"Extension Update"

by Georgia Doherty

Welcome to "Extension Update!" Due to many requests by the community, this column from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be published weekly. As a home economics agent for the Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M University System, I work directly with the public in all areas of 4-H and general home economics.

Different topics will be discussed each week including: local and county 4-H news, food and nutrition, consumer hints, management, clothing selection and cars, and other items of timely interest.

The 4-H program is a dynamic one! Over 210,000 Texas youth between the ages of nine and nineteen are 4-H members. They participate in numerous project areas in agriculture, home economics, creative arts, photography, riflery, auto mechanics, electricity, and many more.

4-H previously was considered strictly for rural youth. But today, inner city young people are just as involved in the program.

Besides learning skills, such as the above mentioned, 4-H members develop in numerous other ways. They learn to communicate, express their ideas, become community leaders, make decisions, and in general, learn to cope with and grow within their environment.

There is a great amount of research being conducted by Texas A&M and the United States Department of Agriculture. We have access to this information at the Lubbock County Extension Office and use it in all aspects of our work with the public. Selected items from this research will be passed on to you weekly.

If you have questions dealing with 4-H or home economics, please call (806 - 763-5351, Ext. 235) or write (301 - County Office Building, Lubbock, Texas 79401) and they will be answered either personally or through this column.

I look forward to "Update" sessions each week, and hope you will find the news and hints informative and useful. I'll talk to you next week.

Boxing

by Malissia Martin

The John-Laws of Lubbock has had their boxing club busy this season under the excellent direction of Mickey Craig and the superb conditioning of Edward Hernandez. Since the early part of September, the Lubbock team has been engaged in a meet, invitational, or tournament somewhere practically every week.

Besides emerging the winning team in several of these engagements, the Lubbock club won the "Sportsmanship trophy" at the Big "Red River" meet in Wichita Falls. This meet hosts championship boxers from all over the state. Lubbock also won the "Fort Worth" Sportsmanship trophy. What more can you say for this team?

Levelland now has only two "Open" boxers who have made it to the Lubbock Regionals. But T.J. Watt, head coach at Levelland, has a nack for winning more than Levelland's share of matches. Some of the regions toughest boxers have come from Levelland.

Watt's team also had their share of injuries this year. One boxer (Chris Hock) is out with a broken hand, one with a head injury and one with a broken foot! Must have been a kick in there somewhere! Besides the injuries, Levelland is suffering from inactivity. Levelland won the "Individual Sportsmanship trophy" at Roswell, New Mexico. They also have won several meets during the season.

As the boxing season nears the big Lubbock Regional Tournament Feb. 13-15, at the Fair Park Coliseum, teams and individuals from nearly all area towns and Amarillo will be represented. High schools such as Monterey, Dunbar and Coronado will have their teams ready. Coronado won the high school novice trophy last year. Texas Tech always has several boxers entered. LCC enters Bob Walters, one of the best open fighters.

This olympic year has brought out the best of the boxers. Regional open class winners, 26 years old and under, will advance to the State Tournament in Fort Worth, March 6-10. Boxers over 26 years old will be in Regional A.A.U competition—winners advancing to the National A.A.U. Tournament.

All area athletes can enter the Lubbock Regionals. Those without experience will be entered in the novice division. Winners and runners-up will be presented with a trophy.

This is a sport where entering is the important thing. Anything can happen and usually does.

Dear Friends and Customers:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation to you for your patronage during my many years as a Shallowater business man. These are years that have a special meaning to me as I was able to serve your needs and at the same time contribute to the growth and development of a fine community. Shallowater has meant a lot to me over the years and my business relationship with you will always be remembered.

The many years that I have devoted to my insurance business in Shallowater have been very enjoyable, but I have decided to sell my agency in order to have more freedom and leisure time for personal activities. Effective March 1, 1976, Doggett Insurance Agency has been sold to Mr. C.E. Pair, owner and operator of Shallowater Insurance Agency. C.E. has been in the insurance business in Shallowater for the last 9 years and may already be personally acquainted with you. His plans are to operate the combined businesses at my present office location on the corner of 7th Street and Avenue G. You will be extended the same courteous and competent insurance service with no interruption in your insurance coverage.

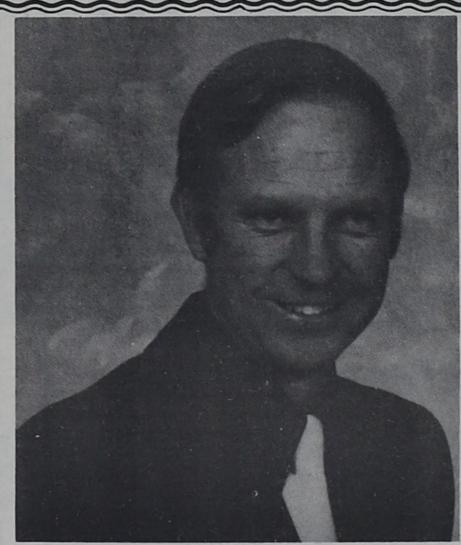

Arrangements have been made with he companies represented by my agency to have your policies transferred to Shallowater Insurance Agency for any service that is necessary. This is automatically taken care of with no inconvenience to you.

Sue Pair, who has been my secretary for the last 5 years, will remain in the office as an employee of Shallowater Insurance Agency, and will continue her loyal service to you. Please call Sue or C.E. regarding any question or service on your policies. I assure you that they are very capable and competent in handling your insurance and I encourage you to continue to do business with them.

Again, I would like to say "Thank You" for your business and confidence in past years. It has been sincerely appreciated.

Sincerely,

Dear Friends and Customers:

If you are not already doing business with me, I would like to take this opportunity to welcome you as an insurance customer. I have been in the insurance business in Shallowater for 9 years and I am looking forward to many more years of serving you and your insurance needs.

Mr. Doggett and I, by working together, have done a great deal of preparation so that this transfer of business will be orderly and not joepardize your insurance coverage in any way. Arrangements have already been made with your insurance company to assure this.

I plan to continue to represent the companies that carry your insurance and to continue the competent and professional service you have received from Mr. Doggett previously.

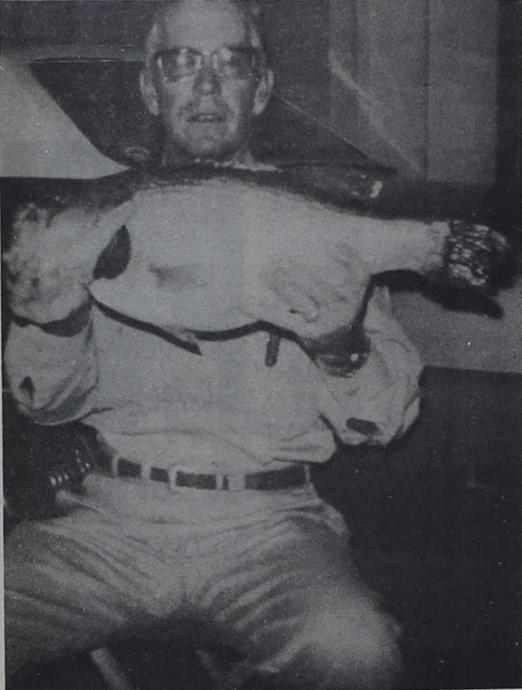

My office will be at the exact same location as Doggett Insurance Agency and Sue Pair will continue as my employee. We want you to feel comfortable with the change and to come in and see us any time.

Please feel free to call us if you have a question and come by at your first opportunity so we may become better acquainted. I look forward to working with you and serving all of your insurance needs for many years.

Big Fish Story

Most fishermen come home with the story of the big one that got away, but Garland Stokes has the picture to prove that the big one fell for the hook, line and sinker, and Garland managed to land this big bass weighing a full 8 lbs. 8 ozs. at White River Lake, while fishing there recently.

Stokes, who fishes on the lake frequently, stated he has caught several good sized bass, but this is the largest one he has ever landed at White River Lake.

Stokes and Leroy Grawunder fished there Monday and brought home a total of 14 bass with Grawunder catching a 5 pounder and one weighing 6½ pounds. In the past two weeks, both men reported catching a whopping 150 pounds of bass at the lake, located about 70 miles southeast of Shallowater, between Crosbyton and Post.

Either these two have found a bass bed, or just know how to bass fish, or maybe are just plain lucky fishermen. Whatever, when they go fishing they bring home proof of their day's catch and make some of the old fishermen here just plain envious.

Anyway it makes everyone who likes to fish, want to head for White River and try their luck. But probaby as luck would have it, they would return with a report that the fish were just not fiting that day. But everyone can't hae fisherman's luck like Garland and Leroy.

Doll Collection on Exhibit at Library

A collection of dolls ranging from the 1850's to contemporary times will be exhibited through the month of February in the display cases of the Mahon Library, 1306 9th Street.

The display has been arranged through the cooperation of several area doll collectors. The dolls being shown are in a variety of materials, including bisque, china, hard rubber, wood, composition, and hard plastic. Each is beautifully dressed, some in original clothing, others in hand-sewn recreations of original costumes.

Representing the pre-Civil War period is a 28-inch hard rubber doll dressed in the full-skirted costume of her era. From the 1860's and early 1870's are two German China dolls with black "sausage curl" hair styles. Another doll displayed is an early 1900 bisque "baby doll" wearing a typical christening dress with frothy lace petticoat. Two boy dolls from the 1910 era are shown.

Other dolls in the exhibition include a "flapper" doll from the 1920's; later day "Toni" and "Shirley Temple" dolls and a contemporary Italian-made doll dressed in an 1890's costume.

The exhibit may be viewed from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

"What are those brown spots on my hands?"

You may think they're just big freckles, or sun spots. Maybe somebody told you they were "liver spots." But they're most likely age spots.

Do you have to put up with age

The answer is no. You can fade age spots with Esoterica Medicated Esoterica works because it goes below the skin surface. Esoterica stops excess pigmentation, so the spot fades.

If you use Esoterica daily as directed, you should see a clearer, more youthful-looking skin tone in six weeks.

Fade age spots with Esoterica:

Every week is the week for decision in the Southwest Conference and the days ahead are no exception. Saturday the Red Raiders meet TCU in Fort Worth, followed by Texas here on Tuesday and then the BIG game, Tech at A&M on Saturday.

It's gotten to the point now where each and every game is most important. There can't be any slip-ups, because no one game is going to make the difference.

A week ago it appeared to be simply a two-team race between Tech and the Aggies. That was before SMU went on a three game winning streak, which propelled the Mustangs back into consideration.

In fact, after Tech beat the Ponies, Sonny Allen said he guessed that about ended their hopes. He was wrong. That night Arkansas beat A&M and, coupled with SMU's defeats of Houston, Rice and Arkansas, it became a three-team fight.

Baylor even had, as of Saturday night, an outside chance, although the Bears' 6-4 record gave faint hope. Barring a miracle, the other five teams are out of it. Rice and Texas have been out for a long time. Now Arkansas, Houston and TCU join the group.

Starting next week, A&M has three games at home and three on the road; Tech has two on the road, three at home. But the Raiders must go to Aggieland Saturday in a real showdown.

This week the Aggies have an edge, playing at home against Texas and Saturday going against Baylor. Tech hosted Arkansas Tuesday, must go to TCU on Saturday.

This coming Tuesday A&M must visit SMU, never an easy assignment, and Tech hosts Texas. Then all the marbles will be on the line, presumably, when the Raiders invade College Station. And this should be another one of those giant battles.

The Aggies won the first meeting in Lubbock, and they must be given the edge at home. Still, there is hope for the Raiders. It's going to take an all out effort, though.

In their first meeting, Tech definitely looked like the better team the first half. Then the Raiders tired and the last half belonged to the Aggies, as well as the game. It would be incredible if Tech played as poorly for an entire half again.

The results so far have been interesting. A&M and SMU are the only teams, after Jan. 31 games, that hadn't lost at home, while Arkansas has beaten both Tech and A&M, while losing to SMU. If SMU hadn't lost to Tech, A&M and TCU on the road, it would be even tighter.

Houston, excluding winless Rice, is the only team that hasn't won a road game. Arkansas, TCU and Texas each have won once on the road, while Tech and A&M have four road wins.

As usual, the home court advantage shows up strongly. Conference teams have won 26 out of 40 on their home courts, while managing only 16 victories out of 42 tries on the road.

Tech and A&M, as of Jan. 31, had accounted for 50 per cent, eight out of 16, while Baylor chipped in three, SMU two. Five of SMU's seven wins have been at home. Arkansas and Houston each had four.

One of the more interesting moments in the season took place in the Tech-Houston game. Tech held a one-point lead and it sounded as if Tech had possession with 10 seconds left. Then it was determined a foul had been called.

Which would you rather be true—possession with 10 seconds left, or a free throw with a chance for two points?

I asked some knowledgeable basketball people that question Sunday and, without exception, they replied that they would rather have possession.

With Steve Dunn and Geoff Huston, you could kill the clock. A free throw is dangerous. Miss the first, give the other team possession and there's time for the winning bakset.

Rick Bullock, of course, solved it. He sank both free throws and that was the game. And that was the acid test.

This is the week for decision for many high school football players. They must, if offered football scholarships to college, make up their minds. That's not easy.

In fact, it would be the most difficult task for any schoolboy. He is wined, dined, praised, promised and would not be human if not confused by it all. Still, he has to make a choice and when he makes it, he's not really sure it's the right one.

There isn't much talk coming out of Tech, but A&M, Texas and Baylor have been announcing several players. Still, Raider fans shouldn't be upset.

Blue chip high school boys are not always the players who make winners. There are many who don't make the headlines who later develop into stars through coaching and motivation. I have every confidence that Steve Sloan and his staff will have a good recruiting season.

Sheridan's Ride

Well, this is the DAY! The day of the cowboy, if you please, and in our midst we have the King of them all, Roy Rogers. Tonight ticket holders ($10-$50 per seat!) will be filling the spacious lobby of the Winchester Theater for a reception at 7 p.m. and then at 8 p.m. they will all file into the big auditorium for the world premiere showing of Roger's first film in 24 years, "Mackintosh and T.J.," which, everyone must know, was filmed last summer on the famed 666 Ranch and in Dickens and Matador and environs.

Following the premiere showing of this film about an old cow hand and his guidance of a rebellious 14-year-old boy, there is to be a super gala with Roy Rogers and his wife, Dale Evans, topping the list and the holders of those $50 Golden Circle ticket holders.

Then, tomorrow (Friday) "Mackintosh and T.J." will be on view for its regular public run for at least the next three weeks at the Winchester. All the proceeds from tonight's shindig go, as you know, to benefit the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech's Museum, with its formal opening set for July this Bicentennial year.

Those who read this pillar last week know that "Mackintosh and T.J." is a 96-minute, PG-rated film from Penland Productions and that this reporter's critical remark was summed up by calling the unpretentious, beautifully photographed film a "warm, entertaining family film."

And fast on the heels of today's opening comes another family show, this time live on the stage of the Municipal Auditorium. This is the witty and sparkling operetta in English, "El Capitan," which was written and composed by America's march king, the celebrated John Philip Sousa—honest! Sousa, who enjoyed a life as composer of waltzes or marches, took the idea of a hero who wants to be both ruler of Peru as well as leader of the rebel forces seeking to overthrow him! Charles Klein did the book, while Thomas Frost and Sousa had their hands in the lyrics.

It's a zany piece and is being performed by the Texas Opera Company, touring the state as part of the Bicentennial celebration. It is being brought to Lubbock by the Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce, at the Texas Tech University Center and will be on tap at the Auditorium box office Saturday afternoon to curtain time, 8 p.m. Prices for the reserved seats are $5, $4, $3 and $2. Incidentally, all student tickets are half-price.

A couple of weeks back, I talked about the upcoming (then) musical for the Auditorium, "Man of La Mancha," which was due on Jan. 28, starring the valued David Atkinson as Miguel Cervantes/Don Quixote.

You'll remember that Atkinson performed the title role here some years back on a national tour and then went back to New York to lead the musical there into its final performance after a run of many years.

Well, this is to report that David Atkinson and company rolled into Lubbock by van and buses a few hours before the performance and settled immediately into the big house to give one of the smoothest and most enjoyable performances of this fine musical that has been done. Atkinson has, if anything, grown in his dual interpretation and his supporting company was more distinguished than any road tour has a right to expect. In these days when traveling costs have cut the one-night-stand tours of heavy production shows down to a minimum, it is safe to say that we in this area will probably not see the likes of "Man of La Mancha" through the remainder of the year.

One remembers Mark Ross as Sancho (he played the Barber here in the earlier engagement), Alice Evans brilliant in the difficult part of Aldonza, Frederick Major as The Inkeeper, Walter Blocher as The Padre, Christopher Milo as Dr. Carrasco, David Brummel as the Head Muleteer, Louise Armstrong as the Inkeeper's wife and all the rest of this remarkably well-balanced cast. They all did such a superb job and it is no wonder that Lubbock accorded Atkinson and his company a standing ovation when it was done. These "standing ovations" per se can be overdone in Lubbock and don't always mean what they traditionally should, but in the case of "Man of La Mancha" it was the true accolade for a fine and richly entertaining night.

I have had the good fortune to number David Atkinson and his delightfully charming wife, Carol, among my friends from the time of his first appearance in Lubbock. Down through the past few years, what with moving around and David's work, we lost our mutual addresses so, propped on my crutches, I hobbled backstage after the performance and we had a joyous and warm reunion. David said he'd have embraced me if he wasn't all greasepaint, and I am sure that if I had not been fearful of toppling off my crutch perch, I should have done the same on my part.

Our visit was all too brief; the Atkinson's are traveling with the others of the cast in those abominable buses—the tour goes to April 1—and they lit out from the city at 1 a.m. for El Paso and a one-nighter there the next night. They then went to Tempe, Arizona, for three days and looked forward to a whole week stand later on in Toronto, Canada.

But we did have our visit, restored our mutual addresses and will keep in touch for real this time as the years ahead unfold.

I have met many show business people over my many years in, around, and about the business, but I can go right on the record here and now in saying that seldom, if ever, have I met and enjoyed any of its people more than I do David and Carol Atkinson,

It's the gaining of a friendship such as theirs that makes the whole thing rewarding and good. It is, I suppose, what the whole thing is all about, as they say.

Next week I'll tell you about a gifted pianist, a longtime friend composer at Texas Tech who merges her talents with the former for the incoming Lubbock Symphony Orchestra concert Feb. 16, and I'll be talking about the Lubbock Theater Center's production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" which Mrs. June Bearden is whipping into shape for a bow at the end of the month at the LTC Playhouse. And some new movies. And whatever else looms in this busy entertainment-cultural center of ours.

Bi-Centennial Quilt

The 3rd grade class of Mrs. Mary Warren had an "old-timey" quilting bee in the old gym Tuesday. Each student was responsible for one of the light colored blocks that you see here. The blocks have the names and drawings of the class members on

Red fabric was used to coordinate the individual blocks and the border was blue with white stars. What an experience for these kids-something to tell everyone about-a bi-centennial quilting

Ag Mechanics

by Chris Hutchings

The Ag Mechanics class has been busy with a lot of activities this past week. The Ag class has been busy sanding and painting things such as a car, a trailer, wooden objects, and a grandfather clock. They also are using different materials to weld feeders for livestock. The Ag Department is continually building new things to help the school and the agriculture.

Senior Spotlight

This week's spotlight leans toward Jeff Love and Russell Martin.

Jeff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Love. Jeff, for some strange reason, just can't wait for May to come. He turns 18 May 17, 1976.

Music, parties, and concerts are Jeff's "favorite things." Playing his guitar and albums are his hobbies. His favorte subject is study hall, because "it is an easy subject to take."

When asked what he has enjoyed most about his senior year, he replied, "No hair code." "I'll be glad when the misery ends," commented Jeff of his senior year.

After graduation Jeff plans to work at T.I. as an apprentice and carpenter.

Russel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Martin, fills the other half of the spotlight this week. He turns 18 on March 17, 1976.

Cars, music and "my girl" are Russel's favorite "things." Playing his guitar and racing cars are his hobbies.

Russell is the student council president for Shallowater High

The fact that it is his last year is the most enjoyable thing Russel has found about his senior year. After graduation, he plans to be a drifter.

When asked for a comment about his senior year, Russel replied, "They're all out to get me!"

Kim Young is Betty Crocker Search Winner Here

Kim Young has been named Shallowater High School's 1975-76 Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow. Kim won the honor by competing with other seniors in the written knowledge and attitude examination on Dec. 2. She will receive a certificate from General Mills, sponsor of the annual educational scholarship program, and becomes eligible for state and national honors.

In the spring, state winners and their faculty advisors will be the guests of General Mills on an expense-paid educational tour to Washington, D.C. A special event of the tour is the announcement of the All-American Family Leader of Tomorrow, whose scholarship will be increased to $5,000. Second, third and fourth place winners will receive scholarship increases to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

Students Attend Band Practice

by Laura Walker

Seven members of the Mustang Band attended the All-Region Band practice sessions and performed in the concert that was held at Monterey High School, Saturday night, Jan. 31. Some people seem to think the hard part of being in the Honor Band is making it, but, it is really the long hours of practice after one has made it.

The 132-member band practiced Thursday night, Friday, and Saturday, and performed a concert all in one weekend. Dr. Hale of Memphis, Tennessee, directed the musicians with patience and diligence.

Although strangers at first, the students learned to know one another during the time spent over the few days of practice. It is all over for this year, some will have graduated by next year and many will have moved, but it was a good experience for everyone.

Mock Wedding Performed

by Laura Walker

Planning a wedding can be quite a hassle if one does not know the correct way to go about it. Most people learn about the marriage ceremony by first-hand experience; however, learning can be fun and valuable knowledge can be gained by a ceremony from second hand experience.

For the past several weeks, Mrs. Harrison's first period Home and Family Living class has been planning their annual wedding. Everyone learned that weddings are more expensive and more time consuming than they thought.

By drawing names, the following students portrayed members of the wedding: Laura Thompson, bride; Scott Bryant, groom; Joe Orozco, preacher; John Perez, father of the bride; Shirley it.

Everette, mother of the bride; Patricia Ortiz, mother of the groom; Tony Cabalarro, father of the Patti Ewing, maid of honor, and Kelly Blackmon, bridesmaid, accompanied the bride. The groom's attendants were Tom Sinclair, best man, and Micki Evans, groomsman. Terri Martin and Joe Perez seated the guests. (Mrs. Barker's first period class). Elvira Perez registered the guests and Laura Walker was the pianist.

The students did their own decorating for the "church" auditorium. Belinda Dunn and Melissa Martin served the cake and punch that the class had made themselves.

This was truly a learning experience and everyone enjoyed

Amy and Dirk Repeat Vows

Amy Boring and Dirk Pearce were married last week in the Home and Family Living class' mock wedding. The ceremony was performed by minister, Ray Jackson.

The bride selected spring colors of blue and white. Attendants included Tim Vaughn as best man, and Gay Lynn Hix as maid of honor.

The class had a rehearsal dinner the night before the wedding and all the girls brought covered dishes. After the ceremony the reception was held in the Homemaking Cottage. The punch was served by Gloria Lara and Susie DeAnda served the cake. The get-away car was decorated for the couple's departure.

Basketball Spotlight

by Kim McMenamy

Chuck Luck is a big part of the Shallowater Mustang basketball team. Chuck is 6 foot 3 inches tall, and uses his height to grab rebounds. Chuck is a junior and works at KLLL radio when not playing basketball. Chuck is really making big plays for the Mustangs and will remain a key factor the rest of this year.

Lindy Blumer starts for the Fillies at guard. She is a 5 foot 5 inch sophomore that really hustles all over the court. Lindy is going to help the Fillies this year and in the years to come.

Goats to Be Bar - B - Q'd

The FFA boys are sponsoring one of the biggest Bar-B-Qs in the history of Shallowater.

Mr. Kenneth Carr, the FFA sponsor, and his boys are looking forward to this event. The goats will be butchered on the 6th and the Bar-B-Q will take place on the 7th of March at the Shallowater Club House.

This event is for the Ag boys only. They are putting great effort into this Bar-B-Q an can't wait till the day comes.
