THAT'S THE WAY "DEPUTY" RUDY VALDEZ FRISKS 'EM. Fifth grade student Rudy demonstrates on Police Chief Gene Martin how he aided in discovering stolen merchandise pocketed by two juveniles last Friday in Slaton. It all started when a Piggy Wiggly employee noted some Mexican boys putting candy bars in their pockets. Upon check by the police (and by Rudy who is an admirer and frequent friendly visitor at the local police station) another boy was found to have taken cigarettes. These were discovered by Rudy as he aided his friend Chief Martin. The culprits were turned over to Lubbock juvenile authorities.

Rudy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Valdez of 300 S. 5th.

Are scholastic achievement and college athletics compatible? We can remember when at one time that question was debated at length.

Coach J. T. King of Texas Tech has come up with some mighty convincing proof that should please most of us:

Coach King could field a Texas Tech football team next fall composed solely of players whose grades qualified them for National Honor Society membership in high school, he announced last week at Lubbock.

Heaviest loaded position—scholastically but but not according to experience—is quarterback. Five potential signal callers, all sophomores or squaddens, no lettermen, made in the Honor Society. Among these are juniors Jim Ellis of Lubbock, Monterey and Bob Black of Dallas Jesuit, sophomores Ben Elledge of Brownwood, Larry Anderson of Stinnett, and Donald Florence of Grapevine.

Rounding out the backfield on the academic team would be fullback Charles Graham of Longview Pine Tree or Dennis Tucker of Albany, and two of these three halfbacks, David Baugh (Sam's son) of Rotan, Bill Deacon of Grapevine, and Rocky Hill of Albany.

In the line would be ends Sam Cornelius of Spearman and Terry McWhorter of Perryton, tackles Dennis Watkins of McCamey and James Webb of Pampa, guards Bill Shaha of Dumas and Richard Willis of Fort Sumner, N. M., or Eugene Howard of Longview Pine Tree, and center C. C. Willis of Bay City.

We think that membership in the Peace Corps could well be one of the most interesting, rewarding and life-moulding experiences open to the ranks of young folks today. Were we a few decades younger, we would seek to be a member, we are sure.

Notice where a neighboring Ralls girl, Miss Janice Marks, has left for an assignment to East Pakistan for a stint with the Peace Corps. The group, of which she is a member, left New York in mid-June, destination Dacca. For the first month and one-half, training will continue with classes in Bengali, work with the Project workers, study in nearby villages, and several days residence with a family in a village of permanent assignment.

Miss Marks spent three weeks in training at a Puerto Rican camp, together with training in the states.

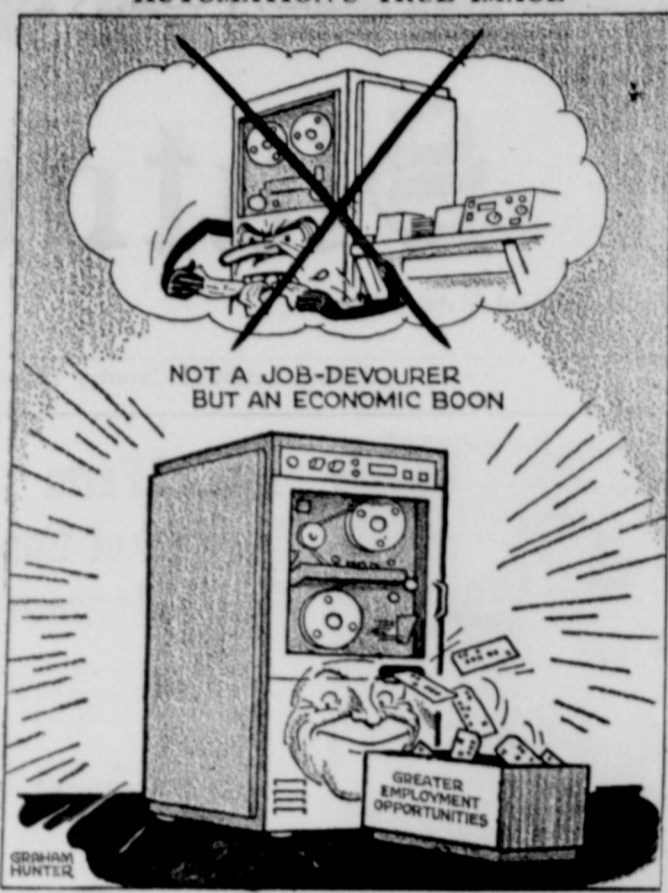

Not only should she and others who have entered this work, low in pay but high in value, gain much valuable experience for themselves, but their value as real ambassadors of America can in no way be minimized. 'Tis truly a challenging responsibility, and we doff our hat to every one of these young Americans.

Read this somewhere: Some old-fashioned mothers who can remember their husband's first kiss now have daughters who can't remember their first husbands.

And there in the editor who opines that any child who gets raised strictly by the books is probably a first addition.

AUTOMATION'S TRUE IMAGE

Check The Difference . . .

You can now set to one side your TV set as the season of summer Re-Runs is here. Maybe you can keep the Kids quiet with a comedy now and then or a cheap Western that was popular when you were a young man or woman. And while we are on the subject of TV programs we would like to chip in our nickels worth about making a Public Billboard out of our TV screen. There is one advertisement right after the other with perhaps a minute of the picture then right back with more beer ads, car advertisements, etc. Of course viewers can turn it off if they don't want to see and hear the ads, and that is what a large majority of the people are doing now days. They have become disgusted with the program of entertainment being shamed aside and crowd in more advertising. Of course the only revenue a TV station has is through advertising just like a newspaper, but when you undertake to cram it down peoples throat they are not going to put up with it. They turn it off.

In newspaper business advertising is a secondary matter, news comes first even if advertising has to be left out. A newspaper is not worth its salt or the ink that takes to print if it is practically all advertising. That's why newspaper advertising is the best medium to tell people about your wares. It can be read along with the news but if it were all advertising it would hit the waste basket — and fast.

People expect news in a newspaper, and they expect entertainment on their TV sets in the way of good stories, and resent the TV station taking advantage of them to make the screen on their sets a billboard. Television is a wonderful thing if the commercial world does not ruin it like they have the scenery along our highways with their billboards.

Old Harry Stands Pat

One thing you can say about former President Harry S. Truman, he doesn't beat around the bush. The other day, Harry exploded with, "This civil rights thing is being promoted by a bunch of demagogues . . . Their (the Negroes) right are set out in laws that have been on the books since 1868, and if they go at it in a common sense, honorable way, they won't have any trouble getting their rights. And that's all I have to say about it!"

Seminole Plans Zoning Project

Seminole was nearing the countdown today for launching the city's property zoning and city planning program. Mayor Delbert Richardson said that zoning engineers on the staff of consultant Marvin Springer, Dallas, are expected to arrive within two weeks to commence the first in-the-field step toward evolution of the zoning system.

City aldermen, around the first of the year, hired Springer, a prominent Texas city plan expert, to help guide Seminole into a program of orderly growth and development through zoning and city planning.

Aldermen followed that move with the appointment of a city plan commission which will oversee the planning and zoning programs.

Doesn't Like Insurance Bill

State Rep. Terry Townsend this week voiced strong opposition to House Bill 48, which amends the Texas Safety Responsibility Law to increase the rates of automobile liability insurance.

The law becomes effective August 27. "I am very disappointed that House Bill 48 was signed into law. While I certainly support that part of the measure to stiffen the motor vehicle safety responsibility law, I feel that doubling of the minimum automobile liability insurance coverage is too great a price for the public to pay."

Townsend said the bill will increase auto insurance rates up to 25 percent for drivers who meet the standards set by the Texas Safety Responsibility Law.

"Since the law has been amended to put teeth in it, it is presumed that nearly all of the driving public will comply with it."

The bill raises the limit on liability from $5,000 (for death or injury to one person) and $10,000 (for more than one death or injury to $10,000 and $20,000.

The $5,000 limit for destruction of property remains the same.

"So controversial were these raises of rate costs to the public that the Senate-amended measure passed the House—after a close vote in the Senate—by the slim margin of one vote!" Townsend pointed out.

"The state-wide increase cost probably will run as high as $33 to $41 in the best-classed drivers up to an increase of $61 to $74 per year."

We Hope This Is True:

The Cuban people are filled with gratitude to the States. That is the substance of a New York Herald interview with James B. By The Numbers . . .

Before long, we're afraid, this number business to get out of hand. We're going to have to give up our ZIP Code number, which in 1937. The first number given was: while a student at West Texas State, the government gave us a Social Security number, 9831. The Internal Revenue Service gave us 11-4036 personal affairs and 75-0405440 for our business. Texas ment Commission numbered us 106,822, the State gave us 298811-1 for state sales tax purposes. Our is 998-4888, if you call us from Lubbock it's 112-998- you call us from Dallas it's 112-906-998-4888—then phone is 4228, the last four digits. Our car number 5808, but changes each year. Then, there's our numbers, fishing license number, ABC bridge insurance policy numbers, and maybe a dozen others—nothing of those of members of our family and Oh, yes, we forgot, we've got farm numbers. The ber we can think of that we haven't received is a Leavenworth or Huntsville—but we'll bet they've reserved for us. Good morning, Mr. 724-XYZ-789 you this fine day?

720 Strains Being Tested At Halfway Sunflowers Asserted as Profitable Crop Within 3 Years on High Plains

Sunflowers may be a new crop for the High Plains of Texas within the next three years. Research at the High Plains Research Foundation indicates that a profitable variety will soon be available for commercial production.

Seven hundred and twenty strains from seed selected in the breeding program in 1962 are growing at the Foundation Farm at Halfway. These strains were planted on April 24 and many of them will be ready for harvest in early August. These plants have stood up under adverse weather conditions of wind, hail and hard rain. They are resistant to the ravages of the Sunflower Moth, which has been the scourge of sunflower development in the area in the past.

Barry Love, Assistant Agronomist in charge of sunflower research, is seeking a combine-type variety with desirable chemical qualities.

The market for sunflower seed is for human food, and as a protein feed for cattle, hogs, poultry, and birds. It was used for food by the Indians before the white man came, and it is an important crop in Russia.

Management Of Prime Importance Development Late Cotton Crop

Halfway for information on this subject which might be helpful to area farmers.

Harvey Walker, Agronomist, T&ES No. 8, stressed that fertilizer cannot be used to gain time or hasten maturity. In the lighter soils south of Lubbock and especially in those areas which have experienced torrential rains, 30 to 50 pounds per acre of nitrogen could possibly be used to good advantage.

In considering the use of additional fertilizer it should be remembered that the plants highest nutrient requirements come before the first bloom and that fertilizer should be applied before squaring if at all possible. This is especially important in working with a late crop which could run into serious difficulties such as increased vegetative growth and a large percentage of green bolls and immature cotton at frost if certain conditions such as low night temperatures, and excess water, are combined with a high nutrient level. The end result would be decreased yields and a high percent of wasty cotton which carries a discount in the market place and the government loan.

The cotton plant requires time to utilize Nitrogen and benefits derived will depend to a large extent on the amount of time available. Plants which have been stunted by seedling disease and unfavorable growing conditions should therefore be fertilized moderately if at all. Vigorous, healthy plants in an advanced stage of growth will naturally benefit from larger amounts of Nitrogen.

In summary, the ultimate decision regarding the use of fertilizer must be based upon individual circumstances and conditions. Previous crop history, soil nutrient level, available moisture, stage of growth and condition of the plant, and other factors must be considered. In view of the present crop situation, the importance of this production practice cannot be overemphasized and every farmer is urged to use all the information available along with his own good judgment in arriving at the proper course to follow for the production of a good quality crop. Additional information may be obtained through your local county agent or the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

Without all these experiences his youth is incomplete!

A well-rounded person is one who grows to know all sides of life. You wouldn't think of depriving your children of the countless uses of science... or of the beauty and pleasure in great art and literature... or of the healthy fun of play. Then don't deprive them of the experience of religious training from which so many even richer and more valuable experiences result. Whatever your belief, give your children a chance to find the strength for broadening their lives through Faith.

FARM NEWS

Conservation Practices Popular in Lubbock County

BY BERT NEELLEY

A total of 526 Lubbock County farmers participated during the past year in the Agricultural Conservation Program conservation work practices, according to Charles G. Bragg of the county ASCS office.

Reports on the 1962 ACP show that 477 farms in this county will receive $151,192.96 in federal cost-shares for conservation work on the farm. All of this money has already been put into circulation in establishing conservation practices on the farm.

The two practices which have proven most popular with Lubbock County farmers are installation of underground irrigation pipe systems and the application of cotton burs to cropland to control erosion and to improve soil permeability. Payments totaling $21,572.00 were made for the application of cotton burs to 5,301 acres of cropland on 229 farms. Costs were shared on 225 farms for 353,055 linear feet of underground irrigation pipe in the amount of $112,209.00. The ASC county committee processed 246 purchase orders totaling $115,805.82.

"These payments are made to vendors—folks who sell concrete pipe and herbicides, or contractors who sell services like bulldozing, land leveling, earth moving, and ditching. So this money directly boosts our local economy," Bragg said.

Bragg also pointed out that the government share is only part of the total cost. The farmer also stands part of the cost, putting up cash, labor, materials, or equipment.

"Next time you're out for a drive," Bragg suggested, "look around at some of the fine conservation work being done in our county. You're a partner in these projects. You benefit from additional income in the county and from the assurance that our county resources of soil and water, are being cared for and improved."

With the widespread publicity being given screwworm infestation over the state, we are glad to note no case has been reported in Lubbock County or the immediate Slaton vicinity since early May. And those instances were termed quite "freakish" by County Agent Lee McElroy who points out that July is the anticipated month for such trouble here, if it occurs.

It is interesting to take stock of the methods that have developed for control of farm insects, blights, etc., and screwworm eradication is no exception. Sterile fly release in infested areas is the method now popular. Planes from the Southwestern Animal Health Research Foundation speed to the reported areas and drop thousands of the sterile flies.

Anyone suspecting screwworm trouble among their cattle should gather samples, get confirmation from the Foundation laboratory, and a fly-drop will be initiated. The county agent's office can handle this procedure, or samples may be sent directly to the Southwestern Animal Health Laboratory in Mississippi.

A gimmick that is being tried over the area in isolated fields is that of using geese for cotton "hoeing". The value of this practice on the High Plains is under question, but we have seen two fields to the north of Lubbock where this was being tried. Understand that the practice is successful in Louisiana and southern states where grass is the prevalent pest to crops. Seems that the geese really go for the tender grass shoots, and folks up here are anxious to satisfy themselves if the geese will take to the young weeds in the same manner.

We would suggest careful checking with someone "who has tried" before making the investment, however. First there is the initial cost of the geese, somewhere in the neighborhood of $3 each, and then a herdsman likely would be necessary (cause geese sure like to graze in the shade!), and then there is the disposition of the flock. And it could be that weeds at this stage are too tough, anyway, to entice the geese.

Notice where the state prison system (Department of Corrections, rather) has come up with better utilization of their laying flocks.

More than 40,000 laying hens are kept by the system, the eggs contributing to the menu where in nearly 45,000 meals are served each day to inmates and employees. But, while the hens produce in excess of 700,000 dozen eggs each year, they just didn't cooperate in producing their eggs on an equal monthly rate.

Consequently, "we were getting more eggs than we could use during the peak laying months, and then during the winter months we had to purchase eggs on the open market," reports Sam Bradley, food service supervisor for the system.

So, Mr. Bradley devised a method of freezing the eggs. All surplus eggs are shipped to the Goree Unit where the women inmates separate the white from the yolks. The separated eggs are placed in aluminum containers, quick frozen, and stored in the deep freeze. During '62 more than 1,000 cases were frozen in this manner.

Results: Delicious omelets and scrambles (no sunny-side-up, of course) the year round, and a saving of more than $15,000 in 1961 alone for egg purchases for the penal system.

Soy beans are being eyed to a greater extent in the area this year. In fact, they are being put on the cotton acreage in a number of fields (where rain-out cotton, multiple re-planting, etc. make a late cotton crop quite a gamble).

Heard of some cotton still being planted the last week of June, but no reports of planting since. The ideal "cotton weather" of early this week was welcomed, and County Agent McElroy sticks his neck out to say that if nothing else happens close to a normal crop could be expected. Not a bumper crop, but a normal one—and even this will be welcomed after the unseasonable frochokers.

Cotton "Fluffing" Promoted As Solution For Sagging Industry

Old King Cotton, Texas' major farm crop, may get a much needed shot in the arm from experiments aimed at "fluffing it up a little".

For years, the cotton usage has been sagging downward from the competition of synthetic fibers. As new "miracle fibers" were developed in laboratories, cotton was pushed further aside.

Now comes a project to make cotton knit goods more nearly like wool—without the scratch! The goal is to give cotton knit clothing like sweaters and undergarments more bulk, warmth and dimensional stability. A scientific breakthrough which would fluff up cotton thread and make it stay that way regardless of cleaning processes could widen markets for cotton—particularly on winter-wear clothing.

The advent of wash and wear cotton clothing a few years ago proved to be a good stimulant for the cotton market. Scientists had succeeded in "stabilizing" the cotton thread with finishing agents to give the cloth its wash-wear properties. However, when dimensional stability of cotton was achieved, no increase in bulk or warmth of the material was gained.

Scientists now believe, however, that means of applying the chemicals can be developed that will also increase the bulk and warmth of cotton fabric. Ordinarily, fabrics treated with wash-wear chemicals are passed through squeeze rolls to remove excess treating solution. The high-pressure squeezing at present reduces the bulkiness of the fabric. The task now is to find new processing methods that will impregnate fabrics with the proper amount of chemicals, fluff up the fabrics to increase its bulk and warmth, and stabilize the fabrics in its bulky state. The end result would be a fabric much like wool, with many new uses opening up for cotton in the winter garment trade.

Clemson Agricultural College in South Carolina is in charge of the cotton research program in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The eyes of Texas cotton growers and market men will be on the South Carolina research laboratory for the next year or so. If the experiments are successful, King Cotton may recapture much of its clothing trade volume that has been lost in recent years.

Electronic Data Process School Slated For Area

High school seniors will have the opportunity to study electronic data processing at Texas Tech this summer, when the accounting department of Tech's School of Business Administration sponsors an unusual short course on that subject July 22-Aug. 2.

Dr. Reginald Rushing, head of Tech's accounting department, has announced that the short course is now open for pre-enrollment.

The course, an introduction to electronic data processing for high school seniors, will meet 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. daily for two weeks, Monday through Friday.

Dr. Rushing said teachers are also encouraged to enroll in the course, which is voluntary, extra-curricular and carries no credits toward graduation.

The objective of the "Future Data Processors" program is to stimulate interest in electronic and punched card data processing, to emphasize the need for qualified individuals in this new career field and to point up the growing importance of electronic equipment in the development of more efficient business systems.

An enrollment fee of $21.50 includes the cost of tuition, supplies and the student study kit. An additional charge of $41.83 will be made for participants staying in the college dormitories.

Information may be obtained by telephoning Texas Tech, Mrs. Luta Eaves, PO2-8811, ex. 2163, or SW9-1753. Enrollment may be completed by mailing a check payable to the college in the amount of $21.50, or a total of $63.13 for those staying in the college dorms. Applications should include name address and telephone number, mailed to Box 4064, Texas Tech, Lubbock 9, Texas.

Advance enrollment is required in order that adequate study kits may be obtained, Mrs. Eaves said.

Mrs. Eaves reports that both the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington D. C. had written letters expressing interest and encouragement for the program.

Precautions Are Given As Poison Ivy Season Arrives

Few people need to be told of the discomfort caused by poison ivy or poison oak. And the time of the year when these plants are most dangerous is here, says G. O. Hoffman, extension range specialist, at Texas A&M College.

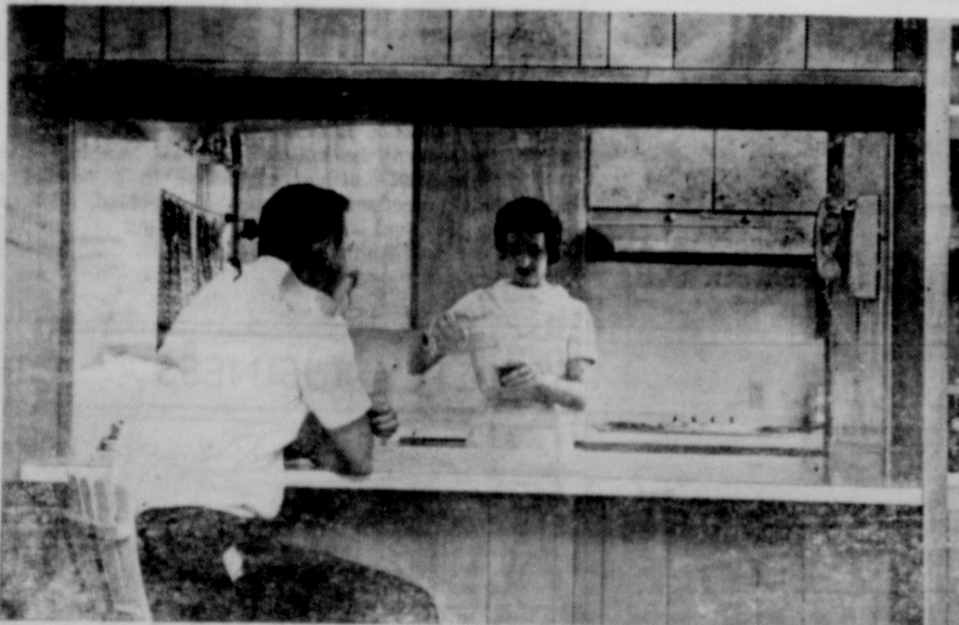

All parts of the poison ivy plant can cause skin inflammation but the sap is especially poisonous, says Hoffman. Even small amounts of the toxins in its sap can cause dermatitis which can be transferred from one person to another. The smoke from burning poison ivy plants will also carry the toxins, he says.

A few simple precautions can avert much discomfort from poison ivy. First, don't come in contact with the plants and don't allow pets to run through them, as they may carry the toxins on their feet. Don't burn leaves that contain poison ivy plants. Should you contact poison ivy, wash the contaminated areas with soap and water and be sure clothing is washed thoroughly before it is worn again.

To control poison ivy the specialist recommends ammate crystals mixed one pound to a gallon of water and sprayed on the foliage. It is non-toxic to animals and humans and if the foliage is thoroughly covered with the spray it begins to turn brown in about 24 hours. Plans take several weeks to die and normally two or more applications of ammate are necessary to control sprouting poison ivy.

Hoffman reminds that all herbicides should be handled with care and to contact your local county agent for more information about poison ivy and other noxious plants.

Instead of all the government bureaus, we need just five. One to increase our pensions, one to raise the price of everything we sell, one to lower the price of everything we buy, one to raise the wages of everybody who works and one to raise the money to pay for it all. After you've heard three or four eyewitnesses describe an automobile accident, you begin to wonder a little about history. My uncle got insulted at the gas station. When he asked them to change his oil, they suggested he keep the oil and change the car. "If you had your life to live over," the reporter asked the old man, "would you make the same mistakes?" "Certainly would," he replied, "and I'd start earlier."

MR. and MRS. JOE GREEN and JOHNNY, DAVID and KATHY returned recently from a vacation trip to Pueblo and Colorado Springs, Colorado. Cave of the Winds and Garden of the Gods were included on their itinerary.

Returned travelers are MR. and MRS. V. G. BROWNING and their daughter, MARY FRANCES. They arrived home Saturday evening from a vacation trip to Washington, D. C. and New York City.

Arriving in Washington the Brownings placed a call to Congressman George Mahon, who most graciously awarded the visitors a personal tour of the Capitol Building; a ride on the Senate Subway; and were afforded a hear-of a debate while the Senate was in session. Wearing special permits, VIP cards, Mr. Mahon also personally guided them through the Supreme Court.

The second day in Washington dawned early for a special tour of the White House. The Brownings were in a group of about twenty VIP's who met early at the East Gate of the executive mansion, ahead of several hundred sight-seers.

Mrs. Browning reported that among the many awe-inspiring sights, including the Lincoln Memorial, the most impressive to her was the changing of the guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

After three wonderful fun-filled days in Washington, the Brownings took a conducted bus tour of New York City, where they spent another delightful three days of sight seeing. They were guests at the Governor Clinton Hotel on 7th Ave., right across from Penn Station. Entertainment included a boat ride around the island; a guided tour of lower Manhattan the Texans were advised not to go into Harlem; Times Square; Central Park; an interesting look at the fur district (enjoyed especially by the girls); the Statue of Liberty; and the unforgettable experience of taking the subway one evening to Yankee Stadium where they viewed a game between the New York Yankees and Washington Senators. Mrs. Browning recalled the weather in N. Y. was cool enough for knit suits and full length coats.

The Brownings enjoyed the beautiful scenery driving through the Smokies; the Blue Ridge Mountains; and Gettysburg Farm area.

Enroute home they traveled via St. Louis, where they caught another ball game; toured the Truman Library in Independence, Mo.; and in Bonham, Texas, they visited the Rayburn Library.

In speaking with farmers in the states of Indiana and Illinois Mr. Browning learned they were not too upset at the retarded crops (one farmer said by this time ordinarily the corn is twice as high) because of less damage from pests with late plantings.

MR. and MRS. C. C. HODGE have returned to their home at Salado, Texas after a visit in the home of MR. and MRS. DELMA HODGE. Arriving Thursday from Exeter, California, were her brother and sister-

Impressive Observance Of July 4th Holiday Held Annually In Denmark

John Adams thought the birth of the United States ought to be celebrated "from one end of this continent to the other" and prescribed pomp and parade, bells and bonfires for the occasion. But one of the largest and most impressive observances of Independence Day is said to take place thousands of miles away, in Denmark.

Each year as many as 40,000 Danes and Americans gather at Rebild National Park in northern Jutland in an enduring gesture of international friendship. While the Stars and Stripes waves beside the Dannebrog, Denmark's flag, and television cameras glide along an avenue of U. S. state flags, there is band music and singing and even the traditional Fourth-of-July oratory. The Rebild Festival was the inspiration of a group of Danish-born Americans led by Dr. Max Henius, a chemist who became a prominent citizen of Chicago. In 1911 they purchased 200 acres of Denmark's heathery hills and in 1912, reports World Book Encyclopedia, they presented the land to the Danish government with the stipulation that the U. S. Independence Day be observed there every year.

The celebration has taken place annually except during years of war. But even in 1940, when Denmark was an occupied country, a group of Danes raised the American flag alongside the Dannebrog within the park grounds.

In recent years, American speakers have included Chief Justice Earl Warren, Paul G. Hoffman and former vice president Richard M. Nixon. True to the memory of John Adams, however, the pomp doesn't end with the speeches. After the ceremonies in the park, the guests move to the neighboring town of Aalborg, where they end the Fourth with parades and fireworks.

3rd In Series, Texas Scenic Vacation Spots Big Bend, Sixth Largest National Park, Offers Unparalleled Grandeur

If you are a "National Park traveler" you'll want to see the sixth largest of America's national parks - Big Bend - presented to the United States by the State of Texas in 1944.

Located along the Rio Grande in southwestern Texas, this is an area of dramatic contrasts, Land of legend and range rider,

Big Bend has been called the "Last Frontier."

You will experience new travel adventures when you drive into the mile-high Chisos Mountains or join a horseback party for an exciting ride to the lofty plateau of the South Rim, 7,200 feet in elevation.

The imposing canyons, colorful arroyos, flowers desert and the expansive plains offer unlimited sightseeing opportunities and excellent subjects for your camera.

There is an atmosphere of the old frontier along the Rio Grande, where the Sierra del Carmen and Fronterizo ranges of Mexico dominate the landscape of the south.

Approximately 400 miles from Abilene and San Antonio and 325 miles southeast of El Paso, the park is reached by two paved roads-U. S. 385, which intersects U. S. 90 at Marathon, and State Road 118, which intersects U. S. 900 at Alpine.

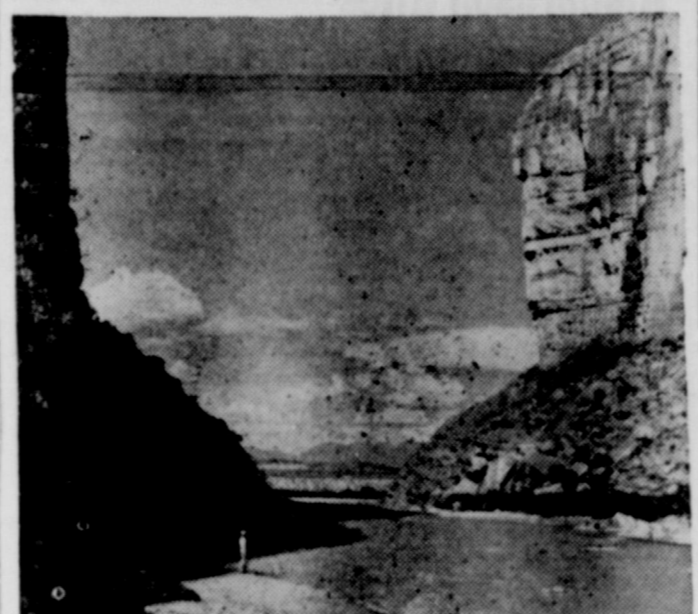

A paved road in the park connects these State Roads, forming an east-west "loop" through Big Bend.

A new scenic road, the Camino del Rio, has opened a third route to Big Bend National Park over U. S. 67 from Marfa via Presidio and Lajitas.

Touring Big Bend by automobile provides access to much of the Park. Roads lead to the Rio Grande, where the desert terrain and mountain ranges of Old Mexico lend an atmosphere of drama and stark, rugged beauty.

The Santa Elena Canyon and Boquillas areas provide splendid all-day outings from the Chisos Mountains.

Among the tourist attractions is

ers in many Texas counties are required by law to secure a permit from the Texas Department of Agriculture before using 2,4-D or 2,4,5-T for weed and brush control. Even when granted such a permit, the applicator must follow prescribed regulations when using the chemicals with reference to such matters as wind velocity (which would determine the amount of drift from the application area to surrounding acreage) and closeness to susceptible planted crops such as cotton and flax.

In 1963, a marked increase has been noted of people who are using 2,4-D (the more commonly-used hormone-type herbicide) for the first time. There has also been noted a significant rise in complaints from people who have cause to believe that the application of herbicides by others has had some effect on their crops. Such complaints are serious and call for prompt attention by the Department of Agriculture when regulations apply.

It is therefore a matter of great importance that any person not having had previous experience in the use of these important chemicals first of all check with the nearest Texas Department of Agriculture office or write to Joan C. White, Commissioner, Texas Department of Agriculture, Austin, for information concerning regulation and use of herbicides in their home counties.

Wade and David Thompson, together with Bob Morrison, are fishing this week at Conchas Reservoir near Tucuman, N. M.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Dayton Eckert and family of Chicago were visitors here last week in the homes of his mother, Mrs. J. E. Eckert, and brother, J. E. Eckert, Jr.

Caution Urged In Herbicide Use

The use of hormone-type herbicides—sometimes called weed-killers—has proved to be of considerable value to many Texas farmers and ranchers. The application of such herbicides as 2,4-Dichlorophenoxy Acetic Acid and 2,4,5-Trichlorophenoxy Acetic Acid, usually referred to as 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T, respectively, can be of special benefit in weed control on pastures and ranges because they act selectively on broad-leaved plants.

Along with these benefits, however, there can be an appreciable amount of risk in applying these useful chemicals. This is because many cultivated plants within proximity of the area being treated can be accidentally damaged or killed by herbicides when proper precautions are not used. Cotton, Texas' largest crop, is particularly vulnerable to herbicide damage.
