Full Court Of Carnival Announced

Baby Show Prize Awarders Named—Full Program Is Planned

The Museum Carnival to be held Saturday afternoon in the old Deats' Storage garage on Scoury street will start off with a bang at 3 o'clock. A number of rollicking, uproarious side shows has been planned. A program during the afternoon and evening will present skits as entertaining as any on the stage and will be given by actors whom everybody knows.

The big event of the evening will be the crowning of the queen, Miss Modesta Good. She will preside over the court of the carnival, and will be attended by the following twelve high school beauties representing the four classes:

The queen's trumpeter will be Jack Cook and her herald Dean Sanders. Little Misses Dean Ann Blankenship and Felice Nesbitt will be the flower girls. Little Misses Janet Robb, Gerry Hodges, Louise Ann Bennett and Josephine Timmons will be the train bearers.

The queen's crown bearer will be James Monroe Hardy.

A short program of dancing has been arranged especially in the queen's honor. Jean Porter will give a toe dance. Jean Kuykendall will give a ballet number.

Other details of the program will be announced in full in tomorrow's Herald.

Aviator Found Not Guilty Of Girl's Death

Woman Died In Fall From Window Of Hotel Room

HOUSTON—H. H. Edwards, 37, Nevada, aviator, was acquitted of charges of murder for the death of his fiancée, Miss Ivy Young, returned after the jury had been out for hours.

Edwards was charged with murder in connection with the fatal plunge of Miss Young from his hotel room on Feb. 19. The actress fell seven stories to her death.

The state contended Edwards either pushed or threw his fiancée, who was registered in the hotel as his wife, from the hotel window. The defense contended Miss Young fell accidentally.

When the verdict was returned Edwards smiled for the first time since the hearing began Monday. He arose and shook hands with each of the jurors as the 12 men left the box.

Parenthood and Delinquency

Grand jury reports on crime conditions are commonly as thick as falling leaves in autumn and most of them are as soon forgotten. But once in a while one is presented which expresses a lot of good sense.

Thus a grand jury at Houston, Texas, not long ago turned in a report upon juvenile delinquency among Houston's juveniles, and made a point which is well worth remembering.

"We have found, said the jury's report, 'that the fathers and mothers of many juvenile delinquents had no knowledge of their children's whereabouts, the percentage running from 60 to 79 per cent. This indicates a breakdown of parental authority and should serve as immediate warning to the parents of this country.'

Back of almost every adult criminal there stands the shadowy figure of a juvenile delinquent, lost somewhere in the unredeemable past. And back of almost every juvenile delinquent we can find, if we look hard enough, a careless and thoughtless set of parents.

That is self-evident of course. But it is something we often forget, and if we could bear it in mind we might produce some straighter thinking about our crime problems.

It is easy enough to say that the job of bringing children up to be good citizens depends on the last analysis, upon the parents. But that doesn't entirely cover it.

It doesn't simply mean that a child must have what we call "a good home"—plenty to eat, a fair chance at healthy recreation, honest and industrious parents, a measure of economic security.

Beyond those things a child needs a father and mother who recognize their responsibility for him. They must know where he goes for his play, with whom he plays, what channels his restless young mind is exploring. They must be willing to take the time and energy to guide him.

The parent who falls in this respect has small reason to beat his breast and bewail the harshness of fate if his child gets into trouble.

By WALTER LIPPMANN The Farm Bill

If the prices paid for all goods and services moved up or down at the same time and in the same amount there would be no such thing as deflation or inflation. The trouble is that different kinds of prices do not move together. Thus the price that has to be paid for the money represented by old mortgages and old bonds is very rigid. The price paid for government in the form of taxes is only slightly less rigid. The least rigid of all prices are those paid to the producers of food and raw materials that are sold in world markets.

In between the absolute rigidity of old debts and the extreme flexibility of farm prices there are all degrees of rigidity. The price of bread is more rigid than the price of flour, and the price of flour more rigid than the price of wheat. Rents are harder to change than the cost of clothing. Some wages, particularly those under union contracts, are more rigid than the wages of the unorganized workers. It is because of this variation in rigidity that any great and sudden change of prices either up or down is such a devastating experience. It upsets the terms upon which all things are exchanged.

In the great deflation through which we have been passing the fall for other prices. The farm products have been greater than the fall of other prices. The farm bill submitted by the President is a proposal to give the government vast powers to be used in attempting to close the gap between farm prices and other commodity prices. The bill aims to do this by cutting down the supply of farm products. The theory is that if the supply can be reduced and farm products made relatively scarce the demand will force up the price.

The method proposed for reducing the supply is to pay the farmer a bounty to reduce his production. The scheme of the bounty is not the same for all crops. But the principle is the same. The government is to pay the farmer to produce less.

My own guess is that the scheme will work if there is a general rise of prices as a result of a general economic recovery, and that otherwise it will fail. If the demand from the consumer continues to decline, it is inconceivable that the supply of farm commodities can be reduced fast enough to raise the

Administration Advisors Work On Bill To Protect Public From 'Blue Sky' Stock And Bond Issues

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
 (Copyright, 1935, By United States)
 WASHINGTON, (UP)—Administration advisors are rushing work on a securities control bill to protect the investing public against "blue sky" stocks and bonds.
 As soon as the details are completed, possibly next week, President Roosevelt will send a message to congress asking immediate passage.
 This federal protective measure will cover both foreign and domestic securities.
 It is expected to:
 1. Require full publication of names of promoters, amount of securities and commission, and full extent of their financial interests.
 2. Forbid any concealment by promoters of material facts or circumstances surrounding securities offered.
 3. Place responsibility for full disclosure of the facts upon promoters.
 4. Require refunds with interest or cancellation of contracts where misrepresentation is disclosed, without requiring fraud to be proved.
 5. Make those issuing false or misleading information liable to criminal prosecution for obtaining money under false pretense and likewise liable under conspiracy statutes.
 The draft is being perfected for the President by Huston Thompson former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. In that capacity he gained intimate knowledge of the methods used by unscrupulous stock and bond promoters.
 Daniel Roper, secretary of commerce, and some of his assistants have been associated with Thompson in working out the proposals.
 The President's advisors are drawing inspiration from drastic features of the British comp nise act of 1925. However they will go much further, including foreign securities which are not covered by the British act. Under this act a British peer, Lord Kylsant, one of the leading shipping men of the empire, was sent to prison on charges of misrepresentation to investors in his company.
 Purpose of this measure is to save American investors from a repetition of the losses, running probably into billions which they suffered through worthless foreign bonds and pyramided stocks. It would not be retroactive so as to reach those involved in Inault, Krueger or numerous worthless foreign issues.
 But it would reach a future case when he divorced his wife, Antonio Salas went into probate court.
 After the divorce was granted his wife died, leaving property to her sister, Micaela Villa. Salas said part of the property including his teeth, belongs to him.

like the flotation of some years ago of an issue of Peruvian bonds by a banking house, whose own experts had warned that default on the issue was almost certain.
 It would also reach a future case like that of the bank which after discovering the Cuban sugar loans were bad, floated a stock issue to the public and from the proceeds bailed itself out.
 This measure is intended as a companion piece of banking reform legislation. It is in fulfillment of the party's platform pledge which declared for protection of the investing public by requiring true and full information concerning bonuses and commissions to be filed with the government and carried in all advertisements offering foreign and domestic securities.
 Several plans for administering the act have been under discussion. One would set up a securities control board. Another would place administration in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission. But the one apparently most favored would avoid elaborate administrative machinery which would involve the previous scrutiny of issues before flotation. Instead it would follow the pattern of the anti-trust law and criminal statutes and simply provide for prosecution upon complaint.
 This plan would avoid much of the government approval, direct or indirect, or stock or bond issues and necessitate action by the department of justice only in the relatively few cases where complaint of frauds or misrepresentations appeared.

Chill Dinner And Quilt-Rug Show To Be Saturday

Plans for the Quilt and Rug Show, to be held all day Saturday at the Currie building next to Wacker's, are finished, and the Federation committee in charge of the show reports a number of interesting entries. Only home-made rugs and hand-made quilts are being received.
 Those who want to enter quilts and rugs on Friday, may leave them at J. & W. Fisher's store across from the Courthouse. Those bringing quilts and rugs in on Saturday are directed to take them to the Currie building immediately. Mrs. Julius Eckhaus will be in charge.
 There will be no charge for admission to the show. Visitors will vote on the quilts and rugs they consider most attractive.
 The winning rug will be taken to Midland to the district club women's meet there in April and may bring Howard County a substantial prize.
 A chill luncheon, consisting of chili, enchiladas, pie and coffee, will be served at a very reasonable price during the noon hours and Saturday evening. Mrs. L. L. Freeman will be in charge of the meal and promises a mighty good dish of chili and pies as good as any mother ever baked.

Actual East Texas Production 584,000 Barrels Daily, Journal Estimates In Weekly Summary

TULSA, Okla. (UP)—Crude petroleum production in East Texas has become so excessive, the Oil & Gas Journal said that its statisticians submitted two reports for that area.
 Production for the three East Texas pools was reported at 356,661 barrels a day, an increase of 41,744 barrels over the preceding weekly period. The Journal, however, estimated actual production was 584,000 barrels a day, an increase of 229,963 barrels, or 157,339 more than the reported production.
 This huge output together with sharp increases in Oklahoma and other Texas fields caused a daily average increase in the nation of 54,535 barrels to 2,200,898 barrels, not including the figure estimated for East Texas.
 California stood out with a drastic decline of 56,000 barrels to 415,000, a low mark for that important producing state.
 Oklahoma daily average output the slips, Farrell had given Jebby nine of the fifteen rounds and Forbes called it a draw.
 We, meaning all of us who were there, can be thankful Charley Lynch, the other judge, voted for Dundee, for had he not, and Jebby been declared the winner, there would have been a sweet and elegant riot, with the boys who had wagered on Dundee leading the attack.

Contempt Of Court Charges Asked For Rail Commissioners
TYLER (UP)—A petition was filed in federal court here today asking Judge Randolph Bryant to cite members of the Texas Railroad Commission for contempt of court for promulgating present orders controlling oil production in the rich East Texas oil fields.
 People's Petroleum Producers Inc., in filing the petition, alleged that present allowable orders conform with an order found invalid by federal courts.
 The petitioners said the present allowable orders were "merely an attempted evasion of the court's commands" of January 31 which found the order limiting production to 40 barrels per well daily invalid.
 The complainants were also plaintiffs in the action brought against the commission late in January at Houston. Decision on the Houston case was returned last week declaring orders of the railroad commission were invalid.

NEW YORK (UP)—If Bob Godwin, who fights Maxie Rosenbloom this week, was at Madison Square Garden for the Jebby-Dundee bout Friday night, he must have left the place a very discouraged young man and wondering wotinnell he would have to do to Maxie to lift the lightweight title.
 Offhand, we'd say that Bob will have to shoot Rosenbloom, shoot him twice if Judge Eddie Farrell and Referee Eddie Forbes work the fight. At last Friday's entertainment it was Farrell who voted for Jebby and Forbes who saw the thing as a draw. How they reached their conclusions never will be known. If Jebby won that fight, as Farrell said he did, then Custer took every round with the Indians. When Joe Humphries collected

CHAPTER XV

It was only for the fraction of a second that Janet's eyes met Rolf's. Then he bent his head and said something to the girl in his arms. She smiled and a moment later they were out of sight, lost among the other dancers.

For an instant the lights, the din of the orchestra and the figures of the men and women about them seemed to Janet to blur into a hideous jumble. She felt as though she might fall and clutched at Mullins' shoulder.

He frowned. "That guy bumped into you, didn't he?" he said. "Who does he think he is? For two cents I'd give him a smack in the jaw! That's what he needs, the big—"

"Oh, no!" Janet whispered, terrified. "Please!"

"You can't bump into my girl!" Mullins protested crossly. "Why don't he look where he's going? Where is he now?"

He craned his neck but by this time Rolf and Betty Kendall were across the room. Janet was afraid there would be trouble. She couldn't bear that. Anything in the world but that! She must stop it some way.

"Let's not dance any more she said quickly. "It's so crowded and the air seems stuffy. I'd rather go back to our table."

"All right," Mullins agreed but the agreement was half-hearted. Slowly they made their way among the other dancers, Mullins continuing his surly protests that "no guy could bump into his girl and get away with it."

Janet sank into the chair with relief. She closed her eyes and then an instant later opened them. Everything about her was just as it had been. The room was like a nightmare.

Mullins held a silver cigarette case toward her. "Have one?" he offered.

She shook her head and he helped himself to a cigarette, lit it. "Listen, baby," he suggested, "why don't you and I have a little drink together? I've got some swell stuff. It'll do you good."

Janet smiled. "No, thanks. I—I don't feel like it just now. But have it yourself if you'd like it."

Mullins eyed her doubtfully. "But this is good stuff," he insisted. "Aw come on, baby! Don't be like that!"

He went on talking but she didn't hear him. Across the room two figures—a man and a girl—were dancing together, slowly, gracefully. Janet, watching them, caught her breath. She didn't want to look at the two figures but she couldn't help herself. The man's head was bent forward

"You look sort of pale. Don't you feel well?"

Janet caught at the suggestion. "It's just a headache," she said. "Would you mind if I don't go on to the theater with you? I hate to leave the party but I know I'd feel better at home. You mustn't come with me—not any of you. Please don't! If someone will call a cab for me I'll just say good-night."

There were objections. They'd all go with her, Al said. He'd go for the car right now. Well, then, Mullins would go. It ended finally as Janet wished. Mollie Lambert, reading something in the other girl's eyes, settled that.

"I hate to have you leave honey," she said, "but of course if you think you'll feel better at home that's the thing to do. And if you'd really rather go alone, that's for you to say. Come on, boys, let's all scram. The show begins at 8:30 and if we don't start we'll miss the first part."

Janet had never in her life been more grateful to anyone than when, as she was getting into the taxicab, Mollie caught her hand and squeezed it. "Good-night, honey," Mollie said. "I hope you'll feel lots better."

She didn't say anything more but Janet understood. Mollie, too, had seen Rolf Carlyle dancing with Betty Kendall.

"I'm sure I will!" Janet assured them. "Good night."

She did feel better, too, even though an hour later her pillow was wet with tears.

Longshoremen Demand Higher Scale Of Wages

GALVESTON, (UP)—The International Longshoremen's Association of Galveston, Houston, Texas City and Corpus Christi demanded higher wages and institution of a 44-hour working week.

Stevedores interests, through the Master Stevedores association, have offered to renew the present working agreement, setting it p. m. Saturday as the deadline for the longshoremen's acceptance.

The new proposal of the Longshoremen, drafted at a meeting here, calls for a wage of 75 cents per hour or 15 cents per bale for handling cotton, with $1.12 1-2 cents for all overtime. The present scale is 70 cents per bale, 13 cent per bale and $1.05 for overtime.

In offering to renew the present contract, which expires March 31, it was understood that the stevedore operators asked for no change in the wage scale and for only minor changes in the working rules.

Gag Placed On House Democrats By Administration

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Roosevelt leaders clamped a gag rule on the house to quell a growing revolt against the administration's farm relief program and steamroller it to passage.

Some Democratic leaders feared victory would come only at the price of party discord, loss of republican support, and an end to the period of enthusiastic cooperation which swept the first Roosevelt emergency measures through congress with little opposition.

None dared predict the fate of the farm bill in the senate. Mr. Roosevelt at a conference with leaders of both parties was informed frankly the opposition was so strong that passage of the bill in its present form was problematical.

Trainers said the conferees agreed action should be taken soon to reduce the farm mortgage burden, a project which many senators consider more important than the administration's experimental program to boost farm prices.

Chairman Jones of the House Agricultural committee proclaimed publicly his disapproval of the presidential program and passed on to others the duty of leading the floor fight for it.

He was applauded by republican Leader Snell, who said the Democratic method of procedure was the "rawest piece of partisanship ever presented to the house."

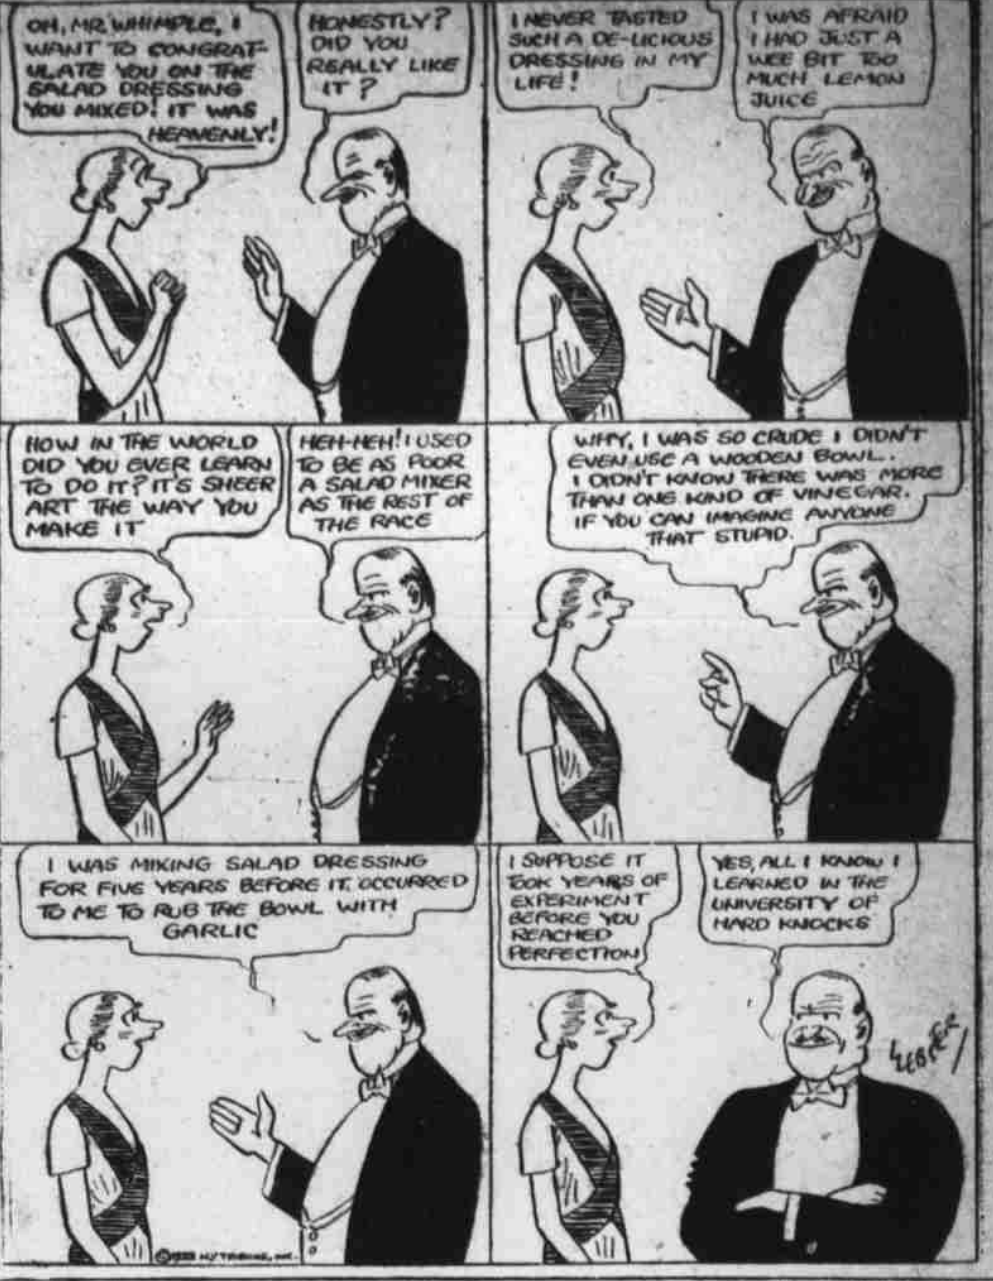

The bill comes before the overwhelmingly Democratic chamber under strictest gag rules leadership could invest. Debate is limited to four hours and the membership must vote for or against the bill with no chance to alter so much as a comma.

Local railroad experts are not all keen on the seven-road consolidation plan which Mr. Prince of Boston will ask the Administration to authorize.

The plan is outlined calls for a lumping of strong and weak roads in each separate system. For instance, Louisville and Nashville would have to take over Seaboard and Atlantic Coast Line and Southern Railway would be saddled with Illinois Central and others.

In the opinion of insiders the plan would work out to keep several of the less efficient roads on top of the head and would block the process of healthy if painful reorganization which is otherwise in prospect.

Another angle has to do with the effect on railway labor. Many thousands more men would be thrown out of jobs through the abandonment of lines. This is expected to carry considerable weight in the administration's decision.

Don't you know that modern man is even able to look into the infinite spaces. We are almost equal to God.'

Sidelights

The appointment of a man of German descent to be ambassador to France at this crucial moment gives New York a cynical kick. If Germany gets what Germany wants it might not be so inappropriate. Brokerage clerks were put to it to kill time during the holiday. The Exchange unofficially banned card playing in any form. Authorities could see no gambling implication in such.

Creates a government cotton pool as proposed in last session's Smith bill. Growers would receive options in return for production slashes and benefit by any price increase.

BY FREDERICK A. STORM United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP). — President Roosevelt is planning early action on farm credits and relief for the small home owner, it was learned.

Sources close to the White House said that the president was prepared to submit to congress within the next few days a message and bill on farm credit to be followed by legislation along similar lines for the small home owner.

This farm credit legislation will have two purposes, it was declared. One would be for the incorporation in one or two control bodies the functions that now are being administered by the eight farm credit agencies.

Another would be the reduction of the interest rate on farm mortgages and the extension of time in the general financing scheme.

It was understood that mortgages held not only by the federal agencies but also by private mortgagees such as insurance companies, for example, would be included in the new category.

This legislation now is in the stage of preparation and it was expected that the rough drafts would be completed at the White House by Friday.

It was explained that the proposal for placing 250,000 men in camps on the public domain was the only practical way his reforestation and flood control program could be started.

As to the regulations such as salinities for a year, it was pointed out that this was done purely for the purposes of maintaining order and that no military training was even remotely contemplated.

As to the dollar a day wage, it was said that the 250,000 men would not be in competition with labor and that their hiring was

Oklahoma City Brings Hustling Young Club To Texas League Race

By GEORGE B. BOSCOE United Press Staff Correspondent OKLAHOMA CITY (UP) — A group of hustling youngsters who made a good account of themselves last year in the Western League will represent the Oklahoma City Indians in their debut in the Texas League this year.

Re-inforced in a few vital positions, the Oklahoma City team began spring practice here March 15. Rudy Jones, stopgap hurler, was the only member not present at the start. Jones had refused to sign a contract at the salary offered.

summer's Western League race. The only important loss from the 1932 Indians is Ray Schalk, sensational second baseman, who was sold to the New York Yankees.

Three important additions have been made to offset Schalk's absence. Second baseman Tom Holley was bought from Beaumont to fill Schalk's shoes. Red Harvel, hard-hitting outfielder, was purchased from Wichita and Pitcher Vernon Kennedy from St. Joseph.

Rookies Allowing for the optimistic possibility that one or more of the promising rookies may crowd into the picture, the team which takes the field against Dallas in the initial game probably will look something like this: Teamer c; Kennedy 1b; Holley 2b; McIsaac ss; Thieler 3b; Sloan cf; Harvel lf; Johnson rf.

The outfield packs a real punch. Johnson batted .378 last year and Harvel .343. Sloan is a speedy 19-year-old Oklahoma City youngster, who made a sensational debut in professional baseball last year. His batting average was not very hefty but he appears to be a natural hitter and both Owner Jack Holland and Luderus think he is a real find.

It appears certain the infield of Cholcher, Holley, McIsaac and Thieler is set to go. Cholcher was the most improved ball player on the team last year and developed into a good fielder and a dangerous hitter. Hansen, who played shortstop until McIsaac was bought late in the season, will try to take the second or third base job from Holley or Thieler. There is little likelihood of him displacing McIsaac, who was one of the best shortstops in the Western League for several years.

Catching Staff The catching staff does not appear particularly strong although Teamer is a heady and experienced receiver. His aid will be Chadwick and the latter may take over the No. 1 job because of his better hitting ability. Chadwick was handicapped by injuries last year.

Holland is particularly proud of his pitching staff. All hurlers are youngsters and several of them flashes last season. Benton, Matuzak, Kennedy, Rudy Jones, Taylor and Boyles seem almost certain of regular births. There are a dozen or more others on the roster about whom little is known but one or two may come through to oust one of the regulars.

The entire team practically is made up of players who got their first taste of Class A baseball last season. They developed rapidly, as their pennant winning record shows. Holland expects his team to be a pennant contender. He has assured fans that if a weakness shows up in any part of his young machine, necessary replacements will be made.

Why did you buy this NEWSPAPER?

SUPPOSING that, beginning tomorrow, all the newspapers are discontinued. What a furore the public would make. "News! News! We must have news or we will be no better off than the ancients." All right, suppose we give them news but cut out the advertisements.

Then you would discover that politics, the doings of society, notices of fires, accidents, deaths, scandals, sports, the activities of the police and criminals add little or nothing to the real comfort and happiness of this great age in the world's history.

Advertising is the NEWS of all the looms, of all the furnaces, of all the laboratories, of all the shops, of all the stores, of all the world, and all working for you.

Because of advertising, luxuries and necessities that once cost a king's ransom are yours at little prices. Advertising pits merchant against merchant, artisan against artisan, producer against producer, for your benefit, forcing out the best there is in everything and telling the world about it.

Read advertising. Keep abreast of today. Advertising furnishes you with facts and opportunities that otherwise you would never know.

Under The Dome At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 AUSTIN, (UP)—Rep. George W. Wainwright of Mexico, may be able to keep the legislature's lobbyists out of the House of Representatives but he is powerless to keep out their mail and telegrams.

Wainwright takes the position the proper place for a lobbyist is in the lobby and not in the House.

Legislative wastebaskets get most of the "group" propaganda that comes to the Legislature.

Whether the "privileges of the floor" extended to accredited newspaper correspondents who make the affidavit they are not lobbying, extends to attendance at executive sessions of commissions is an undecided matter before the Texas Legislature.

With few exceptions the newspaper men, so far, have succeeded in remaining in committees when executive sessions are ordered. Members of the House, not members of the particular committee, are also permitted to remain.

Rep. Weaver Moore of Houston, takes the position no committee should sit in closed session. It is transacting the people's business and should do it in public, he contends. He left a recent committee hearing when an executive session was ordered, though he was a committee member.

Present men were allowed to remain in this particular session. Rep. C. M. Turlington, Tatum law student-member of the legislature, sought to have them excluded but withdrew his proposal under the storm of protest from older members.

Keeping down production to prevent water encroachment, has been a recognized policy of the Texas Commission.

Recently, in the case of Royston oil field, this was reversed. More production was allowed because of water encroachment. R. D. Parker, chief of the oil and gas division explained in early stages it is best to keep down production but when certain stages are reached good engineering calls for more rapid withdrawal.

Defeat of the Morse bill to let counties share equally with the state highway department in motor license collections above $350,000 leaves the old rule in force.

Under it each county keeps the first $50,000 of such fees taken in by its county tax collector. Then the fees are divided equally with the state highway department until the county has retained $175,000. After that, all goes to the state highway department.

Though the law remains the same the effect may be much different in the future. If the new schedule of automobile fees, adopted by the Senate and Governor there will probably be no counties with much above the dividing point to turn over to the Highway Department. Fees in the new House bill are cut about one third.

In the past only four counties

But telegrams, circulars and letters have a way. Decks are piled high with them. They come not only from within the state but from far away. Texas legislators recently were favored with one from an organization with a high-sounding name. Inquiry at its home town brought this response:

"For your information it is a private racket composed of five persons who have clients who want to fight certain companies, particularly in these parts. It is not national in scope but broadcasing much literature which they are selling to pay expenses of creating their bureau."

"Without disclosing this information, several Texas legislators were asked what they thought about this organization's circular."

"I got one but didn't read it," said Rep. Lon E. Alsup, Carthage. "Just some of these northerners trying to tell us how to run our own affairs."

Legislative wastebaskets get most of the "group" propaganda

When a bunch of telegrams begin to come to a member, each worded the same way, he is a novice if he has not discovered some paid secretary, or "general manager" has sent out a form telegram to his members and asked the message to be sent.

have had automobile license receipts in an amount that requires them to give the highway department all over the maximum. They are Dallas, Harris, Tarrant and Bexar. Jefferson county was near the mark. There are 164 counties of the state which do not collect more than the $50,000, all of which they retain.

Rep. Fritz Engelhard has compiled figures on what the road bond assumption act has done for the counties. His figures show that Dallas county leads in the amount of bonds taken over by the state: gasoline tax for redemption, with $5,298,061. Harris county has $3,497,252 El Paso county, $2,013,192; Wichita county, $1,768,000; Cameron county, $1,726,000; Galveston county, $1,690,066; Jefferson county, $1,227,639; McLennan county, $934,602 and Bexar county, $881,701.

Rep. F. C. Weinert, former state tax commissioner, joined by a number of other students of taxation in the House, has offered a new plan for real estate taxation in House Bill 384.

Starting off with a "definition of terms" that makes it difficult to read, the bill gets down to the nubbin of the matter in its second section. That is in making real estate assessments, the assessors shall throw aside the former yardsticks of "forced sale value" and adopt instead a "true value."

This true value is declared to be the amount of its "capitalization." This in turn boiled down to plain and simple terms means the value computed from the net return on the property whether from rental, farming or other earning value.

The bill is remarkable in the declarations of an emergency clause providing for immediate effect if adopted. This clause asserts that "to own real estate in this state has become a curse and not a privilege."

It makes a difference in the whole club when we have the kind of officers we have now. The new officers will have some high standards to live up to.

Last Saturday's "Four in Harmony" were quite a success. They have been asked to repeat their program for the high school carnival ext Saturday. They were: Cleo Lane, Mary Jane Reed, Minnie Bell Williamson and Frances Stampler.

Everybody liked the contest two weeks ago, and many Mice have asked to have another this Saturday.

So, there will be three contests next Saturday. One for older boys; one for older girls; and another chance for the younger boys and girls to pin Mickey's tail on.

Three prizes consisting of candy, fruit and cookies will be awarded the winners. Contests for the older girls and boys will be announced Friday.

Gene Nabors, one of the newest members, has the measles. The club wishes him a speedy recovery.

Former Sweetwater Man, Only 31, Heads Houston Gas Company

HOUSTON, (UP)—The Houston Natural Gas company was headed today by one of the youngest executives in the United States, 31-year-old Wash E. Trammel, formerly of Sweetwater.

Trammel joined the company 7 years ago as a member of a construction crew. He was elected president Monday, succeeding the organizer of the company, E. H. Buckner, who retired.

Trammel attended public schools in Sweetwater, his birthplace, later going to Terrell Prep in Dallas, Bligham Military school in North Carolina, Culver Military Academy, where he graduated in 1922, and the University of Texas, where he lettered in football in 1923.

He joined the company when it was organized to compete with the firmly entrenched Houston Gas and Fuel company. An unfriendly city administration only recently permitted Houston Natural Gas to lay parallel lines in the city.

Geological Societies Convene At Houston For Annual Meetings

By STUART E. JONES
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 HOUSTON, (UP)—Men whose scientific lore has played a large part in the evolution of the American oil industry gathered here by the hundreds Thursday for the annual meetings of their societies.

An address of welcome by Mayor Walter E. Monteth opened the three-day joint convention of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, Society of Petroleum Geophysicists and Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists. Some 1,000 were in attendance.

Immediately after the mayor's address there began presentation of a comprehensive technical program, a large number of papers covering a wide range of subject matter having been scheduled.

The program was prepared under the direction of Ralph D. Reed, Los Angeles, editor of the geologists' association publications, and Donald C. Barton, Houston, chairman of the technical program committee.

Among the numerous papers were several dealing with Gulf coast oil fields and geology, centers of much attention in recent months.

Test In Ector To 3700 Feet

Standolin's Offset To Harrison's Producer Progresses

Standolin Oil & Gas Co.'s No. 1 Elliott Cowden, west of Odessa in Ector county, was making new hole today below 3,700 feet in time.

The wildcard, which had been delayed for about a month by fishing and drilling by, is carrying 23-pound mud in anticipation of the heavy gas encountered by L. C. Harrison's No. 1 Addis, which No. 1 Cowden offsets on the north. The gas was expected at 3,750 feet and 8.5-8 inch pipe is to be set at 3,740 feet.

No. 1 Addis, which opened a new pool five miles west of Odessa, encountered first oil at 3,865 feet.

Others installed were G. E. Trammell of San Antonio, deputy grand master; R. C. Cowan of Texarkana, grand warden; E. Q. Ventral, grand secretary and J. W. A. Kee of Fort Worth, grand treasurer.

The Rebekahs, meeting in similar sessions here, were to close their convention with the same business and ritualistic program.

Odd Fellows Conclude Greenville Meeting

GREENVILLE, (UP)—Members of the Texas Odd Fellows order concluded the annual two day convention here with a business session and memorial service for past grand masters who died during the past year. Selection of the 1934 convention city was the last item on the business calendar.

W. A. McIntosh of Gilmer, was installed as Grand Master. He was elevated to the post by the resolution of W. D. Carroll of Comanche.

All of the papers were purely of technical interest, with the possible exception of one on "Bottom-hole Pressure in the East Texas field," presented by D. M. Collingwood and F. E. Heath, Dallas geologists.

Officers of the three organizations will be elected tomorrow. Saturday and Sunday the delegates and visitors will be taken on tours of the Conroe field, Montgomery county and the Sugarland oil field and sulphur mines at New Gulf, Fort Bend and Wharton counties, respectively, with luncheon to be served at New Gulf.
