

Italy Proposes Truce On Armament Building

Home Town Talk by Betty

One of the strongest briefs yet compiled in support of the Texas & Pacific Northern's application to build a railroad between Big Spring, Lubbock and Amarillo is that just filed by Attorney General James V. Alfred for the state of Texas—exceptions to the report of O. D. Weed, I. C. C. examiner.

The examiner's recommendation was that about two-fifths of the proposed line be built and the remainder denied. The report, if adopted by the commission, would allow the T & P to build from here to Brownfield and Lubbock.

Twelve exceptions are made by the state.

The first relates to irrigation near Hereford and Lubbock. The examiner said little had been accomplished in that line and that successful truck farming requires easy access to large markets. The state argues that the examiners' own statement is a rather conclusive finding that the public conveniences and necessity demands and requires issuance of the permit applied for. Lack of proper rail facilities has prevented development of irrigation in that section, it is pointed out.

The attorney general cites a case, the Venatchee Southern Railway company's application, wherein the commission itself used this language: "The history of railway construction illustrates that prospective tonnage depending for its development upon transportation facilities, rather than tonnage immediately in view, has been the main justification for railway construction. Progress has involved risks."

Exception No 2 is to the examiner's statement that the Chicago Rock Island and Pacific Railway company has been recently authorized to construct a rail line from Vega southward and westerly to Forrest, N. M. The intervenor declares that under the permit granted the Rock Island construction work was required to begin upon this project not later than May 1, 1930; that the Rock Island made a "turnout" at Vega and notified the commission that construction has begun in accordance with the authorization; and that since the "turnout" was made work has not progressed on that line and, in fact, construction of this line to Forrest, N. M. has not been undertaken or prosecuted in good faith and that no part of the line has been built.

Special exception is made to the statement that a large portion of the cattle and other livestock of this territory goes to Kansas City, which is more distant than the natural and primary market of Ft. Worth, and shows that this has been due to the policy of the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad company. Linked with this exception is another to the weight and consideration given to the El Paso market, because it is shown that El Paso has not heretofore been able to compete as a market or be reached by this territory as a possible market because of the inadequacy and almost totally lacking rail facilities.

The examiner advised that El Paso is a market of increasing importance, particularly for

Railroads Seek Lower Line Rates

Reduction To New Orleans None To Mobile Petitioned For

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—Southwestern railroads asked the interstate commerce commission for permission to reduce rates on cotton from west of the Mississippi to New Orleans without reducing rates to Mobile.

The carriers claimed truck and barge competition to New Orleans was threatening their business, whereas there was no competition to Mobile.

Several months ago the commission ordered the railroads to keep a direct ratio between New Orleans and Mobile freight. The railroads shipping cotton to Galveston, Houston and Corpus Christi, recently were allowed to reduce rates to meet truck competition.

"We will accept any kind of wearable clothing and request that the public cooperate with us to the extent of bringing it to the Settles Hotel anytime during the day, starting Monday, Sept. 14. The office will be kept open for approximately two weeks," the committee chairman declared.

Bristow Takes Second Honors On Local Links

First Invitation Meet Of Club Attracts Large Number Of Players

Charlie Quails, the Pride of Post, added another championship to his belt when he defeated Ohio Bristow, the local ace, two up here yesterday to win the first invitation tournament of the Big Spring Country Club.

Bristow took the lead on the first hole and at the turn had the Post nine Obie got into trouble and at the sixteenth the match was even. Quails sank a five for a par on the long seventeenth while Bristow took six, putting him one down for the first time.

Teeling off on the eighteenth Quails topped his drive and went in the rough on the left of the fairway. Bristow put a long shot behind a bush on the right of the fairway. Quails' second shot was an ace and about five feet from the cup, while Bristow was using two shots to get on in four. Bristow conceded the putt and the match.

While interesting from a match standpoint the medal score of the two finalists was nothing to get excited over. Both players shot a better round in the semi-final morning round.

Both finalists drives from the first tee carried better than 300 yards. Quails second was short four feet of the cup. Quails third overran the cup while Bristow was down for a birdie three. Quails took the short second with a par while Obie was one over. Bristow came back to win the third and fourth. The fifth was halved with five.

Doak Attacks Radical Alien

Drastic Immigration Restrictions Pointed To By Labor Secretary

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Sept. 8 (AP)—Secretary of Labor William Nuckles Doak delivered his annual Labor Day address here, combining a survey of what the federal government has done to relieve unemployment, with an outspoken denunciation of "unscrupulous racketeers," "extreme radical aliens," and their sympathizers in this country.

He told patrons of the Appalachian Tri-State Fair he believed "before long" the nation would regain prosperity; he defended the tariff act, without which, he said, "conditions of unemployment would have been chaotic."

Doak emphasized the benefits of the present drastic, restrictive immigration laws.

"I am no pessimist," he said, "but on the contrary, an extreme optimist, so far as holding the view that Americans will solve any problem with which they have to deal."

He urged before long we will emerge from our present difficulties and stand once more on the substantial plane of prosperity.

Immigration

It was in the secretary's discussion of restrictive immigration, which cut the annual total from 1,287,318 in 1913 to an estimated 42,256 this year, that he launched into his attack upon "extreme radical aliens," their sympathizers and racketeers, "an insidious, damning intrigue far exceeding anything in our history of more than 150 years."

"The task of expelling such aliens," he said, "is a task of the highest importance, the purpose of which is to overthrow the government of the United States by force and violence," he said, "is hampered by every possible resort to the courts and by the persistent propaganda of the part of un-American organizations of American citizens."

Unfortunately, there are certain of our people who are more interested in the protection of grafters and racketeers engaged in alien smuggling and in the protection against apprehension of illegal and communal aliens by our immigration authorities than they are in seeing that the foreign-born who have legally entered our country are guaranteed justice and a square deal.

In outlining the steps taken by the federal government to aid in the unemployment situation, Secretary Doak cited:

Men engaged in public construction work for the federal government now total 760,000 against 180,000 at start of the depression.

More than 1,000,000 employees directly on the federal pay-roll.

More than 1,000,000 public and private school employees.

Reduction of immigration from 50 to 1 on the basis of today and 20 years ago, 5 to 1 on the basis of today and last year.

Appointment of the national committee of unemployment relief, headed by Walter S. Gifford.

The tariff.

Employment

The free federal employment service, which, he said, with state and municipal aid, has placed 600,000 men in jobs in five months.

Deportation of 18,000 aliens during the last fiscal year.

"Of the administration as a whole, the secretary said:

"Our administration in Washington is doing all that is humanly possible to relieve the present depression."

Coach Talks To Rotarians

Value Of Football Not Solely In Winning Of Games, He Says

"Football is intended not solely for the winning or losing of an athletic contest but for the development of the boys playing the game," declared Obie Britton, high school coach in a talk before the Big Spring Rotary Club at noon today.

Mr. Britton called attention to the fact that football training takes hold of boys at a formative period in their lives when they have left the work of such movements as the Boy Scouts of America. At least three teams in ward schools of Big Spring are planned by Mr. Britton as a part of his work.

B. Reagan discussed the work of the Buffalo Trails Council of the Boy Scouts and explained the financing of the organization. Upon motion of W. C. Blankenship the club went on record as expressing itself to the board of directors as being in favor of financially assisting Boy Scout work in this area at this time.

GENEVA, Sept. 8.—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, proposed to the League of Nations assembly an immediate truce on reparations building, continuing through the disarmament conference beginning in February.

Grandi said competitive armament policies were responsible for most of the European economic difficulties. The readjustment of war debts and reparations is impeded and actual disarmament is more important than further additions to the league's machinery, he declared.

Government Cotton Crop Estimate Up

Highest Figure For September Since 1915 Is Predicted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—The government today estimated the 1931 cotton crop at 15,685,000 bales, the highest September cotton forecast since 1915. The figure was 101,000 bales higher than the August forecast, which caused prices to decline $6 to $7.50 per bale.

It was indicated that the agriculture department believes this year's crop will be one million bales larger than last season.

Condition of the crop was reported as 68 per cent of normal. Indicated yield was 183.6 pounds per acre.

The census bureau announced findings prior to September 1 totaled 555,160 bales.

Texas, it was announced, has 15,825,000 acres left to harvest. Condition of the Texas crop was 67 per cent of normal. It was indicated production would amount to 5,094,000 bales in Texas. The state already had gained 353,023 bales.

Herald Cooking School Lecturer Has Found Greatest Attraction In Kitchen Since Her Childhood

Mrs. Myra Oliver Dougan, home economics expert who is to hold a free cooking school for women readers of the Herald, beginning September 29, from childhood showed a liking for no other occupation quite so much as for cooking. The kitchen seemed to hold some fascination for her.

Mrs. Dougan as a little girl, spent not so much time with her dolls and doll dressing, as she did in making mud pies. As she grew older she became interested in the science of cooking and determined to eliminate, personally, all matter of "guessing" in her art.

She graduated with high honors in the home economics department of Oklahoma public schools. She then entered upon an arduous but interesting course in the school of home economics of Oklahoma A&M college at Stillwater. Her first three years were spent largely in the laboratory, where she mastered the chemistry of foods, their relations to health, dietetics, practical physiology; with her own hands she resolved basic food substances into their original elements and saw their reaction under varying conditions.

She studied marketing, home cooking, the finer points of food service for the hostess, and amassed a great wealth of information concerning every phase of scientific cooking. Her last two years, Mrs. Dougan spent delving into higher scientific research in cooking, and finally, gave an entire year to child nutrition and proper foods for children, specializing particularly in this field.

The four following years the lecturer spent enlightening the high school girls of Oklahoma in home economics departments. Her ability, ambition and expert training in cooking soon attracted the attention of large food concerns, and she gave considerable time to this phase, holding cooking schools in Oklahoma City, Dallas, St. Louis and other large cities of the south-west. She has also demonstrated Battle Creek health food products.

Desiring to acquire a better insight into real business life, Mrs. Dougan traveled for some time as a booking agent for some time as a booking agent for the Wayne B. Sewell organization of Atlanta. It was from this service that she came back into her present cooking school work which she now definitely knows as her life's calling.

She conducts cooking schools throughout much of the United States, and all of the larger cities of the southwest are included in her itinerary.

Louisiana's Drastic Example, Outlawing Next Year's Cotton Crop May Affect Other States

ATLANTA, Sept. 8 (AP)—Will Huey Long's plan to prohibit cotton planting in 1932 be adopted in the south?

A few days ago a chorus of "No" from every section of Dixie, except possibly Louisiana, would have been the answer.

But now the negative is not so emphatic. Those who have opposed the plan from the first admit that the idea is gaining.

Louisiana has passed the law the senate voted in favor of it ten minutes after it reached the floor.

The bill was rushed to Governor Long's executive mansion in the afternoon at 1:40 a. m. He sat up in bed, clad in a cotton night shirt, and signed the bill, making it law, effective when states proposed.

ROSS'S STEALING during three-fourths of the cotton crop have concurred.

'Asinine' Says Bilbo

There are those who doubt the constitutionality of the law, and the legality of its enforcement, but none is as blunt in his statement as Governor Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi, who classed the plan as "wild, fanatic and asinine in the extreme."

Nevertheless, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida farmers have gone on record, in unexpected numbers, as favoring the plan, and Georgia C. Blackwood of South Carolina is expected to call a special session of the legislature to enact a law similar to that passed by Louisiana.

Because Texas is the largest cotton growing state, action it will take is being awaited by the rest of the south.

Governor Ross Sterling, after polling Texas senators, declared a majority favored some plan to control cotton acreage by law and that a special session was justified.

The Texas governor, requested ROSS & RUSSELL, by Governor Gardner of North Carolina to join in calling a conference of governors, senators and others to discuss the problem, declared such procedure might involve delay.

Conference On Fair To Be Held Sept. 11

Anticipating the annual Howard county fair to be held early in October here, the Chamber of Commerce is mailing out letters to a man and a woman in each rural community inviting them to attend a conference at 3 p. m., September 11, in the county court room for the purpose of discussing community exhibits for the fair.

Ross S. Sterling, Texas senator, is in a statement made public as he convened a special session of the legislature at noon today that the hopes and prayers of Texas are that the cotton overproduction situation can be remedied by legislation.

AUSTIN, Sept. 8 (AP)—Governor Ross S. Sterling told the legislature in a statement made public as he convened a special session of the legislature at noon today that the hopes and prayers of Texas are that the cotton overproduction situation can be remedied by legislation.

He said it was determined whether legislation would be effective in the matter. He designated no favorite scheme, leaving decision in the method of controlling production to the legislators.

"The governor declared that only an acute emergency in the state's basic industry justified the special session."

Steers Work For Lamesa Improved Execution Of Plays Shown By High School Players

While Coach Oble Bristow labored hard on the links giving Charlie Qualis, Post City, a battle for the Country Club Invitational crown, his gridsters were sweating and fighting under a broiling sun...

Vast improvement has been made by the squad in the past week. Plays now move with a rhythmic click and men are carrying out their assignments with more celerity.

Although the spirit among the players is obviously much higher than it has been for several years here, it is still below a first class level, according to those who watch the practice daily from the side lines.

When the Steers step on the gridiron here Friday in their streamlined gold and black uniforms, they will possess a diversity in attack. They will not confine themselves to plugging at the line, skirting the ends and shredding tackles, but they also will likely resort to a dazzling array of aerial offense tricks.

Yesterday the Steers pulled some up to date football. One play of a type that cannot be stopped by a team that lays for it if the play is half executed, gained a remarkable amount of ground and completely baffled the defense.

At guards, double passes and deceptive end runs, will make the Black and Gold catch hard to stop. Again at 3:30 p. m. the Bristow men under the guidance of their coach and Line Mentor Brown will take to their rehearsal grounds for a bitter struggle shortly after 4 p. m.

The Justamere Bridge Club will meet with Mrs. V. Van Gleason tomorrow afternoon at her home.

Learning To Die

A GOOD soldier should know
how to meet death gallantly,
and it appears from a recent Press dispatch that John J.
Fitzgerald of Boston, formerly a soldier in the A. E. F. knew this as well as any soldier that ever lived—even though death did not come to him until nearly 13 years
after the war ended.

Fitzgerald—in case you didn't see the story—lay in a Veterans' Bureau Hospital in Pennsylvania Strapped wounds and gas had wrecked his body. He had only a fortnight to live, and he knew it.
Also he had some $300 in ready cash.

So a few days ago, Fitzgerald left his bed, dressed quietly, and went A. W. O. L. from the hospital.
He went to Pittsburgh with his cash in his pocket. There he made for a mission where the down and out were cared for.

Quietly, the ex-soldier was living with the "down and out" who were living on charity. He talked with them and learned their needs.
To one man he gave the price of a ticket home. For another he bought new shoes. For a third he bought food.

So it went. Presently, he had just 75 cents left. He went to a cheap rooming house, rented a room, and lay down to die. Death came very speedily. His body went to the city mortuary and was identified just in time to prevent burial in the Potter's Field.

The great ones of the earth, after all, aren't the ones that give the rest of us the courage and faith that we need if we are to go on living. Those things come from the humble ones—the unnamed and unnoticed private soldiers who prove that unselfishness and simple bravery can triumph over death and the fear of death. There is more encouragement about John Fitzgerald than in a dozen sermons or a hundred novels. Humanity can handle this last figure as he handled his—no matter how very far below the angels.

Most of us do not like to think about death. We are afraid of it.
But that fear can be conquered
just as this man conquered it—
by thinking, not of one's own fate, but of the help that one can give to others. A soldier has to learn that lesson so thoroughly that it is a part of him. This Boston Irishman learned it, and when the test
came he met it gallantly.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

The President's Burdens

THE PRESIDENT put upon the presidency in normal times is heavy, but it is redoubled in a period like the present. Every man with a grievance, or request, or a freakish political or social scheme desires to run with it at once to the White House. One has only to glance at the daily lists of Mr. Hoover's callers to see what a careen
and urgency of problems are continually being forced upon his attention.

Because the American President has a very great responsibility, it is too hastily assumed that he has unlimited power. Because he feels it his duty to listen patiently to complaints, people go away thinking that he ought at once to furnish the remedy. It is even argued that, without congress, "on his hands" just now, Mr. Hoover ought to be doing everything that is needful.

But the American President is not a dictator. He cannot, like Mussolini, on his own motion, set aside funds for public works, or appropation money for the relief of the unemployed, Even President Hindenburg, with the reichstag not in session, has greater power to govern
by decree than has the President of the United States with congress
not sitting. Some of these necessary limitations of the functions and ability of any American President ought to be kept in mind by those who keep on clamoring over what they call Mr. Hoover's do-nothing policy. He is, in fact, doing all that he can—and angels could do no more.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

MR. McGUIR

WASHINGTON—If one Mr. Mc-Gugin of Coffeyville, Kas., is un-careful he may find himself an unpopular "m" in a Washington in December to serve his first term as a member of congress—
For McGugin
has let it be known that he intends offering a bill in the house calling for a 25 per cent cut in salaries of all federal employees.

Those appointed and just plain government employees.
It's not a move particularly conducive to personal popularity in a city like Washington, where the bulk of population depends on Uncle Sam for the bi-monthly pay check, half holidays on Saturday, and early dismissal on days when the thermometer climbs up around 100 degrees.

Nor will McGugin's plan, that it will help end the present depression, and his promise of extending it for only three years, aid much.
Government workers as a rule are not likely to be moved by such proposals.

LIKE THEIR PAY

Even his colleagues in the house
and senate have shown a disposition of fondness for their pay.
Some six years ago when their salaries were raised from $7,500 to $10,000 a year, there were bitter moments in both houses before the increase went through.

Charges of "holier than thou"
were hurled at those who opposed the raise. "Custodians of the senate's conscience" was another descriptive phrase.

William Borah of Idaho was one of the chief opponents. He went so far as to refuse to take the increase until he had been re-elected to a job paying the larger sum. It was not until he was sworn in on March 4 of this year, for a new term, that he agreed to accept the $10,000.

It was during this debate that Thomas Heflin, favorable to the raise, delivered his celebrated
"mint julep" jibe at Borah—a classic in senate lore.

TAKES HIS MEDICINE
It concerned the man who had drunk not wisely but too well, and had appealed to his doctor to help him "take off" without arousing his wife's suspicions. The doctor was to prescribe mild juleps, the patient was to appear as resisting them.

Finally, at his wife's insistence,
"the amber-colored liquid flowed out of the velvet rolls of his stomach like a dewdrop, sinking into the heart of a rose."

Faintly he inquired: "When must
I take another?"
She replied: "In two hours."
Well, he said, "if I am sleepy
wake me, and if I won't take it,
make me."

HYPNOTISM
Faith cures and so-called miraculous cures have been known since the beginning of history.

For many centuries such cures were achieved during religious trances and through mystical practices.

In the latter part of the eighteenth century at about the time of the American revolution, a Viennese physician by the name of Franz Anton Mesmer developed a practice and elaborated a theory
later given the name of hypnotism.

Mesmer accounted for cures he effected by his "mystical practices
on the basis of animal magnetism."
His animal magnetism, he thought to be a kind of invisible gas or fluid which could be seen by a few elect, such as sleep-walkers.
It was thought that animal magnetism could be bottled or boxed, and that not only human beings but trees and other objects could be endowed with it.

Mesmer failed to arouse much interest in Germany, but in Paris
he made a great impression.
Orthodox medical science looked upon Mesmer and his animal magnetism as a colossal piece of quack-ery.

About the middle of the last century James Braid, an English physician, became convinced that there was more to Mesmer's idea than the medical fraternity would grant and after some original study he developed what is today recognized as hypnotism.

He proved that mesmerism was not based upon any animal magnetism but rather on the suggestibility of the hypnotized individual.
The great French neurologist, Charcot, was deeply interested in hypnotism and attempted to subject it to scientific control.

Hypnotism marks an interesting turning point in the development of modern psychiatry.
Among other things, it demonstrated that abnormal behavior can be produced without actual change in structure or constitution of the individual's nervous system.

SYNOPSIS: The marquessa, hoping to prevent a love affair between Juanita and Kirk Stanton and Adrian Fouche, tells Kirk's grandmother, Nelly Beane, and Adrian's mother that the girl is engaged to a Spaniard, Juanita, though posing as Senorita Flores, their new friends. She falls in love with Kirk, who tells her that he has seen Nelly, they are engaged. At Adrian's home dinner, the guests talk of mysterious, veiled cigarette girl in Duvitt's New Orleans gambling parlors, whom Eric Ledbetter calls "Moon of Delight." MULES ELECTROCUTED
SAN FRANCISCO (INS)—Hornets and electrocuted mules nearby caused the death of Walter Egan, a power company employee, according to an unusual accident report submitted to the state railroad commission. Renfro, riding a mule and leading three others, disturbed a hornet's nest. The mules dashed into the power lines and fell dead on Renfro. He lay for hours with eight broken ribs before a rescue party released him and took him to a hospital in Eureka.

BOSTON'S LIBRARY TOTAL
BOSTON (INS)—The increased demand for reading material has been met by the addition of 138,000 books to the Boston Public Library since last year, bringing the total number of volumes in the library system up to 1,528,000. According to the annual trustees report the circulation of books was 4,123,000 showing an increase of more than 200,000 over the year 1929. Records indicate that since the world war, history books have been the most popular. Although the greatest demand for books is made by schools, 169,281 cards were issued permitting readers to take books for home reading.

WEAKNESS TIRED FEELING
CARDUI has helped many women, as in a case described below by Mrs. B. F. Fogle, of Sulphur, La.: "I suffered a great deal from weakness and a very tired feeling. I was nervous and my back ached. I did not sleep at all well, so did not feel equal to my work when morning came. My sister told me that she thought Cardui would benefit me, and after I began taking it I could tell that it did help me. I rested much better, and felt better in every way. I took six bottles and it was quite a benefit to me."

South Watching Texas Meanwhile in Georgia Gov. Richard R. Russell, Jr., had announced that a special session of the legislature would be called when and if one should be ordered convened in Texas.

Russell telegraphed President Hoover and the federal farm board that Georgia would cooperate in any feasible plan.

Reports from many counties in Georgia indicate that many farmers would sanction legislation prohibiting the planting of cotton next year.

Gov. Harvey Parnell of Arkansas, next to Texas in cotton production, said the "idea is gaining strength rapidly" in his state.

In Oklahoma, Governor Murray proposed a law providing for a board to control cotton production. Approval by a majority of the cotton producing states would be required.

J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, has advocated legislation to cut cotton acreage in half in 1932. Texas, which produces a third of the nation's crop, this year planted 63 per cent of its cultivated land in cotton.

Bristow

At Sixth Bristow took the sixth when Quails' putt for a four rimmed the cup and Bristow took a par four. Both were green high on the seventh but Quails was in number eight fairway while Bristow was not ten feet off the green. Quails' second overran the green. Obie pitched dead to the cup and the hole was conceded, putting Bristow four up.

Quails took the eighth with a par and halved the ninth to leave him three down at the turn.

On the back nine the postmaster drove the green on No. 10 while Nix took the fifteenth and was one down. Both took a four on No. 16. With Nix on and with a four '00' putt for a certain birdie Quails sank his approach from off the green for an Eagle three and the match.

Bristow, in his morning round with Robbins was right in every way. He stepped into the lead on the first hole and never relinquished it. He was literally burning the course up on the sixteen holes he played before he won the match. Turning in four birdies and a pair of Eagles he finished the sixteenth five under par to give him the right to play Quails in the final round.

Each were in the thick on the next hole and by mutual agreement shot second balls. Bristow put his second in the rough on the left of the fairway while Quails was down the middle and not more than twenty feet from the green. Bristow made a nice recovery and was on for a six foot putt. Quails was on in three and a little nearer the cup. Obie's putt stopped on the rim of the cup while Quails' was too hard and went over. Both were down in five.

Quails came back with a three on the eleventh. They teed off on the thirteenth with Bristow one up. Bristow took a four. Quails sank for a tree and the fatch was all square.

Quails Coheedes Number 14 found Quails on the far side of the green while Bristow was not eighteen inches from the cup. Quails conceded the putt and missed his second shot putting him one down again.

Bristow drove far into the rough on the next hole while Quails got a beautiful drive down the middle of the fairway. Falling on two recovery shots Bristow conceded the hole and things were even again.

They were down in four each on the sixteenth. Quails put a nice drive 30 yards down the middle on No. 17 and Bristow followed suit and dropped his tee shot within four feet of his opponent's. Both were on in four and when Obie missed his putt by eight inches Quails went down to win and go one up for the first time.

Quails topped his drive on the home hole and went into the rough on the left of the fairway. Bristow followed with a long drive into the rough on the right. Quails came back to drop his second shot within five feet of the cup. Bristow was finally on in four and conceded the hole and match.

Quails had a tough opponent in the morning round in the person of Nix from Sweetwater. The pair finished the first nine even up and Nix won the tenth to go one up. They halved the eleventh and when Nix got into trouble on No. 12 he conceded the hole. They were even on the thirteenth and fourteenth. Nix took the fifteenth and was one down. Both took a four on No. 16. With Nix on and with a four '00' putt for a certain birdie Quails sank his approach from off the green for an Eagle three and the match.

They were down in four each on the sixteenth. Quails put a nice drive 30 yards down the middle on No. 17 and Bristow followed suit and dropped his tee shot within four feet of his opponent's. Both were on in four and when Obie missed his putt by eight inches Quails went down to win and go one up for the first time.

Quails topped his drive on the home hole and went into the rough on the left of the fairway. Bristow followed with a long drive into the rough on the right. Quails came back to drop his second shot within five feet of the cup. Bristow was finally on in four and conceded the hole and match.

Quails had a tough opponent in the morning round in the person of Nix from Sweetwater. The pair finished the first nine even up and Nix won the tenth to go one up. They halved the eleventh and when Nix got into trouble on No. 12 he conceded the hole. They were even on the thirteenth and fourteenth. Nix took the fifteenth and was one down. Both took a four on No. 16. With Nix on and with a four '00' putt for a certain birdie Quails sank his approach from off the green for an Eagle three and the match.

Bristow, in his morning round with Robbins was right in every way. He stepped into the lead on the first hole and never relinquished it. He was literally burning the course up on the sixteen holes he played before he won the match. Turning in four birdies and a pair of Eagles he finished the sixteenth five under par to give him the right to play Quails in the final round.

Each were in the thick on the next hole and by mutual agreement shot second balls. Bristow put his second in the rough on the left of the fairway while Quails was down the middle and not more than twenty feet from the green. Bristow made a nice recovery and was on for a six foot putt. Quails was on in three and a little nearer the cup. Obie's putt stopped on the rim of the cup while Quails' was too hard and went over. Both were down in five.

Quails came back with a three on the eleventh. They teed off on the thirteenth with Bristow one up. Bristow took a four. Quails sank for a tree and the fatch was all square.

Quails Coheedes Number 14 found Quails on the far side of the green while Bristow was not eighteen inches from the cup. Quails conceded the putt and missed his second shot putting him one down again.

Bristow drove far into the rough on the next hole while Quails got a beautiful drive down the middle of the fairway. Falling on two recovery shots Bristow conceded the hole and things were even again.

livestock but very apparently given this fact no particular weight in the conclusion which he has reached and the recommendation he has made, said the attorney general.

With reference to the livestock going to Kansas City, it is very apparent that the examiner does not take into consideration the reason why this is true, says the brief.

The intervenor says the Santa Fe has dominated and controlled the area to be traversed by the T & P N and its policy has not been to route cattle via the Texas & Pacific, thus giving the T & P the longer haul, but to encourage in every possible manner the shipment of cattle over its own lines and over a much longer haul to the more distant markets of Kansas City and St. Joseph.

"There is no earthly reason why the primary Texas market of Fort Worth should not receive the 53.3 per cent of the cattle, which now goes to Kansas City, but there is every reason why Texas' own market should receive not only this 53.3 per cent but also the 15.5 per cent that already goes to Fort Worth," the brief recites.

The intervenor excepts to language of the examiner relating to highways, in which it is stated that the country is well supplied with highways. Argument is made that there are practically no paved highways within the territory, nor other highways improved beyond being graded and that the condition of the highways is far from such as should be in any way considered in arriving at a determination of this case, and that the commission is not concerned with or interested in the transportation of property over the highway when determining a question of public convenience and necessity, as applied to rail lines.

T. S. Christopher, of Lamesa, assistant attorney general, who wrote the brief, points out that he has resided in this section of the state a number of years and finds it entirely unnecessary to refer to the record in the case for any knowledge of the highways. From Big Spring to Canyon, it is declared, there is no paved highway near the T & P N route, except for about 15 miles between Lubbock and Slaton. There is paving between Canyon and Amarillo and some east of Amarillo but there is none in any territory served by

From the very beginning of the economic depression, he has been foremost in the field of endeavor to maintain wages rates and improve employment conditions. Nothing that could be done by him, either by way of advice or of service, is being left undone. Rumors Of Spread Of Infantile Paralysis False, Doctors Say

Some misinformed persons have been spreading the report that there are several cases of infantile paralysis in the city. The Herald has investigated the sources of this information and has asked the town's physicians about it.

In every case the physicians report that the only case known today is that of Lorena Brooks, who is now reported out of danger and on the road to recovery.

The Herald makes the following suggestions regarding the unpleasant rumors: Whenever you hear such tales ask the person who is telling you for his or her authority and unless you receive a satisfactory answer you can usually discount the whole story. If you do get the source of information, check it for yourself. In case you do not wish to do this, or can not, call the Herald and it will be glad to check the facts for you.

Such rumors and their attendant panic are the aftermath of every contagious disease that strikes a city. The only intelligent way to combat it is not to believe everything you hear, but to make sure of the authority of your information concerning it and then check that authority.

Quarantine Lifted At Home Of Judge And Mrs. J. T. Brooks

Mrs. J. T. Brooks reports that Lorena is much better today and that she is feeling optimistic about her recovery from a paralytic condition.

The quarantine has been lifted and Dr. Hall says that Judge and Mrs. Brooks may have visitors, but he advises absolute quiet and no company for Lorena because of her nervous condition.

Mrs. Brooks has fumigated the house thoroughly much more thoroughly than necessary, the drug girls say. She has had Lorena's pet rabbits killed for fear they might carry the germ, and has done everything possible to prevent the spread of the disease.

Both Judge and Mrs. Brooks say that the kindness of their friends in helping them and in bringing them food, in doing other little acts of neighborliness, has played a big part in lightening the heavy burden of sickness.

Boys Trying To Show Off A Girl Does Not Enjoy Being Made Conspicuous By Her Escort Who Is Under The Influence Of Alcohol. It Is Positively Degrading And Disgusting, And We Do Not Stand For It.

I have attended many high school parties and other activities, and I can truthfully say that I have never seen any student drinking.

The wets who accuse youth of excessive drinking are doing us an injustice and we intend to defend ourselves. All over the county prohibition has become a "red hot" issue. The young people are getting into the fight with intelligence. Most of us do not remember the horror of the old saloon. But we are willing to take the word of our elders for the fact that it was degrading. We oppose it because we realize that in this modern machine age of speed and efficiency one must have a clear head. We must think swiftly and accurately and you can do that when his brain is befuddled by alcohol? We are modern. We strive for efficiency. We wish to come out on top. Therefore we do not drink.

Girl Swimming Star Neither Smokes Nor Drinks

One of the latest lights in the athletic firmament is the versatile swimming star, Miss Eleanor Holm. In a special article in the New York Times, Arthur J. Dalley has several interesting things to say about this seventeen-year-old girl who is "one of America's greatest women swimmers," who made the American Olympic team in 1928 and holds an extraordinary number of American records, the 1931 Athletic Almanac listing her for twenty-eight national marks, many of the vitally world's standards. The one thing she wants to do now is to win the 100-meter back stroke in the next Olympic games. "Her method of training is simplicity itself; she doesn't," says the reporter.

But she obeys certain rules: "She neither smokes nor drinks," and when in training, which is for about two weeks before the championship meet for which she is trying, she goes to bed promptly at ten o'clock every night. And "despite her successes, she is unaffected and is as popular with the girls as with the boys."
