WASHINGTON By George Durso

Persuasion

That two-hour discussion between Joseph J. Kennedy, Ferdinand Pecora and James M. Landis which preceded formal organization of the Exchange and Securities Commission sowed seeds you'll see growing in due time.

Although it was a typically hot summer day the debate over who was going to be chairman was even hotter. Pecora's objections to serving under Kennedy got so pointed at one stage that Landis closed the windows. It was a good thing from the Commission's viewpoint because a dozen reporters were lounging under those windows and Pecora's voice was beginning to carry.

All of Landis' persuasiveness was needed to bring the outspoken Senate prosecutor around. For over an hour Pecora was threatening to go straight back to New York without taking the oath of office.

At the outset Pecora minced no words in objecting to the idea of making Kennedy chairman. He pointed out that he, as prosecutor of the Senate stock market committee, had disclosed Kennedy as one of the operators of a pool that made a small-sized fortune in alcohol stock.

Pecora was careful to give himself an out. He told the newspaper men what a financial sacrifice he was making and said he would work out just as much of his one-year term as was financially possible.

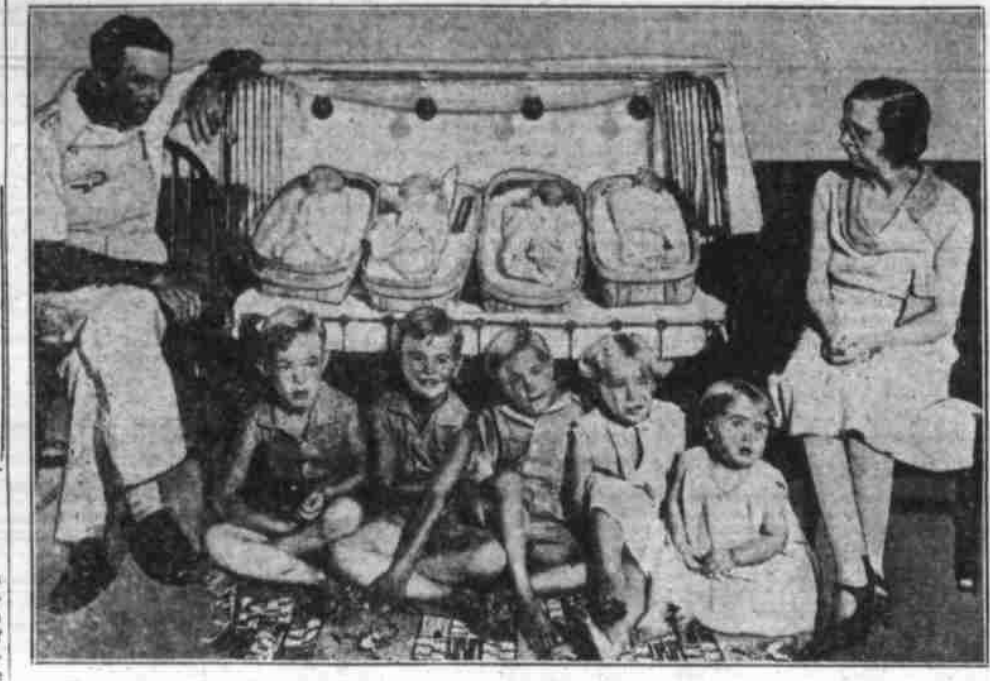

Pride of authorship had as much to do with Pecora's final decision as anything else. E. E. Landis, Tom Gorcoran and Ben Cohen collaborated in writing the act which created the Commission.

As Pecora put it, he felt a paternal instinct and wanted to be on (Continued On Page 7)

Rodeo Featured In Latest John Wayne Western

Lovers of that most thrilling of outdoor events, the rodeo, will be afforded an opportunity to view one when "The Man From Utah," John Wayne's latest western thriller, opens Friday at the Queen Theatre for a two day run.

With the background of the old West as the sturdy pioneers knew it, all the events of the rodeo, including the fanfare accompanying it, are offered in this thrilling drama.

John Wayne, as John Weston gives the most daring performance of his career while winning prizes that are offered for bull-dogging, roping and bronco-riding, against the sterling competition of Cheyenne Kent, played by Yukina Canutt, who has been a seven time winner of the Roosevelt trophy for excellence in rodeo events in the past.

The story deals with the attempt of Wayne to rout a band of crooked rodeo performers who have been swindling the people of their money, by giving faked performances. Wayne enters the contest, thrills the spectators with his amazing feats, and after a series of narrow escapes, manages to learn the secret of the gang and bring them to justice.

Ann Harding Takes Leading Role In Ritz "Gallant Lady"

"Gallant Lady," the 20th Century Picture starring Ann Harding which opens at the Ritz Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, presents one of the most poignantly dramatic and appealing stories which has come to the screen this season.

Noted for her understanding portrayal of feminine character, in this picture this capable star has a unique opportunity to exercise to the fullest her ability to rise to emotional heights. The story deals with a young woman, mother of an illegitimate child, who is forced to assign the child for adoption immediately after his birth, agreeing never to see it again.

As the years pass she becomes a phenomenally successful business woman, and at the height of her fame accidentally meets again the child whom she had counted lost to her. The story brings her to the point where she is forced to choose between being reunited with her child under the penalty of remaining silent regarding her true identity, and playing fair with the man she loves and running the risk of wrecking the boy's future.

The play is climaxed in a tensity dramatic scene which gives full play to Miss Harding's histrionic capabilities.

Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck, who produced "Gallant Lady" for United Artists release, have surrounded Miss Harding with an exceptionally able supporting cast. This array of talent includes such names as Clive Brook, who achieved such notable success in "Cavalcade"; Otto Kruger, famed Broadway star of "Counselor at Law," in which he replaced Paul Muni; Tullio Carminati, who scored so remarkably in Brook Pemberton's "Strictly Dishonorable," and later in "Music in the Air," as a result of which he was called to Hollywood to make the present film and "Moulin Rouge," a screen musical starring Constance Bennett for 20th Century; and Janet Beecher, who is making her screen debut in this film.

He Ran Away

Tullio Carminati, above, has a part in "Gallant Lady" that fits him like a glove. Cast as a tilted Count, he is able to fill the bill from experience. He hails from a film family and when he expressed a desire while still a lad to become an actor, his family hooded it down with horror. However, he ran away from home and got on the stage although he was disowned.

Barthelmiss Had Gripping Role In Show

Ruthless Character Rides High On Tide To Success, Then Crash

Portraying a magnificent role, the most gripping and dynamic in which he has appeared in years, in a soul stirring story from the pen of the famous author Louis Bromfield, and surrounded by an equalled cast, Richard Barthelmiss will appear in the Warner Bros. production of "A Modern Hero" in the Ritz Theatre on Thursday.

Here will be seen the Barthelmiss who swept like a meteor across Filmland skies a few years ago, and the hundreds of thousands of Bromfield readers who made "A Modern Hero" a best seller overnight, will at last realize their desire to see that author's powerful characterization brought to life with all their force and color on the screen.

Five leading ladies are required for the five important feminine roles. Beautiful Jean Muir, now a star in her own right, again plays the part of a demure little country girl. There is Marjorie Rameau, whose comparatively recent screen career has been a succession of marked successes in difficult roles; Florence Eldridge, Dorothy Burgess and Verree Teasdale, each of whom is a leading lady in her own right.

The principal male parts are taken by Theodore Newton, Hobart Cavanaugh, William Janney, J. M. Kerrigan, Arthur Hohl, Mickey Rentscher and Richard Tucker.

Mr. Bromfield's story is a pen picture of the conflicting moods and traits of a youth whose father was one of the financial geniuses of Europe, and whose mother was a popular circus beauty whose career as a leopard trainer was ended when one of the beasts chewed off her arm.

As a circus rider in his mother's tent show, the young man is seething with discontent and ambition. He is a promiscuous lover, who doesn't hesitate to use his attractiveness for his own advantage and the rises to great heights in the financial world, only to crash.

Despite the ruthlessness of his character, he has many fine traits, one of which manifests itself in his tender love for his illegitimate son. The story reaches great emotional crises and has an astounding climax.

The picture was directed by G. W. Pabst, the famous UFA producer who was barred from Germany for the production of "Kameradschaft." This is his first American picture.

Texas' First Bale To Be Exhibited At Century Of Progress

RIO GRANDE CITY, (UP)—The world's first bale of 1934 cotton, produced as usual by the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, will be displayed at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

J. R. C. Towles, Houston cotton man who purchased the first bale from Francisco Lozano and A. Vela, La Grulla cotton growers, has decided to ship the bale to Chicago, according to information received by the producers of the cotton.

The first bale was on display for several days at the Houston Cotton Exchange after arriving in Houston, June 18. It was then shipped to the New York Cotton Exchange, where it was shown for several days.

As one of the exhibits at the Century of Progress Exposition, it is expected to attract attention of thousands of fair visitors to the Lower Rio Grande Valley and Texas.

According to information received here, the bale eventually will go to Belgium to be made into cotton cloth.

Spectacle Is Embellished With Comedy

Musical Hits Heard; Stars Range From Laurel To Mickey Mouse

"Hollywood Party," an hilarious musical extravaganza with an all-star cast, is the new film attraction coming Sunday to the Ritz Theatre. This much-talked-of Metro-Goldwin-Mayer production, in which a drama is embellished with music and comedy, thrills and spectacle, marks a type of entertainment entirely new to the screen.

Its plot was written by Howard Dietz, author of such Broadway successes as "Flying Colours," "The Band Wagon" and "Three's a Crowd"; and Arthur Kober, well-known Hollywood scenarist. Its musical numbers are the work of Rodgers and Hart, Donaldson and Kahn, and Brown and Freed, the three outstanding song teams of today.

Its cast ranges from Laurel and Hardy to Mickey Mouse, the famous cartoon figure, which, through amazing camera effects, actually appears with human actors.

Jimmy Durante Present
Jimmy Durante, of the renowned "Schnezzle," Charles Butterworth, Polly Moran, Lupe Velez, Frances Williams, Jack Pearl, Eddie Quillan, June Clyde, George Givot (Givot), who are trying to cheat each other out of a cargo of new clothes. For their motion picture, Durante, Jimmy Durante and Mickey Mouse, invites all the Hollywood stars in order to induce Baron Munchausen to sell him the lions. "Lionsdora," disguised as a Greek grand duke, "crashes" the festivities, as also does Lupe Velez, the Tiger Woman, who wasn't invited.

Laurel and Hardy arrive as lion tamers and figure in an hilarious episode with Lupe—also in one in which a lion gets loose in the big party. Mickey Mouse, through clever camera effects, attends the party in person.

And there's a Love Story through all this comedy runs a love story between June Clyde and Eddie Quillan, and a burlesque love affair between Jimmy Durante and Polly Moran.

The musical numbers are interpolated as an integral part of the drama itself. They include "Hello," a spectacular number in a glass and cellophane setting, with Durante, Jack Pearl and a great dancing chorus; "Hollywood Party," sung by Frances Williams; Durante's hilarious "Reincarnation" number—with appropriate tableaux; a screechingly funny duet with Durante and Polly Moran; "Hot Chocolate Soldiers," a Walt Disney Silly Symphony with Mickey Mouse; "I've Had My Moments," the love number, sung by June Clyde and Eddie Quillan; and "I'm Feelin' High" with Harry Barris, the Shirley Ross Quartette and chorus.

Striking settings, an orchestra suspended in mid-air, and dancing spectacles in which 1,500 of Hollywood's most beautiful girls take part are among the unique features of this "totally different" screen entertainment.

Story For 'Black Moon' Cast In Background Of Voodooism

With Jack Holt in the stellar role a vividly dramatic one, Columbia's "Black Moon" comes to the Queen Theatre today, Monday and Tuesday. "Black Moon" unfolds for the most part in Haiti against the mystic background of voodooism. The story involves a white girl who rips the garments of civilization from her body and the thin veneer of convention from her soul to rule a savage band of blacks.

"Black Moon," which is an adaptation of Clement Ripley's Cosmopolitan magazine novelette, affords Holt one of the most colorful roles of his long career. As a staid New York business man, Holt learns that to his wife the best of tom-toms was stronger than the love which beat in her heart. It enslaved her—overpowered her. Her flight to her native land, Haiti, to rule a black kingdom, and Holt's endeavors to fight his wife's strange actions, lead to a startling climax.

Holt, who has gained in popularity with each new film, was recently seen in "Whirlpool," "Master of Men," "Man Against Woman" and "The Woman I Stole."

Beautiful Fay Wray and Dorothy Burgess, fiery and raven-haired, are seen in Holt's support. Miss Burgess, in cast in the role of the wife, who, secretly, is the leader of a voodoo cult. Fay Wray has leaped to startling popularity in the last two years. Cast for a time only in "horror" roles, such as in "King Kong" she finally escaped from them in "Ann Corver's Profession." Other dramatic roles followed: "Once to Every Woman," "Viva Villa," "One Sunday Afternoon" and "The Bowery."

Miss Burgess, too, has come into her own recently. Her dark beauty "typed" her for a time in limited roles because of her outstanding characterization of a Latin in "Old Arizona." Recently, however, her fine acting took her out of the "type" class. Her latest pictures are "Modern Hero," "Circus Clown" and "My Sweeney's Friend." With "Black Moon," this sterling young actress attains new heights.

The supporting cast includes Cora Sue Collins, the child who attained fame in "Queen Christian," Arnold Korff, Clarence Muse, Eleanor Wesselhoft, Madame Sultana, Lawrence Criner and Lundsen Hare. Roy William Neill directed.

Unrelated beneficiaries under the will of the late Will Hogg, Houston capitalist, who left a $3,000,000 estate when he died at Baden Baden, Germany, in 1930, are trying to carry out their fight against inheritance taxes. They contend that the inheritance tax, in force at the time of Hogg's death, did not apply to legacies for unrelated persons to be used within the state.

The state claimed a five per cent tax under Classification E of the Inheritance Tax law. The beneficiaries assert that this section applied to Foreign legacies.

Disputed amount of the tax is $10,000. Payment was made on other legacies.

Three non-resident Texans suggested by Major Paul Wakefield to the Centennial Commission as persons who might make pertinent suggestions for the state's Centennial in 1936 are:

King Vidor, Galveston born; Capt. John W. Thompson, Huntsville, and Stanley Walker, Lampasas.

Vidor is best known as the director of "The Big Parade." Thompson's stories of the marines made him nationally famous. He illustrated them himself. He now is an aide to Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. Walker is city editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

3 Merry Rogues Crash Moviedom Gates By Bluff

"Bottoms Up," described as a romantic comedy with music, will open at the Ritz Theatre on Friday and remain for an engagement of two days. Buddy De Sylva, the producer who was also responsible for "Sunny Side Up," is credited with another hit. Like his earlier success, "Bottoms Up" is reported to be a delightful romance with songs woven logically into the story.

"Pat" Peterson, lovely English comedienne, makes her American film debut in this picture. The other members of the cast are Spencer Tracy, John Boles, Herbert Mundin, Sid Silver, Harry Green, Thelma Todd, Robert Emmett O'Connor, Dell Henderson, Susanne Kaasgen and Douglas Wood.

The film satirizes the bluff of Hollywood. It portrays how three merry rogues and a girl with movie ambitions put on a swell front and crash the golden gates of the moviedom. The girl, who has long cherished a love for a famous movie star, soon finds herself skyrocketed to film fame by her three rollicking companions. Before long she is playing opposite the man she has loved from afar. When the girl and her three companions are found to be bluffs, the situation becomes embarrassing. But the film star, who has fallen in love with the girl, sticks by her and—you'll want to see for yourself how it ends.

The four song numbers which give promise of being hits are "Waiting at the Gate for Katy," "Turn on the Moon," "Little Did I Dream" and "I'm Through My Love Away." The four well-known song writers responsible for these numbers are Harold Adamson, Burton Lane, Richard A. Whiting and Gus Kahn.

David Butler directed from his own story and screen play which he wrote in collaboration with B. G. DeSylva and Sid Silver.

Mite Boxes Are Distributed By Methodist Church

Members of the board of stewards of the First Methodist church are distributing among members of the church mite boxes, to be used as banks in their homes. Purpose of the campaign is to assist in raising money for the church. The mite boxes will be returned to the church officers each month by the members and emptied into the treasury. Each member is asked to put at least 30c per month in the mite boxes.

Several other churches in the state have reported unusual success in raising money for the church in this novel manner.

Wedding Was Family Affair

HAMPTON, N. H. (UP)—The wedding of Mary Warren Hadley and Philip Warren Howe turned out to be a family affair. The bride's six sisters and the groom's five brothers comprised the wedding party.

Formerly such appointments were made by the governor. A statute gave the appointing power to the judges several years ago.

Texas' most prized possession is exposed daily to public view with no fear that it might be stolen. The original declaration of independence is in a shrine in the state capitol lobby. It is behind heavy glass and a grill, with an ingenious leave-turning device. Hidden lights make it easily read. Presence of watchmen in the lobby adds to its security. Its greatest security is that no one would dare offer it for sale, if they did succeed in taking it. But it might be "kidnaped" and held for ransom. It has been displayed in the capitol lobby since December, 1929, without any attempt to disturb it.

Out of the inferno of tropic madness comes the weirdest romance of our time!

WHO WHOS THE RAILROADS?

In a recent editorial, the Lansing, Michigan, State Journal answers the old question of "Who Owns the Railroads?" The people do. They own them in two ways: First through direct ownership of stocks and bonds by the banker, the butcher and the candlestick maker.

portant advantages life insurance holds out of the average man: First, the chances are against a majority of American breadwinners accumulating estates of sufficient size, save through life insurance, to assure comfortable old age.

A great deal of scorn has been poured out upon the endless talking done in representative parliaments. It is often tiresome. In great emergencies it may be dangerous. But this endless talking marks a very great advance in civilization. It required about five hundred years of constitutional development among the English speaking peoples to turn the pugnacity and predatory impulses of men into the channels of talk, rhetoric, bombast, reason and persuasion.

GINNERS NOT TO BE HAMPERED BY "RED TAPE" UNDER NEW ACT

Cotton ginner operators throughout the Cotton Belt were advised today by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that there will be very little "red tape" connected with their responsibilities under the Bankhead cotton act. The administration based its statement on an interpretation of the Bankhead act in relation to ginner prepared for it by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. This showed the procedure allowed under the law is extremely simple.

The statement was issued because numerous ginner operators have misunderstood the provisions and operation of the Bankhead act have complained recently about the "red tape" which they feared would be connected with its administration. The act levies a tax of 50 percent of the average central market price per pound of lint cotton, which has been determined as 11.34 cents, on all cotton ginned above the 10,450,251 bales of 478-pounds net weight fixed as the maximum to be ginned tax-free. Under the statute the average central market price may be again determined should the secretary of agriculture deem it desirable. In no case, however, may the tax be less than five cents a pound.

Bale tags are to be issued to ginner operators who will attach them to all cotton ginned this season when the producer surrenders tax-exemption certificates covering the amount of the cotton ginned, when he pays the tax.

While these bale tags must be stored safely, the act does not require them to be kept in a safe. The same office equipment used for safekeeping gin records under lock could be considered, in the judgment of some ginner, a safe storage place for bale tags.

The act requires an affidavit from producers who wish to take their ginned cotton home, store it, and postpone payment of the tax. This affidavit may be sworn to before any county agent of county or community committeeman. These agents and committeemen were empowered by a joint congressional resolution to administer oaths in connection with applications for tax-exemption certificates and they can also administer oaths to producers desiring to store cotton. These services are available free to farmers who wish to postpone payment of the tax. Many ginner had the erroneous impression that these affidavits must be sworn to before a notary public.

Representatives of the Bureau of Internal Revenue will visit ginner monthly and administer oaths free

SPITE MARRIAGE

by Katharine Haviland Taylor

Chapter One COLLECTOR OF MEN

HAT hour when Miss Gertrude Moore was thirty, she looked a stern-lipped, puritan fifty-five; and she prided herself upon the fact that she had "never evaded a duty!" Duty was seen by her as some disagreeable truth that she must tell, or as a gesture she must make near the particular apple cart which the gesture would upset.

And, since age increases flavor and bouquet, Miss Gertrude, at a frost-bitten forty, was as welcome to any convivial group as would be a case of swamp fever to the tropics; and, although the general public took no measure to stamp her out, their collective fading at her approach suggested that she was highly contagious.

Occasionally when gentler souls considered Miss Gertrude Moore, they murmured that.

trade Moore, they murmured that, perhaps, after all, it was no wonder that her niece, Marsha Moore, was "a trifle fast"; but these gentler souls have weak lungs and their voices cannot penetrate into the wall of a heart that has lost a love.

Marsha Moore collected men, both single and ostensibly attached, as sundry old maids of both sexes collect Spades, Miniz, Wedgewood, Cartas, Sevres or willow ware. And, having collected them, she held them against the light to see through them and then she set them upon her shelf to laugh a little and mirthlessly, or to raise her quizzical brows.

When Marsha was sixteen and Miss Gertrude thirty, Miss Gertrude had seen Marsha upon the horizon as "a duty."

Miss Moore told Rector about it, and when he called on the day after "the tragic news" reached him, he had foregone his golf, knowing that Miss Gertrude Moore was not a person who "forgives undue delay."

"And you say you are going to give a home to your niece?" asked the Rector, who was pleasantly round and to whom sinners drew near easily, and of whose "levity" Miss Gertrude disapproved.

"I can do no less," responded Miss Moore after which she tightened her lips to look like one of the avenging fates, but—rather more so.

"The child is sixteen!" asked the Rector.

"Sixteen and unfortunately like her mother, of whom I have never approved."

"God help her!" thought the Rector and with full piety. He said "It was a tragic affair!"

He was speaking of a large washed night and during the day, she had seen her father tall, lean and erect, always debonair; anxious that Marsha should not care too much about anything for anyone.

"Don't go caring too deeply!" he had warned her again and again. "It smashes your heart to nothing."

He had dreamed, young, that life son of "character"; Marsha was not easy to deal with and men were too attracted to her. The Latin teacher for instance, Miss Pringle reached for her smelling salts. That affair had done to upset the whole school!

"Sit down, dear," said Miss Pringle. Marsha settled.

Miss Pringle stared at her for a moment. Even women sometimes considerable time.

She had strange flashes of her mother, pink-lined parrot canted over a shoulder and in a ricksha in Shanghai. Colonel Duveen had always been by her that season.

Marsha had considered him "quite a rotten sort of cad."

Men for Marsha were divided into classes that she headed, "Plain, fancy, and rotten cad"; and even at that hour and at fourteen years she felt she knew men well and that nothing more of them could be said to her.

And too, throughout the long might be "rather splendid," and when he found that it could not be that way, he had chosen laughter; but looking on Marsha he remembered women cried easily.

Miss Pringle was behind her desk.

"My dear, dear child!" she said as Marsha entered. Marsha hobbled as she had been taught and quite properly, but a muscle at the corner of her lovely lips twitched a trifle.

"I have a message from your aunt," Miss Pringle continued; Miss Pringle hoped the aunt was a per-had to stare at Marsha, who made the dullest witted soul think of Spain... its languor, hot passions, sweet scents; its drugging, enervating loveliness.

And while Miss Pringle stared at the flower which was Marsha's face, Marsha thought, "I shall have to live with Aunt Gertrude—I suppose—" thought it levelly; hopelessly. She and her mother and father had always laughed at the mention of Aunt Gertrude, but—ones can't always laugh at such peo-

"A moment, dear," she said, and ringing for Alice she ordered a small glass of port. Marsha drank it and then she went back to her room which she had shared with the domestic, Clarabelle. Here she packed methodically, as Clarabelle went for her. And as she packed she forecast the measure of her new life. "Is your aunt kind?" Clarabelle asked after a deep sob. "She means to be," Marsha answered as she folded her party dress, and it makes her quite unbearable at moments. Will you look on the cupboard shelves, Clarabelle? "I'll manage," said Marsha. "I'll have to," she looked around the room—"I think I have everything now," she ended, "that belongs to me"—and again she saw her mother in a 'riksha, and her father telling her not to care too deeply lest she smash her heart. Yes, everything that belonged to her could now be packed in a suitcase and a trunk, and was no longer prolonged. Clarabelle flung her arms about Marsha, wept and then accepted the remains of the packet of cigarettes. Marsha could spare them, for she had another box. The other girls did not really exist for the departing one, and what farewells there were seemed as perfunctory as they were. Miss Pringle herself came down in the midst of her most grand, seeing the grief-stricken students-off manner, playing the scene for all it was worth, and perhaps a little more. Marsha still was too doped to care, and too absorbed in her own thoughts to do much more than bob in the approved style at the end of the standard Pringle departure speech. Only Alice, Miss Pringle's maid seemed to sense that underneath Marsha's dulled behavior, and behind Miss Pringle's school-mistress crust, there existed a truly dramatic situation. Alice wept. (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) hand to see that no one guided the infant into devious ways. Corcoran, a member of R. F. C. counsel and a junior brain trust, helped persuade Pecora to play along. Before Pecora went down to meet Kennedy he had an earnest session in his hotel room with Corcoran and Landis.

Smash— Joseph P. Kennedy, the first chairman, has had an interesting career. Good-looking and sandy-haired, he appears ten years younger than the 46 to which he admits. He is a member of the National Industrial Conference Board. He dresses meticulously and the tan of the Palm Beach sun gives him an exceptionally healthy appearance. Son of a wealthy New England contractor, Kennedy got his higher learning at Harvard. He was star first baseman of the baseball team and after graduation tried out with the Boston Red Sox. He decided against a professional ball career and entered a Boston bank. At the age of 26 he was president. Kennedy married a daughter of John F. "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald, former mayor of Boston whose renditions of "Sweet Adeline" used to throw Democratic conventions into raptures. They have eight children. As an original Roosevelt man Kennedy split with his father-in-law and lined up with Honey Fitz's despised political enemy, ex-Mayor James M. Curley, to win the Massachusetts vote for F. D. R. He contributed $50,000 to the campaign and loaned so much more that the Democratic National Committee still owes him $33,000. Kennedy got interested in motion pictures through his friend Frank C. Walker. He maneuvered organization of RKO and reputedly cleaned up $7,000,000. Talking pictures were just coming out strong. Warner brothers made a talking picture. Kennedy was in charge of something bad as a counter-drawing card. Gloria Swanson at the moment was believed on the way out. Kennedy discovered she could sing, signed her up and made "The Troubadour", a box-office smash the shooting of which he personally supervised.

Oil— New York gets a laugh out of the government's latest effort to get rid of the "hot oil" problem. Everything looked rosy for a settlement whereby the East Texas independents would be allowed to produce in return for having the large companies provide a ready market for their products. In fact this solution was officially announced but it didn't come off and here's why. The government thought it had a smart system to make sure the independents would keep their end of the bargain. It was provided that they should only be paid three-fourths of the price of their products—the remaining fourth being withheld until full compliance was proved. This ingenious device didn't freeze the hot oil lads a bit. They simply lacked the price of spot gas from three cents to four. That way the 75 per cent they would collect immediately equalled 100 per cent of the old price. Then the big companies which had agreed to purchase balked at the rise and the deal was off. Experts say the new federal tax on oil will probably do more to curb the bootlegging menace than anything else yet tried. Severe penalties for false tax returns stop oil output is already 50 per cent below two weeks ago. But New Yorkers who know East Texas say the operators will soon find a new way to give Mr. Tecca headaches.

Revival— New York bankers get word that Secretary Morgenthau's private brain trust will make a detailed examination of the Federal Monetary authority proposal introduced at the last congress and submit recommendations. This aspect of their research hasn't been publicized but it may turn out to be their most important job. Insiders expect the Monetary authority to be revived with a bang at the next session of congress as a feature of Mr. Roosevelt's permanent program.

Blocked— The well laid plans of nine New York Clearing House banks to pay their pro rata share of the Harriman bank losses and thus escape further liability has come a cropper. The Harriman Bank Depositors' Protective committee objects to the payment on the ground that the clearing house officers who made the pledge should not be released from further claims because of the partial payment. That blocks any hope of getting 60 per cent depositor approval as required by the plan, and dumps the whole mess back in the government's lap. It looks as if the Clearing House banks may have to stick together in spite of themselves.

Pleased— The "makeup" of the new federal commission gives the aviation industry its first pleasant surprise in months. Insiders say the boys had candidates of their own but never figured they'd get anywhere. They were ready to be grateful just to escape such "radicals" as General Billy Mitchell and Clarence Chamberlin. Now it turns out that four of the five members were on the industry's private list. You can imagine the glee. The designation of Clark Howell—publisher of the Atlanta Constitution—as chairman isn't as strange as it seems. He's favorably remembered for his work on the Coolidge-Smith railroad board. And he's had an unpaid debit on the administration for campaign

Chairman Of Claims Board Speaks Here

Fred W. Davis, familiar as a former state secretary of agriculture and chairman of the pink bollworm claims board, addressed an audience here Saturday in behalf of his candidacy for secretary of agriculture. Davis also took occasion to explain the status of the pink bollworm deficiency warrants being issued against claims of farmers affected by the quarantines here several years ago. "The warrants have been re-audited and sent from the comptroller's office to the compensation claim board," said Davis, "and should be in the mails this week." He indicated the warrants will be mailed individually. Davis cited his record while serving as secretary of agriculture before retiring. He advocated encouragement to farmers to build up "successful organizations to the end that they may manage their own affairs in accordance with the established laws of business. He hit at efforts to cut down production to "the level of the demands of poverty and eliminate the poverty thereby."

He expressed opposition to allowing any member of the secretary of agriculture's department to dabble in the cotton market. Arriving here quite unshowered, Davis was attended by a good crowd.

Rush Depletes Contracts For Cattle Buying More Than 3,500 Head Offered In County; Glascock Has Set-up Demands of farmers and ranchmen of this county Saturday exhausted the supply of contract offers for offering cattle to the government in its drought relief livestock purchasing campaign. With more than 3,500 head offered here already, approximately 100 offers had to be delayed Saturday when the contract and offer blank supply became exhausted. The delay came immediately upon the heels of the establishing of an office in Glascock county. To be handled out of the Big Spring county agent's office, the Garden City set up is in charge of J. B. Jamison, teacher of vocational agriculture in Garden City. Chris Shafer is to be appraiser for the Glascock county set up. County Agent O. P. Griffin wired immediately for a shipment of contract blanks but would hazard no prediction as to when they would arrive. He said that the inspector, Dr. Carl Stewart, and the appraiser, H. O'Daniel of Cosboma, had enough work ahead to keep them busy for more than two weeks. Saturday's first shipment of cattle bought by the government in this county were received here. There were 62 head in the lot. At Montic 416 head from the John Gurita ranch were loaded on and shipped here. As soon as the stock could be fed, it was to be shipped on, according to R. H. McNew, county relief administrator. McNew said that first of the canning plant equipment to be installed in the plant at Ninth and Main streets was received here Saturday. Installation was to start immediately. Included in the first shipment was 7 retorts (large pressure cookers). Other equipment was to arrive here during the forepart of the week and the plant would be in operation the last of the week, McNew believed. The plant will can choice beef obtained in the cattle buying drive by the government in this and surrounding counties.

Personally Speaking Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Williamson and son, Thomas Joe, will leave today for a 10 day vacation trip to Three Rivers, San Antonio and Austin. John Crump, Gulf geologist, Marion Cartwright, and Wallace Winberry, all of Midland, were visitors here Saturday evening. Milton Cline, with the Shell company in Midland, was a visitor here Saturday.

Last Rites Held For Infant Son Of Mosers Franklin Allen Moser, infant and only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Moser, was buried Friday evening in the New Mount Olive cemetery. The child was born Thursday evening. Burial followed a bedside prayer conducted by Rev. John Thorns, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. A grandmother, Mrs. Eloise Arnold, was here for the services.

EAST FOURTH SERVICES Rev. Woodie Smith, pastor of the East Fourth Baptist church, returned here Saturday evening from Chicago and announced he would fill the pulpit of his church at both services. He said that services would be held at the regular hours.

Highway Work Begun Friday Sixty-Five Men Start Digging Caliche; Truck Hire Short Highway work started on No. 1 east Friday with the digging of caliche from a deposit 6 miles east of here. Sixty-five men taken from rolls were employed in the moving of the road base material. County Administrator R. H. McNew Saturday said that his office was experiencing difficulty in obtaining hire of trucks for the project. The trucks are to be used in moving the caliche from the deposit to the new road bed. The No. 1 project, east and west, is to be followed through to completion with an asphalt topping as a relief job. Absentee Voting To Start Here Monday Absentee voting starts here Monday, serving as a timely warning that the July 28 primaries are "just around the corner." Voting by absentee ballot is legal July 8, but that date falls on Sunday. County Clerk J. I. Prichard refused to take ballots Saturday for, fear they would be thrown out as illegal. Meanwhile candidates were losing their composure and scurrying about frantically on the "home stretch." Saturday night they went to Elbro to partake of an ice cream supper and then aspired on the merits of their respective candidacies. Wednesday they were scheduled to appear at Center Point and Friday at R-Bar.

Judge Clark M. Mullican To Speak In Big Spring July 14 In Interest Of Congress Seat

Judge Clark M. Mullican, 69th Judicial District, Lubbock, Texas, will speak in behalf of his candidacy for congress, the new 19th congressional district, on the Court House lawn Saturday, July 14th at 8:15 p. m.

Judge Mullican will explain in detail the eleven working points of his program for congress. Some of the leading points which he advocates are: "No more tax free government bonds; issuance of non-interest bearing currency up to two and one half times the value of gold and silver reserves, in lieu of interest bearing bonds, as the necessity may arise; adequate national defense; the exchange of our 'foreign debt' for foreign goods we may stand in need of; the farm—the ranch—the small oil producer (a) cost, plus profit, as industry enjoys; (b) protective tariff, as industry enjoys; (c) refinancing farm ranch and home loans at cost, up to 100% fair value; (d) government purchase of low grade surplus cotnational old-age pension legislation; stopping war by drafting industry and eliminating profits.

Judge Mullican's platform has created state wide comment, which is as follows:

To keep faith with my fellowmen To ever be mindful of my trust To remain loyal to those I represent

To do, always, the very best I can.

Judge Mullican is 47 years of age. Texas born, reared and educated; attended the University of Texas, also Texas Christian University, at which times he took part in all oratorical contests. As well as being an outstanding lawyer and jurist, he is a successful business man, cattle raiser and farmer.

When the United States entered the World War, Judge Mullican was appointed Major due to his past military record of 6th Texas Infantry; he organized companies at Dallas, Ft. Worth, Hillsboro, Mexia, Groesbeck, Hubbard City, Gateville, Ferris, and Sulphur Springs; was assigned Major of 14th Infantry, 30th Division, Oct. 15, 1917, sailed from Hoboken with the 14th Infantry, arriving at Brest, France, July 30th, 1918; he served on the front, was decorated with the Croix de Guerre, was discharged as colonel July 8th, 1919.

Judge Mullican is making a strong bid for the office, and his supporters and friends contend that he will be in the run-off.

He is a forceful and pleasing speaker and the public is invited to hear him.

Lon Smith Carried 253 Counties Out Of 254 In The State Of Texas

AUSTIN—Lon A. Smith, chairman of the railroad commission of Texas, has been honored more generally by the voters of Texas than, perhaps, any other man who has offered for state office. Records reveal that he is the only man in Texas to receive a majority of votes of the electorate in as many as 253 of the 254 counties in the state.

"I am still trying to figure out how I lost that county", Commissioner Smith commented to a group of his supporters from over the state, who gathered in Austin to offer their services in the campaign this week.

"I'll try to get that mayerlek in the right corral this time," he remarked.

Commissioner Smith's career as a public servant has been long and successful; in private life, as a family man and friend he has been equally as outstanding. As a father of eleven children, he has guided the family with judgment. The humblest citizen in the land is assured of a warm welcome from "Long" as he is affectionately known throughout the state.

Born in Buick county, commissioner Smith first entered public life as a county clerk of his home county, serving in this capacity for six years. Later as state senator for six years, he represented his constituents ably and faithfully, advocating progressive, sane and sound reforms; passing legislation for the protection of labor, education of the masses, moral uplift and the necessary onward march of progress. When, in the Texas senate, there were many complex questions presented for legislative contemplation Lon Smith was always ready to espouse the cause of the people.

Since his district was agricultural, the senator was a ready and able champion of the farmer. Organized labor recognized in him a faithful friend. He had done his work so well that when seeking a second term no opposition impeded him.

As state comptroller, for two terms, he solved many of the biggest problems ever faced by the holder of this office. His successful handling of confederate pension matters is one example of his accomplishment.

Since his election as state railroad commissioner his work has been equally as constructive. Fearlessly and often under the most merciless criticism, he has conducted his office wisely and dutifully for the good of the state.

Now, Lon Smith is asking for a second full term in that same office, and justly submits his 13 year record as servant of the state for voters' inspection. His growing popularity as a public official has always been marked by an increasing, positive and steady growth of his majorities, as indicated by substantial victories over strong contestants for political preferment. He has never been defeated since his initial election, and the law of human nature declares that people do not tire of voting for a capable, dependable public servant of his type. His record has been unparalleled in Texas politics; his 13 years in state office have ripened into labors of experience which qualify him for greater and more efficient service.

"I do not ask for the suffrage of the Democrats of Texas as an untried neophyte," Commissioner Smith declared. "I have served my state and my people for 13 years without taking a vacation, and I hope to continue serving them just as efficiently."

Commissioner Smith maintains his home at Henderson, Tex., in a house roomy and comfortable for his large family. Here, he and Mrs. Smith have received their friends with true Texas cordiality in the past, and the same warm welcome is assured those calling at their residence in Austin while he is in office here.

In addition to being a Southern statesman in his own right Commissioner Smith comes from a family of men who have served the

GIANTS HAVE THE EDGE

The New York Giants alone hold an edge over all National league teams over 23 years, winning 2,929 and losing 2,156. The Cubs have been the hardest for them to beat although the Terrymen hold a margin of 376 to 250. Ernie Orsatti, Cardinal outfielder, is writing a movie scenario.

Here's versatility! Alvin "Butch" Kruger of Beloit, Wis., pitched a two-hit game for Madison, Wis., in the Wisconsin State league and two days later broke par by two shots in the Western open golf championship. Johnny King, the old Cub star, believes night baseball should be eliminated. King now owns the controlling interest in the Kansas City Blues.

J. Shirley Miller of Louisville says the oddest man in baseball is a southpaw catcher. Miller has been trying to sell a left handed catcher's mitt since he quit baseball in 1925.

Post Office Team Rumps Over Ford Club 11-3 Friday

The Post Office soft ball team romped over the Ford boys 11 to 3 Friday.

The Motormen were handicapped by not having all of their players out for the game.

The Mailmen scored nine of their eleven runs in the first inning.

Ninety per cent of the holes-in-one claimed in this country are products of lively imaginations, says Johnny Dawson of Chicago, golf star and equipment salesman.

"Golf manufacturers used to give liberal prizes for each ace scored, and some do yet," says Dawson. "But nine out of ten are false." At a round table discussion during the Western open, Dawson and Gus Moreland, Walker cup star, were asked why the English didn't play better golf. Both said the English seldom practiced and never kept score when they did.

The "no alibi" contest is the latest in golf. Under the terms of the novel affair, each golfer is permitted to recall and replay five shots.

BARNEY'S AT THE FAIR Barney Oldfield, the veteran racing demon, won his first race in 1902 by running his car five miles in five minutes and 28 seconds—less than a mile-a-minute. Barney is working at the world fair, but has cut his cigar supply to 10 or 12 a day "because I can't afford any more."

Sport Fans In Kansas Going In Big For Polo

TOPEKA, Kas. (UP)—Polo, once considered an eastern game, has won a real foothold on the prairies of Kansas.

An incomplete survey of the state discloses eight teams at Fort Riley, one at Chapman, two at Independence, seven at Topeka, five at Wichita and several at Fort Leavenworth.

Crowds at weekly games of the Topeka Polo association showed steady gains throughout the spring and early summer months.

Raffero Latest Parisian Dance PARIS (UP)—The Raffero is out, but Parisians may go for the Conga, according to dance experts. The tango still leads, with the rumba a good second, but a combination of the two (Raffero) is said to prevent the boys from concentrating.

Don't Waste Gas

Your Gas Water Heater Will Work More Efficiently And At Less Cost If You Follow These Suggestions.

Water Heaters, like every other appliance, should be properly adjusted. The flame should have a proper mixture of natural gas and air so that it makes two perfect cones, one inside the other. The flame should be regulated so that it barely contacts the heating surface. The heat control should be regulated for a water temperature of 130 degrees.

Of much importance in cost of operation is the type of water tank! The insulated type operates at a much lower cost. The heater used in this section of the country should be the "tank type," because of the corrosion caused by the water. A plumber should be called each year to remove the "crust" from the bottom of the tank as it acts as an insulation and makes necessary the use of more gas to keep water at the correct temperature.

The cost of keeping hot water at all times in a correctly adjusted, insulated water heater is much less than heating water as you need it in open, uninsulated pans... and by far, more convenient.
