Small Roadside Parks Developed In Texas As Attraction For Travelers

AUSTIN, Feb. 5.—A Centennial year development which will pay dividends in pleasure and comfort for highway travelers for many years to come is under way throughout the state. It includes the construction of approximately 200 "pocket-sized" highway parks which are being developed by workers under the National Youth Administration in the state in conjunction with the state highway department.

The small parks, several of which have been completed, will dot the main highways of the state, offering places where the tired motorist may rest, play, and eat. Each park, separated from the highway by low stone walls, will contain a stone barbecue pit, stone benches and tables. Drives will be gravelled and trees and shrubs will be set out. A few of the parks will be less than one acre in size but most of them will be from three and one-half to six acres in extent. The idea for the highway parks is said to be strictly a Texas development and the parks are expected to find favor especially with the thousands of motorists from other states who will pass over the Lone Star state's splendid highway system during Centennial year.

12 Centennial Events Added To Texas Calendar

DALLAS, Feb. 5.—Twelve events were added during the last week to the official calendar of Centennial year celebrations being compiled in the state department of information here. Those added during the last week include the following: Wharton, Centennial observance on Oct. 13 to 17; Belton, historical observance and rodeo on July 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31; San Angelo, Fat Stock show and rodeo March 7 to 11 and Pioneer celebration and stock show Sept. 7 to 11; Marshall, Caddo Lake state park opening celebration May 4 to 6; Erseport, commemoration of Battle of Velasco on May 14; D'Hanis, historical celebration at Fort Lincoln on May 26; Paris, pageant "Texas in the Making" on April 21; Boerne, Centennial day at Kendall County fair on Sept. 6; Comfort, rodeo and pageant on July 4 and 5; Gonzales, Centennial stamp sale on March 2, and Eagle Pass, Border jubilee on July 3, 4, and 5.

'Hypnotism', Dentists Said; But It Was Hartman's Tooth Desensitizer

Dr. Leroy L. Hartman and a diagram showing a cross section of a tooth with a cavity in which a drop of the desensitizer is placed before drilling is begun.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor) NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (AP)—Ambitious dentists suspected that they were watching a case of hypnotism when Dr. Leroy L. Hartman of Columbia University made his first public demonstration of his new pain-killer for use in filling teeth.

He had been called in to the university dental clinic because a small girl refused to let a student dentist continue. Those at the clinic did not know he had a new desensitizing mixture.

They scarcely noticed as he placed a drop of a mixture of thymol, alcohol and ether in the cavity. Thymol and alcohol are a common antiseptic in dentistry. They did not get the significance of the pause of a minute after Dr. Hartman applied the pain-killer.

After that moment, Dr. Hartman motioned the student to continue his work. The child did not move an eyelash. She felt no more pain. At first onlookers thought she had been hypnotized.

In about 500 trials of the pain-killer made before giving the formula to the dental profession at a meeting of 2,000 cheering dentists here, there were many similar experiences.

"The Hartman desensitizer does not mean, and was not intended to mean, that there is never to be any more pain in dental work. It is intended to relieve a specific pain. There is good reason to believe that the pain relieved includes much of the misery dental patients dread.

Dr. Hartman's desensitizer anesthetizes the dentine, the hard ivory substance lying beneath the enamel, and composing most of the solid substance in which drilling has to be done. The structure of the tooth is first the outer enamel, second dentine which is most of its internal substance and third, deep in the center the pulp cavity, where the nerve lies.

His difficulty was not to find a pain-killer but one which was harmless and would last.

This he accomplished by mixing ether and alcohol with thymol. The latter combines with fatty substances in the dentine to make a seal for the ether and alcohol. This anesthetic is cheap, a few cents an application. It was given to the dental profession without patent or other restrictions. It burns if it touches the flesh.

Doubters have claimed it would destroy the nerve. The Columbia experiments include filling teeth with its aid, and four months later taking out the fillings and examining the nerve. In one year's time no killing of nerves or other bad effects have been found.

It does not kill the dentine pain until it comes in contact with live tooth tissue. Thus when placed in the decay of a new cavity of short duration it is likely to kill the drill pain immediately. Because it still can contact live tissues.

But in an old cavity it may not relieve the pain until the decay is cut through. For old decay acts like a cauterizing surface over the live dentine. It does not work in a cavity containing any moisture.

When it was announced 2,600 dentists in New York bought out the available drug store supplies. Some of them were given old thymol, impure ether and impure alcohol. These mixtures are reported to have failed.

Some patients say the difference is that without the desensitizer the drill feels like cutting marble—with the pain-killer, it feels like cutting chalk.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Behind the uncertainty that has marked the administration's course on the forthcoming tax program is a brain-twisting riddle that only the U. S. supreme court can answer. It is a one billion dollar enigma.

WASHINGTON—Behind the uncertainty that has marked the administration's course on the forthcoming tax program is a brain-twisting riddle that only the U. S. supreme court can answer. It is a one billion dollar enigma.

During the two and a half years existence of the late AAA, this amount was collected in processing taxes—almost entirely from the pockets of consumers—and went into the pockets of farmers in the form of crop benefit payments.

The $300,000,000 had not been passed on to the growers. It was held in escrow pending the court's decision on the AAA suits. Its return will be a bad blow to the president's budget plans and will necessitate raising of new funds to make up the loss, but it is a tangible and concrete problem.

Inner council legalists differ widely as to the government's accountability for the sum. Some believe, on the basis of the supreme court's order that the $300,000,000 be returned, that the government must eventually refund the billion.

Disastrous Delay. Meanwhile the administration cannot delay much longer in bringing out a tax plan. The new farm bill has been started on its way through congress and steps must be taken to finance it.

Whether such retroactive legislation will withstand court scrutiny no one knows. But, as one presidential adviser observed, "There is no harm in trying. The government can't lose all the time."

Oscar Johnston has just been put in the position of controlling more cotton than any other man in the world's history.

"What I want to know," he said, "is this: Is there much danger that these two government agencies, each trying to sell cotton, will interfere with one another?"

That Paul Revere made his famous ride from Boston to Concord and Lexington, Sol says he didn't do it, and couldn't have done it, and nobody supposed he did it until Longfellow, with poetic license, "invented" the tale.

Not infrequently writers and artists go there to surcharge their appreciation of the blunt realities of life. They like to absorb a part of its drab drama, especially if a canvas or book is contemplated.

Warden Lawes of Sing Sing pursuing a side career of literature, plans to write a novel tracing the life of a convict after he has been restored to society.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

Chapter 42
BRIGHT VISION
"I can't do it," Corrigan repeated. "Terry would never forgive me."
"All right," said Allaire. "I'll pay somebody to take me up there and if you think I'm fooling, you're going to be one surprised Irishman."
She was determined. Corrigan regarded her intently.
"I guess you would at that," he said finally. "Well, all right, Allaire, let's go. Rosa will be pleased—the Chalkis are scared to death of that camp of ours."
"Don't worry about Rosa," said Allaire, "we're buddies." She held up two white fingers together. "We're just like that."
Above the desk in Terry's quarters there hung a calendar that hadn't been used for a long time. It had been there when he and his father had been up there before, and even then the date hadn't been changed for many days before the job blew up.
Terry had never noticed it particularly, but as he came in this wet night, lit the oil lamp, and sank wearily down, his eyes fell on the calendar.
"The Acme Copper Pipe Company presents its compliments—"
He noticed how old it was, and it suddenly stood to him as the last reminder of a hope that had died long ago to his father, that had begun to die long before that date was reached. "The Acme Copper Pipe Company presents its compliments—"
"Advt! Advt! A garish addition to an army of mockeries."
Lawrence Willett had probably stared at it many times before and laughed at the abrupt application to his situation of the queer "Thought for Today" that commercial people throw in along with their "compliments" to finish a smug picture.
A thought for the day that had stopped the calendar long ago—a sardonic coincidence that made him laugh when he recognized the application. Cervantes had stopped the calendar?
"For weeks now Cervantes had insisted from the walls of the hut:
"He who loses wealth, loses much;
He who loses a friend, loses more;
But he who loses his courage, loses all—"

Willett suddenly smashed his fist down on the desk. He yanked the calendar off the wall and shied it across the room.
"I don't need you to tell me, Cervantes," he muttered. "Especially when I can imagine you writing that after a hot dinner and a glass of old wine—"
He lifted his head. There were flames down at the wharf. Corrigan was coming back with the payroll and news of Allaire. Several minutes later Bucky stuck his head in at the door.
"Don't blame me," he said. "She would come."
He disappeared and Willett looked after him, puzzled. But he wasn't puzzled long, because before his astonished eyes he could have sworn that Allaire was standing in the door.
"Yeah," said Corrigan. "But if you'll excuse me, son, I don't like the idea of her being up here right now."
"I know. In a couple of weeks I'm going to bring a medico up and he'll stay here in case we're delayed getting back."
"He knocked out his pipe. A queer feeling was cutting around his heart as the time drew near.
"If anything should happen to her, Bucky—" He drew a long breath and went back to Allaire's dwelling.
Allaire was there with her faithful Rosa, but as Willett came in Rosa unobtrusively disappeared. Terry sat down beside the girl.
"Happy, honey?"
"Of course. Married to a famous and brilliant engineer, and a right nice looking fellow in the bargain."
"If we get through this, Allaire, we're going back to the States so fast you won't see us for dust. I'll get a job with Tyndal. He's a big shot. We'll go places."
He put a hand on hers and it felt strangely hot. "I never thought much of those things, but I do now."
"I'm proud of you now, and always have been. But you have so many wonderful things to do yet." She seemed to shiver a little, suddenly strangely.
"What's the matter?" he asked anxiously. "All right, Allaire?"
"Certainly I'm all right. Stop babbling me, you big tramp."
Everything combines against Willett, tomorrow.

It's 'Hoop-ee-ee' And Not 'Whuppy' Rep. Maverick Of Texas Lambasts Sissy Versions Of Cowboy Songs

Rep. Maury Maverick of Texas is wrathful over the general professional interpretation of cowboy songs and while he is on the subject vents a portion of his ire on the singing of "hill-billy" ballads.

(Editor's Note: Rep. Maury Maverick of Texas has become so irked at the way professional singers interpret "cowboy songs" that he thinks something should be done about it, if possible. Maverick is an authority—his is one of the oldest of the cattle-owning families in the southwest. He here presents his case, in an article written exclusively for The Associated Press.)
By MAURY MAVERICK
WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (AP)—One of the main things about "cowboy songs" is that they almost never are sung by cowboys. Still, the first time I got acutely bored with "cowboy songs" was when everybody was working "The Last Roundup" overtime. It's a pretty good tune, at that, but it nearly always was used with false atmosphere and false intonations.
Cowboys rarely sing anything—and incidentally when they do use the word "whoop" they use it right. People on Broadway, talking about making whoopee, pronounce it rather like the hoop out of a wheel. The way to pronounce it is hoop—like in hoop-a-doop—and you shouldn't end it with a lit-

Parities Have Survived Bad Splits Before

Realignment Talked, But Politicians Not Yet Convinced
By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of AP Bureau, Washington)
If "outward appearances alone were considered, it certainly would be appropriate to conclude that the long-predicted realignment of political parties was just around the corner.
The utterances of public men are drawing a more distinct line between the conservative and liberal schools of political thought, and this line runs directly through both major parties, not between them.
Mr. Roosevelt and his followers have committed themselves to policies which they hold to be in the interest of "the common people," and which are thoroughly repugnant to the other wing of the Democratic party.
The break is so distinct that Mr. Roosevelt himself speaks of those who oppose him as "the powers of greed," and such eminent figures as Alfred E. Smith reply that the Roosevelt wing is bent on "communism."
Among the Republicans Mr. Borah charges that "selfish and selfish interests" are seeking to control the party, and the wing about which he is talking retorts with charge of "Borah radicalism."
It would be the easiest thing in the world, if only surface indications were trusted, to decide that both parties were breaking squarely in two, and that the respective conservatives and liberal segments of each would unite to form two new parties, conservative and liberal.
Concessions Seen
As a matter of fact, however, few practical politicians expect any such development.
For one thing, the public statement of public men frequently go a great deal further than the same men are likely to go when faced

Funds Sought To Help Jews

Three And Half Million Would Aid In Settlement Of Palestine
WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. (UP)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise of New York headed a national campaign today to raise $3,500,000 for the settlement of thousands of Jews in Palestine this year.
He was named at the close of a two-day session of 1,200 delegates from all parts of the nation to the National Conference for Palestine.
The money will be raised, Wise said, to aid Jews fleeing from Germany and other countries to Palestine. Approximately 500,000 Jews driven out of other countries have settled in the Holy Land, it was said.
Rabbi Wise, in an appeal for funds, said:
"The Hitler or Nazi attacks upon the Jewish race are not to be met by speeches about what we are or have wrought or achieved. The world without, and above all the Christian world, must make answer, as indeed some of its best and noblest in English speaking and other lands have made answer, to the defamations against the Jewish race by the Hitler regime."
"But there is an answer which the Jews alone can make apart from every defense urged in our behalf by an understanding and friendly world, shocked by the recrudescence of barbarism. That Jewish answer is the answer of a noble, effective, non-violent, constructive self-defense."
From both old parties, could be organized in 1936 to oppose Mr. Roosevelt's reelection. They seldom mention such a possibility now. It has been a dream of the Farmer-Laborites for years to organize on a national basis as a truly "liberal" party, but not much has come of it.
During all this time there has been much premature talk about burying the Republican and Democratic parties. So far as can be learned at this writing, neither has made any appointment with the coroner.
