Lausanne: The American Obligation

Although there is a gentleman's agreement among the European creditors of Germany that they will be well advised not to go out on a limb and make declarations that they wish they had never made, it may take six months; it may take a year before the revolution in opinion takes place. But it will take place. The maintenance of the present debt settlement is a hopelessly lost cause.

Therefore, those who look forward to a career in American politics will be well advised not to go out on a limb and make declarations that they wish they had never made. It may take six months; it may take a year before the revolution in opinion takes place. But it will take place. The maintenance of the present debt settlement is a hopelessly lost cause.

Sweetwater's golfing coaches, A. E. Lowe and E. A. Hennig, may not be the best golfing coaches in West Texas but they are certainly the most successful. The two gentlemen who last year produced an extraordinary record of District 4 are present at every tournament with-in a day's drive of Sweetwater, but not until the Coleman event did either of them break into the trophy class. There the Mustang mentors found themselves facing each other in the finals of the second flight, but left Coleman without a playoff.

Ohio Bristow's feat of capturing the Lubbock coaching school tournament is perhaps the outstanding victory turned in by a local athlete during the year so far. Even par over the difficult country club layout is something anyone can be pardoned for boasting about.

The Civic league continues its work in cleaning up the town. An effort is being extended to improve conditions that illness may in a large measure be eradicated.

Big Spring has her day. After taking numerous and consistent beatings at the hands of Colorado, the local Y. M. C. A. team trounced the Clippers 2-0 in a fast game here. Lack of practice has handicapped the Y team this season, but it is thought they may be hitting their stride.

Democratic primary is slated here for July 28 with the county convention to be held on August 4. Precinct No. 1 is the only one that will vote in the courthouse this year. Other precincts are at the Skating rink, Shiloh school house, Gray Hill school house, Bar school house, Light school house, and Coahoma school house. Charles W. Willis is county chairman.

Pushing Economy Too Far

The mayor of that Minnesota town who has been auctioning city jobs off to the lowest bidder, replacing policemen, street sweepers and clerks by men who were willing to work for less than the existing wage, stands out as one of the most peculiar municipal executives the nation contains.

But his case is an isolated one and it would not be worth mentioning if it were not for the fact that he has just been doing what a lot of other cities have been subconsciously thinking of doing.

His idea, after all, is that the one important thing is to get city work done as cheaply as possible. A lot of cities are working on the same general motion. They haven't got to the point where they're willing to auction jobs at starvation wages, but they're approaching it. In these hard times we need to remember that economy on public payrolls can be pushed too far.

TEXAS TOPICS

By Raymond Brooks

AUSTIN—Highway contractors at a few places in Texas are violating the law, Labor Commr. Rowley has reported, in compelling employees to buy supplies, such as food, gasoline and board, from company commissaries.

Commr. Gragg announced the purpose of filing a series of suits against one firm on highway jobs in Wharton and Colorado counties, and said he had been given the full cooperation of the prosecuting officers of those counties.

On the subject of labor, Commr. Gragg recently found a sub-contractor on one of the University of Texas buildings who, he said, was charging each laborer $1 per day for "use of tools" or as he termed it for the privilege of working. The $1 was deducted out of the low wages being paid on the work, leaving some of the laborers approximately $1.50 for 10 hours' daily work.

Large Crowd Hears Sermon

The Power Of Choice. Topic Of Rev. W. W. Smith Tonight

A large audience heard Rev. Woodie W. Smith Wednesday evening at the East Fourth Street Baptist church on the subject "The Power of Choice." His text was taken from Mark's Gospel chapter 9 verses 43-45 inclusive. Rev. Smith spoke as follows:

"Friends, I want you to listen attentively tonight because you are going to be either closer to God or farther away after this service this evening. There are many different opinions as to hell. I know of some preachers who want to take the fire out of hell. If God had wanted it out he would have left it out. Hell is a scientific necessity. There must be a penalty for sin. If there were no penalties for sin violations men would openly disregard the right. My friends, you may escape the penalties of the law in this world, but you can never escape the ever-joyous eye of Jehovah. Tell me, are you going to be one of the inhabitants of hell? There are some things which are not found in hell that makes it an awful place to dwell in. I am going to mention them so that you may know the condition of your future home in case you do not accept Jesus as your Saviour.

"In this connection the preacher mentioned a number of things and conditions not found in hell and commented on them. He said, 'First, there will be no water in hell. Second, there will be no babies in hell. Third, there will be no Christ in hell. Fourth, there will be no joy in hell, no happiness, there will be no love in hell, such an awful place where there is no love. Sixth, there will be no Christians in hell. Seventh, there will be no water in hell. In my section last evening I told you how the rich man begged Abraham for just one drop of water to cool his parching tongue. Eighth, there will be no Christ in hell. In heaven, Christ sits as our advocate, but yonder in hell there is no advocate, no intercessor. We must bear the pain of hell alone.

"But friends, there are some things in hell to which I want to call your attention. First, the devil will be in hell. Second, liars will be in hell. Third, all hypocrites will be in hell. The facts that churches have some hypocrites in the churches here on earth, the hypocrite is between you and heaven. He is nearer heaven than you are. And there are more hypocrites out of the churches than in them. Would it not be better to spend a few years in the church with a few hypocrites than to spend all eternity in hell with all the hypocrites of the world? Fourth, all harlots and whoremongers will be in hell. Again, I call your attention to the rich man who so vividly remembered the conditions that existed while he was here on earth. Abraham said, 'Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime thou receivedst the good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things, but now he is comforted and thou art tormented.' Sixth, all who reject Jesus must be in hell. We die here once, but yonder in hell we die an everlasting death. The shrieks of that Negro yonder in that Sherman courthouse was awful as the flames enveloped that building and cremated his body. But the shrieks of those who reject Jesus will be never-ending. Won't you accept Jesus tonight my friends, and escape the torments of that awful eternal death."

At the invitation six professed salvation and joined the church by baptism.

Slight Slump In Oil Output

TULSA, (UP)—Crude petroleum production in the United States, as a result of a drastic slump in Oklahoma flow, declined slightly last week, the Oil & Gas Journal reported.

Daily average production was off 3,468 barrels to 2,146,731. Virtually every pool in the country registered slight increases which offset the drop of 17,175 barrels in Oklahoma to 406,335 barrels. Meanwhile, oil leaders discussed methods of further restricting crude production as a means of further stabilizing the industry and to increase crude prices.

The Oklahoma statewide production committee here approved the plan of Thurman Hill, Kansas public service commissioner, to reduce the nation's daily output to 2,000,000 barrels. They carefully avoided, however, any reference or action to that part of Hill's proposal which would provide a 25 cent a barrel increase of crude prices as a condition of the reduction which would be effected chiefly in unproductive areas.

Oil executives indicated they frowned on such a price fixing provision, indicating price increases should come only as a consequence to production restriction.

At Colorado Springs, the American Petroleum Institute directors continued discussion of oil problems.

Texas production, the Journal reported, increased 8,659 barrels to a daily average of 877,269 barrels. East Texas fields increased 1,480 barrels daily to 337,335.

California had a slight increase, the daily average rising 3,000 barrels to 471,000, a figure which threatened the recently increased price structure there.

"Stop-Look-Listen"

*Texas Needs Sterling Honest
Sterling Responsibility
Sterling Ability More Than Ever
During the Next Two | 2 | Years*

WHICH AND WHY

FERGUSON RECORD

1. Under Ferguson, government by proxy, with an impeached Governor as the husband of the nominal Governor, himself not legally responsible for the acts of his wife in her official capacity.
2. Under Ferguson, an indirect government thereby making government in Texas a subject for jest and laughter.
3. Under Ferguson, Texas in debt and the treasury unable to respond even in prosperous times.
4. Under Ferguson, the patronage to reward friends and to punish enemies of the Fergusons.
5. Under the Fergusons, wasteful handling of government resources and extravagance in the expenditure of public funds.
6. With Jim Ferguson again as the husband of the Governor would there not be a repetition of the past—a lavish use of the pardoning power—pardons granted before the gates of the penitentiary closed on the criminal?
7. Is not the past a prophecy of the future? Under the Fergusons there was wasteful expenditure of highway funds; money expended on vanishing roads; contracts in the Highway Department that produced suits by the Attorney General who recovered for the State, over attorneys representing the Ferguson administration, more than $1,000,000 on road contracts.

STERLING RECORD

1. Under Sterling direct responsibility in the Governor's chair.
  2. Sterling restored public respect at home and abroad for Texas government and Texas citizens.
  3. Under Sterling, Texas setting the example to other States in wise and efficient management of state finances; the government solvent even in a time of economic stress.
  4. Under Sterling powers of government used without fear or favor for the interests of all.
  5. Under Sterling conservatism and economy producing a saving of $11,000,000 in the State's finances in two years.
  6. Under Sterling wise use of pardoning power to reward convicts for good behavior, pardons and paroles given only after a large part of sentence served.
  7. Under Sterling a dollar's worth of highways for every dollar spent; open contracts openly arrived at, and permanent roads to show for the money spent.
  8. Ross Sterling entered office a millionaire; comes out a poor man. No profitable wood and water carrying for him.
- Protected dependent children of Texas by the passage of a Child Welfare bill which was promised in his platform.
- The Child Welfare Department has been established, and functions under the direction of the State Board of Control.
- Under Ross Sterling the Texas Governorship Has Been Restored to Respectability—The Past Two Official Years Have Been the Best Since the Days of James Stephen Hogg.

WHEN IT TOOK OVER THE AFFAIRS OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT, GOVERNOR STERLING'S ADMINISTRATION INHERITED A DEFICIT OF MORE THAN $4,000,000 current and more than $11,000,000 prospective for the biennium ahead (Estimate of State Auditor April 1, 1931). One year later, due to economies of the first Sterling year, the auditor was able to report that the $11,400,000 contemplated deficit would be reduced to $354,000, a saving of more than $11,000,000, wrought about by reductions in operating costs of state departments, stoppage of leaks in tax collections, increased yields from non-ad valorem taxes. In addition, Governor Sterling vetoed appropriations totaling $3,621,897, which otherwise would have been added to the tax burden.

FINALLY it is apparent that the governor's race is between these two—the Honorable Ross Sterling, present Governor, and the wife of James E. Ferguson, former Governor, with James E. Ferguson as proxy. It is apparent to all, and virtually admitted by the Fergusons, that if Mrs. Ferguson be elected, her husband will conduct the affairs of the governor's office.

In arriving at your choice in this race we respectfully call your attention to a few facts which may aid you in making your decision:

Governor Sterling HAS NOT been impeached and removed from office as Governor;

Governor Sterling's Highway Commission has not let road contracts at exorbitant prices which were canceled by law suits which resulted in a saving of millions of dollars to the taxpayers;

Governor Sterling has not pardoned 3,737 criminals, who have been convicted by the juries of the State of Texas, and turned them loose on society;

Governor Sterling has not run the State of Texas millions of dollars in debt;

Governor Sterling has not increased the expense of the state government by millions;

Governor Sterling has not permitted the affairs of the Highway Departments to be conducted in such a manner as to cause the withdrawal of Federal aid;

Governor Sterling has not been hiding behind a woman's skirts;

Governor Sterling HAS been Governor in fact in his own proper person and in his own name and has only granted 15 pardons and 1,802 furloughs and paroles; in each instance his act has been based on the recommendation of the trial officers and the Board of Pardons and Paroles. Governor Sterling has put the penitentiary on a sound business basis and now 80 per cent of the provisions used in the operation of the penitentiary is produced by the system;

This year the penitentiary system turns back to the State more than half a million dollars of funds appropriated for its expenses; under Ferguson administration the penitentiary system rolled up such huge deficits that not only were the regular appropriations spent but the Legislature was called upon and did appropriate an additional $875,000 to pay off prison indebtedness;

Governor Sterling has saved the taxpayers approximately $7,000,000 by the use of veto on appropriations and by practicing economy. The various State Departments under Governor Sterling's guidance have reduced their operating expense approximately $3,500,000 under the budget allowed them in appropriations by the Legislature;

Governor Sterling has in truth and in fact been a good, honest, efficient servant of the people and is by all rules of democracy entitled to a second term—Vote for him and you will be registering a vote for a good, honest, clean and economical government.

CHAPTER XLVII

Pearson repeated Dan's words. "You've got to find her? Why can't you find her?"

"I haven't seen her for a week," Phillips admitted. "Cherry and I had a row. Oh, it was my fault! My fault altogether! I've got to find her and tell her I know that."

"But where is she?"

Dan did not answer. They had reached the intersection of two important thoroughfares just as the traffic lights flashed red. They saw a driver drive on the opposite corner. Dan touched Pearson's arm.

"Let me go," he said. "I've got to telephone to Cherry."

"But if you don't know where she is how can you do that?"

"I'm going to call her home—mean her parents' home. That's where she must be. Want to ask her if I can come out and talk to her?"

"Don't you understand, Max? I've got to see Cherry! I've got to tell her a lot of things—"

Pearson stopped the car. "All right," he said, "but make it snappy. I won't be able to park here a day, you know."

"I'll disappear into the drug store," Pearson said. "I'll be back in a few minutes before he can get away and when he does one look at his face was enough to tell that the mission had failed."

Pearson eyed him expectantly.

"What?" he asked.

"You got into the radiator," she said. "There," he said. "They haven't seen her or heard from her."

"Then where do you think she is?"

"I don't know! I thought all along—my God, Max, I've got to find her!"

"But it's rather late to begin thinking about that," Pearson said. "Cherry left Saturday. I must say, Dan—"

"Say it! Say anything you want to! I'll admit I deserve all you're thinking about me. Tell me I've been a damned fool! I don't care what you say if you'll help me find her! She must be here in Wellington. She wouldn't go away!"

"Why not? How about her parents? Maybe she's with them."

Dan shook his head. "I don't think so," he said. "Cherry's proud. I don't think she'd go to her parents and—well, admit that she's made a mistake. I thought she'd come back or at least send some word. When she didn't I decided she really meant what she said—about being through with me. I thought she wanted a divorce and I was going to give her a chance to get it. Last but not least, I've been a fool, Max! I've—oh, if I could only find her! Talk to me! Maybe I could make her understand—maybe she'd give me another chance—"

Pearson interrupted. "Listen, Dan, I think Cherry's gone to her parents and—well, admit that she's made a mistake. I thought she'd come back or at least send some word. When she didn't I decided she really meant what she said—about being through with me. I thought she wanted a divorce and I was going to give her a chance to get it. Last but not least, I've been a fool, Max! I've—oh, if I could only find her! Talk to me! Maybe I could make her understand—maybe she'd give me another chance—"

"What shall I do, Max?"

"Well, if I were you I'd send a wire. Do you know where to find can you report here Saturday?"

The message was signed with the name of the city editor of an eastern newspaper. Pearson crumpled the sheet into his coat pocket.

"The boy asked, 'Any answer?'"

"Not now," he said, and was on his way to the telephone booth.

There were no reports from Wellington hospitals of accident cases or patients who could be identified as Cherry Phillips. Dan and Max tried the hotels but the effort was equally unavailing.

Suddenly Dan sprang up. He caught Pearson's shoulder. "I've just thought of something!" he cried eagerly. "Yes—I'll bet that's where she is, Max! Why didn't I think of it before?"

"Why didn't you think of that?"

"I'll bet she's with Sarah—the woman who used to take care of her when she was a little girl, Sarah O'Fallan, that's her name!"

"Where is this woman?" Let's go to the office. I'll send the wire from there."

Forty minutes later in the city room of the Wellington News Dan Phillips stood with a telegram in his hand. It was a terse report that Cherry Phillips was not with her parents.

Silently Dan handed the message to Pearson who read it and said, "Not there, huh?"

Pearson said Phillips were in a corner of the room otherwise deserted. The day staff had departed and only half a dozen of the night men were on hand. The click of a typewriter sounded monotonously from across the room.

Pearson rubbed his head. "We'll have to try again. Who are Cherry's friends, Dan? Who could she be with if she hasn't left town?"

"I've told you a dozen times I can't think of anyone," Dixie Shannon didn't even know she was gone. There isn't anybody—"

"But there must be!" Suddenly Pearson's fist hit the desk. "Look here, Dan, this may be serious! Has it occurred to you that Cherry's an heiress? Her father's money—have you thought of that?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean any thing may have happened in a week's time! A beautiful girl—wealthy—has been missing for seven days. Nobody knows what's become of her. Her parents—the servants at her home—not a person she might have been expected to communicate with has heard a word from her. How do you know she hasn't been kidnapped? Maybe there's been an accident! Why, in a week's time—"

Pearson was on his feet. His dark face had set into a harsh mask.

"What are you going to do, Max?"

"Call the hospitals! You'd better get on another phone and take part of the list! If we can't find her this way there's nothing left but the police—"

A telegraph messenger entered the swinging gate that shut the city room from the entrance way and came directly toward Pearson. He held out a colored envelope.

"Your name's Pearson, isn't it?" the boy asked.

Max was tearing the envelope open. Dan sprang to his side and together they read the words: "Sixty-five per week agreeable stop."

It was a single flight up the street level. He took a left-running, the two men reached the street. They sprang into a cab and Dan gave the address of the apartment. It was Dan suddenly who was taking the initiative, who was giving orders and directing the search.

"I don't know what you're going to do," Max reminded him. "We're going out to the house to look for Cherry's letters. There must be some from Sarah. They'll give us the address."

"Dan, I think it would be a lot more sensible to go to the chief—"

"Not until I find out whether or not she's with Sarah. Besides, what could the police do? Cherry wouldn't want them interfering. I can't—I won't believe anything's happened to her!"

Max glanced quickly at his companion.

DRY CAUSE— (CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) thinking. "Why do you do that to shift the tax burden more heavily on the poor man," he commented, "because beer is a poor man's drink the world over." He asserted that this was the reason some rich men recently had come out for repeal.

Canada's system of liquor control found no friend in Dr. Sandefer. He read excerpts from Vancouver and Winnipeg papers deploring the Canadian liquor menace. Provincial supreme courts had declared that more rum running, bootlegging, and racketeering had appeared since Canada had given up prohibition, he said.

Dr. Sandefer charged that the resubmission order for the Texas democratic primary passed the executive committee by only two votes, and "then by trickery." It was, he believed, calculated to catch prohibitionists unprepared and to lend the impression that Texas was wet.

It had been figured, said Dr. Sandefer, that if a three-cent tax were placed on beer, each family would have to consume twelve and half a gallons per day to reach the estimated billion dollar revenue. "The most liquor taxes ever did yield the United States was $483,000,000," said Dr. Sandefer.

HOME TOWN— (CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) law enforcement in Texas. Election of Calhoun, he said, would be a back-step of a hundred years. ## Hunter Says He Will Lead

Wichita Falls Candidate Addresses Crowd In Dallas

DALLAS—Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls said in a speech here Thursday night that he expected to be the next governor of Texas.

"My asset in this campaign," he said, "have been thousands of friends throughout the state who have been waging a diligent battle without compensation and who have worked with telling effect."

"You need not be surprised if all the 50 per cent of the people who are so disgusted with Ross Sterling and Jim Ferguson vote their convictions for Hunter and give me a majority in the first primary."

"Sterling has used the tactics of having his lieutenants in each county say that particular county is his weakest point, picturing green grass as growing just across the line. It is conceded in Bell county, Jim Ferguson's home county, that Tom Hunter has a safe lead there."

Hunter went on to say that he had kept his campaign expenses low while large sums of money spent in behalf of Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson had failed to produce results. He closed by advocating closer regulation of public utilities.

"We must retain for ourselves," he said, "the $70,000,000 a year unfairly taken by the utilities, the fabulous sums, pictured wrongfully by the oil trusts, our manufacturing advantages by eastern manufacturers."

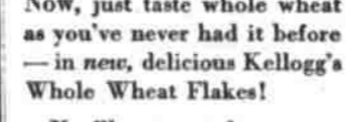

"That this be accomplished, we shall subdue the utilities, restrict their profits to a fair margin, overcome their watered-stock claims, provide equal rights to the individual in business, break the monopolistic control by sales taxes, encourage our own citizens in the manufacturing field and make it easier for the retailers to compete with the chains, put on the shelves of our mercantile houses our manufactured products as well as products of our soil. By putting sales taxes on outside-produced substitutes, we shall provide money for the employment of labor by keeping Texas money in Texas."

Keeping Cool By Wearing Mesh & Sheer Underwear

There is no denying the fact designers of underwear have done all they can to keep one cool this summer. The knitted rayon things are so sheer that you have to look twice to see them at all. Panties are made of such fine cobwebby lace that they have to be reinforced with solid milanese. You can find a great choice of designs but one of the prettiest has alternating stripes of lace and milanese.

All panties are made pretty short nowadays but one of the newest styles is cut away at the sides so that there is practically nothing left—no complaint of "bulkiness" from this model.

Angel skin glove silk is a new fabric for undies—even newer than the lacy knits. It has a lovely soft surface, a nice dull appearance and they claim it will wash without shrinking. One of the panties made of this material is cleverly cut to mold the figure and flare up over so slightly over the hips.

The popular combination for summer wear is pantie, brassiere and slip. You can buy the whole set rolled into one. Wrap-around silk slips with panties attached and lace brassiere tops make it easy to jump into your clothes.

Some people have always claimed that sheer linen is the coolest thing you can possibly wear. So they will be satisfied with the fine linen slips and panties cut strictly on the bias without extra bulk and trimmed with a refined bit of real Val or Irish lace.

Plenty of creative ability has gone into beautifully hot-weather sportswomen. Swim pants are the latest thing to give you a good figure even in a bathing suit. Made of an especially soft, two-way stretch elastic they offer the control of a girdle but have no garters.

A really sensible sports undie is made of mercerized cotton knitted with two surfaces so that the inside is soft and absorbent while the outside is smooth and won't cling to your dresses. It is cut for action too, something like the old-fashioned union suit with curved shoulder straps that shouldn't slip off.

And for sportswomen who want to wear almost no underwear there are brassieres and little cut-away panties made of chamollette with a waist-band of crocheted elastic.

NORTH TOMAWANDA, N. Y.—Awards of $1,200,000 government contract to the American District Steam Corporation here will increase employment and activity of the local concern to the high 1929 level, and will keep it there for several months, it was estimated.
