'A Farewell To Arms' Offered At Ritz Theater

Ernest Hemingway's famous novel, "A Farewell to Arms," transplanted to the screen with Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper in starring roles, and with Adolphe Menjou heading the supporting cast, opens Sunday at the Ritz Theater.
Frank Borzage, director of "Seventh Heaven," who is in charge of the production of "A Farewell to Arms," followed the plot of the original novel closely in adapting it to the screen. Hemingway's novel is regarded as one of the finest, most touching love stories ever written.
Cooper plays the role of the young American, a lieutenant in the Italian ambulance corps during the War. Menjou is cast as Rinaldi, his war-brother. Miss Hayes plays the role of Catherine Barkley, the English nurse with whom Cooper falls in love.
While the War presses in on every side of them, the two love desperately. They are happiest after Cooper, who has been wounded, is sent to the Milan hospital in which Miss Hayes is a nurse. But when he has been cured, and has returned to the front, she flies to Switzerland to await the birth of their child.
Cooper, unaware of the fact, is unable to stand the separation from her, and deserts. Unable to find her in Milan, he ultimately reaches her side in Switzerland. Her final hours in the hospital. The climax which follows is said to be one of the most dramatic ever filmed.

This 'Debunking' Business

Every once in a while some "debunker of history" comes along to toss a little mud at the memory of the nation's heroes.
And now after diligent research into old records, A. S. Bailey, secretary of the South Carolina Historical association, feels he has the proof that George Washington actually told a lie.

Mr. Bailey relates that it happened like this:
When Washington was provincial colonial leading two companies of Virginia Militia against the French and Indians at Fort Mifflin, in Pennsylvania, he was surrounded by a force which outnum-

80 Ewes Bring 120 Lambs; One Set Of Triplets Included

Eighty ewes bring 120 lambs. That is the record established by S. L. Lockhart of the Luther Community. Recently when eighty of Mr. Lockhart's ewes brought lambs he found that every second one had produced twins as an average.
To climax it, one mother bore triplet lambs. Only fifteen of the lambs have died. The remarkable showing is attributed by Mr. Lockhart to the fact that his ewes were kept in fine condition throughout the breeding season.

"Lost That Tired and Weary Feeling"

"I was tired all the time; had misery in back and sides that kept me feeling bad; was in a nervous and weakening condition," writes Mrs. H. H. Penn, of Portsmouth, Ohio. "I lost in weight until I was very thin. During girlhood, mother had given me Cardui and it helped me so much that I decided to take it again. I took several bottles and my strength began to return, and I gained in weight. Soon I lost that tired and weary feeling. Cardui did me a great deal of good."

Pioneer Rancher Dies At Home In El Paso

SAN ANGELO—Eugene Waller McKenzie, 74, who with a brother, J. M. McKenzie of Big Spring, ranched in the Concho valleys near San Angelo as early as 1878, died the first of the week at El Paso. Mr. McKenzie owned ranches near Pecos, Midland, and in the Big Lake country and also had been in the mercantile business. He has lived in El Paso 20 years. While known to many pioneers in this section, Mr. McKenzie was not related to family of that name here and at Christoval, also well-known in the ranching business.

Bids Not To Be Taken On School Painting

Painting of schools in the county will not be done by bids as previously announced.

Since labor used in painting the five rural schools furnishing paint will be paid from the federal relief work loan here, it has been deemed advisable not to let work by contract.

Needy men, giving their occupation as painters, will probably be assigned to the jobs, although it has not been definitely determined if that is the procedure to be followed.

304 Automobiles Listed For 1933 Licenses Here

To date only 304 passenger car licenses have been issued by Tax Collector Loy Acuff. Thirty-eight commercial bus owners have purchased license tags, while thirty-nine have renewed their chauffeur licenses.

Acuff called attention to the statute holding that dealer's license plates, and chauffeur license tags expired Dec. 31, 1933 and must be renewed promptly.

Old Hotel At Maryneal Decapitated; Yarns Of The Years Linger On

MARYNEAL—The old hotel that stood in the "first block" south of the depot here was decapitated this week and settled down from a two-story building to a five room residence. The roof was suspended in the air—the sideboards knocked off and the upright supports sawed off and the roof lowered down on the first floor, all in a day. Many stories have been told about the old hotel which was built soon after the lot sale. Original or not, one of the most quoted stories was the one about the combination waiter and cook who went to the telephone and called her brother who worked in a grocery down the road: "Johnny, bring a can of corn when you come there's a drummer for dinner."

33-Year Record Broken By Rainfall Registered Here During December

December apparently is the most arid month of the year in Big Spring. And 1932 was one of the wettest months on record here, with 20.22 inches of rainfall.

Precipitation at the weather bureau located at the airport was 29.2 inches during last month, and at that it was the wettest December here in 33 years, according to records of the bureau, whose figures for years prior to 1931 were taken from the record at the government experiment farm north of town.

The most rainfall recorded in any December prior to that of 1932 was 2.62 inches in 1913. December of 1911 registered 2.53 inches and December 1931 2.39 inches.

Normal rainfall for December over the 33-year period is .66 inch. The month was slightly cooler than usual. Mean temperature was 59.2 degrees. Normal is 43.7 degrees. Highest temperature registered here in December since 1901 was 83 degrees, lowest three degrees below zero.

Sleet fell here December 9, 14, 15 and 30. Fog occurred December 5, 8, 11, 12 and 22. Thunderstorms occurred December 14, 22, 23.

Fifteen days of the month were clear, four partly cloudy, 12 cloudy. The monthly meteorological summary was issued by John A. (Jack) Cummings, in charge of the weather bureau here.

HAZEL ROSS HAILEY

CHAPTER XLVI

Mary came back to consciousness to find the cold rain dashing on her face. She had slumped down in the doorway, and now she was being helped to her feet. She knew of the small of tobacco in the rough tweed shoulder that was supporting her that it must be Henry Bates.

"Leave me alone, I'm all right," she panted, scrambling to her feet and feeling ashamed of her temporary weakness.

But the other, with an exclamation of alarm, had already discovered the still form of Bruce lying on the deck. So dejectedly white and still his face looked in the unusual light of the occasional lightning flashes, that even Bates was startled.

"By George!" he kept repeating. "By George! This is bad business! Now what's happened here?"

Louise, wrapped in a heavy ulster, rushed out.

"Where is he? Oh, mon Dieu, has he killed him?" she sobbed, throwing herself upon the deck before Bruce, almost knocking Bates over in her anxiety to reach the injured man. When she saw who it was, however, she drew back sharply.

"Bruce! But where is Enrique?"

"That would be like to know," Bates growled, looking about sharply. Mr. Jupiter's door stood open, but he had not appeared. Louise, who was getting worse, went to him to if anything would revive him. She rushed into the old man's room, calling his name shrilly. A curious smell pervaded the air.

There was no reply. The two women outside heard sounds of stumbling, chairs being overturned as Bates tumbled for the electric light switch. Suddenly the lights came on blindingly. There on the bed lay Mr. Jupiter, eyes, his face a cold, pocket handkerchief.

Bates snatched it away.

"Chloroform!" He whistled and faced Captain Hendricks, just coming in the door.

"Get your men out and search the ship, quick. Captain! De Loma's done this! My God, I wonder if he—"

He turned quickly to the wife, who stood as usual, apparently untouched. If it had been opened, the job had been done by someone who knew the combination.

Bates picked up the old man's clothes, usually laid neatly across the back of a chair, but now tumbled in a heap just inside the door. He rummaged through the pockets quickly.

"It's gone—if that's where it was!"

The shots and the storm had roused the ship, apparently, for the deck space outside the old man's door, from which yellow light streamed into the pitch darkness human frame for ordinary life, but this is out of my range.

"How are you going to get him to a doctor?" Bates demanded. "That damn snake has taken the boat!"

"De Loma? Why, the fool—that's suicide in a high sea like this! And if I'm any judge, he doesn't know one end of a boat from another!"

"Is there anything I can do to help? With Bruce, I mean?" Mary asked.

"Where's that woman of his? Do her good to have a little work to do! No, if Paine needs any help (Paine was the steward) I'll let you know. You run on to bed, child, you're soaked through."

Hendricks turned and yelled at a passing figure who turned out to be the quartermaster.

"Where's Sparks? Get him up and at that radio again. Tell him it's got to be fixed by daylight or he's got no more job with me. It's life and death, tell him!"

He turned back to Bates. "If we can't get the radio working by daybreak, I'll send two men in the lifeboat, but it's a long pull. The captain left, muttering excitedly and they heard him tramping around up above in the chart-room."

"Gone up to fix it himself," Bates guessed. "Good idea. That kid's been tinkering with it for days and it's still blabby."

"Tell me about De Loma—where is he now?"

"Doubt if you can see him now. The lightning showed him to me, but now it's settled down to rain you can't see your hand before your face. Grab a slicker and we'll make a look. Lord, I never expected this! I bet the old man didn't either. He liked to devil him too far."

Wrapped in oilskin hastily borrowed, they took a telescope and went around to the port bow. The first crashing thunder and sky-splitting electrical flashes had given place to a light, steady rain that flattered the water. Prolonged bursts of rosy lightning played over the scene, making it light as day for two or three seconds at a time.

With the glass they searched the surface of the water in the direction of Fort Jefferson without catching a glimpse of the dinghy. They had almost decided De Loma must have landed, if he had not drowned, when off to the right Mary caught sight of a flash of white. He had stripped to his shirt and apparently was rowing toward Bird Key.

The glass showed this was what he was trying to do—at least he looked over his shoulder frequently in that direction. There is a little house on Bird Key, for what purpose Mary did not know. De Loma's idea evidently was to lie up there and seek shelter until the storm passed, before setting out for Key West. It was a daring scheme and one which only a truly desperate man would have attempted.

The rain had gradually subsided and they could see him more clearly now; the dinghy was not making much headway against the high waves, which were being lashed ever higher by a furious wind. Sometimes for minutes they lost sight of De Loma and believed him drowned. Then the white speck rose triumphantly again out of the trough of the wave.

There was neither direction nor headway in his aimless rowing now. It was impossible to keep to a course. The sea seemed to be throwing him nearer and nearer to Fort Jefferson and so doubt he was too confused by the roughness of the water and the difficulty of holding to his oars to know where he was heading.

It seemed like hours that the couple on the deck watched and it began to appear that the man was winning—at any rate, if he had survived thus far, it was likely he could hold out until the heavy seas subsided and set his course again.

Then they lost him. He seemed to have vanished from the face of the sea, though they played the telescope carefully over the very spot where he had last been seen. Minutes went by. Bates at last put the glass down and gave it up.

"Well, he's gone," he said. And as one speaks of the head he added grudgingly: "It was a game fight he put up—the house!"

Mary pointed suddenly and cried: "Look, what's that?"

"Where?" Excitedly Bates threw the glass up to his eye.

"Over there. By the prison. Just at the point where the land and water meet."

It was merely a moving white speck to her eye, but Bates exclaimed: "By George, he made it! He's tying up at the old pier! What do you know about that?"

"But where has he been? Why didn't he see him?"

"I don't know—unless he—oh, I see. His back was toward us. We

along. The two were stopped by secret servicemen who thought they were trying to see the president. Instead they asked to be taken to the newspaper booth and there they learned that Mr. Roosevelt was feeling fine according to last dispatches from Hyde Park and rowed eagerly back to tell their father, a Democratic orange grove owner.

Fish—There is no moral in the similar personal story about Mr. Hoover who went to church and Mr. Lawrence Ricey who went fishing on the Sabbath down in Florida. Mr. Hoover caught a slight cold and his secretary Mr. Ricey caught six sailfish tying the record.

Treasury—The Kentuckian who prowled through the Treasury figures for Mr. Roosevelt is Swager Shirley. That explains his presence at the meeting last night.

Parity—Despite favorable action in the house prospects for the Farm Parity (Allotment) Plan are no brighter. It is estimated at least $2,400 or an average of $200 per month must be raised to care for this problem here through 1933.

Notes—The big hitch in this revaluation of the dollar idea is that most of the bonds in the country specify payment "in the value and fineness of gold." That does for the railroads. . . . Revaluation would be a hardship on those who owe on such paper and congress can not reach such private debts by legislation. . . . It would be unconstitutional to try it. . . . General Dwyer is supposed to have paid back $12,000,000 of that $30,000,000 advanced to him by a certain government institution. . . . Henry Wallace came to town to help in the Allotment Plan fight. . . . He could not tell his friends whether he is going to get the job as Secretary of Agriculture in the Roosevelt Cabinet. . . . Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen is quoted by close friends in Florida as being in line for a Cabinet post. . . . She will get something but probably not that.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

Stock Market—The prevailing bearishness of important interests with regard to stock prices is aimed at renewed accumulation when prices are considerably nearer their July lows than at present. The big show seldom goes wrong when they are pulling the wires.

No one on the inside has any real idea that current prices are justified by actual conditions and prospects. The slowness of the decline is traceable to skillful management, simplified by the thinness of the market. Prices have been propped in the hardy hope that distribution to the public can still be accomplished if spectacular breaks can be avoided. Lack of public response has caused some would-be unloaders a lot of money.

If you look closely you will see that market selectivity is becoming very pronounced. This always happens before a major change of trend. Chemicals, foods and chain stores for instance are holding up much better than steels, rails or coppers. And with good reason.

It is currently believed in informed quarters that W. C. Durant will shortly be back in pool activity with both feet. The hundred thousand dollar tax refund he got from the government hardly rates as a handicap to his plans.

Reports—Exchange authorities are quietly urging bigger, better and more frequent reports to stockholders by listed corporations. They figure it is they can beat Congress at the punch on this publicity issue it will help a lot when the showdown comes. The response has been notably lacking in enthusiasm although several important concerns are paying the way. General Motors, DuPont and General Foods among others have gone in for telling their stockholders a lot more than they used to.

Utilities—There will be an announcement shortly about the reorganization of National Electric Power. When the smoke of battle clears you will find most of the ex-insurrection on the outside looking in.

Exchange authorities continue very touchy about possible criticism. During the recent rise in German bonds a member firm wanted to tell the world to get aboard through the medium of an advertisement. The exchange sat firmly on the idea. Favorable publicity for foreign issues just isn't being done.

Ethics—An official of an important industrial concern knew from confidential reports that his company's stock was sure to suffer when its earnings statement was made public. He believed in the ethics of not telling his own company short but he hated to forego assured profits. He found the answer by selling the stock of a leading competitor short, figuring they must be in the same boat. He made plenty.

Murder—Racketeer Larry Fay, arrested some fifty times, was shot to death by his doorman on New Year's Eve. A noisy city-wide hunt was reported. At about six o'clock in the evening three days later he might have been observed spruce, high-colored but worried looking, walking through quiet streets with a chatty and smiling policeman whose left hand rested lightly in the crook of the wanted man's right arm. The pair attracted no attention.

Next morning's papers carried a tale of surrender, arrest, booking at a police station where there are no reporters, later transfer to another precinct. The accused, ex-policeman and ex-state trooper, will have none the worst of it on his trial.

Out—The mid and far west are telling their minds to New York friends. They want no big business chiefs from the east in the 1933 cabinet. A New Deal has been promised. It can not be delivered unless Wall Street favorites are eliminated. There is no doubt of the earnestness nor of the strength of the movement behind this idea.

Lost—Watchers here are checking an old list against a new one smilingly. When Mr. Hoover's bid to the nation's leading educator was announced there were several Democrats honored. Now the conference tablets show only Republicans with one exception. That's young Pres. Hutchins of Chicago, unclassified.

Counselor—Al Smith lost a more able adviser than the world will know in the death of Mrs. Moskowitz. He has referred to her privately as his "right arm." Her last big play for him was to lay the groundwork for his job as Editor of the New Outlook. (Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Last Of Deeds On No. 9 Right-Of-Way Are Recorded Here

With the recording of certain deeds Friday, County Judge H. R. Debenport was preparing to forward all deeds for right-of-way on rerouted highway No. 9 south of town to W. A. French, division highway engineer, in Abilene. French will, in turn, send the records to the state highway department which will take steps to have the road surfaced from the south-ern county line to Big Spring. All right-of-way on the absolutely rerouted part of the highway has been deeded for with fences and cattle guards erected. It stands ready for improvement.

Meanwhile efforts are being exerted to procure right-of-way thru Glascock county that the road may continue uninterrupted to join the paving in Sterling county.

Field notes on Highway No. 1 east and west through Howard county have not yet been approved by the state highway department, according to information received here.

Until the notes have been approved and submitted to the county commissioner's court, no actual steps can be taken here toward procuring right-of-way for the project.

Birth Rate Here Slightly Above Record Of Births

For every person dying in Howard county during 1932, an average of 1.8 per cent came into the world to replace the loss.

Statistics in the county clerk's office a period of 12 months from December 1931 to December 1932 show that 174 deaths were reported to 318 births for the corresponding period.

Some idea as to the strength of the locals in comparison with other West Texas teams can be had next week-end when the Steers attempt

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Cromulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Cromulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Cromulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Cromulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

to make it two straight in the Colorado Invitational tournament. Last year George Brown's proteges won the title over Sweetwater 31 to 24, and experienced difficulty with only one earlier round opponent, a fighting Lorraine team holding the Bovines to a close score in the semi-finals.

With the same field expected this year the Steers are favorites to run through any and all opposition. Colorado, with almost all of her 1932 men back, is favored to give the locals some competition, but not enough. Sweetwater, lacking the services of Buddy Belt, Bob Baugh, Rogers, and Trammel, is not nearly as dangerous.

The strongest invitational affair of the year in West Texas is expected to be the tournament here January 27th and 28th. Conflict with the McCamey meet may prevent the attendance of one or two western schools, but the better teams are expected to be entered here. Ropes, Plainview, Lubbock, Abilene, and San Angelo are strong teams issued invitations.

The House of David quintet, opponents for the locals tomorrow evening in the high school gym, are not only branded as one of the most colorful amateur athletic organizations in the United States but carry their glamor far beyond the standard of the average professional team. The Bearded Beauties have for years toured the United States with their baseball clubs, and have built up a reputation as the strongest traveling team in the world. One of the managers of Big Spring's entry in the old West Texas baseball league, Ralph Rose, was for a time a member of the bearded clan.

In spite of their flowing beards and hair the Davidites are for the most part mere youths. The quintet starting against the Bovines Saturday night are represented as ranging from 19 to 22 years old.

The House of David diamond squad actually outdrew the St. Louis Cardinals, national league champions, in St. Louis one week when both teams were playing in the city.

The city basketball league, which has struggled through almost a full week of competition, finally gave up the ghost yesterday and expired. The Supply quintet, through its spokesman, Mr. Billy Bass, formally notified the city officials that as far as they, individually and collectively, were concerned the worthwhile organization was no more, and though the step grieved them they would make no pretense of offering any competition to the Collins Bros. Drug team, for that evening.

Three teams are still apparently willing to continue the schedule, and should a fourth organization be forthcoming the loop may continue throughout the year.

Have you a basketball team you could spare for a month or so? Here and there: Henry Fricks, whose Greenville High Lions have been eliminated from the state football race via the penetration rule route for the last two years, was presented with a can of penetration oil at the annual grid banquet—Only one scribe has mentioned Elmer Dyer on his all-state club, but that was Jerry Malin of Amarillo—it is being suggested that a separate league be formed for the larger cities, who have not been able to compete with smaller towns whose boys of school age are concentrated in one building—Rumor has it that a serious attempt will be made to organize a Texas-New Mexico class D league—Lubbock is becoming interested in the organization but Big Spring and San Angelo, discussed as two other prospective sites, haven't had much to say and in fact have not been actually approached—George Brown declares that Scott McCall of Masonic Home was not in Tech-Dennis' class as a footballer—but then no one expected him to be—Clarence Street, Abilene forward, may return to school in time to be eligible for basketball competition this semester—He is apt to be sorely needed.

$7000 Quota Given County

Applications Approved Thursday By Reconstruction Corporation

Howard county will receive $7,000 of federal relief funds for January and February, according to press dispatches from Washington, where $2,555,832 was allotted 240 counties of the state Thursday by the Reconstruction Corporation.

A delegation representing Governor Sterling conferred with officials of the corporation, outlining needs of the 240 counties. In the delegation were D. A. Bandeen of Stamford, and Wilbur Hawk of Amarillo, manager and president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; Hubert Harrison, of Longview, manager of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Ray Leeman of San Antonio, manager of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Of the 240 counties which had filed applications 114 are in West Texas. These allotments are to cover the emergency relief needs for January and February and it is contemplated that other applications will be made for March and April.

Among the larger applications of West Texas counties approved by the corporation are Tarrant, $77,700; Johnson, $15,000; Palo Pinto, $7,000; Taylor, $14,200; Tom Green, $8,000; Howard, $7,000; Nolan, $6,800; Jones, $10,000; Potter, $3,000; Wichita, $32,000; Wilbarger, $7,400; Young, $4,000; Eastland, $32,000; Stephens, $12,000.

A message received here last week, announcing the death of Grandma Stryker at Clifton, Friday, Dec. 30, Mrs. Stryker was the grandmother of Burr Brown and had visited here often.

The Westbrook Parent-Teacher association will hold its first meeting of the new year Thursday. Every parent urged to be present and help in this work.

Tarrant Commission Abolishes 'Chain Gang'

FORT WORTH (UP)—Abolition of "chain gangs" was one of the first official acts of Tarrant county's new commissioners court.

The court decided prisoners could be fed cheaper in the county jail than "on the road." Cost of guards and other employees at road camps will be saved under the new system.

San Angelo Bank Changes Presidents

SAN ANGELO (UP)—Alex Collins, San Angelo attorney, Monday became president of the Central National Bank, succeeding W. C. Blanka, who retired because of ill health.

Blanka was named chairman of the board of directors and vice-president of the institution.

H. P. Robbins is recovering after having been kept at home for several days with flu.
