There are two ways in which costs may be computed. One is to those who have sons and daughters in school, or who may take advantage of the evening classes at the college. The other is from the point of what taxes might be

Consider the first possibility: Based on an actual survey of those attending summer school, approximately half of whom were enrolled in other institutions during the regular semesters, and upon costs for room and board, tuition, personal services, etc. at the University of Texas (considered one of the most economic senior colleges to attend), here are some figures: It costs a minimum of $800 for the frugal student to attend the university. In HCJC it costs $300, a savings of $500. Computed on the basis of 250 students here for the past year, that meant a savings to local parents of $125,000. Without the college here, the same number of students would have required $200,000 to be maintained elsewhere, and most of the money would have been expended else-

Estimates are that it would cost $1,100 for the student of medium habits and tastes to have attended school elsewhere. At home, the figure is estimated at $350. The aggregate saving, were all students in the medium class, would be $187,500. The comparison on high-cost students is merely mentioned-$1500 against $500. The consideration of figures is two-fold: 1) Savings and the expenditure of money at home. Although Dodd quoted arguments Plans are to spray alleys and in justification of a rate increase, that the board could have know-

Necessity of increasing salary scales for instructors, together with additions to the staff and equipment to meet broadening demands were given by Dodd as reasons for need of a broader financial base. He felt that many students attend college at home who otherwise would not have the opportunity, and that the savings to the community in this respect was $125,000 per annum. The college, he said, has been fortunate in securing half a million dollars of buildings for reconversion costs of only $26,000.

No one seriously believes that resources are inexhaustible, even in so productive and versatile a land as ours. Thus it is that those with nationalistic and even isolative philosophies are seizing on this point to combat aid to devastated nations. The idea that we are a Santa Claus is being voiced with increasing intensity.

Much of what we are able to furnish in food and clothing and essential supplies to poverty-stricken peoples of the world will never come back in direct repayment. But this does not mean that aid should stop. Indeed, it is possible to trade for goods that are sorely needed to fortify our own dwindling reserves in certain short fields. From a national defense point, this is vital.

But more important than this is the long look. A short-sighted policy can result in action too late. One veteran Washington correspondent wrote: "The mood in Europe is tense, that of Washington is casual; Europe wonders when it will eat, Congress when it will get home; Europe is holding its breath, Congress is holding its hat."

Gen. Robert E. Wood of Sears-Roebuck says flatly that Europe is "finished." The only answer is to forget Europe and help 20 to 30 millions migrate, he adds. Now which is the more feasible-to help Europe get on its feet to where it can help itself, or to accept the monumental alternative suggested by Gen. Wood?

As much as it is tempting to believe that what happens to Europe is not important to us, it is important nevertheless. Problems seldom are national in scope any more; human problems are as broad as humanity itself. They must be dealt with in equally broad understanding.

One Way To Lower Cotton's Cost

Lowering of production costs was cited by the Cotton Congress recently at Dallas as one of the urgent needs of the cotton industry. This is not startling, for this is a pressing need for any industry in the effort to increase consumer demand through lower prices and as good or better quality.

The popular reaction to this is mechanization. This elongated word appeals to our peculiar pride in mass production and of labor saving devices. Certainly it offers possibilities, but there is a limit to what machines can do. They can expedite work in harvesting, chiefly, for the machine already plays an important part in seed treatment, planting, and insect control.

The Dallas News observed significantly, however, that one of the greatest hopes of lowering production costs is to increase the yield per acre. Except for the harvest, there is little difference in working an acre of thrifty, productive cotton and one which offers low yield. Texas has a long way to go, for while the national average has been coming up by 87 pounds per acre in the last 20 years, Texas has added only about 20 pounds per acre. In fact, Texas ranks at the bottom in gains save for Oklahoma. The use of better seed, better care of land, employment of leguminous cover crops, introduction of fertilizers where indicated, continuing study by breeders toward still better cottons, more effective insect control, and other devices all will contribute toward yield increase and in a measure more economically produced cotton-not for any one year, but over a period of time.

Exploits Of Texas Fishermen

Fish stories, 99 44-100 percent

Friends of M. S. Ozier of Amarillo insist that he likes fishing so well that he tried to cruise around the bottom of a lake in his car. Mr. Ozier denies this emphatically.

This, he says, is what really He was at Dalhart's Rita

Blanca lake for a week-end of fishing. He drove his car to the edge of the water so he could turn on the headlights for illum-

The brakes failed to hold. The car gently rolled down the bank. Ozier jumped to the running board in a vain attempt to apply the emergency brake. The car kept on rolling, and plunged into ten feet of water. When Sheriff W. L. Stour and Deputy A. D. Bonner arrived, the car was completely submerged, its headlights still glowing through the water.

Oscar Hyso lifted the car out late the next day with his house moving equipment.

The Marshall News Messenger received a news release saying that a Sammie Williams had landed a 51-pound sailfish seven feet, six and a half inches long off the Florida coast.

The paper was going to press. had no time to check on who Sammie Williams was, and printed the story under a head-"who caught the sailfish?" It promptly found out. Sammie was a girl-Miss Sammie Lee Williams. She caught the

Richard Walker of San Antonio went to San Angelo on an important business trip. While there, a business associate took him to Dove Creek for a little fishing. While there, they undoubtedly discussed business, too. They caught a nice bass, and the business associate insisted that Walker take the fish home with him.

Walker did, but when he left the San Angelo airport, he was worried about what his wife would think when he came home from a business trip, late at night, with a freshly dressed bass.

Affairs Of The World—DeWitt MacKenzie

such reasoning as this:

There is no dark mystery about the warfare which has erupted again between the Indonesian Dutch forces; it's just another of many indications that the day of empires is fading.

To understand the cause of the current crisis we must go back a bit. The revolutionary Indonesian Republic has been the de facto government for the major portions of the rich island of Java and Surnatra since the winter of 1945. Lengthy negotiations between the Dutch and the rebels (heavily punctuated by warefare) finally resulted in an agreement whereby a United States of Indonesia, encompassing both the Republic and the remainder of the East Indies, would come into being in 1949.

This new nation was to have dominion status. Holland was to retain a hand in foreign relations, defense, finance and in subjects of an economic or cultural nature. The Queen of Holland also was to be queen of the dominion.

Disagreement over the method of implementing the new government is credited with precipitaling the lastest upheaval. However, I think we must go deeper than that. If we could look into the mind of the Indonesian we likely should encounter some

"The Dutch and the Indonesians are racially as far apart as the poles. We have little in common. The Queen of the Netherlands is a benevolent and lovable personage, but she is not one of us. The members of her government are foreigners to us. We want absolute severance from Holland, so that we may rule oursel es in these fairy lands of wealth which have been inhabited by our race for untold generations. It isn't that we like the Dutch the less, but that we like our absolute freedom the more."

That's what your correspondent believes they think. And that is the basic cause of this fresh outbreak. If we believe the writing on the wall this means that sooner or later (and probably sooner) the Netherlands must relinquish all claims on wealth of Indonesia. The same is true of all imperial powers, because the demand for independence is running around the world like a theme song. We are seeing its effect in the vast sub-continent of India which has been granted its freedom by England. Britain also is relinquishing Burmanow torn by a bloody internal political crisis.

Around the corner the French are battling to keep French indo-China in line. French and Italian colonies in Africa are reaching for the sun. Egypt is demanding the withdrawal of British troops from her soil, and relinguishment of control over the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. And so the story goes. Empires are as outmoded as the Georgian

HOLLYWOOD, A-To- which he sings the only song in day's movie producers are making a big mistake, says Ronald Reagan. They aren't making enough good westerns-and he accents the word "good."

The handsome actor and president of the Screen Actors Guild makes no secret of the fact that he yearns to gallop over movie prairies, but his reasons are more than personal.

His suggestion: Look into American history, where many unmoviefied characters with interesting and exciting stories are still hidden. But steer clear of the civil war, he advised, because there can be but one ending to such a picture. Even Hollywood can't change that.

The foreign market is a prime concern of American producers and they must eye colleague Walt Disney with envy. His films have universal appeal and. can be readily dubbed into foreign languages. I saw a couple of reels of 'Bambi" in the Indian version. Not only did the characters speak Hindustani but the background music was created by native instruments, since occidental orchestras sound strange to the eastern ear. It is the first time this has been done on a U. S. film and "Bambi" may be the key to the vast India market. A start has been made with the Maurice Chevalier film,

German Industry Poses Problem

WASHINGTON .- Secretary of State George Marshall took no chances on press leaks when he agreed to confer on "German rehabilitation problems" last week with a congressional group led by Representative Adolph Sabath of Illinois, white-thatched,

81-year-old dean of the House. This is an unusual meeting, for I seldom confer with members of Congress except when I am called before a committee on some matter, Marshall reminded his callers. "Therefore, everything said here must be considered strictly off-the-rec-

Events justified this precaution, for the Secretary of State found himself caught in a swirling, three-hour controversy, during which the ten congressmen bluntly charged that certain state department and Army occupation officials were conniving with ex-Nazi interests to rebuild Germany into another potential war menace. The congressmen were: Sabath Illinois, Folger of North Carolina, Huber of Ohio, Madden of Indiana, Morris of Oklahoma, Blatnik of Minnesota, Sadowski of Michigan, Holifield and Douglas of California and Eberharter of Pennsylvania, all Democrats. Each of the ten put questions to Marshall as the meeting opened. He made notes and then answered the questions in order. Marshall took up in detail Sadowski's complaint that German coal production is only 40 per cent of pre-war capacity, explaining at first that many of the mines were bombed. However. the Michigan Congressman interrupted to say that only 15 important mines were bombed

GERMAN COAL SABOTAGE When Marshall started to comment on the importance of a hearty diet for work in mines. Sadowski cut him again: "The German miner is getting and they had been back in operation for a year and a half.

4,000 calories a day, Mr. Secretary. The Polish miner working on an average diet of 3.500 calories-and he is producing 50 per cent more coal. I don't think there is any doubt that the slowdown in German coal production is the result of deliberate sabotage, designed to prevent the inudstrial recovery of non-German countries before German coal production is largely under the direction of a Dr. Lahr, now Minister-President of the North Rhine Province. Dr. Lahr served the Nazies as a key official in coal and steel production. Only recently, reminded that since German steel production has been limited, there is no need for top-speed production

Marshall finally admitted that the coal program is not working. and that correction is needed. Hastily he passed on to Sadowski's question about the breakup of the German war potential.

The war plants, he said are broken up except for chemical plants now needed for fertilizer. General Marshall complained that de-Nazification is a tough problem and calls for much personnel.

"We're between the whirlpool and the rock," he said. "Germany must be rebuilt if we are ever to be able to bring our troops out of there and stop spending billions of dollars. We know that the cost of maintaining Germany must fall to us-England and Russia can't and won't pay it. The big question is how far we should go in rebuilding Germany."

WHY HERBERT HOOVER Marshall was sparing in his comments on individuals prominent in the German picture. European theatre commander General Lucius Clay, he said, is "strictly a General, not a politician. He has a 'zone complex,' he's out to do the very best job he can in administering the American zone. He has no political viewpoint

Marshall replied also to complaints that former President Hoover and John Foster Dulles have too much to say about the policy in Germany He laughed when 81-year-old Adolph Sabath sputtered that Hoover was "dominating" our policy in Germany.

"Judge Patterson (secretary of war) urged that Mr. Hoover be assigned to study the European situation," Marshall said. "It was frankly a political move based on the feeling that Hoover would carry great weight with the Republican Congress.

"Mr. Hoover went over there mainly to work on the food problem, and while he was there he met on his own with German industrialists and with representatives of American business who were in Germany. It was on the hasis of those conversations that he brought back his recommendations regarding the revival of German industry. Marshall made little comment on Dewey's foreign affairs adviser Dulles, beyond a reference to Dulles' influence with the Republican Congress.

"Mr. Hoover and Mr. Dulles are not running the state department and will not as long as I am secretary." he said.

"Well, they are supplying information on which your policies are based," argued Chicago's Sabath, "Mr. Secretary, you are hearing only one side, the position of those who are anxious to rebuild a nation that lost the first war with us, almost won the second and is now being helped to prepare for a third war " Marshall's attention was further directed to the fact that the chief economic adviser to General Lucius Clay, German occupation commander, is General William H. Draper, Jr., formerly of Dillon, Read and Company, the financial firm that "floated a loan of $125,000,000 to Germany largest European steel combine, the Vereingte Stahlwerke."

Another Dillon, Read-er who has played a strategic part in Germany, Marshall was reminded, is Paul H. Nitze, deputy director of the state department's international trade policy.

REPRESENTED FARBEN Sabath and his colleagues charged that Dulles once "represented" the giant German cartel, I. G. Farben, in the disposition of its property by the alien property custodian. If he, Herbert Hoover and the Dillon, Read clique continue to exercise a dominating influence in German relations, they declares, we will again be faced with cartels between U. S. and German industries similar to pre-war days. For General Draper, however,

Marshall had nothing but praise, "Draper while the war was on, wanted nothing so much as to command an infantry division, and finally assigned him one in France. But Secretary Stimson and Judge Patterson (then undersecretary of war) and lots of other people insisted that they needed Draper and only Draper to work on renegotiation of contracts, so finally I had to countermand the order and keep him

Marshall said Draper did not want the job he now has, but that he was serving because those were his orders.

Marshall contended the inside reports his callers had heard on Germany "are not as serious as you have been led to believe." but ventured no outright denials except on the Hoover-Dulles charges and the contention by Sabath that the rehabilitation of Germany, as proposed by Herbert Hoover, would mean rebuilding her into another "war potential."

No one representing the state department wanted to see that happen again, said Marshall.

His further promise to "look into" various charges made during the meeting-the furthest he would go-did not satisfy his callers. They wanted a definite assurance that Germany would not be allowed to expand industrially, at the expense of France and other victim nations, and would be required to meet in full her reparation obligations under the Potsdam agreement.

Both Minnesota's Blatnik, who three times parachuted behind Tito's lines, together with Indiana's Madden and Sadowski pointed out that a great many citizens of European birth in their districts are very much aware of the dangers of German militarism and greatly disturbed that it is not being eradicated. "They're not sure, "Sadowski said at one point, "That we really aim to carry out the Potsdam agreement.' Note-Marshall gave the congressmen some most interesting views on Russia which will be reported in a future column. (Copyright, 1947. The Bell Syndicate)

Oilers Subdue Big Spring Hosses Behind Trine, 13-9

Southpaw Stars At Bat, Too

The Longhorn baseball league lead was being passed around like a hot rivet this morning.

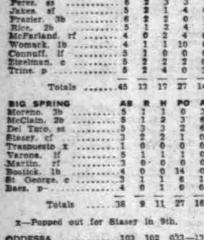

Odessa's Oilers, employing a makeup lineup, flattened the Big Spring Broncs, 13-9, in a ragged contest played here Tuesday evening. The Hosses had only a half game advantage over the Midland Indians before they took the field. However, the Tribe showed a reluctance to go to the head of the parade. Harold Webb's gang was humiliated by Sweetwater, 22-0.

Howard McFarland's Odessans showed little respect for an old jinx team and an old nemesis, Bert Baez. They raked Bert's offerings for 17 assorted blows, including a three-run ninth inning homer by Harvel Jakes and revealed an ability to go out and get their runs when they needed them. Big Spring and Odessa's Oilers close out their three-game baseball series at Steer park in an 8:15 o'clock contest this evening. The bout will terminate a five-game home stand for the Hosses. The Steeds will be idle Thursday due to the All-Star fracas in Ballinger, returning to play in Midland Friday. The locals and the Indians tangle in Midland again Saturday night and then transfer their scene of operations to Steer park here Sunday afternoon. Big Spring moves to Odessa for three contests starting Monday, July 28 before coming home July 31 to greet Sweet-water's Sports. Either Lloyd "Pat" Patterson or Stubby Blevins will pitch for the Cayuses this evening. Odessa's hurler will be either Ernie Faccio or Muscles Conniff.

Official point scores are never kept at Olympic Games, presumably to keep from embarrassing the various competing nations but unofficial counts have never found the U. S. far from the top. Some nations have been inclined to award points to their own athletes for marching in columns of four, suppressing beer burps and other such activities. Adolph Hitler was fond of this maneuver and in the second inning after pulling used it during the second inning after pulling Berlin. German newspapers dutimen had won the Olympics but this is open to grave doubts inasmuch as the U. S. flag was raised with regularity atop the winner's

> American athletes should lead the way again next year in the sprints and hurdles and some of the field events. The Swedes should monopolize distance races from 1500 meters up. Other titles will fall to gifted runners and jumpers from a variety of countries

Most of the American Olympic Games hopefuls are traveling abroad this . summer . on pre-Olympic tours of goodwill arranged by the Amateur Athletic Union, and from these trips the Olympic committee will be able to gather an even better line on U. S. tracksters than was presented in the recent . A. A. U. championships at . Lincoln,

World's Athletes Prep Mound Victory For '48 Olympic Show

REGGIE PEARMAN NYU 800-Meter Ace

U. S. Patton has blazed three 9.4 100-yard dashes this season, equalling Jesse Owens' world record for the distance.

ILLINOIS' BILLY MATHIS. AAU 100-meter winner who will aid Mel, and the same school's world's outstanding 400 - meter who ripped off a brilliant meters at Lincoln and looks like Olympic winner material. GIL DODDS will trot his fastest in the 1500-meters but indications from Scandinavia are that it won't be good enough. Beyond that distance things look black for the United States. HARRISON DILLARD of Baldwin-Wallace has no equal in the hurdles. The field events should be all U. S.

But in the midst of all these frantic preparations throughout the track centers of America, a growing cry is mounting to cancel the '48 Games. American athletes, stuffed with steaks and bronzed from training grinds, have been capturing world athletic trophies with extraordinary frequency- and not without creating a large amount of international animosity. Foreign misgivings over repeated wins by well-fed U. S. competitors were exhibited recently when British rowing fans booed John B. Kelly, Jr., who won the Diamond Sculls. The Britons were bitter over newspaper photos that had shown Kelly and his family eating healthy food they had brought overseas with them from America.

They knew that European athletes, trained for the large part under Nazi occupation, and who have been recuperating on strained soup and cabbage, could hardly expect to compete on even terms with Kelly, or any of the other American tennis, golf and now track and field stars.

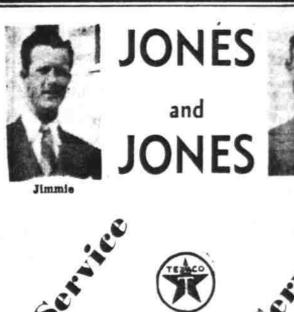

The Olympic Games have been the source of international friction since their re-birth in 1896. The large group who want the London Games put off feel that the U. S. should proceed on the theory that her athletes are as good or better than any in the world-but wait until a better time to prove it.
