Thanksgiving, 1973

Our American Thanksgiving Day dates officially from 1863 when the nation was locked in a sectional struggle. At that time Mrs. Sarah J. Hale, who had been proposing a national day of thanksgiving for decades in Boston and Philadelphia as a magazine editor, wrote to President Abraham Lincoln, who in October of 1863 issued the first Thanksgiving proclamation.

There had been earlier thanksgiving days; some date the American observance to the days of the early settlers of the nation, who gave thanks for their food supply and the opportunity America offered. The first probably occurred in the Plymouth Colony in 1621.

There have also been observances in other lands but few countries had adopted annual thanksgiving days prior to the American custom. An international thanksgiving day was held in Washington in 1909, having been conceived by the Rev. Dr. William T. Russell of St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

Thus the American Thanksgiving Day, this year on the 22nd, is uniquely American. In 1973 it finds us blessed with both great wealth and peace.

In giving thanks for the many blessings all Americans enjoy, we can resolve to build a better community and a greater nation, for in spite of our blessings and accomplishments, there is still much to be done in the building of our country.

The Missing Tapes

The late discovery that two of nine controversial presidential tapes are missing has added to the credibility problem at the White House in the minds of millions of Americans.

That was inevitable because the two missing tapes were to have been key evidence in determining whether the testimony of John Dean is taken seriously. Dean's charge that President Nixon was involved in certain Watergate activities has been denied by a parade of witnesses, all other White House witnesses, in fact.

Without seeking to determine the facts surrounding the latest tapes controversy, which only a court can do, it can nevertheless be said the discovery that two of the tapes are missing is singularly unfortunate.

One suspects Senators and Congressmen who say much of the American public will never fully accept the explanation are right, and that is likely to cost the White House and the nation heavily, whatever the true facts.

The Oil Shortage

More important to U.S. consumers than oil developments in the Middle East was Venezuela's recent hike in oil prices, a 56 per cent increase, the tenth announced this year.

Added to other oil acquisition and price problems, this development greatly increases the need for the United States to develop other sources of power, to acquire more oil from new sources and for the American people to save fuel in every possible way.

There's now little doubt, because of events in the Middle East and elsewhere, that an oil shortage exists and threatens to remain a problem for several years. That being the future, the proper role of the federal government is to hold price increases to reasonable levels, to bar sharp and excessive hikes, always a temptation to sellers in shortage situations, and to order allocations when necessary.

The U.S. supply of petroleum products will continue to be quite large, relatively, though not always enough for everyone everywhere; thus the development of new energy sources and the conservation of energy by families, businesses and the local, county, state and federal governments, are a must.

Alleviating Shortage

If Congress wants to alleviate the power shortage, likely to inconvenience Americans this winter and for some time to come, an obvious step is to reduce the heavy consumption of electricity for advertising and display purposes after business hours. A curfew on display lighting would be the first step. (The President has called for the limiting of business working hours.)

In practically every town and city in the country huge buildings (often power company or other utilities buildings), automobile display lots, show windows and signs are brightly lighted, usually until eleven or midnight and often all night (except where power curfews are already in effect).

While it's desirable that every business be able to use what power it's willing to pay for in normal conditions, these are not normal times. The power shortage threatens to deprive some families of electricity for heating and other necessities. Commercial display lighting should not take precedent over these basic needs.

That will happen, however, unless local or federal authority intervenes, for power companies are not likely to antagonize major buyers and consumers unduly. The less government interference and regulation the better, but in this case power companies may need legal justification to curb usage. Congress, or local governing bodies, will have to show the way.

A Cold Winter?

A government study predicts this winter will probably be colder than last, that heating bills will likely be higher, but the forecast of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is not a certain thing.

NOAA expects the winter to be colder because it thinks a trend has set in toward colder winters in the past fifteen years. But if that is not a trend and just an unusual swing over a longer period of perhaps fifty or a hundred years, the NOAA forecast might prove wrong.

If average winter temperatures since 1931 are used as a base for the 1973-74 prediction, another mild winter could be expected, for recent winters (from 1957 on) have been unusually cold. If, on the other hand, a trend began about 1957, colder weather lies ahead. (A recent six-inch snowfall as far south as north Georgia might or might not be an indication of things to come.)

NOAA says the following five regions will probably have a colder winter than last year. New England, Middle Atlantic, East North Central, East South Central and South Atlantic. The following regions should have it warmer, West North Central, West South Central, Mountain and Pacific.

Tax Planning Can Save Money

Many opportunities to reduce or defer paying federal income taxes are available to farmers, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist.

Cash farm income often fluctuates greatly from year to year. Good financial management includes leveling taxable income to reduce or defer taxes. Since this year is an unusually high income year for many Texas farmers, quick action can help reduce the 1973 tax bill.

The first step in year-end tax planning is to determine where the farm business stands now, explains the Texas A&M University System economist. Good records make this job much easier.

First, total this year's income and expenses up to the present time. Next, estimate and include expected transactions for the rest of the year. Then, compute depreciation for buildings and equipment. Using these results, estimate the taxable income.

"Depending on your findings, you may want to buy more supplies or sell less than you planned before next January 1," says Hayenga.

"Farmers using the cash method of accounting who need to reduce taxable income should consider buying fertilizer, feed and other supplies for use next year. Buying fertilizer now may be an especially good move, since

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

Arkansas is the only team between Texas Tech and the second best season in Raider football history, tying it with the 1953 eleven that won 10 of 11 and beat Auburn in the Gator Bowl.

By coincidence, this team lost only to Texas; the 1953 team lost only to A&M. Both teams went to the Gator Bowl. Both faced Southeast Conference teams, Auburn in 1953, Tennessee in 1973. For both teams the bowl game was fitting tribute to outstanding seasons.

It's about time that tribute was paid to the Tech coaches, as well as the players. From Coach Jim Carlen on down, the Tech staff must be considered one of the finest in the nation, if not the best.

Be honest, fans. When this season started, despite the experience present, it wasn't generally felt that the Raiders could go through the season with a 10-1 record. But they have improved each week. They have done what it takes to win.

That brings up another "funny" thing. It was mentioned in some quarters that this Tech team lacked the killer instinct, that it didn't go out and manhandle anyone, rolled up no big scores.

Saturday it didn't manhandle Baylor, true, but it rolled up a big score. The Raiders managed 55 points and, more important, won by 31 points.

And still there were some, on Sunday, still questioning the 1973 Raiders.

So they took advantage of four fumbles and a pass interception. So what? As I've said before, if it happens once, maybe it is luck. When it happens regularly, game after game, good football is the answer. The Raiders are making the breaks and then capitalizing on them.

So the bowls are filled and you have to think that the Alabama-Notre Dame game is the tops. But the Tech-Tennessee matchup could be one of the best games in the New Year's series.

Tennessee is still an outstanding team, but it does lack the awesomeness of teams we've seen in the Cotton Bowl in the past. Even so, with time to heal and get ready for one game, the Vols will be tough. They play rugged defense and they have an explosive offense.

The other day Frank Broyles, the brilliant Arkansas coach, was saying that college football is destroying itself, that the rich are getting richer, the poor are getting poorer.

It started me thinking, and checking. Take the SWC, for instance. You find the four state schools on top, with the three church and independent (Rice) bringing up the rear. Attendance keeps pace with winning and losing, too, of course.

So, here's the record through Saturday: Texas and Texas Tech each are 4-0 against the "church" schools, A&M is 3-1 and Arkansas is 2-1-1. That's a 13-2-1 record.

Rice has a 2-2 mark, while SMU is 0-3-1 and TCU and Baylor are each 0-4. This will hurt in recruiting. It will hurt in finances, primarily through attendance. And figures already show that attendance generally is down, but more so at the losing schools.

Is a "super conference" the answer? Not really. The winning schools would still get rich and the poor would still be poor. Second division teams in any league fail to draw well, and expenses would go up.

A "church-independent" conference would, in time face the same problems.

The problem is not solved by realignment. In fact, no one really has the answer and it may not ever be solved. Look what happened to minor league baseball, for example.

Before basketball practice began, Gerald Myers would walk through the football pressbox, laughing and joking with writers. I told him "wait until Oct. 15 and that smile will fade." Not me, Gerald replied, I'm always cheerful.

Uh, huh. After the scrimmage at Dunbar Thursday night I asked Gerald where his smile was. It wasn't in evidence.

"We've got problems," he said grimly. "We have a lot of work to do. We just don't have a second tough forward."

Indeed, when the reserves can battle the varsity to a standstill, as they did for the first 20 minutes, you do have problems. Kim McClintock, Grady Newton and Steve Trncak just didn't pick up the slack.

Not that Tech is doing to be bad. The Raiders will have a generally sound team, but missing is that driving forward to team with William Johnson, the good outside shooting forward Gerald wants. It's going to take a masterful juggling act, using the player with the hot hand, for the Raiders to be as strong as last year.

The Roundup: Two former Tech coaches, Red Phillips and Joe Blaylock, both now pro scouts, were in the pressbox Saturday...Also scouting was John Michelosen, former Pitt coach, along with an all-time great, Ace Parker...Fort Worth sports writers agree that TCU Coach Billy Tohill probably is on his way out...If the Rice band can throw bananas, maybe Tech's band should throw oranges at the Gator Bowl...Former Sudan High Coach Francis Smith, one of the early teachers of pattern basketball in South Plains high school circles, now coaches at Amherst. Lamar Kelly is the superintendent there, having forsaken coaching...Letter from Jim Whitelaw, my Saranac Lake, N.Y., outdoors friend. He says that he finally hauled his boat out of the water Nov. 12...and that there already was two inches of ice on the lake and river.

Red Raiders Romp Over Baylor 55-24

Generosity hardly is to be ignored and Texas Tech made the most of it Saturday afternoon as it won its seventh straight victory of the season with a 55-24 romp over Baylor.

The victory gave Tech (1) a berth in the Gator Bowl against Tennessee December 29; (2) its biggest point total of the year; (3) its biggest point total against Baylor in history; (4) a 9-1 record for the season; and (5) a 5-1 record and second place in the conference

Tech Goes to Gator Bowl

The artificially staged announcement Saturday night that Texas Tech was being invited to play in the Gator Bowl and the ensuring acceptance had all the trappings of a Hollywood premier night, complete with klieg lights, cameras whirling and officials looking pleasingly flushed with the results.

Gordon Thompson, Jr., Gator Bowl president, made the formal invitation in about a minute and a half and it didn't take Dr. Grover E. Murray, Tech president, that long to accept.

All of this took place at the Rodeway Inn's Media Hospitality Room Saturday night. Indeed, the invitation to Tech didn't come until after Gator Bowl officials had received acceptance from Tennessee, the host team.

Despite the hoopla and staged excitement, the anti-climax was as unexpected as dessert after dinner. The formal ceremonies really didn't take long and had been expected all week. It was obvious that bowl officials already had decided to give bids to both Tech and Tennessee regardless of the outcome of games Saturday.

In essence, Thompson said that Gator Bowl officials were impressed with Tech's football team, its coaching staff, its band, its enthusiasm, the friendliness of Lubbock.

Dr. Murray's response was equally praising of Jacksonville and the Gator Bowl.

Jim Carlen said that the whole thing had been left up to the Tech squad and that he was just happy to be among the official party.

Then the lights, after a brief question and answer period, were turned off, the electronic media picked up its cumbersome gear and departed, newsmen telephoned their papers to confirm what they already had written at least two hours previously and the host and visiting dignitaries departed.

All that was left in the media hospitality room were a handful of writers, more interested in the refreshments available and discussion of bowl games in general. The suspense was over.

Four Bear fumbles and an intercepted pass led to five of Tech's eight touchdowns, scored by Larry Isaac (three), Andre Tillman (two), and Joe Barnes, John Garner and Willie Kent.

Barnes tossed scoring strikes of 44 and 20 yards to Tillman and scored once. Isaac turned in a nifty 54-yard touchdown run and had others of one and two yards, while Garner notched the longest run of the season, 84 yards, for another Tech score. Kent wrapped it up on a 28-yard scoring pass from Jimmy Carmichael.

Between them, Baylor and Tech put more points on the scoreboard, 79, than in any league game this season, to say nothing of 1,020 yards of total offense.

Tech had its best day on the ground with 412 yards rushing, adding 128 yards passing, for a total offense of 540 yards. The Bears picked up 190 yards rushing, used Neal Jeffrey's accurate passing for 290 yards and chalked up a total offense of 480 yards.

Jeffrey filled the air, completing 22 of 39 tries for two touchdowns, with only one interception, while Barnes completed six of 10 for an even 100 yards and two touchdowns.

Almost overlooked was the 138 yards gained rushing by Garner, with 115 yards by Isaac. James Mosley, named the top offensive player by ABC-TV, gained 95 yards on one of his best days.

The only roadblock left for the Raiders is Arkansas Saturday afternoon in Little Rock. If the Raiders can beat the Razorbacks, it will cap a tie for the second best regular season record (with the 1953 team).

The Razorbacks, who started the season with a green, inexperienced team, have gotten over injuries and are running strong. Dickey Morton, one of the conference's all-time great runners, is the leading threat, but the Hogs also throw well, presenting a lot of problems for the Raiders.

Basketball Opens At Frenship

The junior varsity girls won with a score of 35-31.

Prevent Iron Skillet Rust

Don't leave iron skillets out to air dry after washing. Moisture causes rust, whether the skillet is seasoned or not. After washing and towel drying an iron skillet, make sure it's completely dry by putting it over the range pilot light. Or, with an electric range, place it over very low heat for a few minutes.

This procedure "cooks out" all moisture, helping prevent rust. Should rust appear, scrub away the blemishes with soap or detergent and a scouring pad or brush. Season iron skillets at least every six months, more often if in frequent use.

To season a skillet, first wash in carefully, rinse and dry. Then liberally coat the inside with vegetable oil or shortening. Heat skillet so the oil permeates the porous surface. Wipe clean with a paper towel.

posted on each pump in a prominent position to be easily seen by the customer. The old sticker should then be removed," Sloan said. If more than one grade of gas is sold from a pump, a separate sticker must be posted for each grade. Stickers must contain the new ceiling price and the minimum octane of the gasoline. Anticipating additional changes, The Cost of Living Council (CLC) designed the stickers with four numbered blanks for inserting the ceiling prices for November 1973 through February 1974.

Under revised CLC rules gasoline and diesel fuel retailers are permitted to increase their May 15, 1973 selling price to reflect, on a dollar for dollar pass-through basis, their increased petroleum costs. This can be done no more than once a month. Whenever an adjustment is made to the maximum permissible price, each retailer must adjust his posted price.

"On the reverse side of the posting instructions is a form which dealers must use to compute their ceiling price," Mr. Sloan said. This sheet must be retained at the service station for IRS inspection to determine compliance with the new regulations.

Purchasing needed machinery, equipment and breeding animals also helps reduce taxable income, points out the economist. In most cases, farmers can use the 20 per cent additional write-off the first year and can also use the investment tax credit.

Money spent for conservation, land clearing and land forming is deductible, subject to certain limitation. Such expenditures may not only save taxes now but may also be an excellent long-term investment.

Delaying crop or livestock sales until after January 1, 1974 may help reduce taxable income. Crop sales can be delayed by using a

"Remember that the objective of income tax management is not just to minimize taxes, but to maximize after tax profits," points out Hayenga. "Do not sacrifice farm profits by making unwise purchases and sales just to reduce your 1973 taxes by a few dollars. Where a choice exists between a wise tax decision and a good business decision, choose the alternative that will produce the larger income after taxes."
