Enemy of Grape Myrtles

The number one enemy of crape myrtles is powdery mildew. It forms a white, powdery covering on the leaves, stems and flowers and stunts the leaves, causing them to curl up. The entire twig may die; in fact, mildew can kill even a large plant to the ground.

Sadie Hatfield, extension specialist in landscape gardening of Texas A&M College, says that mildew forms often on plants in damp climates than in dry areas, and plants in shady spots are liable to the disease. It disappears in hot, dry summer weather, but may return in the fall.

The best cure for the disease, she says, is dusting sulphur—the kind that is used to dust cotton. It's also known as 325-mesh sulphur. Dust after every rain or once a week. Be careful, in watering after dusting, not to wet the leaves.

Mildew-resistant crape myrtles can be bought, but most of the older plantings are the kind which are susceptible to the disease, Miss Hatfield points out.

Remember that only the cotton-dusting sulphur or 325-mesh-sulphur will do the job, Miss Hatfield warns, as the more coarsely ground kind does not have any effect at all on the disease.

Yellow Leaves to Green

Shrubs, shade trees or fruit trees in the yard that have yellow leaves on them can be given a little medicine to turn the leaves green again, says Sadie Hatfield, extension landscape gardening specialist of Texas A&M College.

To correct the yellow color that comes into leaves about this time of year, add about a pound of copperas and sulphur for every large shrub or small tree. Fertilizers mixed with the soil at the same time will also help prevent yellow formation in the leaves.

Spread a vegetable mulch four or five inches deep around the shrubs to keep their roots from drying out when the temperatures soar this summer. The mulch holds the moisture in the soil where the plants can get it. The mulch, spread over an area of several square feet and several inches thick, will gradually work itself into the ground.

Several different things can be used for mulching plants. Compost, grass cuttings, straw or any other kind of decaying plant material are also good. The grass cuttings are good plant materials furnishing nitrogen and other plant foods. Another advantage of grass clippings is that they make the soil acid, making iron available to the plants.

Most of the Texas soils have enough iron in them, but sometimes it is combined with other minerals and cannot be used by the plants. However, when the soil is made slightly acid, the iron is released and taken up by the plant.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Isenhower are the parents of a young daughter, who arrived the ninth of July. Weight 8 pounds, 6 ounces. Her grandparents are Mrs. Ruth Whitaker of Weatherford and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pruet of Putnam.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Eubank had the following children visiting in their home on Sunday, July 4th: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilbank and children of Moran, Mrs. N. E. Miller and son of Fort Worth, Mrs. Ckub Lowe of Albany, Mrs. R. F. Webb and children of Cisco and Mrs. Claude Franklin of Hayward, Calif.

The near-empty war surplus barrels of the Southwest region are being scraped these days in an effort to provide critically needed supplies for expansion of polio treatment facilities in Texas. Surplus property inventories were searched last week to find iron pipe for an addition to the Grand-view polio hospital in the Rio Grande Valley. A sufficient quantity, 800 feet, was located in Houston and rushed to the project before it had to be halted. At Gonzales the Warm Springs Infantile Paralysis foundation put out a call for some high pressure pumps, which were quickly withdrawn from a scheduled public sale just before sale time. A polio clinic in Houston was enabled to solve its problem of overcrowding by the use of a government surplus building furnished by the War Assets Administration.

WAA's last scheduled location sale of surplus buildings bids fair to be one of the largest of its kind ever held. The sale will be held at Camp Joseph T. Robinson on three days, July 27, 28, and 29. Public inspection of the various structures will open on July 12 and continue till sale time. Addition of all the odd buildings for offsite use at the big camp will make the total number to be offered at this sale in the neighborhood of 4,400 structures. Only other known sale to rival it in size was held at Camp Livingston, Louisiana, October 21, 22 and 23, involving 4,449 buildings. WAA believes the Camp Robinson disposal will be the final public, auction-type operation to be held in the Southwest, as remaining structures are scheduled to be sold on a sealed bid basis.

Tag-end items of consumer goods are being rounded up at Camp Swift, near Bastrop, for a clean-up sale there July 23. Screen doors, steel cots, heaters, stoves and furniture articles will go to the highest bidders.

W-a-a

Utility facilities and the buildings housing such terminals at the Dalhart Army Air Field and the field's two auxiliaries are being placed on sale by War Assets Administration to both priority and non-priority purchasers. All property is for removal from the grounds. Included are well houses, turbine pumps, electric motors, wood poles, copper wire and related materials. Priorities will have until July 26, and bid forms will be available to the general public beginning August 12. An inventory list will be furnished on request to the Grand Prairie regional office of real property disposal.

W-a-a

Approximately $50,000 worth of surplus consumer goods located in the Rio Grande Valley will be offered in 75 bid lots on July 28. Property is located at Fort Brown, Brownsville; Moore Field, Mission, and the Custom Collectors Office at Laredo. The goods will consist of vehicles, heaters, refrigerators, mowers, ranges, chairs and other general products. Veterans and other prospective buyers are invited to complete inspection July 26 and 27. Sale will be at Fort Brown.

W-a-a

All of the remaining buildings classed for offsite use at Camp Swift, near Bastrop, will be disposed of by sealed bid method during July and August. Involved is a total of 354 buildings and fixtures, eligible to be purchased by priority claimants during an opening period, with the balance of the offering going to the general public. The priority period will expire July 26. Bid forms will be available to all who desire the structures on a non-priority basis beginning August 10. Additional information may be obtained from the awarding office, WAA's regional office of real property disposal, box 6030, Dallas.

BRECKENRIDGE MAN POSTS $200 REWARD AFTER THEFT OF EQUIPMENT FROM RIG

Dick Tolbert, Breckenridge drilling contractor, this week posted a $200 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of persons who allegedly stole tools and equipment from the drilling well on the Groehl & Powell lease, two miles Southeast of Cross Plains.

Reported missing are pipe dies, electric grinder, hatchets, axe and levels.

When the white men discovered this country, the Indians were running it. There was no debt. The women did all the work. And the white man thought they could improve on a system like that.
