Good Gardening

The nasturtium is a good as well as a flower, and thus stands up pretty high in the graces of many city gardeners. The com-mon dwarf and the tall variety are easily grown from seeds sown outdoors after the ground becomes warm. Plants of the dwarf variety should be thinned to stand six to eight inches apart; the tall variety to about a foot apart. The tall kind require stakes or a trellis to climb upon. Half-ripened seeds may be added to pickles to give a pungent flavor; both leaves and flowers are used in salads. If you want to keep a fresh supply throughout the season, plantings should follow the first at intervals of five or six weeks. The soil should be heavily ferti-
