A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Missing a gnome or two?

The latest story about seven dwarves features a cast renamed to fit a new plot line.

There's Stolen, Pilfered, Switched, Mooched, Bungled, Looted and Plundered.

Despite the circumstances, police in the bedroom community of Morton, Ill. — 14 miles east of Peoria — hope for happy ending to the story of these garden gnomes.

Police have been holding the abandoned gnomes since early May, when some were found dumped in an empty lot and others were left in a downtown parking area.

Three gnomes have since been spoken for, after a story on their plight ran in the Journal Star of Peoria a couple of weeks ago.

"I've still got some gnomes I can't find a home for," Police Chief Nick Graff said last week.

Graff said he suspects the gnomes were kidnapped by teen-agers who grabbed them as a prank and then dumped them, either in panic or simply because they got bored.

Diner can't recall big tip

A British man who left a Chicago waitress a $10,000 tip — which was rejected by his credit-card company — says he was drunk at the time and doesn't remember leaving such a tip.

David Martyn Nicholas left the tip two weeks ago for a waitress who told him she was earning money for graduate school.

Nicholas even said he thought someone may have taken advantage of his drunken state, but Leg Room owner Fred Hoffman said Nicholas let the manager photocopy his ID and then signed a statement that he was agreeing to a $10,000 tip.

The waitress still wins, though: Hoffman and the other owners of the Leg Room have pledged to give the waitress the money themselves because of the publicity their business got from the incident.

July 2 — The USS Carolina blockades the Confederate port of Galveston (1861).

July 4 — The Texas Convention ratifies an annexation offer made by the United States, thus agreeing that the Republic of Texas will become the state of Texas (1845).

July 6 — Fort Mason is established (1851) on the Llano River in what was then considered far West Texas. The fort is occupied intermittently before being abandoned by the Union, then is re-occupied from 1866 to 1869.

LOCAL WEATHER

Partly cloudy conditions are expected to hang on through the end of the week, with some area residents having a hard time believing that some of their neighbors still haven't had significant rain. Sunday through Tuesday should be hot (mid- to upper 90s), cooling to about 94 for Wednesday and Thursday.

Texas Rangers investigate sheriff's use of funds

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

A member of the Texas Rangers confirmed Thursday that the agency is investigating Bailey County Sheriff Coy Plott's use of money from a Teen Court fundraiser.

"We are pursuing whatever leads may develop," said Lt. Dusty McChord, who is based in Lubbock.

Plott has acknowledged spending the $967.60 raised through a magic show to help start a Teen Court program in Bailey County.

He also has said he had no idea

the money was considered public funds, and since it had been in the bank for nearly a year he assumed the Teen Court organizers had decided not to proceed.

Plott says he spent the money on computers and other office equipment, but no receipts were filed with the county — since he did not believe it was county money.

McChord cautioned against drawing early conclusions about the case. "These investigations can go either way — they can clear people as well as result in charges," he said.

DPS issues caution for July Fourth

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Texas motorists need to slow down, drive sober and chill out when they're on the road this holiday weekend, the director of the Department of Public Safety said Thursday.

"Drivers need to remember to take their time on the way to Fourth of July celebrations," Col. Thomas A. Davis Jr. said. "Temperatures can get short in the heat, and road rage doesn't solve any problems."

During the last July 4 holiday, Texas had 32 traffic fatalities — 15 of them (or 47 percent) alcohol-related. Also, Davis said, the number of those who were not wearing seat belts when they were killed is exactly twice the number who were.

Seniors selling planks

Members of Muleshoe's newest senior class will be "making history in Muleshoe" on the Fourth of July by selling planks in the chamber of commerce beautification project from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Mule Lot. Gathered around are (from left, back row) Cade Hooten, Jerrell Otwell and Travis Tunnell; (from left, front row) Joey Tucker, Dan Williams, Brandon Broyles and Megan Tipps.

How about a little Frizzell with the Fourth fireworks?

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

David Frizzell is the country crooner who can stop an audience in its tracks with the line, "There's a full moon over Tulsa ..."

That, of course, sets the mood for his most famous record, "You're the Reason God Made Oklahoma." Shelly West, who sang it with him on the famous version, won't be in Muleshoe to sing it with him Tuesday, but he's bringing in Peggy Rains. She comes from Chalk Bluff, Okla., and probably has an idea or two about why God made the place.

But even before that duet ushers in Tuesday's Independence Day fireworks, there is Monday: An all-day ex-students reunion (schedule on Page 3) at the Bailey County Coliseum and all-day entertainment featuring Freddy Fender, Jack Stone and many others.

On the Fourth itself, the day begins with a chuck wagon breakfast a Joe's Boot Shop (7 a.m. to 9 a.m.), slow-pitch softball (8 a.m. at city park), Main Street vendors (9 a.m. and through the day), a bike-decorating contest (9 a.m. at the Boy Scout Grounds) and a parade that will leave the Boy Scout Grounds at 10 a.m. to head north through town on Main Street and return on First Street.

At 10:30 a.m., it's the deadline for signing up to perform in the talent contest — a showcase for local folks that begins at 11:30 a.m. at the Mule Lot.

Also at 10:30, at Joe's Boot Shop, Eldorado begins the day-long entertainment (the same band plays another set at 11:30 a.m.).

11 a.m. brings the last chance to register for kids' activities on Main Street and the mixed scramble at the Muleshoe Country Club (1 p.m. start time).

During the noon hour (12:30) Shauna Chanda will entertain at Joe's.

At 1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m., Frizzell and Rains bring the first of their shows to mellow out the crowd at Joe's.

They repeat with a big show (still free) at 9 p.m. in the city park, just before time to shoot off the fireworks.

From 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on the Fourth, it's pioneers reunion at the Coliseum and at 7:30 p.m. at seniors dance at the American Legion.

At 10 p.m., fireworks in the park!

It's official! Board picks Sheets as superintendent

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Gene Sheets, school superintendent at Hamilton, Texas, for the past two years, was appointed by the Muleshoe School Board on Thursday to succeed David Hutton at the helm of local schools.

Sheets is scheduled to assume his new duties Sept. 1, Nick Bamert, president of the Muleshoe board, said in announcing the decision.

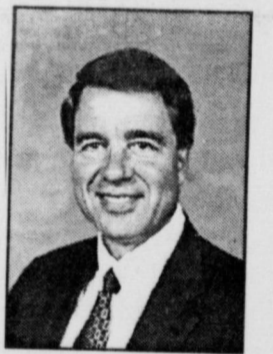

Board members had visited Hamilton after interviewing Sheets and the other two finalists.

"This guy is a perfect match for us," said Curtis Shelburne, board vice president.

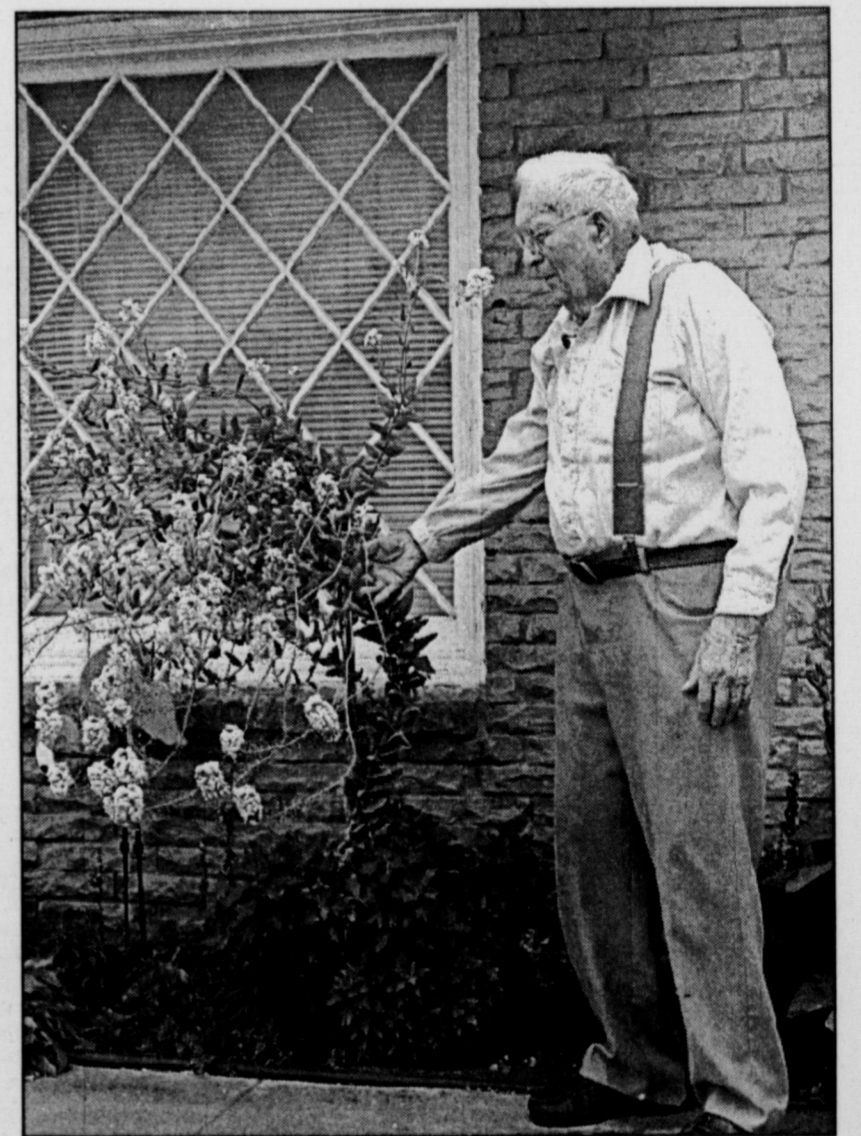

The move will be a homecoming of sorts for Sheets, who grew up at Farwell.

Other finalists were Eddie Dunn, a principal at Seminole, and R. Kent Bowerman, a principal at Big Spring.

Hutton, who left Muleshoe after a year, is now high school principal at Texico, N.M.

Extension Service offers Fourth of July safety tips

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL
It may seem that everywhere a fireworks enthusiast turns, somebody is offering "safety tips" during the Fourth of July holiday season.

That's because fireworks may be fun, but they are also undeniably dangerous if used carelessly.

Seven thousand Americans are treated for fireworks-related injuries annually, according to an Extension home-environment expert.

Janie Harris, a housing and environment specialist with the Extension Service in College Station, advises:

- Always read and follow label directions on fireworks;
- Buy fireworks from a reputable dealer, and become familiar with local laws for fireworks use. Almost all are permitted under Texas law, but there can be local exceptions;
- Have water, in the form of a garden hose or bucketful, available in case of fire;
- Never experiment or try homemade fireworks;
- Light only one device at a time;
- Never relight a malfunctioning device. Wait 15 to 20 minutes for it to cool, then soak it in water;
- Never shoot fireworks in metal or glass containers; and
- Dispose of fireworks properly by soaking them in water and then placing them in a trash can.

Harris said that most importantly, a responsible adult should be present to set an ample of safety and caution for children during Independence Day activities.

"Children learn by watching others," she said.

Check out an extinct species

Let us explore the vanishing cowboy — myth or reality. First let us consider a truly vanished icon, the mastodon hunter.

All that remains of this mighty figure are a few paintings on a cave wall. That, and a book cover or two with him in a furry loincloth posing with his spear and a Raquel Welch look-alike complete with bear-skin bikini and shaved legs.

Why did this once-powerful cave man vanish? Because the prehistoric Fish and Game outlawed hunting mastodons? Because they became vegetarians? No ... it was because they ran out of mastodons.

The legacy of the mastodon hunter is now kept alive by Cabelas, L. L. Bean, Remington, The Flintstones, Tarzan, Charlton Heston, the Olympics and the Discovery Channel.

Back to the vanishing cowboy: There are many categories of cowboys, i.e. cowboy artists, rodeo cowboys, trail-ride cowboys, cowboy poets, cowboy singers, line-dancing cowboys, movie cowboys, and others who exist to glorify or imitate the real thing.

But unlike the mastodon, we have not run out of cows. Many will be quick to point out, especially when the market is low, that we have too many.

It is also true that in some parts of the world, cows are commonly raised without cowboys — New Dehli, Kenya and Indianapolis, to name three.

On the earth there are vast expanses of grazing land that are not suitable to farming, like Queensland, Mongolia, the Russian steppes, the Argentine pampas and Wyoming.

These are places where four-wheelers dare not go — deep canyons, mesquite thickets, mountain tops, slippery slopes and river crossings.

Those machinery-unfriendly spots are suitable to cows and best tended by men a'horseback.

To ride the rim, to check or gather, to pop 'em outta the brush, to ford the mountain stream and push 'em out the other side is most easily accomplished if one can follow in the cow's footsteps.

I feel this is true even in places like the Ozarks of Missouri or the hollers of West Virginia.

BAXTER BLACK

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

So, if the cowboy is to vanish, we must first dispose of the cows in these otherwise unreachable locals. We must eradicate or outlaw cows in most of Australia, most of Western Canada and the United States and the heart of Argentina, just as a start.

Which would create the inevitable Catch 22: By reducing the number of indigenous cows to the point of extinction, we would automatically kick in the Endangered Species Act.

To protect them, the government would have to hire men a'horseback to manage the declining herds. It becomes a never-ending, self-perpetuating circle. Cows and cowboys.

In conclusion, the vanishing cowboy some talk about wistfully is a myth. But how would they know if he's vanishing if they never leave the freeway?

I can assure you he's still out there chasin' them new mastodon. You just can't see him from the road.

Many perennials are a snap to start from seeds as annuals are

By RONN SMITH
Editor

If you need several perennials to complete a project but don't have the money to buy specimen plants in large numbers, many perennials are just as easy to grow from seed as the annuals are.

There is sometimes a trick, though, in knowing when to plant perennials. For many of them, the prime planting season is approaching.

This fact — along with not covering the seeds of many species — may cause some people to scratch their heads, but it's no mystery: It mimics nature.

Spring-flowering perennials have already begun scattering their seeds for next year, with summer bloomers to start that process in a month or so.

Many perennials come up in late summer or fall, the young plants survive the winter (if it isn't too harsh), and they are ready for an immediate burst of growth when the weather warms up in the spring — far ahead of plants whose seeds wait until spring to sprout.

As for not covering the seeds, it makes sense that if a seed falls to the ground now and begins to sprout in a month or six weeks, the chances are that it won't be covered with soil. Because of that, many species actually require light in order to germinate.

Note that some of these plants listed (such as gaillardia) also can be planted in the spring and will bloom the first year, but many others won't develop that quickly.

Suggestions are:

- Achillea (or yarrow) — Sow in July or August and do not cover the seeds. Germination takes a week or two.

- Alyssum montanum (formerly known as Alyssum saxatile) — Sow in late summer and do not cover the seed. Germination takes three to four weeks. (This is not sweet alyssum, which is an annual and will not survive the winter.)

- Armeria (also called thrift or sea pink) — Sow in mid- to late summer and do not cover seed. Sprouts in two or three weeks.

- Candytuft — Sow in August.

- Coreopsis (or tickseed) — Sow in late summer or fall; usually requires light to germinate.

- Columbine — Sow in July or August. Do not cover seed.

- Cephalaria — Sow in late summer or early fall and cover seeds very lightly.

- Cobaea (or cathedral bells) — Sow from July to October and cover seeds half an inch deep.

- Dianthus (most species) — Sow from June to October and cover seed lightly.

- Delphinium — Fine for sowing during late summer, but I include it here in order to recommend always starting them indoors (no matter the season) in order to maintain a constant temperature more easily. Most species germinate best at about 70 degrees, but Zalil (the yellow-flowered one) requires 45 degrees.

- Echinacea (also called purple coneflower even though some varieties are white) — Sow about July or August and cover lightly. Sometimes these can make fairly substantial plants before winter.

- Gaillardia (or blanket flower or Indian blanket) — Sow anytime between June and the end of August. Do not cover the seed.

- Gypsophila (or baby's breath) — Sow in late summer and cover lightly. Germinates in 10 days. (Make sure to get a perennial type, usually Gypsophila paniculata, rather than an annual, for sowing now.)

- Hollyhock — Sow in fall.

- Liatris (also called blazing star or gayfeather) — Sow any-

- time from June to August. Do not cover seed. (This is one of the most underrated plant families for our region, I'd say.)

- Lobelia (or cardinal flower) — Sow in November and do not cover seed. Once again, do not confuse this with the annual bedding plants that are also lobelias. (I also don't recommend the perennial unless you have a spot that can easily be kept moist, but it's a beauty when the conditions are right.)

- Monarda (or bee balm) — Sow anytime from June to August.

- Malva (or mallow) — Sow in fall.

- Myosotis (or forget-me-not) — Sow in July and August, and leave seed exposed to light. (Note also that this is not the only genus of plants known as forget-me-nots.)

- Pansy — Although it isn't a perennial, I include it here because July is the time to plant it for blooming in the fall and early winter. Use seed flats or some other indoor method, though, or the July-August (and possibly early September) heat will wreak havoc with your young pansies.

- Pyrethrum (or painted daisy) — Sow anytime from June to August.

- Poppy, oriental — Sow in June or July. (Note that most poppy seeds available commercially are annuals, which reportedly germinate best if scattered on snow in early spring.)

- Polemonium (or Jacob's ladder) — Sow in fall or winter.

- Stachys (or lamb's ears) — Sow anytime from June to August.

- Shasta daisy (Chrysanthemum maximum) — Sow October to January. Do not cover seed.

Happy planting!

The Small Business Development Center at Clovis Community College is offering workshops for businesses this summer.

A two-part Small Business Tax Seminar is scheduled for 8 a.m. (Mountain time) to 4 p.m. July 11 and July 25 in Room 103.

The workshop is geared to helping anyone who has recently started a business or who has an established business but has tax questions.

The first session will include information about Schedule C, Schedule SE, Schedule C-EZ and tax deductions for home offices.

The second session will cover withholding taxes, payroll taxes and record-keeping for audits.

Pre-registration deadline for the first session is July 7 and for the second is July 21. The fee is $25 per session or $30 for both (by July 7), which includes morning and afternoon refreshments, an in-depth study guide and a workbook.

The workshop can serve as a prerequisite for the QuickBooks 2000 course that is scheduled for this fall.

The fee is $25 and the pre-registration deadline is July 14.

Those wishing to attend any of the workshops may register in the college's business office.

SCRIBES WERE WRITERS WHO WERE EMPLOYED, PUBLICLY, TO WRITE UNDER DICTATION AND TO DRAW UP LEGAL DOCUMENTS (JER 36:32) (JER 32:12). A DESCRIPTION OF AN ANCIENT SCRIBE IS GIVEN IN EZEKIEL 9:2 BUT MUCH OF OUR KNOWLEDGE OF SCRIBES IS OBTAINED FROM STATUES AND CARVED BAS-RELIEFS LEFT BY THE ANCIENTS! FROM THE EGYPTIAN DYNASTY IV HAVE BEEN PRESERVED PICTURES OF SEATED SCRIBES WITH THEIR SHARPENED RUSH PENS AND PALETTES. AT ANCIENT NINEVEH, CARVINGS SHOW SCRIBES LISTING THE LOOT AND THE CAPTIVES FROM A TOWN CAPTURED BY SENNACHERIB! IT WAS ONLY THROUGH THE WORK OF SCRIBES THAT THE SCRIPTURES WERE TRANSMITTED FOR CENTURIES---IT WAS ARDUOUS AND FATIGUING WORK AND IN A.D. 301 EMPEROR DIOCLETIAN SET THE WAGES OF SCRIBES AT 25 DENARIII PER 100 LINES, FOR WRITING OF THE FIRST QUALITY, AND AT 20 DENARIII FOR THAT OF SECOND QUALITY! # Herman, Liles exchange vows in Austin

A.J. Liles and Erin Beth Herman were married May 12 in an outdoor ceremony in Austin.

The ceremony was led by Sharon Sarlo of Ethical Culture Ceremonies, a non-denominational organization rooted in religious tradition but whose wedding ceremonies focus on the personal feelings of the participants.

The Martin Banks Jazz Quartet from Austin provided music.

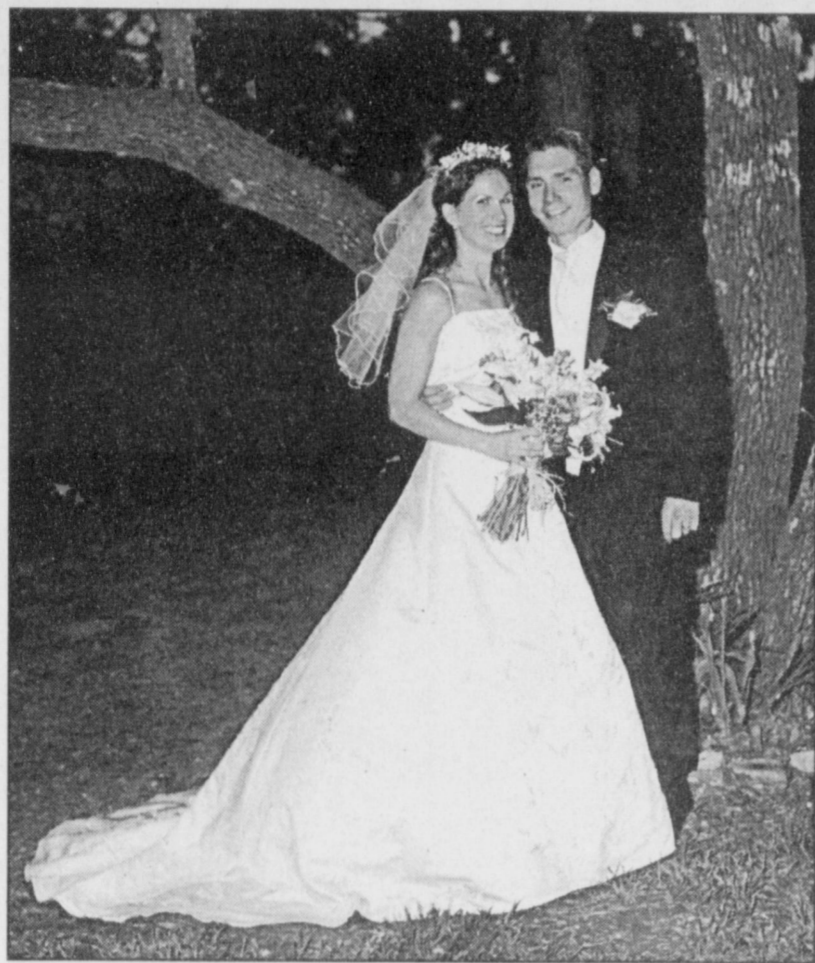

The maid of honor was Shoshana Kuttner of New York City. Bridesmaids were Colleen Bass of Austin; Alyssa Jasso of Sunnyvale, Calif.; Amber Branham of San Marcos, Texas; and Rachel Grant of Austin.

They wore dresses of blue satin with overlays of iridescent blue chiffon. The fitted bodices were topped with spaghetti straps and accented with matching blue scarves draped around the shoulder and neck.

The bridesmaids' hair was accented with baby's breath and blue delphiniums, and they carried bouquets of blue delphiniums.

The best man was Jaime Bass of Austin. Groomsmen included Roque Flores Plano, Texas; Frank Precure of Grand Prairie, Texas; and Mark Brand and Kyle Shepard, both of Austin. Groomsmen wore matching black tuxedos with black vests, full-length black ties and rose boutonniers.

Krysta Carlisle of New Braunfels, Texas, served as the flower girl. She wore a short white dress and scattered rose peals.

Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Liles

Colten Harris of Lubbock, a nephew of the groom, served as ringbearer. He was dressed like the groom — in a black tuxedo with white vest and tie — and carried the rings on a needlepoint pillow belonging to the bride.

The bride wore a formal white satin spaghetti-strap gown with pearl beading in floral designs at the top of the fitted bodice and along the hem of the full skirt and short train.

She wore a short veil of illusion accented with fresh baby's breath and roses, and she carried a bouquet of white Asiatic lilies and white spray roses.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white vest and full white tie, with a rose boutonniere matching the flowers in the bride's bouquet.

Following tradition, the bride incorporated something old, a 7-year-old picture of her with her maid of honor; something new, stationery; something borrowed, The Lost Book of Paradise, which was alluded to in the maid of honor's toast at the reception; and something blue, colored bath products.

The ceremony included the release of three dozen monarch butterflies at the moment the new husband and wife kissed, symbolizing the start of their new life together. The occasion also included rain, a traditional sign of good luck at spring weddings.

Both the ceremony and the reception were held at The Vista on Seward Hill. Dinner was catered by Austin's Central Market South.

The wedding cake was a three-tiered, strawberry-filled white cake decorated with fresh purple irises.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Sam Hill Grill on Lake Travis in Austin. The tables were decorated with potted phalaenopsis orchids, native holly branches, decorated birds and butterflies, candles and curly ribbons in the bride's colors of blue and white. A live band played oldies.

After a night at the Four Seasons Hotel in Austin, the couple left for a seven-day honeymoon on the Hawaiian island of Kauai, as well as stops in San Francisco to visit relatives and friends on the way to and from Hawaii.

The couple will live in San Marcos, Texas, where the bride is a child development center supervisor for the San Marcos School District and the groom is a senior at Southwest Texas State University majoring in sports management. He also works at the Outback Steak House.

The bride is the daughter of Ken and Gayle Herman of Danville, Calif. She graduated from San Ramon (Calif.) High School and earned a bachelor of liberal arts degree from Southwest Texas State.

The groom is the son of Alice and Bill Liles of Muleshoe. He is a graduate of Muleshoe High School.

Camp SPC aims to help new students

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

There are camps for kids who want to practice their tennis skills. There are camps for musicians who want to improve their instrumental or vocal skills.

Now there's a camp for people who want to improve their success rate in college.

Camp SPC is a five-day program sponsored this summer by South Plains College in Levelland and targeted at students who feel they need a little extra preparation before coming to college.

Camp SPC will meet from 9 a.m. to noon Aug. 14-18 in the Student Services Building.

"This is an effort to help these students feel comfortable in the college environment, develop the skills they need for college success, help them access college services and move toward their educational goals," said Claudine Oliver, director of guidance and counseling at the college.

Spearheading activities for the camp are Oliver, Gracie Quiñonez (multicultural services coordinator and diversity counselor at the college) and María López-Strong (counselor at the college's Reese campus).

The camp is aimed at "those who need more time to hone college success skills, returning students who may have been out of school awhile and others who feel less secure about their study skills," Oliver said.

Topics aimed at getting their college career on the right track include goal-setting, career exploration, study skills, testing strategies, stress management, diversity awareness, financial planning and campus and community resources.

Students also will hear talks by motivational speakers and participate in activities to help them explore their career goals.

"It will be a mix of information, support, team-building and fun," Oliver said. "We want to plug these students into whatever areas of help they need."

Participants also will receive help with advising, class scheduling and pre-registration for fall classes.

A $200 scholarship to attend the camp will be awarded to students who do 20 hours of volunteer mentoring and service projects in the upcoming fall and spring semesters at South Plains.

The camp is optional, even for those planning to enter South Plains. Students can attend a regular two-day orientation session, scheduled during July and August at the school.

More information is available by calling (806) 894-9611, ext. 2366 or 2368.

Grief Is a Strange and Powerful Thing

Grief is a strange thing. In its acute form it's like a growling and potentially vicious dog. It's far too loud and too dangerous to ignore, and so you deal with it head-on. But then, about the time you begin to feel that you're dealing pretty well with grief (and you probably are), the wretched cur, evidently rigged for silent running because you heard not a single growl of warning, bites you in the tail section. And here we go again. It's probably neither quite little family circle. It won't be easy, but we'll learn something through this that will help us help others."

As usual, Dad was right. When Mom died, we weren't ready—you're never ready—but we knew it was coming. And we drank the whole bitter cup. We walked the whole path and didn't dodge anything. (Hospice was a huge help in making a difficult experience one of the most meaningful of our lives.) It does no good, you see, to dodge grief. It will come. Better just to look it in the eye and let it.

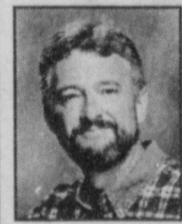

And Dad's death in January? Well, it was much the same as Mom's in some ways and much different in others. He was 87, and so how unexpected could it be? But it still caught us by surprise. It was a "good" death. No regrets. Nothing left unsaid. No bitterness in the background. And, again, we've not dodged the grief. But this whirlwind of a year has left precious little time for it. It comes anyway, and this is one untamed and unruly visitor you've no choice but to make time for, one way or another.

Dad was the best man I've ever known. I don't feel like he's that far away. He had a wonderful life and was granted a good death. He'd preached on the Sunday before his death. His text was from Psalm 90: "Lord, teach us to number our days that we may gain a heart of wisdom." It was a good time to go (though he was scheduled to preach on that coming Sunday!).

So much right about his life and his death—and his faith. So much good. So much for which to be thankful.

But I miss him deeply. No surprise. Dad is the one who told me from his own experience with his own parents that it would be this way.

as bad nor as long-lived as the first fight with the beast. Maybe, in fact, it's just back for a melancholy moment or two. But you still recognize the snarling pup. It's from the same untamed family as the first one. It's grief. Round two or five or twenty. And it's not even, by any means, all bad. It just surprises you when it suddenly shows up.

I don't know how many people I've walked with through their own grief experiences. A bunch. And so have my brothers, all pastors who've stood beside many a grave. And so did Dad. I can only imagine how many funerals Dad performed, though, knowing Dad, I'm sure we could easily find records of every one and the exact number of services—when, where, etc.

When Mom died in 1992, I remember Dad telling us something like this, "Fellows, we've all helped with countless funerals. But this is the first time death has touched our

TOPS NEWS

The TOPS No. 34 meeting on June 29 was held at the regular site, the fellowship room of the Muleshoe Church of Christ.

Laverne James, leader, presided over the meeting and led the prayer and pledge.

Alma Robertson led both TOPS songs.

Polly Otwell, co-leader, read the previous week's minutes in the absence of secretary Janie Hughes. The minutes were approved as read.

Eighteen members were present for the weigh-in by Alene Bryant and Betty Jo Davis, weight recorders.

The best loser was Ruth Clements; Davis was first runner-up and Otwell second.

An auction complete with "play" money and a gift brought by each member was the fun part of the evening. James served as an auctioneer, along with Joline Franklin.

The Red Pepper Tree Contest is the latest design of contest chairperson Jewel Peeler. A red pepper with a member's name on it can be found only in the tree or on the ground.

When a TOPS member loses weight, "her" red pepper remains on the tree or it is moved from the ground to the tree. Changes occur each week.

The only alternative is staying the same — in which case the pepper stays in the same place, too.

Highlights of the upcoming July 6 meeting will be the announcement of the six-months queen and the first runner-up. Pictures will be taken

IN TEXICO 1943-2000

(505) 482-3363 • 314 Wheeler Ave.

To all our very special and valued customers:

This is one of, if not the hardest letter we will ever have to write. After more than 57 years, we have made the decision to liquidate our business and retire.

Much thought and prayer have gone into this decision, and we can assure you it has been an extremely hard one. "This Old Store" has been very good to us, and we've been blessed with the finest customers and employees anyone could hope for.

We want each of you to know how much we appreciate your loyalty, and thank you for having given us the opportunity to serve you all these years. It has been a truly enjoyable experience that we will miss each day. We know we will have trouble adjusting to this change, until we settle into a new routine. We will start our sale at 9:00 a.m. (CDT) on July 1, 2000 and hope to see you all there.

Thank you again for your patronage.

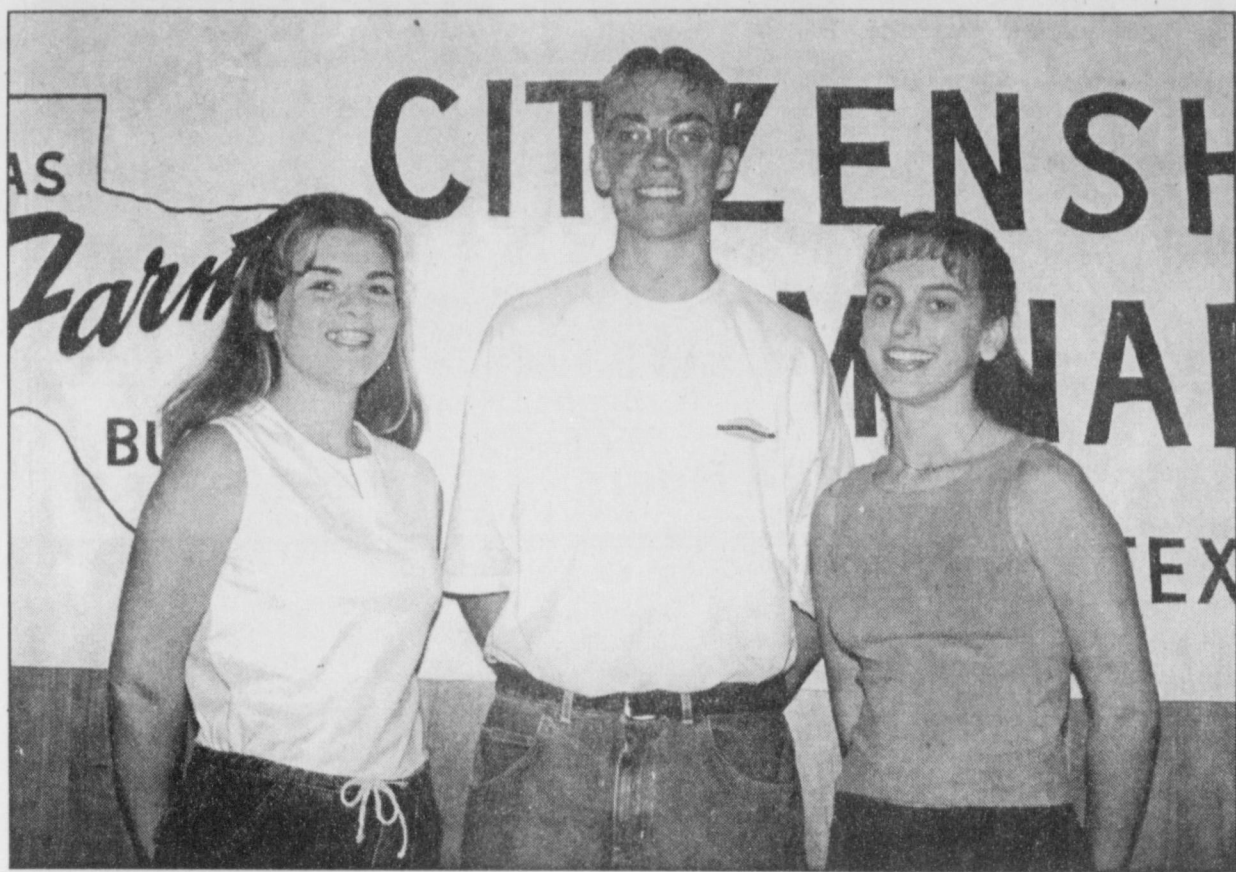

Sincerely,
