Wireless Telegraphy.

General Greely, Chief of the Signal Corps, has made public the result of recent experiments with wireless telegraphy, says the Scientific American, which have been tried by the signal corps of the United States army. He states that since the announcement of the tests in space telegraphy by Senor Marconi, some two years ago, the subject has been under consideration, and recently experiments have been begun with the object of thoroughly testing the value of this means of communication for military and other governmental purposes. Special forms of apparatus have been designed and constructed for these tests and they have already shown sufficient promise to warrant further and systematic trials.

In the experiments thus far carried on, several forms of transmitters for the generation of the Hertzian waves have been used, and much promise has been realized from the use of a large alternating current coil as a generator instead of the ordinary Ruhmkorff coil employed by Marconi. This coil is energized by a three-quarters horse power rotary transformer furnishing an alternating current at 125 volts, and this arrangement makes a very powerful and efficient source of Hertzian radiation. The former receiver used has been substantially the Brankey "coherer" discovered in 1891, and the signal was recorded upon a receiving tape. The transmitter has been mounted upon the western elevation of the State War and Navy building, utilizing the present wooden flagpole as a vertical wire for the transmitter. The receiver was first placed at the old Naval Observatory grounds, about three-quarters of a mile distant, and later moved to the Signal Corps station at Ft. Myer, Va. During these experiments constant communication was kept up by heliograph and flags between the transmitting and receiving stations, and this greatly facilitated the work of experimenting. Signals, words and letters have been transmitted and received between these stations, but the great delicacy required in the present receiver has made the transmission of regular messages as yet unreliable and uncertain. The presence of large buildings and masses of iron and metal, necessary present in cities, make such places undesirable for carrying out experiments of this character.

The distance over which signals may be transmitted by a given apparatus is governed by the height of the vertical wire used at either end and this has naturally suggested the use of small balloons such as have already been used for signal and other purposes by the Signal Corps. A supply of these balloons has already been obtained, and will be used for this purpose in the near future. General Greely considers that the value of wireless telegraphy for communication between light houses and lightships and the shore is very great, especially where cables cannot be permanently maintained. For the signaling between ships at sea, and to replace ordinary flag methods in use between naval vessels, it should prove invaluable, since no kind of weather, fog, darkness, nor storm will affect its use, but that it will supplant to a material extent the use of wire for ordinary commercial telegraphy is not believed. The use of metal reflectors to augment and direct the radiation to particular points has already met with partial success, and should be thoroughly investigated. At present the radiation proceeds from the transmitter in all directions, and the same message can be received at and point within a proper radius at which a receiver is placed. A satisfactory reflector and a receiver of the proper electric capacity, or in other words tuned to the vibration of the particular transmitter, will make a great advance in space telegraphy. While secrecy of transmission is among the probabilities, the present stage of experiment does not justify its positive prediction.

Members of the Lighthouse Board stationed at Tompkinsville, Staten Island, N. Y., will in a few days begin a series of experiments intended to test the value of wireless telegraphy for use in light-house and lightships. One set of instruments will be set up in a station near St. George, and efforts will be made to communicate with the Scotland lightship. Other experiments will include the Sandy Hook and fire Island lightships. If the experiments are encouraging, they will endeavor to communicate with the Highland lights. The instruments will be isolated as far as possible from other electrical apparatus and it is not believed that there will be anything in the intervening space between the instruments which will interfere with the signaling. The instruments used will be of the Clarke type, which we have already used.

Spreads the Wildfire.

You can't keep a good thing down. News of it travels fast. When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Bellville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have ever handled in my 20 years experience." You know why? Most diseases begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, run-down man or woman. Only 50 cents. Sold by all Druggists, guaranteed.

The treasure seekers at Hillsboro are still digging. They are about 150 feet from the beginning and have found where the cave forked, and are now following both channels. Picks have to be used to make the channels wide enough for wheelbarrows to be run in and cart out the dirt. Several days ago they struck a large boulder, which adds much interest to the search, as the old man who is conducting the work, told about three weeks ago that a large rock would be found. It is thought by those at work that in a few more feet the small channels will open into large chambers, and then the treasure will be revealed.

A Georgia editor received the following missive from a delinquent subscriber says one of our exchanges. "If you say another word in your paper about the money I owe you, I will come to town and maul the devil out of you." The editor replied: "Come along and do it. My wife says I've had the devil in me for years, and if you can succeed in getting him out, perhaps there'll be peace in the family afterward."

Solved the Water Question.

Mr. F. B. Jones, of Dallas, the well known Vice President and General Manager of the Southern Rock Island Plow Company, tells in the Texas Farm and Ranch how the water question has been solved at Bellville. This is the way Mr. Johnson tells it: "A party of us were coming down from St. Louis on the Frisco. In the party was a gentleman from Bellville, whose name I have forgotten. We were telling stories of adventure and experience and when it came the turn of our friend from Bellville he told us how the farmers around that town had secured a perpetual water supply. He said that several years ago, in a very dry season, he was spending the day with a farmer friend when a tramp came along and asked for a drink of water. The farmer told him they had no water except some in a tank for the stock, but he was welcome to a glass of buttermilk if he wanted it. The tramp asked if they had a well. The farmer said they had one but it had gone dry. The tramp said he would guarantee to have water in the well in twenty-four hours, if it had ever had any water in it before. The farmer asked him to dinner on the promise from the tramp that he would begin the water producing feat early in the afternoon. Soon after dinner the tramp got a few pieces of bacon rind and went to the tank where the stock water was kept. He caught a few 'crawfish' and threw them into the well as at the plow and at the fishes. The very best blood of any country is found in the children on the farm. It pays parents, society and the state to keep it there. But the fact the children of the farm are the best of the land because of their isolation from the vices of the cities; will not prevent them from being lured away from the farm by the tinsel and glamour of city life. Let the young people have some pocket money for one thing "a day off" once in a while. If there is an excursion to the Gulf or a holiday in town, arrange to let them go. They want to see something occasionally, and if you go back on them, they will take the matter in their own hands before you are ready. Have them bring their company home and set out the best in the pantry. Put them on their best behavior. Demonstrate your interest in them. Give them some privileges and impose upon them some responsibilities. Change off with the boys and let them come to town every other trip. Let them attend to business, account for every cent of money spent and learn how to manage affairs. Let the girls come too, once and a while. They like to swap gossip the same as Ma does. Tell her what to buy, how much to pay and where to get what is needed. The young folks like to get away from the pans and plows just as well as you do. If there is any music in them, get it out, even if you do have to spend a few dollars for a fiddle or a guitar. Let them saw and thump. Children never were intended for little slaves anyhow. Give the boys and girls a chance."

The sporting men of New York have in their possession a copy of the record of the birth of Bob Fitzsimmons, filed at Helston, Cornwall, England. The great pugilist was born May 23, 1863, consequently he has just passed his 36th year. Fitz has always stated his age at a year older.

An election was held in San Antonio last Tuesday to decide where the International fair would be held. The old fair grounds on the San Antonio river, south of town, was chosen as the best place.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on any druggist, and get a free trial bottle. Regular sizes 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed, or price refunded.

The Silver X-Ray gives so good an editorial on the boys and girls of a farm that we copy it in full. And while it applies more especially to country people yet it has in it a great good for all who will lead and profit by the advice it gives.

Give the boys and girls on the farm a chance to enjoy some little social intercourse and they will not leave the farm and flock to the cities. Provide them with books, papers and magazines. Arrange them at their literaries.
