News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker

Crippled— You can chalk off the excitement about the NRA as a face-saving maneuver.

Its administrators are making no attempt to enforce it pending Supreme Court and Congressional action.

Effective— Through western rather than eastern windows the administration may look for political relief in 1936.

Mr. Roosevelt's hospitable reception of the farmers who trekked here to back up the AAA was the tip-off.

The $4,000,000,000 work-relief program may turn out to be a handicap instead of a help to the administration.

Realists— The White House and Treasury have received many requests for the slowdown on its gold policy.

The Secretary's pronouncement has been in preparation for weeks before bonus inflationary fears arose.

Oil Hearing In San Angelo

Railroad Commission Sets May 31 As Date To Discuss Important Matters

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Railroad Commission Saturday set a hearing for May 31 at San Angelo on 26 oil fields in the West Texas Area.

The manner of taking 24-hour potentials in the fields, and other drilling or operating matters will be considered.

The hearing will attract probably 100 or more operators to San Angelo. Who will preside over it, where it will be held and other details had not been received Saturday.

Field hearings usually are conducted by one member of the railroad commission, accompanied by a secretary and Latta Stanberry, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division, and Gordon Griffin, chief petroleum engineer.

City Paving Project Strikes Snag Monday

City paving work struck a snag again Monday morning when relief workers could not be furnished.

Being carried on as a relief work project, the operation naturally was dependent upon relief workers.

City engineers were hopeful of speeding up actual surfacing of park roads due to heavy rains which benefitted caliche base recently placed over much of the park drive.

Mr. Roosevelt's insistence that the funds be spent for "useful and permanent works" doesn't help any.

Man Beaten With Hammer As He Sleeps

Mark A. Sarver Succumbs To Injuries Received At Hands Of Wife

CHARGE OF MURDER - TO BE FILED TODAY

Says She Wanted To End It All By Killing Entire Family And Self

"I wanted to end it all and intended to kill my husband, all of my children and then slash my own throat," was the statement Mrs. Mark A. Sarver, wife of Mark A. Sarver, 39, oil field worker residing in the Lees community southwest miles southwest of Big Spring, made to Sheriff Fred Ratliff at Garden City Sunday afternoon.

The woman, rousing from a sleep which had been produced by medication, talked to Sheriff Ratliff at length regarding her actions in beating her husband into unconsciousness with a hammer early Sunday morning at the family home.

Struggle With Mother The left side of Sarver's head was badly crushed by blows from the hammer before John Sarver, 12 and Leona Sarver, 19, awakened by the commotion, could rush to their mother and attempt to wrest the hammer from her hold.

Woman Taken to Garden City A doctor was summoned, and Mrs. Sarver was given medicine to quiet her. Sheriff Ratliff arrived shortly afterwards and took the woman to his home in Garden City where she slept during the morning, and awoke in the early afternoon. She was placed in the Glasscock county jail for the night.

Charge of Murder Sheriff Ratliff told The Herald in a telephone conversation Monday morning that a charge of murder would be filed against Mrs. Sarver sometime during the day.

Neighbors said Mrs. Sarver was always friendly and took part in church and social affairs of that community. The tragedy has cast a pall of gloom in the community.

Describes Tragedy According to Miss Leona Sarver, 19-year-old daughter, the tragedy occurred about 5 o'clock in the morning. "I had a date Saturday night, and came in about 12 o'clock, and mother was up and asked me 'did you have a good time?' I replied that I did, went on to bed, and later mother also went to bed. Early in the morning, I think it was about 5 o'clock, I heard a commotion in the room where mother and daddy were, and ran quickly to the room to find her struggling with my brother John, who was trying to take the hammer from her. She struck at him and ran both of us into another room. She grabbed a butcher knife on the bed, and my brother finally was able to take it away from her. By this time Mr. Smith, a neighbor came into the house and helped us. He took her out in the yard and held her. I went to see if daddy was hurt, and found him on the bed with his head crushed in," Leona said.

Sarver is survived by his wife, and six children—Leona, Ellen, John A., Lois, Irene and Robert. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sarver, reside at Leesville, La. One brother, Robert Sarver, Shelton, Fla.; and one sister, Loidie Ginter, Leesville, La., also survive.

Mrs. L. L. Whitman, mother of Mrs. Sarver, of Shreveport, La., is expected to arrive here Monday afternoon.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Thery Funeral Home, with Revs. Ferguson and McCleod, in charge. Burial will be in New Mount Olive cemetery.

R. H. McNew Resigns As Relief Head

To Accept Position With Texas Relief Commission As Field Man

R. H. McNew, relief administrator of Howard county since April 12, 1933, has resigned his post to accept a position with the Texas relief commission as field representative.

He was one of four county relief administrators in the state chosen for this work.

While no definite information has been announced from the office of State Administrator Adam Johnson in Austin, it is possible that McNew will be assigned to a district in this region.

When he took over the work there were only two under the staff. Scope of the work has expanded, however, until a large force is now maintained to handle affairs.

He led the local relief agency through the CWA program and to its peak of 1100 cases last November. Since then the rolls have shown a decline with the number of cases now stands at 690, 40 of which are for rural rehabilitation.

In the rural rehabilitation field McNew has returned more than 40 families to the farm in an effort to make them self-supporting.

Liberal Bloc Walks Out As Oath Is Given

Dennis Chavez Succeeds Late Senator Bronson Cutting, New Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP)—Five members of the senate "liberal bloc" walked out of the chamber Monday as Dennis Chavez, New Mexico democrat, was administered the oath as successor to the late Bronson Cutting, republican.

As Chavez, former member of the house, walked to his desk on the arm of Senator Hatch of New Mexico, Senators Johnson, California, Norris, Nebraska, and Nye, North Dakota, republican independents; and Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, and La Follette, Wisconsin, progressive, walked from the chamber.

They returned after Vice President Garner administered the oath to Chavez.

The action was interpreted by observers as a protest against Chavez' appointment.

There was no immediate explanation. Several of the group had criticized the administration for opposing reelection of Cutting, who left his party to support Roosevelt for the presidency.

France Busy Reinforcing Army, Navy

Paris (AP)—France was reliably reported Monday reinforcing her sea frontiers, as well as outposts on land, and quietly moving her naval strength toward the North Sea from the Mediterranean.

The move corresponds with France's action in transferring thousands of troops from the Italian frontier, as well as outposts on German border, after the Reich announced its rearmament policy and Franco-Italian friendship was sealed in a Rome accord.

The French navy's second squadron, responsible for protection of the coast from the North Sea to Gulf of Gascony, was more than doubled. Indications were that the squadron's strength would be further augmented. Twenty-five submarines have already been added to the squadron, along with a cruiser, and two destroyer divisions.

Ten Months' Extension Of NRA Deported

WASHINGTON (AP)—Complete "disintegration and deterioration of the whole industrial recovery program" if the senate's ten months NRA extension resolution becomes law, was forecast Monday by Donald Richberg before the house ways and means committee.

He said the senate bill "invites continuing opposition, non-compliance and litigation for the purpose of persuading congress to let the act die in the next session."

ENEMY'S KISS

Alison explained confusedly. "I expect that father's just moving in—you see, he's getting married again."

"I see." The young man said that doubtfully, surveying Alison with puzzled eyes which took in her pretty face, well-cut tweed suit, good shoes and daintily-kept hands.

After a moment he added, "I was out there in the road, taking a stroll before I turned in, and I saw someone get in through this window. It struck me as not exactly—erotic—in I followed. And the next thing I knew was you shoving your hand into my face."

"Are you alone here, then?" He asked more astonished.

"Yes."

"The instant she had said it, she realized that it would have been better to pretend that there were servants in the house, sleeping. But now it was too late. He gave a faint whistle.

"This is your house?"

"I don't know," she admitted. "I suppose so."

"You don't know?" On the whole, his astonishment was justified. She heard him grope for the switch, heard it click uselessly. The lantern glimmered again as he asked, "Where's the main switch?"

"I don't know. I've never been in this place before." He was looking at her with such disbelief that she went on quickly. "I came here to meet my father. You see, I had a wire from him to come here and wait until he came. And now he hasn't come—her voice trailed off lamely, "and I don't know what's happened!" That ended in a slight frown.

"There! Don't!" He had let her go now, was patting her arm comfortingly.

"I'm not," said Alison A manifest lie.

"By way of answer, he extracted a large and clean silk handkerchief and handed it to her. She took it gratefully. Her own was in the bathroom in her bag. It was a minute or two before she reappeared from the handkerchief, shakily and with shiny nose. He met two peepholes blue eyes. When he frowned like that, he looked much older and stern.

"Look here, what house is this?"

"The Croft House, Warley, isn't it?" Alison looked up with surprise. Was that the solution, she wondered? Had she got into the wrong house by mistake?

But he nodded.

"That's what I understood," he agreed. "Does it belong to your father?"

"I don't quite know. That's the queer part of it. I'd never heard of it before. But I know he was going to take a country house and his wife said the Croft House, Warley, all right. And the man at Warley in the garage seemed to know it."

The improvised torch, they explored the passage, a long straight passage with a thick, ugly carpet in a Persian pattern, which ended in a flagged kitchen on the left and a back door, with some stone steps leading to a collar on the right. The back door was locked.

"We'll take it room by room. In photo-linting, one can't be too careful," said the man beside her, lightly.

He was tall, six feet or more, but did not look it, being broadly built; there was something definitely comforting about those large square shoulders as he moved ahead; but in spite of that, Alison could not help looking back nervously, starting at each round.

"Dining room." He had flung open a door and was waving the rolled newspaper so that its light fell into each part of the room. Padded green rep curtains were looped high, an oak table, much the worse for wear, stood bleakly in the middle with eight cane-seated chairs in a row against one green-draped wall; the whole room was visibly free of ghosts and had the barren look of an unoccupied house.

"Ah!"

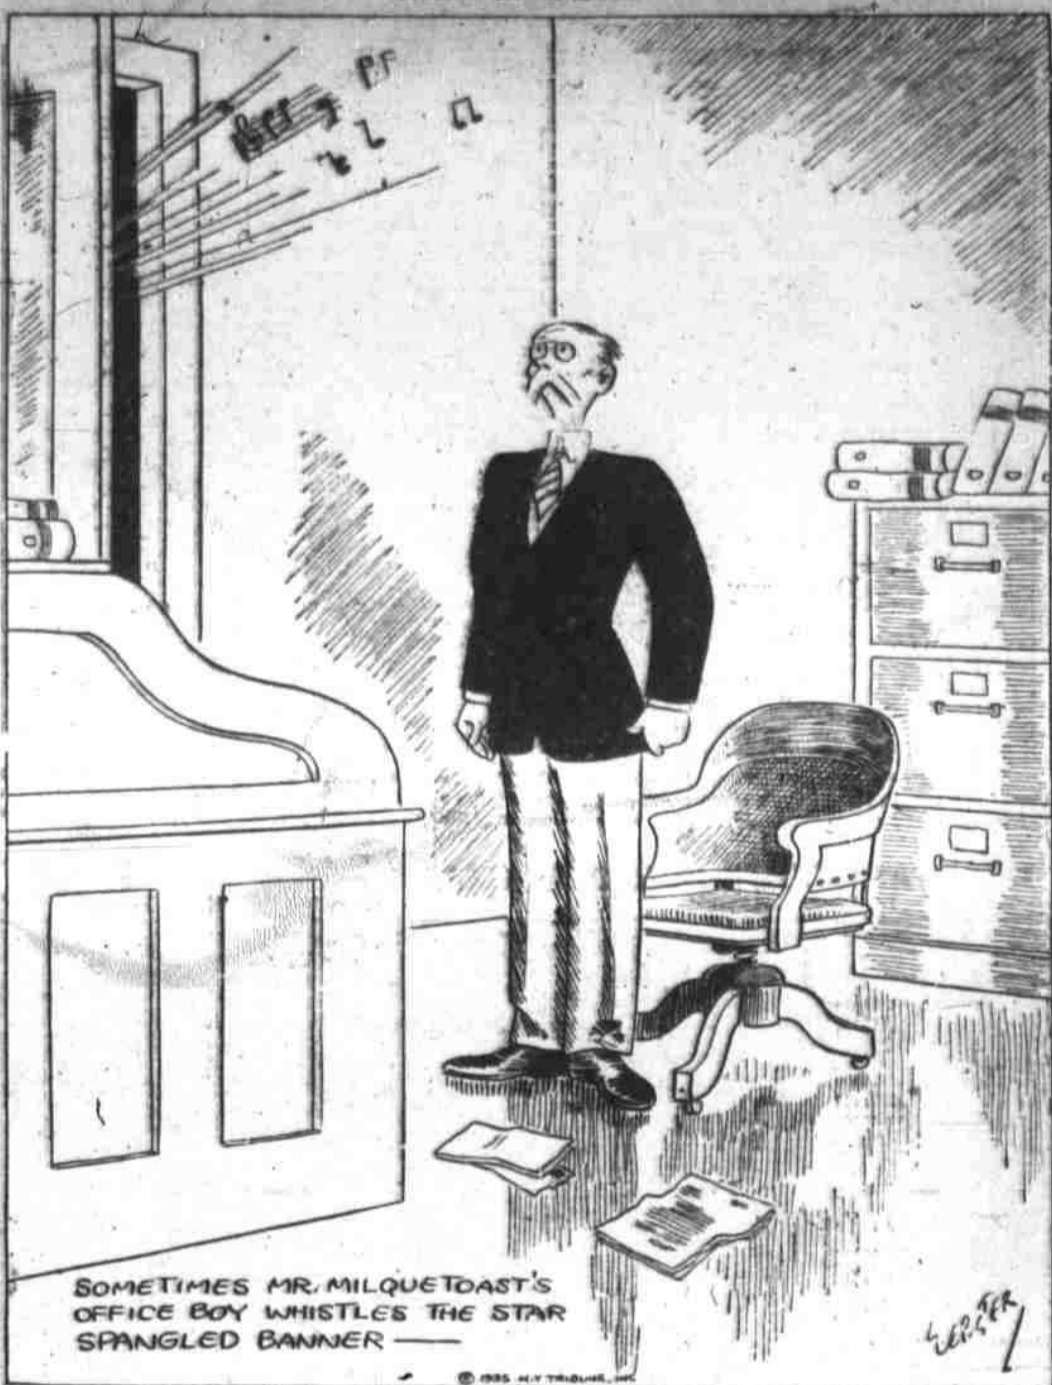

"What?"

He pointed triumphantly to a stable lantern which stood on the shabby oak sideboard.

"Hold this a minute." Alison took the newspaper; after a moment's wrestling he got the lantern open and lit it. "Now we're all right." The smell of smoldering paper filled the room as he stamped the torch out in the grate.

"All right. Keep behind me, that's all. Have you a candle?"

"No, I couldn't find any."

There was a pile of old newspapers in one corner of the pantry, he took up one and rolled it tightly, twisting one end. His hands, Alison noticed, were brown, strong and very finely shaped, almost too delicate for so big a man. The lantern flared up as it caught the end of the paper.

"Now, where did you see this ghost?"

"He was coming after me, downstairs."

"He hasn't passed this door?"

"He must have gone that way."

ADORABLE SHIRLEY AGAIN CAPTIVATES MOVIE FANS IN SUPERB FOX PICTURE

Shirley Temple, that arch darling of the screen, has captured our hearts again.

Her new picture, "Our Little Girl," opened Sunday at the Ritz Theatre to an eager audience. The transports of delight from young and old prove once more what a hold this wonder child has on the movie public.

It is an amazing performance she gives here. Without exaggeration "Our Little Girl," an emotional story that might happen in any home, can be called her greatest picture to date. The rich spontaneity she displays here rebuilds our faith in all that goes to make life a joyous adventure.

All through the picture this reviewer kept thinking of the tribute which Irvin S. Cobb the writer paid Shirley, on the occasion of the Academy Award. She he: "You have made more people happy and made more children laugh than any child your age, in the history of the world."

Truer words were not spoken to describe the charm and glamor cast by this amazing youngster.

Bridge Becomes Sky High Game

DALLAS—Partners disagreeing over going down when vulnerable will henceforth be very much "up in the air," according to Willis Lipscomb, city traffic manager of American Airlines, for now the "sky is the limit," he declares.

Contract bridge has gone "sky high" with the recent installation of special bridge tables in the huge Douglas transport planes which daily speed over the southern transcontinental route of American Airlines. Passengers can sit in calm comfort while traveling at more than three miles per minute and play bridge to their heart's content, or partner's discontent, Lipscomb adds.

Following so many requests from travelers who cannot be happy without participation in the great American pastime of doubles and redoubles, American Airlines has installed the bridge tables as regular equipment, with the result that even the stewardesses are often asked to make a fourth.

When traveling cross country by air, it is not uncommon to hear a passenger query, "Shall we have a nice friendly little game of cards?" to which another traveler might reply "No—let's play bridge," Lipscomb concludes.

Cong. J. P. Buchanan will be urged to cause the nationwide inquiry to be started in Texas under U. S. Sen. Norris' resolution to investigate the source of litigation attacking, obstructing and delaying municipal and public operation of utilities services.

Sen. Norris charged that the utility companies had prompted or filed numerous suits designed to prevent or delay cities and public agencies of government from building, taking over or operating water and light plants and other utilities. His resolution calls for an investigation and report on the source of all such litigation, the expenses forced upon cities, districts and governmental agencies, the amount of money spent by the utilities in conducting the suits, and the effect of these expenditures on the rates the utilities charge consumers.

Two such cases have developed recently. Clarence R. Wharton, Houston, a utility lawyer, filed a "friend of the court" plea in the mandamus test suit of Lower Colorado River authority to establish validity of its revenue bonds. Mr. Wharton did not disclose the name of his client, it was pointed out in the answer of the Colorado attorneys in the supreme court case.

Recently, suit was brought in the name of individuals seeking to restrain U. S. Secy. Ickes from making a loan to the city of Terrell, and to prevent Terrell officials from receiving it, for the improvement of municipal utilities.

Women Teachers Of West Texas Meet Here To Form Fraternity

Miss Catherine Young Of Spanish Department Of Local High School, Elected President; Dr. Blanton Is Organizer

Following a luncheon at the Settles Hotel Saturday, the Beta Kappa Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary fraternity for women teachers, was organized by Dr. Annie Webb Blanton of Austin. Miss Catherine Young, was elected president.

The luncheon appointments in the scarlet and gold that are the fraternity colors, were strikingly effective. Red candles burning in brass holders and bowls of dark red roses, as well as the menu, made excellent use of the two colors.

During the luncheon, Dr. Blanton, who had driven to Big Spring from Alpine where she organized a chapter Friday night, spoke to the members and initiates of the work of the organization. She reviewed its history of six years, stating that Texas had now 56 chapters and 2500 members.

She listed the political measures relating to educational measures in which the women had interested themselves, such as teacher retirement fund and taxation policies that affected school money. She repeated the requirements for admission and summarized the advantages in study and joint achievement possible through belonging, as well as the advantage of scholarship funds.

The luncheon program closed with the singing of fraternity songs, after which the permanent organization of the Beta Kappa chapter was effected, its officers elected and new members initiated. Dr. Blanton who is the national executive secretary, had charge of the ceremonies.

To serve with Miss Young were chosen the following officers: Mrs. Alma Thomas, Midland, first vice-president; Mrs. J. E. White, Wink, second vice-president; Miss Agnes Currie, recording secretary; Miss Ida McCown, Odessa, corresponding secretary; Miss Thelma Merrick, Lamesa, keeper of the records; Mrs. R. L. Vickers, Odessa, parliamentarian; Mrs. George Gentry, treasurer.

Initiated were: Mmes. Floy Lena Bass, Lenora; Billie Smith Bolin, Lamesa; Una Ernest Dyer, Odessa; Grace Loveless Jones, Stanton; Misses Pinkie Brack, Lamesa; Vada Crawley, Midland; Pearl Gordon Faira, Sterling City; Winifred Forsyth, Odessa; Annie Lee King, Midland; and Thelma E. Merrick, Lamesa.

Jennie Faye Felton To Play Role Of Lady Villain In Senior Play

Following the play traditions, there is included in the cast of the Senior play, "Apple Blossom Time," a character which may well be termed the villain. This is a dignified, stately, and avaricious lady by the name of Mrs. Forrest, who has her eyes on a large estate and wishes to secure it at any price. Jennie Faye Felton is the popular young senior who is to portray this role.

While this character is not among those which will go down in the minds of the audience as an exceptionally hateful or clutching fortune-seeker, still the coldness and indifference which Mrs. Forrest shows towards the people with whom she is associated will be certain to make everyone enjoy the discomfort which she herself has to suffer in the conclusion of the play.

Field Mice Plague Orchardists

PORTERVILLE, Cal. (UP)—Pace the Field Mice! Doves of field mice that chew the bark from trees are plaguing orchardists of this region. In some cases the rodents strip a complete circle of bark, necessitating bark-grafting to save the trees from death.

YOUR WIFE WILL KNOW

why WE BUY FROM WESTERN ELECTRIC

As the world's best purchasing agent, she applies the same rules of thrifty buying used by the Bell System.

A special study based on 3,000 separate items of telephone equipment and supplies indicates this fact: Western Electric, as supply unit of the Bell System, sells to Bell operating companies for a fourth less, on the average, than the lowest price offered by independent supply firms.

This of course does not mean a saving of a fourth on every item bought from Western Electric. Some supplies, paper, paints, poles, for example, range from 5 to 17 per cent under usual market prices. Others, such as telephones, cables, and switchboards, show similar variations in the amount saved.

But the important point, clearly indicated, is that Western's prices are appreciably lower to us than open market prices.

As one of the 24 associated companies of the Bell System, we buy most of our equipment and much of our supplies from Western because we get bargains there, because we get uniform quality and the assurance of exact performance... and because Western Electric parts are so designed that future improvements and developments will fit into and work with equipment already in use.

These factors help us materially in achieving the Bell System policy of good telephone service at fair cost to the user.
