Vaughn, Elba, Ala., writes: "Being a constant sufferer from constipation and a disordered liver, I have found Herbine to be the best medicine for these troubles, on the market. I have used it constantly. I believe it to be the best medicine of its kind, and I wish all sufferers from these troubles to know the good Herbine has done me." Sold by W. L. Doss.

never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all baby's who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial. ## GRAND-MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT AT OPERA HOUSE TO-NIGHT

To-night at the opera house Miss Viola Henry from the Southwestern Conservatory of Music will give a recital. She will be accompanied by E. Clyde Whitlock, violinist, Hugh Willis Peck, baritone and a musical treat is in store for those who attend. The entertainment is given under the auspices of the ladies of the Christian church. Some of the press notices of these artists are as follows:

Cleburne Enterprise:—Miss Henry is a pianiste of unusual ability, and her performance last evening established a new and loftier standard in the musical circles of Cleburne.

Her entire repertoire was very pleasing and was received with unusual interest, but we feel that especial mention is due to her rendition of "Evening in Venice" by Schubert-Liszt, which was ultra artistic in its entirety. She responded to an uproarious encore with "To the Water Lilly" by Edward MacDowell, the greatest American artist, under whose tutelage she studied in New York last winter.

The Dallas News:—Mr. Whitlock pleased the critical and versed audience of musicians that greeted him in his introductory recital given in Bush Temple last evening. His interpretation of classical music was broad; his execution was without affectation; technique was true to accepted standards, and marked in its individuality.

Terrell Transcript:—Mr. Peck not only possesses a voice of rare timbre, but because of the most painstaking guidance on the part of the teacher and the most intelligent effort upon the part of the student, the degree of artistic development has been attained, possessed by but few men of his age. A strong feature of his singing is his wonderful power, depth of interpretation, in fact he seems to think, to live and to breathe the sentiments that come from his lips.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF COLORADO

Gentlemen:—On Saturday, Sept. 5 we are expecting that over 2000 of the out of town people will visit our city to participate in the grand Sunday school parade. There will be sixteen Sunday schools in line and others will come from Loraine, Westbrook, Cuthbert, Herbert, Rogers, Liberty, etc. The parade will begin promptly at 12 noon and last probably one hour and we want to ask if we may have the use of the main street from Lasky's corner to Burns & Bell corner and also to ask if you will kindly keep all delivery wagons off the street for that hour. We do not ask that you close your stores. In fact we would rather you keep the stores open as the side walks will be crowded. But the street we need; any decoration you may see fit to put out will be appreciated, as we want the line of march to look pretty.

Very Respectfully,
ROBT. M. WEBB,
General Manager.

NOTICE

To the Public:—You are hereby notified that on and after Sept. 1st, 1908, anyone caught camping, fishing, hunting or otherwise trespassing in and upon premises owned or controlled by me, will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The executive committee of the 16th congressional Republican convention met in Sweetwater on the 22nd of this month and adopted the following platform, after the convention had gone into permanent organization the following officers were elected. Robt. M. Webb, chairman, Allen Payne, Sect.

The selection of a candidate for Congress was the principal item of business and J. W. Boynton of Anson was unanimously elected. Mr. Boynton is one of Anson first lawyers, an eloquent speaker and one of those sterling, stalwart, honest men, with a good hearty hand shake, that you hear about but don't often meet. We hope to pole a good big vote for Mr. Boynton, and we earnestly request every republican in this county to go to the polls and vote the straight republican ticket.

Report of committee on platform and resolutions, republican congressional convention held at Sweetwater Texas, August 22, 1908.

To the Hon. Robert M. Webb, chairman:—

We your committee on platform and resolutions beg to believe to submit the following:

We the republicans of the 16th congressional district of Texas, in convention assembled, conscious of a desire to lend our aid and support to those policies of government which are and will be the most effective agencies for the continued development and growth of our country as a nation and the contentment, happiness and prosperity of her citizens as people, propound the following as our platform of principles and bespeak for it, from the voters of this district, that unprejudiced and unbiased consideration keeping with the importance of the problems now presented to the people of the entire country for solution.

We endorse and congratulate the nation upon, the nomination of that distinguished statesman and jurist William H. Taft of Ohio, for president and commend his candidacy to the thoughtful consideration of our people.

We invite a careful inspection of the platform of principles propounded by the last republican convention at Chicago, which we here and now most heartily adopt, and we especially reaffirm our allegiances to the great cardinal principles of the republican party, embodied therein, in the tariff plank, the currency plank, the injunction plank and the utterances with reference to the control and management of railways and trusts, and pledge the candidate presented by this convention to a loyal and hearty support of each and all of them in co-operation with the republican majority now and hereafter existing in congress.

The republican party has always stood for internal improvements. It adopted the plan of opening up the west in the early days of its assuming the responsibilities of the government, and used all means conducive to that section becoming the abiding place of homeseekers, including the great railways that connected the Pacific slope with the Atlantic seaboard. It can always be relied on to enact such measures and make such appropriations as will stimulate development and advance interest in all sections of the country. We therefore, respectfully submit to the candid judgment of the voters of this district, whether or not, their best interests can be the most satisfactorily subserved by a representative in harmony and touch with the law enacting majority, a part of its counsels and caucuses, and whose attitude towards such majority insures an interested hearing for whatever may be desired for his district, or by a representative whose every act and influence, and whose attitude is continuously antagonistic to such majority and who must necessarily overcome the obstacles presented by his enforced association with a contending minority, before gaining the assistance of such majority in the enactment of legislation beneficial to his constituents.

We invite the assistance and co-operation in this campaign of all those who desire a continuation of a government "of the people, by the people and for the people," as enunciated by the immortal Lincoln, and who stand for the "square deal" to all, independent of class or other distinctions, as exemplified by the greatest living American, Theodore Roosevelt.

GEO. SPARENBERG,
Chairman.

SOME FINE COTTON

Mr. W. M. Burns, living on the Landers place is a farmer from farmersville, figuratively speaking. He raises the best of whatever he tries. On Tuesday he brought in a stalk of cotton taken at random from a 2½ acre patch, which aside from its great vigor, ideal size, shape, etc, contained sixty of the largest and heaviest bolls, we ever saw, besides a number of squares and blooms. An acre of such cotton would produce he says, nearly 2½ 500-pound bales. Sixty bolls of this cotton weigh a pound and 1100 pounds of the seed cotton will give 500 pounds lint. Mr. Burns calls it the "Alabama Wonder," and in truth a wonderful cotton it is. A few of the bolls show the action of the worms. Mr. Burns is a farmer who is satisfied with producing nothing but the best on the farm.

The republicans promise a "revision of the tariff" which may be up or down, according to the whims and interests of a favored few, while the democrats advocate a reduction of the tariff to a revenue basis only, the immediate withdrawal of protection to trusts, relief to consumers and a gradual restoration to the original purposes of an honest revenue. We fail to see how any patriotic citizen, who has any regard for the welfare of the whole people can hesitate for a moment between these two policies.

The annual meeting of the Colorado cemetery association, for the election of officers, will be held with Mrs. Riordan, Monday Aug 31 at 5 o'clock, as most of the present officers have served continuously in some capacity for five or six years. An entire change is determined. Any and all members interested in carrying on the work should be present and ready to lend a helping hand.

MRS. J. E. RIORDAN, Sec.

SOME COTTON

The Record started out this week to find out about cotton, and try to get a fair estimate of its condition and approximate yield. To this end we interviewed farmers of different communities. The first one questioned as to the present condition and probable yield of his crop, said: "I counted the bolls on the first stalk I came across; it contained 110 bolls, squares and blooms, and next stalk contained 80."

Thinking this a rather too generous estimate for an average estimate, we cornered another farmer and put the same questions to him: "I counted one stalk in my field today and it contained 152 bolls, squares and blooms; there were 29 grown bolls."

A third farmer brought in a stalk which he said was not up to the average of his field; this one contained 57 bolls, squares and blooms. From these and other interviews of various farmers, it is a safe and conservative estimate to put the yield at one half to three-quarters of a bale per acre.

GOOD CORN

J. J. Curry, a substantial farmer of the Buford community, brought to the Record office this week, samples of corn that beat any we have ever seen in Texas. He brought ten ears of common field corn that weighed 15½ lbs., averaged 10 inches in length and 9 inches in circumference. A conservative estimate of the yield is 60 bushels per acre. He brought also ten ears of June corn planted on April 21, almost as large and very fine. The latter corn is quite thick on the ground and is estimated to yield 75 bushels to the acre. Mitchell county is the greatest country on earth when it comes to producing corn. Mr. Curry says he does not want to sell out and has never failed to raise a good corn crop.

SEVENTY-POUND MELON

H. H. Dailey, who lives out in the Buford community, sent in this week a watermelon weighing 70 pounds, which is by far the largest we have seen during the present season. It will be preserved for the Dallas fair.

Every day brings a new revelation of what Mitchell county can do in the way of farm, garden and orchard products. In each contribution to the fair exhibit we think we have the "finest specimens yet," only to see it eclipsed by the next addition to the growing show. The specimens get better all the time. We were sure we had secured the best corn, maize, sorghum and kaffir corn the country produced a month ago, but the best keeps getting "bested" with every fresh arrival for the collection to be sent to the Dallas fair.

NOTICE TO THE FARMERS

FURNITURE, UNDERTAKING AND EMBALMING

W. J. BRYAN'S TRICK MULE

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., August 19—The advent to-day of the trick mule, which was presented to W. J. Bryan by the Minnesota state agricultural society, was made memorable because of an accident which occurred during the afternoon, in which the mule and an eastern newspaper correspondent were the central figures. When announcement was first made of the fact that the animal had been presented, this particular correspondent served notice that he would be the first to ride him. Today the opportunity came, with the result that the correspondent tonight is nursing a sore head and a badly bruised leg, caused by being hurled into the air by the mule, which had been trained to permit no one to ride him. Mr. Bryan witnessed the proceedings and exhibited a good deal of solicitude for the correspondent. The mule was taken back into the stable and there is some likelihood that he will not be permitted to display any more of his talents.

"I am going to have a caucus of the newspaper correspondents to select a name for this mascot of mine," declared Mr. Bryan, as he led the animal about the lawn by a halter. "They tell me that it is the best trained mule in the United States, and we will have to properly name it before the day is over."

The day otherwise was without incident. When Mr. Bryan starts on his ten days' trip tomorrow night he will have completed practically all the set speeches he will make during that time. He practically denied himself to all visitors today, desiring to utilize every available moment in the work.

SEES GOOD TIMES

Hon. J. H. Kirby of Houston sees great things in store for Texas in the immediate future. He says: "We need $250,000,000 of new money for new lines of railway in this state and $250,000,000 for improvement of existing lines. We are going to get it. The democratic party, which is responsible for both legislation and administration in Texas, has declared in our San Antonio platform the need of additional capital in railway construction and improvement and pledged itself to a just and fair policy in both legislation and administration. The voice of the democracy is potential. The railroads and the owners of capital will have confidence in this platform assurance and the personnel of the Thirty-first legislature is a guarantee of its faithful observance in legislation. All that the railroads want and all capital wants is sincere assurance that they will be permitted to earn fair returns on their investments. Our laws now protect the railroads against unjust and ruinous competition; our laws also protect investors against inflated securities by limiting the aggregate of both stocks and bonds which a railway corporation may issue to the actual cash value of the physical property owned; our rate will always be supervised and fixed by a commission elected by the people; so all that is now needed is the convincing assurance that these investments will be safeguarded through the charging of reasonable rates, and this just policy honestly adhered to against the political demagogue and corporation wrecker."

Our good old veteran friend, C. M. Reed of the Westbrook Gin Co. at Westbrook, came in Wednesday and placed an ad in The Record about their corn mill, etc. Mr. Reed is very hopeful about the cotton crop and as his company has a large gin he is very much interested. He says the worms have about ceased their depredation and cotton is again fruiting very fast, and if the pests do not reappear a large crop will yet be made.

Mrs. Evans and her daughter have been employed to teach the public school at Westbrook and they will begin a private term of school next Monday which will be continued till the opening of the public term.

PRETTY CHURCH WEDDING

Mr. Turk of Blooming Grove Wins a Sweet Colorado Bride.
(Mrs. M. H. Jackson)

Wednesday evening in the presence of intimate friends, the marriage of Miss Lena McLure and Mr. Claude Turk was gracefully solemnized at the Methodist church; Rev. E. W. Dodson officiating.

For this happy occasion the church was beautifully decorated by loving friends; the bride's color scheme pink and white, being artistically carried out. Evergreens and potted plants formed an effective background for the three graceful arches wreathed with living green and thickly studded with roses. Half way up the aisles stood two other arches built up of green and white roses, which served to designate the position of the honor guests. Mr. A. J. Payne presided at the organ and under his deft touch the impressive strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding march sounded forth, and before the ceremony, promptly at seven, Miss Jennie Knott sweetly sang "My Dear."

Two ushers Mr. C. A. Tyler and Mr. J. M. Webb, close friends of the groom, led the bridal party down the white carpeted aisle to the altar.

Following came the four bridesmaids. Misses Exa McLure and Nell Ruddick advancing in opposite aisles, then Misses Lilla McLure and Ina Wulffen, all daintily gowned in costumes of Paris muslin with lace garnitures, princess effect. Picture hats of pink, gloves to match and arm bouquets of pink roses with bows of tulle completed this charming picture.

Leaning on the arm of her father entered the bride, preceded by two little flower girls VonCeil McDonald and Mary Jackson, daintily dressed in pink and white scattering roses in the pathway of the happy pair and following Miss Julia McLure, the maid in waiting and sister of the bride, most attractively gowned in pink mousseline with lace trimmings, carrying arm bouquet of pink roses. The bride wore an exquisite creation of radium silk elaborately trimmed with princess lace and silk garnitures and a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley filled her arms. In the opposite aisle advanced the groom with his best man and college friend T. M. Campbell Jr., all the gentlemen attired in conventional black dress suits.

Beneath the center arch from which depended a bell of white roses, the solemn vows were taken and during the entire ceremony Dr. Merrell skillfully rendered the soft sweet strains of Traumerel. After the benediction Lohengrin was played as recessional and the entire bridal party and favored guests repaired to the home of the bride, which was redolent with many blossoms of roses being used with effective results along with palms and ferns. The guests were met at the door by Mrs. M. C. Knott, and introduced to the wedding party by Mesdames M. K. Jackson and H. G. Towle. Mesdames Dodson and Gustine led the way to the dining room, where presided Mesdames W. L. Doss and Van King. The table was laid in lace with center heart of pink satin, adorned with La France roses, around which miniature hearts were effectively placed.

Draped streamers of pink, caught from the chandelier, touched the table corners where graceful ferns held them in place. Candles burned in golden candle sticks among ferns and flowers which banked the side-board.

Ices and delicious cakes, in the color scheme, were served by a bevy of charming girls; and as the guests left the dining room Mrs. Jas. T. Johnson and Miss Lucy Matthews pinned on the souvenirs of hearts pierced by arrows.

In an adjoining room stood Mrs. J. A. Fore and Mrs. Phelan inviting the guests to inspect the array of beautiful presents, costly cut glass, hand painted china and handsome silver.

After spending a most pleasant hour with the gracious host and hostess Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McLure, the friends made their adieus and a great number accompanied the bridal party to the station.

The brides going away gown was a chic coat suit of Copenhagen blue; hat and gloves to match. Amid a shower of rice and hearty, good wishes the young couple, with the father and mother of the groom, and his three special friends departed for their respective homes.

In relinquishing Miss Lena, Colorado gives up one of her fairest daughters. Having lived here for a number of years, she has bound many hearts to her by her exceptional graces and admirable qualities, and the estimable gentleman to whom she has entrusted her happiness, well deserves congratulations in winning her for his own.

Mr Turk is a gentleman of culture and education, having recently completed his course in the South-western University of George-town, Texas. At present he is engaged in the mercantile business at Blooming Grove.

His reputation as a christian gentleman is without blemish, and we predict for him and his fair bride, a life replete with happiness and usefulness.

The following are the out-of-town guests who attended the Turk-McLure wedding:

Mr. B. F. McLure and daughters, Misses Lilla and Fannie, Alberta, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Turk, Blooming Grove, Texas; Messers Campbell, Webb and Tyler, Austin, Anson and Blooming Grove; Dr. and Mrs. Young, Roscoe; Mrs. M. Phelan, Roscoe; Mrs. H. G. Towle and Jas. T. Johnson, Snyder; Miss Lucy Mathews, Loraine; Miss Allie Robertson, Roscoe.

WHITE ISLAND.

Its Strange Lakes, Sulphur Fumes and Clouds of Steam.

White Island, a New Zealand natural wonder, derives its name from the clouds of white steam in which it appears to be continually enveloped. Its area is only 600 acres and its height about 880 feet above the sea level.

In form and color it is like a reposing camel, while its interior, with its gray, weather beaten, almost perpendicular cliffs, recalls the Coliseum at Rome. Overhanging the southern landing place stands a column of rock closely resembling a sentinel, which has been dedicated to the memory of Captain Cook. The water of the island is of a pale green hue, and anything dipped into it becomes of a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always plainly perceptible.

On a fine moonlight night a wonderful sight is afforded to any one who will sit in an open boat in one of the lakes of the island. Covering an area of fifty acres is an immense cauldron, hissing and snorting and sending forth volumes of poisonous steam, while all chances of egress appear to be denied by the steep, silent and gloomy cliffs.—British Australian.

CHURCH NEWS

The following articles are taken from the (Baptist church) Messenger:

A move is on foot to organize a new association by taking a part of the El Paso and Sweetwater associations, reaching as far west as Midland, and as far east as Loraine. Many churches north and south of the Texas & Pacific railroad, would doubtless come into the new organization. This would give us a large territory and some of the strongest churches in the association, and would the better enable us to more thoroughly work the field. There is no friction whatever in the old Sweetwater association, but the territory is so large, and is being so rapidly populated, it is impossible to develop and cultivate the field already "white unto harvest." Not only would this new body prove beneficial to our immediate field of labor, but it would mean more to orphanage, educational, and mission work in general. The churches within the territory already mentioned, will be asked to come to a decision as to the propriety of the new organization between now and the meeting of the association in November, and if the churches so desire it, the new association will be organized at the close of the next associational meeting. The matter will be presented to our church on the first Sunday in September, at the regular business meeting of the church.

The rapid development of this western country is marvelous, and the Baptists are keeping pace with this onward march. Four years ago there were only two residences in Loraine, now you behold a town of some eight hundred people, and a splendid Baptist church with preaching "half time." Buford has a new church building, so with Cuthbert, and Westbrook has moved her building from the country to town, and new churches are being organized at all the school houses 'round about. The Methodist church is keeping step with us in this mighty move for religious development in the west. It is also a matter of short time till this western country will be dotted with well equipped schools and well organized churches, the forerunners of peace, prosperity, and clean citizenship. "So mote it be!"

The good people of the Plainview community, three miles south of town, have just closed a glorious meeting. They erected a nice arbor which was provided with rustic seats and torchlights, and invited the writer to assist them in a special effort at soul-winning. The attendance was good from the first. The people were kind attentive to the preached word. Brethren Whipkey and Thomas both preached an excellent sermon each during the meeting. The last Sabbath of the meeting was a busy day—three sermons and an ordination service, Brother A. J. Lindley being ordained a minister of the gospel. It was thru this brother's efforts that this little church was organized, after which they called him to act as pastor, which of course, called for his ordination. He organized the church about four months ago with sixteen members. The result of our week's work with this little flock was ten by baptism, (all adults except one) two restored and two by letter, and the church encouraged to "press the battle to the gates." They now have more than thirty members, and are united and happy and hopeful. The Lord graciously bless them and their pastor.

The pastor of the church is the pastor of the Sunday school. For the Sunday school is a part of the church, and to be pastor of the whole is to be pastor of all its parts.

Moeser sells it for less.

Pity the poor Osage Indians. They toil not, neither spin, and yet Solomon in all his glory had no better thing than they. Their life is occupied principally in receiving money from one source or another, and with their royalties from oil, gas, grazing and interest on millions of dollars the Stories don't always end alike. Up in Oklahoma the other day a woman was playing tennis, and lost a fine diamond ring. As Colorado can't land a college, seemingly, suppose we try to land a few more smokestacks and wheels. It will require more men to keep the stacks hot and the wheels revolving; more men mean more pay rolls, and more pay rolls mean greater prosperity for all.

The charge that Mr. Bryan sold out to the Kerr faction of the Pennsylvania democracy, in order to secure the defeat of Jas. It is pitiable to witness a man with the ability of John Temple Graves sacrifice his independence and manhood for a mess of pottage. The cheerful spirit that pervades the farming interests of Mitchell county, and ramifies through every other business, is an asset, no less essential to its prosperity, than its material values. When a people have confidence in their section, and are willing to devote their time, work and money to its development, there is nothing necessary to their ultimate success that such a spirit can not, and will not bring to pass. Confidence is ever a prophesy of success.

Captain George Johnson, an old time printer who formerly worked for the Leslies in New York, recently made the 1200-mile trip from San Augustine, Fla., to New York city in a boat made of newspapers, 18 feet long, 3 feet wide, 6 inches deep, drawing 2 inches and weighing only 90 pounds. The frame is of light wood and wire, while the body is built up to half an inch in thickness with old newspapers gathered from every part of the world, which are laid on with thick coats of shellac varnish. Several times during his trip he was miles out on the open sea in this frail craft.

Every Texan should read "The Truth about Brownsville" in the September Pearson's magazine. It is an account of the part played by Captain Bill McDonald in arresting the negro soldiers implicated in the riot there in 1908. He and Billy McCauley armed with automatic shot guns and a warrant from the state, defied Penrose, all his negro soldiers, the posse of the craven sheriff, a weak-kneed district judge and the whole posse comitatus until directed by Governor Lanham to surrender his warrants and prisoners. This article is the beginning of the history of this remarkable man's life to run in Pearson's magazine.

In farming, the conservation of moisture is as important as that of water. A growing school holds that the Campbell system of dry farming is more important than the development of agriculture by irrigation. It is conceded by expert authority, that 90 per cent of the so-called "desert lands" of the southwest can never be developed by the application of surface water. They must be developed in some other way, and the Campbell system seems the only other way now in sight. For the vast stretches of fine lands of the high plains of the Texas panhandle and New Mexico, there seems no hope from mechanical irrigation, but there is hope through a conservation of moisture and a changing climate. With the system of dry farming, the annual rainfall in these sections is sufficient to the production of profitable crops. With this system of farming the peasants of Syria and Palestine, where the climate is hot, dry, and no rain falls from April to November, make certain and profitable crops.

WHAT THE ONION HAS DONE

The Technical World has an interesting article on the Bermuda onion industry in south Texas: "In a little more than eight years the value of the annual production of onions in Texas has reached more than two million dollars, derived from less than 2,500 acres of land which from the time of the early visit of the Spaniards to the Rio Grande valley, was thought to be almost worthless, and at most, fit only for goat grazing, but now bringing an annual net return of $300 to $500 per acre from the onions it produces. Before the inauguration of onion growing this land could have been bought for $1 to $2 per acre. It now has no established value, for the reason that none of its owners are willing to sell. They will not fix a value upon the land. Some of them are free to say that land which has such large producing qualities ought to be worth not less than $1000 per acre. Many of the onion growers say they would not be willing to accept less than $2,000 per acre for their land. Even at that price the annual net return will average nearly twenty-five per cent on the investment."

COMMON SENSE IN THE LAW

If the recommendations of the special committee of the American Bar Association ever become a law, mere technicalities will no longer shield the oppressor or take the halter from the murderer's neck. Courts of appeal, civil and criminal, will base their decisions on the merits of a case solely. The committee was appointed at the last meeting of the association to draft laws to prevent delays and unnecessary cost of litigation.

To the common sense citizen who is not a lawyer, this will seem a good thing and will rob a resort to the law to maintain his rights of much of its terrors. People are tired of law's proverbial delays, and this lack of speedy justice is the only excuse ever offered by lawless men for mob law. If Smith murders Jones and is possessed of considerable money, he will hire able lawyers who will take the case to the higher courts and wear out the ordinary country attorney, who in many cases has much of other business on his hands.

If the idea of this special committee is enacted into law, and Smith's attorneys appeal the case to a higher court, after he has been convicted of murder in the lower court, on some technicality, instead of considering whether the trial judge failed to cross a "t" or dot an "i" in his written instructions to the jury, the higher court will only inquire whether Smith really slew Jones and whether such killing constituted murder in the first degree. In case such a law is passed by all the states and in case a rich man commits a murder, the safest thing for him to do will be to will all his money to his lawyers and get ready to hang and end the suspense.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION OF MITCHELL COUNTY

Saturday, September 5th, is the great day for the Sunday schools of Mitchell county. We expect over a thousand Sunday school workers will parade the streets. This is something new for Colorado and will give the people an opportunity of seeing what a great work the Sunday schools are doing, and how many of our people are connected with the work. Fourteen of the county schools have ordered banners, so we are sure of that many coming, and we hope those who have been silent and not responded to the letter sent them, may yet decide to join us even at the last minute.

We have tried to notify every school in the county and do not want ONE to be missing on that day. The following schools have pledged themselves for the parade: (Every school is expected to get their own badges).

Colorado Methodist, Colorado Baptist, Loraine Methodist, Loraine Baptist, Westbrook Methodist, Westbrook Baptist, Colorado Christian, Colorado Presbyterian, Methodist S. S. at Union, Plainview Baptist, Herbert Union S. S., Silver Creek Baptist, Cuthbert Union S. S., and Rogers Union S. S. This will make a total of nearly 1200 teachers, scholars and officers. We want to show all those who view the parade, what a great institution the Sunday School of today is, and what it means to every community and the world at large. We sincerely hope they will want to join in the good work.

It is expected that all the out-of-town schools will be at the Colorado court house grounds by 11 o'clock a. m. sharp, where they will be met by the reception committee and welcomed by the town schools. Seats will be provided and plenty of cool drinking water. Everyone is expected to bring a basket lunch. A committee will take charge of baskets and boxes until the hour set for eating.

At 12 o'clock the schools will form in line and parade on our main business street, after which all will return to the park for lunch, singing and speaking.

The town of Colorado has donated $100 for the entertainment of the day. The Colorado band will furnish suitable music and Mr. W. N. Wiggins of Dallas and Mr. C. T. Ball of Abilene, will be with us. At four o'clock the pastors, teachers, officers, and all who are interested in Sunday School work, will meet at the Baptist church for an hour's instructive talk from Mr. Wiggins, regarding Sunday School teaching, and Rev. W. M. Elliott of the Colorado Presbyterian church will give a short address on the subject: "Qualifications of a Sunday School teacher."

This will close the exercises of the day and will give everyone plenty of time to return home, as it will be moonlight.

On Sunday and Monday there will be a teachers' institute for all who are interested or connected with Sunday School work. We hope that many of the out-of-town superintendents and teachers will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Mr. Wiggins, who has had a large and valuable experience in all departments of Sunday school work, and will help you solve your problems. Mr. C. T. Ball will also take a special part.

On Monday, Elementary work will be presented, and in connection there will be an exhibit of everything that is helpful to teachers and superintendents in the advancement of Sunday school work. The material will be from the publishing houses of each denomination. This exhibit will be in charge of Mrs. P. C. Coleman, Mrs. Robt. M. Webb, Miss Elsie Hooper and Miss Ruth Nichols, who will be pleased to show the helps and distribute free as far as they will go. An official programme will be mailed to each pastor and superintendent within the next ten days.

Dr. P. C. Coleman, President.
Robt. M. Webb, Secretary.

A DOMINATING FEATURE.

Great Livestock Show Predicted For Coming State Fair.

INCREASE IN PREMIUMS.

Over $20,000 in Awards Will Be Distributed Among Breeders of the State—Many Improvements Made in Cattle Department.

Livestock shows will be among the dominating features of the Texas State Fair, which opens at Dallas on October 17, next, for sixteen full days. The total prize awards in this department amount to over $20,000, a material increase over what has been offered heretofore. The facilities in this department have been enlarged and many improvements made at the suggestions of various breeders of the state.

NEW STEEL GRAND STAND. STATE FAIR OF TEXAS.

At the Fair of 1907 there were 1791 animals on exhibition, not including the 1,000 race horses stabled on the grounds. Every indication is that this year the number of cattle will exceed that of last, which was a record breaker in the South.

Beef breeds have been about equally divided in number of head shown at the Fair during the last few years. The offerings for this class of cattle are exceedingly liberal. In the Hereford class the association awards a total of $1250 in premiums, and the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' association $300. The Shorthorn class receives $1220 and $500 additional by the American Shorthorn Breeders' association. The Red Polled, another breed, receives in premiums, $1150 and $250 additional from the Red Polled Cattle club of America. Offerings in the Polled Durham class amount to $1165 and in the Aberdeen-Angus, $1110.

Dairy cattle always attract the attention of every visitor, be they from country or town. Dupont Lyons is the superintendent of this department, and predicts the greatest showing of Jersey cattle in history. The offerings in this class are over $1200. Texas is fast winning first place in the Union for the number and high class of the horses within the borders of the state. Ever since the first meet of the Texas State Fair, when the mustang was about the only horse a Texan used, the association has offered liberal prizes each year to improve the Texas horse, thus adding millions of dollars to the value of this industry to the state.

This year over $6,000 is offered in the exhibit horse division and is divided as follows: Draft and Coach horses: French, $160;

NEW MAIN ENTRANCE. STATE FAIR OF TEXAS.

German, $210; Percheron, $160; draft horses, any breed, $165. Carriage, light harness, saddle horses and ponies: Carriage and buggy horses, $115; thoroughbreds, $450; roadsters, $910; standardbred trotters and pacers, $600; Suffolk, $115; saddle and combination horses, including sweepstakes and special prizes offered by the Texas Saddle Horse Breeders' association, and the American Saddle Horse Breeders' association, $2,200; Shetland ponies, $115; park horses, $120.

Special prizes are offered in Percheron class by the Percheron Society of America, including gold medal reserve ribbons, champion cups and cash prizes.

On Tuesday, October 27, there will be a grand parade of horses from the livestock arena promptly at 1 p. m., and going around the race track, passing the grandstand and back to the arena. Every horse on exhibition on the Fair Grounds will participate in this parade.

FARM AND MILL.

New Building For This Department at State Fair.

With a building 84x375 feet in dimension, divided into ninety-seven booths 16x25 feet, completed at a cost of $25,000, the farm, mill and horticultural department of the Texas State Fair at Dallas this year has a fitting home for the exhibition of the products of the soil of Texas. Built entirely of cement stone, with the best of lighting and ventilation facilities, the building is ideal for the purposes intended. It will be equipped with the latest fixtures for exhibition purposes, with rest rooms and lavatories.

W. H. Gaston, director, is himself interested in agriculture, and therefore takes more than usual interest in this department. He said: "Our premiums this year have been liberally increased and the list revised so that it embraces every vegetable and plant useful for the support of man and beast. For the twenty-third annual meet, Oct. 17 to Nov. 1, we offer in the sweepstakes class $25 as first prize and $10 as second, for the most complete individual exhibition of corn, cotton, small grain and other farm products from Texas. For the best farm exhibit from any county or association in Texas, we offer: First, $100; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. The corn division, as usual, will be a feature of the fair, and receives a liberal division of the cash awards."

"Taking into consideration the correspondence and space arrangements, in the department this year will be the most complete collection of agricultural products the state has ever offered. Each section of the state will be represented, from the coast country to the Panhandle, and from east to west Texas. In fact, this exhibit will include every variety of grasses, rice, sugar, corn, tobacco, fruits, vegetables, wheat, oats, etc., a collection of the good things of life that no other state can offer."

GREATER THAN EVER.

Implement, Vehicle and Machinery Display at State Fair.

The implement, vehicle and machinery display at the twenty-third annual meet of the State Fair of Texas, October 17 to November 1, at Dallas, will be more complete than any ever offered at previous entertainments. The largest division of the Fair, from a standpoint of area, it will have for the information of visitors, the latest in farm wagons, vehicles of all kinds, implements, machinery and automobiles. Practically every foot of its seven acres of space is sold to great manufacturers, who will each have a man in their exhibition booths for demonstration purposes.

J. C. Duke, director of this department, said: "There will be a great number and variety of carriages in the show and the wagon display will be as liberal as ever. Automobiles of many makes, vehicles of all kinds, will be on exhibition, brought from the various portions and manufacturing centers of the Union. In the machinery department, most of which will be along the main driveway, in

THE GRAMPUS GOURMET.

This Marine Monster's Prey is the Bowhead Whale.

"Of all the gourmets on land or water," said the captain, "commend me to the grampus."
The ladies at the captain's table looked with inquiring smiles at the handsome sailor.
"The grampus," he went on, "is a kind of overgrown shark or a kind of undersized fighting whale. You can take your choice. At any rate, he is a terrible creature to meet with if you happen to be aquatic."
"He and his mate travel together. Sometimes they have a friend along—big, fine, strong chap, as such friends usually are. And their game is the bowhead whale."
"When they find a whale they go at him. They stick to him invincibly. They punch and thump till he is as limp as a rope of seaweed with exhaustion. Then, by means of one horrible deed, they show their unexampled gluttony."
"They take hold of the whale's lower lip; they haul their weight on it until it drops open. Then in go their heads, disappearing inside that great red mouth, that warm, moist cavern of scarlet, and they eat in there the whale's tongue, a tender tidbit, very rich and delicate."
"The tongue consumed, they go on their way again, leaving the whale to die slowly."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Judging a Melon.

Is there any way for a purchaser to tell a good melon without cutting and testing it? That is exactly what an expert melon grader is expected to do, to judge the flavor of the melon as well as the size. The best external indication in a netted Gem and melons of similar type is a golden greenish color, the melon being deeply ribbed and thickly overlaid with rather coarse gray netting, the edges of which rise perpendicularly from the surface. The melon should be heavy. There should be no ragged or broken stem to indicate that the melon was torn from the vine before it was ripe enough to part freely. If one follows these points he is pretty sure to get the perfection of melon produced by the quality of the seed planted. If the seed has come from a tasteless melon the result will be disappointing even with thorough culture and the best care in picking and shipping.—Baltimore American.

HE ATE THE SOAP.

Garland Would Have Swallowed It If It Had Killed Him.

Augustus H. Garland, who was attorney general under President Cleveland, was very fond of practical jokes and during his term of service in the senate frequently turned the laugh on his colleagues. Senators Voorhees and Vest, with whom he was very friendly, finally determined to turn the tables. Mr. Garland had a habit, like Voorhees, of munching candy, and Vest and Voorhees made it up between them to take advantage of his fondness for sweets to play their trick. They had some tempting looking chocolate caramels prepared, with the interior filled with brown soap. These they took to the senate chamber, and Voorhees placed them on his desk. The lid being off, when Mr. Garland sauntered down the aisle he noticed them at once.
"What have you there, Dan?" he inquired.
Voorhees looked up carelessly from his writing and responded: "Caramels. Help yourself."
Garland needed no second invitation and, picking up two or three, placed one in his mouth. Steadily he chewed away, his face betraying no sign of the conflict within him. This alarmed Voorhees, who went to Vest's desk and said:
"He's eating them, Vest! What shall we do? The stuff will kill him sure!"
Senator Vest replied that it could do no more than make him sick. Garland swallowed the stuff, although he was foaming at the mouth from the soap-suds. He related the incident afterward with great gusto and said he would have swallowed it if it had killed him.

Sponges Are Sunstruck.

The sponge being an animal, it is necessary to kill it. This is done by exposing it for several hours on the broad decks of the boats. In summer sponges soon die, but in winter take a long time owing to weaker force of the sun. After death they are brought ashore and put in the cradles. These are enclosures made on the seashore by setting stakes a little apart from each other. The ebb and flow of the tide wash the animal matter from the sponges, and the work is completed by manual labor. They are then taken to the packing house, graded, strung, baled and dispatched to their destination.—Fall Mall Gazette.

"Lone Wolf."

A STORY WITH LOCAL COLOR.
MISS IRENE GARLAND.

It is morning in the country—Early morning at the Grantley ranch house. Pearly dew-drops still cling to the spring flowers and bend the delicate blades of green grass, till their tapering fingers touch daintly the mother earth from which they derive their nourishment. The East is a wealth of gold and a little above the horizon a bed of downy pink clouds floats, slowly, enchantingly, as pushed by an invisible hand, slender shafts of gold shoot here and there to herald the coming of the majestic sun. Presently the gold melts into fire and the sun springs from his long journey to greet with a warm kiss the poor and lowly, the rich and powerful.

Mary Grantley is sitting on the steps of the old ranch house which has been her home since the blue eyes first opened to the light. Her mother a delicate little creature laid down her life when she brought her beautiful child into the world and the father too busy to give much time to caring for the little mite, had allowed her to grow up untaught, as free and natural as the prairie flowers which grew in such profusion around her home. She had had a very beautiful dream and having no one to whom she could relate it had come here to meditate and dwell in its beauties. The picture she made was a very beautiful one, the long braids of burnished gold hair hung over the partially bare shoulders the blue eyes half closed, the dimpled chin resting upon one pink palm. The round sun-burned face turned sturdily to the east. Her only companions were a huge black dog and a white Holland turkey which looked like a giant snowball with a red, red poppy buried in its surface. Sir gobbler fluffed up his feathers, and strutted proudly away. Hero rose and went to his young mistress to receive his morning caress and gratefully lick the hand which bestowed it, then his attention was attracted by a fat little prairie dog which had ventured too near the house and he was off like the swift runner that he was and only stopped when the little animal had arrived at its own home and sat upright a moment then impudently nodded farewell as he disappeared. Hero had chased these little creatures of the prairies all his life but never was able to catch one and his large soft eyes held a look of disappointment as he slowly made his way back to the house, where he expected to find his young mistress, but she was not there; she had saddled her little mustang pony and was swiftly galloping over the prairie.

The high winds so constant on the prairies of west Texas blew noisily through the cacti and tall rank grass which grew around the base and steep sides of Lone Wolf mountain, the sun transformed the earth into a boundless sea of blood. This mountain is about six miles from where the little town of Loraine now stands and is one of the freaks of nature; there are two peaks or ridges whose surface is composed of huge boulders, formed and polished by some unknown force, some long ago upheaval, the scanty soil grows only a few cat claws, cacti and scrubby mesquite, but when spring clothes her in airy robes there is no more beautiful spot in west Texas. A carpet of green covers it and the most beautiful flowers riot in the crevices, beautiful moss and ferns cling near the base of the west ridge.

In a clump of mesquite, formed of the bodies of three small trees and covered with skins, stands an Indian wigwam. It is the dwelling place of a solitary old Comanche chief, he is an old man long since spent in the chase and has taken refuge far from the haunts of civilization, no squaw shares his daily toil and no dusky children play round his wigwam, long since those loved ones of his have perished beneath the wave which keeps pushing the redman toward the land of the setting sun. He cannot give up the wild freedom he enjoyed and the lonely, solitary he is free, his mind filled with thoughts of the buffalo the deer and the antelope, which like him have had to give place to more domestic animals.

This old chief once mighty among the Comanches, first at the council, fiercest in the fight for his land, surest shot among his tribe, hears no more the fierce war-whoop no more the death song of a brother chieftain, he has had wooed his mate, fought his battle all that remains for him is a memory. His dress is of the typical Indian, his deer-skin trousers are fringed with the fur of the mink, claws and feathers of the eagle and bright colored beads are his decoration, his couch the skin of the small black bear, his only possessions are his gun, his fat little Indian pony and a gaunt half wolf dog. He depended upon his skill as a hunter for his food, if he failed he did not murmur, but with that patient endurance characteristic of redmen laid down to rest with the blue dome of heaven as a canopy and the dog to keep watch and frighten away the coyotes.

This morning the old man is weary from his hunt and the sun already climbing toward the zenith caught him fast asleep. He is awakened from a dream of the happy hunting ground by the sullen growl of the dog and quick as an arrow he sprang up and grabbed his gun. He is dazed by his dream and thinks this is some long past occasion of battle or fierce chase after the buffalo. In a moment it all came back to him and he quickly laid his gun back upon the grass, caught the fierce dog and stood calmly watching the approach of a girl perched upon the back of a small black pony. She rode bravely up to the old Indian and having been accustomed to strangers at all times on the ranch, boldly addressed him:

"Good morning, can you tell me how far it is to Colorado, I want to see a town and I am going there." The old chief did not fully understand her, so answered by a shake of the head.

"That's where daddy goes, to send cattle off, won't you go with me, you ain't lost?" Once more the old chief shook his head, saying in broken English: "White Dove, long has Lone Wolf roamed these prairies, he knows them and loves them. The great spirit made for the red man. Lone Wolf loves not the palefaces reservations he is old and his lips speak truth, he loves not your house made with sawmills, your books and schools."

He will stay far away from men—His people are crooked tongue snakes, fools. They listen to the teachings of the pale face who steals, has robbed, destroys. I stay here my broncho."

He lovingly cast his eye toward the pony contentedly nibbling the grass near by.

"Will the white dove hear the Lone Wolf howl; hear him tell the story of his people?"

The young girl who was no other than Mary Grantley who accustomed all her life to going where and at what time it pleased her had left home not knowing or caring whether she journeyed slid lightly from her pony's back and her expectant eyes opened wide, her eager face turned to the wrinkled, bronze one of her strange companion.

"Oh please Lone Wolf tell me all about it."

his way toward the wigwam which came in sight when they had crossed the ridge.

The old chief set before his guest refreshments of dried venison and filled a pipe for her, at this she could not restrain a smile but shook her head and the old man sat upon a blanket and his eyes fixed upon the ground did not speak till the pipe was empty. He then arose with all the dignity of his years and proceeded to relate his story to the waiting girl:

"Many moons ago where the white dove now sits the smoke of the Comanche council fire circled toward the blue sky, mighty warriors, who had taken many scalps told their story of battle. Here we lived, here we hunted, here we married our mates and were happy. The fire from many wigwams blazed among these rocks, here we basked in the rays of yon bright sun, and here we smoked the pipe of peace but by and by the pale faces came, with their terrible instruments of war and what could the poor red man do against the white devil? It was in the time when grass grows and when the deer and antelope have young when the sap is rising, when the pale faces came, much heap pale face, no much heap Injun, Injun fight, fight like devil, Injun have bow and arrow, white devil have fine gun, shoot fine, by and by warriors much heap burned lie dead on all these rocks, white man dead too, but still much heap pale face, Lone Wolf see his warriors all be dead then he hide in cave, come Lone Wolf show white dove." The old man led the fascinated girl to the cave, a part of which may be seen today she did not speak but waited for the old man to continue.

"Lone Wolf journey afar off he journey to the east, to the west, but no rest came to his lodge so he came back to this hill and find bones of his people and put them in cave with all they will want in the happy hunting ground."

Mary peeped within where the skeleton of many Indians lay, the old man had told the truth, he had gathered them up and lovingly placed them there. A shudder crept over her and as she stood there in the grotesque presence she had her first knowledge of fear, and the pure face went white when a loud clap of thunder sounded and echoed among the rocks. They had not noticed that the sky had turned black, that a terrific wind and sand storm was raging. The girl thrust her fingers in her ears and buried her face in her lap and the young heart almost ceased to beat. The old chief was unmoved. He calmly watched the forked lightning dart across the sky and listened to the wind like lost spirits moaning in the crevices of the rock, watched the mesquite wrenched by the fury of the elements writhe and twist like tortured souls, his quick eye caught the glimpses of the jack rabbit as he sought shelter from the storm, the antelope hover in the arms of the mountain.

Suddenly a shock which caused the mountain to rock from base to summit fell and the girl opened her eyes just in time to avoid a huge boulder which was wrenched from its equilibrium and to see it crush to the earth the old chief, completely burying him. With a cry of horror she threw herself forward and pushed and tugged with all her strength while tears gushed over her face. "Oh God, help me to move it, don't let the old Lone Wolf die." She struggled with the boulder till the blood gushed from her fingers and the palms of her hands were bruised and torn by a perfect panic of fear and horror. She did not notice that the rain had begun to pour nor hear the fleet gallop of a pony, nor see the stalwart form of a young cowboy as he sprang from crag to crag, nor did she feel the strong arms which caught her as she fell faintly back into them.

EXPECTS BIG TRADE

A visit to the big store of the Burns and Bell Dry Goods Company will convince anyone that this progressive firm has great faith in the Colorado country and the business outlook the coming season. They are receiving stacks of goods by every freight and their preparation this year is the largest they have made for any fall trade. The keen competition in the northern markets gave their buyers a fine opportunity to get a very select stock of most reasonable prices and the goods are coming in and being opened up fast. The many improvements in the store furnishings, places the store at once in the column with the large city stores. The trade mark, so to speak, of this firm is "One Price to All" and the company has made good, it seems, to the fullest extent in every department this season. In the dress goods, clothing and shoe departments those in charge are busy receiving and marking the new goods and throughout the entire store one is impressed that preparation is going forward looking to a great fall business.

THE JUDICIAL CONVENTION

Pursuant to the call of the district chairman, the judicial convention for the 32nd judicial district met at Midland, Texas, Saturday August 22nd 1908, with the various counties of the same represented either by delegate or proxy.

Prior to the assembling of the convention, district committee met and elected C. B. McGonagill chairman, and proceeded to prepare list of delegates to said convention from counties composing the district, also tabulate the vote cast in each county for the candidates for district judge and district attorney and to ascertain the vote each county of the district was entitled to cast in the convention. After this was done the convention was called to order by chairman McGonagill, and Tom Grisham of Stanton was elected secretary.

The executive committee reported the list of delegates, tabulated vote, and convention vote—all based upon the certified returns from the various counties of the 32 judicial district.

The total vote for district judge was J. L. Shepherd 5402, and W. W. Beall 1.

The vote for district attorney was as follows: L. W. Sandusky 1196, M. Carter 419; R. N. Grisham 2770; J. F. Edison 996. Convention next canvassed the returns of the various counties as presented by the executive committee and found the report true and correct in all things, and upon the motion of E. M. Whitlock, Jas. L. Shepherd of Colorado, Texas and R. N. Grisham of Stanton, were declared by the chairman to be the lawful nominees of the democratic party for the offices of district judge and district attorney respectively of the 32nd judicial district of Texas, they having received the largest vote in the July primary for said offices. J. B. Howard of Martin county was elected district chairman for the ensuing term and the convention adjourned without a day.

WHAT COTTON MILLS DID

You have heard it before; it will bear repeating. There are about 50,000 bales of cotton grown around Spartanburg, South Carolina. This used to be bought for mills in England and other parts of the United States and shipped away. With cotton selling at 10 cents a pound, the county would get $2,500,000 for its 50,000 bales. Now the mills buy this cotton and manufacture it into cloth, which is worth, on an average, about 25 cents a pound. When shipped away from Spartanburg in this form the county gets $2,500,000 for that same 50,000 bales of cotton. But the mills manufacture about 200,000 bales of cotton grown outside the county and that 200,000 bales increase in value about $19,000,000 from the time it comes into the county until it is shipped away again. The mills have made a direct increase in the county's yearly income of about $23,750,000.—Fort Worth Telegram.

It's the same with every town that has tried the mills. They create new wealth every day. In a purely farming section, the farmer is the only class who create wealth and all other classes live by merely exchanging this wealth among themselves.

Golden Opportunity in the Poor Man's Paradise

THE cardinal aim of every man should be to own a home. It is a guarantee of good citizenship, a haven in old age and a shield against poverty. To secure a good home is becoming more difficult every day. To homeseekers Mitchell county offers opportunities and advantages unsurpassed by any other section in the South. While lands in the Black Belt are selling at from $40 to $75 per acre, just as productive and by far better adapted to a comfortable home can be had here for less than half that price. For diversified farming it has no superior in Texas, and the trucker is fast converting it into small farms and orchards. Where else can a homeseeker buy a home surrounded with every protection, advantage and blessing which an enlightened and christian community guarantees, on terms whereby it will pay for itself by ordinary cultivation in two or three years? Many have paid for their homes with one year's crops. Where else in this great country can a man with one team of light horses, break the virgin soil, plant, cultivate 75 to 80 acres of land and raise more than he can possibly gather unto his barn? We can cite you to scores of farmers who have done this the past three years. Some have paid for 160-acre farms from the crops made on what one family could cultivate.

The Mecca of the Trucker and Orchardist

THE City of Colorado is in the heart of the truck growing industry. By virtue of its inexhaustible mines of salt, the basis of its prosperity is solid as a rock. It is comparatively a new town, but the largest and most progressive in the county, it being the county seat. Its citizenship is composed largely of laboring people whose weekly wages are turned for the necessities of life into the channels of trade, thus making the town one of the best retail places in the state.

For many years the advantages of West Texas have been overlooked, as thousands of immigrants flocked to the rich black lands of the State, but a few years experience have invariably convinced them that rich lands alone do not make a good farming condition, and consequently many have continued westward and Mitchell County has not failed to get her share of the disgusted "Blacklanders", who find here just as fertile lands which grow many crops that the black lands are not adapted to producing, also the great blessing of good water and healthful climate, which are important items to the homeseeker.

Colorado has every modern convenience of a progressive municipality, without any of the evils of a city. An up-to-date electric light and power plant, telephone exchange and bottling works and two large 2-story brick public school buildings. The people are liberal and progressive, ready to encourage everything that makes for the good of the community, and ready to support every moral proposition tending to the betterment of their spiritual condition. Several denominations have nice houses of worship, and no town in the State is pervaded by a deeper religious devotion or is before it in christian beneficence. Two large salt works with an aggregate daily output of two carloads of salt, afford steady employment for many laborers. The oil mill, cotton compress and creamery also use considerable labor.

The town is served by the old reliable Texas and Pacific railroad, which pursues toward the place a generous and helpful policy. The company has just spent about $75,000 in the city on a new stone passenger station at the head of Walnut street and a concrete and iron bridge over Lone Wolf creek.

The moral surroundings and school advantages of the town are of the highest standard, and the congenial sociability of the people is very pronounced.

The town receives from 8,000 to 10,000 bales of cotton annually, and the highest market price is always paid by her buyers. Owing to the attraction of trade from such long distances, the volume of business done here is greater than that enjoyed by many towns twice the size of Colorado.

There is ample timber and the finest soft water, but this country's chief claim to the poor man's attention is the diversity of its products. Nowhere are the conditions of living easier or cheaper. Work can be done out of doors practically the year round. The climate is perfect, being 2027 feet above sea level.

To those seeking a home where society is good, where peace and plenty abound, where land is easily acquired and soon paid for, the people of Colorado and Mitchell County extend a cordial welcome.

The corn crop of Mitchell county in the bully year 1908 will take off its hat to no collection of 'kernels' this side of Iowa, and to mighty few of them. Forty to fifty bushels per acre is the average, as we get it from the farmers. The feed crop of west Texas is something immense this year.
