Need for feedlot efficiency keynote of beef conference

Major advances in feedlot nutrition may be an entity of the past with future efforts directed toward the evaluation of existing practices and nutrient requirements and a search for new additives for more efficient beef production, according to Dr. R. Hollis Klett. superintendent of the Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo.

Klett addressed the first Texas Beef Conference meeting in the Amarillo Civic Center Friday. The conference, sponsored by Texas Tech University. the Agricultural Extension Service. Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Texas Cattle Feeders' Association and West Texas State University, brought together researchers, educators, legislators, consumer affairs specialists and cattlemen for discussions of the status and trends in the beef industry

Klett discussed energy-fiberprotein relationships in feedlot rations. Klett said the removal of diethylstilbestrol (DES), a synthetic hormone, from cattle feeding by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has provided the impetus for studies toward practices such as the removal of protein at defined stages of finishing or manipulation of feed-fiber and energy sources to improve efficiency of feed utilization.

Klett explained that DES is a synthetic hormone which caused steers to produce more muscle and less fat while being finished out in feedlots. A desirable replacement additive which produces the same effects in cattle is being searched for.

He emphasized the high cost of feed cattle and feed ingredients coupled with the price ceiling placed on beef have made efficiency of production the key to a profitable feeding program.

Other presentations at the beef conference included discussions of cattle death losses on the high plains, handling light calves on arrival, new cattle disease research, and antibiotics. hormones and substitutes.

A session of the conference devoted to the consumers concern about beef was presented by Virginia Knauer, special assistant to the president for consumer affairs, with responses by Tom Herrick, president of the Texas Cattle Feeders' Association, and Bill Donnell president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association, Dr. Anson R Bertrand, dean of the Texas Tech University College of Agricultural Sciences, presided over the consumers concern

Fryer price

Fryers will wear attractive price tags soon, if they follow recent reports of adequate supplies. Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt said this week.

The consumer marketing specialist. Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Texas A&M University, added that whole fryers make a better buy than parts. "Frozen turkeys are available in most meat departments with some markets featuring parts at prices consumers can't afford to ignore.

"There are fewer specials on beef and pork, but they are worth considering." the specialist remarked.

Best pork values at this time generally include shoulder roasts and steaks, end cut lein roasts and pork chops, hams, picnics and pork liver. Beef chuck cuts, ground beef, round steaks and beef liver make generally more economical choices in that department. Turning to fruit and vegetable counters. Mrs. Clyatt mentioned strawberries as one of the more expensive "first of the season" items, adding that prices will drop as supply increases. Pineapple--at its peak this month--will follow the same pattern

Goodwill

National Goodwill Week will be observed May 6-12. The observance is intended to make the public aware of Goodwill Industries of America, one of the nation's outstanding voluntary. non-profit organizations dedicated to the rehabilitation of handicapped men and women. A severely-handicapped person often suffers from psychological blocks making it impossible to seek competition in the world on a practical basis. The training centers of Goodwill Industry are giving handicapped people an opportunity to learn how to put their abilities to productive use. The training gives hope to the handicapped, a sense of achievement and return to self-productive life. Goodwill Industries is well deserving of the recognition for work and services they provide in the community and across the nation. It is this type of voluntary service that helps make our nation great.

Mariner will seek Mercury clues in '74

NASA will attempt the first exploration of Mercury in March, 1974, when the Mariner spacecraft will come within 635 miles of the planet.

The television cameras will take pictures and six other scientific experiments will send back information to earth to try to answer such questions as what is the shape of the planet and why does it rotate so slowly, turning only once every 59 days.

Construction begins on new Hilton Inn

Construction of Lubbock's new Hilton Inn began at 10:30 a.m. today with ground breaking ceremonies at 6th St. and Ave. Q. site of the first major private building relevant to the Memorial Civic Center complex.

Here for the event was Eric Hilton, executive vice president of Hilton Hotels, Houston. Helping officially break ground was Mayor Morris Turner. Chamber of Commerce President A.C. Verner, former Gov. Preston Smith and owners Ken Flagg and Coby Briehn, also general manager.

The six-story French Colonial luxury hotel will contain 150 units of rooms, suites and cabanas with 7 meeting rooms seating 30 to 300 persons, all within 7 levels including the basement. Completion is scheduled in 12

Basic construction of the building will be re-inforced masonry, precast and prestressed concrete with the newest possible mechanical features for safety and convenience. Design for the new luxury hotel was created by architects Whitaker and Hall. C.B. Thompson is the builder.

Lake Spence caught an additional five feet of water last week. Heavy rains fell on the upper Colorado River watershed. Lake Spence receives its major source of water from the Colorado. Catfishermen are setting their lines in the river region of the lake and are baiting with cut bait and shrimp. Channel catfish have made up the major portion of their stringers, but some fairsized vellows have also been Stripers don't seem to be hampered by the sudden rise in water level. Some 'salties' in the eight-pound class have been caught by trotliners who baited with minnows.

Bait casters are taking them in deep water with spoons and deep running lures. Like catfish, the stripers appear to be heading to the flowing water.
