

Problems, Needs of Rural Elderly Is Focus For Program

School Bond Action Delayed Until Spring

Frenship School District officials have decided to wait until next spring before taking further action on the $3.5 million bond issue which was defeated July 10, according to Wyman Richey, assistant superintendent.

The bond issue, if it had passed, would have enabled Frenship District to build a new high school complex. The issue was defeated by a 3-1 margin in the July 10 election.

Richey said the board will wait until spring and look at the enrollment figures and decide what they should do at that time.

Projected enrollment figures, prepared prior to the election, showed the school district should show an increase in enrollment of 64.5 per cent in four years.

The present school building has had 11 additions built on to it in the past 20 years, and officials felt the building has reached the saturation point in additions.

Football Shoes to Be Issued August 14 At Frenship

Shoes will be issued August 14, to all 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th grade boys in Frenship High School interested in playing football this season, according to Coach Jerry King.

Physicals will be given at the fieldhouse at 6 p.m. August 6, he said.

Two a day workouts will start at 8 a.m. August 9, said King.

Too many eye witnesses usually confuse the story.

Problems and needs of the rural elderly are the focus of a Texas Tech University college of home economics project recently funded by a federal grant of more than $298,000.

It is titled "Model Rural Project for Homemaker Service Aide Program to the Elderly." Texas Tech home economics graduate student and administrative assistant Gail House said the program is designed to provide home services to rural persons 60

Unemployment Rises

Unemployment figures in Lubbock jumped from 3.6% in mid May to 4.2% in mid July. In spite of this jump Lubbock continues to be within the moderate unemployment range for the entire year and well below the state wide average.

The Lubbock Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area continues to add more workers to its civilian labor force showing an increase of 3.5% over the past year.

The civilian labor force for Lubbock showed an increase of 1,300 workers over the past month and a margin of 3,090 above June, 1975. Total employment increased too although nonagricultural wage and salary showed the effects of area schools entering the summer term. Declines in transportation, allied and wholesale trade moved toward the usual seasonal low. Contract construction also showed a low.

Opportunities are expected to be good in electronic manufacturing as the industry expands. Openings are good for inexperienced job seekers. Retail trade shows opportunity trends along with finance, insurance and real estate.

Expectations for the second half of the year show a steady improvement in the job market with a decline in number of unemployed and shorter periods of average unemployment.

Ropes Football Equipment Issued

Shoes and shorts will be issued August 4 at the Ropes fieldhouse for all high school boys interested in playing football this season, according to Coach Don Parker.

Parker said two a day workouts will begin at 7:30 a.m. August 9.

LCCHS Construction To Begin Soon

Construction is expected to get underway soon on a new $120,000 building at Lubbock Christian High School.

The LCC Board of Trustees accepted a bid from Broadview Steel of Lubbock, Tex., to build the new facilities.

President W. Joe Hacker Jr., said the new building would consist of four classrooms, a 250-seat auditorium and a music center that will accommodate 100 band or chorus students. The years of age and older. Mrs. House is the principal investigator and project director.

"Rural elderly persons have long been neglected," said Mrs. House. "In an area like West Texas the large expanse of land and sparse population mean resources are spread over urban areas. This emphasis on aid in rural areas is what captured the attention of the people in Washington."

The Administration on Aging has agreed to provide more than $148,000 during the project's first year and $150,000 the second year. The administration is a division of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Office of Human Development.

Mrs. House said the program has two basic goals. First, project workers will study the needs of elderly persons and attempt to provide care in homes as an alternative to institutional care. The project also will represent an attempt to address the problems of displaced homemakers — persons who have been in their homes most of their lives and lack training or other resources to enter the job market.

Mrs. House and other project workers will attempt to attract displaced homemakers and train them to be homemaker aides. The aides will be responsible for providing the services to elderly persons. Services might include meeting grooming needs and providing personal care, writing letters, running errands, house-keeping, money management assistance or reading books and other materials to elderly persons.

"Providing companionship to the elderly might be the most basic service the aides provide," said Dr. Donald Longworth, dean of the college of home economics. "The aides can be companions and help elderly persons secure other means of making life more comfortable and enjoyable."

The homemaker aides will participate in 80 hours of training that will include a variety of subjects. Aides will study the psychology and sociology of aging, home management and family relations, health and physical fitness, first aid and other topics.

Mrs. House said project workers will begin field work in August. Workers will contact persons 60 years old and older in the 15-county area included in the South Plains Association of Government's jurisdiction. Homemaker aides will participate in training seminars in September. Mrs. House said she hopes the elderly persons can start receiving services by Oct. 1.

Mrs. House stated that project workers will cooperate with all existing program providing aid to the elderly. She said she hopes the project eventually can be established on a community basis with funding provided from community monies or revenue sharing.

Persons with questions about the project and its services should call the dean's office at 742-3031. Persons interested in working as homemaker aides should call Mrs. House at that number.

"Extension Update"

 "Tis the season to be canners" — and Lubbock homemakers are right in the midst of it all! Some problems have developed including loss of liquid in canning.

In canning vegetables, follow these guidelines to prevent liquid loss:

- Don't pack food too tightly in jars.
- If jars are too full, the product will boil over and start syphoning liquid from the jar.
- Leave 1/2 inch head space at the top of the jar to give room for the product to boil without boiling out. Fill non-starchy vegetables to within 1/2 inch of top of jar, starchy vegetables are filled to 1 1/2 inches of top, and liquid for all vegetables is filled to 1/2 inch of top of jar.

- Use 10 pounds pressure, not more, for all vegetables.
- Stabilize pressure by adjusting the temperature of the range elements.
- Lower pressure gradually.
- Steam shouldn't leak at the petcock or around the lid of the pressure canner.
- Let the gauge return to zero before opening the petcock.
- To prevent loss of liquid when canning fruit:
 - Raw fruit packed in jars should be filled to within 1/2 inch of top of the jar and liquid filled to within 1/2 inch of top of jar.
 - Hot-packed fruit or fruit heated in syrup before packing in jars should be filled to 1/2 inch of the top of the jar and the syrup should be filled to within 1/2 inch of top.

Watch for "debt-due notice," a letter saying you owe a bill. This means the firm is calling in debts. Be positive you owe the balance. Some consumers don't check and pay off a debt they don't owe.

When purchasing green snap beans to preserve at home, allow 30 pounds or one bushel for 30-40 pints canned, or 30-45 pints frozen. And when purchasing tomatoes, allow 50-60 pounds or one bushel for 30-40 pints.

Life is hard to those who make it hard.

SPORTS

By Joe Kelly

They say that the Olympics aren't supposed to be nationalistic in character, that the object of the Games is to bring together, in competition, the greatest athletes in the world.

To that I'll agree. At the same time, it is impossible in these days to separate pure ability, as determined by first place, and nationalism, that sense of pride that your country's athlete has come in first, is recognized as the best in the world.

There is, as you all know, no effort made to keep a point total. Three medals, only, are given in each event. This does give recognition to the recipient, without making it competition on a nationalistic basis.

The press, at one time, put the Games on a point basis, which helped foster nationalism. Now that is gone, to be replaced by a daily listing of which nation has the most gold, silver and bronze medals.

In the minds of most Americans, the Games are competition between the U.S. and other nations. That is a natural result of our competitive system. We demand a winner and a loser and clearcut so that everyone knows exactly how each nation stands.

In most sports this is the way of life, but I'll agree that, in the Games, it defeats the purpose. And yet, doggone it, like everyone else I swell with pride when I see an American athlete win a gold medal, see him on top of the victor's stand and hear the National Anthem played.

As of Sunday's competition, we have heard the National Anthem played a lot. The U.S. has done well, over all, even though there have been some major disappointments.

Track started out to be a disaster. No one from the Red, White and blue finished in the top three in the 100 or shot put. And there were other upsets, but in other sports, the upsets were by the Americans, which helped to balance the score.

The Games are continuing this week and I'm just glad that they are on a night during the week so that I can see them. Overall coverage has been good, although there are far too many commercials to make the viewing completely good.

There have been some spectacular pictures. There has been some camera work that has been spotty. There have been some athletes with whom there ought to have been interviews and one or two that could have been eliminated.

There are 21 areas of competition in the Games and we have seen many of them. ABC had, by the broad number, to select those it could show best and that has cut down on coverage.

Swimming, basketball, gymnastics, boxing and track and field, of course, are those most readily appealing. But we also have had a touch of rowing, wrestling and equestrian sports. In a limited time span, you can see only so much and what has been shown generally has the greatest appeal.

The College All Star-Pittsburgh game last week was the debacle that everyone has come to expect. The collegians start strong and then wilt under the pressure of the top pro club.

It was no exception this year. Only this year something new was added. The collegians got a break when the floods came. I've seen typhoons in the Philippine Islands that didn't produce any more rain, maybe more wind.

It go so bad that they called the game off in the third quarter. That must have reminded Tech fans of that Kansas game opening the 1965 season when torrential rain and a tornado alert cause the contest to be — pardon me — washed out.

It also should have reminded fans of the SMU game in 1964 when a gigantic hailstorm turned the field white, sent teams and officials scurrying for cover and almost was called off.

I remember the SMU game particularly because, for one of the few times in my adult life, I was sitting in the stands. I had no assignment, was going to sit in the pressbox until my wife became ill. So, I took my two young sons and sat in the East stands.

As we made our way into the stadium, it was threatening. I saw Fred Marshall of the DPS and asked him if he had heard anything. "I just checked the office," Fred replied. "One of our units at Shallowater says there's a tremendous cloud out there and if the winds stops blowing, we're going to get a potfull of rain."

For a while nothing happened. Then, on the West side, umbrellas went up. It started to rain. Then it rained harder. I told the boys to forget it, a little rain never hurt anyone and to look at the game.

A few minutes later Jack exclaimed at some hail. So? I said. He was all for going under the stands. Foot! A little hail never bothered anyone. Watch the game!

About two minutes later he was pointing to some rough, jagged hail two or three inches long. About that time two or three pieces hit me on the ear, the back of my head, my shoulder.

It was at this point I suggested very judiciously that we might retire under the stands. It was at that point that the players and officials took off, too.

Oh, yes, Tech won both the Kansas and SMU games!

Sheridan's Ride

By Jack Sheridan

I don't know exactly why but when I can come out in the column and can happily recommend a play, musical or movie that will make people laugh, it kinda starts the whole thing off right. No, that comment about I don't know exactly why is wrong. It is because in these troublesome, confusing and sometimes unhappy times for each of us, I think that genuine comedy, humor and laughs are doubly important. There is no mental or physical distress that can't be aided by a laugh or a smile. It is a cathartic that washes away for a little while the worries or tensions.

Lubbock has been lucky in the past couple of weeks to have two movies that are genuine laugh-makers. A couple of weeks back I recommended (and still do highly) the Mel Brooks riot, "Silent Movie" which is rocking the South Plains Cinema I-II daily with belly laughs. Now at the Fox 4 complex another funny film has burst on the scene. This one is called "The Gumball Rally," a sort of funny title in itself. And, believe me, this is one funny picture.

"The Gumball Rally" is a no-holds-barred race from downtown New York City to the parking lot beside the Long Beach, California based liner, now hotel-restaurants-shops Queen Mary. It is an "unofficial" race with hipped-up cars and one mad motorcycle whizzing across the nation's highways with no rules — just get there one way or the other.

Well, most of them get there, one way or the other. What happens to the cars and that motorcycle is hilarious along the way. I won't begin to tell you the many incidents; it would simply spoil the fun if you do see the film. But it is very, very funny all the way.

You see, this is the second year of the running of The Gumball Rally and the project is an anathema for one New York policeman who is determined to halt and capture at least the promoter of the show, played winningly by Michael Sarrazin. At various junctures and elaborate planning the cop is handily outmaneuvered and the more he is the funnier it is.

There are slapstick genius scenes all through this one and the motorcyclist is one of the maddest. There is a car (two to a car) driven by an Italian lover boy to whom every chick is worth a brief stop. We cross from East to West Coasts through forest, prairie, desert and finally a hilarious sequence on the L.A. freeway during the rush hour.

Sarrazin is fine as the gumball leader. And there is J. Pat O'Malley priceless as the hapless cop. And Raul Julia as the debonair Italian Casanova. And Normann Burton, Gary Busey, John Durran, Steven Keats, Tim McIntire, Joanne Nail and Nicholas Pryor to bring up this fine cast. It's PG and adults and kids were howling at the Saturday matinee. Do catch "The Gumball Rally" if you can; it'll make you forget whatever is bugging you, I promise.

The second film of the week is also a honey. If you'll think back about a year or so you'll remember that there was a picture called "Westworld," a science fiction job about human-like robots that went on a spree in an amusement park and caused a disaster. Well, this is a pick-up of that film and shows the newly re-structured amusement park with refined and pretty chilling approaches. There is a contingent of world leaders and the press invited to attend this weird establishment, headed by a newspaper man with a suspicious, probing mind, and his pretty competitor, a lady television reporter with 55 million viewers. Against some stunning sets of unbelievable ingenuity, the reporter (peter Fonda) and his colleague (Blythe Danner) get deeper and deeper into the horrible truths about this place and finally trip over the unbelievable reality of "Futureworld" and what its true purposes are.

It may take you some time to twig on to what the whole thing is leading up to, but once you do, brother, you're in for more surprises and thrills than you bargained for. The climatic scenes are as taut as any around and they are nail-biters.

You'll find reliable Arthur Hill as the unctuous "host" to the touring group, with Yul Brynner in a brief appearance, reprising his role in the original "Westworld" as the Gunslinger. Jim Antonio is fine as the TV game winner given a free trip to the place and John Ryan is a sinister doctor. While Harry the human engineer in charge of the power plant is superbly played by Stuart Margolin. The American International film runs 107 minutes and is rated PG.

"Futureworld" was, for me, a far tighter and more compelling film than its current "competitor" "Logan's Run" another science fiction in-the-future film which is also current in town. I think you'll be fascinated as the power of the world domination theme seeps into your consciousness. Incidentally, much of the out-of-this-world special effects were filmed through the cooperation of NASA.

If you like a lot of gunfire and Clint Eastwood, then "The Outlaw: Josey Wales" at the Fox is right down your alley. There's nothing new in this one and one heck of a lot of banging around. Chief Dan George (who has another lukewarm entry in town "Shadow of the Hawk") is in this one; his certainly works steadily, I'll say that.

The Disney Fox Theater entry "The Treasure of Matecumbe" is all right stuff, too long, and lots of the young fry got squirmy before it was too far underway. The cast including Peter Ustinov does what it can with the extended material. It's rated G, of course, and runs just under two hours.

The incomparable animal trainer-performer Gunther Gebel-Williams and his family top the bill on the special Bicentennial edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus which arrives in its long silver train to play six performances at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum Aug. 6-8. This is the German-born blonde wizard who thinks nothing of riding a tiger on the back of an elephant and such tingling things. He's almost worth the price of admission and underscores that this is indeed "The Greatest Show on Earth." The performance times are 8 p.m. Aug. 6; 11 a.m., 3 and 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 5; and 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 8. Prices are $3.50, $5 and $6, with kids under 12 at a $1.

breath centered with an orchid.

Following tradition, the bride wore something old, her Mother's pearls given to her mother on the day of her wedding by the bride's father; something new, her wedding gown; something borrowed; a handkerchief belonging to her great grandmother. Her touch of blue was the traditional blue garter. Her father placed pennies minted in the year of the couple's birth in her shoe.

Miss Patti Robertson of Cotton Center was maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Miss Donna Hobgood of Lubbock, sister of the groom, Mrs. Beverly Schoenhals of Cotton, cousin of the bride, Miss Paula Price of Amarillo, cousin of the bride, and Miss Donna Isom of Lubbock. They wore identical floor length gowns of blossom pink jersey accented in crystal rose trim. The full flowing sleeveless gowns were designed with deep plunging V necklines with draping collars in a circular cape effect edged in the crystal rose piping. The full skirts fell in deep folds from soft shirring at the front, hanging loose at the back. They carried a cascade of pink carnations, miniature glad flowers and baby's breath.

Bestmen to the groom were his brothers, Darrell Hobgood of Wolfforth and Bobby Hobgood of El Paso. Groomsmen were Eric Allen of Cotton Center, brother of the bride, Randy Booher, and Byron McCallon of Wolfforth. Ushers were Deon Hobgood, nephew of the groom, and Myron McCallon of Lubbock.

Flower girl was Kimberly Hobgood, niece of the groom. Ringbearer was Wade Gipson, cousin of the bride. Candlelighters were Chad Gipson and Kenneth Gipson of Taylorsville, Utah, cousins of the bride.

Wedding music was presented by Miss D'Nan Hobgood of Lubbock at the organ. Mrs. Lydia Eubanks of Lubbock sang "If," "It Seems I've Always Loved You," and "The Lord's Prayer".

A reception followed in the church fellowship hall. The couple was assisted in the receiving line by their parents.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Bobby Hobgood of El Paso and Miss Pam Black of Cotton Center.

Those assisting with the reception were Mrs. Paul Robertson, Mrs. J.R. Nixon, Mrs. Earl Gene Beach, Mrs. Ken Parker, Mrs. Darrell Hobgood, Mrs. Charles Stroope, Mrs. Bill Beach, Mrs. Gene Gipson, Mrs. Doug Gipson, Miss Sharla Sageser, Mrs. Larry Adrian and Vicki Watten.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length candlelight silk chiffon cloth trimmed in candlelight lace. The table was centered with a silver candelabra with pink candles featuring pink carnations, iris, and spider mums. The five tiered wedding cake featured the bride and groom and was decorated with a cascade of candlelight and pink roses. Silver appointments completed the table setting.

The groom's table was covered with a floor length cloth of beige and candlelight chiffon. The table was centered with a gold candelabra holding a fresh grape fruit arrangement. Brass appointments completed the table. A two tiered chocolate cake accented with clusters of chocolate roses was inscribed with the first names and wedding date of the couple.

Rice bags were given to each guest by Rae Gipson of Hurlwood and Greg Gipson of Taylorsville, Utah, cousins of the bride. The bride is a graduate of Cotton Center High School and is a sophomore elementary education major at Texas Tech University. The groom is a graduate of Frenship High School in Wolfforth and attended Texas Tech for two years. He is engaged in farming at Wolfforth.

The wedding rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's mother at the Gridiron in Lubbock.

Following a trip to New Mexico the couple will reside in Wolfforth.

In a candlelight ceremony held Saturday evening, July 17, at 7:30 in the First Baptist Church of Cotton Center, Miss Sherry Lynn Allen became the bride of Davey Ray Hobgood.

Reverend Jack Terrill, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Cotton Center, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar B. Allen of Cotton Center. The groom is the son of Mrs. Dorothy M. Hobgood of Lubbock, and the late Mr. Chesley G. Hobgood.

The altar background was centered with a double brass, lace arch candelabrum with cathedral tapers and enhanced with greenery. Brass arched candelabrum with greenery were used on each side of the altar. A unity candle was placed on the right side of the altar. The bridal aisle was marked with hurricane globes surrounded with fresh greenery and streamers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Renaissance gown of candlelight silken organza and beaded alencon lace. The traditional silhouette featured a molded bodice of beaded lace with a high Duchess neckline of beaded lace scallops. Long tapered sleeves were appliqued in vertical tendrils of beaded lace, ending in petal points over the hands, with button and loop closure. The controlled A-line skirt was accented with a wide panel of the beaded lace down the front, continuing around the hemline and train in a border of pearl beaded scallops. Beaded lace medallions were sprinkled over the entire train. Her matching lace mantilla style veil was caught to a lace Camelot headpiece sweeping beyond the length of her train and ended in a deep border of lace scallops alternating with pearl beaded scallops.

She carried a cascade of candlelight miniature roses, carnations, stephanotis, and baby's

A table centered at the altar had a white unity candle in the center with two white candles on each side. A family Bible given to the couple as a wedding gift was placed in front of the unity candle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza, fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline edged with a narrow trim of Venise lace and full length bishop sleeves of Val lace. A long flowing A-line skirt, extending into a chapel length train, fell from the natural fitted bodice. A deep ruffle of Val lace formed the hemline of the

She carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered mums and gladiolus enhanced with baby's breath, accented with fresh lemon leaf that held a Japid orchid in the center of the bouquet.

State Securities Board Issues Warning to Farmers

The Texas State Securities Board warns farmers and others in the agriculture business to be on the lookout for a possible swindle in newly-formed farmers' cooperative associations.

Beginning this Spring a pattern has emerged, and now farmers in about 20 states in the central United States are discovering that they have been duped. While details of the swindle vary somewhat from state to state, the main characteristics generally are the same.

First, a new farmers' cooperative is formed, and one or more prominent local citizens are listed as officers or members. These local citizens usually are not aware a swindle is taking place, but their names are used to draw in other victims.

Next, the farmer is told that if he joins, he'll be able to buy equipment, seed, supplies, etc., at reduced prices. In order to join, he must invest in a 20 year savings certificate or promissory note of the co-op, costing about $350 per year. When the certificate matures in 20 years, he supposedly will get back all the money he's paid in plus a certain rate of interest compounded annually. He's led to believe that his price saving on any big ticket item (such as a tractor or combine) will more than offset the $350 annual payment. He's also promised the use of grain elevators and other cooperative facilities.

Then the promoters and their employees take at least the full first year payment ($350) as their "commission" for selling the savings certificate to the farmer.

Since the cooperative had no money or assets to begin with, it still has nothing, although $350 has been paid in by hundreds of farmers. Even if a few farmers elect to pay the full purchase price of the savings certificate in a single payment, the assets of the co-op will still be negligible. The managers of the co-op don't have enough money to do anything for the farmers.

Just in case there is any money remaining after the first bite for commissions, the promoters usually will have signed a management or consultant contract for some other company to manage the business of the cooperative. The manager-consultant is usually run by cohorts of the promoters, and its fee is quite large.

The promoters and the "manager" go through the motions (for awhile) of launching the new enterprise. They show a decided preference for buying things on credit, as opposed to paying cash. When they eventually, but inevitably, leave, they try to avoid the appearance of having "skipped out" with the money. The hope-for appearance is that things just didn't work out — they tried but just couldn't quite put it all together. This makes it more difficult to prosecute them.

Farmers are urged to be careful about turning over money to strangers purporting to organize a new cooperative. There are, of course, many honest and legitimate cooperative associations serving their members well, and other legitimate ones will be formed in the future. But questionable cooperatives have been set up recently in states adjacent to Texas, and the Texas Securities Commissioner is concerned that attempts to do the same here are quite likely.

Any farmer approached to invest money in a cooperative with the characteristics described above is asked to contact the State Securities Board office in Austin at P.O. Box 13167, Capitol Station, Austin 78711; telephone (512) 475-4561.

auditorium will serve as the meeting place for daily chapel periods and will double as a snack bar.

The 8,400-square foot building will be located on a site just south of the existing Baldrige Building on the LCHS campus.

The building will be financed via a $50 building-use fee that will be charged each pupil this fall. The maximum building-use charge per family will be $150.

The system for financing the structure came after lengthy discussions with parents and a questionnaire that was sent to the home of every student attending Lubbock Christian Schools. Parents from Lubbock Christian High School have already donated money that will serve as a down payment. Annual payments on the remainder of the debt will be made as building-use fees are collected each fall.

The building is expected to be completed in the middle of October.
