NEWS BRIEFS

Applicants are being sought for a city water sewer and sewer department superintendent for Seagraves. City Councilmen, Bill Burt and Jesse Lambert, have been appointed to receive applications and interview applicants for the position.

The vacancy resulted from the resignation of Don Huston as city administrator at a city council meeting July 24.

An applicant must have a Class C or better state license for both water and sewer to qualify for the position.

Charles A. Johnson, principal of Seagraves Elementary made known that five year old children who enroll in public kindergarten classes on August 17 will need to meet the same immunization requirements as first grade students.

Children who are five years of age on or before Sept. 1 will be eligible for the kindergarten program.

A hearing will be held Tuesday, August 14, at 7 p.m. in the council chamber of City Hall on a proposed annexation of land to enlarge and extend the boundary limits of the City of Seagraves.

Members of the Loop Future Homemakers of America and several sponsors spent a weekend in Arlington recently. Those persons on the trip were Elaine Freeman, Pam Owens, Vicki Halbrooks, Delilah Young, Tami Freeman, Brenda Chaffin, Jackie Aldridge, Genna Lee Ellyson, Bev Owens, Carla Todd and Gayle Williams.

Sponsors were Miss Betty Davis, FHA advisor; Mrs. Bill Ellyson, Mrs. Raymond Chaffin, Mrs. Earl Owens, Mrs. Kenneth Freeman, and Mrs. J.C. Chaffin. Also attending were Cynthia Glaspie, Sherry Chaffin, Allan Freeman and David Davis.

An additional eight hour shift has been announced by Cochran County Sheriff C.G. Richards. The office will now be open from 8 a.m. until 1 a.m. the following morning seven days a week. This is as opposed to the regular 8 to 5 schedule followed in the past.

Reasons for the extension, according to Sheriff Richards, is to give improved service to the public and to maintain personnel on duty during the night hours when law enforcement officers are most often needed. It will also enable the sheriff to make better use of the newly installed telecommunications equipment recently installed.

Mrs. Don (Pat) Lynskey took the oath of office as county judge from District Judge M.C. Ledbetter last week. Mrs. Lynskey was appointed county judge tempora-

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Hobbs announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Kathy, to Eddie Caroland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Caroland of Kanay, Texas. Both are 1973 graduates of South Plains College. Eddie is now employed by West Texas Equipment. A September 22 wedding is planned.

Livestock and Poultry Feeders Will Be Required to Hold Pollution Permit by EPA

College Station—Livestock and poultry feeders with more than 1,000 animal units must now comply with water pollution control regulations established by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The new regulations became effective July 5 and set up a water pollution control permit program for agriculture, explains Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer in animal waste management for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Those concerned feeders in Texas can apply for a permit through the EPA regional office in Dallas located at 1600 Patterson Ave., Suite 1100.

Although the 1,000 animal units are used as a general guideline for the permit program, smaller operations can also be regulated if they are believed to present a pollution problem, the Texas A&M University System specialist points out. Multiple permits may be required for agricultural operations separated by distance but under common ownership. Regarding specific animal numbers, permits are required for the following feeding operations holding the listed number of animal units for more than 30 days: slaughter and feeder cattle—1,000; mature dairy cattle—700; swine weighing more than 55 pounds—2,500; sheep—10,000; turkeys—55,000; laying hens and broilers where unlimited continuous overflow watering systems exist—100,000; laying hens and broilers where liquid manure handling systems exist—30,000; and ducks—5,000.

According to Sweeten, individuals or organizations who discharge irrigation return flow from 3,000 or more acres through a conveyance such as a ditch or culvert, and certain fish production operations, must also obtain a permit.

Separation Of Powers

Those who appraise Watergate in unemotional terms will clearly see the danger involved in a President allowing congressional committees to call him before them for cross-examination, subpoena his personal records, etc.

Completely aside from Watergate, and regardless of whether the President is guilty of more than is known, or of withholding records which would shed light on the controversy, the image, symbol and reality of the separation of powers in the American constitutional system is of paramount importance to its effective, and continued, functioning.

It's more than obvious that if Congressmen can call the President to account before them on Capitol Hill, and subpoena his personal papers and records, the essential balance between the three branches of government is destroyed. In fact, it's hard to understand how anyone who considers the question objectively can miss this inevitable conclusion.

One can imagine the howl which would have been raised by the liberal press at any time in the past fifty years if conservative lawmakers on Capitol Hill, often committee chairmen, had attempted to haul liberal Presidents before their committees, seize their personal papers, cross examine and embarrass them politically, because of many actions conservatives considered unconstitutional.

The roar of condemnation from the liberal press (now so ready to destroy the balance of powers) against Dixie or other Hill "reactionaries" utilizing a power derived from the "evil" seniority system would at least have equalled today's deluge.

Power Of The Press

One can only marvel at the power of the press and television in America, as wielded in the Watergate debacle. The case of Senator Sam Ervin is an example.

As with most Dixie lawmakers, the key newspaper powers—primarily the New York Times and the Washington Post—gave him little attention for years. That's the usual treatment of conservatives by the almost-invariably liberal or leftwing working press reports of Washington.

When, however, a conservative might be influenced by hero-treatment, he is, in effect, used. His picture appears on the front page every other day, he's quickly made a national television celebrity and he becomes the fair-haired crusade leader of the moment, constantly encouraged by daily acclamation, fame and praise.

It has happened to many until-then relatively ignored Senators. Suddenly, theirs are household names, they are recognized everywhere they go. They are, they have become, part of U.S. history. Obviously such treatment, especially after having long been relatively ignored, is heady stuff.

U.S. Food Labels

One of the crying needs of the times is a standardized system of food grading in the Department of Agriculture. No one yet proposes the government inspect all foods, though more and closer inspection is desirable, especially of food packers.

What is clearly needed, by almost unanimous consent, is a standard rating system enabling consumers to know what the various labels and ratings on foods mean. Many are not aware that the department's present grading system is voluntary. Those selling foods, fresh or packaged, are not required to have their product graded.

"U.S. No. 1" and "U.S. Fancy" really mean little. They don't mean the Department of Agriculture had graded the product. They convey that impression, and the terms are used all over the nation, but only if the USDA official seal is attached does the grading mean anything. Otherwise, store personnel have probably graded the potatoes, onions, carrots, etc.

Without proposing all foods be graded (under present law USDA grading must usually be voluntarily requested by the producer), those which are graded, and which should be, in the public interest, should be graded under a simple, clear designation system designed to be easily intelligible to the consumer.

living—cigarettes sell for about $2.89 a pound and I don't recall anyone complaining about them being high—yet a $1.89 a pound for beef steak drives some shoppers right up the wall. It's a funny thing, but I know people who will pay 90 cents or $1.25 for a drink and never say a word about the 'high cost of drinking' but to pay over $1.00 a pound for hamburger is a different story!"

Glenwood City, Wis., Tribune: "Imitation, artificial and fake seems to be the way we are living these days. I don't mind so much about jewelry, furs and material but when it comes to food I wonder how healthy it is for a steady diet. I never realized how much of the food products are imitation until last week when I paid for and carried home a jar of imitation peanut butter, because I didn't look at the label close enough. One taste of it and in the garbage it went. If the price was half as much I could see using it but for a few cents more you can get the pure stuff and that maybe is none too good."

Hyattsville, Md., Prince George's Post: "Life must be worth living. The cost has more than doubled and we still hang on."

King County Lions Club Holds Little Britches Rodeo

Saturday night at Guthrie, some of the Ropesville kids rode in the bareback, steer riding, barrel race, and flag race events. This was the first time for some. They were Randy Putman, Ricky Putman, Gregg Watts, Rusty Putman, Roger Putman. They did great.

Don and Terry Potter from Dallas are cousins of the Putman's. They rode also, along with Debbie Arant who won first place in barrel racing and Dickie Arant was third place in flag racing.

Gregg Watts won 5th in steer riding. Each winner got a ribbon, Debbie also won a belt buckle for first place. Age groups were 1 to 11, 12 to 14, 15 to 18.

Rehearsal Dinner

A rehearsal dinner was held in the Shallowater Community Center, Wednesday, August 1 for members of the Cowart/Korchenko wedding party. The dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cowart. Special guests included the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. M.A. Korchenko and cousins of the bride, Mrs. Jean Harris and Debbie of Big Spring.

The tables were decorated with candles and flowers in the brides chosen colors of yellow, green and orange. A 50 year anniversary candle, specially made with the wedding invitation built into the candle, decorated the head table and was presented to the bride and groom from the groom's aunt, Mrs. Donald Love of Paducah.

Friends serving the meal were Mrs. Don Morris, Mrs. Chuck Christopher and Mrs. Kenneth Shropshire. The menu consisted of salad, steak, baked potato, hot rolls and melon balls with sherbet rosettes and cookies in assorted colors for desert.

Winsted, Conn., Evening Citizen: "When a woman gets a job traditionally held by a man, or enters a field heretofore dominated by men, that's news. Lately there's been much news of this nature; it's getting to be about as old hat as dog bites man."

Comes now a man bites dog item—and we hasten to say that this figure of speech is not intended in the slightest degree as an insult to the ladies, for whom we have the most extreme regard. But consider if the characterization is not apt: For the first time in its 112 years, during most of which time it enrolled only women, Vassar College has a male student government president. Ah, well, a little men's liberation is not a bad thing, either."

Orange, Mass., Enterprise and Journal: "We think government needs to cut back on duplication of agencies. We think it needs to get tougher about endless programs aimed at helping the 'poor'. For we are making 'professional poor' people and paying good salaries to endless people to champion the causes of the 'poor'. It's profitable to help the poor today. It's profitable for the workers in that field, profitable for the poor. We need to take a hard look at what we are doing and the philosophy behind it. President Nixon is forcing the nation to take a second look. Let's do it."

Austin, Tex.—Rewriting the nearly century old Texas constitution is turning out to be a stickier job than many figured.

The Constitutional Revision Commission went into overtime at a recent three-day meeting near here, but still failed to complete its agenda and slated another August 10-11 cleanup meeting.

Meanwhile, legislative planners for the 1974 Constitutional Convention, at which lawmakers will actually propose a revised constitution, disagreed on routine stage-setting.

House members suggested a new voting machine (which was later ordered) and new desks for delegates. Senate planning committee spokesmen indicated they would be satisfied to bring their own desks over from across the capitol rotunda and set them up in the House middle aisle.

The revision panel agreed:

- To keep the provision for real property taxation in the constitution for state purposes, but leave it to the legislature to write separate laws governing personal property taxation.
- To retain the state highway users gasoline tax, with three-fourths of the revenue earmarked for highway building and one-fourth for public schools. A provision was made for abolishing the highway fund levy on statewide referendum with support of two-thirds of the legislature.

• To keep the Permanent University Fund and Permanent School funds in the constitution. The university fund would be altered somewhat to include present and future branches of the University of Texas and Texas A&M University.

• To add to the constitution a guarantee of "equitable" financial support for all schools and districts rich and poor.

• To retain as constitutional elected members of the executive branch only the governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general, with the legislature empowered to decide if the comptroller, treasurer, secretary of state, land commissioner and railroad commission should be elected or appointed by the governor.

Houses Closed—Two landmark bawdy houses—in La Grange and Sealy—were closed by local officials on request of state officials.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Atty. Gen. John Hill and Department of Public Safety Director Wilson E. Speir sought action after reports aired by a Houston television station.

Briscoe acknowledged he had received calls from La Grange area citizens both supporting and opposing the action. He said he had been told he would be petitioned by a group who want the famed "Chicken Ranch" reopened.

Hill and Speir said they found no link with organized crime in operation of the houses, but Attorney General Hill added: "It is an illegal operation. The local officials were requested to take action. They took it."

Rate Raise Expected—An increase in some workmen's compensation insurance rates is due under a new law increasing benefits for those injured or killed in job accidents.

An average 19.5 per cent hike in the rates employers must pay for the coverage is anticipated under a State Insurance Board staff proposal, which would become effective if approved between September 1 and September 15.

Rates would have gone up 22.8 per cent in the absence of the federal anti-inflation program, a Board actuary indicated.

Under new law effective September, an injured worker can get up to a maximum of $63 a week in benefits, an increase from the present $49 top.

A.G. Opinions—A national bank does not come under definition of governmental bodies or institutions which are required to comply with the new open records act, Attorney General Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

- School trustees are authorized to purchase insurance to cover cost of litigation and award of damages growing out of official acts.
- The Amusement Machine Commission has power to promulgate regulations to cover the number of machines owned by the holder of a permit to sell alcoholic beverages for on-premises consumption.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

Miles from the canyons of commerce where he earns his living, the typical Texas suburbanite relaxes at day's end. Half-an-hour from crowded central city, he rests his feet, or mows the lawn, or romps with the kids. He listens to TV or even reads a book. The only real difference between him and fellow workers who stayed behind in the city is that he's free.

Free by choice from the clamor and clutter downtown. He has traded perhaps an hour of time for the gratification of a personal desire to be his own man the rest of the day—on his own terms.

Not everyone wants that kind of life . . .

but a great many Texans do. To get it, you need just two things:

—A good automobile.

—A good highway.

Texas has a lot of both.

Passenger cars registered last year totaled 5,526,273. (Some were clunkers or lemons, no doubt, but all good enough to pass state inspection.)

For roads, Texas had 70,000 miles of designated state highways — Interstate, federal-state and farm-to-market. The system is one of America's finest.

That's why Texans have a choice.

This year I got a bonus, another week of vacation, which I spent with my son-in-law, Lynn Baker, in Colorado. We left here on Sunday, July 29, and returned Saturday, August 5.

My wife and I drove to Santa Fe, where we met the Baker family. Lynn, his son Darren, and I drove on to Crestone, Colo. where we spent the night in Rio Grande National Forest at the foot of 14,294 foot Crestone Peak.

It was almost dark by the time we got the tent up and it started to rain, too, so we cooked dinner over the Coleman stove. The next morning we headed for Taylor Park by way of Cottonwood Pass.

On the way we passed the Collegiate Peaks, ran through a deluge in Salida and saw the biggest deer I've ever seen contentedly munching his cud about 50 yards off the highway pass around 11,000 feet. We stopped at the peak, 12,126 feet, played in the snow and took in the gorgeous scenery of the Continental Divide.

Later, Monday, we set up camp on Pine Creek after finding the regular National Forest Service campsites all filled. Unfortunately, too many other people had used the spot, but we made it comfortable, had a good dinner and turned in early.

Tuesday we started fishing the Taylor River. It's a big, fairly broad stream that has some beautiful holes. Deep holes, rocks, sweeping curves, some relatively still water. It has great variety.

Lynn and I both were using flies and we had, to be honest, poor luck. When the wind blew, I couldn't control my light nylon line. He was using a tapered, heavier line, but he fared no better.

The next day we tried another spot on the river, and did no better. We weren't shut out, but we came close. Other fishermen—and the river was heavy with anglers—were complaining, too. The fish did bite, but they didn't strike.

Late in the afternoon we ran across a fisherman who pulled in trout left and right. Turns out he already had caught 80 and we saw him pull three more in while talking with him.

Lynn questioned him and, when the fella looked at the fly Lynn was using, he remarked: "You believe in hitting em over the head, don't you?" Then he showed us his flies. He handtied them all himself and they were mostly small grays and browns.

So, we started trying to use the same type of flies and casting them as he had. We even used Roostertails, Mepps and Streamers, but with little more luck.

Thursday we caught enough to have a good dinner and Lynn made a cornmeal bread that was out of this world. He had to improvise, using pancake mix for flour. He mixed up his batter, put it in the frypan, covered it with aluminum foil, and it was delicious with potatoes baked in the coals, corn on the cob, fresh trout.

Friday we fished a couple of beaver ponds and caught some nice sized trout in them, finished up on the river and went back to camp for dinner. A few minutes later, a camper drove in and wondered if he could share the area with us. We said, of course, that he could.

He visited with us later and said that he had been coming into this particular spot for five yers. Then he asked if we had explored Pine Creed at all?

Wouldn't you know it? He said that three miles up Pine Creek were several beaver ponds loaded with trout and so hungry that they'd strike anything thrown in the water! It was too late for us.

So, Saturday morning we folded our tent and left. It was 624 miles back to Lubbock through some gorgeous scenery, beautiful high ranges, the Great San Dunes, Volcanic remnants, fleecy white clouds and shadows on the mountains.

A word of advice to anyone going to Colorado still this summer. Go early, find a spot to camp, stay there. The traffic on the roads is endless. Literally thousands are visiting Colorado.

We had no trouble getting gas. Apparently all the trouble is strictly in the Denver area.

If you have a sleeping bag, take extra blankets. We had frost every night, heavy a couple of times. As soon as the sun drops below the mountain line, it begins to get cold.

Wear a warm jacket during the day, too. Although the sun is blazing hot, sudden clouds and a cool wind can bite.

If you plan to fish, check local conditions. Find out where the fishing is best and what equipment to use, then stay with it.

I just wish I could have two weeks in New York and two in Colorado each summer.

Don't cast your windfall to the winds. Buy Series H Bonds. For a safe, sure income you can count on.

Take stock in America.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN
..... by Vern Sanford

EARLY WARNING OF STORM

Anytime you go boating, even for a short period of time, take along a small radio. Pocket-size will do.

Follow this habit, despite the fact that you will boat in an area with which you are thoroughly familiar, and you plan a strictly, pleasure-boat ride.

Make it a must to take along a radio anytime you dedicate a day to fishing—and definitely if you're planning to be out all night.

Why drag along a radio when you're going outdoors primarily to get away from things?

Well, one reason is that the radio could be worth its weight in gold, to you. A radio is fine for entertainment—but its wonderful as a weather indicator.

A weather indicator? No station broadcasts weather warning all day long!

Maybe not, but the static you complain about, is in many cases advance warning of an approaching storm. There are other reasons for static too, but those loud flashing, sputtering, heavy blasts of ear-splitting static reflect lightening in the area.

Static Is Your Cue

Not all static is indicative of a storm. Some comes from nearby electric transmission lines or faulty or ungrounded electrical equipment in operation. But sudden bursts of static are warning signs. A radio reacts to lightening long before you can see flashes.

To you who are afloat loud static is a warning to "look for storm clouds". As the static gets louder and more frequent it's admonishing you to up anchor, get moving and head for shore.

Many of us get so engrossed in our fishing that we are not very observing of what's happening about us.

Any storm can be dangerous, but if it's coming from the direction you have to travel it's doubly dangerous. In that event you're not racing with it but against it. And one thing for sure is—you can't outrun a 30-mile wind backed by a heavy rain and still drive the boat safely.

So, start early, be extremely careful on the way back—and tie down securely in your dock or on your trailer.

There's nothing safer than shore when you're in a heavy thunderstorm, unless it's inside a solidly built weatherproof structure.

Above all, don't gather under a tree. It's the most unsafe place to be in a thunderstorm.

become delicious sandwiches. Or, turn hardcooked eggs from breakfast into deviled eggs for another meal.

Another technique involves preparing large quantities of foods which last several days. For example, refrigerate a gallon of sweet-sour been salad and use as needed.

For a unique summer treat, serve a colorful fruit salad in a watermelon rind. Brimming with watermelon and cantaloupe balls, pineapple chunks, strawberries or other fresh fruits, it's nutrition packed with vitamins A and C.

Serve fruit salad, along with an assortment of sandwiches and tall glasses of iced tea, on the terrace in late afternoon. Still another summer cooler, and a popular one at that, is homemade ice cream. To cut ice cream calories and cost, use nonfat dry milk, rick in calcium for teeth and bones.

For extra flavor, and a boost in vitamin C, add fresh fruit such as peaches, strawberries or cantaloupe to the ice cream. Or try a slush sherbet using three cans grapefruit soft drink, two cups crushed pineapple and one can sweetened condensed milk. Freeze it in the refrigerator freezing compartment, or in a crank style or electric ice cream freezer. Whatever method, it can be a real adventure for kids.

Recipe of The Week:

Sweet-Sour Green Beans

2 cans of green beans
1 1/2 cups salad oil
5 buttons garlic
2/3 cup vinegar
1 1/2 tablespoon sugar
salt and pepper to taste
Pour above mixture over drained green beans. Put in refrigerator 24 hours or longer.

MANAGING YOUR MONEY

TEACH YOUR CHILD TO HANDLE MONEY

Training in the delicate art of handling money can't be started too soon. Here are a few good rules.

- 1. A regular allowance. Even a modest amount, received at regular intervals, helps a child learn the ABC's of regular income management and gives him the sense of independence that comes with being able to buy some small items on his own. This fixed amount should be something he can depend on; if you withhold part of his allowance regularly as punishment, you may be defeating this purpose. For the same reason, be firm about not giving un-earned extra allowance.
- 2. The importance of credit. There are times, however, when a child may need extra money in addition to his regular allowance. Just as you may make purchases on the installment plan or borrow from a bank. You'll be teaching a very valuable lesson—how to borrow responsibly—if you let him borrow on future allowance and then hold him to the responsibility of paying it back. But if you find it's taking a long time to repay the debt, don't hesitate to wipe it out. The next time he borrows from you he may do better—and that's what training is all about!

- 3. Your example. One of the strongest factors in your child's training in money management will be the example you set him. Do you tend to rely heavily on credit cards and charge accounts even when you have the cash? Does your family budget opportunities that demand substantial amounts of cash, it's a good idea to have $500 or at least $200 in travelers checks right at home. Put them in a safe place and keep track of their serial numbers because—unlike cash—they are quickly refundable if lost or stolen. First National City Travelers Checks are recommended since they are available through most banks, can be used in millions of places everywhere, and are refundable "on the spot" in more locations (30,000) than any other travelers check.

- 4. Saving. Open a savings account in his name, and let him keep the passbook so he can watch the totals increase.

A word of warning from the financial experts: don't insist that a youngster of any age save a large slice of his allowance. He needs practice in spending as well as in saving!
