Huge Increase On New Cars

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — The house banking committee today invited Henry Ford II, to appear person-ally for a presentation of his side of an argument , with OPA on the pricing of automobiles.

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nething harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcentrate (formerly called Barcel Concentrate). Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it.

If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; fi reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better, you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Steps Against Inflation

In rapid sequence, many of the major strikes are being settled. This will afford an opportunity of hastening the reconversion process through production of sorely needed consumer goods.

The basis on which the settlement was reached is inflationary per se, yet this may be partially offset by production of goods. The fact that the resolving of major issues was predicated upon higher prices increases rather than diminishes the need for looking to other means of combatting inflation.

One device is price control, but as we have contended in the past, this is an artificial process and at best i, only a delaying action. Ultimately its effectiveness is in direct relation to the production of goods, else someday impounded demand will spill over the price control dam and the flood will be inevitable.

Another approach, and an economically fundamental one, is the balancing of the national budget and an attempt to service the gigantic national debt.

To the layman, this is a catch-phrase, yet it is not as complex as it sounds.

A magaine writer recently has given an ant illustration. When you borrow money from the bank, the loan is credited to your account, boosting your deposits. In reality. you have more purchasing power, but you are not wealthier because you have not produced any wealth; rather you are in debt.

There is nothing mysterious about this. The same applies to the national debt if two approaches are understood. One is that the government, in borrowing from individuals, decreases the inflationary deposit or checking reserve of the nation. This is helpful in reducing the ready checking accounts which might be used to bid for consumer goods.

On the other hand, when borrowing from. the people approaches exhaustion, there is inslight of that.

an alternate procedure. That is to turn to the banks for credit. One way is to issue notes of credit through the federal reserve. Stripped of its complexities, this means increasing the amount of money in circulation. This is some of the paper money we hear so much about.

That this has been used is evidenced by the fact that as of August, $23,000,000,000 of the $27,000,000,000 outstanding money was in federal reserve notes. This may be deceptive, for in reality it was not the total money supply, because counting all our forms of money, we had a supply of $163,-000,000,000, of which more than 25 billions was in "hand" money: Compare the supply with 61 billions in 1939 and a hand money supply of only six billions. Thus, it may be seen that part of the "wealth" is fictitious and to that extent it is inflationary dyna-

Certainly, it requires no imagination to see that a course of action designed to balance the budget and service the debt would be a stabilizing influence.

But how would this combat inflation? One of the chief steps would be in curbing the power to increase the money supply by deficit financing through commercial banks. Again, this might be likened to the individual who had built up a huge deposit account at the bank by borrowing from the bank. It would mean that he was no longer increasing a fictitious balance while at the pensive and beautifull? - design- open a similar glitter restaurant same time making an honest effort to retire ed East Side restaurant. there in Hollywood. As the government retired its obligations, it would reduce the abnormal money supply. That would be like reducing the size of your checking account at the bank. We can well imagine your inclinations toward spending Lyan's husband, Lou Levis, would

He is Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson. Anderson was once a reporter

on the Albuquerque, N. M., Journal. His publisher, the late Carl MaGee, had led a battle against the forestry and public lands policies of President Harding's Secretary of the Interior, Albert Fall. Cattle, not oil, was the original motive behind his crusade, due to the fact that Cattlemen were being granted the use of state lands for grazing at a ridiculously low

The Journal, therefore, was on the lookout for information about Fall, whose home was a large ranch at Three Falls, N. M.

One day an old cowboy rode to the Albuquerque Journal offices and asked to talk to Anderson, He had quit the Fall ranch just a few days earlier and gave Anderson an earful about its operations. The future Secretary of Agriculture listened, but was beginning to think he was wasting his time when the cowboy mentioned that Fall had just received a new stallion worth about $25,000. Some people would have passed this by. But Anderson was smart enough to recall that Carl Magee, after a visit to the Fall ranche some months earlier had noted that Fall appeared to be in moderaté circumstances. So Anderson went to Magee, asked if he knew any reason why Fall should spend $25,000 for a stallion just a few months after becoming Secretary of the Interior, and then sent a wire to the Chicago Tribune, which put sleuths to work in Washington. The Tribune reported that the stallion was a gift to Fall from Publisher Edward B. McLean.

of the Waco school have been lean since 1921, last time a Baylor team copped the football championship, and since 1932 their efforts have gone for naught, as far as titles go. Although some serious contenders have been produced in several sports since the 1932 cage entry walked off with conference laurels, titles have been elusive.

Fourteen men from Amarillo toppled pins for the Cosden Sweep stakes at the West Texas Alley Sunday, but Jack Smith, director of the tournament believes there will be several entries in the main event this weekend who stand good chancs of topping the eight-game high of 1533 set by Ted Buccola for the Amarillo crew.

Tommy Bridges and Ted Lyons, et al, can move over and make room for a "newcomer" to the veterans of all veterans ranks in the major leagues. Despite his 40 years, Earl (aldwell, chunker of many a minor league ball and strike including a leagthy tenure in the Texas loop, was awarded a raise on his 1946 contract with the Chicago White Sox. Last year, at 39, his first season with the Sox, Earl got some votes for rookie of the year.

Incidentally, Lyons was so anxious to get 1946 activities underway that he appeared at the Pasadena, Cal. training camp of the White Sox several days ahead of the main squad. At 45 he still hopes to toss more than 20 games this year.

It won't be surprising if the new three-team intercollegiate conference is enlarged before it's many seasons old. There are some already predicting that the University of Houston will want to graduate from the Lone Star circuit soon. It has even been predicted that Jewell Wallace's football teams will compare favorably with Southwest conference elevens in the not too distant future. The new circuit could become quite powerful, as Oklahoma City and San Antonio probably, ers at Chicago Feb. 25, 26 and 27 who are not American Legion can be counted on to support upper-bracket teams.
