Governor Stevenson wired our Senators, Tom Connally and W. Lee as follows:--"Texas sentiment appears overwhelmingly against rationing gasoline in any form. Likewise the sentiment is against rationing of mileage for cars and trucks. Such rationing will disrupt our economic structure to such an extent that all classes of people are opposed to it.

The people of Texas are united and are vigorously supporting the awarded in the contest last year. war program, but consider rationunnecessary and disastrous upon the public spirit."

We have not had a campaign of this kind for some time and in going about over the town, it is noticed there is a number of piles of old can and other rubbish scattered about that should be cleanup. The city will furnish a truck to haul the cans and other trash off and all is asked is that citizens cooperate and put their rubbish in a pile where the truck can get it. Monday, June the 8th will be clean-up week. This is some thing that should be done for the protection of the health of the citizens of the town. Don't forget that June the 8th, and have everything where the truck driver can get it and it will be hauled off without cost to you. DEHYDRATED CRANBERRIES

The latest among dehydrated producis are cranberry flakes. The cranberries are gathered, washed and pressed, then dried in a simple revolving drum and conveyor system at South Hanson, Mass. This latest development results from the shortage of tin cans. The dried berries, formerly canned, now are put up in cartons. The new product makes cranberry sauce when water and sugar are added the mass is boiled as usual.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY UNDER PRODUCTION REQUIREMENT PLAN

The nation's cotton mills, under a new WPB order, are converting specified percentages of their leams to the production of bag osnaburg and bag sheetings. This sand bags. camouflage cloth and food and agricultural bags.

A further step toward putting all American industry under the Production Requirements Plan by elimination of priority assistance on individual applications of manufactures has been taken by the War Production Board. The WPB announced that no individual applications for manufacturers' materials to be used over a period of more than one month will be approved. Under the PRP plan, all materials required for a calendar quarter are covered in a single application, thus giving the WPB a tighter check on the volume and uses of materials, as well as full inventory information.

WPB officials consoled the nation's ifshermen by pointing out that "the stores are chock-full of tackle", when they issued the recent order banning the use of metals, plastics and cork in non-commercial fishing tackle made after May 21. Since most tackle cannot be manufactured without the use of such materials, the order will mean the end of fishing-tackle production for the duration. The only exception is fishing hooks, which may be produced for three montas, beginning June 1, at a rate of 50 per cent of last year's

IN VICTORY GARDEN

With imports restricted by wartime conditions, most Texans may profitably include a few herbs in their Victory gardens, says Jennie Camp, specialist in home production planning for the A. and M. College Extension Service.

Many herbs are well adapted to Texas conditions and a few might be grown commercially in Texas, the specialist says, calling attention to a recent report prepared by S. O. Yarnell, chief of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's division of horticulture. Among the herbs and spices which might be grown with garden care in the state are basil, dill, mint, sage, parsley, anise, beramot, catnip, chives, dittany, fennel, hyssop, marjoram, mustard, rosemary, savory, tarragon, and lemon verbene.

Using herbs in cooking is an art, Miss Camp says-an art which is practiced too little. They give stimulating flavors to drinks and distinctive flavors to warmed-over dishes "and in many other ways can aid the homemaker in making cooking an adventure rather than a daily chore."

Here are some rules for cooking with herbs: Use them sparingly. Blend them judiciously. Don't use herbs in every dish.

Parsley and fennel are good with poultry, veal, venison and fish. Thyme, marjoram, and savory also combine well with these meats, while lamb or mutton may have mint sauce or mint jelly. A dish of mint or tarragon will make fruit mint, parsley, pepper grass, water- Everything to cress, and sorrel will give other Shaving Crean salads new and unknown tangs, the a Full Line of these Article specialist says. Poppy and caraway seeds add interest to breads, rolls and pickle,. Woodruff, mint, lemon verbera, balm, rose geranium and anise are good in beverages.

RUBBERLESS JARS

The fruit jar made wholly of glass, needing neither metal nor rubber to seal it, but only a little paraffin, has been invented, patented and will soon come on the market. for housewives, it can hardly come too soon. The strawberry jam season, which opens summer canning, is almost upon them.

This new jar is described as having an inner shoulder at the top of as rapidly as could be expected. which a glass cover fits loosely. The spent several days in Putnam this gist return money if first bottle of housewife twirls the cover around over the hot fruit, thus getting the air bubbles out. (Remember how grandma stuck a silver spoon in the jar before sealing? Same idea). Then as the paraffin hardens a vacuum is created and the normal pressure of the air-about fifteen pounds per square inch-holds the cover tight. The raw material of glass, says the inventor, Glenn A. Toaz, is roughly one-third of the earth's surface, and the more oil we process, the more paraffin we have to use up. So priorities pre- Dave Hargrive of Cottonwood were sent no difficulty.
