Chit-Chat And The Cinema

About a year ago this newspaper made a plea for less babble some behavior at the cinema. It's an age-old complaint that you can hear in almost any city in any state, but we're still stubborn enough to think it's worth mentioning.

We daily implore our children to learn good manners and to observe common courtesies, yet we might do well to examine our own manners more closely. A good indication that we've done so would be less conversation while we're at the movies.

It has been our observation that 10-year-old Johnny and his counterparts aren't doing all the babbling. Mom and pop are in on it, too.

And for the guy behind them, it's like a return to the silent movie days.

"We Have No Choice"

"We had no choice. We took the first available teacher."

That comment is typical of those received from 915 city and county school superintendents last September, when they were asked if they had experienced difficulty in filling vacancies on their staffs.

The same survey indicated 793 teaching jobs were vacant on the first day of the current school year because of the teacher shortage. It also showed that 1115 teachers holding certificates based on less than four years of college training were hired for 1952-53.

Attractive offers from business and industry are causing many teachers to leave the profession. The same lures keep many young college graduates from entering the teaching field.
Their examples influence many high school graduates to change their minds about studying education.

It all adds up to an ever-increasing shortage of competent teachers while our school enrollments are constantly going up. Must we tell our children:

"We had no choice. We took the first available teacher."

—Texas Outlook.

Dog-Eared Days

Is reading going to the dogs? Or to put it differently, have puppies a greater appetite for literature than their masters?

According to the book bindery of the St. Louis Public Library, puppy dogs have taken too literally Sir Francis Bacon's advice that some books are to be chewed. People who suppose that human carelessness is the greatest defacer of books are barking up the wrong family tree.

Man's ingratitude for the treasures of literature in this age of technicolor and television may cause him to cold-shoulder books, but not to dog-ear them. Yet of the small, tale-wagging vandals Shakespeare might truly say that their tooth is not so keen as man's ingratitude. For surely cold neglect is worse than devouring curiosity, and a masterpiece left on the shelf is a sadder sight than a loved book strewn on the rug.

Far be it from us to throw a bone of contention among the TV fans. But remembering the delights of our own dog-eared days, we would growl, just a bit, and worry the subject until someone says (in the words of the New York Herald Tribune's John Crosby): "Look, fellas, a book!" — Christian Science Monitor.

Helping Junior . . .

One of the hot controversies in the nation's church circles right now is over the matter of forcing boys and girls to go to Sunday school. Some religious teachers are opposed to making attendance a "must," while others insist that it is essential to junior's proper upbringing.

Off hand, we should say the same thing applies to religious as to secular education. No red-blooded American boy is overly fond of regular school, almost all have to be forced, morning after morning, to slick up their hair, pick up their books,
and hie themselves to the temple of learning.

Why not the same rule for spiritual knowledge, which in the ordinary span of life, will be equally, if not more valuable, than the "three R's"?

Let's see what an atheist, and at the same time one of the nation's most noted criminal lawyers, thought of a boy's chances in American life. The following comes from Clarence E.
Darrow, defense attorney in some of the most spectacular criminal cases of the last generation.

"If I were a young man, with life ahead of me, I think I'd chuck it all, the way things are now. The odds are too great against you, and anyway, the world is all wrong nowadays.

"I certainly have no encouragement for the young bloods that are just starting out looking for jobs. The sooner they jump out of windows, the sooner they'll find peace."

Would you like your sons and daughters taught this philosophy?

Or, would you rather follow the advice of a professor at Yale Divinity School, Dr. Paul H. Vieth, who says that a child, Junior or Sally, should be sent to Sunday school just as they should be compelled to brush their teeth or go to bed at the proper time. If, however, the children complain about what happens in Sunday school, their complaints should be heard and, if justified, proper corrections made.

This issue is important to the new interest being shown throughout America in Christian education. This interest was stimulated, rather than harmed, in the Supreme Court decision of a few years back which held the teaching of the Bible in public schools unconstitutional.

The rule is said to have been regretted by some of the justices, but there has been no reversal or reconsideration.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that two Congressmen, Sen. Mike Monroney, Okla., and Rep. Brooks Hays, Ark., have proposed setting up a chapel in the National Capitol for use of the people's lawmakers. This obviously would be an "unconstitutional use of the peoples money—but it would be money well spent, nevertheless.

Back on the subject of junior and the Sunday school, there's no law against parents TAKING their children to religious services. Try it some time. — Amarillo Daily News.

What About The Honest Ones?

If you should ever hear about a "crooked" politician, remember—it is ONLY because it is real NEWS. News—the unusual—the different—the uncommon.

Therefore it should be obvious that among elected officials or politicians, honor and integrity is as commonplace as it should be. Today a public office is still a public trust. All politicians are NOT crooks. Almost every public servant is doing a sincere and honest job for YOU.

Have you ever thanked a man for accepting public responsibilities? Have you ever thanked ANY elected representative for serving YOU? Think about it—then take the next opportunity you have—say "THANKS!"—Brownfield News.

Ledger Of Tragedy

Depressing and encouraging statistics jostle each other in the nation's reckoning of lives lost and bodies maimed in traffic.

The totals of 1952 for accidents of all kinds, according to the National Safety Council, are:

Killed, 96,000; injured, 9,700,000. Estimated material damage, $8,300,000,000.

Of these, 38,000 deaths occurred in traffic. Home accidents took 29,500 lives and occupational mishaps, 15,000.

There's a grain of comfort in the fact that in spite of a tremendous increase of cars and number of miles traveled, the rate of 7.3 per 100,000,000 miles driven was the lowest on record.

Main thing to remember: These are digits on a ledger, but to the family of the motorist who is killed or maimed, they represent sheer and undiluted tragedy, beyond help or the comfort of forgetfulness. — Los Angeles Examiner.

Former Slatonite Gets Appointment FW-DC Rail Post

James Eubanks of Lubbock has been appointed Traveling Freight and Passenger Agent for Fort Worth and Denver Railway at Amarillo succeeding W. N. Ver-ner, recently promoted to Commercial Agent at Fort Worth.

Eubanks has been Traveling Freight and Passenger Agent for Burlington Lines at Lubbock since October 1950.

A native of Slaton, he began his service with the railroad as stenographer at Lubbock in 1946
after completing military service during World War II. He was transferred in May 1949 to the General Office at Fort Worth
where he remained until his 1950 promotion. The Eubanks have two children.

Kenneth Lamb, of San Antonio,
will succeed him as Traveling Freight and Passenger Agent at Lubbock. Lamb's services with Burlington Lines began in April 1948 in the General Passenger office at Fort Worth. After occupying positions there he was transferred to the Traffic Department in Galveston in May 1950, then to San Antonio in November 1950
where he remained until the present promotion.

He also is a veteran of World War II, having served overseas, and later with occupation forces in Japan, and is a member of the Organized Reserve. The Lambs
also have two children.

Meet A Newsboy—

Slatonite newsboy Wayne Banks,
who lives at 210 North 4th St., and sells a paper route on East Garza, is 13 years old and in the Sixth grade.

His favorite subjects in school are arithmetic and spelling and his favorite sport is baseball. He likes to play left field and he likes to pitch. He also plays basketball and football.

Wayne says he never takes an apple to the teacher. He has heard that an apple a day keeps the doctor away, and if his teacher should want to miss a day of school now and then to see a doctor, he would be the last to want to interfere.
He likes all his teachers and is too
wise to say which is his favorite.

Of all the days in the year, and that includes Christmas, July 4th, Thanksgiving, Wayne likes the first day out of school best. The first day of vacation is the best day he has ever had, especially this year.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Kitten's baby daughter, Carol, was returned home Thursday of last week. She had been in a Lubbock hospital with a cerebral hemorrhage.

Cotton Cultural Practices

Good crop cultural practices are important to every farmer.

For the cotton farmer, good cultural methods are especially important for two reasons: (1) they help assure maximum production on the land, and (2), they aid in keeping insect infestation to a minimum. The second reason has special significance in view of the continued spread of the pink boll-worm in Texas.

A previous article by Glenn Shelton, farm editor of the Wichita Falls Record News, pointed out the dangers of the pink bollworm.
This insect can make cotton growing a losing proposition in Texas unless it is checked. Then what can we do?

The Texas Department of Agriculture, which sets and enforces cotton planting and plow-up controls in certain climatic areas, is co-operating with Mexico on this problem. If the insect can be reduced in the county from which it spread to the United States, then a big part of the battle is won.
The rest is up to farmers in Texas and other infested states, aided by agricultural officials.

A practical five-point cultural program is recommended by the Texas Department of Agriculture

this year. The practices involved are meant not only for farmers in heavily-infested pink bollworm areas but all cotton farmers in the state. These practices are:

1. Use all known methods which tend to speed up maturity of the plant and harvest of the cotton.
This involves planting the cotton
as early as possible and planting fast fruiting varieties where it is practical. It is desirable to use only properly treated and culled high germination tested seed and to leave plants as thick in the drill as soil moisture content will allow. Fertilizers should be used when recommended. It is also especially desirable to protect the plants from early-season damage from the usual insects which would slow development of the plant and allow the pink bollworm
to get a better hold.

2. When the cotton has been harvested, destroy the stalks immediately. Early stalk plow-up shortens the breeding cycle of pink bollworm and other insects and helps cut down a carry-over into the next season. Stalk shredders are excellent.

3. In transporting the picked cotton, cover the vehicle with a tarps to prevent loss and possible spread of the insect. Where tarps are unavailable or too expensive, substitutes may be used such as poultry wire, gunny sacks, etc.

4. Use seed which has been sterilized against pink bollworm at the gin.

5. Clean your fields, including the end-rows, fence lines and di-ches of all standing cotton stalks, thus destroying the winter nesting and feeding place of the insects.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

BY VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN, Tex.—Are Texas teachers going to get more money? The answer is maybe so. A bill to give them $600 per year pay increases is now in legislative process.

The bill, by Senator A. M. Aikin, Jr., of Paris, easily passed its first test. The senate education committee approved it unanimously and moved it along to the senate floor.

Teachers jammed the senate chamber for the committee hearing.

Senator Aikin said the bill, if passed, would cost the state 32 to 35 million dollars a year.

Those speaking for the bill included R. L. Proffer of Denton, former state senator and now president of the Texas State Teachers Association; Willie Kocurek, businessman and member of the Austin school board; and Mrs. Rae Files Still of Waxahachie, teacher and former member of the House of Representatives.

There were no witnesses against the bill.

Then, there is a large octopus of chain store optometrists in Texas.

Strongly opposing the bill was Dr. N. J. Rogers of Beaumont, who contended that "The people of Texas will be paying higher prices for glasses if this bill passes."

Dr. Rogers, operating under the name of the Texas State Optical Company, has 24 shops. Speaking against any restriction on advertising, he said "If any man can show me how a window display or a neon sign reduces visual care in Texas, I'm for the bill." Rogers labeled the bill as strictly an anti-advertising measure designed to stifle competition and drive his firm and many others out of business.

Optometry is not a profession like law, medicine, or dentistry, in the opinion of Dr. Roberts. It is rather, he says, a semi-profession, in that it entails both eye examination and selling glasses. He pointed out that "all optometrists have to pass the same examination before they can be licensed to practice."

The House has passed a bill by Representative Bill Daniel of Liberty to construct two new state buildings in Austin.

The state now owns the necessary land, which is just south of the capitol. One building would be for the courts, the other for state offices.

The state at present rents a considerable amount of office space, and the rent could be applied on payment for the new buildings.

Twice before, the House has passed this measure, which on both occasions was killed in the Senate.

Texas eyes turned to Washington again as Governor Shivers went there seeking to get the tidelands returned to the state.

The governors visit was prior to hearings on tidelands legislation before the Senate interior committee and the House judiciary committee.

"I hope legislation will be passed disposing of the overall tidelands question," Shivers said.

Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, wants the Legislature to give him 130 more patrolmen and to restore the narcotics division of six agents.

"We can't police Texas with six men," Garrison admitted, "but we can pinpoint cases. And we can get results." The narcotics division has not functioned since 1939, when the last appropriation for it was made.

The additional patrolmen would give Texas a total of 600, Garrison said, which is only about half the number set by various formulas. California has 1,800.

A workshop for training home-stead improvement demonstrators and others will be held at TSCW, Denton, on March 12 and 13.

If the Aikin bill passes, where will the money come from to pay the teachers?

Governor Allan Shivers, who is writing a series of articles about teacher's pay, suggested the following solution:

"1. Transfer part of the available school fund, which goes to all districts on a strict per capita basis regardless of need, over to the Gilmer-Aikin minimum foundation fund, which guarantees a decent standard to the less prosperous schools, and

"2. Return to the original proposition of one local dollar for every three state dollars of Gilmer-Aikin support."

Not only public school teachers, but also those in colleges and universities, are also presenting their arguments for more money.

Dr. Logan Wilson, new president of the University of Texas, said in a speech that "salary-wise, this institution ranks at or near the bottom of the list of members of the Association of American Universities, and I think the citizenry and their elected representatives must be aroused to make concrete improvements."

Another bill passed out of committee is one that regulates optometry. This one is highly controversial and kept the House Public Health Committee in session until well after midnight.

The bill, sponsored by the Texas Optometric Association, was supported at the hearing by Dr. Ira Woods of Littlefield, a member of the State Board of Optometry Examiners, who said, "There is a racket in eye glasses which we want to eliminate." He added:

"There is a minority of optometrists . . . who don't recognize professional standards and use unscrupulous means of advertising."

Victim Of Polio Develops Talent New Personality

Mrs. J. W. Pettigrew reports that her niece, Miss Cherry Dodson, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Dodson of Post, is not only making an amazing recovery from a simultaneous attack of both types of polio, but is also developing unusual talents in the process and has undergone a complete change of personality.

From a very ordinary child Cherry has developed into a precocious youngster with a warm outgoing personality. Since she was stricken with polio about 18 months ago she has become a pianist and artist, has become adept at building figurines in bottles and in assembling intricate models. She has learned to type over 60 words a minute. All of this was part of her therapy, started at Plainview and continued at Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation.

During this time she has also kept up with her school work, and was a star on the Edgar Bergen show in Post last year.

Cherry had a bout with pneumonia after being stricken with polio, and that slowed her recovery. She showed her dauntless spirit from the beginning. In the early stages of her illness when there was little hope for her recovery, every time she regained consciousness she would say with conviction, "I'm not going to die." She is one of the few people to have both types of polio and live.

Her aunt says, "It has made her a remarkable person." She is a cousin of Dr. J. D. Snyder of Slaton.

Howdy Folks; March is here and Uncle is passing the hat again. Incidentally, perhaps you have noticed he wears a stove pipe hat.

You can take your choice. Make your returns out correctly and go to the poor house or make them out otherwise and go to jail.

We heard about a man who left his wife March 15th because, as he said, he couldn't support his wife and the government on one salary.

However, it's well to be certain that there's no "untold" wealth in those returns.

Use your imagination, but do not resort to fiction in your writings to Uncle.

Paying income taxes is tough, but it would be worse if you didn't have to pay one.

Well, if you have any money left, we'd like to sell you some tires, tubes, a good wash job, lubricate your car and fill her up with Mobiloil and gas.

Last week these columns announced that James Butler had been fined $201.05 for driving while intoxicated. There are three James Butlers in or around Falls, and all three go the credit for having committed the offense.

The guilty party is not the James Butler who farms north of town, but the colored James Butler who does, or did, work at the compress.

CHICK CHATS

Presented By
Dr. Salsbury's Laboratories

PROTECT CHICKS AGAINST DISEASE

Heaviest death losses in poultry-raising are usually recorded during the first few weeks. It is up to the raiser to protect his brood against disease as much as possible.

Disease prevention is the most practical and most economical way of avoiding severe losses. In other words, it is easier and better to prevent a disease than to try to control it after it has got a start.

In general, good management and sound sanitation do the most to prevent diseases. Chicks should be raised under good conditions, with plenty of room, ventilation, light, and feed and water. The raiser should practice keeping the house and equipment clean and dry.

Specific Prevention

Some diseases can be prevented specifically. One of these is Newcastle disease, a serious nervous-respiratory disorder. Newcastle disease is easily prevented thru vaccination.

In most areas, a live-virus vaccine is preferred against Newcastle. This gives a high degree of immunity without ill effects. Most raisers prefer to use the nose-drop or eye-drop vaccination for Newcastle disease.

The time to vaccinate against Newcastle varies somewhat according to the area. Where this disease is an immediate problem, it is best to vaccinate early—as early as one day of age. However, immunity results are better if vaccination is deferred till five to ten day of age.

Later Vaccination

The wing-web type of vaccination against Newcastle may be used after four weeks of age. This is practical where the disease does not threaten early.

Regarding revaccination for Newcastle, this is generally necessary if pullets are being kept as layers. This may be done 30 to 50 days before production starts.

Since vaccination provides an economical way to avoid severe losses from Newcastle disease, it should certainly be practiced by every poultry-raiser in areas where this disease occurs.

 FROM
HERE and THERE

Once Over Lightly—
 I would like to take this occasion to hand a bouquet to a fellow publisher, Mr. J. J. Perling of the Wilmington (Delaware) Record. He feels that a newspaper should be the "conscience of the community," and proceeds to see that his paper is just that.

One of his editorials, aptly titled "Liberty Leprosy," lashes out at "sex on the news stands." Says Perling, "... if our moral concepts have deteriorated, if juvenile delinquency is increasing, much of the blame rests upon these venal authors and their publishers."

Mr. Perling lays the blame where it belongs—on the authors and publishers of these perverted periodicals. The number of them is absolutely astronomical, and, if not more than 1 per cent of them reach foreign shores, it should be quite sufficient to convince all foreign people that the United States is peopled with nothing but a seething mass of sex maniacs.

The blame goes right back to author and publisher. In case you haven't looked at these magazines, we suggest you go to your nearest news stand and get a personal view of the fastest-growing business in America—the pictorial worship of the female bosom. There's nothing but bosoms in these magazines—not a pose is missed which might more attractively display same.

Can little Junior walk in and buy one of these mammy mags? He durned sure can—anywhere they're on sale, and that's every where!

The impact of these maggoty magazines on most mature minds is negligent, but the influence on the confused, adolescent youngster can be terrific.

If anyone questions the influence of clinking coin in a courtroom exhibit A is the trial of Mrs. Mary Jean Parsons at Wichita Falls. She was convicted this week of merely shooting her husband to death as he lay sleeping. The jury found her sane then, sane now, and guilty of murder with malice aforethought. Then she draws a 10-year sentence. If it had been you or me they'd be putting us in an electric chair with a shoe horn right now. But we ain't rich, we ain't beautiful and we ain't a blond dame. What chance has justice against a triple-threat line-up like that?

It's too early to talk about spring but the ageritas are already blooming. Some folks around here are of the opinion that the fruit trees are "threatening"—that is, ready to bloom. Farmers, ranchers, gardeners and domino players alike would like to see another rain soon and if we are due for more winter to have it now and let spring arrive with the season. Emmett Morgerson, the Camp San Saba gardener, is hoping for a wet 1953.

"Of course," said the visitor. "We got a half-inch then," remarked the attendant.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh
Wrong "Train" of Thought

Most of us knew the streamliner stopped about four miles from town last Thursday — but we didn't know why ...

Seems the train was hurrying along, then came the screeching of brakes — some fellow had pulled the Emergency Stop cord.

When the conductor asked him why he did it, he said, "The train was just going too fast—I wanted to get you to slow down."

From where I sit, that streamliner has been going at that speed for the past seven years with a perfect safety record and the passengers have always been pleased. Now—along comes a fellow who wants the train to go at his speed. Some people are like that. Some still would begrudge another person's right to a temperate glass of beer even though that person wouldn't dream of flashing a "Stop" sign on their preference for, say, milk, coffee or tea. Respecting the rights of others is the only way we can keep "on the right track."

Religious Survey Slated At Wilson

The Wilson community will conduct a religious survey on the afternoon of Sunday, March 1. The survey will attempt to find out the religious affiliation of each person within the Wilson School District and in some cases including small additional areas.

The survey will be led by the four pastors: Rev. John Martin, of the First Baptist Church, Rev. Paul Heckmann of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Rev. Douglas Gossett of the First Methodist Church, and Rev. C. C. Ehler of St. John's Lutheran Church. Volunteers from each church will participate.

"It has been many years since a survey like this has been taken in the Wilson community and we hope that each family will make a special effort to remain at home on Sunday afternoon and cooperate with canvassers in giving them the desired information," stated the pastors. This survey will seek information only. No other requests will be made of the people.

You and Your Congress

WASHINGTON — Tax reduction is getting tangled up in the parliamentary procedure of Congress.

Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-N.Y.) of the House Ways and Means Committee, where all tax legislation must originate, wants to give payers of individual income taxes a reduction of five and a half per cent this year.

He would do that with his bill—labeled H.R. 1 because it was the first introduced in the House this year—to end on June 30 the 11 per cent annual increase in individual income taxes which Congress voted after the fighting in Korea began. That increase is now scheduled to expire December 31 and Reed would obtain the five and a half per cent tax reduction simply by changing the termination date to June 30.

He wants fast Congressional approval of H.R. 1. He also wants the excess profits tax on business to end June 30, as scheduled, and says he will not consider any extension of that tax.

Other Republican leaders in Congress have different ideas, however. Senate Majority Leader Robert A. Taft (Ohio) agrees with President Eisenhower that efforts to balance the budget should precede those to cut taxes.

Taft also believes the excess profits tax should be extended, at least to the end of this year.

The budget for the 1954 fiscal year, beginning July 1, which the new Administration inherited from the old, indicates a deficit of nearly $10 billion. The Eisenhower Administration wants a few months to decide where and by how much this budget can be cut. It will begin sending its recommendations to Congress in April and the House, which traditionally handles appropriations bills first, hopes to finish work on all spending bills and get them to the Senate by May 15.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (Mass.) and Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) agree with the White House and Taft that budget balancing efforts should have priority over tax cutting. So does Chairman Leo E. Allen (R-Ill.) of the powerful House Rules Committee, which channels legislation to the House floor for debate. Allen says he will keep all tax cutting legislation bottled up at least until May 1.

That's where parliamentary procedure comes in.

Because tax legislation is privileged matter under House rules, Reed's committee could send a bill straight to the floor for debate under an "open rule" or have it go there via the Rules Committee under a "closed rule." A "closed rule" permits amendments only from members of the Ways and Means Committee. An "open rule" permits amendments from any House member on any phase of taxation, a procedure which the Ways and Means Committee shuns.

It is likely that under an "open rule" amendments would be offered to let the 11 per cent personal income tax increase and the excess profits tax expire together on December 31, which would require a six-month extension of the excess profits tax.

A tax bill that goes to the Rules Committee is not acted on by that committee until the chairman brings it up for consideration. He can sit on it.

It could be forced out of the Rules Committee with a "discharge petition"—a little used and seldom effective device requiring the signatures of 218 House members.

Meanwhile, in whatever form the tax bill cleared the House, it could be changed in the Senate—again perhaps to have both the personal tax increase and the excess profits tax die December 31. If the Senate did change it, the bill then would have to go to a conference of House and Senate members, who would be charged with reaching an agreement ac-

Tests Being Made On "Hot Spots" To Determine Cause

Work was commenced during the summer of 1951 in Live Oak, Bee and San Patricio Counties to determine the cause of yellowing in grain sorghums and other crops. The spots or areas on which the condition often causes plants to die are commonly called "hot spots."

The work is being directed by members of the department of agronomy of the Texas A&M College System in cooperation with the county agricultural agents and selected farmers in the three counties.

Although the work done has given some hopeful leads, more research and field testing will be required to "pin-down" the cause of the trouble.

Grain sorghums will be planted next month on the field test blocks and the research will continue. Included in the tests will be blocks which were fertilized and seeded to Hubam clover in the fall of 1952.

It is pointed out that no specific recommendations can be made at this time on control methods but work with fertilizers, sprays and grain sorghum and Hubam clover rotations will be continued. Weather conditions handicapped the field work last year but present soil moisture gives promise of better growing conditions. The agronomists hope to have at least some of the answers to the plant yellowing problems by the end of 1953.

The "kick-off" for the year-long observance of the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the first farm demonstration in the nation will be held on the Porter Farm—site of the first demonstration—on Feb. 26.

ceptable to both chambers.

A conference means delay. Thus, one way or another, it seems likely that final tax action will be held off under the parliamentary process until the White House has had more time to probe the budget.

Theodore Roosevelt, at 42, was the youngest president ever inaugurated. Sarah Bernhardt made one motion picture, "Queen Elizabeth," in 1912. Thomas Killigrew had Drury Lane Theatre in 1663.

SLATON V.F.W. POST NO. 6721

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

That old, but still unsolved question "Which comes first, the chicken or the egg" is being argued in Washington.

The question "Shall we cut taxes now, or balance the budget first?"

There are two camps within the republican party. President Eisenhower has told Congress tax cuts must wait until the budget is balanced.

But Congress man Daniel C. W. Harder, (N.Y., GOP) takes the stand the only way to balance the budget is to cut government spending. And the way to cut government spending, is to give government less money to spend.

Popular sentiment appears to be behind Congressman Reed's viewpoint. Not only are campaign promises on tax reductions recalled, but everyone knows whenever income falls, budgets are cut automatically. This is a principle they feel should be applied to government affairs.

The entire question throws into the limelight the big job: reducing Federal employment. No one in Washington today knows whose job, whose salary is justified. A military operation called "Operation Meat Axe" is felt to be the only solution.

Here are hard facts.

Today, the yearly payroll for all the armed forces, including men in Korea, is $9,500,000,000. Yet the yearly payroll for 2,383,400 Federal civil employees is $9,600,000,000 per year. This figure does not include the legislative or judicial branches of the government, or unknown thousands of employees abroad.

© National Federation of Independent Business

The end of controls should reduce this payroll to some extent, but there is a feeling in Washington that more severe pruning could save billions in taxes per year.

But it is a vague sort of a feeling. No one knows just exactly where to start chopping.

In the meantime, Independent businessmen are generally heartened by Administration's recognition that present tax laws are unfair to small business.

Independent businessmen generally believe that no business can stand still and survive. A business either grows or perishes. The concern of small businessmen on present taxation is not so much about their present take-home income, but the amount of money left from profits to be put back into business.

At the present time, many independent businessmen can only make progress by heavy borrowing.

Independent businessmen, generally, do not seek a tax advantage which will increase their personal incomes at the expense of other groups. But in order to continue in business, and to create more employment which will be needed to take up the slack when war industries end, does require a tax revision to permit them to invest more of their earnings into expansion.

Since Korea, many huge corporations were granted a special war emergency tax relief amounting to billions of dollars to build new facilities for use in defense work now, for civilian operations later on.

But independent businessmen feel now is the time to grant tax relief for the coming peacetime emergency. As always, independent business must furnish the majority of the employment if a depression is to be avoided.

Report Cites Range Improvement Work At Forrest Ranch

Among the area farmers and ranchers cited for outstanding soil conservation achievement during 1952 in the just-released annual report of the Lubbock County Soil Conservation District is Edwin Forrest, former Slaton resident who now lives in Lubbock.

The annual report had this to say about the work done by Forrest:

"Mr. Forrest, whose 12,000-acre ranch is in the canyon in the southeast part of the District, reports some good range results. In cooperation with the District, he has been carrying on a range program of deferred and rotational grazing. On one 731-acre native pasture, Forrest estimates that he has had 100 percent increase in total grazing, despite two drouth years. Grass has greatly increased in vigor. This year (1952), a four-inch rain received in July really benefitted pastures since the increased cover held the rain and gave it a chance to soak in. Under poor range conditions, the rain would have run off, Forrest observed. Cows and calves are sleeker and cows no longer get down in their hindquarters at calving time."

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Plans and specifications may be obtained from Mrs. R. D. Bisbee, Secretary and Manager of Board of City Development, offices in City Hall of Slaton, Lubbock County, Texas.

What They Write

Dear Folks: Congress is getting around to the so-called tidelands issue again and we hope that this year we can finally get justice for our State. Hearings are going on before the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and with luck we should have a bill on the Floor before very long.

It's hard to find an issue that has been so confused by propaganda and wild claims as this one. Sometimes it's impossible to keep all conflicting statements straight. I think that as Texans we ought to take care of this one once and for all.

In the first place, the argument has nothing to do with the "tidelands." The real issue is the so-called "submerged lands" under the water below the low tide mark. We Texans claim those submerged lands for a distance of ten and one-half miles (three marine leagues) out from the short line.

That claim goes back to 1836, when Texas fought to win its independence from Mexico. Once we were an independent Republic, our legislature set our boundaries seaward at a point beginning three marine leagues from the mouth of the Rio Grande and continuing along the shore line to a point three marine leagues from the mouth of the Sabine River.

When we decided to enter the United States nearly a decade later, we had a public debt of about $10,000,000. We offered to turn our public lands over to the United States if it would pay that debt. This offer was turned down so we reversed it and offered to pay our own debt if the United States would let us—as a state—keep our public lands.

That offer was accepted and written into the Annexation Agreement by a resolution of Congress. We paid our public debt and nothing has happened since then to change the resolution of annexation. It has never been repealed or amended by Congress.

For nearly 100 years, nobody questioned that the obvious fact that our public lands included the submerged lands ten and one-half miles out to sea. That was the position taken in one court decision after another. As late as 1945, the Interior Department took the position that the submerged lands just off the shore belonged to the states.

But about that time, some Federal officials realized that there might be valuable oil in the submerged lands. They entered suit and finally got a Supreme Court decision that the Federal Government had "paramount rights" in the matter. They did NOT—as some people claim—get a decision that the "title" belonged to the Federal Government. The Supreme Court refused to pass upon that question.

What we are trying to do now is to get the title cleared up and the rightful ownership of Texas confirmed. It is an issue that means a lot to us. The revenues from such lands are set aside for the education of our children and they are important.

But even more important is the question of justice to Texas. There are far greater questions involved in this issue than mere money. Those lands are ours by solemn and binding agreements. Our title has been confirmed by Treaty, by Congressional resolution, and by Court decisions dating back over the years. We cannot permit them to be taken away at the last minute.

We of the Texas Delegation are determined that Texas shall receive its just due. We will fight this out to the end and I believe we will win.

Sincerely yours, Lyndon B. Johnson

"How far do you have to haul that water, mister?" he asked. The man gathered up his reins, "Bout ten mile," he said.

"Why in the world don't you dig a well?" my husband wanted to know.

The farmer shrugged, "What's the use? It's as far one way as the other."—Irma Billingsley.

SOIL TESTS SHOW CHEMICAL DEFICIENCIES IN IRRIGATED LAND IN THE SLATON AREA

Soil tests are beginning to show deficiencies on West Texas farms that have been irrigated for a number of years.

Among the farmers of the area who are using fertilizer this year are Tony Stephens and Herbert and Andy Kiffin.

For full production, 150 pounds of nitrogen per acre is required. Stephens's soil tests showed that on the land that had been irrigated the longest number of years, there was only 4 to 8 pounds of nitrogen.

GIRL MANNING GIRLS—Crossing the street—Pillars of Hercules for Great Britain. These pretty English girls are among the first ever assigned to fighting duties.

He will also use the 10-20-10 fertilizer. He has irrigated for three years.

A Slaton implement dealer, Leo Houston, has become interested in soil building in the area and is advising local soil tests to farmers.

These 50 tests, taken from irrigation ditches and water canals, show a deficiency of phosphoric acid and nitric acid.
