WE TRAVEL

Phoenix, Arizona—II

Phoenix was founded in 1870, incorporated in 1881, and made the state capital in 1889. The population is near 75,000. It is situated in the southern part of the state on the Salt River. The Capitol is built of tufta rock, native of Arizona, and set in a park midst a forest of beautiful trees and shrubs.

Within and near the city are many historic ruins, but time limited the ones we were to visit. So, in picking a spot on Sunday, we decided to visit the Vulture Gold Mines—marked in literature we had been given as a tourist attraction, and in operation in the 1860's. The mine is nearly 80 miles from Phoenix.

We left Phoenix with a brazen sun pouring fiery rays upon us, and drive sixty miles, to Wickenburg, without stopping. Here we found a curio shop and cafe. To fortify ourselves against the miles ahead, we drank date shakes and ate hot dogs. The curio shop was a very interesting establishment, as we noted that most of the curios were made in Japan even to the Indian tomahawks.

This was formerly Indian country, and we had no trouble at all in guessing why the pigment in the Indian skin is red. The only thing which bothered us was how he kept from burning to a crisp—even tires on the trucks and cars were smoking and threatening to turn into jelly, and in buying gasoline, one service station attendant advised us not to fill the gasoline tank, as in the heat it would expand and blow up. That we could believe. In short, you had to leave a few inches for expansion.

Leaving the curio shop we turned into the mountains on an unpaved road—up and down, turning and twisting—even a snake would have lumbago after following such roads—shale and rocks—up one hill and down into a valley of which you could not see the bottom. And all the time a dozen or more buzzards were circling overhead, and we guessed they were waiting for us to fall off into one of the canyons and furnish them with their Sunday dinners (maybe they were vultures).

We disappointed them. And, we imagined the diamond back rattlers were laying out on the hot rocks and hoping for the chance of penetrating us with their fangs.

Believe it or not, we found the gold mine, but we never got within a half mile of it. We turned in where it said turn in and there was a sign a block wide and a half block high which proclaimed: "No trespassing".

And, we found a man there to enforce it. An ancient gent, with a dirty grey beard extending down to the third button on his vest, and hair of like color curling out from under a battered hat informed us in no uncertain terms:

"No visitors," he snarled.

That was all he ever said that we understood, but with one arm inside of the door of the dwelling he occupied, we took it for granted that

Raymond Dennis Announces For County Clerk

R. O. (Raymond) Dennis announces his candidacy for the office of County Clerk subject to action of the General Elections in November. (Mrs. Grace Clingan having resigned in recent weeks for personal reasons, leaves this office to be filled by a write-in vote.)

I am 38 years old, have been a resident of Hockley County for the past fifteen years and am presently farming in the Arnett community. I am married, my wife and I have five children ranging in age from 5 to 15. We are members of the Fifth Street Baptist Church of Levelland.

In making the race two years ago against your past County Clerk, Mrs. Grace Clingan, I was indeed grateful for the fine support that you, the people of Hockley County, extended me.

I would like to state some of the things I believe to be qualifications for an office of this nature. I have had several years experience in different systems of book-keeping and while serving in the Armed Forces during World War II gained considerable experience working in the records and personnel department on a Division Hdq. level.

Since this office will be determined by a write-in vote ONLY, don't forget the name R. O. (Raymond) Dennis for your next County Clerk. Thank you.

Nine Inches Rain Falls in 3 Weeks

The western part of the Ropes territory has been soaked with water the past three weeks—rain gauges at Locketville showing eight inches, and a like amount at the Wilson Campbell place.

Approximately two inches fell on Thursday and Friday nights of last week. Thursday night there was very little rain, but ominous clouds hovered on the western horizon and threatened to float over the territory. While the clouds hung on the rim, the wind did not. It came in gusts that reached an estimated 80 miles an hour. Mrs. Campbell told us, "We went to the storm cellar and the dust coming in through the ventilator almost stifled us. It burned our cotton, but since the rain of Friday night the cotton is looking good again."

The clouds of Thursday night formed in the southwest and then moved northeast, missing Ropes, but hitting Wolfforth and Lubbock. Evidently what was a small tornado hit near the Five Point Theatre, tearing down part of the fence around the show and then splintered a dozen or more telephone posts of the General Telephone Company and knocking out over a hundred service units.

The rain of Friday night came after midnight, and while accompanied by thunder and lightning, there was very little wind.

Lamesa In Dry Spot

Says McCoy

Rev. Roy McCoy, who filled the pulpit at Lamesa in the Church of the Nazarene Sunday, said, "If the farmers in this section think they are bad off, they should take a look at the country around Lamesa."

He told us there were thousands of acres without crops, and where they did have crops they were dying. The condition also prevails in the O'Donnell community.

While talking, Rev. McCoy also told a fish story.

It seems he has a brother-in-law who is a fisherman, and he told of an encounter he had with a fish. This was an extra large fish and fishermen from all over the country were trying to catch him, so he had a special hook made and went angling for the big fish. The fish took the bait, and dragged him so fast over the ground that it set his clothes afire. Later, according to McCoy's brother-in-law, a heavy fog was over all, and the big fish came up to the barn with the cows. So he said to himself, "I'll get him now," and rushed to the house for his shotgun and then let the finny monster have a load of buckshot.

"I knew then," said the brother-in-law, "I had plenty of meat. But when I went to cut the fish up he was so full of fish hooks I had to saw him into pieces and sell him for scrap iron."

he had his muzzle loader cocked and ready.

From there we moved back to the highway and drove toward California (about five miles) until we came to a spot marked by a bronze replica of a stage coach which told us this was the spot where Indians ambushed a stage, murdered six passengers, the driver and a guard.

Fanning ourselves, we viewed the hemming hills, and for a moment we could visualize the red demons, with their blood curdling yells, coming down on the stage coach—hot sand boiling into the air as the chase shot down the unpaved road—the coach rolling over and the horses breaking loose while the warriors, without hesitation, shot the passengers, then coolly took their scalps.

We might dream of those good old days, but we'll take the present in our air conditioned buildings and cars and the redman as tame as the whites about him.

To the farmers of the Ropes community. We would like to give you some figures for our first three years of operation. Our members have earned the amount of $199,618.07 in dividends. The Ropes coop gin now has a total asset of to date $283,722.34. We have 225 members in our association as of the end of the current year.

This year in March we paid out $46,014.44 in cash to our members. Of this amount $15,458.00 was paid on the current year's ginning and the rest was to retire the balance of our First Preferred Stock.

We feel if you as a farmer can receive his ginning revenue along with the Oil Mill return and Compress that it is going to benefit a great deal in keeping the farming enterprise going. The Plains Coop Oil Mill is going to net a little over the Million and Half mark for this year. The Compress is going to net just about a Million Dollar margin for the past season. This dividend will come back to the farmer through the coop gin.

Our books are open to any of our members and we invite all the farmers who are not members to come in and go over our operation with us that we might help you realize the earnings you can receive when you gin at the Ropes coop gin.

August 18th, 1960, will be the annual meetings of the Oil Mill, Compress, & Cotton Assn. All of the members are invited to attend. It will be held at the Oil Mill. Adv.

Whitfields Visit Ropes

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitfield and daughter, Barbara Kay, were in Ropes Sunday visiting in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Morris, and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Thomas and children. The Whitfields live in Lubbock.

J. C. told us that while on a trip to Longview he passed through San Angelo, and encountered some freakish weather. It was at night, with a fifty or sixty mile an hour wind blowing and the wind was hot, pushing the mercury up to 116. The sky was clear, not a sign of a cloud, but folks were going into storm cellars, not to escape a storm, but to escape the heat.

They went to Longview to visit his parents and other relatives, and also to take their son, Stephen, to meet his aunt and uncle who took him to their home in Indiana for a lengthy visit.

And now word has been received from Longview that J. C.'s father in is a hospital and will undergo major surgery for gallstones Thursday (today).

We wish to thank each one who had a part in making our burden lighter by sending the beautiful floral offerings, cards, saying a prayer, and for each person who came during the tragic death of our loved one, Mrs. C. J. Lightholder. May God bless each of you is our prayer.

Freedom in Truth

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free"

Jno. 8:32

The apostle, chosen out of due time, wrote, "Every scripture inspired of God is profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in life". Jno. 5:39. The answers to life's problems are found in the scriptures. If more of us would read the Bible itself, instead of books about the Bible, we would all be better off. If the Bible were used more in the classroom on Sunday morning instead of a Quarterly, etc., people's faith would be stronger. In many places we hear and read, BACK TO THE BIBLE. This is as it should be. "The gospel of Christ is the power of salvation for all". THINK on these things.
