New Bidding Boon To Novice, Says Actress-Bridge Expert

By CLAIRBORNE FOSTER
NEW YORK, Sept. 21. (AP)—Those players who cannot spend the time to become experts are the principal beneficiaries of the simplified system of bidding contract bridge which was adopted at the first general convention of bridge teachers in New York.

It is really a combination system, the best features of a number of well known systems being utilized in these new rules which should remove many obstacles for infrequent players.

First known as the "universal," it is now called the "official" system, being sponsored by nearly all well known bridge teachers with the exception of Ely Culbertson.

The changes brought about in this new system are not complex. Under its rules, a one bid shows two and one-half tricks. A two bid shows a stronger hand of three and one-half to four and one-half tricks. A two bid is not a demand bid, but requirements for a partner helping are considerably less.

A three bid is a demand bid and the partner must respond. This means a hand that is probably a game hand with practically no assistance from the partner.

Heretofore, under old systems, such as Cavendish, a two bid is the stronger bid. This is changed under the "official" system. A two bid is stronger than a one bid, and a three bid is stronger than a two bid, and a three bid is the only one that is a demand bid.

An optional provision of this system is an artificial two-club game demand bid made only as an original bid.

The popularity of this new system, of course, remains contingent upon its fast spreading introduction in ridge tournaments.

There is little doubt but that it is welcome to the novice player who has not had the opportunity to learn the more subtle points of the game.

The new simplified system of bidding contract bridge is especially helpful to persons who play infrequently, asserts Clairborne Foster (above), actress and bridge expert.

Texas Topics

AUSTIN, Sept. 28.—Heavy penalties were proposed for any doctor, surgeon, masseur, optometrist or other practitioner's employing persons or agents to solicit business for them in a bill introduced in the Texas house by Rep. Sarah T. Hughes, Dallas.

The bill specifies it shall apply to all those who practice the art of healing with or without medicine. Penalties of $100 to $500 for each offense are provided, with the condition that each payment or reward or agreement to pay a solicitor shall be a separate offense.

This bill contains a provision that it shall not be construed to prohibit any such practitioner from publishing advertisements in newspapers, or from advertising by handbills and having the handbills distributed.

Startling Debut

Billy Howell, 19, of Richmond, Va., provided one of the most surprising upsets in the National Amateur golf tourney when he nicked Johnny Goodman, 2 and 1. It is Howell's first national tourney.

It has been authoritatively said that Gov. Sterling advised house members to "stick by their guns" in a fight for either cutting state appropriations or increasing revenues.

A group of house members foresaw that the revenue-raising session expected for early next year may be merged into the present session and another to come immediately after, since Gov. Sterling used such vigorous language in placing the responsibility upon the senate for killing the budget reductions after twice petitioning him to let it cut the bills.

Increase of the oil tax to a 2-cent minimum, or a base of 1¢ per barrel value under the 2 per cent production tax, and raising the sulphur tax from 75 cents to $1 a ton were predicted as tax bills quickly to be enacted, if the subject is opened up.

"The highway commission could not let another contract, if the Brooks bill were enacted," officials of the highway department said.

The Brooks bill, diverting about $7,000,000 a year to assuming county and district road bonds, has been passed by the house; but had little or no chance of consideration in the senate. It would be vetoed if sent to Gov. Sterling's desk, members felt sure.

Mrs. Lee J. Roundtree is expecting extensive support for her bill to save the people of Texas a levy of $330,000 in January for the useless but compulsory payments for car headlight certificates before automobiles can be registered for the new year. About 100 people in Texas are being supported as headlight supervisors in counties, and little of the revenue from this source goes to any of the counties, it has been pointed out.

Under The Dome

By The Political Analyst
Gov. Sterling's active interest has been enlisted in the state's share of "hidden oil" of the East Texas field and the loss the state is meeting by reason of failure to pay the production taxes on the oil. Gov. Sterling has asked the legislature to order an audit of all the state's royalty and oil tax accounts, dealing with the payments made by producers.

The executive has been told by state officials who visited the East Texas field that the farmers of the section have failed in many instances to collect any royalties, that accountings have been made fraudulently, that production taxes have not been reported correctly to the state, and that large sums are still due the state.

The clamor of the royalty owners caused the state to join hands in trying to check the actual production of oil by the companies who operated while the field was running wild. Already Compt. George H. Sheppard has collected a third of a million dollars of unreported taxes.

The audit will be a tremendous job, but Gov. Sterling and Mr. Sheppard believe it will pay for itself and bring the state much money besides. Incidentally, it will help Texas citizens in getting what is due them in many instances.

A permanent policy of making 65 cents, rather than 77 cents, the limit of state taxes was embodied in the tax-limit which has been passed by the legislature. The bill cannot now apply to the rate for 1922, but will take control of the rate fixed next year for 1933, and the rates of all future years, until changed by legislative act.

The difference in tax amounts to that between $30,800,000, theoretically collectible under the constitutional limit, and the maximum of $27,600,000 under the new statutory limit.

When Gov. Sterling left Austin over Friday and Saturday he had not disposed of the peddler tax repeal bill, that had been on his desk several days.

Fixing of adjournment for Tuesday brought this bill under the "final 10-day" provision, and gave Gov. Sterling 20 days after adjournment in which to dispose finally of it by approval or veto.

House members were uncertain what he will do about it.

Evidence of the merit of Commr. Cone Johnson's suggestion that the state should adopt a policy of having its highway commission serve full time was given in the four-day September meeting of the commission.

Over 40 delegations were heard, contracts were let for more than $3,000,000 of construction; maintenance allotments of $1,563,000

Troops Guard Effort To Reach Vast Treasure

By ARTHUR CONSTANTINE
MEXICO CITY.—Golden dreams of millions in buried treasure, watched over by ghosts of daring bandits who spilled the blood of Spaniards to seize it, became a reality for an American and his Canadian partner.

The intrepid treasure hunters, S. Mike Jarman of Houston, Texas, and Charles E. Pouliot of Quebec, have completed preparations to blast open the deep caves in the heart of Mexico where glittering loot is believed to have rested since 1810.

Two hundred troops cordoned the spot of the expected treasure location in the Las Cruces mountains near Toluca, some 30 miles from Mexico City, to safeguard the interests of the government—which by law receives a certain share of all treasure found in the country.

Historical data unearthed by the treasure hunters placed the monetary value of the hidden loot at approximately $9,000,000. It is supposed to consist chiefly of melted gold and silver bars, valued church ornaments, jewels and the one-famed statue of the Virgin of Guanajuato. This image, three feet high and of solid gold, is thickly studded with diamonds.

The enticing golden pile was sealed into the underground caves by Mexico's ribald and ruthless bandits, Pedro El Negro, who with his ruffians in 1810 forsook open highway pillage and murder when he heard the battlecry for Independence sounded by Father Hidalgo.

The story goes, they stored their loot in underground caves near Toluca, ordered six stone masons to build up the entrance and when the job was almost done killed them and threw the bodies inside. They sealed the final breach themselves and drew up document in blood swearing none would reveal the location until Mexico was free.

In subsequent years swarthy Pedro El Negro and his entire band were gradually wiped out by the Spaniards, but the King's soldiers overlooked the fact that he had a son. The latter knew of the treasure, but protracted Spanish rule refrained him from revealing its location.

The only individual to whom he breathed a word of it was a Mexican captain, Vicente Reyes, who saved his life in the terrific battle at Queretaro where Emperor Maximilian was routed and executed. Young Pedro El Negro was later killed in a knife duel, but before dying passed the blood pact to Captain Reyes.

And so the old Mexican died, leaving to the Canadian all the hidden wealth. In partnership with his American friend, they labored for six weeks to clear the debris and prepare the caves for opening. Approximately fifty feet of accumulated dirt had to be removed to reach the first sign of the caves.

The biggest coaching school in the United States this year was held at the Texas Technological College at Lubbock the first part of August, with three hundred coaches in attendance.

$225,000 is being spent on paving the twelve miles between Lubbock and the Lynn county line on state highway nine.

were made, and approximately 100 other orders, ranging from the preparation of plans on major projects, to federal designation of a highway from Pharr, Tex., to the Canadian border, and minimum wages for all workers on highway contracts.

The department is well organized to keep from foundering under such a deluge of rush work. But no three commissioners, without giving the rest of their time voluntarily, and in the present case practically without pay, to investigations and inspection of the highways, could have any adequate conception of the matters with which they deal.

Violent language and apparently bitter feeling in legislative debate seems to be a safely value and little else. Members will fight rough and tumble over one matter, and then serenely help one another's efforts in the next thing that comes along.

There is a protective element in it. If a member really gets mad at somebody and obstructs the other fellow by prisms of order or objections, he is inviting disaster: injury to his own bill; so that the word battles go on, mild name-calling, and severe criticisms of actions and bills as a common way, but there have been few cases of actual deep enmity, or hostilities lasting longer than a single measure. This is probably well. A spirit of impersonality, and of refusing to sacrifice everything else in the interest of a single bill, however important, seems necessary to preserving the usefulness and success of a lawmaker.

The game department wants authority, by constitutional amendment, to itself fix bag limits and open seasons on game, and to have authority to revise these when found desirable. Now the legislature has to fix the seasons and limits; and the state is a patchwork of differing and confusing seasons. As a starter, the department has refused to support any bills creating a special zone.

Instructive Programs To Mark Meetings Of City Federation Through Year

Brief, Concise Topics Of Interest To Active Women Constitute Proposed Year's Work, Says President

The City Federation announces a radical departure from former programs in those scheduled for the coming year. The program committee, of which Mrs. O. L. Thomas is chairman, assisted by Mrs. R. Homer McNew and Mrs. Seth H. Parsons, has planned informative programs to cover the various activities in which civic-minded and mentally-alert women are now interested.

The unusual feature about the programs is that they will be short, confined, in most cases, to thirty minutes and very instructive. The entire meeting will seldom take longer than an hour, says the president, Mrs. Joye Fisher.

The October program will relate to the proposed County Federation. Mrs. Ches Anderson, a charming and interesting speaker will give the point of view of Howard County women. Mrs. C. P. Cary, of Colorado has promised to come over and tell what the Mitchell County Federation has done. It is one of the liveliest in the state and has accomplished a great deal. With her will come her secretary, The Davis Mountain Federation, another live group, will send an account of its activities.

The November program will deal with Social Service and Americanization. Mrs. C. C. Carter, well-known social service worker, will present local phases of this work with which she is in touch. In the same day, Mrs. O. A. Grief, wife of the New Salvation Army ensign stationed here, will tell the Federation what it can do to help the Salvation Army in its charitable work.

Interior Decoration
In December Mrs. James Schmidley will have sole charge of the program with an arts and craft number, related particularly to problems of home decoration.

"Texas Laws With Which All Women Should Be Familiar" will be the topic which Mrs. Gariand Woodward will present at the January meeting, one of the most enlightening of the year. Mrs. Fox Stripling will tell of laws now before the Texas Legislature which women should support and should not support.

Because this coming February 22 marks the bi-centennial of the birthday of George Washington the production of the 1931 wheat which will be observed all over the nation, the Federation will, at ty-seven million bushels.

Jane Tinsley Wins First Place In Bible Verse Drill

Jane Tinsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Tinsley, won first place in the Associational Sword Drill at Stanton Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Baptist Church. Mary Pond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pond, won second place; and Orline Hughes, daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Hughes, won third place.

The first two winners will go to the state meeting in Waco, about Thanksgiving and compete there. If they win they will be given a free trip to Atlanta to the Southwide Conference of Young People, at which all the states will compete. The Sword Drill requires familiarity with the Bible. The winner is the one who can find the most references (Book, chapter and verse) in the shortest length of time.

Revival services are being held everyday this week at the First Baptist Church. The morning services are at 10 o'clock and the evening services at 8 o'clock. The Rev. R. E. Day is doing the preaching, assisted by Joe Trussell, of Brownwood, as singer and Mrs. Bruce Frazier as pianist.

Joe Allen Davidson is sick and has been taken back to a hospital.

Efficiency Keynote Of Homemaking

Lecturer At Herald Cooking School Shows Way To Recreation

A woman's mission as a home maker is not fulfilled when she merely sees that her family is well fed and well clothed.

Her higher duty is concerned also with her children's recreation, so believes Myra Oliver Dougan, nationally known home economist expert who is in Big Spring to open her free cooking school for women readers of the Herald in the Settles Hotel Ballroom at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"From earliest childhood our treasured recollections of our parents are those when they forgot their grownup cares and played with us," said Mrs. Dougan. "This play obligation on the part of the mother does not end when the children start to school."

"The modern home maker is realizing that her cooking and other household duties must be efficiently done so that she has free hours for recreation."

The privilege of being a home maker is a woman's greatest privilege, according to Mrs. Dougan, who added that the profession is one which should be taken as seriously as any man's profession. "The real home maker," she stated, "is one who keeps pace with the newest trends in her profession and takes as much care in planning her meals to meet the needs of each member of her family as the doctor or lawyer would take with his clients."

"The kitchen is a laboratory wherein the homemaker uses scientific methods in preparing meals to preserve the health of her family."

Mrs. Dougan expressed eagerness to become acquainted with women of Big Spring who will attend the Herald free cooking school, and hopes to do this through informal chats with them following her lectures.

Mrs. Joye Fisher Entertains With Charming Party

Mrs. Joye Fisher entertained at bridge Saturday afternoon honoring Miss Sarah Elkin, of Chicago, who is visiting her and her sister, Mrs. Bernard Fisher.

The tables were spread for a delicious two-course luncheon when the guests entered. Summer shades of yellow, green and blue were effectively carried out in the party accessories, including the fans which were favors and tallies.

The honor guest was presented with two dainty lace handkerchiefs. Mrs. Bob Parks, who made a high score for the evening, was present-

New Premium Lists For Women, Girls In County Fair

Prizes and premiums for the coming Howard County Fair which will commence Thursday, have been revised, with more additions in each division. This has necessarily reduced the premiums somewhat since the amount was not increased. Twice as many canned products will be included in each list under the new revisions.

The new premiums will be as follows: girls and women's canned products, and all cooked foods will be 50 cents for first prize and 25 cents for second prize. There will be a ribbon for third prize.

The first prize for American cheese will be $1 and second, 50 cents. The first prize for braided-hemp rugs will be $1.25 and second prize 75 cents.

The prizes for pillow slips and dresser scarves will be ribbons.

In the clothing entries in both women's and girls' departments the first prize will be $1 and the second 50 cents.

ed with an attractive brown belt.

The guests were Misses Parks, H. A. Stegner, Horace Reagan, Seth H. Parsons, Julius Eckhaus, Bernard Fisher; Misses Agnes Currie, Jena Jordan, Clara Pool, Eleanor Antley, Marie Schlesinger.

Myra Oliver Dougan Says:

"For the second time, I chose The Big Spring Laundry to do my personal laundry because of their high quality work."

After all, it is the quality of work done by the laundry that really counts. Clean smelling, white clothes and linen add much to the cheerfulness of the home and the person.

A Unique West Texas Garden

Using Local Materials Nat Shick Is Turning A Small Back Yard Into Beauty Spot

Nat Shick has provided an unusual lullaby for his neighbors this summer—one that has been hitherto unheard during such dry summer weather as this town has just been through. The singer of this lullaby is a bull frog which makes its home in Mr. Shick's fishpond.

As unique as a West Texas bullfrog is the fishpond. If the turtles and the goldfish could speak they would tell every visitor who peeks into the pool what an ideal spot it is, especially for infant turtles and fishes.

Mr. Shick built the pool with irregular sides and a sloping bottom and imbedded into the concrete large porous stones. The baby fish can splash around at the sides in depths to suit themselves, or hide in the holes of the rock.

Chinese Pagoda Spring
The clearest rock formation is at one end where the water enters the pool, flowing down over layers of rock slightly resembling a Chinese pagoda, and giving the effect of a spring. The gentle trickle is very effective. At the foot of this rock is a toy negro with a fishing pole; at the other end a mermaid. In the pool grow various water plants, reeds, hyacinth and two kinds of water lilies. A sand crane stands beside and a willow tree hangs over it.

It is surprising how many inhabitants that small pool has. There are eight goldfish, fat healthy fellows of the Comet and American fantail species. The bullfrog grew from a tadpole thrown into the pool last May. There are Moss-back turtles, which every dry-lander ought to see; they are the funniest fellows imaginable swimming around with moss grown to their backs that looks like fur. There are turtles of all sizes and ages and also snails, whose eggs and babies furnish food for the goldfish; in spite of the greedy fish there are usually, Mr. Shick says, about 50 snails in the pool.

The rocks, in addition to being porous, are overhanging and have holes in them which look like alluring caves to the pool-dwellers. Under these rocks and in the various depths of water they sport and play and feel as perfectly at home as though they lived in a nice wet country.

Cottonwood Chair
The fishpond is only one of the interesting things in Mr. Shick's garden. He has made a very comfortable arm chair from the trunk of cottonwood, whose three limbs grew in such a manner that they could be utilized as arms and the back. A limb on the ground makes a foot rest. Mr. Shick has an idea in mind for the remainder of the cottonwood; but that will be news for a later date.

The old well and the old oaken bucket—the moss-covered bucket that hung in the well—are constantly exciting the interest of people, because such things are getting scarce. Mr. Shick hunted sometime before he found a real oaken bucket; now it usually hangs just above his cleverly-constructed well, made from an old barrel buried in the ground and built up with stones. Besides the bucket there is a real gourd-dipper.

Weather Vane
There are also other interesting things in that small back yard. There is a weather-vane made from an automobile fan running on ball bearings with a "rudder" built by Mr. Shick. There is a bird bath carved by Old Mother Nature herself. She hollowed it out of a stone, shaping it like a keyhole with one end deeper than the other. Mr. Shick found the stone and immediately saw its possibilities—and do the birds like it and how!

There are all sorts of odd benches. Yet everything in the garden, except the old oaken bucket, came from West Texas and belongs especially to this section of the country. And the back yard is small, only 35 by 50 feet.

The total amount spent on the garden, aside from water bills, said Mr. Shick was $4.50. The rate of evaporation of the fishpond is an inch a day. It is never drained; each morning Mr. Shick pours into it two or three gallons.

Personally Speaking

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Robbins have returned from a ten-day stay in Ruidosa where they went to cure Mr. Robbins' hay fever. The cure was successful, said Mrs. Robbins, and they had a very good time, to boot.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Kennikett, of San Angelo spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Bugg, Mrs. Kennikett is Mrs. Bugg's aunt.

L. L. Bugg has gone to Portales, N.M., to be gone two or three days.

Bob Hoffman, Denton, member of the board of C. I. A., was greatly distressed at the danger of cutting salaries of the educational institutions. Dallas lawmakers said the amendment protects marketability of $1,000,000 of refunding securities.

does not receive that much. It gets slightly over 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, net.

This is caused by provision in the franchise that the city shall read the gas meters, collecting 25 cents per meter per month, and shall also collect three per cent of the gross receipts of the gas company each month.

Next spring the gross receipts tax will advance to five per cent of the gross.

The city's income from this source for this fiscal year, ending April 31, 1932, is estimated at $8,800.

When the city budget for the year was made up it was based on expectation of receiving this item from the gas company.

Even the casual observer can see that negotiations with the gas company will center around this gross receipts tax and meter fee.

It should be noted that the gross receipts tax paid to the city treasury forms an avenue for indirect taxation on a number of residents of the city who own no real estate and otherwise would pay no taxes to the city.

Suspension

ever, that a combination of circumstances at home and abroad, some of which were entirely beyond England's control, had made her position untenable.

Possible Developments

"The permanent significance of the suspension of gold payments has naturally been a matter of keen interest. How long the measure will be kept in force and at what rate the pound sterling will eventually be stabilized in terms of gold are the questions most frequently asked in this connection. It is much too early to hazard any opinion on either of these points. The suspension act is, by its terms, to remain in force for a period of six months but it can be repealed at any time or can be extended at the date of its expiration. It is difficult to conceive of any British government consenting to the permanent abandonment of the gold standard. Both this step and the revaluation of the pound sterling at a lower gold parity have been advocated in England by some economists and industrial leaders. Neither project, however, has ever received any countenance from the government or from the higher bank officials. To anyone who is at all familiar with the traditional policies of British finance and with the tremendous struggle that has been made to preserve the integrity of the monetary system during the last decade, it must be clear that nothing but the most weighty considerations would induce Great Britain to contemplate any step that would involve the writing down of her financial obligations.

"As far as the indebtedness of Great Britain to the rest of the world is concerned, a devaluation of the pound sterling would have a comparatively little effect. England is still a creditor, not a debtor, nation. Her public debt is held at home, except for the war debt to the United States government and the recent bank credits, which are payable in foreign currencies and thus are not subject to the effects of fluctuations in sterling exchange. Bank deposits and short-term investments of foreigners would be chiefly affected. American holdings of stocks and bonds payable in sterling are believed to be very small.

Further Recession
"With European affairs still in such an unsettled state, it is not surprising that domestic trade has failed to show any tangible signs of improvement. Most branches of industrial and commercial activity thus far have not responded to the stimulating influences usually experienced at this time of year and in some of the directions where expansion has been noted, there is little encouragement for the belief that it reflects anything but purely seasonal forces at work. Comparatively favorable conditions exist in some lines of retail trade and in a few industries producing necessary consumers' goods. These conditions, however, have not yet exerted any visible quickening effect on other industries. The unmistakable downward trend of the business activity last month is shown by the decline of 4.5 points in the index of the Guaranty Trust Company. Recent weekly reports covering conditions since the beginning of this month indicate that activity in most lines has declined further.

"Wholesale commodity prices, as measured by the monthly index of the Guaranty Trust Company, reached a new low level for the depression this month, although the current figure is only fractionally below that reported three months ago. On the whole, as far as commodity prices are concerned, recent developments do not necessarily exclude the hope that a point of approximate stability may have been reached. Organized commodity exchanges were affected to some extent by the news of gold suspension, though not so sharply as might have been expected. The recent weakness may prove to have been merely a temporary sentimental reaction, rather than a true revision of the ideas of traders in the light of developments abroad.

"The announcement of wage and salary reductions by the United States Steel Corporation and other important companies marks what many have regarded as an inevitable step in the general economic readjustment of prices and values. Industrial leaders have regretted the apparent approach of such a necessity and postponed action as long as seemed possible. With the great reductions in the wages of capital and the lowered costs of living through lower commodity prices, wage readjustments have been forced as part of the general situation. That wages would maintain a position in opposition to the general trends was not logically conceivable; and the meeting of this issue by these major industries, which had already been met by a number of lesser businesses, is deemed by many students to mark one of the concluding phases of the depression, as well as a necessary preliminary to recovery.

"It seems clear that any marked improvement in business will have to await a return of confidence in conditions abroad. The pall of fear that now enshrouds the world must be lifted before normal constructive forces can be effective. That may come at any time, or by slow degrees. It lies in the realm of psychology, rather than economics, and is hardly subject to analysis.

"In any event, it will not be possible to know what the readjustment of business to new conditions may be or what volume of seasonal improvement may be realized before the latter part of October. Present indications cannot be read with any assurance as to accuracy."

Five South Plains Towns Receive 5-Cent Reduction In Cotton Rate

Seriously Ill

Jack Pickford, brother of Mary Pickford, was seriously ill at his home in Hollywood.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 28.—Five cotton shipping towns of the Texas plains were granted a five-cent reduction in rates, and two others a two-cent reduction by the railroad commission Friday in four cotton rate complaints, including one by M. H. Reed and company of Austin. The towns were on the border line between the 31 and the 36-cent zones of shipping to Houston, Galveston and Texas City. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce and others joined in some of the petitions.

The five-cent reductions were granted Lamesa, Littlefield, Floydada, Brownfield and Crosbyton. They were at an average of less than one mile over the 360-mile zone limit.

The towns of Plainview, 11 miles over, and Lockney, 10.6 miles outside the first zone, were granted a reduction to 35 cents.

The rates were made effective five days after publication, but not later than October 16.

owned such "full dress" apparel, or if they did it was saved for robes. Inspection of the granite base reveals a tablet inscribed to Charles H. Noyes, but no other information is given.

Charles H. Noyes was reared in Ballinger and on his father's ranch 30 miles from town. When he was graduated from the Ballinger high school in 1915, he was sent to the ranch to do his part as a cowboy.

A few months later, he was thrown by his pony and killed. His father, Gus Noyes, determined to erect a monument to Charles on a high bluff near the place where he was killed. He paid $5,000 to a sculptor to do the work. Later the people of Ballinger asked that the monument be placed in the courthouse square instead of the range where few persons would see it. Noyes agreed and the statue was unveiled at a ceremony in which the whole town participated.

Only Public Monument Erected To Cowboy Stands At Ballinger

BALLINGER, Texas, Sept. 28.—Declared to be the only public monument erected to a cowboy, the statue on the courthouse lawn here is a source of curiosity to tourists and visitors.

The monument is a life-size bronze figure of a tall, brawny western youth in bo-tis, spurs and "ten-gallon" hat, standing beside his pony. He wears no traditional chaps and gun—few of the cowboys in this part of the state ever

Insists English Girls Do Have A Sense Of Humor

LONDON (INS)—The American girl is all very well in her place, but Joseph Hergesheimer the writer, gives her too prominent a place in the sun. So thinks the Englishwoman the Hon. Mrs. James Rodney, writing in the Continental edition of "The Daily Mail."

"It seems to be going a little far when the writer says that only the American girl has a sense of humor," declares Mrs. Rodney, for I have heard more than one French girl laugh at her clumsy American admirer.

"I know what he means when he says only American girls understand men. Indeed they do, because most of them have already been deceived before they are twenty, and know enough never to take a fellow seriously until he has not only "popped" the question but produced the ring.

"And that's not all. It must be publicly announced and the wedding fixed."

Mrs. Rodney agrees that it takes a grand sense of humor and a high state of intelligence to cope with all this.

She also agrees with him about the American girl's good figure, but adds that many Europeans would say she was too slim and find the more feminine curves of their own Italian, French, Spanish or German girls more to their liking. Figure is all a question of taste, she believes.

"There is no doubt of the fineness of the legs of most Americans," she admits, "they are shapely, with trim ankles and pretty feet, and here I am wholeheartedly with Mr. Hergesheimer, though I have seen some very beautiful legs in well-fitting shoes in England.

"We are sorry that a man who is observant enough to portray life on the stage and in books should have gone home empty-handed. I know so many charming girls who might have shown him quite dainty figures, well-shaped calves, farsighted intelligence and a true sense of humor!"

Mrs. W. J. Miller of El Paso is visiting her daughters Mesdames V. Van Gieson and J. B. Young.

Valley Vegetable Acreage Is Stable

SAN BENTO, Texas, Sept. 28 (AP)—In spite of general predictions, the Valley will have about the same acreage of vegetables during the season just starting as it had last year, in the opinion of Davis Wade of this city, well known produce dealer.

Cuts from 25 to 50 per cent in acreage have been predicted by various persons.

Wade, however, said his investigation indicates there will be fully as large an acreage this season as last.

"As to the price and the money return, that is problematical," he said.

"Much depends, of course, on the weather conditions here and elsewhere. On the whole, however, the crop will probably not bring a high price, unless there are extraordinary conditions elsewhere."

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Sept. 28 (AP)—Oral arguments before the interstate commerce commission on the application of the Abilene and Southern to extend from Ballinger to San Angelo will be heard in November or December, according to officials of the San Angelo Board of City Development. The local organization has its brief ready for submission and no rebuttal brief will be permitted. The arguments will be before the commission and not before the examiner, as previously was done when it was recommended that the road be allowed.
