Lake levels still low despite rainfall

LAKE RAY HUBBARD

by Brittany Williams

Despite the recent, much-needed rainfall, Lake Lavon is still barely more than an oversized puddle at almost 12 feet below normal, according to the Texas Water Develoment Board.

Lake Ray Hubbard is not doing much better, at nearly six and a half feet below normal

As a result of these low levels, the boat ramp on State Highway 66 located at at 1120 W. Rusk is temporarily closed

Other lakes in the region are in just about in the same condition.

Lake Tawakoni is slightly less than eight and a half feet low, while Lake Jim Chapman is more than 12 and a half feet low.

In a drought summary released Oct. 1 United States Drought Monitor, the recent rains in Oklahoma and Texas that resulted from a slow-moving cold front that eventually stalled in east Texas, combined with an inflow of western Gulf moisture from a weak disturbance, generated widespread showers and thunderstorms that brought two to four inches across both states. A band of moderate to heavy rain stretched from near Laredo northeastward into southwestern Arkansas. This rain brought the total for Texarkana for the month of September to 13 and a quarter inches.

On June 1, the City of Rockwall implemented Stage 3 water restrictions because of the drought conditions.

The Rock Wall Chapter of DAR hosted Donna Cranston, founder of the nonprofit Defenders of Freedom organization, on Oct. 7. DOF is a Dallas-based group whose primary focus is to meet the needs of military members who served in support of Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation New Dawn. Cranston formed the group in 2004 to serve those serving our country in war zones. Currently, DOF's primary goal is to support deployed service members through the distribution of personalized care packages. Since its inception, more than 10,000 care packages have been sent to U.S. troops overseas. DOF has expanded to provide emergency financial assistance to wounded veterans and their families and is working alongside the Army's Advocates through the Wounded Transition Units at various bases nationwide, as well as with the Dallas Veterans Hospital, to ensure that as many wounded troops as possible receive the assistance they require. Concurrent to her work with the DOF, Cranston also served as the onsite coordinator for the Welcome Home a Hero program at the DFW Airport until its discontinuation in 2012. Pictured from the left are regent Peggy Atterberry; Cranston; and Fraya Fisk, vice-regent. For more details on the DAR, contact Atterberry at 972-771-5067.

On God's Word

by Timothy W. Burnett Rightly Dividing God's word ... Peter the rock

One of the controversial subjects found in the Gospels is the account where Jesus addressed Peter and the disciples in Matthew 16:18-19. Jesus said to Peter, "And I say also unto you, that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto you the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever you shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; whatsoever you shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven."

It appears Jesus is telling Peter that he was the rock upon which his church would be built.

A study of the ancient Greek word for Peter helps to understand Jesus' words.

The word Peter was translated from the Greek word Petros.

Petros was the masculine tense and Petras was the feminine

E. Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon explains that the term Petras was put for a massive rock or cliff, and Petros was the small rocks or pebbles that are tossed about when people walk over the surface.

Prior to Jesus' words, Peter correctly answered the question about Jesus' identity. Jesus then declared that it was his heavenly Father who revealed it to Peter.

It was extremely important that Jesus' disciples understood who

Part of his teaching was to distinguish between his disciples and himself.

When Peter answered Jesus' question, he answered for all the disciples. Jesus' response would have been toward Jesus and all of the disciples, "You are petros" (small pebbles), and upon this petras I will build my church."

People who have been near Mount Hood can get a good feel for the term petras.

Part of rightly dividing God's word involves checking for alignment with other verses in the contest of the surrounding words, the chapter, and other uses.

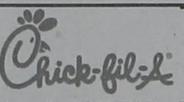

The New Testament epistles are addressed to the Church, which is made up of the body of Christ.

Turn to 1Corinthians 3:11, "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

God's word is perfectly exact and scientifically precise. There is no conflict in God's matchless knowledge.

There was no conflict in the words that were spoken by God's beloved son. Jesus didn't suddenly decide to hand over his Jesus understood very well who he was in comdisciples.

Isn't it refreshing when we suddenly see God' word?

We no longer need to struggle over what Jesus referred to Peter as a "rock," and suddenly state tha he would build his church.

The disciples were the petros (pebbles). Jesus w petras (massive rock like Mount Hood).

Well, well, well. What d'ya know! Once again a notice of a vital public hearing concerning a proposed zoning change is published in The Dallas Morning News and not in the local Rockwall County News, the legal Rockwall County paper of record. And to make matters worse, it appeared on Aug. 16, 2013, when children were still out of school and many folks were enjoying the last days of

According to reports, not many Heath citizens were aware of the Sept. 24 Heath City Council meeting where the mayor and council members unanimously approved a zoning change from agricultural to commercial for an 8.04-acre parcel at the northwest corner of FM 740 (Ridge Road) and Heathland Crossing. Deer-in-the-headlights residents are now shocked to learn what happened and say that, among other things, they would have raised a furor over any possibility of getting a 24-hour gasoline station on this property. As a result, this bucolic bird sanctuary wedge of land, located directly opposite The Fulton School, will soon be home to "national and regional" commercial tenants, if developer Tony Austin has his way. And get his way he did -- just dangle the new mantra of more retail$ more retail$ in front of our paid and elected officials and abracadabra: magical zoning changes appear!

An open-24-hour drive-through restaurant is prohibited (whew!) but who's to say that a 24-hour convenience store is not? We all know that gasoline stations make their money from hot dogs, chili, nachos, plus coffee and donuts and perhaps a side-salad bar thrown in for good measure -- a fast-food place in open disguise. And of course, they will need a bright beacon of light to make certain those drivers prowling around Heath in the wee hours can find their way to this oasis in the middle of a sleeping residential area.

Apparently a citizens' survey taken a few years ago is being ignored. Money speaks louder than the words of all of those Heath residents who told our city managers and officials that we did not want to "become another Plano." Heath residents overwhelmingly agreed that we wanted to maintain and protect the quiet, elegant charm, which attracted all of us here in the first place.

Alas, it looks like the only "green" preserved in our recently voted "scenic city" will be the greenbacks a few fortuitous folks will deposit in a bank.

Student volunteers crucial to success of Rockwall's Original Pumpkin The first truckload of pumpkins arrived around 3:30 p.m., two days before the grand opening. The large tent was set up and the pallets arranged waiting for the pumpkins. Pumpkin Patch committee member Sandy Barrow has contacts with the Rockwall Independent School District and Royse City Independent School District high schools. She recruits dozens of eager students who need to earn volunteer service hours for various organizations or for their senior projects. Pumpkin Patch organizers depend heavily on the students to help with the demanding physical job of unloading the produce.

They started arriving around 4 p.m. This year's 48 volunteers included students from Interact, National Charity League, National Honor Society, RHHS and RHS Student Councils, PALS, senior hours and Boy Scouts of America. Two local churches, Our Lady of the Lake and the Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints, were represented by youth from their Dean Cuzick, husband of committee member Stacy Cuzick, wielded a forklift to move bins of pumpkins and other produce from the back of an 18-wheeler. Stacy directed him with practiced hand signals as he placed the large bins.

The students descended on the bins and begin a carefully choreographed routine of passing the pumpkins down a line where they are finally placed on the pallets. Inside the tent, other student volunteers helped stock displays with gourds, squash, Indian corn and the Pumpkin Patch homemade deli

In a short time, the truck was unloaded, the cardboard cartons emptied, flattened and prepared for recycling. The merchandise was placed in the tent ready for the price tags.

"These students were helpful, hardworking and courteous," s student volunteer chairperson, said. "Parents and sponsors have proud of these future leaders."

Rockwall's Original Pumpkin Patch is located at 1201 Ride Ridge Road Shopping Center. The Patch will be open from 9; daily through Oct. 1.

Shift workers still are needed for this all-volunteer non-pr sign up online and for information about the Special Saturday children, visit rockwallpumpkinpatch.com.

The War State

by Michael Swanson FFF.org

Of course the most famous warning about the power of the military came from Dwight D. Eisenhower, who commanded the Allied forces in Europe during World War II and went on to serve as president of the United States from 1953 to 1961. On his last day in office, he gave a televised farewell address to the nation in which he noted that "our military organization today bears little relation to that known of any of my predecessors in peacetime, or indeed, by the fighting men of World War II or Korea."...

"We have been compelled to create a permanent armaments industry of vast proportions. Added to this, three and a half million men and women are directly engaged in the defense establishment. We annually spend on military security alone more than the net income of all United States corporations."

"Now this conjunction of an immense military establishment," Eisenhower continued, "and a large arms industry is new in the American experience. The total influence — economic, political, even spiritual — is felt in every city, every statehouse, every office of the federal government."...

"In the councils of government," the president warned, "we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist. We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes."

What provoked President Eisenhower to issue this stern warning to will look at this later in this book so you'll know the full story that only a few now know. First, though, we need to ask ourselves: What did Ike exactly mean by a "military-industrial complex?" He was the first person to ever use this term and it has stuck in the national consciousness ever since.

A key component of his speech is the word "new." Today we don't even think much about the fact that the United States has the most powerful military in the world, with bases spread across the planet and a large portion of its federal budget devoted to military spending. In 2010, at $687 billion, military spending made up 4.9 percent of the GDP of the United States. In comparison, Russia spent just over fifty billion dollars. But it's bigger than that. You see, the US military budget accounts for approximately 40 percent of total global arms spending and is over six times larger than the military budget of China, and is greater than the next twenty largest military spenders combined. Today over one million Americans serve in the armed forces. Perhaps these figures do not surprise you, because if you are like most readers of this book, huge military spending for the United States has always been a fact of life since the day you were born. That's why most don't even give it a second thought.

But this was not the case for President Eisenhower and the people of his generation. Before World War II, the United States never had a permanent arms industry. Yes, it fought big wars....

But after major wars, the country always demobilized its forces.

The Internal Revenue Service was not a part of most people's lives before the war.

That is, until World War II....

You see, before the war only the wealthiest of Americans and corporations paid a dime of income tax. Between World War I and World War II the number of households paying income tax in any given year ranged from 1.25 to 2.5 percent. In 1939, 93 percent of the labor force paid no federal income tax at all....

President Truman gave a speech to a joint session of Congress on March 12, 1947, in which he laid out his "Truman Doctrine." He said that it would now be the policy of the United States to "support free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressures." ...

On August 29, 1949, the Soviets successfully exploded an atomic bomb of their own. The American people weren't alarmed. A poll taken five days later showed that only 5 percent thought that atomic weapons were the most important issue facing the country. But, nevertheless, Harry Truman ordered a reappraisal of national security policy. Completed on April 14, 1950, this report, titled National Security Council Report 68 (NSC-68), became one of the most important documents of the Cold War. It set the stage for a massive arms race at intervention throughout the entire world....

During World War II, the United States had been trans a war state with an economy centered around the military complex. NSC-68 made this all permanent. By 1953, of the entire federal budget became earmarked to nation programs. Defense spending came to equal 18 percent of entire gross national product and a full one third of the business activity. In the first two decades of the Cold War, put 60 percent of its federal budget into defense spending NSC-68 turned the role of the United States in the something akin to a global empire backed by a massi buildup and a war state....

The logic of global Cold War, though, drew the United behaving like an imperial world power....

NSC-68 dictated that world "order" be a new object United States for it to not only wish for but to actively do so, the federal government had to go beyond the Cons into behaviors such as assassination, coups, sabotage, and false-flag operations covered by concepts such deniability outside the normal system of checks and balan sort of real congressional oversight....

In order to justify this unprecedented course for the U NSC-68 claimed that the country was in mortal danger from Soviet threat. It argued that in just a few years the Soviet would be in a position to overrun Western Europe with co forces and obliterate the United States in a surprise ato unless Congress and the president approved new massive expenditures. None of these projections about the potential power had anything to do with reality and most of it was surup out of thin air.....

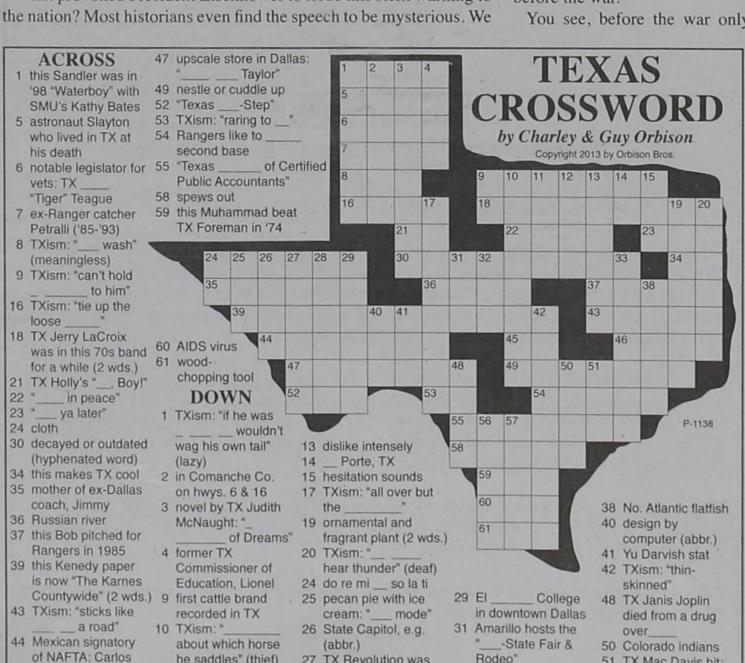

NSC-68 served as a seminal document in the making of policy. It essentially changed America's role in the world justifying its transformation into a permanent big-govern state and imperial power. Still, it remained secret from the people until it became declassified in the 1970s. When the saw it, they could barely believe its exaggerations....

By the end of the 1950s, the transformation of the United into a war state that began after World War II and was a NSC-68 was complete. The United States was formed as a complete. democratic republic, but emerged out of the war as a wars a world empire. As a result power that had once been in of the states and congress flowed into the executive brand government. The defense industry generated more profile bureaucrats tied to the war state gained more power and inside the federal government. Corporate and state power centralized together in an iron triangle of influence. In 1961, Dwight Eisenhower gave a farewell address to the nation in warned of the power of the "military-industrial complex.

Today the military-industrial complex is more powerful and the war state has become a bloated fiscal nightman engage in seemingly endless and unwinnable wars until III time - all on the basis of supposed threats that are exaggerations than the Soviet threat was ever portrayed the Cold War

This is a history that very few people know anything about this book in the hopes that others would come to know if

by Lary Bump

The Fulton School rolled up 512 yards of offense, but had to go the distance for a 64-13 victory over Dallas The Covenant School's junior Hayden Leverett scored four touchdowns and Max Mitchell passed for five scores to lead the Falcons (5-1).

They never trailed and weren't really threatened, but the junior Knights fought hard to prevent Fulton from ending the game early via six-man football's 45-point mercy rule.

"They were good defensively and offensively," Falcons head coach Josh Johnson said of Covenant.

"They're a physical team and one of the more disciplined teams we've played. They kept it simple on offense. You can tell they've been running that system for a while.'

Fulton was not fooled into taking the junior varsity team lightly. The Covenant's varsity is the defending TAPPS 6-Man I state champion, ranked first again this year by sixmanfootball.com. The Falcons are fourth among TAPPS 6-Man II teams.

Johnson praised his own team, too.

"I was very pleased with our performance. We had good execution on offense. Guys like Levi (Bernard), Tyler (Treadway) and Carson (Newman) played well. Brian Geiger had a big touchdown on a corner route that Max

"Todd (Treadway) was not really in the game on offense. We needed to keep him rested so he'll be close to 100 per cent (physically, following an injury). There was no need for him to be out there."

The coach indicated that there still are improvements to be made, beginning with Friday's 7:30 p.m. game at Cain against Oakwood. The Panthers are 1-4, but as the 36th-ranked team among 6-Man I public schools are favored by 34 points over Fulton.

Johnson said, "I'd like to see us get stops on fourth and long and fourth and goal." The Covenant was 5-for-11 on fourth downs and successful in its only fourth-and-goal situation.

"We need more discipline in breaking down and tackling ball carriers and more discipline in pass coverage, whether it's man or zone. In a game like this, even when we get a good lead we're on them to play like it's 0-0 We're trying to get to that point."

Leverett scored the first two touchdowns against The Covenant, on a 56-yard pass from Mitchell and a 6-yard run, for a 12-0 lead going to the second quarter.

That was the highest-scoring period, with Fulton scoring four touchdowns and the Knights two to bring the margin to 36-13 at halftime. Mitchell threw for two scores and threw a key block on Todd Treadway's 38-yard touchdown run. Treadway also connected with Leverett for a 33-yard TD.

The Falcons scored the only touchdowns in the third quarter, on runs by Leverett and Bernard.

Fulton moved close to a 45-point win on Mitchell's 3-yard pass and a 1-point conversion with 5 minutes, 14 seconds to play. However, The Covenant scored 2 minutes later, so even with Mitchell's 30-yard scoring pass to Brenner Newman and Newman's 2-point kick, the game went the distance for a 43-point Falcons victory.

TAPPS has ruled that both Fulton and Longview Trinity School of Texas, the only teams remaining in 6-Man District 3-II, both will be eligible for the playoffs. Their Nov. 9 game in Longview will be for seeding purposes
