The Christian's Pattern

—Ted Dotts

The following excerpt is copied from the first book published by American Methodists in 1784. The book is an edition of Thomas A. Kempis' "The Imitation of Christ". It is a devotional book which is to say that it should be read slowly with much time for thought. The excerpt below was entitled: "Of The Usefulness of Adversity."

1. It is good that we have sometimes troubles and crosses; for they often make a man enter into himself, and consider that he ought not to place his trust in any worldly thing.

It is good that we sometimes be contradicted; and that men think ill of us, and this, although we do and intend well.

For then we more diligently seek God for our inward witness, when outwardly we are condemned by men.

2. Wherefore a man should settle himself so fully in God, that he need not seek comforts of men.

When a man is afflicted, tempted, or troubled with evil thoughts; then he understandeth better the great need he hath of God.

3. So long as we live in this world, we cannot be without temptation.

Hence it is written in Job, The Life of man is a warfare upon earth.

Every one, therefore, ought to take care as to his own temptations, and to watch in prayer, lest he be deceived by the devil: who never sleepeth, but goeth about seeking whom he may devour.

4. Temptations are often very profitable to men, though they be troublesome and grievous; for in them a man is humbled, purified, and instructed.

All the saints have passed through, and profited by, many tribulations, and temptations:

And they that could not bear temptations, became heprobates and fell away.

5. There is no man that is altogether secure from temptations, while he liveth.

When one temptation goeth away, another cometh; and we shall ever have something to suffer.

Many seek to fly temptations, and fall more grievously into them.

By flight alone we cannot overcome, but by patience and humility we conquer all our enemies.

Nola Knows

By Nola White

Dear Nola - My parents told me not to marry Rod, but I did anyway. They were right. He was a no-good bum who ran off with another woman and left me with two babies. I came back home and, believe me, I've paid dearly for this mistake, but my parents won't try to help me forget it. They're always throwing it up to me and show no sign of love, affection, or forgiveness. They think my sister who has a happy marriage is better than I am. I know I made a mistake, but should they punish me forever?

Whipping-boy

Dear Whipping - No, they shouldn't, and you're not very bright to sit around and take it. I know it will be hard for a woman with two children to get out and take care of herself and them, but if you have any backbone at all, that's what you should do. In most cities, there are excellent day-care centers designed to help people like you. Get yourself a job, plan for the care of the children, and move out. You'll be happier, your sick, sick parents will have to find another whipping boy, and your children will be much better off. Incidentally, your ex-husband can be made to support his children. See your lawyer.

Dear Nola - A man in my office, 39, dated me several times but hasn't asked me out for about 6 weeks. I'd really like to go with him but how can I get him to ask me again? He doesn't want to marry, but I have a good job and don't want to either. I just want his companionship.

Sexetary

Dear Sexetary - You scared him off, and the way you signed your letter tells me how. Wipe off the make-up, put on a Mother Hubbard and try again. He may like you fine, but I imagine he resents the heat treatment.

Dear Nola - My son has given a 17 year old girl a ring. This girl has had 7 major operations and I don't think she's a very good bargain in a wife. Her mither acts like she'd be tickled to death to marry her off and get out from all those medical expenses. I've told my son if he marries her not to expect me at the wedding. Don't you think I'm right?

Mother

Dear Mother - You're going to be the loneliest 'right' person in the country. Maybe it's not a wise choice, but you've picked the surest way I know to force your son to go through with it. If he marries this girl, give him your blessings and a good insurance policy.

Dear Nola - My girl friend and I are both sophomores in college, and we're serious enough that she may be a Mrs. before either of us is a B.A. What worries me is that she is smart and makes good grades without half trying. I study like mad, and feel I am lucky if I make a 'C'. Apparently this doesn't worry her, but I'm afraid she'll grow to resent being married to a dumb clod who can dance and play football, but can't spell his way out of the alphabet. What do you think of our prospects?

Dallas Dunce

Dear Dunce - If you can play football, don't worry about grades. Marry the girl and go help the Cowboys.
