HOME TOWN TALK

By BEDDY

Educational value of the Big Spring manufacturers' exhibits at the Reagan building, Fourth and Gregg, is high.

Most all of us wish to buy home products when possible. These exhibits help us to learn the number and nature of products manufactured here.

We dare say many who have visited the booths were surprised at the variety of things local factories produce.

In these exhibits we see what well might become the forerunner of a large annual Howard county fair to which not only locally manufactured products, the things produced on the farms, ranches and dairies of this region could be exhibited.

Big Spring's future rests to a great extent upon development of industries. Recovery of the oil industry will naturally stimulate business. But, to make the community's commercial foundation more secure and less susceptible to "business cycles," we need a number of additional factories.

We can establish small plants, support them with home patronage, and thus develop them into larger factories.

What we want is more people on regular payrolls residing in Big Spring. We have been unusually fortunate thus far insofar as size of payrolls is concerned. We can use more.

The Texas & Pacific Northern case will need to go but a little further until jobbing houses will begin to cast about for locations in Big Spring.

Announcement was made some time ago by the Planners' Club company that a site had been purchased and erection of a large oil mill would begin as soon as construction of the road became a certainty.

Potential development of the region north and west of here leads one to believe that a number of years will have gone by before all attempts to make railroad extensions will have been ended.

This is the Abilene Morning News' editorial comment upon the examiner's recommendations on the Texas & Pacific Northern application.

Invasing the Plains
While the examiner's report lapped approvingly the running of the line, off the list of possibilities, the Texas & Pacific Northern's project to invade the Plains region with a 233-mile line running from Big Spring to Vega emerged from the hearing with considerable salvage.

The examiner approved that portion of the proposed line running from Big Spring to Brownfield in Terry county, and gave approval to a spur extending from the south east corner of Terry county into the city of Lubbock. This mileage totals 126, as contrasted with the 207 miles disapproved in the examiner's report to the interstate commerce commission.

Construction of this 126-mile line would exempt an enormous influence on the development of a large area not now served by a railroad. It would connect Dawson, Lynn and Lubbock counties with the Texas & Pacific mainline and open up a new trading territory for Texas and other along the road.

Big Spring, Lambert and Brownfield are to be congratulated. While they did not get all they asked for they did receive the most vital part, and that is something to be thankful for.

Roads Say Some Rates Would Be Given Revisions

CHICAGO, June 26. (UP)—The railroads informed the interstate commerce commission today that their proposal of a 15 per cent increase in freight rates applies to all commodities, but the adjustments affecting certain commodities probably will be made later to meet competition and other situations.

A statement to that effect, unanimously agreed upon by the railroads at a meeting here yesterday, was made public today, and filed in Washington as an answer to the commission's request for specific information on the commodities affected by the petitioned increase. The commission had directed the carriers to supply information as to whether the increase would apply to such classes of freight as grain and grain products, cotton and other agricultural and horticultural products, including livestock; non-ferrous metals, iron and steel articles, petroleum and its products, lumber and automobiles.

Place Several Miles From Scene Of Fight Over Still

FORT WORTH, June 26. (UP)—The bullet riddled body of Claude Prater, 16, was found by officers today on the Winfield Scott ranch, twenty miles from town.

It lay in a clump of bushes apparently thrown down a sloping bluff from an automobile.

The place is several miles from the scene of a gun fight Wednesday night between four youths and men, evidently defending a still on a creek.

California Enacts New Oil Statute

Provisions Of New Law Reviewed; Ends Long Fight In State

SACRAMENTO, June 26. (UP)—Preservation of California's petroleum through curtailment of wasteful overproduction is provided in Senator Will R. Sharkey's bill just signed by Governor James Rolph, Jr. The new law goes into effect August 15.

Signing of the Sharkey bill terminating a long fight between major oil companies and independent producers.

This is what the bill provides: 1. Creation of the oil conservation commission, consisting of five members an d the state oil and gas supervisor, who is appointed by the governor and sits as an ex-officio secretary. The commissioners are elected by representatives of all oil companies in each of five oil and gas districts designated by law. They serve without pay. Each company has one vote.

2. Two of the first commissioners elected serve two years; two serve four years, and one a four-year term. Their successors will serve four years. Vacancies are filled by an election in the district affected.

3. If the oil and gas supervisor receives a petition signed by 40 per cent of eligible voters in any district asking the recall of that district's commissioner, an election shall be held after public notice has been given for two weeks. If another than the incumbent gets the majority of the district's votes he gets the office, otherwise the recall fails.

4. It shall be the duty of the commission to inquire from time to time into the production of crude petroleum oil, and to determine the amount of crude oil or refined products in storage. The commission shall determine the extent of current requirements within and outside the state.

5. The commission is empowered to require producers to file with it a statement of production, drilling or storage compliance of any producer or the director of natural resources, with whose department the oil and gas supervisor is identified, that there is a waste in production of crude petroleum, the commission shall hold public hearings in each of the counties where the alleged waste is being committed.

6. Each operator is permitted to present testimony at these hearings relating to the alleged waste committed on his property. The commission is empowered to require the attendance of operators, and superior courts in counties where hearings are being held have the power to compel attendance of witnesses, the giving of testimony, and production of papers before the commission. Failure to obey the court will be deemed contempt.

7. If the commission determines there is wasteful overproduction of crude petroleum, it shall issue an order setting the amount of non-wasteful production for the state and fix the amount each field shall produce.

8. If the commission decides any person or corporation is wasteful, it shall order the practice to cease. If the second order is ignored the properties of the offender shall be closed upon order of the superior court having jurisdiction until such time as the amount of wasteful production shall equal the quantity which would have been produced had the operator obeyed the pro-rata order.

9. No oil produced in violation of the commission's orders shall be removed by anyone from the offending property.

10. All of the commission's orders relative to curtailment of production must first be referred to the director of natural resources. If the director fails to either certify his approval or objections within 15 days, the order shall be deemed approved.

11. Any producer of oil or operator of any drilling who refuses to permit the commission to inspect his property shall be deemed in violation of the law.

12. Any producer of oil or operator of any drilling who refuses to permit the commission to inspect his property shall be deemed in violation of the law.

Five Primary Reasons For Retail Business Failures Listed In Address By Dallas Merchandising Expert

There were five primary reasons for failure in retail business in the Southwest the past twelve months, Alfonso Johnson, business expert of Dallas, told an audience in the crystal ballroom of the Settles hotel this morning during his lecture on "Modern Merchandising."

It was the second talk made by Mr. Johnson. He spoke Thursday night to a large crowd on "The Human Equation in Salesmanship." His final talk will be given at the Settles tonight at 8 o'clock when he will speak on "Taking the Sigh out of the Business Cycle."

Mr. Johnson was brought here by the chamber of commerce to conduct the merchants' institute in conjunction with the manufacturers' exhibit.

C. T. Watson, manager of the commercial organization, in introducing Mr. Johnson this morning, expressed regret that more merchants would not take advantage of his appearance.

Mr. Johnson, in discussing the reasons for failures during the past twelve months in the southwest, listed five primary causes. They were:

1. Too much merchandise, or lack of turnover.
2. Too much unwise credit.
3. Failure to sell fashionable merchandise while good.
4. Failure of too many stores to realize the "customer is the boss."
5. Failure to keep adequate stock records.

Mr. Johnson advised merchants to place their stock in reach and sight of their customers.

"The store," he says, "that has plenty of aisle tables, has less stock. Give the customer a chance to circulate among your merchandise. Merchandise in drawers doesn't sell."

In discussing the effect competition has upon business failures, Mr. Johnson declared that in nine cases out of ten, the failure is due to internal business conditions rather than competition.

Quoting from Bradstreet's chart, Mr. Johnson said, "only 33 per cent of the business failures of this entire nation during 1929 were due to competition."

Chart shown, showing 73 per cent of the failures were due to faults of the owners and employees of the business, while 27 per cent were due to matters not controlled by the business itself.

In listing the reasons for failures during 1929, Mr. Johnson declared that lack of capital caused 37.2 per cent of the failures and incompetence and inexperience, combined 36.3 per cent. Unwise credit was placed at 21 per cent; fraud, 17 per cent; neglect, 9.8 and speculation, 9.8. Specific conditions, such as tornadoes, floods, disasters caused 15.6 failures of others, 13 and competition, 3.9.

"The 1931 customer is smart and independent," Mr. Johnson said. "All other things being equal she would rather buy at home. But when other things are not equal she is going to purchase from foreign markets."

"Competition is a stimulus to business conditions. If one large concern draws customers from miles around, these customers are going to buy in other stores. There is no place in the retail business now for non-cooperation."

Thursday night Mr. Johnson stressed the importance of salesmanship to the success of a retail firm. "The sales force is the most important factor in the retail business," he declared. "A salesperson that can't smile is not a salesperson."

Texas & Pacific Has Largest Levy On Intangible Assets Of Any Road In State; 1930 Levies Are Lower

AUSTIN, June 26. (UP)—Texas railroads will pay intangible assets taxes on $69,500,000 this year, according to figures released by the state tax board. This will be $5,455,969 less than the total on which taxes were paid last year.

The largest intangible assets tax levy on any Texas railroad will be paid by the Texas & Pacific Railway, $1,091,670. This was the same as the total on which the road paid taxes last year.

Reduction of $1,000,000 in the total on which the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe will pay was granted, bringing the total to $10,000,000. The Fort Worth and Denver City was assessed at $8,000,000 and the G. H. and S. A. at $7,916,180.

The intangible assets tax is added to the regular property tax as a levy on earnings computed over a five-year average.

Levies on the intangible assets of bridge operating companies have not been completed because of the request made of the attorney general to investigate the intangible assets of the Red River Bridge Co., operators of several toll bridges between Texas and Oklahoma.

All assessments against the railroads have been completed. The Texas and Pacific, Fort Smith Railway, which last year accepted an intangible valuation of $175,000, this year entered its reassessment at this figure. Last year the railway claimed it should be allowed to prorate Texas earnings over lean mileage in other states. This contention was overruled in the assessment agreement made last year. The board in making its 1931 assessment cut the Texas and Fort Smith assessment to $1,500,000.

Four railroads were relieved of assessments. They were the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western, assessed last year at $200,000; Kansas, Oklahoma and Gulf, assessed at $40,816 and the Wichita Valley, assessed at $54,879.

The following assessments and decreases were ordered: Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe, $10,000,000, decrease, $1,000,000; Fort Worth and Denver City, $8,000,000, decrease, $350,793; Houston and Texas Central, $5,128,960, decrease, $249,546; International-Great Northern, $1,000,000, decrease, $1,000,000; Missouri-Kansas and Texas, $1,500,000, decrease, $50,000; Dayton-Gooch Creek, $90,969, decrease, $50,049; Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio, $7,956,180, decrease, $117,937; Houston-East and West Texas, $991,070, decrease, $8,930; St. Louis-Southwestern, $208,893, decrease, $293,134; San Antonio and Arkansas Pass, $2,149,950, decrease, $50; Texas and New Orleans, $2,923,220, decrease $63,374; Texas Midland, $183,586, decrease, $111,705.

No changes were made in the assessments of the following roads: Texas and Pacific, $11,091,670; Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf, $2,382,864; Panhandle and Santa Fe, $2,900,000; Pecos and North Texas, $2,250,000; Abilene and Southern, $100,000; El Paso and Northwest, $600,000; Fort Worth Belt, $40,000; Galveston, Houston and Henderson, $27,545; Quanah Acme and Pacific, $250,000; Rio Grande, El Paso and Santa Fe, $110,902; Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific, $100,000; St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico, $1,000,000; Stephenville, North and

AUSTIN, June 26. (UP)—Three osteopathic graduates were among the candidates being examined today for state licenses to practice medicine, as a result of an agreement reached yesterday after one of the osteopathic graduates sought a court order to stop all examinations until he was entered.

The state board of medical examiners, represented by Assistant Attorney General R. G. Waters, declined to argue for itself when Judge J. D. Moore heard the osteopath's request for an injunction, in 93rd district court. Judge Moore then asked for a conference and afterward announced an agreement had been reached to let the osteopathic graduate enter.

Loss Of Eye Caused Post To Become Flyer

MAYSVILLE, Okla., June 26. (UP)—Loss of an eye caused Wiley Post to become an aviator, W. F. Post, father of the globe-circling pilot said today.

Excerpts From Evidence Presented For Application To Build T&PN

Excerpts from the abstract of evidence relied upon by the Texas & Pacific Northern in its direct testimony at the Lubbock hearing in December follow:

J. L. LANCASTER, president both of the T&P and the T&PN: The proposed line will traverse a level, fertile plateau. For the first 150 miles north of Big Spring the country is a rich, sandy loam which produces in abundance cotton, corn, various varieties of Egyptian maize and sudan grass. The territory lying to the north is a loamy clay, admirably adapted to the growing of wheat, Egyptian maize and sudan grass.

The present rail lines within the territory are: A branch line of the Santa Fe, extending from Slaton to Lamesa; branch line of the Santa Fe extending from Lubbock to Brownfield, thence to Seagraves; a branch line of the Santa Fe from Lubbock to Levelland, thence to Bledsoe; a main line of the Santa Fe extending from Lubbock through Littlefield to Farwell; a branch line of the Fort Worth and Denver City Railway company from Plainsview to Dimmit; a main line of the Santa Fe from Amarillo through Hereford, thence westerly to Farwell; a line of the Rock Island from Amarillo through Vega, thence westerly to Tucuman, (all of which lines extend generally in an easterly and westerly direction).

E. F. MITCHELL, chief engineer of the T&P and its subsidiaries: Most of the country to be traversed by the proposed line is a part of what in the early days was named and known as the Llano Estacado or Staked Plains of Texas, and sometimes referred to as the Caprock country (that physically it is a high plateau and to the eye appears to be an unbroken level plain extending from the rimrock along the line of the Texas & Pacific Railway north to the brakes of the Canadian river roughly bounded on the west by the Brazos river, on the west by the Pecos river and slopes gently from north to south (that scattered over it are many so-called lakes or depressions, generally dry, which cause local unhealthiness, that the water courses in the present no constructive problems).

No Railroad: He further testified that between Big Spring and Lamesa, distance of 44 miles, there is no railroad; that to the east of the proposed line the nearest continuous line of railroad is the Santa Fe through Sweetwater, approximately 50 miles away; to the west, the Texas-New Mexico, 30 miles away. From Lamesa to Brownfield, a distance of about 35 miles, there is a railroad. The southwestward branch of the Santa Fe from Slaton to Lamesa and from Lubbock through Brownfield and Seagraves are about 40 miles apart at their south westerly ends and roughly 20 miles apart at their connections with the main Santa Fe line. That the proposed line of applicant from the southeast corner of Terry county to Lubbock would be about between the Lamesa and Seagraves branches of the Santa Fe to within 10 miles of the city limits of Lubbock, where it turns north to reach the city. From Brownfield, 29 miles to Levelland, through which passes the westerly Lubbock-Bledsoe branch of the Santa Fe, there is no railroad. Lubbock lies about 20 miles to the east of Levelland. From Levelland, 23 miles to Littlefield, through which passes the northwesterly Lubbock-Slaton branch of the Santa Fe, there is no railroad. To the east, the nearest north-south line, is the Santa Fe, 30 miles away. From Littlefield, 45 miles to Dimmit, the terminus of a branch line of the Fort Worth and Denver, there is no railroad. To the east, the north-south line of the Santa Fe is about 30 miles away, and to the west at Farwell, where that company's line passing through Hereford and through Littlefield covers, it is about 20 miles. From Dimmit, 205 miles to Hereford, through which the southwestward branch of the Santa Fe from Amarillo to Farwell line passes, there is no railroad. From Hereford, 203 miles to Vega, through which passes the east-west line of the Rock Island, there is no railroad. To the west of the proposed route of applicant, except for the Texas-New Mexico from Monahan to Lovington, there is no north-south railroad except the Pecos Valley line of the Santa Fe, more than 100 miles away. The proposed line from Dimmit to Amarillo passes through an area south of where it crosses the Santa Fe near Umbarger, which is not conveniently served by a railroad. All of the above-named distances are by air line and are much less than existing highways.

Evans Heard
C. M. Evans, agricultural agent for the T. & P. and subsidiaries, introduced a statement, exhibit 15, showing the average elevation, population of each county for the year 1929, the area in farm and crop land; that the total acreage in the counties to be served by the new line was 14,530,080 acres, and only 4,603,531 acres of which had been plowed; that more than 12,000,000 acres were suitable for crop production; that the population of the area in 1929 was 242,131.

Exhibit 19, which showed that for the year 1929 said area produced among other crops the following: Cotton, 298,612 bales; wheat, 14,358,200 bushels; sorghum grain, 24,351,482 bushels. As illustrative of the productivity of the counties which will be traversed by the proposed road, Dawson county, for the year 1929, produced 23,810 bales of cotton and 1,875,000 bushels of sorghum grain; Terry county produced for 1929 the following: Cotton, 22,396 bales; sorghum grain, 450,000 bushels; Indian corn, 1,280,000 bushels; Hockley county, cotton 30,582 bales, and grain sorghum 680,000 bushels; Lamb county, cotton 51,151 bales, and grain sorghum 3,000,000 bushels; Castro county, wheat, 2,250,000 bushels; Deaf Smith county, wheat 7,890,000 bushels; Oldham county, wheat 1,900,000 bushels.

Witness further testified that the above yields were made at a time when less than one-third of the tillable land was in cultivation.

Watson on Stand
C. T. Watson, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce for the past five years, testified that he had been agricultural agent in Dawson county for eight years and had resided in West Texas for 25 years.

Witness further stated that cotton was the chief agricultural money crop in Howard county; that the average annual production for the past five years in Howard county was 28,517 bales, and for the year 1929 20,268 bales. That grain sorghum is produced in Howard county in quantities of from 20,000 to 40,000 tons annually.

He further testified that lying to the north and northwest of Big Spring through the communities of Fairview, Knott and Ackerly (Knott and Ackerly being stations along the proposed road) there is a vast amount of agricultural land, approximately 125,000 acres, suitable for farming, but undeveloped; that this land extends along the Texas & Pacific Northern 75 miles in each side.

Cordova Island Smuggling Is Guided By Spotter's Findings

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of six articles on Cordova Island. The next will appear in the Herald Sunday.

By H. C. MARSHALL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
EL PASO, June 26.—The smugglers who have made Cordova Island the "hot spot" for running liquor, aliens and other contraband from Mexico into the United States have a loose organization, which, nevertheless, functions efficiently enough when there is work to be done.

On a recent tour of inspection along the boundary of the island, which is a small area of Mexican territory placed north of the Rio Grande at the very slums of El Paso by straightening of the river, methods of the smugglers were described to the writer by Col. H. C. Horsley, chief of the immigration border patrol for this district, and his assistant, G. W. Linnekoehl.

There are two or three well-known leaders who seldom, if ever, cross the river, but who have at their call a motley assortment of spies, packers and gunmen. In addition, there are many small independents, who undertake to carry a few bottles of liquor, or a few grains of narcotics, across the boundary for surreptitious sale in El Paso.

The smugglers are cruel killers who slay at the slightest interference with their plans. Often they are criminal aliens deported from the United States, or other criminals attracted from the interior of Mexico by the storied charms of Juarez, one of the biggest gambling centers in that country.

Usually they are well armed with modern rifles, automatics and pistols, as well as dirks and knives of all descriptions. They are rather bad shots, certainly not up to the standard of the border patrol, but in narrow alleys and around corners of shoddy tenement houses they are dangerous adversaries.

The backbone of the smugglers' illicit plan of operations is an elaborate system of "spotting," through which they attempt to, and often do, learn of patrolmen's movements and pick favorable places and hours for crossing the border.

A successful run across the border probably will start from the vicinity of a "headquarters" which the boldest smuggler on Cordova Island has built within 50 feet of the international boundary and, necessarily, a similar distance from El Paso's city limits.

Probably for hours, perhaps all day long, spotters have been combing the American side of the boundary, walking in and out of houses, crawling up on roofs, searching out irrigation ditches and probing clumps of brush, looking always for "los Federales," or United States patrolmen. TYLER, June 26 (AP)—The Terral Toll Bridge Company, operating a bridge over the Red River near Terral, Oklahoma, and Biggs, Texas, filed a federal suit for $25,000 against Cons Johnson and the Texas Highway Commission today.

The construction of a free bridge paralleling the company's structure led to the suit.

That Ten-Year Plan

THE proposal of James W. Gerard and Matthew Woll for a 10-year plan of "democratic idealism" to solve the problems of industry and the disastrous losses of the business cycle ought to meet with a good deal of public support.

Just what the details of such a plan might be is a matter for future discussion. The important thing is to have a plan. We have followed a policy of drift for too many years.

Of course, with or without a thoroughly thought-out plan for the future, industry and trade will eventually revive. Prosperity will come back—sooner, probably, than the pessimism of today expects it.

Yet that does not in the least excuse us from the imperative necessity of charting some kind of course.

Stuart Chase, one of the most levelheaded of American economists, remarked dourly in the New York Herald Tribune the other day that he "could see no reason why the old story should not be told again."

The lessons of the depression will tend to be forgotten. Brokers will buy new automobiles, grocery clerks will comment learnedly on blue-chip stocks, professors of economics will proclaim a New Era, and along about 1940 will come another descent into the maelstrom.

In the last 10 words of that forecast is to be found the gist of the whole thing. We shall recover from this depression whether we lay our plans wisely or not, but if we let ourselves drift as we have in the past, we shall bump into another depression in a matter of eight or 10 years just as surely as the Lord made little green apples.

And it is all so unnecessary. Surely, no country for a long time enjoyed the natural advantages that America enjoys today. An amazing abundance of natural resources, an enormous home market, a consuming class with the highest purchasing power in history, a body of workmen who for skill and industry cannot be matched.

FOR the first time since the Fascist dispute began with the Vatican over the conduct of the Azione Cattolica, Premier Mussolini has publicly stated what he thought about it, and it must be admitted that his interview with a French correspondent has been nothing to boast of.

It is interesting and important to know that the policy of the government and the party has been his throughout and that responsibility for the consequences of it is frankly assumed, but it is still more interesting to have his philosophy of Church and State relations, upon which that policy is founded, so clearly defined.

According to the Premier, the Church's one and only function in the Fascist state is to instruct all ages of all classes in religion, and he insists that in this single function the Church has its support.

Outside this one sphere, however, the Church cannot function with out obstructing the progress of the Italian state toward the high destiny that Benito Mussolini has envisaged for it, and he is one obstruction in Fascist Italy's path more sacred than any other.

Some are more bitterly resented than others, however, and none more than stumbling blocks in the path of the rising generation upon which Il Duce relies to carry on his work.

Italy cannot go on advancing at the tempo which the Fascist chief is now beating for it unless the whole nation is schooled to such unswerving devotion to the state and such mechanical discipline in its service as cannot be taught the adult but must be inculcated in childhood.

And, this being understood, Premier Mussolini reveals the fundamental issue that he has taken with the Church, as it has already been pointed out in these columns, when he says: "The child as soon as he is old enough to learn, belongs to the state alone."

To understand Mussolini's ban upon the Church's activities outside the very limited field of religious instruction one must first get a firm grasp upon the Fascist doctrine that the individual has no inherent rights, no rights but those which the state sees fit to grant him.

Government is the master and not the servant of the people. If these premises are granted, the ideas that the child is peculiarly the property of the state and that the child's mental environment is wholly at the state's discretion naturally follow.

These premises are incompatible with democracy, which Il Duce would be the first to admit, but his plans for a revival of Italian greatness are built upon them.

FINEST CHOCOLATE CREAMS ARE DIPPED ONE AT A TIME For a Similar Reason Hills Bros. Roast Their Coffee a Few Pounds at a Time

Candy makers agree that when creams are dipped one at a time in the chocolate, the coating is applied much more evenly than when dipped in big batches.

According to the results achieved by Hills Bros., this same principle holds true in roasting coffee. By roasting a few pounds at a time by a continuous process, instead of large batches, a uniform roast is certain.

This process originated, and patented by Hills Bros., is called "Controlled Roasting." "Controlled" is a most appropriate word because during the entire roasting process there is automatic regulation.

Freshness is always guaranteed in Hills Bros. Coffee because it is packed in vacuum cans. By this method, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out, and kept out of the can.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Dr. Lago Goldstein, Analyzing of Medicine

FIRST AID IN DROWNING To describe in a health column the methods of instituting artificial breathing is like teaching swimming by correspondence, but it can be done if one follows instructions.

The body is placed face downward with a roll of clothing placed under the stomach. One arm is stretched upward, the other bent to form a rest for the head.

The head is turned to one side, the mouth opened and the tongue pulled out so as to establish a clear passage to the lungs. The fingers are inserted into the mouth and poked gently as far as the larynx to make sure no foreign bodies are obstructing the air passage.

The person administering artificial respiration straddles the body with his knees to the level of the thigh. Both hands are spread over the lower part of the patient's back with the thumbs nearly touching spine. The arms are held somewhat stiff.

The operator then presses forward with the weight of his body on the arms. The lower ribs are compressed downward and inward and the weight is then lifted and the ribs allowed to relax without lifting the hands away from the patient's body.

This swinging movement should be carried on rhythmically at the rate of 15 times a minute. Artificial respiration should not be given up until it has been applied for at least 45 minutes.

Those who, because of fainting or becoming paralyzed through fright, sink without filling their lungs with water are much more likely to be resuscitated.

The boy was fishing that Saturday afternoon in Cherry Creek. It was one of those days in late spring when everything is young and bursting with sap of life.

When the shadows lengthened toward supper-time the boy set out across the pasture for his home—bare feet and legs browned by the sun—rolled-up overalls, calico shirt torn and without buttons—a string of fish in his hand—his fishing pole over his shoulder.

EXIT by Harold Bell Wright

SYNOPSIS: Like a dream are the years which Tony Letour gave to the stage, but vividly he remembers his childhood with Harriet Noel in the village of Orchard Hill 70 years ago.

He had forgotten his purpose to rush upon her with a yell, but advanced slowly and with an elaborate effort to appear casual said "Hello."

Chapter 2 LOVE IN THE BUD The Letour house is on the brow of Orchard Hill, where the highest land upon which the village stands drops steeply down to the valley and the river.

About midway between the two houses there is one of those pretty half-hidden retreats often seen in a country where hills and valleys meet. In Tony's boyhood this valley land was a pasture—as it is to day. Always there is the pleasant smell of grass and flowers and treading cattle and warm moist earth.

"Of course, I'm just a beginner; but my ambition is to become a finished actress." That modesty, for she isn't a beginner. She began on the stage when she was ten years old, the daughter of a theatrical man.

She came to Los Angeles in a road production of "Dracula" and was about to enter college here when an M-G-M representative invited her to take a screen test. So instead she played a leading role in "Wise Girls."

She has played opposite William Powell in "Shadow of the Law," with Bill Boyd in "Beyond Victory," and now opposite Richard Dix in "Big Brother." She has a Paths contract.

Movies vs. College She has given up the thought of college. "Working in pictures is an education in itself," she says. "It's more practical than college. It cultivates poise, makes one meet people and face real situations. So I'm having my education and a career at the same time."

"No, I wouldn't even think of marriage until I have finished in pictures. I haven't planned anything beyond my work in pictures, and I don't think marriage and a movie career will mix."

Child Study Club Recommends Movies Now Being Shown

Two moving pictures are being shown in Big Spring today and tomorrow that are endorsed by the Child Study Club of this city. These are "Skippy" at the Ritz and "Rango" at the Queen.

A list of good movies for children is given in every issue of "The Parents Magazine," the official magazine of the Child Study Club. These are selected by the National Film Estimate Service, an organization that has no affiliation with the moving picture industry.

"Rango" is a story of the jungle and its animals. "Skippy" is the well known newspaper cartoon character whose problems have interested children and adults alike for several years.

Both pictures are recommended for adults as well as children. In addition to the main feature, "Reminiscences of Big Spring" will be shown at the Ritz tonight and tomorrow.

CONSTIPATION BRINGS MANY ILLS

Did you know that constipation often brings despondency? Poisons spread through the system. You lack pep. Headaches become frequent. No wonder you have the "blues."

Yet constipation can be overcome by having sufficient roughage in your diet. A pleasant way to obtain this roughage is through eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

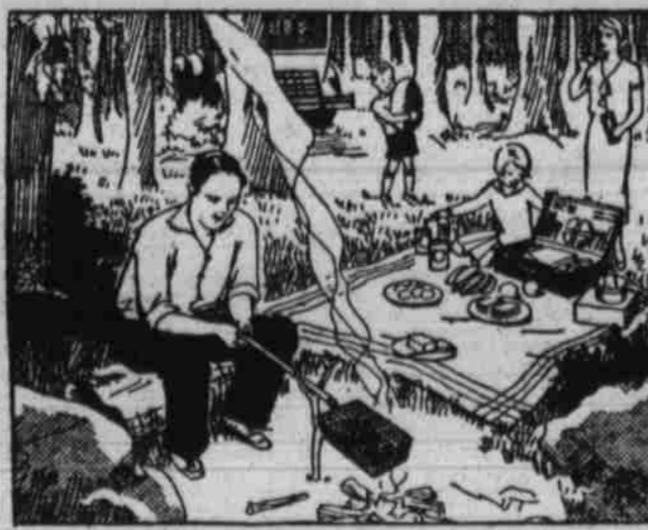

You will enjoy this delicious cereal. And how much better for you than taking habit-forming laxatives.

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, will relieve and prevent both temporary and recurring constipation.

ALL-BRAN also contains needed iron to build up the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

How Appetite Answers When Camp Fires Call!

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON It has been said that the greatest appetizer in the world is the aroma of meat cooking in the open and mingling with the steam from a pot of coffee brewing on the coals. Even the thought of broiled steak and bacon, or roasted corn and baked beans, makes one hungry. And the relaxation that comes from a trip into the "wilds"—with a meal cooked over a glowing campfire in a quiet spot—softens the wrinkles from worried brows and refreshes the tired mind.

Following are several menus for good, substantial meals of the type that satisfy appetites whetted by hours in the open. Try them this summer the "rough" edges from roughing it in the open!

Hot Steak Sandwiches or Grilled Bacon and Olive Bobs or Oven Baked Beans or Corn on the Cob or Fresh Cucumber Pickles

Cup Cakes with Peanut Butter Frosting or Coffee

Broiled Bacon Sandwiches or Broiled Cheese and Bacon Sandwiches or Sandwich Relish Sandwiches or Potato and Egg Salad or Sliced Tomatoes or Potato Chips

Sweet Dill Pickles or Watermelon or Filled Sugar Cookies or Coffee

Hot Steak Sandwiches With Chili Sauce or Take fresh buttered waxed paper from home. Broil the steak, cut into strips, in a corn tupper or on a long handled fork over the campfire. During the broiling, season well with salt, pepper and Worcestershire Sauce. Place the steak in the buttered rolls. Also place in each sandwich a slice of onion and one of Sweet Dill Pickle, and if desired, a slice of tomato.

Grilled Bacon and Olive Bobs in Rolls or Wrap thin slices of bacon around stuffed Spanish Olives and put several of these rolls or "bobs," as campers call them, in a corn tupper, or on a long fork or sharp stick, and broil until the bacon is sizzling and crisp. Then place in buttered rolls and add Chili Sauce or Prepared Mustard.

Broiled Bacon, Chili Sauce, and Peanut Butter Sandwiches or Mix 1-3 cup Peanut Butter with 2 tablespoons Chili Sauce and spread on buttered rolls or whole wheat bread. Wrap and take to the picnic. Over the campfire, broil bacon and place two slices in each sandwich.

Broiled Cheese and Bacon Sandwiches With Prepared Mustard or Wrap a very thin slice of bacon around a one inch cube of American brick cheese, and fasten the bacon in place with a toothpick. Place on end of a long fork of sharp stick and hold over the campfire until the bacon is crisp and the cheese slightly melted. Then place in rolls spread with Mustard Butter, which is prepared by combining 1-2 cup creamed butter with 2 tablespoons Prepared Mustard.

Potato and Egg Salad or Mix four cups cold boiled potatoes, cut in cubes, with an onion minced fine, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, and a chopped green pepper. Chill and moisten with Salad Cream, 4 delightful spicy salad dressing that adds the needed flavor to potato or other vegetable salads. Finally, add 3 sliced, hard cooked eggs. Take to the picnic in a quart jar, and serve in lettuce cups that have been carried in a damp cloth. Garnish with Sweet Gherkins.

Cup Cakes with Peanut Butter Frosting or Any good recipe may be used for the cup cakes. Frost them with the following Peanut Butter Frosting.

Cosden Protests Increased Rates On Oil Products

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Two additional protests against the proposed 13 per cent flat increase in freight rates sought before the interstate commerce commission by presidents representing all roads have been received.

They are from Walker Wilson, traffic manager of the Cosden Oil Company, with a general offices at Fort Worth, and H. J. Lunn, secretary of the Port Association Houston.

The Cosden protest opposed the increase as not only unfair but also to be maintained the high class of service now offered on its main line. It was shown, also, that construction of this line would not unjustly impair safety of the investment of other rail lines in the same general territory.

Labor Laws Of State To Be Enforced

GRAEG REPORTS CONVICTIONS: 9-54 LAW BEING VIOLATED, HE SAYS

AUSTIN, June 25 (INS).—Reviewing the work of his department during the past few months, B. B. Graeg, state labor commissioner, today indicated he would make every effort to enforce all labor laws during his administration.

Graeg announced that in the three months since he took office the department has filed fourteen complaints for violation of labor laws, secured six convictions, resulting in collection of fines aggregating more than $400.

"The greater number of these," Graeg's statement said, "was for violation of the 9-54 hour law which indicates there are many employers unmoved by the distressing conditions resulting from widespread unemployment, and who are actually contributing to this unemployment by requiring or permitting women employees to work longer hours than permitted by law. These unscrupulous exploiters of the ignorant and depressed give no consideration to the fact that many worthy people, now out of employment and in needy circumstances, could be earning a livelihood if all employers of labor would adhere to the practice of fairness toward the working classes in the matter of hours of labor and distribution of employment."

The statement continued that 27 orders to business or industrial concerns to meet requirements of the law by providing safety and health measures had been promulgated, and since March 19 the department had aided in adjusting 89 wage claims for payments aggregating $4,543.

Wiley Post And Wife Formerly Lived Near Here

ARLINGTON, June 25.—While the world watches with interest the flight of Post and Gatty around the globe, West Texans point with pride to Wiley Post as a native of this section. His wife, May Laine Post whom he married in 1928, also is a West Texan.

Some 20 years ago the new world-girdling flier lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Post, on a farm four miles south of Caps in this county and young Post attended the Caps school, Roy Quattlebaum, a pioneer of the Caps section, told the Reporter last night.

"He was quite a small boy and just an ordinary youngster when he lived in these parts," Mr. Quattlebaum said. The family moved to Oklahoma about 20 years ago, he said, and he has not seen Wiley since.

His wife, when a 14-year-old girl moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Laine, to the Divide country in Nolan county about 20 miles southeast of Sweetwater. The young couple met in Oklahoma while she was working in Walters and he in Oklahoma City, and were married in 1928, coming into Texas for the ceremony, her parents told the Sweetwater newspaper man when he called on them.

Mr. and Mrs. Laine were working in their garden when the reporter went to tell them of the take-off of their son-in-law. Mrs. Laine, who is fixing her tomato plants and Mr. Laine planting watermelon seed at the time and they both expressed confidence that Wiley's undertaking will be successful.

Girl Runaway, Held Here, Won't Say Why She Left Her Home

A sixteen-year-old girl stood in a cell in the county jail today and refused to tell deputy sheriffs why she had run away from home, and why she did not want to return.

The girl was found occupying a cabin in a local tourist camp. A friendly tourist had given her a ride into Big Spring and rented the cabin for her to sleep in during the night. She was found Wednesday.

She immediately told officers her name was Mollie Holzapfel, and that her father lived at Hagerman, New Mexico. A telegram was received from the father, advising he was sending a ticket for her to use in returning home.

She answered questions freely, but refused to answer when she was repeatedly asked why she left home and why she did not care to return.

She was being detained by the county officers today, awaiting receipt of the ticket.

Signs Of Improvement Seen In Oil Industry By Midcontinent Leaders

By BENNETT WOLFE (Associated Press Staff Writer) TULSA, Okla., June 25.—Signs of improvement have been noted in the condition of the petroleum industry, causing a general belief in this oil capital that the industry finally has passed the crisis in the most serious phase of its history.

Higher gasoline prices, predictions of an impending hike in the crude oil market and indications of more orderly development of the rich Eastern Texas area, a sure sign for many weeks, were some of the heartening developments.

Among leaders of the industry a definite feeling exists that the oil business has reached the turning point and is beginning an upward trend. However, there is no tendency to forecast any spectacular recovery.

Optimistic W. G. Skelly, president of the Skelly Oil Company, said he believed the industry was about to emerge from a period of serious readjustment upon a more solid and business-like basis than ever before.

Alvin Richards, president of the Kansas Oklahoma and Gas Association and an executive of the Pure Oil Company, declared that steps to make production effective in Eastern Texas would result, if successful, in "a hastening of stabilization of the industry."

BIG SPRING-LUBBOCK SECTION OF T & P N IS RECOMMENDED

EXAMINER ADVISES I. C. C. TO DISAPPROVE BUILDING OF RAILWAY TO AMARILLO

Big Spring To Brownwood And Lubbock Junction To Lubbock Approved By Weed; Report Supports 126 Miles Of Track

(Special to The Herald)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Big Spring and Lubbock today stood as victors over other South Plains and Panhandle cities in the proposed construction of a new railroad line in that area by the Texas & Pacific Northern Railway company as Examiner O. D. Weed of the interstate commerce commission reported favorably upon the proposed building of a line between these two cities but refused to approve plans to extend the road on to Vega and Amarillo.

The original application of the T&P Northern requested authority to build approximately 333 miles of new line in this section of the state. Examiner Weed recommended that the new railroad, a subsidiary of the Texas & Pacific, be permitted to build but 126 miles of line, and abandon plans for the other 207 miles.

That the T&P might later be given permission to construct the remaining 207 miles of proposed line contingent upon continued development of that territory, was frankly conceded by the examiner.

"Notwithstanding the objections to the present construction of the entire line as sought, it is not improbable that a line along this general route may become reasonably necessary after there has been sufficient further development of the territory in question," he declared. "Since construction north of Brownfield is not thought to be justified on the present record, it would seem better not to prejudice the matter and compromise the future, especially in view of the rapid expansion of highway transport and the intense rivalry between the railroads and the motor transport companies, the results of which may be much clearer within a few years."

The report of Examiner Weed, which must go to the commission itself for action before becoming final, would permit construction between Big Spring and Brownfield, a distance of 80 miles, and from a point on this line, about 45 miles north of Big Spring, to Lubbock, a distance of approximately 46 miles. The line to Brownfield would run through Lamesa, connecting with the Santa Fe at both that city and at Brownfield. Portions of the Santa Fe and other railroads in the territory apparently agreed with the examiner insofar as construction north of both Brownfield and Lubbock is concerned.

In recommending the construction north of Big Spring, Examiner Weed said, "The route of the proposed line appears to be well chosen to get the maximum amount of business and at the same time to aid in the further development of the country. The part from Big Spring to Brownfield would be the most useful to the public. Much of the country that would be served by this southerly section of the line is far from existing railroads and the most used routes from Lamesa and Brownfield are quite circuitous. Since the Santa Fe branches to those points run in the wrong direction, so far as concerns access to the important markets of the Texas and Pacific and in the southeast."

Woodward Sees Extension Into New Mex. Area

Orland A. Woodward, who as an attorney for Big Spring and other towns along the proposed route of the T&P, has taken a very active part in furthering the cause before the interstate commerce commission, issued the following statement at reading Wednesday's report from the examiner: "In my opinion the examiner's report recommending the construction of the Texas & Pacific Northern Railway from Big Spring to Brownfield and Lubbock Junction to Lubbock is of untold importance to the future of Big Spring and is most gratifying to me, even though the remainder of the application was denied to construct northward from Brownfield to Amarillo."

My personal opinion is that ultimately the Texas & Pacific Northern Railway will construct a railroad from Brownfield westward to Roswell, New Mexico, and ultimately into the coal fields in the northern part of that state, and the significance of that construction is fortified by the recommendation made by the examiner. I am particularly elated and gratified by the report and I feel extremely optimistic as to the future of Big Spring in the granting of this application and confident of the ultimate extension of this line from Brownfield westward.

I cannot agree with that man of woman who does not foresee the wonderful future for Big Spring upon the construction of this railroad and these who do not advocate or advance a theory of progress and growth for our town are not worthy of a recognition of proper citizenship.

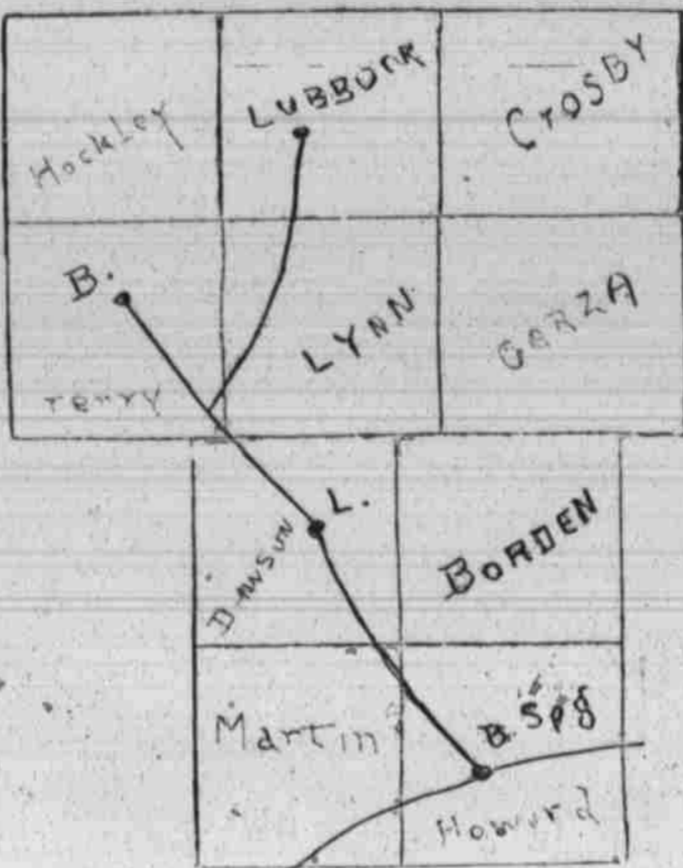

Let us all now unite together, forget every personal and petty grievance and unite for a bigger and better Big Spring, establishing it as the commercial railway traffic and aviation center of that great empire called "West Texas."

Road Would Touch Six Counties

This diagram shows the general route the Texas & Pacific Northern Railway will take if recommendations of Examiner Weed, announced Wednesday, are followed. The line would touch the extreme northeastern corner of Martin county, in the outskirts of Ackerly, thence to Lamesa (L on this diagram). From Lamesa the route leads to the extreme southeastern corner of Terry county, where "Lubbock Junction," or mile post 66, is located. From that point the line would lead on to Brownfield (B on this diagram), and also to Lubbock, 46 miles.

T & P To File Exceptions

Twenty Days Allows For Action; Company Received Strong Support Of Towns For Visitors

DALLAS, June 24. (SP)—G. O. Bateman, attorney for Texas & Pacific Railroad, said today exceptions to the interstate commerce commission examiner's report, which disapproved of construction of 207 miles of new lines in the Panhandle, would be filed.

He said exceptions could be registered within a time limit of 20 days. The report favored construction of a line from Big Spring to Brownfield and from Lubbock Junction to Lubbock, entailing about 126 miles of construction. Construction of 207 miles from Brownfield to a point two miles beyond Vega and from Dimmitt to Amarillo, was not recommended.

The recommendations were based on a hearing at Lubbock last December before Haskell C. Davis, examiner.

They flew yesterday from New York to Harbor Grace, thence across the Atlantic. They left Harbor Grace at 8:24 a. m. Wednesday, central standard time.

Comparison In Utility Rates Started Here

Chamber of Commerce Board Votes To Name Group For Work

A comparison of public utilities rates between those existing here and other Texas cities and towns will be made according to a decision reached by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Monday night.

According to officials of the organization, a committee will be appointed to investigate telephone, electric, gas and water rates. The data will be obtained from numerous Texas cities and a minute comparison made with the local rates.

The board passed the motion to include all forms of public utilities. The committee will report back to the body, it is understood, when the information has been compiled.

The directors also voted to visit Houston, Coshocton, Ackerly and other surrounding towns Tuesday and issue invitations to residents and merchants to attend the manufacturers' exhibit and merchants' institute here Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Plans are being made to hold future meetings of directors at noon. At that time a light luncheon will be served before the business session.

SUGARLAND, June 23.—(UP)—A negro convict was dead and a Central state prison farm official was in the hospital here today as a result of a cutting and shooting at the farm last night.

The negro, Henry Asbury, 35, was shot to death by H. E. Gaines, a guard, after the negro had attacked T. H. Gott, 40, assistant manager, with a razor. Gott was slashed down the right side.

Asbury had been on the farm since 1928 and was serving twelve years for burglary in Fort Bend county.

Miss Miller, according to Dr. Conn, was resting fairly easy after the operation which he said was performed to relieve a serious abdominal disorder.

Building Permits Rise During May

AUSTIN, June 23.—(UP)—Despite a seasonal tendency to decline, building permits issued in 35 Texas cities in May showed a substantial increase over the total issued for April. Permits in May totaled 2,386,000 compared to 2,073,000 in April and 2,319,000 in May of 1930.

The total for May, 1931, was 15 per cent less than that for the same month of last year if figured on a monetary basis but when adjusted to lower building costs the decrease was only 7.7 per cent, according to figures of the Bureau of Business Research.

Plowshare Uncovers Decaying Skelton

ELECTRA, June 23.—(UP)—A farmer's plowshare last week uncovered the skeleton of an unidentified man whose body, apparently, was thrust first into a hole more than 25 years ago.

Jim Bryant, who lives on the Silber farm 11 miles northeast of Electra, found the skeleton late one afternoon as he was finishing his plowing for the day. He called officers to the scene the next day and the skeleton was unearthed and examined by Dr. C. W. Moore, city health officer, and other physicians. No trace of clothing or other means of possible identification was found. The physicians said the skeleton apparently was that of a white man, about five feet and two inches tall and about 50 or 60 years old at the time of his death. They found no certain evidence that the man had met death by violence. People living in the community 30 or 40 years could remember no missing man who would fit the description given by the doctors.

The field in which Bryant found the skeleton had been in cultivation 25 years. It was once a part of the site of D. Waggoner's Three D Ranch.

Details Of Clothing Contest

At 25 Cents an Hour, Clothes Can Be Made Profitably At Home, Says Agent

Eight wardrobe demonstrators and 21 co-operators from the home demonstration clubs of the county entered a dress contest held at the club house Saturday, June 20th. The wardrobe demonstrators entered tailored cotton dresses made by their foundation patterns; each one made a pattern or altered one she was using, until she had one by which she could cut out a dress without the worry of fitting. A foundation pattern consists of a back, front, collar and sleeve for the waist, and a skirt yoke to fit.

The club women are using these patterns for all dresses made. They say them on other patterns, when they want unusual designs, making a pattern of any kind fit them as well as the foundation pattern. The total cost of material, trimming, buttons and thread, used for the eight tailored dresses come to $8.45, or an average of $1.05 per dress. An average of 3 1/2 hours was used for making each dress. The estimated value of the finished dresses is $25; leaving $14.54 paid the women for their time, or $2 cents an hour. A and M. College puts a value of 25 cents an hour on a woman's work in her home, thus the club women can make her clothes profitably at home.

Each home demonstration club has a wardrobe demonstrator and a number of co-operators. The demonstrator made an inventory of clothes on hand when she started the demonstration. After taking inventory, she made a clothing budget for the year, planning just how many articles of clothing she would need, the kinds, and amount of money she could afford to spend for clothes, and how it should be divided.

She keeps a record of all clothing purchased for herself, the cost, make, date purchased, and the date discarded.

Mrs. Wylie Davis, wardrobe demonstrator at R Bar said, "We have had so little money to spend for clothes, I have made all the clothes my two daughters and I have had except our shoes and hose, and I find I have saved by going to the contest."

Mrs. Davis has also made most of the wearing apparel her husband and two small sons have had this year.

Twenty-one co-operators entered dresses of sheer material in the contest. Materials for these dresses totaled $23.74. The value of the finished dresses is estimated at $63, making a saving of $39.27.

Wardrobe co-operators had for their goal the year a dress for the contest, another dress in the fair, but not the one entered in the contest, and a record on shoes and hose.

The June roll call was a report of that record up to date. Records showed that the woman who is paying six or seven dollars for her shoes and one dollar or more for hose is following a more economical practice than the ones who are buying cheaper quality.

Col. Horsley drove slowly, finally emerging upon a narrow levee near a line of willow trees marking the Cordova Island boundary. From the willows a man in overalls suddenly appeared, walking toward the levee.

"Better speak to him," said the colonel to the assistant chief. "Doesn't look good."

The assistant shouted a command in Spanish, and, after some hesitation, the man, a Mexican peon, ambled over to the automobile. Linnenkohl, alighted and questioned him in Spanish. The peon nervously rolled a cigarette.

"Altos las manos!" the assistant unexpectedly barked, and when the suspect was slow in raising his arms the officer caught his elbows and pushed them up.

A bit of paper, some tobacco, a burlap sack and a few other odds and ends were the only objects brought to view by the first search. But Linnenkohl was not satisfied. Again he went over the man. From the peon's trouser leg he drew a 12-inch knife.

The sack, it was explained, is standard equipment for lugging liquor across the border. The peon was put in the back seat of the automobile with Linnenkohl, and the survey of the island continued. (Tomorrow: "Big Shots" direct smuggling operations.)

Five Sites For New City Building Found 'Too High'

According to V. R. Smitham, five proposals were given the body. In each case, Smitham declared, the price quoted by the owner was "too high." Owners of property will be conferred with this week in regard to obtaining a site at reasonable figure, officials declared.

ABILENE, June 23.—(UP)—Congressman Thomas L. Blanton criticized the Hoover moratorium plan as "an unprecedented usurpation of legislative power and an authority inherent alone in Congress never before attempted by any other executive."

He said something should be done for 6,000,000 unemployed Americans.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(UP)—President Hoover today wired senators and representatives asking their views on the reparations suspension plan. He had conferred with several personally.

SCHOOL-ROOM MOVIES
EVER since Shakespeare made his famous remark about the unwilling school boy reluctantly trudging off to his lessons, it has been taken for granted that children in the very nature of things are bound to dislike going to school.

Improvements in methods of teaching within the last few decades have probably lessened this old antagonism of childhood toward its education. But the children have not been entirely converted. Most of them even now would rejoice to see the school house burn down just as their fathers before them would have rejoiced.

Once in a while, though, one gets a glimpse of future possibilities—a glimpse that brings conviction that schools eventually will be different.
A long start has been made already.
A great deal more undoubtedly will be accomplished during the next generation.

All of this meditation is proved by a little catalog recently issued by the Eastman company—a catalog showing a long list of educational films devised for use in schools. The thing opens amazing vistas to the mind of one who got his "three H's" in the good old way.

Consider the possibilities of the schoolroom movie. What could not be done with it? Could any book or blackboard talk hope to compete with a well-devised film?

Look back at your own school days. You studied, among other things, geography—for long months, poring over uninteresting books and emerging with only the haziest idea, after all, of the world you live in.

Can you imagine getting geography through movies? Wouldn't a couple of dozen selected films in form a child about this world in a way that books could never equal?
Furthermore, the child would remember what he learned—and he would look forward to the next lesson.

Not all lessons could be taught that way, of course. Such subjects as arithmetic, spelling and grammar can never be sugar-coated very much. But plenty of things could be taught through the films.
A child could be informed about his world and the people who live in it, and the job could be done quickly and thoroughly.

The very smallness of the film catalog mentioned above is impressive because it shows that the subject has hardly been scratched.
The movie can be one of the greatest allies the school teacher ever had. When it finally gets used to its fullest potentialities, it is a safe bet that the school children won't be half so eager for vacation time come around.

an orderly affair, instead of a scramble.
Perhaps there was, in the minds of those who opposed the amendment, the idea that after all, it might be just as well as to have Ferguson in Washington. Perhaps they thought that Ferguson as a congressman-at-large would be preferable to Ferguson remaining in Austin and continuing as a factor in at-home politics.

The legislature should have passed a redistricting bill and made it unnecessary to elect congressmen-at-large. Failing in that, it should have provided for a less confused method of electing congressmen-at-large, without regard for any individual's political fortunes.

HOW'S your HEALTH?
Edited by Dr. J. J. Quinn, Academy of Medicine

THE FILTHY FLY
The ordinary house fly is so common a pest that it is difficult to convince the average person of its value to the human race.

However, the fly's tragic role as a carrier of disease has been demonstrated many times over, most notably in the Spanish-American war, when so many of our soldiers died of typhoid fever, the germs of which were widely spread by flies.

The menace of the fly arises directly out of its filthy habits. It breeds in manure piles, refuse or in any collection of fermenting or rotten organic matter. It feeds on anything it finds available, from garbage to the babies' milk.

Its bristled-covered body makes it a vehicle for all sorts of dirt and infectious material, and its disgusting habit of regurgitating its food increases both its repulsiveness and its menace.

The common fly is, therefore, neither a pleasant nor a wholesome companion, and its elimination from the household is to be strongly recommended.

The most effective destruction of this pest lies in the elimination of its breeding and feeding places.
Keep all garbage and refuse covered. Screen windows and doors or, if this is not practicable, screen
the kitchen and bathroom.

Sweet the flies you can reach and the rest destroy by means of trap, fly paper or poison solutions.
Most of these destructive agents can be purchased for little money.
However, if you desire to, you can make some of these yourself.

Mad Pursuit
BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

Chapter 1
"POOR OLD TONY"
The people of Orchard Hill, a small town in Ohio, call him "Poor Old Tony" and laugh I have often wondered why they laugh.

Antonio, himself, when he notices my indignation, always says in his gentle way, "Never mind; in laughing folks betray their ignorance."
"Harriet loved violets."

Because his life experience is what it is, Old Tony thinks of his play as a play and of life itself in terms of the theater. Many times I have heard him declaim:
"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players.
They have their exits and their entrances..."

"Circumstances," the old actor says, "shift the scene; Fate is the stage manager; Nature the director; God the producer; we, the actors, enter, play our parts and exit. They play goes on and on and on. And always there are members of the company standing in the wings."

Our little village of Orchard Hill, with the First National Bank, the Owl Drug Store, Harriet's house, the home of the Carens and the county jail, to Old Tony is a stage set. The back drop is a scene of rolling hills with farm houses and fields showing here and there amid the woods. Tony's house is well down stage—close to the footlights, as it were—at the edge of the village, overlooking the river, the valley and the wide sweep of country beyond.

The Orchard Hill set has been changed since Antonio Latour's first entrance over 70 years ago. The simple peace and quiet of the country village where Harriet and Tony played their parts in comedies. Modern improvements have come to Orchard Hill—Rotaries, Lions, Kiwanis, a Chamber of Commerce, an Advertising Club, Boosters. When I remark, with lamentations, on these changes the old actor says, "Oh, well! the artists of the theatre, you know, have always been forced to yield a little to the box office."

Many of the actors who were on the stage with Harriet and Tony in those opening scenes have made their final exit. Nor will Old Tony be sorry to make his exit, for he believes, as Pierre Donovan believes, that Harriet Noel, Pierre's mother, is there off stage waiting to welcome him and that together he and the woman he loved with such rare devotion will stand in the wings watching her son as he acts his part in this play which we call life.

van, Pierre's father, had no soul with which to endow his son. I know that long before Donovan met Harriet, but what could I do?"
Antonio's forefathers were French, and Harriet's ancestors were of the same race. Harriet's father, "Doc" Noel, was a druggist and he and his wife were highly respected in Orchard Hill. Mrs. Noel died when Harriet was born and the child was raised by an ugly old housekeeper, feared by every youngster in the village. Forced to live too much within herself, the little girl soon learned that she could trick the housekeeper or her father into granting her almost anything and so grew up doing much as she pleased.

She was never a pretty child, as so many little girls are pretty. Her face was freckled, her nose strongly inclined to turn up; she had large gray-green eyes, a wide mouth, a broad forehead, and a general air of effishness that provoked the villagers to wonder "what the child would come to."
In the years of their childhood Tony and his little girl neighbor were often together, but she was no more to him than his other boy and girl playmates. He did not become conscious of her until the year before they graduated from the public school. Tony was 14; Harriet was two years younger. She had been a grade behind him but that year she caught up with his class so that they would...
One evening when we were sitting in the summer twilight the old gentleman said, "It is strange how that part of my life when I was a actor—seems to me, now, to be only a dream." And then he continued as though he had forgotten my presence: "But my childhood and youth which I spent here in Orchard Hill with Harriet—those years of my life are very real."

They who pride themselves upon being too sophisticated and worldly-wise to indulge in sentiment will laugh with hard laughter at this old man's memories. They will say that Antonio Latour's story is sentimental.

Well, of this I am convinced: All normal men and women who have truly lived do have such emotional memories. And I believe, too, that if the truth were known, the heart experiences which these world-hardened critics so carefully...

Ton for ton . . . mile for mile Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks cost less to operate

It is a matter of record, among more and more large fleet operators, that Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks give a lower transportation cost than any other truck of equal capacity in the market.

These firms are finding, through experience, that Chevrolet sedan deliveries are capable of 20 miles or better, to the gallon of gasoline; that Chevrolet 1 1/2-ton trucks are making fuel records which are relatively just as high. That it costs very little to keep Chevrolet trucks in first-class working order. That Chevrolet service charges on both parts and labor are exceptionally low. That the active life of Chevrolet trucks extends well past the 50,000 mileage mark.

To place your hauling on a minimum-cost basis—and keep it there—put Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks to work. A wide variety of Chevrolet-built bodies is now available. And delivered prices of Chevrolet trucks, complete and ready for work, are based on low chassis-cost and low body-cost, plus only reasonable charges for handling and financing.

Ferguson's Prospects
Wichita Falls Times
THE "anti-Ferguson" amendment to the election law did not pass at Austin so that the election of three congressmen-at-large will be held next year on a free-for-all basis. There will be 20 or 30 candidates, probably, and the three who receive the highest vote in the first primary will be the winners. This method admittedly gives James E. Ferguson an advantage, owing to the "hip pocket vote" of which he boasts and which stays loyally with him. The candidate who, with a score of more opponents, can poll 100,000 votes, is very apt to be among the chosen three.

CHATTERTON'S FORTUNE

Ruth Chatterton has become the leading exponent of such screen transients, having been most successful in three pictures which carried her through the years—"Madame X," "Sarah and Son," and "The Right to Love."
Norma Talma had her fling at screened old age in "Secrets," very successfully, and also in one of her biggest hits, "Smilin' Through." Mary Pickford last year endeavored to duplicate "Secrets" as a picture, "Fanny's Fours," but gave up the attempt in the midst of production, making "Kiki" instead.
Colleen Moore made the most daring departure of all, and some consider it her most appealing picture.
It was after she had scored heavily as the flapper in "Flaming Youth," that she undertook the emotion rife of the heroine of "So Big."
Here was none of the pep and vivacity of "Flaming Youth" in which she had made her name, but rather a studied and difficult characterization requiring the submergence of her real personality.
Despite that, "So Big" was one of the star's most successful pictures. Although her fan mail subsequently proved the fans divided in opinion concerning her departure from type. She still gets let-

Fires In Texas Cost $710,830

AUSTIN, Texas, June 24 (AP)—Fires from undetermined causes resulted in $433,895 damage in Texas in May according to a report of J. W. DeWeese, state fire insurance commissioner. The total loss from all causes was listed at $710,830.

Seventeen incendiary fires resulted in a loss of $17,563, the report stated.

Of 587 fires reported, 313 could have been prevented by application of proper fire prevention methods. Had these fires been prevented, Texas residents would have been saved approximately $284,982 in property that went up in smoke, DeWeese estimated that 27 of each 19 fires reported could have been prevented.

Education, engineering and enforcement of state and city fire prevention regulations were advanced by DeWeese as the three best methods of reducing fire losses. Citizens should be well informed as to what constitutes a fire hazard and how to correct or remove hazards and insurance underwriters should exercise more caution in writing insurance to prevent "over insurance," an inducement to incendiarism, he said.

Proper engineering methods in the construction of buildings and dwellings will automatically reduce fire losses.

Adoption and enforcement of a fire limits and building code by all cities and incorporated towns and enforcement of fire ordinances were strongly urged by the commissioner. Strenuous efforts should be made to apprehend and convict persons who burn property "for profit," DeWeese said.

Creation by cities of fire prevention campaigns and keep in active touch with law enforcement agencies would cause sharp declines in fire losses, DeWeese said.

Other leading causes of fire losses in May were: 41 from faulty wiring, $68,275; 59 fires in vacant houses, $17,830; 33 from faulty stoves, furnaces, boilers, $24,194; 35 from matches and smokers, $17,696; nine from explosions, $16,542; 18 from miscellaneous known causes, $11,953; 42 from exposures, $10,440; ten from petroleum and its products, $7,240; 16 from defective chimneys, $2,813; 16 from sparks on roof, $197; ten from gas, $3,006; seven from rubbish and litter, $2,463; two from motion picture films, $29; four from ignition of hot grease and tar, $6,789; three from lightning, $2,020; five from open fires and lights, $2,489; two from spontaneous combustion, $4,509.

"Red Ace's" Aunt Aged Baroness, In First Flight

DENVER—(INS)—A long life of daring adventure culminated in the first airplane ride of the aged Baroness Loula Von Richtofen, granddaughter of Germany's "red ace" of the World War.

The Baroness, long resident in "Richtofen Castle" which looms above the Colorado prairies just east of Denver with the forbidding grandeur of old world magnificence soared over Colorado's mountain peaks in a plane piloted by Dick Lederick, Casper, Wyoming, flyer.

"I have crossed the ocean 23 times and have gone into the depths of Alaska where probably no other woman has been," she explained. "So I decided I should fly. My family is military, and my nephew was a master aviator. I am in keeping with tradition."

Although refusing to reveal her age, the Baroness proved herself to be young in spirit and energy. "I intend to keep young, happy and gay to the last minute," she said. "And there is no better way to do that than to live in the world as it is today."

Baroness Richtofen was accompanied on her first flight by Mrs. Harry C. Chappell of Denver and by her son, Walter Storrie.

A Grave Doubt

Crude Oil Prices Advanced By California Standard; Gasoline Quotations Raises 5 1/2 Cents

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19 (AP)—A five and a half cent per gallon increase in the price of gasoline, effective today, was announced by the Standard Oil company of California here. Simultaneously the company announced an increase of from 20 to 40 cents a barrel in the price it will pay for crude oil.

The 5-1/2 cent increase in the company's tank wagon price will bring gasoline to dealers to 13 cents in Los Angeles and 13 1/2 cents in San Francisco, including the three cent state tax. This will mean increases in the price paid by motorists here to about 14 1/2 to 15 1/2 cents a gallon.

The crude oil increase applies to oil produced in accordance with the allowable quantities set by the California statewide curtailment committee. The Standard company explained its action was intended to point the way "to end the most disastrous economic breakdown ever experienced by the California oil industry and to remove the menace to the economic welfare of the community."

Shortly after the announcement, a similar increase was announced by the Shell Oil company. Other distributors were expected to follow suit, raising the retail price throughout the entire Pacific coast area by tomorrow and bringing relief to hard-pressed producers.

AUSTIN, June 19 (AP)—Governor Ross E. Sterling's statement today that a special session of the legislature to pass oil legislation seemed nearer instead of farther away as a result of recent developments in East Texas came as a surprise to many persons in the capitol.

The governor explained by stating that most East Texans believed the new plan of prohibition would help pass legislation strengthening the proration powers of the railroad commission in the event that should happen.

Institution of the Cranfill plan was due to be completed at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Cooperation of virtually all operators in the field was expected to be required to make the plan a success.

The railroad commission was awaiting an opinion from the attorney general's department before deciding whether to issue an emergency order in line with the plan. Fred Upchurch, assistant attorney general in charge of oil litigation, was expected back in Austin tomorrow. The commission doubted its authority to issue an order without a hearing after ten days notice.

Meanwhile the 17th East Texas oil proration injunction suit was filed against the commission by the Arkansas Fuel Oil company. Lloyd Price of Fort Worth, attorney for the company, said the suit was filed to adjust his company's allowed production rather than increase it. The Arkansas company had been permitted an increased production because an offsetting lease was violating proration.

THE MILEAGE QUESTION

There have been all sorts of arguments introduced, and the question of mileage limitation, for men engaged in train and yard service, most of which is based on the particular conditions governing the individual.

Very few seem to realize that working excessive miles and overtime, during the depression of business, such as we are now going through, is very apt to reflect badly on our present low daily rate of pay.

The chief obstacle to a limitation rule at this time, seems to be the seniority rule. The seniority rule is with doubt one of the cardinal rules of the wage schedule, now in effect. However, the principle on which this rule is based, is exactly the same principle upon which a limitation rule is based; and the adoption of a limitation rule would not in any way disturb the seniority rules of our schedule.

The limitation rule would have a tendency to more equally distribute the work, among our extra and cut-off men.

But the senior man would always have the same protection he now has, under the seniority rule, that is, the right to the last laid off, in reduction of forces, the right of preference in the selection of runs or jobs.

The only thing he would lose is something he never had, that is, the right to work excessive miles and overtime, during the depression of business, such as we are now going through, is very apt to reflect badly on our present low daily rate of pay.

We should not hesitate in adopting a rule, that would be a benefit to the majority, and in our efforts to conserve rules, let us not forget that humanity, sometimes rises above organization rules, and that sometimes rules must perish that man may live.

The man who makes seniority his god demands prior right to partake of all good things, but declines to in any measure give up the privations, hardships and sorrows of the less fortunate, who through no fault of their own, are cut off, or on the extra board.

The privilege to contribute to the support of the contracts, and schedules, is not denied them, but participation in the benefits of these contracts is extended to the fortunate senior man.

Our junior trainmen need encouragement and help. There is much suffering among them, and there is much heartiness.

Our senior trainmen should give help in this crisis, give a more equitable division of work, show a better spirit of brotherhood, so that all could live, with a minimum of suffering, during these hard times.

45 Young Men Discuss Junior C of C Formation; Committee Meets Today

Forty-five young business and professional men of the city met at the Settles Hotel Friday evening, as guests of the hotel, and discussed organization of a Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The session ended, following a delightful meal and more than two hours' discussion with appointment by Temporary Chairman J. R. Dillard of a committee of eight to confer with C. T. Watson, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, upon a complete set-up for a Junior organization.

The committee will report Tuesday at 8 o'clock at another session of the younger men.

The committee is composed of M. L. Tinsley, Dr. C. K. Bivings, Cecil Collings and Dr. Wofford Hardy, who have been working as a committee in an effort to bring about preliminary organization of a Junior chamber, and Buel T. Cardwell, Robert W. Jacobs, W. T. Strange, Jr., and W. E. Bonham.

The Friday night session became a general and free-for-all discussion of a number of details arising from recommendations of the Tinsley-Bivings-Collings-Hardy committee.

The age limit for a Junior chamber, whether membership in one or both chambers would be optional with the individual, and finally, whether a Junior chamber should be formed all were discussed by a large number of those present.

The committee of eight will meet at 1:30 p. m. today to frame recommendations to the Tuesday evening session.

Will Relates Ex-Pug's Story

By WILL ROGERS
Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see as I meander around. We was making a movie here the other week of Booth Tarkington's Book and Play "Plutocrat." That's what it was called. But his liabls to be released under the Title, Riches traded for Virtue and The Gangsters, Lost Mel. Well in the picture my family and I are on one of these Mediterranean Cruises, and we go to Morocco, or some country down there where it's hot, and full of Arabs, and Camels, and Rifles.

Well I will say one thing for Hollywood. If you want a couple hundred real "Arabs" in a scene, you just let the casting Department let it be known that you do and you get that many real Arabs. Anything under the sun you want, in a useful lot of Prize Fighters, and Mel. Well in the picture my family and I are on one of these Mediterranean Cruises, and we go to Morocco, or some country down there where it's hot, and full of Arabs, and Camels, and Rifles.

Now among these Arabs, and Turks, and Foreign Legion, and all we needed a few big "Sonambula's." Big colored boys, in their bare skin. Well out here there is an awful lot of Prize Fighters, and Mel. Well in the picture my family and I are on one of these Mediterranean Cruises, and we go to Morocco, or some country down there where it's hot, and full of Arabs, and Camels, and Rifles.

Well the Director couldn't get me out of the set for laughing at these birds kidding each other about fights. I believe Sam Baker talked the best fight of all. They got him to tell about the time he was sent to Portland, Ore., to fight the Big (name delegated through friendship) when he was making his famous march through the Buckwheat Hill, bowling em over in one and two bounds.

Well I ain't just a minute to Sam Baker, and you will get a capital idea of modern Plutocrats. "I was working down here in Hollywood, wasn't bothin' a soul. I had a big part, nutty uniform, taking care of the front door at a high hat night club. The Gentlemen had been assembling around all up and down, and it seemed like in Oakland, another colored boy, or something was to go out in the fourth round, and didn't, he stayed till the sixth, and could stay for the seventh, when all that had happened to him was that he was peeing against a rule. He jes wouldn't get down, and I had him up around Portland, and I had been a "Big Shot" and eat mighty regular up around there, so they sent for me to come to Portland. Well I ain't seen training on nothing but Close Lips down here in Hollywood, but they tell me they will fix things, and they also had em fixed when I got there.

"I is called on by a couple of Gun men, who inform me that there is One Thousand dollars, and its mine to keep, hold or destroy, BUT, here

Texans Ponder Probable Candidates For 1932 Democratic Nomination

AUSTIN, June 20 (AP)—The presidential nominating conventions are only about a year away and faint rumblings already are beginning to be heard along the Texas front.

Of course these are slight, and not much interest is expected to be aroused until after the hot weather is over, but Texans are paying more attention to what the possible candidates are doing and saying.

Only recently Col. E. M. House, a distinguished Texan and American, emerged from his political retirement to espouse the cause of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, whom he had known when Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy under Woodrow Wilson, beloved of most Texans.

Colonel House, formerly President Wilson's advisor, has written friends in the Lone Star state urging them to support Roosevelt for the Democratic nomination. Just how much influence he will have is problematical. The smiling little colonel has been away from Texas most of the time for many years.

In 1912, Texas "immortal forty" played an important part in the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. Since that time the Texas group has been largely just another delegation. Three years ago it did not vote for Al Smith, who was nominated on the first ballot.

Next year, because of a congressional reapportionment, Texas will have 46 delegates and will have a large number of probable entries that have forged to the forefront. Texas might easily conceivably throw the nomination to one of the aspirants.

Texas has voted dry for a long time and Governor Roosevelt is a wet. Colonel House referred to him as a wet who was politically acceptable to the drys but some of the leading prohibitionists have controverted that statement.

Morris Sheppard, Texas' senior United States senator and one of the authors of the prohibition amendment, announced he favored Gov. George White of Ohio, for the presidency. Other Texas prohibitionists have varied preferences. They include William G. McAdoo, an old favorite among Texans, Sen. Joe Robinson of Arkansas, a neighbor, Sen. Cordell Hall of Tennessee, Harry Byrd, former governor of Virginia, and Sen. Edward P. Costigan of Colorado.

Favorite Son?
There is a possibility that Texas will give its first vote to some "favorite son" as it did to Jesse Jones of Houston in 1928. Dan Moody, former governor has been mentioned as a possible favorite son.

Democratic leaders are working against a recurrence of the split which delivered the state to the Republicans in 1928. The platform, as well as the candidate, will determine the extent of the shift from the normal Democratic majority.

A Roosevelt booster said during a conversation recently that one of the state's leading prohibitionists, a man who voted for Herbert Hoover three years ago, had agreed to support Roosevelt if he should be nominated, on the assumption that the platform would not demand modification or repeal of prohibition and that Roosevelt would stand by the platform.

Sen. Walter Woodward of Coleman, one of the state's leading prohibitionists, stated some time ago he believed Roosevelt was the "most available" candidate. Woodward admires the New York governor for his stand on the power question.

Tom Connally, United States senator from Texas, said in an address to the legislature that the economic question, rather than prohibition, should be the paramount issue of the 1932 campaign. A few days later, Mrs. Claude de Van Watta, state president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, said Texas women were going to demand that the candidate for whom they voted espouse the cause of prohibition.

For Costigan
Mrs. Jane V. McCallum, secretary of state, is an admirer of Costigan, who addressed the legislature during its recent session.

The change of Democratic success in Texas would be sure by the prediction that Melvin Traylor, a former Hill county boy, who now is a powerful Chicago banker, will be secretary of the treasury in event of the election of a Democratic president.

Some friends of Governor Roosevelt say they may not work for a Texas delegation instructed for the New York governor, but may seek an unstructured delegation of Democrats who might switch to Roosevelt at the most opportune time. They undoubtedly will oppose a group instructed against Roosevelt individually or against wet candidates as a whole.
