamed those smart-aleck columnists and commentators with a few well chosen remarks about the responsibility of the press and the rights of the administration, there seems to have been an accelerated trend toward respect for human dignity and the rights of the digit.

It seems that the deeper (and wider) the government gets into the pockets of the taxpayer the more solicitous it is about what is left. It is a very generous spirit and one that recommends the virtues of a system that somehow contrives to do the most unpopular things in a pleasing manner.

Back in the early days when income tax rates could still be seen with the naked eye, nobody but rich folks paid the levy, and old Zaccheus could and did talk tough, chaw big and make a spittoon ring from 20 feet off. Any taxpayer who made more than $5,000 then was vulnerable and lonely figure.

Today he is in the poverty class, a lower fringe element of the great "silent majority" that Brinkrite didn't know he was talking to.

And a "silent majority" can scare more kinds of people than a commentator.

Yet another field of private enterprise has been interdicted by law. For many years one of the most interesting hobbies afield has been the search for Indian relics. It has flourished especially along the streams and among the mounds and small creek bank caves which abound in this section.

But now the law says that any person digging for such artifacts and relics of a vanished culture must have a permit from the State Antiquities Committee and be supervised by a trained archeologist.

So reports the Winters Enterprise.

2 Councilmen Three Trustees To Be Elected

Two members of the Rising Star City Council and three members of the Rising Star Independent School District board of trustees will be elected in concurrent voting on Saturday, 4.

Although larger city elections are held on Tuesday's a bill passed by the legislature some years ago places municipal elections in statutory towns such as Rising Star on the first Saturday in April, Mayor C. M. Carrol explained.

The two elections will be in separate boxes, however. Two city councilmen are to be chosen for two-year terms. Terms of F. M. Middleton and L. H. Morrison expire.

Three school members are to be chosen, two for three-year terms and one to fill the unexpired term of Bob Shults, resigned. Jerry Winfrey, one of the three retiring trustees, was the only one filing for election.

Buddy Cook is the second member whose three-year term will end on April 4.

The unexpired term of Bob Shults will also require an elected successor to serve to its end. W. A. Richburg has been serving by appointment.

Eastland County Boys Invited To Soap Box Derby

Boys 11 through 15 years of age residing in Eastland County are eligible to participate in the 1970 Fort Worth Soap Box Derby and a chance to win $500 U. S. Saving Bond.

And if they win at Fort Worth they will receive a free week in Akron, Ohio, with all expenses paid and a chance to win a $50,000 college scholarship.

The Fort Worth Derby, held at TCU, is July 11 and the Akron American at Akron is Aug. 75. The first step for a boy is to register at any Tarrant County Chevrolet Dealer in Fort Worth, North Richland Hills or Arlington since the derby is sponsored internationally by Chevrolet.

Derby kits—wheels, axles and steering—plus rule books which show how to build derby racers are available at the dealers.

Even Fort Worth merchants will contribute $25 to each boy for helping purchase materials and the boy must permit the merchant to paint his name on the racers.

More details are available by writing to Tony Slaughter, Derby director, Fort Worth Star-Telegram in Fort Worth. The Star-Telegram is the prime sponsor.

Slow Rains Aid Fine Crop and Pasture Outlook

An estimated two inches of rain had fallen in Rising Star over the week-end, after unusually heavy rains Tuesday afternoon.

John W. Lee, official U. S. weather Bureau observer said that three-quarters of an inch was recorded from Saturday afternoon until Monday morning 7 o'clock.

The rain, most of which fell slowly, was welcomed by farmers and ranchers who pointed out it would insure a good grass crop and a good "bottom" season for crop plantings later on.

CJC Prof's Daughter Brings Offer Of 20 Cows For Hand By African

LAST WEEK'S Baptist Standard, weekly church newspaper, had an interesting article.

The headline reads: Texan in Kenya: Native Bids for Girl Journeyman. And the story follows:

Missionary Journeyman Doris Glenn of Cisco had been in Nyeri, Kenya, only a few months when she learned her true value—to an African—as a blushing bride (almost).

Miss Glenn was a passenger in a vehicle driven by veteran missionary Wendell R. Hull of Wichita Falls when they stopped to pick up a Kikuyu tribesman.

The African seemed absorbed with Doris' long hair; all the way to town he patted it with his fly whisk made from a cow's tail.

Finally, he asked Hull for his "daughter's" hand in marriage, and he made an offer. Hull refused, saying that the cost of his "daughter's" education had greatly exceeded the amount offered. The stranger then told Hull to name his price.

All the while Hull was enjoying the episode and Doris sat there red faced. In the end she found some consolation; the offer was 20 cows, a very good price for a bride by Kikuyu standards.

"Just Didn't Want to", Group Is Told

"Rising Star shouldn't be discriminated against just because we are off down here in one corner of the county."

James Rutherford, reporting on the unsuccessful efforts of the chamber of commerce to secure a car license substation for Rising Star, also told the dinner meeting of the group Tuesday noon at the Elite Cafe, that "We have gotten the run-around."

"But Gorman and Ranger haven't gotten substations, either," he was told.

"That's their problem," retorted Rutherford. He declared that he had been informed that County Tax Assessor-Collector Edgar Altom could have located the substation in Rising Star had he wanted to. "He just didn't want to," said Rutherford. "I think we ought to go on record as being very unhappy about it."

Rutherford said that a petition bearing some 300 names secured following last week's meeting and asking for a substation here had been submitted to Altom and drawn the response that "the new system is not designed for substations."

He showed a letter he said he had received from Mr. Altom in which the county assessor, collector detailed some of the problems in license issuing created by the new computerized system.

"It would be nice," Altom wrote, "to have a substation in all towns in the county but that would be impossible under this system which the state had told us is not designed for substations. Let me suggest that your chamber of commerce urge your people to mail or bring their applications in to the office as soon as possible and give us a chance to make this work. We will continue with all that we have to give you the best service possible and we covet your cooperation."

Said Rutherford: "We wrote the State Highway Department and they advised us that it is the privilege and responsibility of the county tax assessor-collector to establish and terminate substations at any time he feels necessary for the orderly administration of the office to which he is elected."

"There is nothing we can do but take it," said Rutherford, "and wait until the next election."

The group expressed its agreement. No action on a resolution was taken however, the members feeling that it would be futile.

The project to finance new street signs for Rising Star was about one-fourth complete, it was reported. Neither James Haney nor Jay Beavers, members of the committee to sell street signs for about 80 intersections was present but they are active in pushing the project, the CofC was told.

WHERE HAVE ALL THE FLOWERS GONE?

Although it is not very apparent in our community, Mother Nature is being destroyed by man and machine.

Where vast proud rivers once ran with the icy waters from the green topped mountains, they are now stagnant from the waste products of factories along the shore. The green mountains, majestic as they once were, are now barren hills without pride. Even the air which is a necessity for human survival is being polluted and no one seems to care.

In an illustrated T.V. commercial a new breed of human is developed through heredity to compete with pollution of our natural resources. He is a very queer kind of person. His legs are longer than any skyscraper or animal imaginable so that he might breathe above the polluted air of the country. The nose on this man's face is extremely large and acts as a filter to the air he breathes. The chest cavity is very slender because of small lungs so as not to contract a lung disease. This is a very radical idea of the results of pollution on the human being, but surely there is some justice to it.

We see pictures in recognized magazines of dead fish floating on streams stagnated from waste of cities, factories, and chemical plants; what have we done to prevent this? What will we do if some smog-covered morning we look into our freshly plowed gardens and wonder where have all the flowers gone?

LEADERS OF TOMORROW

Report cards came out this week. Grades showed some improvement, but most of us need to work more.

In Civics we have started the study of the local government; this places democracy at our doorstep.

In English we have finished the study of compound sentences and have taken the test over that chapter. B. J.; in what grade were we pretending to be?

In H.E. III we are learning to knit and crochet; a lot of work but fun.

Mr. Roan, band director from CJC, talked to us about the college; at least ten Seniors plan to attend CJC.

Srs. pay for invitations by Friday.

All the Homemaking girls enjoyed the trip to Brownwood to see Mrs. Helen Prather's home last Monday. The walls were covered with red velvet, and a few rooms were covered with other material. It was a very nice visit. Mrs. Prather is the owner of the Remnant Shop in Brownwood.

THERE'S ROOM AT THE TOP

The Junior class had their Outsiders' Basketball Tournament. We had a lot of fun getting ready for it, and everyone seemed to enjoy it. The money we received certainly will help our class fund. We appreciate those who played; without their cooperation it would not have been possible.

We finally mailed the orders for our class rings.

The Juniors are very glad that their six weeks' tests are over, but we dread receiving our report cards.

Plans are underway for our Junior-Senior Banquet, which is scheduled for the first week in April.

WITH THE FARMHANDS

In Ag. III this week we are learning to judge dairy cows for the area contest in a few weeks.

Some of the boys are getting their stock ready for the Houston show; they are planning to leave on March 2.

In Ag I the Freshman have been learning how to plant and are doing quite well. Reporter DICK CLARKE

TOWARD NEW HORIZONS

Hi! All homemaking classes of RSHS were invited by Mrs. Helen Prater to visit her home in Brownwood on Feb. 23; we each felt this to be a very beneficial field trip.

March 13-14 is the date of our Area FHA meeting, and five girls have been selected to represent our chapter by performing a skit. These girls are Reba Stark, Carol Stroebel, Paula Chalk, Jana Hubbard, and Judy Benson; Janet Ezzell will go as a voting delegate.

This week brought tests, and the deadline for recipe boxes. Third year girls were either knitting or crocheting.

On Wednesday we had our monthly meeting with a group from ACC giving the program; it was enjoyable.

Signing off, BARBARA

WILLING TO LEARN

This is your bright sunny reporter to let you in on the Sophs' latest news:

We are dissecting worms in biology this week; I think the bods dislike cutting them more than the girls do!

In Algebra, we are getting ready to take our six weeks' test and chapter test on polynomials; we are happy to say we are through with them for a while anyway.

In Home Ec. II, we are studying meats. We enjoyed our field trip to Brownwood to look at houses.

In English, adverbs, adjectives, and prepositions are giving us trouble. You can bet that we'll learn or die trying!

In World History we are in the mood for inventions. Names and inventions fill the pages and our brains. The steam engine and horseless carriages are just now being invented!

Well that's all folks! Martha

IN THE FISH BOWL

Hello! Good Grief! This month has passed so fast it's hard to believe it. Don't you wish rest of the school year would go as fast? Really! When you think of it, we have very few weeks of school left. Won't it be great to be able to say "dumb fish" to someone else next year?

Our classes have practically ceased because its six weeks' test time again. Oh, the pain to our brains! That's one reason I hate the end of school, too! The tests get harder and harder.

There is some news around the related math class! Zinnngg! Whizz! There go the rubber bands. Mr. Rhodes got S.M.

That's about it for this week except a "Thank you" to S.B. J.H. and S.C. for being my best kitten customers. So long, B.J.

L. C.'S CHAMPS

The basketball season is rapidly being forgotten now that track has taken over. The broad jump pit, shot putt foundation and the track are all being set up and rebuilt. The windy days are showing even more signs of track. Every evening one can hear the sound of the coach's whistle as another lap is being run. There are a lot of moans and groans, but everyone knows that is part of making the team.

The realization of all this work that seems now to have no significance will show on March 7 at Robert Lee. That's our first track meet, and only then will we see if all this effort or just this little effort is worth it.

Many may think all the work isn't worth it; many may think this is not enough work; still there are those who just don't know. All these attitudes and opinions, make up our track team. We'll see at the end of the season which was right.

IT HAS BEEN

By Vada Arnold

In our search for something good about the old days, up popped the side saddle and the long skirted (to the ankle skirt) voluminous in width, and the tight fitted bodice of the riding habit. Worn with the habit were a narrow stiff brimmed sailor hat pinned on with long hat pins, high topped buttoned, high heeled shoes and long black stockings. Who on earth could call that good???

Imagine the uncertainty of sitting on a side saddle, upholstered in Brussels carpeting in gay colors. Nothing could cause the rider more suspense as she sat on the back of a big horse with one high heeled shoe in one stirrup and the other leg curved around the leg rest and that long black skirt spread over the entire side of the horse. As soon as the ride started the full skirt flapped against the poor animal as a circus tent flapped in a strong west wind. Think of the poor horse if he had thoughts surely they were along the subject of "Cruelty to Animals."

For the rider nothing could cause more suspense, unless it would be wearing a strapless evening gown for the first time or a toupee in a hurricane.

As we compare the freedom and comfort of female riders of our day as they ride astride feeling perfectly secure and at ease, dressed in easy shirts and riding pants, flat heeled shoes and no sox, as they take part in rodeos, barrel racing, parades and pleasure rides we are ready to rise up and shout "what is good about the good old days?"

In the longed for Good Old Days by some, people played many pranks on their neighbors and friends. During "Big Meeting" days, at evening services mischievous boys sneaked from brush arbors or tabernacles into the darkness (there were no lighted grounds then.) To bobcat wheels on wagons and buggies, unhitch one horse from the double tree, on occasion a poor innocent horse went home with his tail and mane shaved off to be discovered by his owner when he went to at the home of Grandma Heflin on the site now covered by Lake Brownwood. The dining table served as an operating table. That night two men were left to sit up with the man. They were cautioned that under no circumstance were they to give the patient a drink of water. Both men went to sleep during the night and on awakening found the patient gone, then started a frantic search, the man was found at the edge of an earthen tank drinking his fill of muddy water. Although the patient had walked 200 yards and drank all of the water he could hold, "he made an eventual recovery."

During his years of practice, Dr. Bowden delivered 2,500 babies including triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Moore, the babies, all boys, were Jack, oe and Jean. He delivered the only negro baby ever born at May. The child's father was employed by Cage Brothers Construction Company. The baby, a girl, was named for the town of May. One time he delivered twins to a couple in a home inaccessible by road. The doctor made his way across Lake Brownwood by boat.

An Overland 38 was the first car he owned, it was bought in 1919. He owned many makes and models in his life time.

He married Miss Amanda Heflin at May 2, 1901. The Bowdens had two children, a son, Heflin Bowden; a daughter, Mrs. Walter Chambers, of Brownwood and one grandson of Alpine.

Dr. Bowden was loved by young and old alike, he gave his life to mankind of every class, color and creed.

Birthday Party for A. P. and Curt Smith

A. P. and Curt Smith came home from services at the First Baptist Church Sunday, noon, February 22 to find the following relatives singing "Happy Birthday to Both of You": Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Childers of San Angelo; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Chancey, Abilene; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Foster Cross Plains; and Robert L. Smith of Hurst.

The men, thoroughly surprised, enjoyed the day. A birthday dinner was served with all the trimmings including a lovely birthday cake.
