Chevrolet Plant Strike Ends Today—Full Production Assured

CLEVELAND, (AP)—Union employees of the Fisher Body company's plant here cast a unanimous vote Tuesday to terminate their strike and return to work, Oliver Haydenreich, vice-president of the union, announced.

Company officials declined to comment on the vote but it was understood they were planning to reopen the plant which normally employs 9000.

Three-week strike of the Chevrolet auto plant in Toledo ended Tuesday and plant officials moved quickly to return to full speed production.

The Fisher plant here has been closed by the company because of shortage of transmission for Chevrolet automobiles, the result of strike of union workers in the Chevrolet transmission factory at Toledo.

Garden City Reports 1.5 Inch Rainfall

Heavier Fall In Other Parts Of Glascock County Reported

Unsettled weather Tuesday morning brought refreshing showers to most of Howard county and drizzling rains to all of Glascock county.

Precipitation recorded at the U. S. Weather Bureau station in the airport totaled .09 inches, all but .01 falling after 7 a. m. Garden City, however, was more fortunate. Missed by recent rains visiting this section, the Glascock county seat was pelleted with a 1.2 inch down-pour Tuesday morning.

In the southeast and west portions of the county rainfall increased to a 4 inch deluge. Many ranchers said falls in excess of 2 inches were received, sending streams of water into lakes and ponds to replenish the stock water supply.

Ranches in the county were reported in excellent shape. The fall continued heavy to Lees store and lightened abruptly at the county line.

Forsan had a brisk shower between 6 a. m. and 7 a. m. Tuesday and another at noon.

Actively reported only a light shower falling at about 7 a. m. Cloudy weather with occasional showers were predicted by the weather bureau for this area during the night and Wednesday, thus giving hopes for added precipitation.

Long's Proposal Turned Down By 62 To 20 Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate Tuesday refused to investigate Postmaster General Farley, as proposed by Senator Huey Long. The vote against the investigation was sixty-two to twenty.

The Louisiana had charged Farley with seven specific acts of alleged wrongdoing, including the use of his influence to change government contract with private firms and of benefiting indirectly through public works jobs.

Chairman McKellar of the postoffice committee, asserted Long is "trying to destroy the character of a man who doesn't agree with him."

Riots Break Out In Penn. Mining Area

Five Men Taken To Hospitals Suffering From Bullet Wounds

WILKES BARRE, Penn. (AP)—Five men were taken to hospitals suffering from bullet wounds, and fifteen others suffering lacerations and lesser injuries Tuesday after a mine riot in Nottingham Colliers.

After a week's comparative quiet, bitterness resulting from the strike called by the United Anthracite miners developed into the worst disorder since the new union attempted to throttle operations of the mines several months ago.

Five men were shot when state police clashed with a group of several hundred new union pickets attempting to prevent members of the United Mine Workers from entering the mine.

Shots were fired by troopers in self defense.

PRORATION HEARING IS SET MAY 24

State-Wide Hearing Called For May 16th Remains Unchanged

AUSTIN, (AP)—The railroad commission Tuesday called a prorotation hearing for May 24th under the law authorizing confiscation of crude oil and products illegally produced. State wide hearing previously called for May 16th was not changed. May 24th hearing was to supplant an earlier hearing, it was explained.

Several provisions of the confiscation act, especially those applying to seizure of truck cargoes not accompanied by proper manifests or tenders, and to require issuance and publication of commission orders before it can be enforced.

News Behind The News

THE NATIONAL Whirligig

Written by a group of the best informed newspapermen of Washington and New York. Opinions expressed are those of the writers and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial policy of this newspaper.

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker

Plea—

The biggest backstage battle in Washington revolves around the move to force financial reorganization of the railroads. Its implications and the elements involved make it a more important set-to than the quarrel over the banking and holding company bills.

Senate liberals insist the railroads must "go through the wringer"—meaning that they must scale down their fixed charges as represented by bonds. The scrap really revolves around the Wheeler resolution to investigate the bankers' handling of the Missouri Pacific. Senator Wheeler believes such an inquiry will show that the road was "looted" by the financiers. His resolution passed the Senate easily enough but for some reason has been held up in the Senate Audit and Control Committee which authorizes expenditures.

The investigation may be comparatively unimportant in itself. But Mr. Wheeler figures it will furnish publicity and set the stage for bankruptcy act amendments to compel reorganizations. He hopes it will bring the railroads to time as the Pecora inquiry resulted in creation of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Some railroads—not all—are putting up a stiff fight against his plan. They urged to be left alone and allowed to save themselves in their own way.

Savers—

Secretary Morgenthau was referring to "big money" when he declared that refunding operations reflected a break in the "financial log jam." But there are indications that the average citizen is beginning to loosen up with his small change.

Postal Savings deposits provide the clearest test of the average man's fears and fancies with respect to investments. Just before the 1933 bank holiday they reached the unprecedented total of $1,208,000,000. Frightened money flew from banks to Post Office. They remained near that figure until this February. Now they have begun to drop for the first time. They reached $1,202,000,000 in March and untabulated April figures may fall much lower.

Three factors are responsible. Government guarantee of bank deposits is taxing Postal Savers back to the banks. The 80 per cent underwriting of home-building and financing mortgages is tempting them to seek a more profitable use for their money in building and loan associations. And "baby bonds" paying 2 1/2 at 30-year maturity are attracting this type of investor.

Col. E. T. Shaw Is Seriously Injured

WOOL, England (AP)—Colonel T. E. Shaw, famed as "Lawrence of Arabia," was still unconscious Tuesday as a result of an accident Monday night in which his motorcycle crashed into another cyclist. Shaw was thrown 100 feet by the impact. The celebrated figure of Arabia's wartime history was reported as "holding his own." But he has a fractured skull.

His condition is very serious.

Tyler Gets 2 Years For Car Theft

Pleads Guilty To Two Counts Tuesday Before Judge Klapproth

Charles Tyler, whose trial for car theft last week resulted in mistrial when the jury failed to agree after more than 24 hours of deliberation, pleaded guilty to two counts of car theft Tuesday noon in the 70th district court and was sentenced to serve two years in each case.

Judge Charles L. Klapproth fixed the terms to run concurrently, making a total of two years. District Attorney Cecil Collins called attention to the fact that Tyler had been lodged in the Howard county jail since March 16 awaiting trial and Judge Klapproth allowed the sentence to run from that date.

Tyler acted as his own counsel in the cases, briefly questioning two character witnesses, one his brother. In pleading guilty, Tyler admitted theft of cars belonging to E. H. Josey and E. A. Hull.

Civil suit of Imperial Crown Royalty Corporation vs. Monogon Hela Oil Company et al through a listless morning of testimony and depositions.

The 70th court grand jury adjourned Monday evening after returning five bills of indictment. Two were against Roy Hartman for theft by bailer and forgery, one against Dudley Chambers for assault to murder, another against F. R. McIntosh for passing another of the notorious "$59.76" Sun Oil company bogus checks to the Scott Grocery.

Chambers and Montgomery were indicted in connection with the shooting of Shirley Tyler, negro, Saturday night.

Veterans Urge Roosevelt To Sign Bonus Bill

344 Telegrams Sent From Howard County

A list of firms and individuals who refused to send telegrams was also read. The meeting was held in the district courtroom.

Communications from the Stanton post revealed that as signature telegram with approximately 300 signatures was sent out from that place.

Plans of action, in event of veto by President Roosevelt, was discussed.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY GIVES ALUMNI PARTY FOR ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Japanese Costumes And Characters Vie With Decorations To Carry On Spirit Of Program

Members of the Women's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church turned their meeting Monday into an alumni session of the Golden Castle College at Nagoya, Japan. This was their method of celebrating the golden anniversary of the organization of the Woman's Auxiliary in common with other auxiliaries over the country.

Mrs. R. L. Carpenter was in charge of the program, assisted by Mrs. Sam Baker, president of the Auxiliary, and others.

As the guests entered, Mrs. L. G. Wiley wearing a Japanese costume greeted them at the door and pinned a carnation on each after registration.

The guests represented alumni of college and were seated in groups according to the year of graduation, a basket of roses in front of each group and a placard announcing the year. The officials were given the front seats.

The assembly hall where they were seated was decorated with many flowers, Japanese flags and an Oriental screen to represent a lovely old Japanese mansion.

Mrs. Baker introduced the program by giving the history of Golden Castle college. It was founded one of the oldest and largest colleges. On its roof were perched two golden dolphins that glittered in the sunshine they gave the college its name, when the missionaries took it over to turn it into a school.

The program was given by a group of college alumni, all the women in the group wearing Japanese costume. Mrs. Emory Huff, who presided was Mrs. Hiroma, president of the Alumni association.

Mrs. P. B. Alexander was Miss Mahahish, secretary; Mrs. J. A. Smith was Miss Morimoto a graduate of 1931 now a teacher in the kindergarten. Mrs. R. T. The cast sang "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" and gave an interesting program.

Four little girls dressed also in Japanese kimonos, added a feature of interest. They were Howardene Hiley, Kathleen Boatler, Patsy Hims and Opal Smith. They sang "Jesus Loves Me" in Japanese, took up the free will offering and assisted with the service.

Mrs. T. S. Currie gave the devotional. Mrs. Moser sang a solo with a Japanese air.

The offering was $21.88 and will be sent to Nagoya to be used to build a new chapel auditorium for the Golden Castle school for girls, the only girls' college in the city. Members of the Dorcas Circle put on the program and carried out the Japanese theme in the refreshment plate and even in the napkins on which were the words, happy birthday, in gold letters.

Chapter 47 NEW PLANS

James was a little alarmed but more pleased to learn that Leslie still took it for granted that he meant to carry out his ambitious plans of which they had once talked so gaily and confidently.

"But you seem to forget that I am now a has-been," James protested.

"A has-been at forty-three! Why Jimmie dear, you are barely more than grown up, have barely reached your full powers. A man isn't fully mature, is he, until around forty?"

"No, I suppose not. But I've got a used to thinking of myself as a failure."

"Jimmy, do you still want to go to congress?"

"I don't know. I still think politics, public life, the finest career there is. Why, if I were a young man..."

With Leslie prompting him now and then James explained to Leslie just why the United States of America was headed for political and economic chaos; James was a great student of history. Leslie said, "When the crash comes there is to be someone to clean up the mess. Perhaps that's your destiny Jimmie to be the one."

"One? God knows it will be to big, a thousand times too big for me or any man. But I confess I should like to be one of the men like to try anyway."

They reined up at the top of the hill. James said solemnly, "Ver well, So help me God I will, I step being a do nothing... I've been a do nothing long enough."

Leslie said, "Bravo!" James turned to smile at Leslie and saw that there were tears in her eyes. "I'm crying because I'm so excited and so happy. Leslie explained, blushing a little.

"Does it mean so much to you what I do? James asked wonderingly.

"I'm afraid it does." James said, "For fifteen years I've thought that Robert Brown was an optimist and a liar. Now I know that he was neither. If you will be believing in me, will be gracious enough to wait until I can prove that I have it in me to be something more than what I am now."

"Will you wait, Leslie? Leslie's lips trembled. She shook her head and James went white under his tan. "Very well, my dear, I shouldn't have asked. You shouldn't have presumed on your dear friendship. But anyway I want you to know I mean to go on doing what I can."

"I am forty-one years old," Leslie said. "There isn't a thing you could ask me that I wouldn't do... except to wait. I've already waited eighteen years. I couldn't bear..."

She touched her mare with her whip and was off on a gallop. James for a moment sat watching her and then with a great shout made after her.

They decided to be married in the spring immediately after Easter. Their engagement was announced in November, New Concord had been expecting the announcement for months and with two exceptions took it calmly.

One exception was Mrs. Northrup; Mr. Northrup had died of apoplexy a year or so before. The very next day Mrs. Northrup departed on a hurried visit to Jane, New Concord would have given a very great deal to have been on hand when Mrs. Northrup broke the news to James' ex-wife, the eminent Mrs. Northrup-Stimson.

When Mrs. Northrup came home she had a great deal to say about the succession of rich and prominent in Washington and New York who continually brought her daughter's hand.

"What does Jane think of James' engagement to Leslie?" Jennie Dodson asked right out.

Mrs. Northrup regarded Jennie solemnly. "Do you know I forgot to tell Jane about that," she said solemnly. "I must write her at once."

And when this was repeated to the Concord, New Concord laughed and laughed.

The second exception was John Harris, James Stimson seemed to be disliked by his father-in-law.

Leslie joined her father one evening as he sat on the porch smoking his pipe, his arms clasped around his long bony legs, and told him of her engagement.

"I know you won't be pleased," she went on gently, "but I know you want me to be happy. I am very certain that I can't be happy without James. I've had a long time to make sure. You aren't going to break my heart, are you, opposing my marriage? You know I love you so much. Please let me go my own way."

"Have it your own way," Mr. Harris said gruffly, hiding his face behind clouds of strong tobacco smoke. "I notice that you generally do it... even if you have to wait eighteen years."

"Oh, Father, what a libel!" Leslie cried, hugging him.

John Harris got up, put on his hat and hat and said he was going for a walk. It was the middle of the week and John had for years confined his drives to the Saturday in the month. But this night he got gloriously drunk and stayed in for six days before Nappy hunted him down and brought his home and put him to bed. He stayed sober thereafter until some time after Leslie's wedding.

It was an extremely busy winter and spring for both James and Leslie. Leslie, with her mother's help, made every stitch of her trousseau including her wedding dress. She had besides to assist James, who was hopelessly impractical in affairs of that sort, in getting the cottage in the Mansion grounds ready for Miss Sarah and Aunt Lou and then in moving them into it.

The Mansion had also to be put in shape. The big house had had nothing done to it for years and years. It needed new bathrooms, new pantries and closets, needed of course to be repainted and painted from attic to cellar.

James engaged an architect from Kansas City who was also something of a decorator and turned him over to Leslie. But Leslie refused to settle a single point until she found out first just what her "Jimmy" wanted.

"Thereupon James went to work about such things and it's to be with a will and decided to have your home in a few weeks."

"It's to be our home," said Leslie color.

"But, darling, I want you to have what you want. I don't know much about such things and it's to be with a will and decided to have your home in a few weeks."

"I want you to have everything you want—everything," said Leslie fiercely. "And red is a beautiful color."

"But, darling, I want you to have what you want. I don't know much about such things and it's to be with a will and decided to have your home in a few weeks."

"It's to be our home," said Leslie color.

and came and sat in James' lap and sang a little song to the lock on the back of her future lord and master's head which now almost never stayed plastered down.

"Do you know, dearest, it's amazing to me how much more you instinctively know about planning houses than that Mr. Suter," said Leslie a little later.

"Listen to the woman rave!"

"No, darling, truly. He would have made this down stairs over into a regular assembly hall and spoiled it for a home if you hadn't stopped him. And he doesn't know half as much about old furniture and china as you do, not half."

"Well, I was brought up with it and he wasn't. Still I wouldn't say he seemed particularly impressed with my color scheme. Do you think it would look a trifle gory?"

On talking it over James and Leslie agreed that it was impossible for anyone to know just how paper would look on the walls until it was tried. Mr. Suter was delighted to learn next day that Mr. Stimson had decided to experiment a little before he decided finally on his colors. In the end, James himself chose some lovely wall papers in Colonial patterns and only his study was in red.

James took an enormous pride in the Mansion, perhaps partly because it was so often praised in his hearing. In spite of several new and costly houses in the Colonial style it was generally agreed in New Concord that the Stimson place was the most attractive and homelike in town.

Whirligig

Grief

The Tennessee Valley Authority has been caught—quite innocently—in several embarrassing postures recently. While President Roosevelt and the Chamber of Commerce were staging their duel, TVA was envisaging Chamber of Commerce officials for a man to head its industrial division. While New England interests were complaining of the textile trek to the South, the TVA was accused of urging Middle Western corporations to move from Ohio to Tennessee.

TVA officials say all they want is a man to handle the manufacturing and marketing facilities for industries native to the valley where they are providing cheap power—ceramics, handcraft and weaving. They deny that they are soliciting factories to move from their present location to the vicinity of Norris and Wheeler dams.

Although one of the President's pet projects, TVA may yet come him grief. Democratic Senators are the chief protesters against any program to shift industry southward. They voted for the experiment in the administration's early days but apparently did not discern its implications.

Delay

Liberals in Congress are complaining about the slowness of the Communications Commission in starting the A. T. and T. investigation. They can't understand the circumstances surrounding choice

From now on they will try earnestly to coordinate with the coordinator instead of making faces at him. Insiders say that as a result—they at last have some hope of getting constructive help from Congress.

Both Eastman and the Association want the present law amended to permit the railroads to fire people where they find they can economize by combining facilities. Naturally railway-labor is opposed. Favorable action by Congress hinges largely on whether the roads will agree to pay the "dismissal wage" Eastman proposes. That's a tough concession to ask of managements—but the hope is that they will be rewarded if they make it.

Yell

New York conservatives are badly scared by the prospects for the Wagner labor bill. A few weeks ago they regarded it as a remote menace. Now they feel its breath hot on their necks.

They get scant consolation from FDR's refusal to commit himself. Certain signs point alarmingly to his friendliness for the measure. Most significant was the action of the Democratic steering committee in allotting the bill a definite place on the Senate calendar. That steering committee works closely with the White House and observers are confident Senator Robinson would not have insisted on such action if he had not been sure it would meet with White House approval.

Big industry is hastily mobilizing its defense. The death threat to company unions contained in the bill is more alarming than a gross of collective bargaining clauses like Section 7-A. If the measure gets to the floor of the Senate you will hear a yell from industry which will make the Chamber of Commerce protest on NRA sound like a muted whisper.

Explosion

European money is coming into the New York stock market in increasing volume. Foreign sharps believe the recent rise in American security prices marks the beginning of world-wide inflation. They figure that all price levels are on the way up but that ours will start first and go farthest because we have a much broader base for credit expansion than any other nation.

Experts are confident the move will be helped along by currency devaluation abroad. Speculative influences are draining capital from Holland and Switzerland daily and making it progressively harder for their governments to stick to gold.

A Dutch crisis looks very close. Dutch exports have declined shockingly since the first of the year. In addition, the Dutch government is faced by a 73,000,000 guilder deficit in the budget. Premier Colijn will try to meet it with drastic deflationary economies. These measures are sure to be intensely unpopular. There's a strong chance they will provide the spark for a political and monetary explosion.

Rough

Premier Flandin of France is having his troubles too. French revenues are steadily declining, the budget goes from bad to worse and the pinch of deflation is getting more and more painful to French industry. Insiders understand the main reason Flandin has kept his job this long is the taut international situation. The opposition doesn't dare risk throwing him out and precipitating internal unrest with the Hitler menace so vividly before them.

A well-informed French newspaper editor—who recently visited New York privately prophesies that Flandin will not last out the summer. He doesn't pretend to know what will happen then—but he suspects the party may get rough.

Peace

Danger of an imminent European war is fading. Informed New Yorkers learn that Hitler's advisers have warned him against starting anything. German supplies of raw material and exchange are too inadequate for war purposes. Hitler is said to realize a better quiet flurting with fire for the present. Other European governments know this—so the tension is somewhat eased and the chances for peace are correspondingly better.

Difference

It wasn't so long ago that hot oil was pouring out of East Texas at the rate of 80,000 barrels a day and the oil industry was panicky at the prospect that its price structure would collapse completely.

Now the hot oil flow is thinned to a trickle and consumption is up. Result: probable increase of crude oil prices in the near future with a jump in gasoline prices to follow. This will be nice for the oil companies but not so pleasant for consumers. A few months sometimes make a lot of difference.

Center

The sectional concentration of new corporate financing annoys New York investment bankers. Instead of bringing their issues to the Wall Street market, companies in different regions seem to prefer to raise their money in their home territories as far as possible. All New York gets of the beer is the froth.

The Pacific Coast has been the worst offender (from the Wall Street viewpoint) in this connection. And now the Chicago district shows signs of getting independent. The bulk of a forthcoming "Commonwealth Edison issue" will be handled by Chicago houses. These disrespectful corporations act as if they had never heard that New York is the nation's financial center.

Concession

The age of miracles isn't over. Railroad coordinator Joe Eastman and President J. J. Peley of the Association of American Railways spoke from the same platform the other day (at the Savings Bank convention) and agreed with each other. Eastman actually patted the Association on the back and Peley failed to recommend that Eastman be fired.

This love feast was the first fruit of a new policy on the part of the railroads (recently predicted here).

Sidelights

Joe Kennedy will have a lot more to say about the allocation of work relief projects than most people suspect. Every roll served at a recent dinner of the National Economy League wore a label stating that 33 separate taxes had been paid on it. Radio Corporation officials got kinder treatment at this year's stockholders' meeting than they have for six years. Even David Barnoff's salary increase to $75,000 drew only a mild squawk.

Sign-posts

IMAGINE YOURSELF on an unfamiliar highway at night in the country. You want to go to Allison. You come to a forked road. No signs! Which way? You turn left and come to a cross-road. No signs. You turn right. You come to a town. It proves to be Liberty. You go back to the fork and turn left. A mile or so farther on you come to another cross-road. A sign pointing right says "Allison three miles."

But for that sign-post you might have traveled miles—spent hours, and come short of your destination.

Imagine yourself in need of hosiery, clothing, breakfast foods or anything else, and this newspaper without advertisements!

Advertisements are sign-post. They are information. They save you from wandering aimlessly from store to store. They keep you advised of the newest products; of the latest values. They save you time, and put greater buying power in your dollars. They assure you of quality and service in merchandise, for only honest goods honestly advertised can stand the spotlight of publicity.

The methods now being used to chart weather are entirely different from those of a few months ago, it was pointed out. The air transport companies are no longer interested in how low the clouds are but in how thick they are and whether the air is turbulent or smooth.

They do not pick out specific points to cover any longer, but make a general picture of the air mass and from that picture learn the trend of what conditions are along the particular route over which a particular flight is to be made.

The Weather Bureau's forecasts are not for separate flights as such, but rather for successive periods of four to six hours and also for longer periods. It is up to the meteorological personnel of the airlines to supplement these with more detailed forecasts for individual flights, and American Airlines has taken steps to equip its entire flying personnel with adequate knowledge of forecasting.

could be without the prison. What does the government give the drunkard's wife after it has licensed men to kill her and her dear little children?—nothing—nothing—not even a decent burial.

Men, think of what you are doing you good men, that could help at least to stamp this curse out of existence.

Please don't publish my name. If you print this will you send me a copy of the paper that has it in, as I am too poor to take a paper, I borrow one sometimes, but not always.

Illegal Acrobatic Flying Results In 23 Fatalities During 6-Month Period

Acrobatic flights in which airmen violated the Air Commerce Regulations cost 23 pilots their lives in the last six months of 1934, Eugene L. Vidal, director of air commerce, said today.

Studying the accidents occurring in miscellaneous flying operations during that period, the Bureau of Air Commerce, Department of Commerce found that there were 30 pilot fatalities, that 30 of these occurred in acrobatic flying, and that 23 of these acrobatic flights were direct violations of the Air Commerce regulations.

"Eight of the pilots who were fatally injured while engaged in illegal acrobatics were unlicensed," Mr. Vidal said. "Most of the others held licenses in the lower grades—student, amateur or private—and

Air Passengers View Government Projects

NASHVILLE—American Airlines, in operating the Southern transcontinental route, not only links the Capital city of Tennessee with the National Capitol over the "Ol' Hickory" territory made famous by "Stonewall" Jackson, but it also covers the modern Tennessee Valley Authority, which includes such national projects as the Norris Dam, near Knoxville, and the improvements being made throughout the course of the Tennessee River.

The huge Douglas planes of American Airlines, in flying from New York and Washington to Nashville, Memphis, and the Pacific coast, twice cross the Tennessee River and permit a splendid view of most of the Government recovery projects.

A death of material from which to train air line pilots is unlikely, according to the Bureau of Commerce, in reporting 13,297 student pilot licenses active on February 15th.

California leads the nation in aviation with 766 licensed aircraft and 1,151 licensed transport pilots, according to the bureau of air commerce.

METEOROLOGY SCHOOLS FOR AMERICAN AIRLINES PILOTS

Complete courses in meteorology—the science of weather observing, interpreting and forecasting—have been started by American Airlines, under the direction of skilled meteorologists and will be taken by every pilot and co-pilot on the system, officials of the company announced today.

Instructors have been selected from among the skilled Meteorologists, who have been employed by American Airlines, to interpret and elaborate weather information secured by the United States Weather Bureau as applied to the particular problems of American Airlines.

The course covers the elementary principles of weather forecasting through the intermediate stages, up to the point where it becomes a really advanced science. The present day trend toward high altitude flying makes it imperative for every pilot to be able to plan a flight intelligently and know from the material assembled at the point of take-off just what he will encounter across that section of the air-mass through which the course lies, and what changes

ADVANCE—NOT RETREAT

THIS FOR REVENUE

Editor Women's Page: I am a drunkard's wife for thirty-two years, and I know what that means. I think there are not words in all the English language that could even make an attempt at describing the real sufferings of a drunkard's wife. I would advise her to separate; don't live that life any longer—for every day of your whole life will be worse than the last one. He will never get better, but worse. Every day, I tell you from experience, after you are broken down it will be worse. I loved my husband and I know what that one word means. I could not do it myself, but if I had left him twenty years ago, I would not be the pauper I am today. Now it is only a matter of a few days that I will be taken to the poor house.

But the government licenses the liquor traffic; licenses men to fill our state's prison; our insane asylums, licenses men to break up happy homes, to torture women, to starve poor little innocent children, to drive people to suicide, to murder, for all of these crimes are committed by people under the influence of liquor. The government pays more out than it takes in keeping insane, supporting prisons, trying murder trials. There would be few of these places if there was no drink.

There are not enough men (I don't mean a pair of pants and vest and coat), I mean men—great, grand men. Men of honor, men of God, men that God intended every man He made to be. There are not enough such men in these United States to say that there shall be no more of that poison made or sold. It would save the poor, helpless women, the innocent little children from that fearful torture of a drunkard for a father; for a husband. Would to God there were men enough in these United States to say that, then there would be no insane, no state's prisons, no suicides, no starvation in our land, no poor houses, no sorrow. Would to God our country
