But they may be disappointed, "hoisted by their own petard." Speculators lost heavily on the Coronation of George V in 1911. Refusal of the public to be victimized als, told deputy sheriffs that Sais resulted in many seats, priced at $30 three weeks before, being let on Coronation day for 75 cents.

Excessive charges for Coronation seats are a modern develop-ment. Stow, Speed and Strype, antiquaries, give these prices for former coronations: Henry I (1100) a cascard or crocard (twelfth of a penny); Edward III (1327) a half-penny; Richard II (1377) a penny; Henry V (1413) half a groat (4 pennies); Henry VIII (1509) a groat; Elizabeth (1558) a tester (12 cents); James I (1603) a shilling; George I (1714) 2s 6d.

Prices High in 1727 Then the steep rise began. At the Coronation of George II in 1727, many people paid half a guinea to see the new king and his procession pass. Then shopkeepers and householders along the route realized what they had been missing. The price went up by leaps and

When George III was crowned in 1761, as much as 10 guineas was asked for seats and one gentleman is recorded as paying 140 guineas for a room from which his lady could watch the show. At King George's jubilee celebration in 1935, the maximum price of a seat on the route was $750, with the average from $10.50 to $77.50.

The Coronation Accommodation Committee was established, with government support, at 11 South-ampton Row, London, W. C. 1, to insure that visitors will be housed in comfort and protected from profiteers. Embassies, legations and the offices of dominions high commissioners also have augmented staffs and made special arrange-ments for caring for their nation-als' wants.

Drouth More Harmful To Range Lands

Runoff Greater on Pasture Acreage, County Agent Finds

Recurrent summer drouths are affecting range lands mere acute-ly than cultivated acreage, in the opinion of County Agent O. P.

He traces the reason back to the selection of farm lends, usually the choice acreage of the field. Thus the steep and least desirable land is left for grazing.

It follows, Griffin says, that the native pasture suffers much more from drouth because the runoff is greater and a smaller percentag of the rainfall is retained to grow pasturage, there is very little mulch so that exaperation is mor-rapid, the land becomes more barthere, is very little ren and wind erosion aids an-abets reinfall in converting one tertile pastures into deserts.

This comulative condition has resulted in retarded growth of veg station, and the rancounan has no made sufficient allowance for this scarcity with the result that pushave been overgrazed. Evils of Overgrazing

Overgrazing has two important evils, according to the agent. The more palatable vegetation is de-

We changed government could not do anything from cave men to dwellers in rude houses, then to habitate revision of the anti-trust laws. tions built with something more in view than simple protection from the weather, then to the structures that today Stumped house us and give us the greatest comforts and convenience of all time. Those are changes that all of us can see and realize and which we approve.

Likewise there have been changes in government and general Corcoran and Cohen have will continue to be. The few laws that were found necessary when this country was in its infancy no longer serve along the same old theory which to keep things moving on an even keel and bring us safe into inspired NRA. That is, their viewharbor. So many other things have changed that changes than abolishing monopoly and regin laws are necessary. Business that once was small and ulating it severely to promote cer weak has grown so great that we seem to have reached the tain wages and hours for labor and point where we must be governed by business or business certain price bases for industry. must be governed by government.

The demand that government stay out of business, that be an to be voiced some years ago, was a fair demand. Goverr ment should not be in business in the sense that it as of that way. Biggest thing was the three movies a year, endorses comsumes to tell business how it shall operate, when it shall enlarge, and in other way arrogate a position of participation.
