PEACE AND LAW

Homer Henderson

A plea for American virtue and sanity might certainly be based upon our national objection to war as a matter of policy in the pursuit of international relations. We are taxed, armed, and drafted for the sake of national defense. We have a secretary of defense, not a secretary of war. Especially in such perilous and uncertain times as these, those of us who wish to keep faith in national purposes and who wish to reserve some amount of trust in our government and its leaders must ground our patriotism in the hope, if not the belief, that America is fundamentally a peace-loving nation. Whether one is a "Hawk" or "Dove" regarding the present war in Vietnam, there must be some agreement among all that war is the primitive and barbaric curse of mankind. Surely, Americans of all labels and partisanship ought to agree that our country's greatness depends very largely on our ability to lead in the continuing quest for peace.

Yet there are a great many citizens who on the one hand believe in the pursuit of peace who vote for it, and who have even fought for it but on the other hand do not really believe that a lasting peace among the nations of the world is even possible. In short, they subscribe to the old misquotation from the New Testament: "There will always be wars and rumors of wars." This statement is totally unscriptural (see: Mark 13:7, Matthew 24:6, Luke 21:9), but it is certainly descriptive of an attitude or an atmosphere which is growing in America. Some are beginning to say that since war is inevitable we must be skilled in the talents of making war in order to survive as a people. Evidences of this attitude are apparent in our whole system of defense. Bomb loaded planes in the air 24 hours of every day, nuclear testing, the arms race in missile production, and the largest single item in our national budget going for the purpose of defense all indicate the preoccupation of the world with the prospect of war; for all other world powers are bristling with the same kinds of defense preparations.

Given the world situation with its present hostilities, there is no doubt much truth in the claim that the best way to prevent war is to have a strong defense, the claim that peace and arms belong together. Be that as it may, I cannot support the belief that there will always be wars and rumors of wars nor that the arms race is the best way to peace. Law arrived at and enforced by the people it governs is the only means of a lasting peace. Far from proving that war is inevitable, history demonstrates that wherever law has become effective peace has broken out. Primitive man lived in warlike tribes, but he soon learned that it was to his advantage for tribes to agree to live together in peace according to law. So towns grew out of tribes, and the towns made war on one another until mutual respect of certain laws brought the towns together in to nations. Then nation made war against nation until very recently in our history when nations agreed to abide by certain laws which formed them into alliances: NATO, the Communist block, the neutral nations, and so on. Perhaps, the day is dawning even in the midst of great travail when courageous men and patriots of peace will once again find the way to peace through law. At least the hope that such peace could be achieved would be more a credit to our nation than the desparation of resignation to war.

In 1842, English poet Alfred Lord Tennyson wrote these words: "The war-drum throbbed no longer, and the battle flags were furled / In the Parliament of man, the Federation of world. / There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe, / And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapped in universal law."

Mahon Reports on Water

Representative George Mahon reports from Washington that the President's budget which was submitted to Congress at noon today includes $892,000 to continue the broad investigation of the possibility of importing water into the West Texas and Eastern New Mexico area.

Of the amount included in the budget $467,000 is requested for the Bureau of Reclamation and $425,000 for the Corps of Engineers. The $892,000 is for the fiscal year beginning

July 1, 1968 and compares with a total of $400,000 available to the two agencies in the current fiscal year.

The preliminary study of water import possibilities was launched in 1966 by the Bureau of Reclamation and was broadened in 1967 by Mahon's Appropriations Committee to include the Corps of Engineers in order to achieve proper coordination of the study.

Mahon reiterated that the importation of water into the area was a long-range proposition that will require the coordinated efforts of many interests. Mahon indicated, however, that the increased amounts requested in the budget would provide a significant contribution toward the completion of this essential study. The study is currently scheduled to be completed in 1972 and Mahon expressed his continued confidence that proper steps were being taken at this time to move the project forward.

Parade Of Kitchen Ideas

By Eleanor Lynch

Director, Home Economics, Reynolds Metals Co.

Cooking in the home fireplace is fun... and it's easy to do. There are many excellent small grills, designed especially for the fireplace, available. Or a few bricks placed on either side of an old refrigerator shelf to support it will serve efficiently.

LINE FIREPLACE WITH REYNOLDS WRAP

To prevent the accumulation of fatty drippings on the floor of your fireplace, line with heavy duty Reynolds Wrap. Line the hearth around the fireplace, also, so that splatters of grease will not leave marks on the floor or rug.

Before cooking over a home fireplace be sure the fire has burned down well, if wood is used. If using charcoal briquets allow 20 to 30 minutes after igniting before cooking begins.

An entire meal can be prepared in the fireplace, even dessert. Steaks and chops are delicious cooked this way, but so are many other foods.

Why not try this meal, cooked over your fireplace?

CHICKEN OREGANO

- 1 3-4 lb. broiler-fryer chicken cut in serving pieces
 - 2 stalks celery, chopped
 - 1 can whole tomatoes, drained
 - 1 teaspoon instant minced onion
 - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1 teaspoon oregano salt and pepper
 - 4 squares of Reynolds Wrap
- Lightly saute chicken in butter or margarine in a skillet.

Remove chicken and put two or three pieces on each piece of Reynolds Wrap. Add remaining ingredients to skillet and cook a few minutes. Divide equally and pour over the 4 chicken packages. Bring edges of aluminum foil together and seal with double fold. Place on grill for about 45 minutes turning once.

SWEET POTATO-APPLE DELIGHT

- 1 can apple slices or quarters, drained
- 1 can whole sweet potatoes
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup honey

Cut sweet potatoes in ½-inch slices. Place alternate layers of sweet potatoes and apples in an aluminum foil broiler pan. (Disposable foil broiler pans now available at supermarkets and variety stores). Pour over a mixture of honey and lemon juice. Place on grill and heat for 15 minutes.

POPPY SEED BREAD

Brush slices of white enriched bread with melted butter or margarine. Put together in loaf shape on piece of heavy duty Reynolds Wrap aluminum foil. Sprinkle with poppy seeds. Close foil and heat on back of grill for 15 minutes. After passing bread, close foil to keep it warm.

FIRESIDE DESSERT

Put the contents of a can of fruit cocktail, partially drained, on a sheet of aluminum foil; seal edges with a double fold. Heat on grill for about 10 minutes. Pour over slices of store-bought plain cake.

Top Dress Pastures NOW For Bigger Livestock Profits

by T. R. Cox, Chief Agronomist, Cyanamid Agricultural Research Center, Princeton, N. J.

Evidence is growing that beef and dairy producers can earn more dollars profit through fertilization of pastures and forage than through any other crop. Long neglected for the row crops, pastures are now receiving the royal treatment — and that means heavier fertilization programs than ever before in livestock areas throughout the nation.

Take a look at what different farmers and research agronomists are saying and finding out about pasture profits in the Midwest and South:

ALABAMA—Six cattlemen recently took part in pasture fertilizer demonstrations in cooperation with Auburn University and were amazed by the results. The six cooperators experienced an average $2.00 return in value for every $1.00 they invested in lime and fertilizer for pastures. Under normal weather conditions their county agent figured Alabama farmers could expect $4 to $6 net return per dollar invested in this way.

MISSOURI—A big push on pastures is underway at every level in this state—with bankers, agronomists, associations and federal agencies teaming up to get more land seeded to improved pastures. Estimate—Getting just half of 8 million unproductive but forage-suited acres in Missouri improved would mean $100 million a year additional income. That's $850,000 for each Missouri county. The job is underway.

INDIANA—Purdue agronomists have long worked with Indiana farmers to improve pastures. Says veteran agronomist Dr. Stanley A. Barber, "Five tons per acre of orchard-grass are possible here if you add 200 pounds nitrogen, 80 pounds phosphorus, and 200 pounds potash on a soil low in all three critical elements." He says the Hoosier farmer comes out ahead not only by harvesting more feed, but he also gets a grass higher in protein content. Dr. Barber points to these results with orchardgrass and tall fescue: yield of untreated plots averaged 2.12 tons of hay per acre. Adding 50 pounds of nitrogen increased yield .062 tons... for a yield of 2.74 tons per acre. The yield for 200 pounds of nitrogen per acre was 5.01 tons per acre. Big result—200 pounds of N meant a net profit of $19.55, compared to no profit with 50 pounds of nitrogen.

SOUTH CAROLINA—Grass made a ton of beef per acre for one cattle producer here who doubled Clemson College fertilizer recommendations for Coastal Bermuda. He was but one of many men throughout the South who have been demonstrating what can be done with Coastal Bermuda when this remarkable grass is highly fertilized.

This story of successes could go on and on, but the big point to remember is this: A dollar spent on fertilizer will return $2.00 to $3.00 or more in increased meat or milk.

Right now, and over the next few weeks before spring growth starts, is the time to top dress pastures and hay crops. Top dress pastures with urea or other nitrogen fertilizer to produce two weeks earlier grazing, easing the load on your grain or stored forage. Repeat this application in May or June to extend grazing well into the summer when supplemental crops like sudan grass may help carry the herd. Adequate nitrogen on improved grass can make one acre do the job of two.

Cyanamid agronomists say that a program of fertilizing pastures and hay crops in the spring growth starts, as well as a repeat application in the summer, results in abundant forage with high protein content. Result—increased profit for beef and dairy producers.

Nola Knows

By Nola White

Dear Nola My New Year's resolution is to develop some means of communication other than the telephone. I have no objection, really, to the telephone. It's the telephone company that gets my goat. I believe it is a violation of my constitutional right to privacy when they put that electronic hoo-haw machine on to buzzing and yakking when I take my phone off the hook. If you don't have that in your town, it's a recorded voice that comes on and tells you your phone is off the hook if you don't dial as soon as you pick it up. It also beeps and makes a lot of racket. They tell me at the phone company that they are supposed to give service and they can't give service if my phone is off the hook. I think I have a right to decide whether or not I want to be disturbed by the telephone. Can I do anything about this?

Private Ear

Dear Ear A local telephone representative tells me that it is now possible to rent a phone that you can cut off at will. This is a recent result, I am sure from dissatisfaction such as you have voiced. I suggest you phone (or write) your telephone company again and find out if they have this service.

Dear Nola My daughter is in her first year in junior high school and I have a real problem. She has suddenly gone completely boy crazy. She talks boys, thinks boys, and day dreams boys to the exclusion of all else. She brought home a straight "D" report card this last six weeks. What can I do?

D's Mother

Dear Mother Find a good looking boy who made straight "A's" and let nature take its course.

Dear Nola Three years ago I bought a hundred acres of land about five miles out of town. It has a pretty nice house on it and I thought it would be an ideal place to raise our two boys who are five and seven years old. Since I have tried everything I know to get my wife to move but she says she likes it in town and she's not going to give up all the conveniences she has here and now. How can I convince her?

Country Gentleman

Dear Country You made your first mistake three years ago when you didn't cut off your wife before you bought. Your best bet now is to use your farm for a country retreat and hope your wife falls in love with it.

Dear Nola I feel like a fool writing this to you, but I've got to get my thinking straight. I'm a fifty-seven year old widow and I'm in love. This seems so silly for a woman my age, but I met a widower at the office who's the nicest man I've ever met. He has been paying a great deal of attention to me and I find myself looking forward to seeing him and hoping every time the phone rings that it is him calling. We've been to lunch several times and he has called up a few times just to talk. Am I making a fool of myself?

Widow Woman

Dear W.W. Falling in love at fifty-seven is no more foolish than falling in love at seventeen. If the widower is as nice as you say, I wish you luck. If he isn't, I wish you more luck.

Dear Nola The principal of my son's school called me in last week. He says the teachers are having trouble with my son who is twelve. They say he talks too much, demands too much attention, and disrupts his classes. I've been a little worried about him myself because he acts like he hates his little sister who is seven. I told them I do anything to help my son, but they didn't seem to be able to offer any suggestions. What should I do?

Worried

Dear Worried Your son is entering the hardest period of his life -- adolescence. He's probably insecure and a little envious of his sister who is still at a more protected, less demanding age. Build up the boy's confidence in a hundred little ways by praising him, by trusting him and approving of him. Try to reduce scolding and criticizing to a minimum. Do this for about the next eight years. He'll need it.

Dear Nola A few weeks ago you published a postman's pet peeve. Well, I'm a postman who has one, too. When ever I deliver bills to people, they always say "I don't want this. You take it." I know they're joking but when you hear that for eighteen years, you get mighty sick of it. So tell the people the postmen have their own bills to pay and that's a mighty stale joke.

Poverty Postman

Dear People Consider yourselves told.

Dear Postman Around the first of the month, I suggest you wear ear plugs.

Send your letters to Nola Knows, Box 411, Temple, Texas. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ARTHRITIS-RHEUMATISM

When it seems that nothing will give you relief from minor arthritic or rheumatic pains, get 100 STANBACK TABLETS or 50 STANBACK POWDERS and use as directed. Sooner or later, that day comes, the day when a woman feels she's changing. It's not a good feeling either. And she could use a good old-fashioned medicine then.

Could be you feel a little edgy, or maybe cross. You might even have what we call hot flashes and feel sad and slightly off-balance.

Whatever you feel, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients that work to give you a better sense of well-being.

With an old-fashioned problem like this, couldn't you take an old-fashioned medicine?
