The Texan's influence with men of both parties has never been demonstrated to greater degree than when his mere appearance on the floor had the effect of gathering warring factions into a solid phalanx for the purpose of balancing the budget.

Well, Borden county had to lose its record of never having sentenced a man to the penitentiary. It had to happen sooner or later. It is significant, too, that the first prosecution carrying a pen term was not for homicide, or robbery or embezzlement or for theft of horses, cattle or automobiles. But for operating a whiskey still.

And Borden county people can still say that no resident of the county has ever been sentenced to the penitentiary. The man given a year and a day for operating a still resided over the line in Scurry county at the time the offense occurred.

And, there's another of the interesting places in this section of Texas—Gall. Driving along the Broadway of America past tall buildings in Big Spring, past great oil refineries or riding across Texas in a huge airplane that within a few miles is remaining a typical town of the old west, where civilization is as genuine as in any town, and a lot more than in many larger ones; yet, where the noise and pressure and bustle of the average community is absent.

There are several such counties left in Western Texas, but the irrepressible influence of what we are pleased to call "the modern era" gradually advances upon them. Only recently Loving, the last unorganized county of Texas, 254 elected its first county officials: Gail, Garden City, Seminole, Andrews, Mentone—they're still real old western places.

But, sooner or later oil will be discovered in greater quantities, in closer proximity, or some other natural resource will be developed and commercialized and things will change.

These kingdoms where the inhabitants are few and affairs are controlled by two or three or not more than a half dozen men will grow in a lot of ways.

Maybe they'll be better off, maybe not, but it'll happen anyway.

San Angelo Gets West Texas Golf Meet, June 9 To 12

ABILENE—West Texas golfers will fight their championship battle over the course of the San Angelo country club this year. Acceptance of the invitation to the Concho country was made Sunday afternoon by a committee of the West Texas Golf association, in session here. The dates are June 9-12.

Abilene and Wichita Falls had also bid for the meet, but Wichita Falls did not urge the matter when the committee met, and when Abilene was quickly chosen.

The first club to install grass green in West Texas, San Angelo has one of the best courses, if not the best in this section. This year's tournament will be the first of the association to be played on grass greens. It will be the eighth championship meet of the organization.

Beginning with the first meet in 1928, the tournaments have been held at San Angelo, Elgin, Abilene, Mineral Wells, Stamford, Brownwood and Lubbock.

The Brownwood country club advised the committee here that its second annual invitation meet will be held April 28-May 1.

New Jersey Kiddies Cause Wide Alarm With Easter 'Parade'

COLLINGSWOOD, N. J. (UP)—Betty Perrin, 4, and Raymond Eichelberger, 5, set out on an Easter parade of their own after Sunday school and didn't bother to consult their parents before they started.

Shortly the whole countryside buzzed with a new kidnapping story, with the following results:

1 p. m.—Emergency call for help sent to Collingswood American Legion Post. Twenty-five posts in as many localities united with 25 police departments and 14,000 citizens in search of the missing pair.

1:30 n. m.—Two children reported in Camden hospital. Police sped there, sirens shrieking, to find they were two other children.

2 p. m.—Body of a little girl reported found in Newton Creek. Hundreds of volunteers helped the police search the creek.

2:15 p. m.—Announcement of the children's disappearance made in many churches. Congregations dismissed to join in the hunt.

3 p. m.—Police find the two children trudging happily along the road toward home. Betty's new pink dress was somewhat dragged. Raymond's new tan shoes were dust covered. Their Easter parade was over.

Over The Horizon

FAR up in the Himalayas, several Englishmen are getting ready to climb the highest unascended peak of Mount Nanga Parbat, which rises some 28,000 feet above sea level and which has rocky ledges that run almost straight up and down.

On top of this mountain, says the Kashmiri shepherds who lives along the lower slopes, there is a marvelous crystal palace. No one has ever been up there to find out, but a legend dating back far into the past tells about it, and the shepherds have always been willing to take it on faith.

The Englishmen probably do not take any stock in this palace. They are going to make the climb in the interests of pure science, or pure sport, or something of the kind, and if they find nothing on top but snow and ice and bare rock and a gorgeous view of the surrounding country they will be perfectly happy—providing, of course, that they ever get there.

We stay-at-homes may wonder, though, why on earth any man should want to leave his comfortable home and risk his neck climbing a barren mountain in the interior of Asia. There is not, as the saying goes, any percentage in it. What is the sense of it?

The answer, of course, is that there is seldom, any tangible reward for the explorer, and there is seldom any very obvious, common sense reason for his journeyings. But there is something in the human heart that gets uncontrolably restless when a new vista opens before the eyes—a desire to go where no one else has ever gone an imperative yearning to see what lies beyond the next hill. The desire is as old as the race, and it probably will last until the last rocket car has explored the last distant planet.

It sent the old Phoenicians out through the straits of Gibraltar in their flimsy galleys, thousands of years ago, and it sent trappers and adventurers out to the Rocky Mountains with the last century. It lent Marco Polo to China and it sent Amundsen to the South Pole. It is irrational and compelling, and none of us is wholly free from it.

For we are a restless, questing race, and no horizon ever quite contents.

BOY CRAZY

by GRACE PERKINS

SYNOPSIS: "Dickey still cares for me!" Hope Ross asks her former father-in-law, Hickey Dale. She has sailed on the same boat, hoping to meet Dickey. Hope has just learned that her father deceived her when he had her marriage annulled, and that Dickey was prevented by Mr. Ross from reaching her.

Chapter 33
SOMETHING BLUE

Hickey laughed. A crooked, broken laugh. "Your picture is still in my watch-case," he said slowly. "Go and ask him to show it to you."

For one second Hope stood poised. Then, forgetting Sassy, and forgetting Hickey, she turned and raced out of the room.

Hope was on a wild-eyed search. All over the boat, from bar to saloon, up and out on the decks, without cap or cape, fighting her way through the wind from one end of the ship to the other. Angering him, eventually in a forbidden spot, which meant that she had to climb chains and railings to get up to the bridge where Dickey stood with the captain.

"Dickey," she cried, "what time is it? Tell me, honey, what time is it?"

They brought her, still demanding the time, down to the captain's suite.

"No. By your watch, Dickey," she insisted. "I must know the time by your watch."

Dickey went gray around the lips, and turned to the captain.

"I don't think Miss Ross is well, he stammered.

"I understand," nodded the captain. But he didn't quite. Until much later that evening.

For Dickey and Hope, with so much to say, so many questions to be answered, so many questions that didn't need answering any more, suddenly found that hardly a spot on that huge vessel was sacred to lovers.

Meanwhile, Judy, in spite of Tom's white-faced annoyance, was searching grimly for Hope, sending the Carters in one direction, and any steward within sight to search out every known corner. And when at last Hope rushed up to Judy and nearly knocked her over with hugs and kisses and breathless explanations, Judy almost fainted with relief.

Quite unplanned and unexpected was the round-up in Hickey's suite. Nobody knew just who made the suggestion that they get married; then and there by the captain. But Dickey leaped at the idea, his eyes lighting up into that old blue spark and a broad shy grin gratefully hiding the scar of stitches on his jaw.

"Will you, Hope? Will you marry me—right now?"

Hope tried to say yes. She really did try. But her face wrinkled up into a childish pucker and she nodded her head instead, gulping back her happiness.

After that, there was a general mad-house. Everyone had a suggestion, everyone a gift, everyone was talking at once.

Not even to change her black velvet would Dickey permit Hope to leave his side.

"Listen, cricket," he said with that memorably bossy air of his. "Last time you married me just as you were. This time you're going to do the same. That's orders, baby!"

The old pet name, the old ring in his voice, and Hope was glad of the confusion that prevented the need of answering. For suddenly through her tired, happy, confused mind there rose a picture of her old home is dying and wishes to marry another so that the estate might be inherited, or when the ship was doomed to sink; only in cases of extreme emergency was such a marriage permissible.

To the selected few who were invited up a few moments later, the captain went on to placate the doleful lovers.

"It is not a ruling of the steamship companies," he sighed with true sympathy. "It is a land rule of the Justice of the Peace—where she had found neither justice nor peace. . . ."

"Something blue! You must wear something blue!" drawled a voice in her ear, and Millie's southern leg went up to be stripped of a blue-satin garter.

"Something old," Hickey piped in as he drew the cork of a wine bottle. "I'm something old, and by thunder, I ought to do for any wedding."

"Let's get started," suggested Dickey as he slapped his fingers on the shoulder and nearly spilled the wine. "We can drink all the toasts later. Come on, Hope."

"Oh, Lordy!" wailed Millie as she grasped the arm of her westerner, and watched Hope and Dickey head down the corridor. "I just have a feeling something awful's going to happen. . . . Now isn't that terribly, but I can't help it. It's like a premonition!"

"Shut up, for heaven's sake," snapped Judy as she followed Hickey. "Or there'll be murder at sea."

Fight after fight they climbed, the whole gabbling crew, joined by every person they recognized, or who had known Hope or Dickey joined by everyone, that is, but Lillian Toff, who was perched on a table in the bar, swearing that she intended to sue Hope for alienation of affections. . . .

At the narrow twisting staircase that led up to the captain's room Hickey commanded the party to halt. Up he went himself to announce the excitement, and to request the captain to make way for a wedding.

For the longest time he was gone. Gone behind the door of the captain's room. While at the foot of the staircase stood Hope and Dickey, side by side, breathless, wordless, listening to all that was said, and grinning idiotically.

The minutes dragged. A sense of restlessness ran through the crowd. "Flicker became Dickey's grip on Hope's clammy hand. . . ."

And at last the captain's door was flung open and Hickey appeared. A crestfallen and sad-eyed Hickey, gazing down on them. With the captain smiling quizzically behind him.

"You can come up," announced Hickey sorrowfully, "but you won't like it!"

Dazed, Dickey and Hope looked at each other.

"Why, in the name of God?" shouted Dickey from the foot of the staircase.

The captain pushed his way to the front. Explaining, most apologetically, that stories, tales and romances notwithstanding, he could not read a marriage service for them. Not even considering the friendship he felt for both Dickey and Hope's fathers. Only when one

Acreege Laws Raised Value Of Cotton Crop McDonald Declares

AUSTIN, (UP)—Cotton acreage reduction laws, passed by Texas and other southern states last fall, saved farmers and cotton growers of Texas $37,500,000, Commissioner of Agriculture J. E. McDonald estimated yesterday.

Farmers of the entire south profited to the extent of $127,500,000 he believes. In Texas the acreage reduction law was held unconstitutional.

"It is generally conceded that these laws supported the market to the extent of one and one-half cents per pound, or $7.50 per bale," McDonald said.

"Never before has an increase of 600,000 bales in a government estimate failed to break the cotton market at least 100 points within three days. But last season, with several southern cotton states having cotton acreage control laws on their statutes, the cotton market not only held twice against a 600,000 bale estimated increase, but in one instance rose slightly."

With Texas producing about 5,000,000 bales, a drop of one and one-half cents per pound would have meant a loss of $37,500,000 in this state.

Cost of the "cotton session" of the legislature, which enacted the acreage reduction law, was estimated at $65,520 by the state comptroller.

and etc., and so on until you get tired of it. There is, we are informed, to be quite a bit of opposition for the Steer thinly clads down at San Angelo this week-end. To begin with the Abilene Eagles are there, and no matter what the Eagles do or wherever they go they like very, very much to win whatever it is they are competing in. And to do them justice they generally do it. Johnny Gregg, former Simmons U. star, has quite an array of talent on hand this season. As usual he has more than one excellent sprinter, but the best is a young man named Cogdell, who claims a time of 10 flat. "Mighty" Pool, substitute quarterback on the state championship eleven, boasts of 10.3, which is just exactly the time in which Mikiff aspermed in ahead of the field at Barnhart, Midkiff, you know, is from Midland. Cogdell runs the low hurdles in 25 seconds, which is fair enough, while Ralph Balfanz, al-state end, negotiates the 220 in 22.5.

Willard Moser, so the sad tale goes on, beats Cogdell in the 100 but his best race is the 220 yard dash. He won the 440 in the city meet, and also has a "yen" for the hurdie. Which is interesting, very interesting. If he could throw all the weights into the next county he'd be another "Tack" Dennis. The Ballinger Bearsats, we're still talking about the San Angelo relays and they're welcome for the publicity because the Boves are going to win it anyhow, will also be there, and in Morris, a high hurdle, Burke, a miler, and Bailey, a vaulter, Sterling Prince is supposed to have a trio of cinch point-getters. King of Sonora is ballyhooed as a capable dash man

The other Sand Belt athletic association, the tennis players, will open their scheduled schedule of three weeks later, but will stage the official championship tournament in Big Spring on April 23 and 30, inclusive. It is the eighth consecutive season the local courts were chosen as the scene of combat, not because of any love the Midland, Lamesa, or Colorado players hold for the Big Spring netters, but because of the pair of hard-surface courts that are perhaps the best in the section in spite of the numbers of cracks and poor backstops. A peculiar thing about the tourney is that the championship has always been captured by local players. Barring dope upsets the record is due to be upheld this season.

Baseball is evidently due for a nap in Big Spring this summer. The ball park, scene of many a twilight battle between the clubs of the city league and where such players as "Spec" Williamson, Lee Stebbins, Grover Seitz, Charley Eredson, "Muleshoe" Vaughn, Joe Moore, Carl Kott, Hobo Carson, and numerous others now confirmed as veterans in the bigger leagues were seen in action, has been practically destroyed. The grandstand that used to rock with the impact of soda-pop bottles and the pleas of the local fans for the seventh inning rally that very, very seldom, if ever, materialized, is no more, and the only playing field to speak of is the lot used by the Mexican Tigers just north of the tracks. If you'll pardon us a moment we'll go out and buy an overcoat for our polar bear.

W. L. WILLIAMS

Judge W. Erskine Williams of Ft. Worth, teacher, churchman, city official, lawyer and judge, announces his candidacy for congress-at-large, subject to the action of the Democratic party. He was a member of the city council of Fort Worth for two years and served twice on the school board. Judge Williams was born in Tennessee, reared on a farm in Mississippi, was graduated from the University of Mississippi, and came to Texas immediately after his graduation. He taught school two years in Wise county and was principal of the largest school in Fort Worth at that time, for three years. He served as special county judge for Tarrant county, and was for 12 years assistant county attorney for Tarrant county. Prominent in the legal fraternity, he is past president of the Fort Worth and Tarrant County Bar Association and now is vice-president for Texas of the American Bar Association and chairman for Texas of its committee on American citizenship. For four years he was president of the General Laymen's Board of the Methodist church. Recently he was appointed by Governor R. S. Sterling as a member of the Texas Commission for the celebration of the George Washington Bicentennial, and to him has been assigned the district composed of the counties of Tarrant, Parker, Palo Pinto, Johnson, Hood, Bomervell, Jack and Wise. Judge Williams recently delivered a course of lectures before the law department of S. M. U. on the constitution and one on "The American Lawyer and His Code of Ethics." He was also, at one time, a lecturer before the American Law School in Shanghai, China. Judge Williams has for many years been prominently connected with all civic and political questions in the state and nation, and by reason of travel, having made a trip around the world and to South America, is well informed upon international affairs and conditions, and is well qualified both by nature and experience to represent our state in the national congress. Judge Williams has always stood for the best and truest things in life. His reputation and character are above reproach.

Lions Candidate

C. H. WALKER

PAMPA — The Pampa Lions club, one of the most active in the "T" or West Texas district, has launched a campaign urging its president, C. Herbert Walker, for district governor. Clubs all over the district are being asked to support the Pampa business man, and very encouraging support has been pledged, according to John Sturgeon, chairman of the steering committee which is backing Walker for the post. Mr. Walker, now a dealer in office equipment and supplies, is a former publisher, legislator, and good roads advocate and is one of the best known Lions in the Panhandle. Born in Tennessee, whence came Sam Houston and so many other noted Texans, he moved to Dalhart in 1909. He was postmaster there during the administration of Woodrow Wilson. He served in the 33rd Texas legislature as representative for his district of ten counties. For eleven years he was editor and publisher of the Dalhart Texan. He was one of the organizers of the Colorado-Gulf highway association. Locally, he is carrying on his civic duties and is president of the Board of City Development. Mr. Walker was the first president of the Dalhart Lions Club. His interest in the organization took him to the Omaha and Toronto international conventions. He has the means and the leisure to give to the important office of district governor. The Pampa club will have a large delegation at the Lubbock convention April 11 and 12, when the vote for district governor will be held.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS AUSTIN—The oil industry is leading the way in Texas back to normal conditions, according to statements made in the industry-planning conference and the board of regents meeting at the University of Texas campus this week. A stronger demand for oil leases in West Texas was reported to the regents and better prices in prospect for leases on the university lands. The result will be the early opening of more university lands to development, it was indicated. Regent Robert L. Holiday, member of the leasing board, left Austin for an extended tour of university lands in view of the probable early tender of the lands for bids, to be awarded on the best royalty and bonus in addition to the basic rentals and royalty reservation.

ties on any public question that must be settled. I think that every man that offers himself as a candidate for a Legislative office should have the moral courage to let the people know where he stands and what he stands for.

It is a matter of record that the state expenditures are nine times greater today than they were twenty years ago.

To Sell In April

Miss Johnson will sail from New York April 13 for The Hague, where the couple will be married.

Against Martial Law

Right To Be Deaf

I am in favor of and, if elected, will introduce a bill giving any person who has lost his land by the same at any time within two years from date of sale.

Right To Be Deaf

Romance Of Simmons' Beauty

Dutch Diplomat To East Java Falls In Love With Student's Picture; Wedding To Occur Soon

ABILENE—Rivalling tales of fiction for romantic allure is the story of a young Simmons student and her Holland sweetheart, who will be wed soon.

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Carol Johnson, university senior, to Dr. A. J. Van Assenderp of The Hague, Holland, was made this morning by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Johnson of Bogalusa, La.

The wedding had been planned for the summer, when Miss Johnson would have completed her work on a bachelor of arts degree in Simmons; but diplomatic service required that the Hollanders sail sooner, so the two, after receiving her parents' consent, will be married at once.

Possibility that Dr. Van Assenderp would have to sail sooner was known last week end for a mid-term vacation, Miss Johnson received a telegram from her future husband informing her he would be required to sail immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe McNew of Sparanburg visited in the Lee Lauderdale home recently.

Mrs. Helen Copeland and two children visited at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gramham, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lauderdale recently visited Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wilkerson attended church here Sunday.

Mrs. Virgil Low visited at the home of Mrs. Frank Behrens recently.

Miss Billie Tate is leaving for Lubbock to re-enter Texas Technological college, where she will receive the B. A. degree in June.

Mrs. Virgil Low visited at the home of Mrs. Frank Behrens recently.

Miss Johnson's withdrawal from school was not made without approval of university authorities.

Her father, J. K. Johnson, is an official of the Great Southern Lumber company, and the family is well known in southern Louisiana, where they have resided for many years.

Van Assenderp was awarded the doctor of Indology degree from the University of Leiden at The Hague. He has a reputation as a scholar, his service, the field in which his father has served Holland for many generations, and is to have official duty in East Java, a Pacific island possession of his native land.

Right To Enforce Collective Bargaining Contracts Upheld

AUSTIN (UP)—The right of labor unions to enforce collective bargaining contracts was upheld here today in the third Court of Civil Appeals. Suit had been brought before Judge W. F. Robertson in 126th district court by the Austin local Brotherhood of Electrical Workers to enforce specific performance of a union contract with Harper & Linscomb, a local firm.

Judge Robertson held the contract enforceable and was sustained by the appellate court. Under it the union workers will get a raise of 50 cents a day beginning April 1. The contracts provide for pay of $10 a day for the year beginning then.

Homan Brothers To Attend Goodrich Meet

On the invitation of Mr. Wack smuth branch manager of the Dallas district with headquarters at Dallas, Harold G. Homan and Geo. Homan, Goodrich dealers at Big Spring, are to attend the annual Goodrich district dealers' meeting in Dallas April 1.

Goodrich sales policies for 1932 will be outlined at this conference and also presented in dramatic form "The Play Without a Name," with a cast composed of members from the Akron office of the company.

A recent national gain of 25 per cent in first line tire sales has been reported by Goodrich for January and February over same months of 1931.

New Goodrich products, the Safe Fly Silvertown, new "Flying Silvertown," low pressure tires carrying less than 15 pounds air pressure and new colored tires made by the Goodrich "Colorworld" exclusive process, will be exhibited at the conference of the dealer.

The coming Goodrich meeting is one of a series being held in all parts of the United States for dealers in preparation for what is expected to be an improved year in the tire business.

East Texas Production Extended Mile East

HENDERSON (UP)—East Texas production limits were extended a mile east with the bringing in of the Carroll-McIntyre well on the Charles Dickerson lease south of the Overton-Pittner junction highway. The well is located in the T. J. Martin survey.

Charles M. Carroll of Lawrence, Mass., and J. A. McIntyre, New York real estate man, are owners of the wildcat producer. It is said to be larger in production than its neighbors to the west.

Logs of the drilling crew showed drilling started March 1, and eight cores were taken. Casing was set at 3,688 feet and total depth of the hole was 3,722 feet. About 40 feet of oil sand was encountered. This came in two strata, some with broken shale.

Hunter Opens His Campaign

Wichita Falls Man Speaks To Mineola Crowd Saturday

MINEOLA—The Hon. Tom P. Hunter of Wichita Falls formally opened his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor in an address here last Saturday in which he emphasized tax relief and monopoly control as the outstanding issues of the campaign.

"It shall be my privilege as Governor," he said, "to exert my every effort to serve the masses of this state. I shall not be deflected by big interests. No large contributions will be taken. I prefer that my friends carry my message to their neighbors in the interest of good government."

"In the days of Jim Hogg it was a fight between the people and the railroads. Today it is a fight between the people and the utilities and oil companies," he stated. "If we have the courage of our predecessors we shall subdue the octopus of today as it was conquered in the days of Hogg."

"Texas gets her money from the East for labor, agricultural products and for other raw materials. She sends money East for utility and manufactured products. Raw materials sell at from 30 to 50 per cent of 1928 prices while we pay from 70 to 100 per cent for what we buy."

Mr. Hunter here took up utility services, stating that only a few years ago natural gas was supplied to his home city at 25 cents per thousand and at a profit. Now the charge is 75 cents with an added 50 cents per month ready-to-serve charge.

"The Standard Oil group and Mellon interests have imported into this country in the last few years in equivalent of 300,000 barrels of oil per day, displacing $71,000,000 worth of Texas oil and decreasing the earning power of oil field group workmen of Texas $175,000,000 per year.

"There is a known reason why Texas, even though the richest of all sections in natural resources, soil and climate, finds her labor straitened, her homes pauperized, her farmers in destitution and many of her merchants and business bankrupt. We have burdened real estate, our basic wealth, with taxes until it has no loan or sale value. Those in control, with two-thirds of the state's wealth escaping taxation, have a legal guarantee that they will have a profit."

"Records at Washington indicate Texas has $100,000,000,000 worth, while the assessed valuation of all properties rendered for taxes is but little more than four billion," he stated. "No property is worth more than it will produce and the farm or ranch being unable to produce under its present load is not a desirable investment for either a loan or a purchase."

"The change must be worked out by the application of a different tax system that will require all of the citizens of the state and all who do business in our state to pay the costs of government in proportion to their ability."

"The city home-owner can rent cheaper than he can buy. The city man of property must have relief. 'Poll tax levies must be reduced. 'The need of an equity of redemption law is clearly shown in this time of depression. A foreclosed mortgage should have reasonable time to redeem his family shelter by doing equity. Such a law would not impair the right of contract or foreclose. Tax foreclosures should be made more simple and less expensive. Home equity must be made safer. 'Chain stores must be curbed. They add to the ever-growing list of bankruptcies. Their profits leave Texas forever; they are not home-owners and pay but little tax. Legislation, fixing a graduated tax on them, and prohibiting foreign corporations from controlling stock in domestic corporations will cure this evil."

"We can never over-educate. Schools must be more efficient at less cost. Public schools should be state supported and graded into affiliated units. Rural schools must have recognized credits in larger units. The state should maintain our public schools and absorb the special ad valorem school district tax. 'Products of the soil should be protected against competition of outside substitutes. 'Texas has more than 80 commissions, bureaus and departments with a great list of employees. The Highway Department last year paid $151,000 per month in duplication of county organizations alone. These duplications and unnecessary bureaus must be eliminated through abolition and consolidation. To reduce taxes we must reduce governmental expense and redistribute the tax burden."

"Less than half the state highway funds actually go into the road bed. The department has degenerated into an expensive political machine. Millions of dollars have been wasted by such practices as the signs telling where the road stops and the pasture begins. 'I am unalterably opposed to a state-wide bond issue. State expenses would be increased by two million dollars. One cent per gallon of the gasoline tax would get us aside to retire the county road bonds that this portion of our $1,000,000,000 is absorbed. Real estate owners should be penalized through an ad valorem tax to build highways for the one who uses them."

"This is a fight of man-power against money-power. I intend to carry it to every part of Texas. We have allowed ourselves to be divided on 'isms' and prejudices until the champion of good government for the plain people have installed themselves in the State Capitol and have taken charge. 'I have faith in the people. The red blood of Texas has asserted itself in every crisis. It will assert itself now. This generation will not rest. We must shoulder the responsibility of their posterity but will bequeath to them the same individual freedom that we received from the Fathers of Texas. This freedom was gained on many battlefields at the cost of blood and treasure. We must at all costs retain it. As we go forward together in this fight, let our slogan be: 'The People Will Take Charge."

AUSTIN—Cisco high school was suspended by the state executive committee from participating in football games sponsored by the Texas interscholastic league next fall. The action was taken by the state committee on recommendation of the district No. 3 football committee. Cisco was charged by Beckenridge with having used an ineligible player, Fred Hightower, in a game with Breckenridge last fall. The game was thrown out by the district committee. Hightower was alleged to have played at Cisco within 30 days of his transfer from Tyler.

UPHOLDS RECOMMENDATION—Upon recommendation of the district No. 3 football executive committee and after investigation, the state executive committee has suspended Cisco in football for the remainder of the season, stating following an extended meeting of the committee. The suspension will not apply to Cisco's participation in other interscholastic league activities.

HIGHWAY PATROL Warns Violators Of State Rules—State highway patrolmen stationed here have issued a warning to motorists on the state highway pointing out that state law prohibits driving without headlights and tail light. "We do not want to make arrests," said one patrolman. "What we want is to see all automobile drivers comply with the law. But those who persist in driving with one headlight, or none, or with the tail light of their cars not burning will be picked up."

Attention also was called to the law which limits speed to 20 miles per hour on Big Spring streets. Those breaking this limit will be arrested. Many motorists by use of bypasses are violating the state law requiring use of mufflers to automobile, motorcycle and truck engines, it was declared. In this connection the legal definition of a muffler was pointed out. It follows: Article 797b, revised civil statutes, 1925: "A muffler cut out within the meaning of this act is any device or aperture which permits the escaping gases produced by the operation of the motor of a motor vehicle to escape without going through the muffler on such motor vehicle or motorcycle, or which is capable of being manipulated so as to permit such gases to so escape. A muffler within the meaning of this act is a device through which the escaping gases of the motor of a motor vehicle or motorcycle pass, designed to muffle or minimize the noise produced by the operation of such motor."

Poverty From Drink Declared More Negligible One outstanding fact in the current depression is that poverty from drink is a negligible factor and that the tremendous army of the unemployed and down-and-outers seeking aid from the Salvation Army is almost entirely drink free. This is the testimony of Col. George H. Davis, in charge of the Salvation Army forces at Chicago, who backs up his opinion by the experience of his organization with more than a million cases of hard luck and poverty in the past few months. Col. Davis' statement was made to the Illinois Conference of Organizations supporting the 18th amendment and is offered by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in opposing the society group now fighting prohibition.

Col. Davis' statement contained the following: "Out of more than a million cases we have dealt with in the last fifteen months, there only 75 bad cases of drink, and of moderate cases, only 500. From Oct. 11, 1929 to Feb. 3, 1932, we helped 1,102,545 unemployed men. Of this number, we found 99.92 per cent drink free. Having nothing to do many of these men would have drunk to excess if they could get the liquor. I did not realize the small percentage of drinking men that pass through our doors until I personally checked it up. "The number of women coming to our doors with a tale of being ruined by drink is less than one per cent of the entire number, whereas in former days it was a considerable proportion. "In our family welfare relief work in these days we seldom find need arising from the results of a strong drink on the part of one or other of the parents whereas, in the old days it was 90 out of 100 cases. In fact, poverty from drink has almost disappeared. "The old time drunkard, the wets to the contrary, notwithstanding, is gone. Before prohibition the Salvation Army would gather drunks by the truckload, and bus load from the saloons, and park benches. Today one would have to search high and low in every American city to find at one time 100 men and women of the type the Salvation Army used to gather by the thousands under the rule of John Barleycorn"
