Home Town Talk by Betty

Managers of two Big Spring department stores reported last night their sales of Saturday, and for the entire week, were greater than for any week since 1930.

Each attributed growth of business to Herald advertising, in general, and reduction of incomes, and of quality at least to that advertised for it.

It is our impression that the road leading along the east side of City Park is a regular county road. This road is due to be heavily traveled during the warm months...

Well, the Texas & Pacific Northern is going to file motion for rehearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission's ruling that it cannot build its proposed line from Big Spring to the North Panhandle.

You may have felt at times that the railroads expected too much of the public, but you also have learned a lot of times that the Texas & Pacific Railway Company has backslid up its faith in West Texas with plenty of hard cash.

We wonder how many individuals would show sufficient faith in their homeland right now to try to get permission to build a railroad into a comparatively undeveloped region—even if they had the cash.

It is such faith and works that pulls towns and states and nations out of just such depressions as we have been pitying ourselves about for two or three years.

All power to the T. & P. If the T. & P. is built you'll hear a lot of folks giving thanks and praise who today are talking about how foolish it would be to build the line.

When our cash runs low and jobs are hard to find it is best for us, being only human and at best full of weaknesses, to cuss the whole world, and it is also easy for us to cuss those who still have some cash lender than anybody else.

It has always looked to us like you've got to have jobs for folks who really want to work, if the people are to be contented. But, also, it looks reasonable to believe that a condition in which some are out of jobs would be made a lot worse if, by legislation or otherwise the sources of the remaining jobs were destroyed.

You can't hire men without money. Money can't be made without labor. When capital cuts labor's throat it signs its own death warrant. When labor cuts capital's throat it also signs itself to ruin.

Our friend, W. R. Lence, general manager of the Abilene & Southern Railway company, who visited Big Spring a couple of years ago and put over some effective work in opposition to a county bond issue, is noted in the daily press as being opposed to designation of ad-

Supreme Court Hears Plea In Pledge Action

Decision Expected Wednesday On Tom Love's Suit

AUSTIN (AP)—The full bench of the Texas supreme court took submission of Tom Love's suit asking that it compel democratic precinct officials to admit voters to presidential conventions without having them pledge support of the nominees at the general elections. Oral arguments were heard, and briefs submitted. The decision may be given out Wednesday, the regular opinion day, but it is thought that final action will be delayed. The district court in Dallas dismissed the suit. The court of appeals agreed to send the case directly to the supreme court. Love claimed that the district court ruled erroneously in deciding that the state executive committee had the power to do anything not specifically prohibited by the statute.

Dirty Thief! Florist Hauls Dirt To Lot Only To Have Part Hauled Away

Apparently there isn't enough dirt in Howard county to go around! The somebody who helped themselves to a yard of dirt from a lot of E. B. Ribble's Thursday morning must have been pretty hard up. Maybe it was done as part of some one's morning constitutional; anyway, the thief appeared while Mr. Ribble was at breakfast. When he went out afterward to work with the soil there was a big hole in it indicating the missing amount. The joke was on the thief. Mr. Ribble brought in the soil to mix with other types of soil and it was not particularly useful to him or to anyone else in its present state. This reminded him of an experience he had two years ago. He wanted some muck from a nearby tank in which to grow some water grass. He went and got it, unaware at the time that he was being observed. He heard later, from reliable sources, that several people had seen him haul away that mud and jumped at once to the conclusion that it would be good for their lawns. So about fifty Big Spring lawns were covered with tank muck and raised, as a result a good crop of cockle burrs. The stuff was used for nothing but water grass by Mr. Ribble.

Play Set For Today, Mon. At R&R Ritz

Surgical Genius Long To Leave Profession, Return To Farm

Ever since Richard Barthelmess first flashed into the public consciousness on the silver screen he has conscientiously avoided the obvious and stereotyped.

Just when fans think they have him cataloged as to type of characterization or story, he can be depended upon to burst out in something entirely unexpected.

Undoubtedly, one of the most radical departures from all accepted movie formula was "Broken Blossoms," the grand daddy of art for art's sake in motion pictures. It made history. It made money. It made Barthelmess. Since then nearly every Barthelmess vehicle has been a try at something different from the general type of cycle of plot current at the time of production. Barthelmess will dare anything but the untruth.

Looking back at the forty-seven pictures Richard Barthelmess has made since "War Bride," we find such innovations as "Way Down East," "Tolable David," "The Enchanted Cottage," "Drag," "Young Nowheres," "Dawn Patrol" and "The Last Fight." His latest slam at the conventional is "Alias The Doctor" which begins a two day engagement at the Ritz Theatre today.

Unlike anything current in the movies today, Dick plays the role of a surgical genius who longs to get away from the profession and back to the farm he loves. Marian Marsh, young First National star is part of his "back to earth" life, his medical career which he undertakes with an "alias" in his title keeping his away from Miss Marsh who plays the role of his step-sister. "Alias The Doctor" is heralded as one of the finest hits in Barthelmess's long and hit-studded career.

The cast of "Alias The Doctor" includes besides Miss Marsh, Norman Foster, Odrienne Dore, Oscar Apfel and John St. Polis. It was directed by Michael Curtiz.

Mrs. O. T. Arnold, and daughter, Evelyn, have returned from Marshall, where Mrs. Marshall was in attendance, while Mr. Arnold's brother, F. R. Arnold, was operated. He is reported doing nicely.

Barthelmess Returns To Ritz

"Beauty And The Boss," Starring Marian Marsh, Opening Three-Day Showing At R & R Queen Theatre

"Beauty and the Boss," which begins a three day engagement at the Queen Theatre today is based on a play which kept New York laughing for many months last season. On the stage it was known as "The Church Mouse" and starred Miss Ruth Gordon.

The instantaneous success of "The Church Mouse" had many movie producers bidding for the screen rights. Warner Bros., realizing that the story fitted perfectly with the personality and ability of Marian Marsh, outbid all other companies, and "The Church Mouse" was put into immediate production under the title of "Beauty And The Boss."

Miss Marsh plays the role of an efficient but unattractive secretary to Warren William for whom she has a deep admiration. But not until she learns all about the Love Methods Of A Modern Girl does she win the eye and the heart of Mr. William. How she accomplishes this end forms the basis of the story.

Charles Butterworth's dry whimsies make a delightful contribution to the general gaiety of the theme. Sex appeal is supplied in large doses by Mary Doran, Lillian Bond, Polly Walters, Yoia D'Avril and Barbara Leonard. Others in the cast are David Manners and Fredrick Kerr.

"Beauty And The Boss" was directed by Roy Del Ruth whose work with "Taxi," a recent James Cagney production, won wide acclaim.

Mrs. O. T. Arnold, and daughter, Evelyn, have returned from Marshall, where Mrs. Marshall was in attendance, while Mr. Arnold's brother, F. R. Arnold, was operated. He is reported doing nicely.

'The Heart Of New York' Portrays Real Life Incidents

Beginning next Wednesday the Queen theatre will present "The Heart of New York," a Warner Bros. and Vitaphone picture featuring Joe Smith, Charles Dale, Geo. Sidney and a strong special cast, for a two day engagement.

"The Heart of New York" is based on the play "Mendel, Inc." which enjoyed a year's run during New York's last theatrical season. Joe Smith and Charles Dale, prominent for more than twenty years, as the mainstays of the Avon Comedy Four, a vaudeville's act team, have the same roles in the picture as they had in the New York production of the play. In addition, George Sidney plays the part of Mendel, the family head who preferred inventing dash-washing machines to securing a livelihood for his family. The large supporting cast includes Alne MacMahon, stage star who scored a personal hit as Edward G. Robinson's secretary in "Five Star Final," and Anna Appel, prominent New York actress.

"The Heart of New York" was directed by Mervyn LeRoy, youngest of Hollywood's great directors, who has to his credit such achievements as "Five Star Final," "Little Caesar," "Local Boy Makes Good" and "High Pressure." LeRoy brings to "The Heart of New York" several directorial departures which reflect his ability to keep pace with public requirements.

Sorrow And Joy Of Radio Folk Show

'Are You Listening', Billed At Ritz Saturday With William Haines

The "inside" of a great broadcasting station in operation, details of the strange occupations of artists heard over the air, their joys and sorrows, are woven into a powerful drama in "Are You Listening?" filmization of the J. P. McEvoy radio story, which will be shown Saturday only at the Ritz theatre.

William Haines is seen in his first straight dramatic characterization in this picture, playing the role of a radio continuity writer whose existence is made miserable by a neurotic, henpecking wife, who refuses to give him a divorce so that he can marry the girl he really loves. This domestic misadventure eventually results in a bitter quarrel in which the wife is accidentally killed. Haines is forced to flee the police and he is subsequently caught through the very channels of the radio by which he had hoped to achieve a successful career.

Underlying the plot are the diverse romances of three small-town sisters who find employment in a New York radio broadcasting station and it is in this locale that much of the film's comedy moments take place. Audiences will be amused to see just what takes place "behind the scenes" when a broadcaster's idea of a thunderstorm or horse race is put into execution.

Madge Evans, who last scored in "Lovers Courageous," plays opposite Haines and the cast also features Anita Page, Karen Morley, Neil Hamilton, Wallace Ford, Jean Hersholt and Joan Marsh, with Harry Beaumont directing.

'Shotgun Pass' With McCoy Here Friday

Greatest Of Outdoor Stars At Best In Saturday Offering

A blocked pass that necessitated a long detour across the desert or a fight to go through the pass, is the plot basis of "Shotgun Pass," the Columbia picture, starring Tim McCoy, showing Friday and Saturday at the Queen theatre. This situation leads to a series of range wars, which keeps the ball of action rolling.

In the days of the old West, when long range and trail drives were necessary to bring cattle or horses to the railroad for shipment to the markets, short cuts meant money in the pockets of the ranchmen. The long drives across the burning desert or rough mountain trails, wore down the cattle and they lost considerable weight. As weight is what the cattlemen sold it was to their advantage to save every ounce of fat they could and many a range war was started when some enterprising outfit sighted and held either water rights on the trail or short cuts to the railroad.

And so the dashing Tim McCoy is provided with opportunities for plenty of excitement. He is supported by a cast of adventure stars, which include Dick Stewart, Monty Vandergriff, Joe Marbra, Frank Rice and Ben Corbett. Virginia Lee Corbin, famous child actress who is now playing feminine leads, is his romantic interest. J. P. McGowan handled the direction.

Marian, Sally Great Friends

Miss Nixon Stars This Week At Queen In 'Amateur Daddy'

When Marian Nixon returned recently to the Fox lot, after several years absence from that studio, one of the first persons to greet her was Sally Eilers.

Marian and Sally are friends of long standing. In the old silent days they went the rounds of the studios together, in search of extra work and they both gained their first recognition with the Fox Film Corporation, the company to which they are again under contract.

During the making of "Amateur Daddy," the Fox drama, in which Miss Nixon plays opposite Warner Baxter, and which opens Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre, Sally was a frequent visitor to Marian's dressing room, and needless to say there was a lot of reminiscing.

"Will you ever forget the old Mack Sennett days," Sally was heard to remark, "with Gloria and Ebebe? And how I got my first job when I stepped into the pants which Alice Day refused to wear?"

"Never," laughed Marian, "nor my first job either, which was more daring than yours, sitting on a park bench with a live lion. Mack said he was tame, but tame or not, Sally, he was still a lion."

"And then Dustin Farnum, and his brother Bill, George Walsh, and Stuart Holmes here at Fox? And Tom Mix and his famous 'hoss operas,'" continued Marian.

"Western dramas, Marian," corrected Sally, cautiously, "remember, I'm married to that hard riding, quick shooting hero, Hoot Gibson."

And so ran the conversation until John Elyson, Marian's director, interrupted with a call for the next sequence of "Amateur Daddy."

Are You Listening? Variety Makes 'Girl Crazy' A Great Picture

Woolsey And Wheeler Play With All-Star Cast At Ritz

If variety is the spice of life, RKO Radio Pictures' all-star rollicking comedy "Girl Crazy" which comes to the Ritz theatre Thursday and Friday is a snappily seasoned entertainment dish. It offers mirth and melody, romance and action, beauty and atmosphere.

In the cast are comedy stars, child prodigy, Broadway beauties, Hollywood cowboys, Mexican senoritas, two gun men, and polished villains. The action shifts from city tenement to western dude ranch and Mexican resort and ranges from riproaring chases to rhythmic dances and tender love scenes.

Heading the imposing array of talent are the inimitable Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, who start the film as city slickers and wind up as rough and ready westerners. Eddie Quillan carries the romantic lead of a girl crazy youth who transforms a respectable cat-ranch into a whoopee dude resort. Mitzi Green, Hollywood's child mimic wonder, plays a pestiferous little sister and the romance and beauty brigade is headed by Dorothy Lee, Arline Judge, Kitty Kelly and Lita Chevret. Stanley Fields and Chris Pin Martin play the shoot and run villains.

The story deals with a girl crazy youth who is sent to the quiet of a western ranch to cure him of his weakness for beautiful women. He imports a snappy jazz band, a bevy of Broadway beauties, dresses the cowpunchers in dinner jackets and turns the ranch into a playboy's paradise.

Melodies which are liberally sprinkled through the fast and furious action and laughs are original compositions by George Gershwinn, modern music's master hit creator. William Selter directed the film, which is based upon the Broadway stage success.

Ed Pardin, sentenced by the desert vigilance committee to hang, is given reprieve to attend the bedside of his wife who is dying.

When Bardin fails to return a thrilling man-hunt is staged which carries the reader over the sagebrush country and into the untamed western land.

Men of the west will enjoy reading 'The Canon of Light' for they will recognize the familiar characters in the narrative.

The book is packed with action which alone will cause it to find favor among men who read in order to lose their cares in an hour of relaxation.

Chalk School Stages A Tom Thumb Rites

Teachers Put On School Play Early This Spring

The Chalk school held its closing play Thursday night, although the school will not close until late in May. Due to the warm weather and the fact that the school takes the state examinations the last two weeks of school the play was given early this year.

To Mrs. Boone Cramer, principal and Mrs. C. G. Walker and Miss Donna Carter, teachers, and Mrs. Fred Dorn, music teacher, the patrons give the credit for arranging one of the prettiest and best exercises of the year.

A Tom Thumb Wedding was the first number; it was given by the pupils of Miss Carter's room. The stage was beautifully arranged with a lower of cedar flanked by baskets of white carnations.

The guests of the wedding were Paul Branson, Jr., Evelyn Adkins, William Hoard, Irene Willis, Billie Smith, Ora Niel, R. L. Neely, Jeanette Blackwell, Ray Foster, Willodean Wendland, Ned Hate, Elmer Adkins, Daniel Blackwell and James John Kennedy.

The little bride, Melbaean Holt, was gowned in a creation of white georgette with a long satin train. Her veil fell from a cap of princess lace and orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of lilies.

The little groom, Monray Daniels, wore white trousers and a black frock coat.

The maid of honor, Kathleen Hamblin, wore yellow organdie and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. The bridesmaids, Adelaide Hargrave, Geneva Gault, Ovetta Hartley and Hollis James Gilmore, were gowned in organdie in orchid, green, rose and blue and carried arm bouquets of roses that blended with their costumes.

The ushers, Robert Odum, Jr., Phil O'Bar, Robert Dittler and Joe B. Hoard, Jr., wore white trousers and frock coats. So did the best man, Don Ferguson and the head usher, Ray Drake.

Others who took part were, the minister, Joe Wat Scott; the father of the bride, Andy Scott; the mother of the bride, Myrtle Dittler; father of groom, Clifton Ferguson; and mother of the groom, Ivey Willis.

The next number was presented by Mrs. Walker's pupils. It was a one-act playlet, 'The School Clown.' Miss Ivy Willis evoked rounds of laughter as the clown. She was assisted by Miss Nova Holloway; Mrs. Mapleton, Emma Hoard; pupils, Kathleen Hamblin, Bessie Marie Gault, Elton Neely, Faye Wendland, Edward Blackwell, Ray Thompson, and Beryl Foster.

Mrs. Cramer presented her girls in two clever musical skits with little Beryne Cramer as mascot. In 'Rain on the Roof' the following took part, Etha Mae Holloway, Katharine Jones, Tonie Walker, Minnie I. Hill, Hazel McLomone, Olive Blackwell, Marie Sipes and Florence Simmons.

A suitable climax for the evening was 'The City Babe' with the following cast: Boy, Seymour Ballard; motorist, Fred Earnest.

Others showed the long training of months by the teachers.

Pauline Melton Gains Membership In Choral Club

Pauline Melton, daughter of Mrs. C. S. Holmes, and a Freshman at Simmons university, has been chosen as a member of the University Choral club, which soon will begin its annual tour, including morning appearance in Big Spring.

Miss Melton's selection to choral club membership in her Freshman year was an unusual accomplishment, as only about a half dozen places on the club were open after upper classmen women who won membership last year returned this season.

Moody To Appear In Pledge Trial

AUSTIN (UP)—Former Governor Dan Moody will be one of the attorneys attacking the pledge fixed by the state democratic executive committee for participants in the presidential primary conventions of May 7, Tom E. Love, Dallas, announced with the filing of the litigation over it in the state supreme court here.

The date for the hearing has not been set by the supreme court.

The litigation reached the supreme court in the form of a certified question from the Fifth court of civil appeals at Dallas.

This certificate asks the supreme court to rule:

Has the democratic state executive committee of the democratic executive committee or the duly appointed chairmen of the democratic primary conventions to be held on Saturday, May 7, 1932, the lawful authority to require otherwise lawfully qualified and eligible democratic voters to take the written pledge provided for in the resolution adopted by the democratic state executive committee?

The pledge, as set out in the certification, reads:

"I hereby pledge myself to support the nominees of the democratic party for president and vice president of the United States by voting for the democratic electors of the state of Texas."

the MAN HUNTERS
BY MABEL McELLIOTT

SUSAN CAREY, stenographer in the office of ERNEST HEATH, architect, lives with her Aunt JESSIE on Chicago's West Side. BEN LAMPMAN, moody young musician, admires her and introduces her to Bohemian crowd which she finds rather tiresome. JACK WARING, employed in the same office as Susan, tries to flirt with her but she discourages him. She finds she is beginning to care deeply for BOB DUNBAR, young millionaire whom she met at business school. At lunch one day Bob is interrupted by her by the arrival of DENISE ACKROYD, also wealthy. Susan is terribly disappointed. Bob does not telephone, departs for Europe. MRS. HEATH, wife of Susan's employer, calls at the office and snubs the girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIII
Aunt Jessie was going away. It was astonishing but true. Her sister who lived in a little town in southern Illinois had undergone a rather serious operation and was convalescing. She wanted Aunt Jessie to come.

"I declare, it doesn't seem right!" Aunt Jessie kept saying over and over. "It seems a pity you couldn't go and stay with the Miltons instead of having Rose come over here. But what with those cousins of her visiting from Des Moines I suppose we can't help it. She sighed again, frowning, folded her best Philippine nightgown and wrapped her bedroom slippers in tissue paper.

"I don't see why you make such a fuss," Susan said capably, trying to help and not succeeding very well. "You always say yourself that Rose is so sensible, and after all you won't be gone more than two weeks."

Aunt Jessie kept grumbling that it didn't seem right and she declared she was at her wits' end. But she went nevertheless. This was on a Sunday morning. After while her aunt's away has a date, she explained, hoping her voice didn't sound as forlorn as she felt. The man smiled.

"Come along with me," he said casually. "Some friends of mine are driving out to a place on the Milwaukee Road where they have grand music. I'll take good care of you and get you home early."

Susan hesitated. There was no denying it, the prospect was alluring. In addition, the man's tone and manner were so quietly reassuring, so nearly paternal that she felt rather silly as she demurred.

"Nonsense," Waring said briskly. "You just say 'no' as a matter of form without thinking. I can see that."

His conjecture was so close to the truth that Susan flushed. After all, wasn't it foolish of her to go home alone at an uninteresting and solitary supper and moon about waiting for Rose to return, when friendship, gaiety, music and laughter were hers for the stretching out of her hand? Irrationally she wondered if this had been the way Eve felt about the serpent. Then she smiled and shrugged because the metaphor was so far-fetched. Jack Waring in his conservative dress suit, perfectly groomed and agreeably friendly, was as little like a serpent as anyone could possibly imagine. She was seized with an uncontrollable impulse. "I'll go," she said. "I'd love to."

He was so businesslike about it all, putting her address down in his small notebook, that Susan banished as idiotic the suspicion that for an instant there had been a flash of triumph in his eyes. He was to call for her at seven. Much neighbors peering at his long blue roadster with its shattering horn she insisted on this. For one thing she remembered Aunt Jessie's dictum, "If a man can't call for a girl at her own home then I say there's something wrong. These fly-by-nighters who meet boys on street corners will come to no good." It was curious that Susan should think of this and be so insistent about it, because she had heard Aunt Jessie say it so many times and it had always irritated her.

She rushed homeward, impatient of the many delays. The west-bound trolley seemed unusually slow and jerky. The conductor dropped the token she handed him, passengers fumbled their transfers, and at every cross town line there were maddening waits.

Why she was so excited at the prospect of an evening with Waring Susan could not have exactly said. Perhaps it was his reputation as a lady's man, gleaned from hints dropped by Pierson. Perhaps it was the memory of the dozen and one daily telephone calls which he received. Most of the voices were provocatively feminine. Susan could not help hearing Waring's mimic, continued the performance. As Susan rinsed out the last clean dish towel she glanced with astonishment at the clock.

"It can't be half past three!" she said, appalled. They discussed the relative merits of a walk to the park or a trolley ride to one of the beaches, but somehow reached no decision. They dawdled out to the back porch, where, in a delicious confusion of Sunday newspapers, crackling taffy wrappers, and the shouts of the children next door, they idled away the afternoon.

That was the beginning of Susan's real holiday. Of course she would have no actual vacation this year since she had only started to work, but it was enough for her at the moment to feel the exquisite importance of being mistress of her own domain.

There came, however, the inevitable day when Rose, always popular and in demand, telephoned that she could not get home for dinner.

"I see. Of course you must go. Have a good time and don't be too late. No, I won't leave the door open. You ring twice and I'll hear you." Susan's tone sounded cheerful but she hung up the receiver with a sense of dismay. The long summer evening stretched out emptily before her.

She stood up to find Jack Waring twinkling at her.

"Stop! Please don't tell me any more!" Susan begged, wiping her eyes. Naturally Rose, delighted at this tribute to her powers as a part in some of these conversations. He called all of them "daring." She knew that and was a little contemptuous of it, believing in her young arrogance (and who shall say not rightly?) that the charming English term of endearment should be reserved for the chosen one instead of scattered to the crowd. But ever since the day when the man had shown such sympathetic understanding of her position—the day Mrs. Heath had so unmercifully snubbed her—Susan had come to take a more charitable view of him. After all, she argued, men couldn't all be alike. She began to feel that she had misunderstood Waring. Pierson said Jack's wife had given him "a dirty deal." Maybe that was true.

It was at this stage in her reflections that the car, jerking, wheezing, and groaning, reached her corner and she was glad to alight, finding the air under the locust trees of her own block much more agreeable than that of the trolley.

In her own room, she wriggled out of her clothes and ran the tub almost to the brim. She was glad Rose had given her those geranium scented bath crystals for her birthday. It was her favorite scent. If everything had irked her on the homeward ride now everything seemed suddenly right. How lucky it was that her flowered chiffon, her only "party" dress worthy of the name, had been returned from the cleaners the day before! How lucky it was she had washed her hair Monday night! How lucky she was to have a natural wave, intensified by the summer heat so that all she had to do was press her fingers into the little ridges to make her head a dark, shining, cap of undulation!

She was ready long before seven o'clock. While she waited she began to feel the agitation of a diver about to take the great plunge. Her mind revolved in busy whirls. What if Aunt Jessie should happen in without warning? What if Mrs. McLeod who always watched the goings and comings of the neighborhood from behind her starched curtains should spread the rumor that Susan Carey was becoming "fast"? Susan shuddered. To be "fast" in the little community where she lived was to be quite beyond the pale. Although Chicago is a metropolis, in its neighborhood groups there exists much of the spirit of the average small town. Susan's reverie was interrupted by the sharp peal of the door bell. She caught up her gloves in a flourish.

SOME FOLKS
Value Their Automobiles More Than Their HEALTH

At least it seems so. It is strange, but true, that many men who have a spark plug miss fire, or some other trivial thing go wrong with a car will take it to a garage, ask for the master mechanic or an expert. He is told to find the trouble and fix it. He demands service and gets it. And because the garage is on a "cash basis" he pays his bill and goes on his way.

This happens every day and hundreds of the same men have a physician's bill of long standing. Why is it that so many people will pay the plumber promptly for fixing a broken pipe—yet they allow their physician to go unpaid for months after he has fixed a broken arm or leg?

Why is it that men who will pay a lawyer a substantial sum for making out a paper will allow their physician who diagnoses and prescribes for their illness so that they can be physically fit to keep busy to go unpaid for months?

Treat your physician fairly. He serves when you most need service. He comes when the bravest are worried and frightened, he comes at any hour regardless of the inconvenience. He comes day or night. He leaves his meals, a warm bed, a family gathering; he leaves them because he is serving an ideal. It is the physician who renders the greatest service. It is your physician who is first entitled to your consideration. Pay him promptly—if you can't pay cash at least pay the first of each month.

Every physician is entitled to fair play. The man you expect to rush to you in time of need is not the man to place last on the list when you are paying your bills. Why not send your physician a check today?

SMALL TO BATTLE CHICAGOAN FOR GOVERNORSHIP FEARED LOST IN AFRICAN WILDS REPORTED SCENE OF LINDBERGH RANSOM DEAL

Another political fight between Chicago and downstate Illinois was forecast by results of the state's primary vote, in which Len Small (right), former governor, again was chosen to head the state's republican ticket in the November election. Opposing him will be Judge Henry Horner (center in group at left) of Chicago, democratic nominee whose campaign was sponsored by political forces led by Chicago's mayor, Anton J. Cermak (phone in hand).

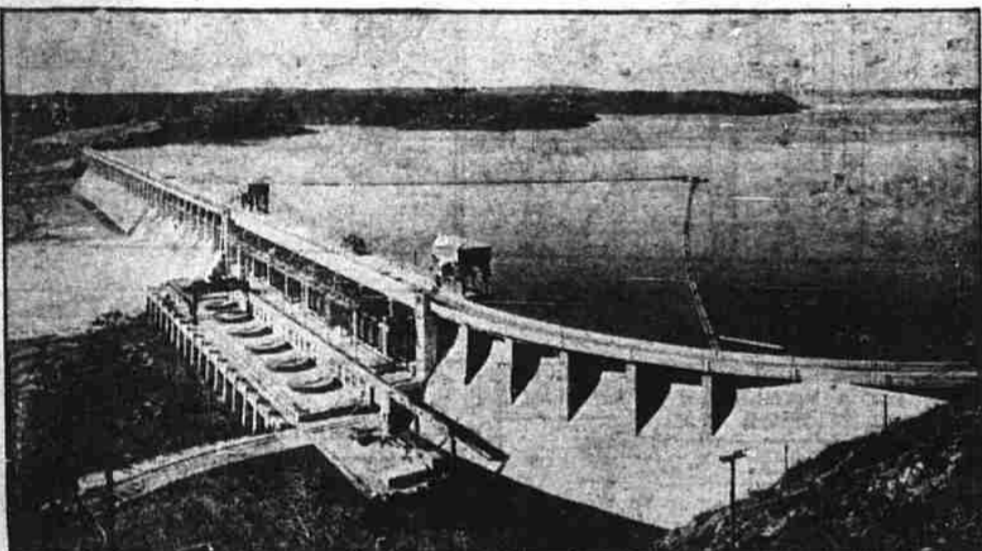

Two titled air tourists, Vicome and Vicomtesse Jacques de Sibour, are believed to be lost in the African interior. They were last reported at Dakar in Senegal. The French government has ordered a search. The Vicomtesse de Sibour is the daughter of H. Gordon Selfridge, American born owner of well known London department store.

This Associated Press telephoto shows the spot (where men are standing) where Dr. John F. Condon, Lindbergh emissary in the kidnaping case, is reported to have handed over $50,000 ransom, although the baby was not returned. The spot is at a corner of St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx, New York City.

WIFE OF RUSSIA'S IRON MAN

This Associated Press picture is the first ever published of Mrs. Joseph Stalin, wife of Soviet Russia's strong man. She figured in the news recently when she was called to account for cutting classes and failing to return library books promptly at the all-union industrial academy, where she is taking courses in the manufacture of artificial silk. She is enrolled in the school as Nadya Alilulova, her maiden name, and very few students are aware of her identity. She is extremely modest and refuses to bask in the reflected glory of her husband's career.

Program For Russian Choir Is Announced

Thursday will be the big day when the Russian Chorus will be in town for two performances. The singing of this chorus will be an unusual treat to many people who have no idea of the peculiar natural harmonies of such choruses. The following program is scheduled for the evening:

Part One What the flowers of the steppe told me (Soft and low the darts winds blow, And it sounds like the mustle of long ago) (a) At the Gates of Kaluga. (b) In the Green Meadows (They played and they sang and danced with joy.

The young girls singing to their favorite lay.)

Volga Boatmen song. Awaiting my Sweetheart Oh, My Dear Slavonic Home! (Men's Chorus) Golden Silence. Kalinka, Malinka. Popular Russian Songs. A merry song about the little chicken.

Part Two Trepak. Russian National Dance Song. Two Polish Songs. Chopin, Monushko. Kobza (Ukrainian instrument) Love's Old Sweet Song. O' Man River. Hungarian Song and Dance.

Part Three Along the Petrograd Street. (Ancient Russian Song with Balalaika Orchestra). Ukrainian Dance. Sitshenka Under the Cherry Tree. Russian Dances and Finale.

This group has received compliments from musical critics everywhere. Only the fact that Big Spring is on a transcontinental railroad makes it possible for Big Spring to hear them. Maybe the depression helped; for money, even if it is under a dollar, is money, these days.

The following cities have acclaimed the artistry of Pincea Agrevaeva-Slaviansky and her Royal Russian Chorus: Tokyo - "By far the best singing Japan has ever heard. The Medal of Harmony, presented to them by the Imperial Conservatory of Music, was fully deserved." - Japan Advertiser.

Honolulu - "The record attendance that was accorded the Russian Choir throughout their local engagement was fully deserved. It was indeed the greatest singing that Honolulu has ever heard." - Advertiser.

New York - "At Palace Theatre their version of the Volga Boatman Song puts to shame other versions heard on the stage. Whirling, fine entertainment, deserving to be held over for extended run. This will tell the world that vaudeville is again on the upgrade." - Billboard.

Chicago - "Royal Russian Choir so successful at Studebaker Theatre, Miss Bertha Ott, famous Concert Manager, arranging return engagements. Storms of applause. Beautiful voices. Consistent artistic standards. Enjoyable program. Brilliant costumes, fine dancers." - Musical Leader.

Chicago - "Amazing assurance of musicianship, rare beauty and finesse. Choral work that was perfect, in tone, rhythm, color, and phrasing. Audience was enraptured." - American (Herman Devries).

Montreal, Canada - "Superb singing, in pleasing concert. Royal Russian Choir notable for tonal beauty and purity. Outstanding volume, at His Majesty's Theatre. The most remarkable musical offering in Montreal this season." - Gazette.

Toronto, Canada - "Magnificent music from Russian singers. A thrill in every phrase, for both music lovers and casual theatre goers. Chorus of tone, rhythm, color, and phrasing. Audience was enraptured." - Evening Telegram. ("Xenitia").

Montreal, Canada - "Russian Choir sings with zeal and artistry. Splendor of costumes and brilliancy of tone make unique appeal to audience. Capacity audience at His Majesty's Theatre. Remarkably rich repertoire. Pleased eye and ear immensely." - Herald.

Toronto, Canada - "Royal Russian Choir stirred audience to prolonged, enthusiastic applause by brilliancy of novelty of their program at Royal Alexander Theatre. Truly remarkable display of technical skill and fascinating music. Thoroughly enjoyable. Audience could not get enough." - Globe. (Lawrence Mason.)

Toronto - "Russian Choir stupendous. Spectacular Choral Ensemble produces novel effects in chorus, choir, theatricals. The whole thing gloriously strident; flexible, full of color, and astounding quality." - Star (August Bridle).

lives comprising 85 per cent of the refiners and wholesale marketers were present. The Texas Petroleum Marketers' Association, he says, was selected as the agency for carrying out the alleged agreement.

In operating under the code, Allred says that complaints of violations were made to L. H. Lynn of the Texas Petroleum Marketers' association and by him submitted to the Texas American Petroleum Institute code committee. He then cites approximately 50 complaints of violations and decision of the code committee on them.

Among others, he says that as a result of these rulings the Texas company refused to donate gasoline and oil to the Dallas Aviation school in May, 1930. In January, 1931, he alleged, they advised stations in Dallas that no Texas company station should be permitted to participate in a prize offer in advertising.

Other code violations cited in complaints, he said, were the Texas company's furnishing a specially equipped truck for the city of San Antonio; complaint against the Texas company permitting an Austin company to sell competitive motor oils; complaint that Magnolia and Gulf station in Midland were giving away theater tickets; and that Humble in Paris, Tex., was purchasing a pound box of candy to purchasers of five gallons of oil.

As a result of this complaint, Allred says, the Humble admitted it was a code violation and changed agents.

Filling Stations The new petition also lists new filling stations alleged to have been acquired by the major companies "in a campaign to gain control of marketing outlets."

Simultaneous or nearly simultaneous posting of prices are set out with twelve specific instances.

In the amended petition Standard Oil company of New Jersey; Socony-Vacuum; Standard Oil of California and Shell Union Petroleum corporation are charged only with operation through agency of subsidiary companies in Texas.

The petition names Nov. 20, 1929, as the day of a conspiracy to violate the state anti-trust law, and asserts that after that time the Texas company increased its filling stations from 800 to 3,300; the Gulf company from 500 to 2,653. Lists of stations, cities and owners are put in the new petition which has 98 typewritten pages of allegations and 70 pages of exhibits.

Home Town

He declares that designation of a road connecting the county seat towns, Sterling City and Garden City, as well as Robert Lee is another waste of public funds.

It is beyond us to figure just why those towns ought not to be given a road designated as a part of the state system and maintained at state cost.

Don't the owners of automobiles in those counties pay the state gasoline tax, the same as folks in other counties? Gas tax receipts pay the bill for maintaining state highways. You'd think that the towns so opposed to this road—for purely selfish reasons—figure the highway commission is about to let a contract for paving at $25,000 per mile instead of merely designating a road and, by that action, agreeing to maintain it at the expense of the state.

Big Spring must guard against cutting its own throat by opposing movement that will benefit her neighbors. By co-operating with them instead of trying to choke them Big Spring will gain a lot in the end. Selfishness never pays.

We'll lay our bottom dollar that no other county in this section of Texas reported a higher percentage of county and state taxes paid this year than did Sterling and Glasscock—more than 90 per cent in each county.

Mr. Lance, who is absolutely sincere in his beliefs and his statements, may be fighting on behalf of the railroads when he opposes highway improvements.

As often declared, we believe changes should be made in the

Do You Spend YOUR SUNDAY Sulking and Fretting and Being Bored . . . ?

If you find yourself dreading next Sunday, that's a symptom. If Sunday, instead of being a rest day, is a lazy, listless, good-for-nothing day, that's another symptom. If you spend Sunday being bored with your own company, and bickering with the folks around you, that, too, is a symptom. Symptoms of what, you ask? Of this! Of a strongly-felt, though not always conscious need in your life. Church! Come to church Sunday and see what happens to you.

The Church Exhilarates

You will discover that Church provides mental and spiritual refreshment which will make Sunday, as well as all the days of the week to follow, more worthwhile. Church exhilarates. Church lifts up. Church inspires. Church banishes worry. Now you know the symptoms, the malady, the cure. If you want to feel tip-top Sunday, come to Church.

How To Grow A Lawn

Grass Seeds—Article 6

BY E. B. RIBBLE

GRASS SEEDS—The number of grasses really well adapted to lawn making is small. Of the number which may be used, probably half are less desirable, for one reason or another, than the remainder. Unfortunately several of these are commonly employed in inexpensive lawn-seed mixtures because they are cheaper, or add bulk or weight, with the result that the purchaser is deceived into thinking that he is getting more for his money.

Grasses suited for lawn making are those which, first of all, capable by themselves, or in combination with other grasses, of forming a real turf. Furthermore, they should be fine-leaved, and of pleasant green color throughout the longest possible season. Grasses with rough foliage, those which tend to grow upright rather than to form spreading crown at the surface, and those which form compact clumps with bare soil around the individual plants, should not be used. Permanency is also to be considered; as a rule, short-lived grasses are undesirable, although a small quantity may be permitted in a lawn grass mixture to give more immediate results.

CLOVER OR NO CLOVER—One of the most questions in modern lawn making is whether or not clover should be used. Some recommend its use alone. Formerly, clover seed was included in practically every lawn mixture, and it still holds its place in most of them. The variety used for lawn purposes is the White or Dutch clover. It has very small leaves, has a sweet cast, small white blossoms, and as its name indicates, is of creeping habits. On well-prepared soil which brings vigorous growth of the grasses no clover is necessary to obtain a thick green turf. On rather poor or sandy soil clover, undoubtedly, will improve the texture of the turf. One objection sometimes made to clover is that it crowds out the other grasses. This is not correct; the clover merely comes in where grasses are not growing and occupies bare space which otherwise would probably be infested with weeds. Another argument made against clover is that it will grow only on a well-limed soil which otherwise is undesirable for lawns. I have not found this to be so; it will grow freely wherever wood ashes in a moderate amount have been used, especially if the ashes are applied to the surface and not worked in deeply, so as to stimulate weed growth.

Whether clover should be included is really a matter of taste. I

Main at Third

Main at Third

Use a moderate amount of clover in a lawn. Most of the growth is made below the level—about two inches—at which the grass should be kept up. The most of us cut our lawns too close. Raise your lawn mowers as high as possible. Then the lawn will have greener appearance immediately after cutting than when no clover is used. Clover helps to make a carpet-like, springy and sweet scented turf. Even if clover is desired, however, there is no great advantage in getting it in seed mixture. The clover seeds are heavy and smooth and likely to work down through the grass seeds, resulting in an uneven distribution when sowing.

THE MORE IMPORTANT GRASSES—There is no one grass which is "best" everywhere and for all purposes, because soils, climate, and the particular qualities wanted in a lawn all vary.

Kentucky Bluegrass, Red-Top and white clover grow better in the northern and eastern states. These rarely are found satisfactory in this part of Texas.

Bermuda grass is more popular and does better here than most all other grasses. Percy rye, white clover sown in connection with bermuda, grows well here if planted properly. This will be discussed in the following articles.

GOOD AND POOR SEED—It is of the utmost importance to have absolutely the best seed procurable. This seed not necessarily be the most expensive to be found, but you may rest assured you will not get it in a cheap mixture—it is in these that the actual quantity of good seed of desirable varieties really cost most. Even if the waste in cheap seed were nothing but chaff and dead seed, it would make them too expensive for any one to afford—but that is only half the story. They are almost certain to contain weed seeds, and in using them, one sows the seeds of failure at the start.

Some recent official investigations have shown, in thirteen samples of mixture bought, an average of more than 60,000 weed seeds to each pound! This, coupled with another analysis which showed that only ten out of eighty-eight samples examined contained fifty per cent or more of Kentucky bluegrass, while twenty-six of them contained Timothy (a hay and pasture grass.) This should be sufficient to put any one on guard against the cheap mixtures.

The weight of a mixture may give some indication of its quality, as good mixture should weigh twenty to twenty-five pounds to the bushel. Weight may be gained, however, by adding clover or Timothy seed, which weigh approximately twice as much as Kentucky bluegrass, or Bermuda. Your seed man should be willing to tell you what his grass seed mixture contains. If he is not, you will probably do well to look elsewhere.

Faculty Stunt Night To Be On Tuesday Evening

Faculty Stunt night will be Tuesday evening at the High School auditorium at 8 o'clock. Everybody is expected to be present. No exceptions considered. The program, which speaks for itself, will be as follows: Solo by D. H. Reed, "She's A Cornfed Indiana Gal," with Mrs. W. O. Low as the Indiana Gal. (This is to show that Mr. Reed has heard the Crawford Hotel orchestra. Apache Dance by Miss Kitty Wingo and Miss Nell Brown. (Nobody know what this signifies). Tent Show by Bunk Comedians (who promise to live up to their name.) A nigger sister skit by Mrs. Lee Weathers and Mrs. H. A. Stegner. A tap dance by Miss Kitty Wingo and Miss Mary McElroy. A Male Quartet, names kept secret. Reading by Miss Dorothy Jordan, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew." Prize fight by Miss Clara Cox and George Brown. (This ought to be Spanish cabaret number by Misses Helen Beavers, Lorena Huggins, Lillian Shick, Clara Secrest; Mmes. Francya Glenn and one of the Browns—we can't recall which. An operative violin solo by Miss Ione Drake (to lend class to the evening). Solo by Miss Marie Johnson, "My Beautiful Garden of Roses." A duet, by Miss Marie Johnson and Mrs. Frank Boyle, which will be that uplifting classic called Barnacle Hill and the Fair Young Maiden. An Osage Indian dance by Obie Eristow, guaranteed to be the real thing. As a concluding number no less than a harmonicky solo by no less than Bill Olson, himself. Come one, come all. WILL ROGERS: Depression Hits Hollywood Devilment; Nature Gets Along Under Republicanism

By WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I see, but sure haven't seen much lately. You would think anybody living out here this near to Hollywood would see quite a bit. Lots of folks come from far and wide to look us over, but I think they go back kinder disappointed. Hollywood for real up and doing is mighty delicate these days.

Depression has hit the devilment just like it has hit everything else. The pursuit of life and liberty has been checked by this slow return to "Normalcy." So as I say I haven't seen much lately. Keeping mighty close to home, riding the old Ponies out in the hills and looking Nature over and seeing how it was making out during this long spell of Republicanism. It just looks like everything is doing fine but humans. Animals are having a great year, grass was never higher, flowers were never more in bloom, trees are throwing out an abundance of shade for us to loaf under. Everything the Lord has a hand in is going great, but the minute you notice anything that is in any way under the supervision of man, why its "cockeyed."

And the more men that have anything to do with trying to right a thing why the worse off it is. If every man was left absolutely to his own method of wringing his own affairs why a big majority would get it done. But he cant do that. The Government has not only hundreds but literally thousands in Washington to see that no man can personally tend to his own business. They go there to do it for him, and a mob always gets panicky quicker than an individual. They hear so much of how bad things are, and that something should be done, and they immediately feel that its up to them to do it, so they just got up in the morning determined to pass some bills that day that will attempt to do something. They dont know if they will or not, but they were sent there to pass bills, so they get to passing em.

That was one of the great things about Coolidge. Coolidge never thought half the things that are wrong needed fixing. You know that over half the things just needed leaving alone. Its like writing a letter to everybody you hear from. He knew that if you leave nine tenths of em alone it didnt need answering. Now here a couple of weeks ago Congress broke out and they just gloried in their devilment. If some one could point out anyone that looked like a rich man going down the street, why they just passed a search and seizure bill, and went out and not only plucked him, but added a little tar and feathers when they turned him loose. Well they got everybody sore at em and the big ones said "Well if they are going to confiscate what I may earn, I just wont earn anything. Why should I take a chance investing in something when I will only be able to keep one fourth of it when I win?"

Well after Jack Garner got his strange hold back on the boys again, and after they had sobered up, why he showed em that the Government was after all a sort of a co-operative affair, and that it wouldnt be a bad idea to sort of distribute the cost around in proportion. Course everybody knows that one of our great ills today is the unequal distribution of wealth. You are either at a banquet in this country, or you are at a hot dog but we would sit on the bench with em. We are always doing something through the Kitchen door. We like the glory but not the responsibilities. But we are kicking along in spite of our handicaps. The East and the North have got to get like the South has been for years, poor and used to it. Us folks down there have had to catch a cat fish, or kill a possum before we eat for years. So the other part of the Country have got to learn to look to nature and not to Wall Street for what goes in the pot. They got to find some other way making a living besides looking at a list of names in the paper every day. Stocks and bonds have got so now they dont go up and down only when there is a reason, not like they used to, go up and down when there was a wish on somebody's part. But the whole Country is taking it in good grace at that. If so many of em are not looking, at our pictures as used too, we are mighty grateful to those that are. If they are not looking at us its because they are wise to us, and thats about the way it is with everything else.
