

Tax On Almost Every Purchase Or Service In O'Daniel Bill

AUSTIN, Jan. 19 (AP)—You housewives will have to pay a little more for flour and bacon and you men a bit more for tobacco if Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel pays his pensions by the transactions tax urged on the Legislature yesterday in his first message.

Of course, those are not the only things that would cost you more. A study of the O'Daniel bill indicates there would be a tax on almost every purchase of goods or services.

You would be assured in return that after you get to be 65 years old you will have an income of $30 a month, provided the state does not have to supply more than $15 of that amount.

The transactions tax surprise which O'Daniel sprung may never become law. Fifty-one of the 150 Texas house members or 11 of the 21 senators could block it. A majority of the qualified voters could kill it.

For you who own property other than small homes or farms, the tax would not be entirely an added burden. You would be relieved of the state ad valorem tax, now amounting to 49 cents on the $100 valuation. Homesteads up to $1,000 assessed valuation already are exempt from that levy.

If you manage to acquire property or pensions which will give you an income of $30 a month after you reach 65, you will get only $19 a month more under the O'Daniel plan. However, your wife, if she arranges for no old age security, will receive $30.

The proposal undoubtedly will be subjected to long study and may be amended.

The tax rate is only 1.6 per cent but that perhaps does not mean the cost of products would be boosted only 1.6 per cent. Suppose, for example, you bought a sack of Hillbilly flour.

There would be a 1.6 per cent levy on the manufacturer's sale to the O'Daniel Distributing company, another 1.6 per cent on the amount on the sale to the retailer and the third tax of 1.6 per cent when it passed into your hands.

Each of you would have to carry several tokens in your pocket in order to make small purchases. If you bought a soft drink or a package of chewing gum you would need one of the smallest denominations, .16 of one cent. If you bought a 12-cent bottle of beer you would need one of larger denominations. There would be an impact on every purchase, no matter how small.

O'Daniel's bill indicated he believed a considerable saving could be realized in distributing the money among the old folks. He proposed that only $100,000 a year be spent by the state old age pension organization. District pension offices would be abolished. County judges would examine the applicants and be paid $500 to $1,000 additional for that service. In each county, there would be a public record of all pension recipients.

Each person selling an article, whether he be manufacturer, wholesaler, or retailer, would be forced to affix stamps showing the tax had been paid. However, he would be expected to charge the buyer the amount of the tax. The state comptroller would be allowed $50,000 a year to collect the levy.

If you subscribe to a newspaper you will have to pay an additional 1.6 per cent for old age pensions. If you buy a want ad you will be required to fork over an additional 1.6 per cent.

A person asking to put you on the old age pension rolls would be prohibited from charging a fee of more than $10. If you have an unmarried son making $300 a month, that won't keep you and your wife from drawing pensions because that is not your income.

You persons under 65 get a break in this—neither your county, city, or school district can levy a similar transactions tax.

Veteran governmental students here said O'Daniel's taxing plan, if accepted, would be the first thing of its kind in the nation. There are general sales taxes, gross receipts taxes and gross income taxes, they said, but no transactions tax.

The plan can't apply to you unless a majority of you vote for it June 1. Even if you do, it won't go into effect until September 1.

GOP's Direct Hot Attack At Hopkins

Senate Debates Confirmation To Cabinet Position

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Senator Reed of Kansas opened a republican attack on Harry L. Hopkins in the senate today with an assertion the former WPA administrator had been appointed secretary of commerce to "remove him from the line of fire."

Reed's speech began debate on the Hopkins nomination, approved 13 to six yesterday by the senate commerce committee, with Chairman Bailey (D-NC) declining to vote and all republican committee members voting "no."

In a printed statement explaining that he again would refrain from voting when the roll was called in the senate on the nomination, Bailey declared that Hopkins, by making political speeches while he was WPA administrator, had set an example "which must be condemned by congress."

Most of the 96 senators were in their seats and the galleries were crowded as the white-haired Reed, making his maiden speech in the senate, bitterly assailed the political activity which he said had taken place within the WPA. Citing the report of the senate campaign expenditures committee's investigation of political coercion of WPA workers, Reed declared:

"I think we have reached the depths of political depravity when those cloaked with the power and authority may take from those who are on the borderline of destitution, pennies, dimes and dollars appropriated by congress out of the public treasury for the relief of misery and suffering."

"I do not charge that Mr. Hopkins ordered these things," Reed said. "I do not even charge that he was cognizant of all of these things. I do charge that these things could not have been done except with the general knowledge and therefore general consent of Mr. Hopkins."

Bailey emphasized his objection to a radio address Hopkins made in behalf of President Roosevelt's supreme court enlargement bill in 1937.

Bailey declared the former WPA chieftain had failed to do many things which might have been done to eliminate politics in the relief administration.

The North Carolinian added that "the intimation that the president approved" Hopkins' course "is a subject on which I will not dwell."

"The president," Bailey asserted, "declared against political use of the Works Progress Administration."

Salvation Army's Texas Division Chief To Speak Here Friday Night

Ranking Salvation Army officer in Texas and a man of prominence in other activities of the state—Brigadier William George Gilks—will be a guest in Big Spring Friday and will make a talk at the city auditorium Friday evening.

Arrangements went forward today by several groups to round up a large attendance at the Friday night affair—scheduled to start at 8 o'clock—when Brigadier Gilks will discuss Army activities, and will reveal, it has been reported, important plans concerning the Salvation Army's future operations in Big Spring. The Army officer—he is in charge of the Texas division, with headquarters at Dallas—is also chaplain for Texas department of the American Legion, and chairman of the state's parole board. Legion members here are expected to join in paying him honor, and public officials will be in contact with him. The Brigadier is expected to arrive here by car some time Friday.

Cal Boykin, president of the chamber of commerce, will preside at the auditorium session, and Brigadier Gilks will be welcomed on behalf of the city by City Manager E. V. Spence, and on behalf of the local Legion post by Commander R. E. McEwen. He will be introduced by Major L. W. Canning, in charge of the Army unit here.

Although he has been an Army officer for some 27 years, Brigadier Gilks is one of the organization's able and energetic leaders in Salvation Army and other civic and welfare activities. He has been in Texas for about three years, after a period of service in the Carolinas.

Fund Bill Is Cut Sharply

Committee Takes A Step In Govt. Economy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The house appropriations committee, supporting a congressional economy campaign, sheared $3,750,000 today from President Roosevelt's recommendations for the first deficiency appropriation bill.

In approving the proposed expenditures on a reduced scale, the committee for a second time backed up a subcommittee which started the economy drive by slicing $150,000,000 from the $875,000,000 the president asked for relief.

While the cut in the deficiency items was small in amount, committee men said it was significant of a trend against the administration's spending program.

The total cut was from $13,329,000 to $9,579,000.

The appropriations committee acted just before debate on the bill began on the house floor. Leaders said they expected to pass the measure tomorrow.

Emergency Bills Offered In The Legislature

Herald Austin Bureau

AUSTIN, Jan. 19—An emergency appropriation of $75,000 to start operation of the Big Spring hospital for the insane immediately was proposed to the legislature in identical bills introduced by Sen. G. H. Nelson of Lubbock and Rep. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo.

The appropriation would provide sufficient funds for maintenance and operation of the new hospital until Sept. 1, 1939, the beginning of the next fiscal year. For the two-year period beginning September 1, the state board of control has recommended an appropriation of $723,166 for the institution.

Under the Nelson-Hardeman emergency appropriation bill, $38,000 would be provided for salaries, while $72,500 would go for support, maintenance, and treatment purposes. Most of the remaining fund would be spent for equipment and supplies.

The immediate opening of the Big Spring hospital is of great importance not only to the people of West Texas but to the people of the entire state, Senator Nelson pointed out.

"It will permit the removal of many insane patients from jails and lessen the crowded conditions at other state insane asylums. Moreover, the completion of the hospital will save West Texans a great deal of transportation expense."

ANNUAL MEETING OF COUNTRY CLUB SLATED TONIGHT

AT AGE 14, FARNSWORTH HAD TELEVISION IDEA DEVELOPED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The stranger-than-fiction story of how a 14-year-old high school boy invented the basis for modern television "went into the records" of the monopoly investigating committee today.

The narrator was Philo T. Farnsworth of Philadelphia, who conceived and patented the first means of television broadcasting without use of moving parts.

Now in his early 30's, the farm boy who had his idea "fairly well developed" when he was 13 told the committee that television service would be available "to the American home before very long" and would be superior to that now provided in England and Germany. Farnsworth told how he obtained his first technical training at 12, when he was placed in charge of a farm lighting system in Idaho.

Within a year, he said, the rough idea for "electronic" television had taken shape in his mind.

In 1922, with only a "modest high school library" and a static machine in the high school physics laboratory to work with, Farnsworth continued his "day dream" first took shape as an actual invention.

A year later, the slight middle-aged man moved to Provo, Utah, where additional laboratory facilities enabled the inventor to complete what has become the present system of television.

Oklahomans Clash On Red River Dam Project

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 19 (AP)—Opposing forces in the Oklahoma state senate clashed today in a battle over the $50,000,000 Denison dam project, with the administration demanding passage of a resolution asking that preliminary work on the dam be halted.

W. O. Ray, Tishomingo senator and generalissimo of the forces arrayed against the big power and flood control project, predicted the resolution would rise through the senate just as it did the house.

Senator John MacDonald, Durant, leader of the group favoring the project said sentiment was about evenly divided and declared no resolution would stop work on it, anyway.

Ray said he would call up the resolution this afternoon, despite MacDonald's request that it be laid over until Monday when three senators who conferred with federal officials on water resources problems returned from Washington.

MacDonald said the resolution "won't mean anything." The real test, he said, will come with action of a bill which proposes taking away the federal power to condemn land. The bill now is in committee.

Gov. Phillips, who devoted a third of his legislative message to a blistering attack on the Red river project as a "flagrant invasion of state rights," suggested that the condemnation clause in the enabling act of the constitution be repealed as one method of halting the project.

System Would Hike Revenue 300 Million

Govt. Salaries And Securities Would Be Subject To Levy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—President Roosevelt urged congress today to make all private income from all government salaries and all future government securities subject to the general income tax laws of the federal and state governments.

States Helped, Too

Federal tax officials have estimated that federal revenue would increase, as a result, as much as $300,000,000 annually. State governments also would benefit by large revenue increases from reciprocal authority given them to tax federal salaries and bonds.

In a special message Mr. Roosevelt also advised congress that recent supreme court decisions had made some state salaries and some state securities subject to taxes. He asked legislation to prevent the persons whose income would thus be taxed retroactively from suffering losses.

"Unless the congress passes some legislation dealing with this situation prior to March 15," Mr. Roosevelt said, "I am informed by the secretary of the treasury that he will be obliged to collect back taxes for at least three years upon the employees of many state agencies and upon the security holders of many state corporate instrumentalities, who mistakenly but in good faith believed they were tax exempt. The assessment and collection of these taxes will doubtless in many cases produce great hardship."

"Accordingly, I recommend

Alternate Tax Move Delayed In The House

Debate Heard On O'Daniel's 'Transaction' Proposal As Resolution For Resources Levy Introduced

AUSTIN, Jan. 19 (AP)—The house today refused immediate passage of a proposal asking Governor W. Lee O'Daniel to change his transactions tax recommendations. The vote was first semblance of a test of the O'Daniel plan.

A resolution by Rep. Albert Derden of Marlin asking the governor to give natural resources tax increases the same priority as his preferred transactions tax precipitated spirited argument. It was shunted to committee over Derden's objection and a motion to reconsider failed 92 to 42.

Derden said he and a majority of his constituents wanted "a transactions tax or any other form of sales tax only as a last resort." He claimed O'Daniel had put the legislators in the position of having to vote for a sales tax in order to vote for liberalized pensions.

"The people have sent O'Daniel here as their leader," replied Rep. A. S. Broadfoot of Bonham. "He has given us a very comprehensive program. I don't agree with everything in it but we will have plenty of opportunity to alter it. I'm proud of him for assuming the responsibility of formulating a program."

There was no possibility of any immediate legislative action on the transaction tax, which Derden called "a multiplied sales tax." The senate adjourned today until Monday and the house did not yet have its standing committees.

In his first message to the legislature, O'Daniel recommended a 1.6 per cent levy on almost every type of business transaction, estimating it would raise $45,000,000 annually. He proposed to abolish the state property tax.

Derden said he had told his constituents he would make every effort to hike the taxes on those who exploit the state's natural resources.

"Let's try to boost the levies on oil, gas and sulphur first," he pleaded, "then tap every other reasonable source of revenue besides the sales tax. If we still don't have enough money to liberalize pensions to the desired extent, we can submit the sales tax to the people."

The Marlin representative said he thought O'Daniel last year pledged himself against a sales tax. Broadfoot countered with the assertion that he in the past had supported larger natural resources taxes but it was of no benefit to the old people because the senate would not agree.

"I now want to support something that will pass the house, senate and governor," he said. "The senate won't pass a strong natural resource tax."

"We will have plenty of opportunity to discuss O'Daniel's proposed constitutional amendment in committee hearings."

The house earlier had sent to committee a request of Rep. E. F. Harrell of Paris that O'Daniel be

READING AND WRITING

"FLYING COLOURS," by C. S. Forester; (Little, Brown; $2.50).

One hesitates to speak of the fact that C. S. Forester has completed the trilogy dealing with the quite astounding Captain Horatio Hornblower, because the word "trilogy" might suggest some such exploit as Farrell's or Fisher's. Yet this is a plain fact, and cannot be blinked. In "Beat to Quarters," as you may remember, Captain Hornblower (already in hot water, what with diseases and prospective mutiny) opened his sealed orders and discovered that he and his ship (the "Lydia") must accomplish incredible things. Later "Ship of the Line" found the captain in charge of the "Sutherland," once again accomplishing incredible things, particularly along the coast of Spain, a coast which was quite a sad prospect to Napoleon, considering the trouble it gave the emperor.

Now the concluding volume picks up the captain and his story as the former awaits his fate in prison. The "Sutherland" was at last forced to surrender after wrecking a large share of his Imperial Majesty's navy. Although he is permitted by a kind providence to see an English squadron avenge the "Sutherland," the captain is not released; indeed he is loaded into a carriage with Lieutenant Bush and Brown, his servant, and started for Paris and certain death before a firing squad. Brown is really no servant; Hornblower chose him for his magnificent physique. And Bush is suffering bitterly because a foot just had been amputated and he is in no condition to travel.

One day the carriage almost falls into a river. The extremely navy colonel in charge sends everyone away for help, and before he could say "my goodness!" Hornblower has him tied up, Bush and Brown in a boat, and another set of adventures is begun. But at the end Captain Hornblower is given what his friends have long wanted him to have, and what this is you must not turn to the last page to see.

LOVE THAT ROCKED AN EMPIRE still seems to bind the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, who recently granted a camera interview at their villa near Cannes, France. It is from this winter home of the Windsors that the report came that the duke may visit England and the royal family in March, possibly without the wife for whom he abdicated the throne of England.

WITH THE COURAGE OF HER CONVICTIONS, wealthy Mrs. Harry Bijur marches with pickets in front of the fashionable New York building where she occupies a nine-room apartment. She denies any "red" leanings, says she'll help the men until they're put back to work. The signs carried by the pickets refer to the N. Y. state banking department which operates the building. "It's a matter of justice," Mrs. Bijur tells her friends. She and her husband have spent over $3,000 feeding the more than 20 striking employees since the men were called out two months ago.

Tax Plan

asked to submit temporary financing of pensions as an emergency matter. The board of control has waited the pensions will have to be reduced in March unless extra money is provided. O'Daniel's plan would not take effect until September.

The senate failed to discuss on the floor O'Daniel's tax proposal but conversation flew thick and fast in informal groups which gathered about desks.

Meanwhile O'Daniel said he accepted full responsibility for the astonishing tax proposal and asserted reaction had been very favorable.

He would submit the tax proposition, together with a pension liberalization plan and a proposal to abolish the ad valorem tax for state purposes in a constitutional amendment to be voted on June 2.

In a press conference, O'Daniel said the amendment resolution and an enabling bill, which observers agree are beautifully and skillfully drafted, had been prepared with the aid of others, but he declined to mention names.

"A lot of work was put in on that bill," he said. "I studied it and worked on it and called in legal help. Everyone knows I'm not a lawyer. But I accept full responsibility."

Critics of the transaction tax, which O'Daniel termed new in the country, have said it was a "pyramided" sales tax, in other words, a sales tax which the consumers pay several times.

Asked about the pyramiding feature, if any, O'Daniel suggested senators and representatives who handle the proposals in the legislature be questioned.

"There are a lot of details in the bill," he said. "The tax is something new and I can't go into it here. Suppose you interview those senators and representatives."

A reporter suggested "it's not their baby," and O'Daniel replied "they're nurturing it now."

He said he had arrived at his figures and estimates in the bill by much study, but added he hoped everyone else interested would work up on his own data.

"I want the legislature to study the matter," he said. "I have my own figures on how much is needed and the rate to produce that amount, but I do not care to divulge them. They might be used by others."

"I want everyone to get his own figures. A difference of opinion will be good."

Farm Field Day Slated In Borden Co.

Special Event With Boys' Stock Show On Feb. 25

GAUL, Jan. 19.—The first of its kind since the inception of extension work in Borden county six years ago, an agricultural field day is planned for this town on Feb. 25.

Center of attraction will be a boy's livestock show, but the gathering of old timers and residents of the county since 1917 will be featured. The field day and boys show has been planned so that the participants can go to Big Spring two days later for an area club show.

Livestock commission firms and others are cooperating in arranging demonstrations involving "market classifications" of beef cattle, according to County Agent E. J. McLeary.

There will be open competition in some classes but ranchers can qualify only for ribbons and will not share in the $50 premium list. One interesting open class will be that for herd bulls. Another side feature is an exhibit of range plants, an item of interest to ranchers of the area.

Cash prizes will be financed by Borden County 4-H club boys who made the money through sale of extension service game association signs made and sold under the direction of County Agent McLeary.

Ralph Howe, first Borden county agent, will come from Crosbyton, where he is now agent, to judge the beef calves, sheep and hogs in the boys' show.

Dawson, Borden and Scurry county 4-H club boys and FFA boys from Fluvanna in Scurry county are eligible to compete.

In the milk-fed beef calves, the prize list is as follows: $3.50, $3, $2, $1, and $1. Other classes and awards are: Dry lot lightweight, $3, $2, $1, $1, and 50c; dry lot heavyweight, identical awards; individual lambs, $2.50, $2, $1 and 50c; group of three lambs, $2.50, $2, $1, and 50c; hogs (barrows), $2, $1.50, and 50c; brood sows, $2, $1.50, $1, and 50c; best record of project to date of show, $1, 50c, and 25c; best showman, $1, 50c, and 25c. There will be ribbons in all classes and the hours of the show will be from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

WOMAN SOUGHT IN INDIANA KILLING

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Investigators pictured a woman, powerful, left-handed and with a liking for bright colors, today as the possible killer of blonde, 55-year-old Mrs. Carris Leah Romig. Mrs. Romig's husband, Harold Daniel Romig, 28, ten-cent-store restaurant worker, found her body Tuesday night on a bed in their five-room ground-floor apartment. She had been struck twice in the head with a claw hammer, which lay broken close by. An unidentified man who visited her early that day came first under suspicion. A neighbor, Mrs. Clara Corey, said she had told him where Mrs. Romig lived.

Nazi Changes Draw Denial

BERLIN, Jan. 19 (AP)—The press chief of the German government, Dr. Otto Dietrich, today took the unusual step of personally issuing to foreign correspondents a complete, emphatic and categorical denial that any cabinet changes were contemplated either now or at any time in the near future. Rumors of impending changes had become so general in Germany and had been launched among foreign press representatives with such consistency by persons ordinarily in the know that a denial was deemed necessary and advisable in the interest of clarification as well as amicable international relations. Rumors circulated yesterday in Berlin circles usually considered well informed that the following shifts in the Nazi leadership were likely: appointment of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goerring as vice-chancellor and war minister; appointment of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels to be chief of Nazi party district leaders and transfer of his propaganda and press functions to Dietrich himself; the foreign office and to Goering's office; retirement of Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick and his replacement by Heinrich Himmler, chief of all German police. Dietrich asserted today that within the government nobody ever had raised the question of reshuffling the cabinet.

Physician Killed, Former Friend Held

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 19 (AP)—A 60-year-old physician was dead today and a 47-year-old sporting goods salesman, a former friend, was held in jail without charge after a burst of pistol-fire here late yesterday at a downtown alleyway. Five bullets felled Dr. A. G. Wainwright on a crosswalk between a theater and a variety store in the view of many shoppers. He died there. Police Field Sgt. Roy Moran said Arthur Johnson, at whose home Dr. Wainwright had lived the past 12 years, surrendered immediately afterward to a nearby traffic officer. Johnson, in the presence of his attorney, told a newspaper reporter Dr. Wainwright was "my friend, at least I thought he was, and since he was living by himself I told him he could live with us," Johnson and his wife, 44.

MANY VACCINATED AS SMALLPOX SCARE GROWS IN DALLAS

DALLAS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Hundreds of Dallas residents streamed into city health offices today for vaccinations after the twentieth case of smallpox since Jan. 1 was recorded. Dr. J. W. Bass, city health director, said 1,003 persons were vaccinated yesterday. The crowd lined the street in front of the department office at noon today. Dr. Bass warned citizens to see private physicians immediately, saying the 20 reported victims could have spread the dread disease among thousands of others.

Improvements (Continued from Page 1) ed to the new basement space, the county superintendent will then exchange offices with the county judge and commissioners court. The book room also will be moved downstairs. The arrangement, said County Judge Charles Sullivan, will result in placing the commissioners court nearer the office of County Auditor Claude Wolf, will not cut down on the office space for judge and commissioners, and will make possible an office for L. P. Boone, 70th district court reporter, in the vacated book room area. At the same time County Superintendent Anne Martin will have the book room on a ground floor, an arrangement calculated to save much extra, heavy lifting. Judge Sullivan and J. S. Winalow, commissioner from precinct 3, estimated Thursday that the work would cost the county between $500 and $700.

Exemptions (Continued from Page 1) legislation to correct the existing inequitable situation, and at the same time to make private income from all government salaries hereafter earned and from all government securities hereafter issued subject to the general income tax laws of the nation and of the several states. The president said that immunities granted income from government securities and employment "are not inexorable requirements of the constitution, but are the result of judicial decision." "I repeat," he added, "that it is not unreasonable to hope that judicial decision would permit the elimination of these immunities." Recalling he had urged congress to pass a measure of the sort he urged today, Mr. Roosevelt said that decisions of the supreme court rendered since his earlier message, "particularly the decision in the Fort of New York Authority case, have made an important and constructive contribution to the elimination of these inequitable immunities." In asserting that the situation could be remedied by legislative action, Mr. Roosevelt aligned himself with those legal students who contend that a constitutional amendment is not necessary to permit the state and federal governments reciprocally to tax income and security revenues paid out by them. He based his argument on the constitutional clause providing for taxes on "income from whatever source derived."

INSURANCE PROBE ORDERED BY MANN AUSTIN, Jan. 19 (AP)—Alleged corrupt practices in the insurance field in Texas, particularly those purportedly employed by certain mutual assessment companies, were ordered investigated by Attorney General Gerald C. Mann today. Mann said the investigation, to be conducted under the direction of William J. Panning and E. Burl Davis of his department, would be aimed at cleaning out any fraudulent companies and correcting irregular methods. The attorney general said it was possible present legislation might be inadequate to cope with certain malpractices. He asserted criminal charges would be filed against company officials if fraud was found.

3 DROWNED AS CAR PLUNGES OFF BRIDGE PORT VINCENT, La., Jan. 19 (AP)—Three persons drowned in Lake Villar near here today after their automobile plunged through a bridge hand-rail in an early-morning fog. Occupants of the car were three women and an infant boy. The baby was being rushed to New Orleans for an urgent operation. The fog prevented clear driving vision and the machine plunged through the railing into deep water.

AAA RECORDS HERE TO BE AUDITED Audit of all AAA records in the county office here has been set for February, M. Weaver, adjustment assistant, has been informed. The staff is seeking to close out all records possible on last year's crop, including a tabulation of gin-nings of local and cross-county cotton by 14 gins in Howard county. The cases of two "red card" farmers have been checked and one was made a refund of $38.08, having paid excessively for production over a given allotment.

BILL OFFERED FOR NEW NAVAL BASES WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Legislation to authorize a dozen new bases for the navy, including an air and submarine base on the Pacific Island of Guam, was introduced today by the naval committee chairman of the senate and house. Chairman Vinson of the house naval committee said the projects, recommended by a special naval board, had administration approval. Vinson explained the navy proposed only to do some harbor dredging at Guam next year and that it would not construct facilities for the air and submarine base until 1942.

Wall Street NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Late buying in utilities enabled the stock market to put on a selective last-minute rally today after the list had moped through the greater part of the session. American Telephone shot up 3 points to a new high for more than a year in the final hour and gains of fractions to a point or so were posted for Consolidated Edison, North American, Public Service of N. J., and International Telephone. Dealings picked up on the concluding lap, with transfers approximating 800,000 shares.

INCIDENTS ON A COLD NIGHT

It was cold last night. The wind whistled around corners making women snuggle closer into their furs and the men turn up their coat collars. Inside it was warm and the smell of food cooking and coffee steaming quickened the appetites. Business was good and the waitresses had to hurry to fill the orders. An old man entered the door. Not a very clean-looking man, undoubtedly a "bum," a piece of human flotsam drifting without much purpose. "Could you let me have a cup of coffee?" he asked hesitantly. "I'm sorry," replied the embarrassed waitress. "Not even some cold coffee," repeated the old man. "We don't give anything on credit," said the girl as one repeating a lesson well learned. The old man stood there for a moment smiling apologetically and then slowly walked out into the night. Inside it was warm and the smell of food cooking and coffee steaming quickened the appetites of the crowd eating. Business was good. Women snuggled closer into their furs as they hurried to their automobiles and the men wrapped themselves in their overcoats.

Frankfurter Will Sit On A Court That Has Swung Toward His Views

Felix Frankfurter
'Architect Of The New Deal'

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON — Much of the new deal shooting will have been over by the time Felix Frankfurter reaches the Supreme Court.

But the "architect of the new deal"—the Harvard professor who inspired much of the so-called liberal law-building under Franklin D. Roosevelt—will have the satisfaction of knowing that the court has come far toward his way of thinking.

Old Trend Wiped Out
In the last two years, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes has led the trend. The court has overruled itself once, and it has upheld such legislation as the Wagner labor act, the right of government to regulate wages and hours for women, and to change the gold content of the dollar.

Those decisions wipe out, in a large measure, the criticism Frankfurter long has implied, if not spoken—that the court had refused to recognize the constitution as a flexible document, framed to meet changing conditions.

Important decisions that have progressed too far for Frankfurter participation, include questions of the government's TVA power yardstick, and the sit-down strike as an economic weapon for labor.

Still ahead, with the probability that Frankfurter will help frame them, are decisions on the legality of the federal wage and hour law, the new farm act, and many labor cases of secondary importance.

But the legality of the new deal has been fairly well established.

Back To Wilson
Mr. Roosevelt already has appointed two justices classified as liberals—Hugo Black of Alabama, and Stanley Reed of Kentucky. Now he has named as successor of the late Justice Cardozo, who was a Jew, Austrian-born Frankfurter, also a Jew.

The personnel of the present court goes back only so far as President Wilson. Wilson named the ultra-conservative James Clark McReynolds, and the liberal, Jewish Justice Louis D. Brandeis, now at 82, dean of the court.

Harding appointed the conservative Pierce Butler, and Coolidge appointed the former attorney general, Harlan F. Stone, a man of genial good humor.

Hoover selected the two outstanding fence-sitters, Chief Justice Hughes and Owen J. Roberts. They had a record for conservative law, but both have developed a liberal bent in the last few years.

Mr. Roosevelt can expect a 5-4 split in favor of liberal interpretation of the constitution, but can get a 7-2 verdict if Hughes and Roberts are in the mood.

No Real Need
Washington insiders are talking much these days about the possibility that Roosevelt may get to appoint one or two more members of the court. Brandeis is said to be willing to retire, and some believe McReynolds may quit.

But that's gossip. After all, there is no real need, from the president's point of view for further appointments, unless it might be his desire to give the far west representation on the court.

HEALTH OFFICER CALLED QUICKLY ON BIRTH CASE

Howard county has a baby—at least the county bore the expense of its birth.

It was by no means the first baby the county has paid for, but it happened to be the first the county handled under the new health officer arrangement. Dr. Frank Boyle had been sworn less than 24 hours Wednesday morning as county health officer when he was called to deliver a child.

SAYS CHINESE WAR WILL CONTINUE FOR A LONG TIME WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Ruddy-faced Nelson T. Johnson, American ambassador to China, told reporters today before conferring with President Roosevelt:

"The Sino-Japanese war has proved beyond a doubt that bombing from the air does not win a war."

The envoy, who has spent half his life in the Orient, reiterated his prediction the conflict would continue for a long time.

"I found the Chinese morale high," he said, "they were full of hope in the future. I did not find them necessarily discouraged."

"China has not been utterly devastated by the war by any means. Life in the cities re-begins immediately after a bombardment ceases. An attempt is made at once to clear damaged areas."

Johnson, called back to Washington for report and consultation, was reliably believed to have made this the substance of a conference yesterday with Secretary Hull.

MEXICO-GERMANY DEAL IS TALKED AS ENVOY SAILS

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—General Juan Amador, Mexican minister to Germany, sailed for Europe today, refusing to comment on reports of an expansion in trade relationships between Mexico and Germany.

"Naturally," he added, he was resuming his post "to improve relations between Mexico and Germany."

The diplomat explained he had returned to Mexico to fulfill the requirement for one year of military service out of every four and was anxious to get back to his post "as soon as possible."

In Berlin, a Nazi spokesman, questioned about possible oil and munitions negotiations between the two countries, said: "We will have to wait and see what happens when he arrives."

MEXICO OFFICIALS RESIGN THEIR JOBS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19 (AP)—Three potential candidates for the Mexican presidency—two cabinet members and the Mexico City military zone commander—were free of their posts today.

Gen. Francisco Mujica, secretary of communications and public works; Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, war minister, and Gen. Rafael Sanchez Tapia, commander of the first military zone, resigned after a conference with President Cardenas.

The three issued a joint statement announcing their resignations were to make it clear that they felt presidential campaign talk was premature.

The statement said "we have no desire to use our high offices as means of calling public attention to us." Cardenas' term expires in December, 1940.

BOY IS FOUND DEAD

CORPUS CHRISTI, Jan. 19 (AP)—The death of 12-year-old James Bradshaw by strangulation was under investigation by authorities at Ingleside, near here, today.

The Ingleside school boy's body was found hanging from the limb of a mesquite tree in his backyard. Relatives said the boy had been playing in the yard.

Japan Sees U. S. Air Program As Preparation For An 'Attack'

TOKYO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Japan is gravely concerned by United States naval expansion plans, the naval office spokesman declared today, and fears establishment of air-planes and submarine bases in the Pacific would be but advance preparation for "long distance attack."

"Fortification of Guam (1,500 miles from Japan) would be like placing a gun against the gate of a neighbor," said the spokesman, Rear Admiral Shozaburo Kanazawa.

Establishment of bases at Midway and Wake Islands, he continued, would surround "our undefended mandate islands"; fortification of Guam "in the middle of the mandates," would seem an unnecessary way to treat Japan "in view of our policy of non-attack and non-aggression."

He emphasized that these mandates—the South Sea Islands held by Germany before the war—were unfortified and under present international agreements could not be fortified.

Sees Mexico As The 'Danger Spot' Of Western World

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Henry J. Allen, Kansas editor and former senator, believes Mexico is the danger spot of the western hemisphere.

Allen told the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce last night that Mexican influence was exerted in an attempt to "hamstring" the United States delegation at the recent Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, which he attended.

He recommended that the United States boycott Mexico economically to force President Cardenas to return confiscated American oil properties. While other Latin-American states are not in sympathy with Mexican policy, he said, "they are watching to see if Cardenas gets away with this grab."

"We must teach Mexico," he declared, "that our 'good neighbor' policy is not a license to steal on a mass scale."

Generally speaking, the Kansas declared, the Lima conference was "the first definite and encouraging recognition of the United States by the Latin republics."

Richardson Resigns Post With Cosden

Fort Worth Man Has Been Vice President Of Corporation

Announcement has been made in Fort Worth of the resignation of W. D. Richardson as vice president and director of the Cosden Oil corporation, which operates the refinery in Big Spring. Company headquarters are in Fort Worth. Richardson, it was said, relinquished his position with Cosden in order to devote more time to his personal business.

Richardson first came to Texas during the pioneer oil days at Corsicana, where he operated the Richardson Lubricating company. He later owned and operated the Sapulpa Refining company at Sapulpa, Okla., and later a refinery at El Dorado, Kas.

He returned to Texas and constructed the Richardson Refining company plant at Big Spring. Cosden Oil company constructed a plant adjoining his, and subsequently the two were consolidated. Richardson is well known in Big Spring, through the operation of his own refinery and because of numerous visits here in connection with Cosden operations.

When the Cosden Oil company was placed in receivership, Richardson held the trusteeship and when the company was reorganized a couple of years ago he became vice president and director.

DIFFERENT VIEWS ON JAP OPERATIONS IN CONQUERED ZONE

SHANGHAI, Jan. 19 (AP)—Contrasting pictures of Shanghai's industrial and commercial progress under Japanese military domination came today from Chinese and Japanese sources.

The Japanese navy's "rehabilitation section" reported that 10 Japanese-owned cotton mills in the Shanghai area were operating almost at full capacity and employing 96,726 Chinese, after war damage had been repaired.

Of 42 other Japanese-owned factories affected by the hostilities, 26 had been reopened and were operating at 80 per cent of capacity, the report said.

The Chinese-owned, English language newspaper China Press published a charge that Japanese had brought about 65,000 tons of Formosan sugar worth about $2,500,000 into Shanghai during recent months without payment of duty.

The China Press said this influx of Formosan sugar was ruining competitors, especially traders in Java sugar.

Lincoln's Heritage Cited As Factor In His Greatness, By Club Speaker

False conceptions of the source of Abraham Lincoln's greatness have arisen out of a failure to recognize the man's heritage, Dr. Louis A. Warren, a director in the Lincoln Life Foundation, told the Lincoln club and its guests Wednesday.

Dr. Warren sought to establish a premise for Lincoln's greatness and said that many historians had been led astray on the assumption contained in the original Lincoln biography—that Lincoln came from a "stagnant, putrid pool."

If this were true, said Dr. Warren, there would be no point in trying to hold Lincoln up as an inspiration to the youth of the nation for the theories that Lincoln was "inspired of God" or that he was a "biological sport" would be true. Dr. Warren refuted a third theory that Lincoln was a product of illegitimacy from a parentage of refinement and genius.

The truth, he contended, is that Lincoln was of a fine heritage, a fine family. The Lincolns were not "poor white trash of the south," but of an outstanding family line. But for the fact that Abraham Lincoln's grandmother was intrigued out of large holdings left by her husband, he might have been born in and reared under less humble surroundings. Lincoln was poor but not poverty stricken, said Dr. Warren.

He was a product of the west, the first great American in that he was the first such character outside of the colonial section and days. He was great enough to become a universal character, great enough to be included in H. G. Wells' list of the six greatest men the world has produced, according to Dr. Warren.

The club had as its guests for the day District Governor Omar Burleson of Anson and District Deputy Arlie Casale of Hamlin. W. W. Ryan, Dallas, spoke briefly and Harry Hoekendorff invited club members to participate in a baseball meeting Monday evening and Dan Conley invited the membership to a concert Wednesday evening.

Other guests were Hubert Freeman, Lincoln National Life Insurance agent under whose arrangement Dr. Warren appeared, R. B. Freeman, Abilene, Albert S. Darby, Cecil Snodgrass, H. E. Howie, R. E. Sikes, Fort Worth, and J. A. Raley, Lubbock.

CLEANUP CAMPAIGN CONSIDERED BY MUNICIPALITY

A comprehensive clean-up campaign conducted by the city is under advisement at the city hall, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The campaign, to be conducted at city expense, would concentrate on the cleaning of alleys over the entire town. According to tentative plans, the work would not be done until spring, however.

Should the city go through with the clean-up drive, it would then notify all property owners that alleys are henceforth to be kept free of debris and refuse. City officials said that in some quarters alleys were being converted into illegal dumping grounds. Any person resorting to such a use of alleys after the cleanup would be subject to a fine.

CARMEN BRANDON, ASSISTANT FOOTBALL MENTOR, SUBMITS RESIGNATION TO BOARD

The Sports Parade

By HANK HART

If the local contestants in the Herald-Cosden Golden Gloves boxing tournament aren't the best conditioned battlers in the district slug-fest, then it won't be because they haven't the necessary equipment.

And Fonzo, who only last Monday evening slapped Danny Doran, an Ottawa, Ontario, middleweight, into submission over the ten round route in a San Angelo ring, is all there.

He and Beard are old friends or old enemies—whichever way you want to put it.

Some of the simon-pure pugers are coming along too fast, it has now become apparent to Promoter Ray Simmons. They are looking so impressive that a half dozen or more of the late starters have already dropped out, which is troubling the little operator.

Best of the lot still appears to be Ellis Reed, 1938 lightweight titlist who is punching better than ever; Jack Dorris, an overgrown feather; Red Wallace, light heavy; Richard Gibson, welter, and J. C. Wallace and Joe Henderson, 160 pounders.

Reed's only weakness at the present appears to be a failure to cover up properly once he strikes and misses. Trainers Stice and Whittington are paying special attention to the youth, however, and are fast remedying that.

OWEN BRUMMETT, MIDDLEWEIGHT, AND HENDERSON

ANNOUNCEMENT ON SUCCESSOR IS DUE SOON

The resignation of Carmen Brandon, assistant high school football coach and director of the school's physical education system, was being studied by members of the school board today.

School officials delayed announcement of the successor to Brandon but Supt. W. C. Blankenship indicated that a 10-to-1 applicant was under serious consideration.

Brandon, upon completing his athletic eligibility at Rice Institute in 1935, came here as assistant to George Brown in 1936.

Speaking of the Luther product, he brought a tremendous laugh to patrons at the San Angelo-Big Spring basketball games the other night.

Owen may figure largely in Pat Murphy's football plans for the 1939 season. 'Tis said he's to be switched to guard, a move your observer thought wise last fall.

Other changes may send Winnet Nance, '38 guard, to fullback, Lefty Bethell to defensive tackle and offensive right half back.

EASTEX C-C JOINS IN FREIGHT RATE MOVE

LONGVIEW, Jan. 19 (AP)—A committee to seek more equitable freight rates for East Texas will be recommended, Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the East Texas chamber of commerce, said yesterday.

The recommendation will be made to the directors of the chamber at their annual meeting in College Station tomorrow.

Sports Roundup-GRID 11'S BUSY WITH SCHEDULES

By EDDIE BRIEZE NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Holy Cross wants Texas Christian as well as Tennessee; Texas Christian would like to start flirting with Notre Dame; Duke thinks another good eastern or mid-western team would be just what the doctor ordered for its schedule and Florida is getting ready to branch out in a big way.

Manager Lefty O'Doul won't be in the party when his San Francisco battery candidates go to Bogus Springs, Cal., to toil out. He'll put them on their honor to observe training rules.

We're not going around carrying a torch for Tennessee, but if you think that football team was hot last year, just wait till October. Of the 33 first stringers, 23 were sophomores and they're all coming back.

It didn't come out in the announcement, but they're telling it around Broadway that when Jess Willard starts touring for the Dempsey liquor interests part of his duties will be to lecture on temperance.

Craig Outlines A Nine-Point Plan Of Defense

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—A nine-point defense program will be considered by congress if it follows the suggestions of Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staff.

The measure Craig recommended to the senate military committee yesterday would:

- 1. Increase the army plane limit to 6,000 fighting craft.
2. Increase the air corps personnel.
3. Increase the number of air reserve officers on active duty.
4. Train air corps personnel in civilian schools.
5. Train civilian instructors in army schools.
6. Provide more training planes for civilian schools.
7. Provide housing additions in the continental zone.
8. Broaden powers of the army procurement section.
9. Increase army "educational" orders with industry.

Cook Plans For Next Meeting

R. I. Cook, president of the Big Spring WT-NM league baseball club, who has been confined to his home on account of illness, returned to his office Wednesday and indicated that he would be able to attend Monday evening's meeting of baseball fans, scheduled to be held in the district court room of the courthouse beginning at 7 p. m.

'Sucker' Fish Moving Inland For Spawning

Sportsmen Prepare For Onslaught On Favored Creeks

By DAVE CHEAVENS Associated Press Staff The crappie, leading chump among fresh water fishes, have moved in from the relative security of the brushy fringes of creeks and bays for their annual spring spawning spree.

A tickle but stupid fish normally, crappie lose what little natural discretion they are endowed with during the feverish days of egg-laying.

Many Camps If you need further proof that crappie spawn in late January and February—the season closes March 1—find a fishing camp on any creek leading into Eagle Mountain lake, Buchanan lake, Bridgeport lake, Lake Kemp, or Caddo, to name a few.

Onlookers Many The stable was crammed with onlookers who were treated to some flashy work on the part of all the entries except Dorris who took a vacation due to head cold.

After a Joe Henderson-Whittington waltz in which Jo-Jo looked to advantage under fire, White crawled back into the ring for jaunts with J. C. Wallace and Gibson.

Roy Beard then took over with Red Wallace and Wallace displayed the best right paw seen in entry circles thus far. He troubled Beard constantly with a jolting blow but took considerable punishment in the "in-fighting."

Bobby Martin later worked with Whittington and Bob Stinnett and Beard capped off the long evening with a hilarious duel that brought out a lot of the veteran's tricks of the trade.

Simmons, accompanied by Red and Hank Hart, intends to sit in on the Midland city elimination bouts tonight.

PAVILION THAT "RUTH BUILT" MAY COME DOWN

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Stretching in front of the right field pavilion at Sportsman's Park is a screen that stands as a reminder of the Babe Ruth era—and now it may come down.

The barrier was erected about a dozen years ago during the heyday of the mighty Bambino, who used to pop home runs into the pavilion like rain drops on a tin roof.

MOORE COURT IS EMPLOYED DAILY

QUALITY OF LOCAL BOXERS IN GG TOURNAMENT IS DECIDELY IMPROVED OVER '38 FIELD

NO. 1 THREATS EXPECTED IN EACH WEIGHT

While the quantity of serviceable Golden Gloves battlers for the second annual Herald-Cosden boxing tournament, which gets underway at the municipal auditorium here Wednesday evening, are playing tricks with Promoter Ray Simmons, the general quality of the young hopefuls is not to be doubted and, although Big Spring probably will not have as many representatives in the field as last year this year's delegates are expected to go much further.

Last night in the Read hotel gymnasium Simmons looked on as only eight candidates for the district titles went through their paces and predicted that Big Spring was going to have the No. 1 contenders in at least six of the eight weight championships that will be at stake.

Besides Ellis Reed, the 135-pound champ, who worked with Kid Whittington and Fonzo White, a Mentor trainer, and J. C. Wallace, last year's middleweight champion, Richard Gibson, welter, Jack Dorris, lightweight, Bobby Martin, bantam, Joe Henderson, middleweight, O'Dell "Red" Wallace, lightweight, and Owen Brummett, middleweights were active.

Onlookers Many The stable was crammed with onlookers who were treated to some flashy work on the part of all the entries except Dorris who took a vacation due to head cold.

Gibson went eight three-minute rounds during the day and worked very effectively with Roy Stice and White last night. In the mill with Stice he was troubled constantly by the veteran 135-pounder's kicking left, a stinging glove that left red welts on his head and body but he stopped Roy at intervals with a two-fisted attack.

After a Joe Henderson-Whittington waltz in which Jo-Jo looked to advantage under fire, White crawled back into the ring for jaunts with J. C. Wallace and Gibson.

Roy Beard then took over with Red Wallace and Wallace displayed the best right paw seen in entry circles thus far. He troubled Beard constantly with a jolting blow but took considerable punishment in the "in-fighting."

Favorites Are Many In Coahoma Cage Meet

Herd Tangles With Abilene Five Tonight

War Birds Heavily Favored To Trim Danielmen

In a game moved up from Friday evening due to interference with Abilene school work, Coach John Daniel takes his Big Spring high school Steers to Abilene tonight to oppose the powerful Eagles in an exhibition clash.

The Bovines, who only last Tuesday turned back San Angelo, 30-7, will be the decided underdogs since the War Birds have been bowling over all the teams on their schedule like ten pins.

The locals' major job will be stopping Gene Bennett, giant transfer from A.C.C. gymnasium. Bennett has had the leading hand in most of the Abilene's victories this season. Thus far the Eagles have dropped but one game, having lost one of two encounters with Woodrow Wilson, Dallas, state champion of a year ago. Only last week they sacked up laurels in the Snyder tournament.

The War Birds can start a team composed entirely of six-footers. Probable starting lineups:

Table with 4 columns: Abilene, Pos, Big Spring, Pos. Rows include Hushy, Willis, Bennett, Hay, Conner and F, C, F, G, G.

MEET TONIGHT

Members of the country club will gather at the club house this evening, 7:30 o'clock, for their annual "social."

Business at hand will be disposed of. Refreshments will be served by women members. All members are urged to be on hand.

Two BS Quints Play Odessans

Two basketball teams of the Big Spring Major-City League move to Odessa tonight to do battle with a pair of that city's leading independent quintets.

Vaughn's Sweet shop, now in fourth place in circuit standings, tangle with the strong L&H Drug company aggregation while the First National Bank crew, tied for second place, collide with the Wardsall Oilers.

Both games will be played in the Odessa high school gymnasium.

Oilers Take Lead In M-C Cage Loop

COAHOMA, Jan. 19—After W. F. Talley's Coahoma Oilers had drubbed the First National Bankers, 44-26 here Wednesday evening, to take a half game lead in the Major City League, they turned out and dropped a 22-16 decision to George Neel's First National Bank crew of Big Spring. The latter tilt, however, did not count in league standings.

The Coahomans coasted to their victory over the Gimmers, holding a 31-13 advantage at half time and were never headed.

Rayford Lyles, playing with the Oilers for the first time, dropped in 14 points to grab off top scoring laurels.

Playing probably their flashiest game of the season, the Bankers hopped out in front early in the aftermath, held a 17-10 advantage at halftime and clicked on all cylinders in the second half to win going away.

Jack Oliver's four field goals and six free tosses gave him high tally honors for the tilt.

Buffaloes Play Twice Friday

FORSAN, Jan. 19 (AP)—Brady Nix's Foran high school basketballers face a tough weekend. Friday they play no less than two games on widely separated fronts. At 2:30 p. m. they are slated to go up against the highly respected Klondike Gold Diggers in their first round game in the Coahoma invitational tournament, then move to Lamesa for an exhibition with the Golden Trojans.

Nix indicated he expected strong opposition in both quarters. Klondike recently played powerful Abilene to a close score in the Snyder tournament and has defeated the majority of the foes they have faced this season. Lamesa decision faced the Buffs in Foran Tuesday and will be favored to do it again.

Dempsey Receives Eddie Neil Award

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The story of a friendship that started in a Saratoga Springs fight camp 13 years ago was told anew last night in a Manhattan dining room when Jack Dempsey stood up and received the Eddie Neil award, memorial to the Associated Press sports writer and war correspondent, Dempsey's dearest friend among the writers.

The award was for Dempsey, symbol of his work as the man who had done most for boxing in 1938. James J. Walker, mayor of New York in the gay days when Dempsey was young and heavyweight champion of the world was there. So was General Hugh Johnson. By 1938 were nearly a hundred working newspapermen. For most of them, when they stood up and drank a toast to his memory, Eddie Neil, killed in Spain on assignment a year ago was there too.

The Road to the DIVORCE COURT Is Paved With

CARROTS and PEAS

Remember that old song: "Monday hasenpfeffer! Tuesday string beans! Wednesday s-soo-OUP! Thursday roast beef! Friday fi-ISH?" Surest way to lose a husband is to let him know what to expect for dinner every night in the week!

"She sued a rare juicy steak for alienation of affections." You've never seen that in the papers—but don't smile, lady,—it might happen to you some day. Just go on serving carrots and peas every Thursday, come rain, snow or maid's-night-out; just persist in your potato-patty pattern every Monday and the halibut habit on Fridays—keep at it long enough—and you'll lose your man!

You may be awfully proud of the way you fix tapioca pudding—but tapioca can taste pretty flat, served too often. Even the best of foods quickly lose their savor to a hungry husband when they come at him regular as clockwork on a weekly merry-go-round. And there lies danger! For "ration routine" has ruined more marriages than the fabled mother-in-law; it has broken up more homes than the bluest-eyed chorus girl who ever crossed Times Square!

"Ration routine" is doubly dangerous because it's so insidious; your husband himself may not consciously realize what's wrong. But while he picks at his food he is probably muttering, deep in his heart, "Vicious vittles!" and dreaming of a cottage in a magical land where he can get something wonderful and different and new for dinner every night.

You pride yourself on being a wise and thrifty shopper! Do you know that it's thrifty, economical shoppers like you who are most likely to be at fault? They buy cautiously, they save money, they shun extravagance and sooner or later they fall into a food rut. Then beef stew goes on the table every Wednesday or maybe every other Wednesday, fried perch becomes a regular Friday nightmare, and that's when the trouble really begins.

Men like variety! They like to be surprised. They want food that is tempting and different even more than they want low grocery bills. To your husband dinner time is, or should be, the high point of the day. It's the pivot about which his whole home life turns, and in the interests of his love and affection you just cannot afford to trifle with his appetite—you cannot afford to risk "ration routine."

Especially when the cure is so simple. Maybe you've forgotten that there are anywhere from sixty-five to ninety different kinds of vegetables and fruits, canned and fresh, in a well-stocked food store; dozens of different kinds of meats, fish, sea food; spices galore; prepared foods by the score—every one lending itself to several delicious recipes! Maybe you've forgotten, too, that there is a cook book somewhere in your house, brimming over with ideas that are really fun to try out. Maybe you've forgotten that one of the reasons your husband married you was because he thought you'd serve him a swell dinner every night. Have you forgotten? He hasn't!

If you doubt it, try this little experiment! Let your husband do the shopping next Saturday afternoon when he has the time. Don't tell him what to buy; let the choice be his. It's ten to one he'll come home with things you would never dream of buying yourself—delicious palate-teasing items—foods that will make dinner time a real event—and they won't be hard to prepare either!

Are you guilty of "ration routine?" If you are, you probably don't know it and you'd better watch your step before it's too late. Forget carrots and peas! Forget those insipid inevitable, tiresome dishes that have become a habit with you and may well become a curse! Forget—for just a little while—the staples, the "standards" and the "here-we-are-agains," and step out and go to town! There are "surprises" a-plenty waiting for you in your favorite food store, listed for you today in the Daily Herald food ads—glorious, marvelous, delicious things to eat! Invest in them for your husband's sake. Resolve now to feed him handsomely and well.

Cut loose, lady, and treat yourself to some luxury buying at the grocery! Do it today—and knock his eye out with something super-delicious tonight!

Hopper Infestation May Be Heavier This Year Unless Control Measures Are Put Into General Practice

The mitten shaped area in the accompanying map of Texas shows that the state is threatened with a severe grasshopper infestation in 1939, extending from the tip of the Panhandle down to Columbus in South Central Texas.

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 19 — The 1939 grasshopper infestation threatens Texas agriculture with an estimated loss of more than $15,000,000 if control measures are not practiced, and the infestation is expected to be 25 per cent more serious than that of 1938.

This is true in spite of the fact that those states west of the Mississippi which have borne the brunt of the hopper infestation in recent years expect fewer hoppers than in 1938.

Most of the Texas damage will come from the migratory species, so far confined to the Panhandle, where 23 counties are threatened. It is expected that 17,977 tons of poison bait material will be needed of which 13,428 tons will be used to control the migratory hopper. Last year surveys indicated that 14,000 tons would be required and 13,428 tons were actually used.

These figures come from R. R. Reppert, entomologist of the Texas A. and M. college extension service. He and state grasshopper control leader, and are based on egg surveys conducted by federal supervisors and county agricultural agents in 115 Texas counties.

Grasshoppers deposit eggs in pods in grass roots along ditches, fence rows and in open pastures. Each pod contains from 75 to 100 eggs, and the number of pods in selected areas gives a valuable index as to the infestation to be expected in the following year.

The egg surveys have proven to be startlingly accurate, and Reppert's estimates of the past three years have been almost exactly correct.

"The migratory hopper of the Panhandle was found laying eggs even more extensively and abundantly than the previous year," this entomologist commented. "In many

18,000 Aliens Put Out Of Country During 1938

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — James L. Houghteling, commissioner of immigration, said today that 18,553 aliens were forced to leave the United States last year.

Houghteling's annual report to Secretary Perkins said 9,775 of the aliens were deported on warrants and 8,778 others, who had been adjudged deportable, left at their own expense. The total leaving in the previous year was 17,617.

During the year ending last July immigration officers barred 8,006 other aliens from entering. Immigrant arrivals numbered 67,895, compared with 60,244 in 1937 and 36,329 in 1936. The total was still far below the quota of 153,774, Houghteling said.

Credit Deal Aids Germany With Turkey

Hitler Has Forged Another Link In European Chain

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The signing of the German-Turkish credit agreement in Berlin, granting Turkey a loan of $40,000,000, represents another important victory for Hitler in his amazing drive for economic and political control of Eastern Europe and the Balkans.

It means he has forged another link in the chain with which he is trying to bind a resisting Turkey. And it means a further challenge to Britain's influence in this area which she must control to safeguard her Near Eastern interests and the Suez.

Actually the credit was negotiated last October at the time of the Czecho-Slovak crisis, when Herr Hitler sent his economic squad dashing through the Balkans on a trade roundup. His super-salesman and minister of economics, Walther Funk, grove the deal at Ankara.

It happened to arrive in the Turkish capital a few days later and made a discovery which spoke volumes on the relations between the two countries. Funk had offered Turkey a credit loan not of $50,000,000 but of double that amount—$120,000,000—and this vast sum had been turned down although the Ankara government was far from rolling in riches.

The answer to this was that England had recently loaned Turkey some $72,000,000, and the Turks declined to play favorites by accepting a bigger grant from the Germans. Turkey was afraid of the oncoming German flood and, while she felt it would be highly impolitic to refuse a Berlin loan altogether, was looking to England for protection.

Crop Surplus Big Problem

U. S. May Take Economic Moves To Win World Support

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Administration leaders indicated today the United States might have to adopt economic measures to win international cooperation on a program designed to help cotton and wheat producers.

A proposal that the principal producing nations meet in an international conference to work out such a program was advanced yesterday by Secretary Wallace after a White House visit with President Roosevelt.

Such a program, the secretary suggested, might provide an "equitable division" of the world markets and elimination of such trade practices as price-cutting and dumping.

Back of Wallace's proposal was a broad hint, farm officials said, that unless other countries joined in a cooperative effort, the United States might take steps to enable American cotton exporters to meet foreign prices.

Existence of a record supply of 50,400,000 bales of cotton, or almost twice as much as is normally consumed in a year, has depressed prices. Half of this supply is American cotton.

Farm officials said that world prices would be considerably lower now except for the American cotton program, embracing production control and withdrawal of 11,000,000 bales from market channels under government loans. To the extent this program bolstered world prices, they said, growers in Egypt, Brazil, India, China and other cotton countries have benefited.

On the other hand, they declared, the American loan program has tended to give foreign producers an advantage in world markets. Exports from other countries have gone up this season while those of the United States have dropped 40 per cent.

BLAST NEAR HOTEL HOUSING SON OF CHAMBERLAIN

TRALEE, Ireland, Jan. 19 (AP)—A violent explosion today at the rear of a hotel at which Frank Chamberlain, son of the British prime minister, was staying shattered hundreds of windows and damaged the hotel walls.

Chamberlain, 25, who lives in Birmingham, England, was on a vacation in Ireland, it was un-injured.

Police worked on the theory that the outlawed Irish republican army, which is blamed for a series of explosions in England Monday and Tuesday, was responsible for this latest blast.

Negro Nabbed Here, Taken To Dallas To Face Charge

A negro, wanted in Dallas on a murder charge, was on his way back to face trial Wednesday following his arrest here.

Carl Mercer, constable, who took the negro into custody, was returning him to Dallas to answer for the fatal shooting of a negro last September.

According to officers, Donald Wilson, alias Wiley Nelson, admitted to Mercer, Deputy Sheriff A. J. Merrick and City Patrolman Charles Atkins that he was the man wanted on the charge.

Arrested in a servants quarters in the southeastern part of town, Wilson was identified first from a photograph in a federal bureau of investigation pamphlet which Mercer had seen. After finger prints were taken, he was reported to have confessed he was the wanted man. He had been here only a few hours when the arrest was made.

Dallas officers wired local officials to hold the negro. Two years ago as a deputy constable Mercer made a capture of a Kentucky bank robber from memory of a picture in a FBI pamphlet and received a $500 reward.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds
by ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The scene is a Hollywood fight stadium, and Al Romero, the pug, is climbing into the ring when "Hi ya, Al!" booms from a group of movie people.

Romero looks around, grins, yells, "Hi ya, Meservey!"

And the movie gang looks at Meservey — whom they know as Robert Preston—and they all say, "You know Romero?"

"Sure," says Meservey. "He's one of the gang..."

This Meservey now — this Bob Preston as you'll know him if you don't already — is the kid of 20 who is carrying Hollywood's biggest platinum spoon in his mouth. And the funny thing is, he knows it. And he keeps knocking on wood.

This is what has happened to him, since his "discovery" in the Pasadena Community Playhouse half a year ago: A 2,500 foot test — the average testee is lucky to get 500 feet; a strong role in "King of Alcatraz"; leading roles in "Legal Traffic" and "Disbarred"; a role in DeMille's "Union Pacific" that is better, in sympathy, than Hero Joel McCrea's; next assignment: one of three leads in "Beau Geste," with Gary Cooper and Ray Milland.

Meet the kid, then. He's a big lug, 6 feet one inch, weighs about 180. He's got the vitality, the look in his eye, that snaps into a camera lens and says Look Here. He's not handsome—not with that nose—but he's plenty clean-cut. And he's got a deep and resonant voice to match plus a regular-guy way.

It's enough, what has happened to him, to have turned an older man's head. Bob Preston calls it all "luck."

He was born — without even a silver spoon on his tongue — in Newton Highlands, Mass., came to Los Angeles when he was two years old. He lived on the east side, went to Lincoln high, took part in school plays and fights with about equal relish.

When he knew he wanted to be an actor, he joined up with Tyrone Power's mother's Shakespearean little theater, played all the parts, including Julius Caesar when he was 15.

When drama failed him, he got a job at Santa Anita race track, cleaning the stands mornings, parking cars afternoons. (The members guiding Clark Gable to parking space — "there's a right guy!") Nights he tried out for Pasadena Playhouse, worked there in old man parts, mostly, for two years. Then the movies....

"And what I can't get over is how everybody seems to talk me under wing.... Harold Hurley, the producer, giving me that long test, with Robert Florey to direct it.... Lloyd Nolan, telling people about me, showing me how to pitch my voice for pictures when I was talking like the Red Shadow.... Carroll Nalish.... Barbara Stanwyck, in this picture, telling me how to cheat the camera a little — so I'll take part of the screen from HER! And DeMille, he tells me it's the best part he's given anybody in years, and if I'm nervous he'll kill me. But then he starts me with my big scene—in which I've got to be nervous! Why, everybody acts like my own mother might, taking care of me."

The Meserveys have moved to Hollywood but Bob Preston keeps going back to his old haunts on the east side. To Romero, and to Fidel LaBarba, and the "gang." He wants to know what's what. And the "gang," he says, knows.

CADET BAILS OUT AS PLANE CRASHES

MINERAL WELLS, Jan. 19 (UP)—An army plane crashed, exploded and burned near here yesterday after the pilot, Cadet T. W. Tucker of Kelly field, parachuted to safety.

The motor stopped when the ship was at an altitude of about 1,200 feet.

Tucker, who was unhurt, said he could not see a place for a forced landing and he "bailed out."

His training ship was one of a flight of 22 planes on a cross-country trip. The other planes returned to San Antonio via Dallas last night.

TEACHERS STRIKE
MONTERREY, Mexico, Jan. 19 (UP)—School teachers here struck today, demanding payment of salaries they said were overdue and asking increase in salaries.

BORDEN CO. IS CONTINUING WORK TO KEEP DOWN CROP FAILURES, STOCK LOSSES

GAIL, Jan. 19—Borden county farmers and ranchers have found special significance in the activities of the extension service in carrying out a long-range program of development in soil and conservation work toward elimination of disastrous crop failures and livestock losses as experienced in the county in 1934.

This fact is borne out in the annual report of County Agent E. B. McLeroy. In fact, the growth of conservation work dates back to 1924 after crops had failed on four of five acres and ranchers were forced to sell 14,500 head of stock as an emergency. This ruinous year impressed on farmers and ranchers the necessity of stock water and field moisture.

First Work in 1934
Coming to Borden county as agent in 1934, Ralph Howe sought to mitigate losses by performing administrative duties to dispose of cattle for which forage was insufficient for the winter. This extended to Howe turned to a well-planned conservation objective to be correlated with the government program in order to achieve more rapid results in fighting against recurrence of the 1934 catastrophe.

In 1934 a total of 10 farmers demonstrated value of terraces on 315 acres. With contouring and stock water conservation in the pioneering stage in Borden county, the progress was slow with less than 50 earthen storage dams being built in the years 1934, 1935, and 1936. This was in the face of an admitted need for storage tanks since well drilling was expensive and uncertain.

Succeeding Howe in 1935, Cline E. Morris continued an educational and enlarged soil and water conservation program in the next two years. County officials recognized the value of the work and contributed county road machinery to terracing and contouring at minimum costs.

Man About Manhattan

by GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Though London is one of them, this tale of two cities has nothing to do with Dickens' bloody masterpiece. It concerns Charles Laughton, and the element of time, and a broken water-pipe in a Manhattan apartment.

Now London, lying some 3,000 miles to the east, is about six hours ahead of New York. At 8 o'clock on a recent morning Mr. Laughton stepped before a camera in a London studio and enacted a scene from "Jamaica Inn." There is no script from which to quote, but one of the lines Mr. Laughton spoke had to do with the whereabouts of someone emotionally very dear to him. It may have been his wife. It may have been even an old, half-forgotten love. I am not familiar with the story. Nevertheless, it doesn't require much imagination to visualize fat Mr. Laughton, leaning against a lamp-post, wondering half aloud, "Where are you, honey; where are you?"

At about the time Mr. Laughton was delivering this query into the microphones his attractive red-haired wife, Elsa Lanchester, was visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Abbott, in East 49th street, Manhattan.

She had arrived on the Normandie the previous afternoon. There had been dinner, and a theatre, and by 2 a.m. (8 a.m. London time) they were preparing to retire, because there was to be a cocktail party for Mrs. Laughton next afternoon, and the girls needed some rest.

But suddenly they heard a strange noise. A water pipe had burst. It flooded from the bathroom and spread over the upstairs apartment. It gushed in little eddies along the hall, leaked through the floor, and poured down on the library and living room below. It drenched hundreds of books, and ran into paintings, and streaked the walls, and drenched the living-room rugs.

At 2 a. m. the servants had been dismissed. Mr. Abbott had hurried away to the Museum of Modern Art. The two women were quite alone. At first they were horrified, but finally they pulled their wits together. Mrs. Abbott, a former film critic for the London Daily Mail, got into some old dungarees. Elsa Lanchester slipped into a pair of soiled pajamas. ("My mused Normandie linen"); she rolled her pajamas up to her knees. They got buckets and mops and rags and went to work.

"We must have presented a strange sight!"—Mrs. Laughton speaking—"Somehow we got that water turned off. We removed hundreds of books from the shelves and wiped them dry. We sponged four large pairs of water from the rugs. By eight o'clock we had some semblance of order, but we were exhausted.

"Then the plumbers came and fixed things, and the servants had everything ready, and the party was a huge success. Then after the party we attended the premiere of Charles' new picture, "The Beachcomber," in which I play the most unattractive female you ever saw—well, almost the most unattrac-five—and since then we've seen a lot of shows, and met a lot of nice people, and now I'm going home. On the Paris."

Dear Charles, if you change the tense of that question when you meet Elm and ask, "Where were you, honey?" the answer ought to be "In water, honey, with my pajamas knee high." If she tells you anything else she's kidding you.

WHAT IS COST OF PRODUCTION? Senator Frazier's bill, introduced in the congress by that North Dakota republican, and some associates, provides cost-of-production for farm products.

One cannot help wondering what basis will be used for determining cost of production. Surely the 50-acre farmer with a pair of mules cannot produce as cheaply on any unit basis as the 1,000-acre operator with tractor and other machinery.

How will the congress go about finding the "cost of production" if it is fair to presume that farmers are not now receiving cost of production for their products.

Price fixing by law is a venture into a field that has so many dips and angles that making it workable is not likely to be done by the congress or any other legislative body.

Price fixing that is effective is done by the consumer. If he has the money to buy what he wants, he buys. If not, he goes without or perhaps buys on credit and maybe pays and maybe does not.

The present farm program may not be the best possible program, but it is away ahead of a price-fixing experiment.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

(Mr. Lippmann's column is published as an informational and news feature. His views are personal and are not to be construed as necessarily reflecting the editorial opinion of The Herald—Editor's Note.)

MR. MURPHY TELLS HIS STORY

Although nearly two years have passed since the sit-down strikes in the Michigan automobile plants, it was not until this week that the main truth has been told about Governor Murphy's policy.

The truth is for obvious reasons important. Yet, as I see it, the truth is substantially different from what Mr. Murphy's critics and Mr. Murphy's partisan supporters seem to think it is.

LIPPMANN

Reduced to its barest essentials the facts that have to be recalled are these: At the end of December, 1936, a few days before Mr. Murphy was inaugurated as governor of Michigan, there began a sit-down strike in some of the General Motors plants.

These positions were so hopelessly far apart that for a month, the month of January, 1937, there was a deadlock. The plants were occupied by the sit-down strikers and violence was increasing.

The company was the first to give way. It announced its willingness to negotiate provided the plants were evacuated. The strikers, on the other hand, refused to evacuate unless the C.I.O. union was recognized as sole bargaining agent.

It was at this point in the deadlock that the company, which had obtained injunctions but not enforcing orders, reluctantly applied to the courts for an order which would invoke force to evacuate the plants.

The reluctance of the General Motors company is understandable. The company officials realized that the forcible ejection of the strikers might mean bloodshed, and no company, especially one engaged in competition to sell cars to workmen all over the country, could fail to shrink from the prospect of bloodshed in the plants.

There was no strike at this time, we must remember, in Ford or in Chrysler. General Motors would have borne the whole commercial consequences. That fact, plus the humane sentiments of the management and of the principal stockholders, undoubtedly explain why the company tolerated the sit-down for nearly a month before applying to the courts for an order which invoked force.

When they did finally go to the courts they accompanied this action by entering a plea in Ford to the senate committee now show, and for the first time, what was his real policy in respect to the court order. He used it in private dealings with Mr. Lewis to compel Mr. Lewis to yield enough to make possible a settlement. That is now known. It is known that the governor held up the enforcement of the order for a few days, less than a week, while he convinced Mr. Lewis that he would enforce it if Mr. Lewis did not give way.

He prepared his own orders to employ force and used them to back up an ultimatum with a time limit. The pressure exerted on Mr. Lewis was such that he went to bed sick, and in his hotel bedroom agreed to a settlement.

The settlement came after a real concession by Mr. Lewis is shown in the fact that the company promptly issued a statement thanking Governor Murphy "for his unremitting efforts" which had brought about the agreement.

What followed after all this, seems to me, the really questionable part of Governor Murphy's conduct. He can hardly be criticized, it seems to me, for not using force when within the short space of a few days he accomplished the object of the court order by the mere threat to use force. But, then, having, in fact, obtained a settlement by an ultimatum to Mr. Lewis which was backed by the threat of force, Mr. Murphy chose not to disclose what he had done.

How To Torture Your Wife

FRANK, MRS. FUMBLE WANTS TO BORROW OUR COPY OF 'GONE WITH THE WIND'. WILL YOU GET IT FOR HER? CERTAINLY, BUT I HOPE YOU DON'T MIND WAITING TILL I GET MY FURNACE GLOVES. THE LAST TIME I RUMMAGED THROUGH THAT BOOK CASE MY HANDS LOOKED AS THOUGH I'D SPENT A WEEK IN A COAL MINE. REFLECTING ON HER ABILITY AS A HOUSE-KEEPER

He chose to let it appear as if Mr. Lewis had agreed voluntarily and that the General Motors had ignored the court order when, in fact, he had used the court order as his ace of trumps.

It was not until last week that Mr. Murphy made this disclosure. The question is why he preferred for so long a time to have his actions misunderstood by the general public.

There seem to have been two controlling reasons. The first was that he thought it would make for bad feelings. If the story were made public that Mr. Lewis and the union had yielded to an ultimatum. The feeling was bitter in Michigan and the governor, who is a genuine believer in conciliation, seems to have thought it the part of wisdom to save Mr. Lewis's face. He seems also to have believed that his role as a mediator in labor disputes would be impaired if he destroyed his popularity with labor by publicly humiliating the union leaders.

This reasoning seems, however, to have been reinforced and mixed with the political notion that as a New Dealer it was politically expedient to appear as the firm and unyielding partisan of labor. So Mr. Murphy never told how he had actually settled the strike, and not until 10 months later did he venture to make a mild public condemnation of the principle of the sit-down strike.

The decision to save Mr. Lewis's face may well have been a statesmanlike decision to make. But the decision not to condemn the sit-down strike publicly and in unmistakable terms was, I believe, a cardinal error on his part and on the part of the president. It left in doubt something that no government ought ever for a moment to leave in doubt: Where it stands on the issue of upholding the law. The refusal to take a clear stand on that issue not only encouraged more sit-down strikes but, by shaking the public confidence, provoked counter-violence in the form of vigilantes and set in motion a dangerous tide of reactionary sentiment.

This was unstatesman-like, and though it was done for political reasons, it was politically unprofitable as well. For the resentment against the toleration of the sit-down strike was certainly one of the two or three causes of the political revolution in November, and the main cause of Governor Murphy's defeat.

So I am left with the conclusion that Mr. Murphy acted wisely and well in the General Motors strike, but that in concealing what he had done and letting it be misrepresented he acted unwisely and unwell.

County Agriculture Agents A. Eugene Harris of Seward county and Phil W. NEW YEARS LOVE

by Angela Lorden

Chapter 20 "THIS IS HEAVEN" Allan, sitting forward in his chair on the terrace, was holding Noel's hand tightly between his two palms, as though it were something precious. As though he would never let go.

"Tomorrow you'll be on your way to Hollywood and fame; far out of our reach, won't you, Noel?" "There's not a place in the world distant enough for that."

"It's just for this little while—you're here." It was as though he could hardly bear to say it. "And I don't know when I may see you again. Probably some day in a theater you'll appear on the screen and I'll say, 'That's Noel Marchand. I knew her one year, I wonder if she remembers me.'"

He let go her hand, leaned back in the chair, suddenly looking tired. "But do you know what my heart will say, Noel?" He was compelling her eyes to meet his. His eyes were pinpointed with light, like a flame sending her blood racing.

Whatever it was his heart would be saying, Noel didn't hear—then. "I brought you tea." Annie came round the corner to where they were sitting, carrying the huge silver tray.

Noel could have cried in her disappointment. The moment was gone, maybe forever. Soon she would be going—when would she see Allan again?

"Shall I pour you some tea?" The cup rattled against its saucer as Noel lifted them from the tray. Her hands were trembling; tears she was trying to keep back stung her eyes. Please, please, make him say it just once, she was praying; I can be happy remembering it for the rest of my life.

Allan put down the tea, undisturbed. He seemed to be thinking deeply. He must tell her what it was his heart would be saying, some day.

"You didn't tell me, Allan." It took courage—and a kind of desperate need—to bring the words out. "Do you know, Noel?" His eyes were hungry into her. She felt them burning right into her heart. The sun was now a burnt orange ball in the west. The sinking rays seemed to envelop them in a mellow warmth. The whole world seemed to sing with them when he said it, sitting across from her.

"I love you, Noel. I think I must have loved you from the very beginning."

Noel went over and sat on the grass at his feet. "And I love you Allan, for so long I can't remember anything before it."

"Now it's too late." There was doom in his words.

Noel raised herself on her knees, touched his cheek lovingly. "No, it's not—" the words poured in a rush—"it can't be too late; nothing else matters—" She'd forgotten Hollywood and everything else.

Allan's arms held her close to him. Their lips met, were held in a passionate exchange. "Darling," he murmured, still keeping her tight in his embrace. They looked at each other, together, disconcertingly, covering the glory of love.

And when Noel sank back on the grass, she dropped her head on his knees, held on to the arm round her shoulder. "This is heaven, Allan," she said dreamily. "Why didn't you tell me before?"

"A Matter Of Hours" They talked of their love as though it were a rapture they were the first to discover. When he said, "Darling," she seemed to take wings.

"I'll never leave you," she told him, sure of herself.

"It's only a matter of hours," His voice held pain. "In a few days you'll be so far away, Noel, that today will seem like a dream."

"I don't have to go," She said it determinedly. "I'll say I've changed my mind."

"You'll give me a moment to keep you here, Noel, if I could. It will be autumn before this sitting around like a battered creature is over."

"I'll come back then," she promised. "When you send for me."

Allan's lips smiled agreement. His eyes were saying: "That's what you think now—but you'll never come back." Awkwardly, he got up from the chair, leaned on his cane. He looked down at Noel. "Don't move for a moment," he said in soft, husky tones. "I want to remember you, just like that—the way you look there."

There was a white line around his lips, his skin looked tightly drawn over his cheek bones.

The tears were on Noel's cheeks when she arose and put her arms around his neck. "I can't do it," she sobbed. "Allan, make me stay here—don't let me go now."

He talked soothingly now, gave her some of his own courage. Noel knew he was right. She'd give her promise to Criterion. With her arm through his, they walked slowly back across the terrace, round the house to the front steps. She dried her eyes quickly.

"I'd better be starting." She couldn't bear to look his face as she said it. "Oh, Allan, promise me it's just for a little while—" Mrs. Marchand came through the front door, smiling. "What are you two children so serious about?" she asked with an affectionate rebuke. She stopped, suddenly, caught in the tenderness of the atmosphere. "What's—?" She started to say, "What's wrong?" but didn't.

"I think I'd better go soon." Noel's voice sounded hard. She was stealing herself against the departure. "When's the next train?" "In half an hour—if you must. But so soon, Noel?" Mrs. Marchand wished she could do something about Allan and Noel. "Joe will drive you down. Would you like to ride to the station, Allan?" "I think not—if Noel doesn't mind."

Allan was standing in the shadows of the porch when Noel left. "You must let us hear from you as soon as you get to Hollywood." Mrs. Marchand had her arm around Noel's waist. "I'll miss you greatly, my dear. And I'll be wishing you luck in your work."

"Goodby, Allan." Noel held out her hand. "I forgot something." Mrs. Marchand wanted to leave them alone for a moment. It was a hurried kiss between them, breathless, agonized. Even then Noel waited to have him ask her to stay. She thought, on the ride to the station, she couldn't endure going away. The best, she was leaving behind. Hollywood loomed unpleasantly, then, ahead of her. Several times she almost said to Joe: "Please turn back; I'm not going."

But she kept silent, quietly crying in the corner of the back seat. Through the misery of the brief trip there was one triumphant sentence pounding in her head: "ALLAN LOVES ME!"

The miraculous beautiful knowledge was slim indeed as the distance between them lengthened. On the station platform, she stood alone and watched Joe amble back to the car.

In the distance Noel could hear the steam train chugging. Its smoke made a gray curl in the blue sky. Joe was starting the motor.

"Wait!" Noel called to him, running across the platform. Joe took his hand off the gear shift, in surprise. "I'm not going to New York," she announced frantically. "Drive me back to the house, Joe."

Mrs. Marchand, sitting alone on the porch, jumped up in amazement as Noel rushed up the steps to her. "Where's Allan?" Noel asked breathlessly. "He's in the study," his mother replied, not able to hide her amazement. Noel broke down completely. "I thought I could go—" She was in the older woman's comforting arms. "I love Allan, too much!" "Noel, I'm happy. I've known for a long time it was you that Allan loved. I've wished so much for you to be happy together." Her chin quivered as she said, "Go to Allan, my dear."

Noel walked through the long hall, knocked on a door at the end. "Who is it?" came a muffled voice. She heard Allan's slow shuffling footsteps. "Noel?" She was singing it, waiting. The door opened and Allan stood before her, leaning on his cane. "I came back—for always." Her arms went round his neck. "Say you're glad, darling." She could feel his whole body tremble, pressed against hers. "You can't send me away now." She buried her face in his shoulder. "Nothing else matters, as long as I'm with you. I'll help you get better."

His hand raised her head, touched her face lovingly. "You won't regret it?" he asked with the last words of his doubt. "Never, never," she told him. "What will you do about Hollywood?" he continued. "I'm laughing happily. They were all on the divan, with their arms round each other. "You'll see," she promised mysteriously and then whispered, "I love you—did I remember to tell you?" Finally she got up from the sofa. "May I use the telephone?" He started to leave the room. "No, wait with me," she asked. And then she picked up the phone, called the Criterion offices. When she was connected with Bill Smith, she told him: "I've decided I'm not going to Hollywood. Will you notify Mr. Felgel?" Bill was yelling back, "You're crazy!" and when he had calmed down to inquire the reason, she explained: "I'm being married, instead." Bill was urging, arguing vehemently. "I'm sorry, Bill, I can't change my plans. Goodby." She hung up before he could answer again. Her eyes were like blue night when she turned back to Allan. "Now you'll have to marry me, my love. I've given up my last job." His answer was wordless—conviction. "Darling—try and stop me!" She knew, with their to the happiness of being loved by Allan. Her whole life, she knew, had led up to this moment, up to the years ahead of them. "We'll be happy forever," Allan sighed blissfully. (Copyright, 1938, Angela Lorden)

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

Chapter Two CHANCE ACQUAINTANCE Petronella sat at a marble-topped table, in a restaurant in the Strand. Her thoughts were following Peter anxiously. All the morning they had been doing this; Peter seeing, or not seeing editors. She, waiting for him. Now it was one o'clock. They were breaking seeing him between one and two.

In a moment poor Peter would be out again. Had they been fools, to be optimistic? The editors themselves had warned Peter, when they wrote replying to his request for an interview. Their staffs were full at present, but in case, at some future date, a vacancy should occur they would be pleased to see him and hear any ideas he had to put forward. Why, if they didn't want anyone, should they trouble to see him, unless there was a little hope?

Her mind was so occupied that she scarcely noticed the woman who sat down opposite her, but the lady had a large black case, whose bestowal, out of the way of passing waitresses, occasioned her difficulty. She pushed it under the table, but it touched Petronella's leg.

"Will that be in your way?" She had a pleasant voice, and her eyes were a lively brown. "No, not at all, honestly," Petronella smiled, liking her instantly.

"It is a case file, full of papers and photographs," the woman told her. "I'm going to see the editor of a large paper, and get his support for my work in China."

Petronella's sympathy was spontaneous. "How funny, I'm waiting for my brother. He's seeing an editor, too. He just wants a job. And I'm sitting here, almost praying. But you—I expect he'll be sure to listen to you!" She felt that this large lady in dark brown had gracious personality. She wanted to know what work she did. Could she be a missionary, or a school teacher? Petronella felt not. She looked

GERMANY DEVELOPS BARTER SYSTEM WITH BRAZIL

BERLIN, Jan. 19 (AP)—The usually well-informed German news service Dienst Aus Deutschland said today that an improved and extended system of bartering merchandise between Germany and Brazil was planned.

The service added that Germany was expecting big cotton shipments from northeastern Brazil and that German yards would be busy soon on ship-building orders from Rio de Janeiro.
