Trustees presented the needs of the school district -- emphasizing that the small size of the district coupled with the large number of students was a big factor on the taxes levied.

The board said it was open to any suggestions on where to obtain more revenue without raising taxes. The farm group had no suggestions, but left the feeling that "the tax is simply too much for most farmers to live with."

One farmer said the group was concerned about there not being a farm owner on the equalization board, "We have the feeling we might be facing a stacked deck," he added. Trustees pointed out that a number of farmers had been asked to serve but had turned down the offer. The spokesman said the farm group could come up with several candidates for the board if one of the present board members was not serving. School trustees were cool toward this proposal.

One of the first questions fired at the school board was: 'Are the basic valuations still to be placed at $350 an acre for irrigated land and $200 for dryland?" The answer was "yes."

The board pointed out, however, that tax appraisers and school business office officials had met with farmers the week previously and reclassified the amount of land listed as irrigated and dry. The rate of $200 on dryland also drops down to $50, depending on type of land.

The meeting last Wednesday night (July 24), opened without preliminaries or statements and developed into a question and answer session. School board president Joe Miles issued a call for an orderly meeting at the start, and the discussions stayed on a friendly basis.

Tax Equalization Board Hearings Set

Bill Alspaugh told the board that the values were out of proportion with others around the area, giving examples of several. Trustee Ted Swanner pointed out that the Slaton district's operational cost figured out lower per student than any in the area, "We just have more kids and a relatively smaller district," he added.

Trustee Tommy Davis also added that you couldn't compare school district taxes without taking these other factors into consideration.

Walter Heinrich told trustees that farm owners were concerned what the high taxes would do to the market value of their land, "It would be interesting to know," he remarked, "just how much this will affect the price of our land,"

Carter Caldwell told trustees that the group didn't appear to wage an argument. . . "we know the board has problems, but taxes are getting too high for both the farmer and businessman, Does the board have any solutions for the future,' he inquired.

No one had the answer, but Swanner suggested that the place to start looking for an answer was in Austin. Nestor Kitten asked about the possibilities of a sales tax, and several trustees said this would have to come from Austin -that the local district couldn't impose a sales tax.

Alspaugh said the group thought Slaton might wind up with one of the highest values in the state on farmland, Trustees indicated they thought this would not be the case.

The trustees were also asked about the school's bonded indebtedness. Supt. P. L. Vardy reported the district was obligated for a payment of $110,000 per year.

Trustees, asked about the need for increased revenues. indicated that a study was made on a five - year basis. A proposed state teacher raise could raise the district's portion by $20,000 next year. Trustees also added that the budget was in the red last year

Reclassification of land recently trimmed the anticipated new $62,000 in revenues by about $17,500, the board reported. Board of equalization hearings could trim the total even more. Original estimate was on 100 percent collection. Dr. Vardy said collections averaged about 95 percent.

School board members attending included Miles, Swanner, Davis, Willie Heinrich, Don Kendrick, Jack Clark. Dr. M.J. McSween was absent. Dr. Vardy and tax assessor - collector Buford Duff were also present,

The farmers' group included Alspaugh, Heinrich, Caldwell, Kitten, S. G. Wilson, Victor Buxkemper, J. S. Edwards and Marion Benton, Also present was W. L. Roche, who showed the board a letter concerning property along US-84 bypass. He said an oil company was not interested in the land for commerical property because an access road would cut if off from the highway.

The board had previously indicated that no changes were planned in values placed on farmland within the city limits.

HEAD ACCEPTS NEW MEXICO OFFER

Police Chief Resigns; Sergeant Is Promoted

Police Chief Walter Headannounced his resignation from the Slaton Police Department Tuesday, leaving the post to accept a more attractive job as police chief in Grants, N.M.

Mayor Jonas Cain announced sday that Sgt. Glenn Farmer has been named to succeed Head as chief of the department. Farmer will assume duties today (Aug. 1) and formal city commission action is expected at the next regular meeting.

Head's resignation is effective Aug. 16, but he actually ends his duties this week since

Chamber Honors Police Chief

Slaton Chamber of Commerce directors honored Police Chief Walter Head with an informal coffee Wednesday morning.

Head, who resigned effective Aug. 16, was presented with a certificate of appreciation from the Chamber, and an engraved cigarette lighter. The certificate cited the chief for "meritorious service for a better Slaton,"

Carroll McDonald, C of C president, made the presentation, Mayor Jonas Cain and Sgt. Glenn Farmer, who will be promoted to chief, were also present for the informal meeting.

vacation leave is forthcoming. Head served as chief here exactly one year, taking the post on Aug. 15, 1967. He was chief at Tatum, N.M., before coming to Slaton and had formerly been with the Amarillo Head said his decision to move was "made difficult by the fine support received from citizens of Slaton," A "sizeable increase in salary" was given as the reason for accepting the Grants job. Head was being paid $515 per month here, and it was reported that he will start at $675 in the New Mexico city.

Farmer, the new chief, had worked with Head at Amarillo. The 37-year-old chief came to Slaton as patrol sergeant in September, 1967. He is a graduate of Baylor University. After serving on the Amarillo P.D., he went to Greeley, Colo., to enter the scrap iron business. Then he returned to the law enforcement field with his move to Slaton. Farmer said he plans "no drastic changes," adding that Head leaves the city in fine condition insofar as the police department is concerned. "We will continue present policies and hope to serve as well as Chief Head," he stated.

Following is the letter of resignation submitted to the

Autumn Hair Fashions Combine Curves With Curls

Curls will continue to ride the crest of a big wave of popularity into the Fall hair fashion season, predicts the Official Hair Fashion Committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, However, advises this hair fashion authority of the beauty profession, Fall hair styles will feature an important addition of curves that blend with the curls.

The blend of curves and curls that is to be featured in your own particular hair style will depend completely upon you, since this is one hair fashion season when you have a tremendous amount of freedom to express your own individualism. You can be funny, romantic, fragile, dramatic, nostalgic, or elegant, as you wish. But, whichever you choose, your hair style will continue to emphasize feminity. And, what can do it better than a combination of curves and curls!

Generally, the curves are modern and quite new in feeling, a far cry from the rigid finger waves of the thirties. They flow freely in a seemingly casual play of soft, loose waves, but actually are directed to bring out the best in your own particular facial proport-

By the same token, curls, too, exhibit a great variety, but are selected always for the particular role you wish to play this Fall. Basically ornamental, the curls may be large and loopy circles, ringlet curls, spit curls, or corkscrew curls. Each relects a personal taste,

New Phone Book Used Frequently

Have you got a lot of numbers floating around in your head that you are supposed to remember like, zip code, area code, and a telephone number? Well if you are a Slaton area resident, you now have a few more.

Recently all telephone numbers in the Slaton area were changed from having a VALLey 8 prefix to all numbers, 828.

New telephone books were issued to assist residents in arning the new numbers, but just changing the VA8 to 828 was not the only problem arising from the new numbers. All telephone numbers beginning with a four changed to a six. For example, if your number was VA8-4201, it is now 828-

This could be a problem if you had a bunch of numbers memorized and then dialed a four instead of a six. Take the name Kitten, for example, There are 16 Kittens listed in the new phone book. Of these 16, 11 were affected by the number change. So to get the right one, it meant a trip to the phone

But what about the businesses in Slaton? A quick survey of the new phone book revealed that out of 159 firms that are listed as business phones, 83 had to change their numbers to a six. That's a per centage of 52.

This involves several things; memorization, a change in printed forms for the company, and a continued use of the new

But all things being considered, Slaton has adjusted well the new numbers and the phone books have received frequent use in the last three

"We find we have to teach these children things that most children learn at home," said one teacher. For many of the Head Starters, its their first exposure to such things as picture books and fairy tales, or knives and forks, playing games in groups, or respect for elders or having someone show an interest in what they do.

Children living in poverty are subject to serious risks to their health, and Head Start provides physical and dental examinations. Health habits of the children were improved over those entering the program the past two years, reported officials. From the current class, two pupils have been scheduled for tonsillectomy operations.

Estate, Gift Tax Explained

As a part of the Federal estate and gift tax law, Congress has provided a system for giving your money away without paying tax, or by paying less be later. Briefly, the rules are: You can give each of your children, grandchildren, etc., $3000 each year without paying any gift tax or being liable for estate tax later (unless you die within three years after the gift). Out of community property, you and your spouse can give $3000 each or $6000 to each child, grandchild or other beneficiary. By filing a gift tax return, Form 709, with the Internal Revenue Service you can give $30,000 tax free out of your estate. Of course, in community property this would be doubled to $60,000 tax free from both spouses. This must also be more than three years before date of death. So, if you and your wife have three children who are all married, and you have nine grandchildren, you can give your 15 heirs $6,000 each, tax free, or $90,000 a year. By filing a form 709 with Internal Revenue you can use your $60,000 exemption (two 30,000 life time exemptions), 30,000 life time exemptions, you can pass $150,000 out of your estate the first year and $90,000 a year thereafter, tax free, provided you live for three years after the gift, If you are making an estate plan, it is probably advisable to consult an exemption of Federal estate. an experienced Federal estate and gift tax consultant.

Dr. Kay, one of the most sought after speakers in the West Texas, Eastern New Mexico area, has recenly returned from a tour of the defense installations of America. "I was invited by Clark Clifford, Secretary of Defense, to participate in a joint civilan orietation conference conducted by the Department of De-

The purpose of the conference was to give 70 civilian leaders, representing a crosssection of American business and professional leadership, a first hand view of our armed orces and observe open demonstrations at Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine field com-

Football, Religion, Music Blend Fine For Slaton Youth

If we started looking we could probably find many wholesome, good - looking 17-year-old boys who like music, and some who are outstanding in sports, and some who have made decisions to give their life to the min-

But how many boys do you think you would find that have all three traits and are outstanding in all of them? We happen to know one in Slaton, and there are possibly others we don't know about. The boy we are speaking of is

Buddy Pettigrew, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pettigrew. He will be 17 years old this month. If you haven't met Buddy, you might ask some of the teenagers, his pastor, and adults and see if they don't agree. "Yes", as his pastor, Rev. Johnnie Moore of the First Christian Church, says, "Buddy is turning into quite a boy". Buddy has been going to the First Christian Church in Slaton all his life and has been a faithful member, having received a seven - year perfect attendance certificate in Sunday School. His mother says he has a near perfect attendance since Cradle Roll days.

He is now serving as president of District 2 of the Christian Youth Fellowship, which is for the churches on the South Plains.

Buddy joined 40 Lubbock youths Tuesday morning on a bus and headed for Texas Christian University in Fort Worth where they are attending the State Youth Convention through Aug. 2. Also attending from Slaton is Billy M. Fenley, who went on ahead to visit water has a dual purpose. Conservation of our underground water is the main purpose, but the control of mosquitoes cannot be overlooked. Recent heavy rain has filled many of the lakes on the South Plains It is estimated by an irrigation engineer of the Soil Conservation Service that enough water is stored in the lakes to meet about 20% of our eds. It is a very cheap source of good quality water. A lake pump can be installed for less than a $1000, depending on the availability of a motor to pull the pump. A motor too weak to operate a well can be used on a lake pump with good success. Grice Herrington, a farmer near Idalou, stated that cotton totally produced from the use of lake water yielded 30 lbs. more per acre than cotton produced from well water. This was some work carried out several years ago by Herrington in cooperation with the Agriculture Research and Extension Center. This increase in production was attributed to lake water being warm and of excellent quality.

Mosquito control is a byproduct of the use of lake water. These little pest effect everyone whether they live in the city or in the country.

year. At that time, the Rev. Darrell Farris from Floydada had written a song "There's A World Out There" as the theme for the convention, Buddy played lead guitar when the song was recorded. A company in Fort Worth heard it and before long the record was in circulation. Rev. Moore said they have heard from places as far away as Denmark, Sweden and Spain that the record is being played there.

At that convention, two groups of youths were challenged to come up with a new theme song for this year. Rev. Moore says Buddy has "a real talent along this line". He and a friend, Byron Lamun of Arlington, along with Rev. Moore wrote the lyrics to a song which was selected to be used as the theme for this year's convention.

Buddy wrote the music. The name of the song is "Victory Through Faith". Buddy said he started playing the guitar in the seventh grade and taught himself. He had taken some piano lessons. He had a popular band for about four years but gave it up when he decided he liked folk and religious music better. Something about the conven-

Larry Hays, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hays, Rt. 1, Slaton, returned home Saturday afternoon from a two weeks biology field trip to Puerto Rico.

He and 15 other students from South Plains College in Levelland made the trip, accompanied by Mrs. Gail Burrier, biology instructor at the college. The group left July 14 by

Where is God?

"In all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make straight your paths." - Proverbs 3:16

Where is God in your life? Once a week? One hour each Sunday? Is this how often you acknowledge and rec-

God is everywhere. This is something the Christian learns at a very young age. Yet, as time goes on and the pursuits of life and earthly achievement become increasingly more important, how easy it is for one to forget! Put God into your life, acknowledge God in all your ways.

If you do nothing more,
with a greet each morning with a simple prayer that all you do will be done with the knowledge that God is with you every moment of every day.

Coaches Pick Slaton Last In 3-AAA Race

Slaton coaches, headed by athletic director Ernie Davis, are in Fort Worth this week attending the Texas High School Coaches Association annual convention.

All the local coaches left Sunday for the annual school. This year's clinic includes Texas A&M Coach Gene Stallings, Houston coach Bill Yoeman, and Houston basketball mentor Guy Lewis.

The all-star basketball game was scheduled Wednesday night, and the all-star grid battle is slated Thursday night.

A coaches' poll released the favorite in District 3-AAA. Slaton, moving up to the Class AAA ranks this season, was tabbed for last place by the coaches of the district. There are 11 teams in the realigned circuit.

Estacado and Dunbar are rated second and third in the district football race, followed by Brownfield, Snyder, Lamesa, Colorado City, Levelland, San Angelo Lake View, Littlefield and Slaton.

Sweetwater returns eight offensive and five defensive starters, as do Brownfield and Lamesa. Dunbar is the defending champion, however, and both the Lubbock schools are large enough for the 4A ranks already. Estacado, newest Lubbock school, played a junior also capturing the varsity schedule last year and nament last week. has 11 offensive and 10 defensive starters back.

Slaton returns a strong team with 5 offensive and 4 defensive starters, but coaches apparently think the Tigers will have a tough time making a dent in the new loop.

Every game will be a conference game in the big district. Slaton opens Sept. 13 at home against Lake View of San Angelo. The complete schedule: Sept. 13 -- Lake View here

Sept. 20 -- at Lamesa Sept. 27 -- Snyder here Oct. 4 -- Dunbar here Oct. 11 -- at Sweetwater

Oct. 18 -- Open Oct. 25--Estacado here Nov. 1 -- at Colorado City Nov. 8 -- Brownfield here

Nov. 15 -- at Littlefield Nov. 22 -- at Levelland

Little Britches Rodeo Set For Aug. 16-17 Here

It's time for boys and girls from age 17 and under to get ready for the junior rodeo which will be held in Slaton August 16 and 17th. The rodeo will be one of several known as the Little Britches rodeo circuit.

The circuit will conduct the rodeo with Brannon Busby serving as rodeo director. Several Slaton men will assist with the work involved, Original plans called for a local organization to sponsor the rodeo but since then plans have been changed, according to Busby.

A large portion of the proceeds from the rodeo will be used to imporve the rodeo arena here. Busby, who holds the lease on the grounds is donating it will be open to the public at no charge when various citizens want to use it in the future.

Boys and girls 17 years and under are eligible. There will be three age groups, judging boys and girls seperately. The age groups are 11 years and under; 12 years through 14; and 15 years through 17 years. Trophies and rosettes will be awarded.

Events will include pony bronc riding, steer riding, breakaway roping, barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying and flag race (one Barrel).

The director of the circuit is Troy Mounce of Levelland. For further information on the Slaton rodeo, call the Busbys at 828-6144.

SUPREME FEED MILLS, INC.

Box 505

Slaton, Texas

July, 1968

New Supreme Mill in Production

Supreme Feed Mills, Inc. has just completed the newest, most modern formula feed mill in West Texas. Feed production in the remote controlled plant began earlier in June. At this time, work is under way to dismantle the machinery in the old plant that was heavily damaged by fire in 1967.

In the new mixed feed plant Supreme Feed Mills manufactures a complete line of livestock and poultry feeds. The brand name is Top Flite Feeds. In addition to the complete line of Top Flite Feeds, custom mix feeds are available in six ton lots or more.

Construction of the new plant is in direct response to the ever increasing demands for Top Flite Feeds in Texas and New Mexico as well as the recognition of the dynamic and expanding livestock and poultry industry in the area. As with all phases of agriculture, the production of meat, milk and eggs must continue to expand. The ever increasing population and the rapid change of time is demanding greater production and higher quality from Mr. Feeder. Whether it be Beef Cattle, Dairy Cattle, Swine, or Poultry, today's product must be improved.

The new feed plant is just one step to aid in the necessary improvement of the end product. The all new, ultra

Open House Planned

Open house for the new Supreme Feed Mill plant has been scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 10, according to an announcement from Robert H. Davis, president and general manager.

Davis invites all farmers and feeders to attend the special "open house", which will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Aug. 10. Special music and refreshments will be provided, and a number of gifts and prizes will be presented to farmers and feeders attending.

Supreme serves an area that extends over a 200-mile radius from Slaton. The company manufactures a complete line of livestock and poultry feeds under the brand name of Top Flite Feeds. Products are marketed both direct and through dealers in this area.

Top Flite Agri-News Digest, a special farm program, is now being presented over radio stations at Slaton, Floydada, Lamesa, Lovington, N.M., Midland-Odessa, San Angelo, Junction and Ozona. Contact local listings for times.

since milk per day of life after 2 years in a Utah study was 5.5 pounds greater for 25 month freshening than 30 month freshening.

A recent New York State survey indicates that it costs $304 to raise a heifer to milking age. Let's give her every opportunity to pay for herself.

Although many changes have occurred in the dairy industry during the past few years, increased grain feeding far overshadows all others. The long, held idea that a cow should receive little grain, especially corn, during the dry period and immediately after calving in order to prevent udder edema has been disproved. Cows are being fed large amounts of grain throughout the dry period, the day of calving, the day after calving and each day thereafter. They have no more or no less udder edema than their ancestors that were starved at calving but they are giving much more milk.

Challenge feeding — challenging a cow to determine if she wants to milk or be ground into hamburger — is a popular feeding concept today. The concentrate ration is increased each day after calving as long as milk production continues to increase enough to pay for it. When the cow no longer responds in this manner, the concentrate ration is decreased one pound and we assume we have found her optimum level of performance. When milk production decreases later in the lactation, concentrate is decreased proportionately.

Many dairymen are finding that challenge feeding has almost eliminated ketosis from their herds. The lowered incidence is the result of providing adequate nutrients each day to meet maintenance and milk production energy needs. The properly fed high producing cow is not forced to metabolize vast amounts of body fat and absorb the by-product, toxic ketone bodies. Her digestive system and mammary relationship can be maintained, she will be a healthy and profitable animal. Challenge feeding does not reduce the evidence of ketosis if a cobalt deficient ration is being fed. Cobalt should be provided in cobalt de-

Although many dairymen and veterinarians are of the opinion that high milk production and mastitis are interrelated, no direct relationship has been proven at this time. This extremely costly disease that affects approximately 50% of our dairy cows in two or more quarters affects both low and high producers. I suspect that it akes a greater impression on us nen the best cow in the herd has to be culled because of mastitis. Faulty management rather than over-feeding ppears to be the major factor in causing mastitis. A properly adjusted milking machine, friendly environment, adequate sanitation and a responsible milker who likes milk cows contribute much to low incidence of this disease.

Challenge feeding and high milk production have little detrimental effect on fertility. The occasional high producing cow may show estrus shortly after calving and then become anestrus until her milk production drops. This is often considered to be the effect of high milk production but it probably should be considered to be the effect of an inadequate ration. Challenge feeding has improved fertility in some herds by increasing the quantity of the ration and improving its quality. Since alfalfa is a widely used roughage and its calcium content is high, many high roughage diets have a wide calcium phosphorus ratio which has contributed to fertility problems. Challenge feeding which supplies more grain high in phosphorus and correspondingly less roughage has narrowed the calcium phosphorus ratio and solved some problems.

Fertility problems appear to be more prevalent in large herds because of the greater opportunities for contacting infected animals and less individual attention. The greatest cause of infertility in our large herds is our inability to identify estrus. Artificial insemination has been a great boon to the dairy industry but man is a poor substitute for a bull at finding cows in heat.

Challenge feeding has focused much attention on grain but we should not ignore good quality roughage. It is yet the basis of most dairy rations. We are not feeding many dairy cattle on grain and oyster shells. In fact, the beef cattle feeder is finding that it may yet be profitable to include some hay in his ration.

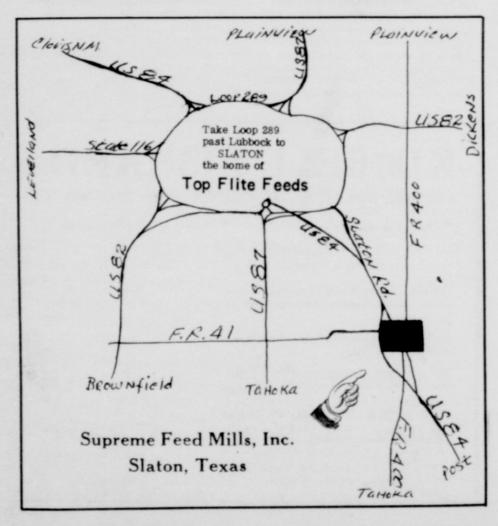

Good quality roughage contributes to keeping cows on feed, supplies unidentified growth factors, maintains butterfat content of milk and protects the cow against man's errors and omissions in compounding rations. Displacement of the abomasum became a problem in our dairy herds at the same time that we increased grain and decreased roughage. It appears that decreased tone of the abomasum and related parts of the digestive tract caused by this ration change may be a predisposing factor.

Producing good quality roughage can be and often is a frustrating problem during wet weather. Ensilaging is often the answer to handling the first alfalfa cutting. Corn silage also makes an excellent roughage and provides the greatest total digestible nutrients per acre of land in corn growing areas.

Lameness is a major problem in our dairy herds and is often the reason for culling potentially valuable cattle. Many factors such as faulty conformation, lack of exercise, and improper foot care are contributory causes but high grain feeding is frequently the basic cause of laminitis and sole erosions. Cautious grain feeding and foot trimming at least once ayear are two proven successful preventive practices.

Feed additives other than simple economical mineral mixtures are rarely justified if normal feeding and management practices are followed. When a specific need exists that can be satisfactorily met by a feed additive, it should of course be included but promiscuous addition of many additives is a foolish, wasteful and even harmful practice. When poor quality roughage or limited amounts of good quality roughage are fed, it may be economically feasible to add vitamins A and D to the ration. High doses of vitamin D are effective in preventing milk fever if the calving date can be accurately forecast and the material fed at the proper time. Cobalt, iodine and copper should be added when the soil is deficient in these elements. The addition of propylene glycol is indicated in some ketosis problem herds. Antibiotics should rarely, if ever, be added to a dairy ration since it is doubtful if the low levels approved by regulatory agencies are efficacious.

Horse Market Growing

How many horses are there, and what are some of the marketing factors? The number of pleasure horses in the U. S. is now estimated conservatively at 6 to 7 million, with much of the growth in or near metropolitan areas. The number of pleasure horses has doubled in the past seven years, according to a report in Farm Store Merchandising, a sister publication of Feedstuffs.

In the Los Angeles area alone, horse owners pay $30 million annually for feed, shoes, veterinarian care and maintenance of equipment - this does not include clothing or many other items.

The Morris Animal Foundation in Denver estimates that the average horse owner spends $72 a year for vitamins and minerals; his annual feed bill may be $275; shoes and drugs, $100; saddles, trailers and other equipment, $100; riding clothes, $150. Stable fees run as high as $125. (Some of these figures undoubtedly are much higher than the average in some areas.)

The horse industry claims about $5 billion volume of business a year in the U.S. Presumably this figure includes cost of horses of all types and horse racing facilities

Predictions are that there will be 8 million horses by 1972 and 10 million by 1977. The nation's 4-H horse projects now outnumber beef projects.

In Pennsylvania, a special survey indicated close to 85,000 horses. The study indicated that hay is fed at a rate of 2 tons per head. Some 95% of the horses get mixed grains or concentrates.

Flushing Program Helpful To Breeding

Feeding trails at the University of Wisconsin show a definite advantage for a flushing program.

Three types of feed programs were tried: (1) one group of gilts was grown out on a full feeding program which was not changed prior to breeding; (2) a second group was put on limited feed, then flushed on full-fed for about three weeks before breeding during the second heat period; (3) a third group was limit fed continuously and not flushed prior to breeding.

Tests showed that gilts from the second group produced an average of 1.7 more pigs per litter on the 25th day of gestation when compared with group 1 and an average of half a pig more per litter than gilts whose rations were limited throughout the growing and breeding period (group) 3.

Later studies showed that full feeding or flushing for only 10 days to two weeks before breeding begins will do as well as flushing for three full weeks.

Gains On Less Hog Feed

USDA's Crop Reporting Board estimates there will be 3,059,000 farm units operating in the United States during 1968. This is down 3% from the 1967 total and down 25% from the 1959 total.

However, the average farm, at 369 acres, will be 2.5% larger than in 1967 and 28% larger than in 1959. Estimates call for 1.13 billion acres of land in farms in 1968 - down only 0.3% from a year earlier and only 5% below that of 1959.

A breakdown of farm numbers shows the sharpest declines have come in the New England, Middle Atlantic, South Atlantic and Pacific States.

Sharpest drop in farm numbers is in California - where there will be 64,000 farms operating in 1968 - down 8.6% from 1967 and 43% from 1959.

Texas still leads the nation in farm numbers with 195,000 farms. Its total is off 2.5% from 1967 and 24% from 1959.

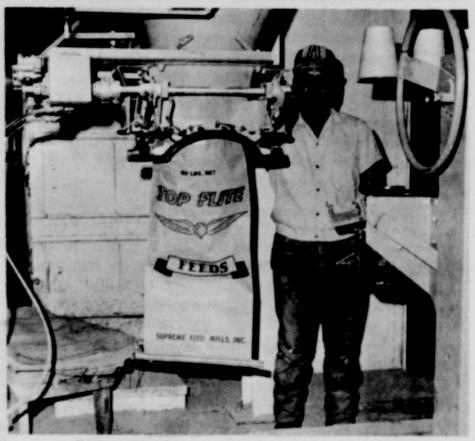

The trend toward fewer but bigger farms and increased specialization is further emphasized by the fact that of the 3 million farms operating in 1968, far less than 30% will account for more than 80% of all US agricultural production.

With the decrease in farm numbers and increase in farm size, the number of persons involved in the management of each farm (either directly or indirectly) has also increased, with each man tending to specialize more and more in a particular field such as nutrition, health, labor, marketing, management, etc.

Whether the ag colleges can train specialists to take over these positions as fast as the need for them arises remains to be seen. Already we are far short of veterinarians and other specialists in the animal nutrition and health field.

Reassuring is the fact that there are more students enrolled in agricultural colleges than ever before in the history of the nation, and, also for the first-time, more farm high school students than non-farm students want to and expect to go to college.

More typical of the demand and supply of technical specialists in the field of agriculture however is the fact that in 1967, four of the nation's top agricultural colleges produced only 18 men with undergraduate degrees in agricultural journalism, yet these four schools were bombarded with a total of 295 job offers in the ag journalism field.

RICHARDSON automatic bagging scale

For High Milk Production

by JOHN L. MCKITRICK, D.V.M. Columbus, Ohio

airymen have long associated high milk production with profit. This association is generally correct but it is possible to push practically all cows to a level of production after which further increases in milk production will not pay for increased costs. Furthermore, intensive selection for high milk production has in some cases resulted in a mammary system that produces more milk than other body systems can properly support under present feeding and maragement procedures. As a result, metabolic diseases such as ketosis and milk fever develop. When this occurs, high milk production is truly a pathological (disease producing) state.

Before you become alarmed and send your high producing cows to the butcher and replace them with low producing animals, I hasten to add that very few cows in the US are producing too much milk. The converse is true. Underfeeding is the major profit limiting factor in our dairy herds today, as it has been since the beginning of commercial dairying. Relatively few cows have an opportunity to reach their inherited milk producing potential. This is true even though we are all aware that we must supply a dairy animal with adequate nutrients from conception to salvage if we are to realize a maximum profit. We have much in common with the old welder who was being urged to attend night school where he would learn newer and better welding procedures. He spat tobacco juice on his shop floor and said, Mister, I already know how to weld three times as well as I'm welding now."

We must practice what we already know and constantly strive to learn and apply new feeding and management practices that will return a profit under our specific conditions if we are to survive in this highly competitive industry and provide an acceptable standard of living for our families.

Proper feeding and management practices must be instituted at concep-Attempting to compensate for previous errors and omissions after a hiefer reaches the milking line is three years too late and doomed to failure. In order to secure a healthy calf at birth it is essential that the dam be healthy at breeding and that viable, disease free semen be introduced into her reproductive tract at the proper time. The cow must be maintained in a healthy state throughout her pregnancy and the calf dropped into a disease free environment.

As our herds become larger and the temptation becomes greater to ignore the individual animal, we must constantly remind ourselves that individual attention is essential at calving. An excessively long and violent labor frequently results in a weak calf that is extremely susceptible to disease. The newborn calf should be provided with a dry, draft free stall and a relatively constant temperature during the first few weeks of life. Chilling occurs at temperatures below 55°F during the first 3 days of life and 46°F after 21 days of age.

Colostrum should be provided within the first 30 minutes of life. It has been conclusively proved that the one greatest deterrent to infectious diarrhea is a stomach full of colostrum immediately after birth - the earlier the better. Although milk substitutes are cheaper and satisfactory under most conditions, whole milk is yet the best calf feed during the post colostrum feeding period.

Every effort should be made to prevent nursing of calve's udders since this practice frequently results in blind quarters and unbalanced, low-producing udders. Supernumerary teats should be removed soon after birth because our milker claws are designed for four teats - not six.

Heifers should receive adequate nutrients during the growing period but should not be permitted to become fat since excessive adipose udder tissue inhibits the growth and development of milk producing tissue. Studies with identical twins have proved that a well grown, lean heifer will out produce a fat over-conditioned heifer during the first and succeeding lactations. Good quality hay, enough concentrates to provide for adequate growth, water at all times (the cheapest feed), a general purpose mineral mix, parasite control, foot trimming, exercise, vaccination against diseases prevalent in the area and frequent observation are the essentials of heifer feeding and management. Brucella vaccination should be done at 4 month's of age except in those states where laws permit 3 month vaccination. Heifers should be bred to calve at 25 months

(See FEEDING, Page 8)

Many factors are involved in a profitable cow-calf operation and they all add up to the percentage and weight of the calf crop each year. Supplemental feeding is one of the primary factors that determines profit. This means selection of a method to supplement grass is critical. When to start? How much to feed? How long to feed? What kind of supplement to feed? These are some of the questions that must be answered. Weather conditions can answer all except the kind of supplement to feed.

After a detailed study of the various methods of supplementing the beef cattle herd, the Range Cube has proven it's worth time and time again. That is why we at Supreme Feed Mills can conscientiously recommend one of several Top Flite Range Cubes at the supplement for range cattle.

One slight disadvantage could be that more labor is required to feed a Range Cube compared to protein blocks or a liquid feed. Is this really a disadvantage? One thing must be kept in mind--PROFIT. The small amount of extra cost incurred in feeding a Range Cube can easily be offset by the fact that cattle are seen more often, thus they are more gentle and easier to handle. This definitely cuts down on weight loss and adds to profits.

The savings in the cost of Top Flite Range Cubes compared to other kinds of supplement also helps offset the labor cost factor.

As mentioned, the name of the game is profits. The best way to be a winner is to keep the cows healthy and strong enough to reproduce annually and to produce enough milk to fatten their calves. Top Flite Range Cubes help accomplish this in the following ways:

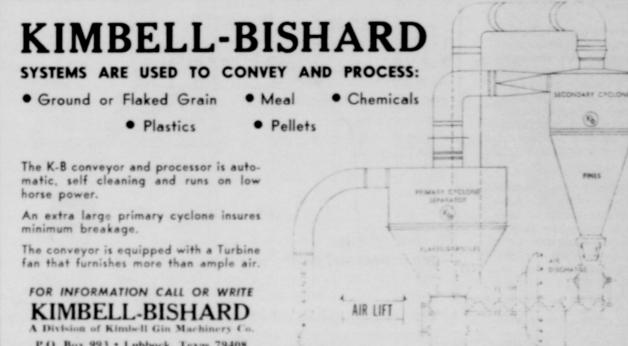

1. By furnishing high levels of energy from the best of carbohydrates.

2. The variety of proteins releases a more complete balance of amino acids thereby helping to keep the rumen organisms more active. This allows the animal to better utilize forage.

3. The vitamin fortification helps keep the animal stronger and healthier and improves breeding.

4. Minerals, from phosphorus right down to the trace element of iodine, afford better bone structure, glossier hair coat and add to the percentage of calf crop and conception of the herd.

True, no pasture supplement is a cure-all, but the disadvantages of feeding Range Cubes are far outweighed by the advantages. For more detailed information, contact Supreme Feed Mills, You will be contracting people that know cattle and the cattleman's problems.

Prices Predicted Next Fall

The president of the Poultry & Egg National Board recently predicted better times ahead for the egg industry, in a speech at a Portland, Ore., egg festival workshop.

Dr. L. A. Wilhelm told the 34 industry men at the meeting that egg prices next fall should be "substantially higher" than the current level. He cited several statistics to back up his contention.

For one thing, he noted, the number of egg-type chicks hatched so far this year is down about 18% from a year ago. Also, the industry has a large carryover of recycled or force molted hens on hand that must be disposed of. This means that there will be 7-8% fewer layers on farms this fall compared with a year earlier, Wilhelm stated.

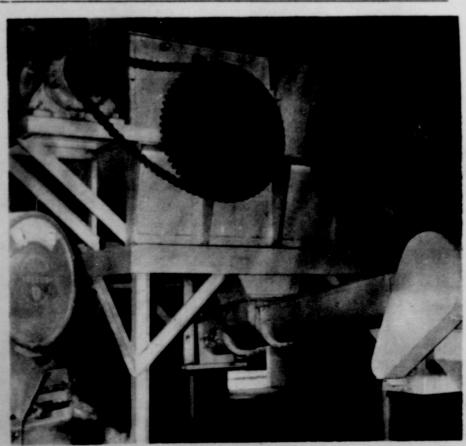

He told the Portland gathering that consumers will buy just about as many eggs at a comparatively high price as they will at a low price. Egg buyers for retail stores are not as concerned about the price they pay as long as no other buyer gets comparable eggs for less money, he asserted.

Whilhelm also presented a good deal of information on handling and merchandising eggs at the retail level. He said that, in most supermarkets, eggs are handled through the retail dairy case, and eggs are by far the most profitable item. For example, the return on investment is 121.5% for eggs compared with 43.7% for cottage cheese, 35 % for milk, 17.9% for sliced processed cheese, 11.6% for margarine, 6.3% for butter and 4.7% for processed cheese loaf, he said.

He also mentioned that in the average retail dairy case in large supermarkets only 3.1% of shelf space goes for eggs. When this was increased to 9.7% in tests, weekly sales increased from $11.89 to $231.28 per linear foot. The increase in the return on investment was 311.3%, it was pointed out.

Wilhelm stated that about 27.5 million dozen large eggs are sold by retailers in large supermarkets each week. He emphasized that retailers could substantially increase their profits by providing more shelf space for eggs because of the close correlation between shelf space and eggs sold.

He said research work has demonstrated that egg' sales can be increased by 50% by placing a large display of eggs where consumers can see and inspect them.

modern mixing equipment, from the latest full circle grinder to the stainless steel cooker and mixers, will turn out superior quality, assuring Top Flite feeders of a thoroughly blended product for maximum results.

Feed processing is carried out in the compact 90' tall steel and concrete structure. This is attached to the two story brick tile and concrete warehouse containing 22,000 square feet of warehouse space. More than 1,000 tons of storage for ingredients is available plus the existing grain storage of 15,000 tons. Finished feed products are available both bagged and bulk, from 600 tons of storage.

EQUIPMENT

The primary equipment consists of a 4 ton weigh hopper, two 3 ton horizontal mixers, sifters, drum magnets, scalpers, two 150 h. p. pellet mills, a 20 ton double pass cooler, automatic bagging scales, grain pulverizers, a stainless steel cooker, roller mill and cooler. All equipment is operated from the air conditioned central control room. The engineering design and construction was handled by Brown-McKee, Inc., Lubbock, Texas.

SERVICE

For greater customer satisfaction, Top Flite Feeds are processed on order. This means Top Flite Feeders not only get uniformly blended feeds, but feeds that are freshly made. Supreme Feed Mills, Inc. serves an area that covers a 200 mile radius from Slaton. Top Flite feeds are marketed both direct and through dealers in this area. Distribution is mainly handled by the fleet of Company owned trucks. See map of plant location on page 8.

Gains On Less Hog Feed

Feeding a pelleted ration to hogs produces faster gains on less feed, according to W. G. Brown, Jr., University of Tennessee extension assistant animal husbandman, in a report carried in Cooperative Farmer, a publication of Southern States Cooperative, Richmond, Va. Research work has shown that pelleted rations are generally 10% more efficient than the same feed in meal form, but, he asked, do pellets pay?

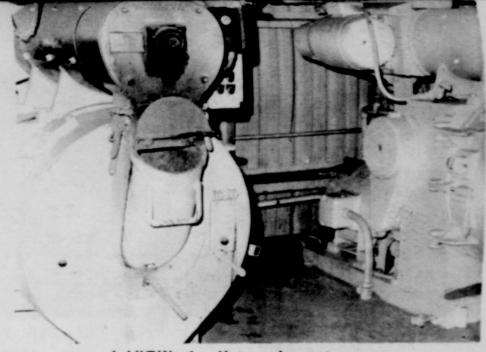

With the feed efficiency improved 10%, a group of hogs requiring 3.5 lb. of feed to produce a pound of pork on 3.15 lb. of feed or 635 lb. of pork for each ton of feed.

With the feed efficiency improved 10%, a group of hogs requiring 3.5 lb. of feed to produce a pound of live hog would produce 570 lb. of pork for every ton fed.

If the ration was pelleted, the same hogs could produce a pound of pork on 3.15 lb. of feed or 635 lb. of pork for each ton of feed. This results in 65 more pounds of pork for each ton of feed used.

If the hogs sell for $15 cwt., 65 lb. of live hog is worth $9.75. When hogs sell for $20 cwt., 65 lb. of live hog is worth $13.

When purchasing complete feeds, compare the costs between pelleted and meal feeds, suggests the animal husbandman. Figure how much 65 lb. of live hog is worth. If the amount is more than the difference in price per ton of pelleted over meal feed, then the best buy is the pelleted feed. Feeding pelleted hog feed can be profitable.

U.S. FARM EXPORTS HIT $100 BILLION

WASHINGTON — The value of U.S. farm exports since the end of World War II surpassed $100 billion in fiscal year 1968 ended June 30, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman reported.

Estimates place the value of fiscal year 1968 agricultural exports at $6.4 billion, the fifth straight season in which the U.S. has exported more than $6 billion in agricultural products. The record was $6.8 billion in 1966-67. Last year, exports totaled $6.7 billion.

Government program shipments for the year ended June 30 are estimated at $1.5 billion, down from $1.6 billion a year earlier.

Each year since 1960, the European Economic Community alone has bought more than $1 billion worth of U.S. farm products. And Japan has become the largest single-nation customer, taking close to $1 billion annually in recent years.

Leading agricultural products exported since World War II have been wheat, cotton, feed grains, oilseeds, tobacco and rice. Wheat and flour together have accounted for a fifth of the total. Cotton exports have amounted to $15 billion; feed grains $12.1 billion; oilseeds and vegetable oils $10.2 billion; unmanufactured tobacco $7.6 billion, and rice $3.3 billion.
