PRESSURE DANGEROUSLY LOW FOR FIGHTING FIRES AS WATER USAGE HITS PEAK LEVELS

Slaton residents are using too much water. So much, in fact, that should a large-scale fire come along, there probably wouldn't be a sufficient reservoir of water to fight the blaze effectively. In a nutshell, that is Slaton's water situation during the current drought, as explained Tuesday by Forrest Davis, city water superintendent. On Monday of this week, 2,175,000 gallons of water were consumed here. That's a new high in local water usage. The previous record of 1,770,000 gallons was set on Monday, June 1.

Volunteer Restriction

It's not a pleasant sort of a record, though, because the city's water reservoir was still at a dangerously low level on Tuesday afternoon after Monday's heavy usage, Davis said.

"Unless local residents cooperate in voluntarily limiting their use of water until some rain comes along to ease the situation, it's quite likely that we may have to set up restrictions on water usage, and that's something we don't want to do unless it becomes absolutely necessary," Davis said.

The water superintendent specifically requested that local folks shouldn't do their watering during the heat of the day. As an alternative, he suggested that watering be done during the early morning and late afternoon hours.

Such a procedure, he explained, means that the user loses less of the water to evaporation, and that it helps to equalize the load on the city's pressure system.

Not All Night

Davis and Mayor O. N. Alcorn also entered a specific request that no one should let his yard sprinkler run all night. That is believed to have been one of the big factors in Monday's record water usage here.

Two—maybe three—new water wells are in the planning stage to alleviate the situation, but they'll not be ready in time to do any good this year, Davis and Alcorn explained. Slaton now has 15 city water wells, and except for the extreme drought, these would be more than adequate to meet Slaton's water needs, Davis said.

Storage Needed

The biggest need here, Alcorn said, is a large overhead storage reservoir. A 300,000 gallon reservoir—which city officials said is about the size needed here—costs approximately $58,000, however. And that kind of money isn't on hand. Even if it were, it wouldn't ease the current water shortage any, Alcorn explained, because installation of such a reservoir takes approximately nine months from (Continued on Back Page)

Mary F. Sehon Is Severely Burned In Tractor Fire

Mary Frances Sehon

Miss Mary Frances Sehon, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sehon, suffered severe burns and a fractured ankle as a result of a tractor explosion on the Sehon farm last Friday.

Frank Sehon was filling the gas tank with the motor running when the explosion occurred. Two-year-old Barbara Jean, who was on the tractor with her sister, grabbed the seat and froze. Mary Frances refused to leave the tractor until she had loosened the little girl's hands. Then she jumped over the back of the tractor seat and fractured an ankle in landing. She bruised a knee while rolling on the ground to put out the fire. She succeeded in saving her little sister from the flames. Barbara Jean suffered no burns.

Mary Frances' legs and arms were severely burned. She is under treatment at Mercy Hospital. Her condition, reported serious at first, is now fair. Mrs. Sehon believes her daughter was saved from more severe body burns because she was wearing shorts. Had she been in jeans her clothing would have caught fire.

The Sehons had lost all of their cotton and were replanting. They had just finished replanting the garden with Mary Frances on the tractor and Mr. and Mrs. Sehon dropping seed in the planter boxes when they ran out of gas. Mrs. Sehon says, "We were doing it the fastest way, not the safest way." Never again will they fill a gas tank with the motor running.

Ironically Mary Frances' fire theme last year in school was on fires on the farm.

Announce Boost In Box Rental Rates; First In 46 Years

Rental rates for post office boxes are going up, according to an announcement issued this week by T. E. McClanahan, acting postmaster.

It's doubtful, though, that many can remember when box rental rates were raised the last time. The basic schedule now in effect has not been changed since 1907. The increased charges — to become effective July 1 — are being made nationwide to conform with the increased cost of providing the equipment and maintaining the service, McClanahan explained.

There are three sizes of boxes at the local post office. The smallest of these (No. 1 size boxes on the top five rows) will go from 60 cents to 90 cents quarterly. The medium-sized boxes (No. 2 size, second and third rows from the bottom) will go from 75 cents to $1.10 quarterly. The largest boxes (No. 3 size, bottom row) will go from $1.00 to $1.50 quarterly.

Box rent-notices will be mailed out about June 22, McClanahan said. The increased rates will apply to the upcoming payment, which covers box rentals for July, August and September.

Rare Century Plant Now In Full Bloom

A century plant is in full bloom this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Weaver of Southland. The Weavers set out the plant 20 years ago, and until some six weeks ago it was a small broad leaved bush about two feet high. Then they noticed the body of the bloom stalk sprouting out of the center of the bush.

The plant is now 14 feet tall and in full bloom. The Weavers will be glad to have visitors drive to their home to see the plant. To get there, turn south at the Southland blacksmith shop, and it's the second house on the right.

When the above picture was made the blooms were not fully open. The century plant is a Mexican plant that blooms only once and then dies.

Drilling Accident Takes Life Of Father Of Eight

Funeral arrangements remained incomplete here at mid-morning Thursday for J. H. Baxter, 57, of Lubbock, who was killed about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in an oil drilling rig accident five miles west of Lubbock.

An employee of Llano Drilling Company, Baxter was killed instantly when a 20,000-lb. drilling block dropped on him during drilling operations.

Survivors include his wife, and eight children, Mrs. Mildred Tony, Moun Vernon, Ill.; Max Baxter, Camp Chaffee, Ark.; and Tommy, Jane, Pat, Denny, Judy, and Jerry, all of Lubbock.

Williams Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ayers, Ann and Ray Madison, left Tuesday afternoon to go to Corpus Christi to visit Mrs. Ayers' mother, Mrs. M. M. Gabriel. They plan to stay about ten days.

It Seems A Shame It Hasn't A Name

It strikes this newspaper that it might be nice if Slaton's new swimming pool had an official name.

Our park is known only as "the park."

Our community gathering spot bears no more remarkable appellation than "the club house."

And now the splendid $60,000 project which is Slaton's municipal swimming pool is known simply as "the swimming pool."

We think maybe it's a case of carrying plain vanilla too far.

Why not a contest to name the pool, with appropriate prizes for the person who submits the winning name? What do you think, you Chamber of Commerce directors?

This newspaper will be glad to carry the ball publicitywise. Let us know what you think.

Slaton's second annual clean-up campaign is going to be a double-barrelled affair this year.

According to plans worked out in committee session Monday afternoon, the citywide project to spruce up Slaton will cover the area south of Lubbock Street from June 15 to June 19, and the area north of Lubbock Street from June 22 to June 26.

The decision to divide the city for purposes of the clean-up drive was made chiefly to facilitate a more thorough clean-up, and to allow a more flexible working period for volunteers who'll assist with the annual campaign, it was explained by City Health Officer Dr. W. E. Payne, who presided at the Monday planning session.

Name Vardy Chairman

Lee Vardy was elected general chairman of the citywide tidy-up project.

Dr. Payne and others who attended Monday's session stressed emphatically that the success of the effort will depend on (1) the cooperation of individual homeowners in sprucing up their own premises, and (2) the number of volunteer trucks and volunteer workmen.

Any individual or organization which can provide a truck and driver, or either, is asked to list that information with the Chamber of Commerce office (Phone 344) or with Mayor O. N. Alcorn (Phone 244). The same request applies for individuals who are willing to donate time as clean-up crew members.

South Side First

Next week's part of the drive, to be concentrated on that area south of Lubbock Street, will work as follows: Monday and Tuesday, June 15-16, will be "clean-up days." All residents in the area will be asked to clean up their premises and to place the trash and refuse in containers in the alleyways, permitting adequate passageway for the clean-up trucks. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be "pick-up days," when city and volunteer trucks will make the rounds of the entire area to gather the trash.

Clean-up on the north side of Lubbock Street will follow a similar schedule. Monday and Tuesday, June 22-23, will be "clean-up days," and Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 24-25-26, will be "pick-up days."

Thus volunteer trucks, drivers and workmen will be needed on six different days: June 17-18-19, and June 24-25-26. At Monday's meeting, Mayor O. N. Alcorn explained that city trucks and workmen will assist with the campaign insofar as possible, but pointed out that time does not allow city crews to conduct the big trash pick-up job alone and "still attend to their other duties, too."

Scouts To Inspect

Committeemen Monday also gave their okay to a plan whereby Boy Scouts assisting with the campaign will inspect the yards and alleys of all residences at the conclusion of the drive, and will give some sort of "Clean-up Okay" sticker to all residences meeting the minimum requirements.

"What about vacant lots?" one committeeman asked Monday. "If a vacant lot is worth keeping, it's worth keeping in a healthful condition," Dr. Payne retorted. "Nobody is interested in cleaning up somebody else's vacant lot. It's the owner's responsibility."

Those present at Monday's planning session were Tommy Davis, Elbert Wilson, Doc Reasner, Rev. Austin Engel, Henry Bollinger, O. N. Alcorn, Francis Perry, A. M. Fry, Ed Haddock, Lewis Thomas, Dr. Payne, and Gordon Tompkins.

Named to spearhead the drive in the Negro and Spanish-American sections of Slaton were Lewis Thomas and Teodoro Aguilar. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clark, Cindy, Cheryl, and Jackie Sue spent last week end in Fort Worth visiting Mr. Clark's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Ragsdale and Donna.

Name Maxey New Rotary Club Veep

J. J. Maxey

City Secretary J. J. Maxey last week was named vice-president-elect of the Slaton Rotary Club.

Maxey replaces Lewis Hollingsworth as Rotary's new vice-president. Hollingsworth, local manager for Southwestern Public Service Company here since early 1948, has been transferred to Plainview as division utilization manager of SWPSCO's Plains Division.

Maxey will be installed into office in early July along with other recently-elected Rotary officers.

TALKING IT OVER—Taking time out for a chat between sessions of Friday's swimming pool operators' training school held here are from left, A. C. "Stamp" Hamilton, former Slaton resident who now is director of the City of Lubbock Recreation Department; J. S. Edwards, Jr., chairman of the Chamber of Commerce swimming pool committee, and Truett Fulcher, manager of the recently-opened Slaton swimming pool. The one-day training school attracted approximately 70 people from more than 25 Panhandle and South Plains cities. (Slatonite Staff Photo)

Policy of This Newspaper
The policy of The Slatonite is to give the facts as nearly as possible as they actually happen. News that is not constructive to the good of this town and its citizens is not necessarily considered a must, although it will be given if good can come from it.
The news columns will be devoted to such things as local happenings and things of interest to the city. We feel that state and national news can be more efficiently secured from daily newspapers, except that which concerns government representatives from this district.
Pictures of local people and happenings are welcome. We have included the latest in camera equipment and will be available to take pictures as the news value. All cost of pictures and savings will be absorbed by the newspaper. This is done in order to give complete control over selection of what pictures are of sufficient interest to justify use.
The general policy of The Slatonite will be to promote those things that will help Slaton and those that are detrimental. All controversial issues, both sides will be printed provided that source of those opinions are stated with the article. Poetry will not be printed except in very unusual circumstances. It is our policy not to print religious issues of beliefs or non-beliefs of any religious organization. We carry all articles telling of activities of any church or organization.
We will not in any way assume the role of a Chamber of Commerce, but instead shall attempt to help the Chamber of Commerce in their work in every way possible. It is our object to work with business men and people of Slaton at all times. Our role comes in keeping the people informed of what is being done, what has been done, and what might be done.
We shall work with the business men of every line of business in promoting their business. When any business makes an improvement of any kind it is our job and aim to promote that improvement in the news columns as well as in their own. We will work with them in their promotions when called to attention.
Sometimes any newspaper will make a mistake or mistakes. It is our policy to correct any mistake in the next issue, when called to attention. At no time will anything knowingly be printed to reflect in any way on anyone's character or business.
When a campaign or promotion of some kind comes along that we consider too big for the newspaper to put over, we shall call on the business men to help us. That project over for our town, this will be of interest to us all.
A good and interesting newspaper is an asset to any town. It is our aim to publish just such a newspaper for Slaton. This can be done with the help of Slaton people. We are receiving this help in great way. We ask that each time there are visitors or goes visiting, have a party or knows of anything that is of interest, that you give The Slatonite. "Sorry, I'm Awful Busy . . ."

There are, as we all know, quite a variety of bores. One of the more disagreeable types is the bore who continually bellyaches about the non-progressiveness of his city, but when called upon to help with some sort of civic venture, averts his eyes and mumbles something about "Really haven't got the time."

Then in less than a week Mr. Non Helper will set up a grouch about how poorly "they" pulled off the job.

Some civic projects—in order to be wrapped up in A-1 fashion—need lots of volunteer help.

Such a project is the annual clean-up campaign scheduled here next week. It's slated to cover the entire city, and is aimed at an effective rubbish clean-up. That means a lot of folks will be needed if we do the thing up right.

It's not necessarily a matter of "the thing will get done anyway whether I help or not." Because it won't. Such a job requires the cooperation of all of us.

The clean-up campaign won't mean much if YOU don't help.

If you're unable to work on one of the many volunteer crews that will be rounding up rubbish all over our city next week, then your part of the job will be to put your own premises in order.

It's one of those things aimed at making Slaton a nicer place to live . . . healthful and attractive, and inviting to potential newcomers.

It has a purposeful goal. YOU can help.

And if you won't help, don't howl.

What Is A Man Profited?

The other day in Emporia, the longest funeral procession that has formed in ten years followed the Rev. John Jones three long miles in the hot July sun out to Dry Creek Cemetery. Now, a funeral procession may mean little or much. When a rich and powerful man dies, the people play politics and attend his funeral for various reasons. But here was the body of a meek, gentle little old man—a man "without purse or scrip." It won't take twenty minutes to settle his estate in probate court. He was a preacher of the gospel—but preachers have been buried before this in Emporia without much show of sorrow.

The reason so many people lined up behind the hearse that held the kind old man's mortality was simple: they loved him. He devoted his life to helping people. In a very simple way, without money or worldly power, he gave of the gentleness of his heart to all around him. We are apt to say that money talks, but it speaks a broken, poverty-stricken language. Hearts talk better, clearer, and with a wider intelligence. This old man with the soft voice and the kindly manners knew the language of the heart and he spoke it where it would give zest to joy. He worked manfully and with a will in his section of the vineyard, and against odds and discouragements he won time and again. He was infinitely patient and brave. He held a simple, old-fashioned faith in God and his loving kindness.

When others gave money—which was of their store—he gave prayers and hard work and an inspiring courage. He helped. In his sphere he was a power. And so when he lay down to sleep hundreds of friends trudged out to bid him good-by with moist eyes and with cramped throats to wish him sweet slumber.

And then they turned back to the world to make money—to make money—what a hollow impotent thing! What is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?—Editorial by William Allen White, in The Emporia Gazette, August, 1901.

South Koreans Fear Extinction

The threat of South Korea to pull out of the battle and withdraw from peace talks will come as a surprise to the public. It sounds like mighty big talk from a mighty little country.

"Who are the South Koreans to be so demanding?" you may ask. "Haven't other countries been shedding blood in their defense?" That's the way it may look to many at first blush.

But put yourself in the place of South Korea. The bloodshed has been not merely for South Korea but for a principle. South Korea has battled valiantly throughout with by far the larger number in the fighting forces. South Korea was led to believe from the beginning that the United States would stand upon the true issues and principles.

As a matter of fact, most of the United Nations outside the United States have not taken the Korean War very seriously. Great Britain regards it as a dubious project because of the conflict of interests with her trade in Red China. Reading the British press, one gets the idea that the British attitude toward it is about the same as the attitude that they have traditionally taken toward the past long-dragged-out fights Great Britain itself has had to maintain its empire. It's serious business, yes, but not serious enough to interfere greatly with tea. The French, concerned over their own situation in the Far East, would like to see the Korean war brought to a close.

The United States has by far the biggest stake in winning it outside South Korea itself. South Korea's stake is literally one of life and death. South Korea is not looking so much at the controversy over the return of North Korean prisoners who don't want to go back. South Koreans are wondering what will happen to South Korea if peace is made without some tangible guarantee that its borders will not again be invaded as soon as the dust of this war settles.

The United States, as well as the U. N., stands defeated if the war terminates without such a guarantee. And it is difficult to see how such a guarantee can be effected until there is a united Korea all the way to the Yalu River, with a government that is friendly to the Western Allies.—Dallas Morning News.

How Times Have Changed!

Over the years, American retailing has made enormous advances in its services to the consumer—there is simply no comparison between the typical retail store of today and that of the past. And its employment policies have shown comparable progress.

An amusing and significant example is found in a set of rules posted in an Illinois store back in 1880. These included the following: Store must be open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. the year 'round. Store must be swept; counters, shelves and showcases dusted; lamps trimmed, filled and chimneys cleaned; doors and windows opened; a pail of water and a bucket of coal brought in before breakfast. The employee who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, being shaved at the barber's, going to dances and other places of amusement, will assuredly give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty. Each employe must pay not less than $5 a year to the church and must attend Sunday School regularly. Men employes are given one evening a week for courting. After 14 hours in the store the leisure hours should be spent for the most part in reading.

That was the situation 73 years ago. In retailing, as in other enterprise, the lot of the American worker has improved to an almost unbelievable extent.—Industrial News Review.

Terrors of Responsibility

The wail of Representative Jensen of Iowa during the debate on the Agriculture Department appropriations evokes both sympathy and a smile.

The ticklish question of cutting soil conservation payments was up. Noting that the Democrats were quite willing to keep quiet and let the Republicans make the decision, Mr. Jensen finally exclaimed: "You are letting us cut our political throats!"

The writing of politicians forced to accept responsibility are really pretty painful. Indeed it was lately reported in Washington that a number of Republicans were almost hoping that the Democrats would capture Congress next year. Their idea seems to have been that the Republicans could keep control of the administration but not have to take all the responsibility.

It is also reported that when Herbert Hoover heard about this he wrote a warning to this effect:

"I hear that some Republicans down there are . . . suggesting it might not be a bad idea to relieve ourselves of total responsibility. I think I may claim to be the country's leading expert on that subject, (apparently referring to Democratic control of Congress during his last two years in office) and I will tell you I think it is a very bad idea."

We trust the great bulk of Republicans agree with Mr. Hoover. For in the end being able to blame a Democratic Congress as Mr. Truman did the Republican 80th in 1948 would benefit neither the country nor their party.

Nor will the Democrats really be able to escape their responsibility as the opposition. They may keep quiet on controversial farm measures but they will have to vote. And it will not benefit the country or their party for them to block economy efforts and support subsidies for practices like fertilizing and liming which most good farmers follow anyway.—Christian Science Monitor.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDE

George Keith Funston is a man to watch these days.

Not only is he president of the New York Stock Exchange, but he is also selling an idea.

The idea has power, too, because it protects entrenched interests, yet is dramatized as something to benefit the "little man."

Washington observers say it is the greatest razzle-dazzle promotion since "330 every Thursday".

C.W. Harde

Funston wants to permit the "little man" to buy, as he terms it, a share in American industry, through installment buying of common stocks.

However, sales of common stocks on same basis as washing machines and autos would be restricted to common stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

This qualification is interesting.

Successful public acceptance of this plan would not only siphon off capital used to start new enterprises, but would also entrench firms financially powerful enough to have their common stock listed. Thousands of people who are buying X Gadget Common on a dollar down, a dollar a week basis, can easily be led to take economic and political measures to keep a new, independent competitive Gadget company from endangering X Gadget in the market place.

Also big profits would accrue to stock traders who would benefit by resulting inflation of common stock prices.

© National Federation of Independent Business

Actually, the plan would simply needed bolstering to common stock trading volume, because "insiders" are turning more preferred stocks for investment purposes.

There are many reasons for this trend. Among them is concern over management actions. Not only are top executives receiving six figure salaries, they are also being pledged big retirement salaries, which in some cases, are to be handed down to their heirs.

In final analysis, stockholders pay for these elaborate tricks, but such is the nature of the business of some corporations, profits by even large segments of stockholders are fruitless.

But in a corporation set up there is usually preferred stock common stock with preference stock ordinarily taking precedence in payment of dividends. This preferred stock is more attractive.

Thus Funston plans, it is felt, to scatter the chaff over the nation, while the good, sound kernels are held by professional investors and traders.

There is also a moral side. Nothing guarantees the price constancy of any common stock. Usually, price fluctuates with the amount of dividends paid.

Thus, Funston's plan would permit people to gamble on the installment plan.

This aspect has led some observers to say that if this plan is approved, there is only one more logical step to be taken.

That would be to legalize trading bookmakers who will advertise "Bets placed on ten per cent down with 36 months to pay the balance."

WEST TEXAS ROUNDUP

J. Roy Barnes of Melvine returned from Honduras last week with the daughter he had never seen until last November.

The daughter, now 21 and the mother of a 4-year-old girl and 2-year-old twin boys, is Elsie de Figueroa. She is dark and pretty and speaks only a few words of English. And her father speaks only "enough Spanish to get by."

He is divorced from Elsie's mother, who still lives in Honduras, and from the time he left Honduras in 1931 until last November when he found Elsie, he had heard only that a child had been born.

Harvest has started of Motley county's "phantom" wheat crop. Yesterday, Ben Keltz of the Whiteflat community harvested about 15 acres which produced only eight bushels per acre.

Clarence Jenkins of the Fairview community told a Tribune reporter he might harvest 40 to 50 acres which he estimated might produce 6 to 8 bushels per acre. Mr. Jenkins said he was adjusting his self-propelled harvester to "go down and cut the low wheat."

No estimate has been made of the county's crop but it is probable the total yield will be the lowest in the past ten years.

Jerry M. Lobb, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Lobb of Green Tree had the closest brush with death he'll probably ever have at 11:45 a.m. last Friday. While climbing a tree near his home, his hand brushed an electric wire carrying 7,200 volts of power. The shock stunned the youth, badly burning the hand and grounding through his shoe sole against a tree limb.

Alton Gray, Louis Smith, Jack Parnell and A. B. Munsey, state highway patrolmen, aided in rescuing the boy from his perch in the tree where he had dropped to a lower limb. He received treatment here in Ruidoso-Hondo Valley General Hospital.

Amputation of four fingers on the hand which touched the wire was necessary. It had been burned to a crisp. The youth is recovering rapidly, it was reported early this week.

Five hundred horses and riders filled almost every foot of space in the arena as the enthusiastic crowd roared its approval.

Several months of planning began to bear fruit Monday night when a group of land-owners and sportsmen held a meeting at Lamkin to discuss the establishment of a game preserve including the area around western Hamilton County, Lamkin, Gustine, Comanche and Dublin. This project was mentioned in the Herald-News several months ago by County Agent Ralph Lawrence, who stated at the time that the preserve would in no way interfere with the usual use of the land, but that deer and wild turkeys with which it would be stocked would be under supervision of the State Game Department.

A mad dog scare had Olton parents apprehensive early this week. One dog in the south part of town began having fits and the symptoms were believed to be similar to those of rabies.

The dog was reported to have bitten three other dogs.

Dr. Lynn Fite, city health officer, pronounced the death sentence on the ailing canine. The dogs which were bitten were kept under observation.

Tragedy struck the annual Marfa high school picnic at Balmorhea state park yesterday afternoon, when Juan Oscar Garcia, 17, high school sophomore and son of Mr. and Mrs. Juan M. Garcia, drowned in the big Balmorhea pool.

Young Garcia was unable to swim, but had borrowed a suit and gone in for a dip. As nearly as could be guessed, the story seemed to be that Oscar had gone in the shallow part of the pool and to the chain dividing it from deep water. There apparently he missed his footing and missed his grab for the chain. No one heard him cry out, however, though there were people everywhere in and about the pool.

Our New Texas Laws
 By John Ben Shepperd
 Attorney General of Texas

First of a series of three articles by the Attorney General of Texas relative to laws recently enacted by the 53rd Legislature.

The 53rd Legislature adjourned May 27 after being in session for 78 working days.

The purpose of these short articles is to set out the major changes made in our Texas laws by this Legislature.

The bills which have attracted widespread attention by press and radio will not be discussed; only the important changes in our present laws which have almost escaped notice will be given.

In addition, a breakdown of the overall results of the session will be presented for its informational value.

A number of laws were passed which have a direct effect upon agriculture. For example: cabbage and tomato inspection and standardization and the inspection of citrus fruits will now be administered by the State Commissioner of Agriculture using only Federal funds.

Public grain warehousemen will now be licensed by the State Commissioner of Agriculture.

The sale, as well as the shipping, of nursery stock will be watched closely because of past cases of fraud.

A livestock Commission agent will find that additional requirements are made of him before he may continue his business.

Reorganization laws were passed to weed out deadwood in our government. Ten boards which have not operated for years were abolished, along with two offices, which have not been filled for some time. Seven funds of the Agricultural department were knocked out, but this still leaves 276 separate funds in the State Treasury.

Refund warrants in the State Treasury representing overpayment of fees by individuals may now be cancelled and the money used for State purposes when the person entitled to the money can not be found after four years.

The law requiring that State departments heads be responsible for state property has been modified slightly to make it more workable.

In the field of local government, several changes were made.

A tax assessor collector in smaller counties may maintain a branch office; an independent school district under general law may hire its own assessor-collector; delinquent taxes may be pledged by a school district as security for a loan; and a three-year average will now be used in computing the economic index of a county to determine the amount of State funds to be given to local schools.

Some of the problems that were presented to this session involved changes in the main body of our law—the State Constitution. At least five Constitutional amendments will be submitted to the vote of the people in November of 1954.

As this is written, one more amendment is on the Governor's desk. It would permit Texans in the regular armed forces to vote. Four more are on the way to the Governor.

Our Constitution has been amended an average of 3 times after each session of the Legislature since it was established as our primary law in 1876. In the Senate, a total of 15 Constitutional amendments were proposed, while the House proposed 46. The five which both Houses passed by a two-third vote and which have been approved by the Governor are:

- (1) require women to serve on juries;
- (2) 4 years elective terms of office for local officials;
- (3) use a 5 million dollar Confederate Pension Fund surplus for the construction of a State Court and State office building;
- (4) permit the creation of county hospital districts with taxing power;
- (5) make the teachers' retirement system interchangeable with the retirement system of State employees.

(The next article will deal with new game laws of special interest to sportsmen.)

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS
 from The Bible

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction.—(Proverbs 1, 7.)

We set great store by the education of our children; we spend generously for schools and colleges. There the young may get instruction and perhaps achieve wisdom. But what real knowledge, what real happiness will our children have if, in their individual lives, they have never learned—at home, in church, in school—of God and of righteous living?

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mudgett and children of Sudan visited Friday in the home of Mrs. Mudgett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stokes.

Mrs. Lora Wicker is going to Santa Anna, Calif., Friday to spend about three weeks with her son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Roy W. Wicker, Jr., Chris and Bana Jo.

It is time to get the home cooling equipment in top operating condition for summer has arrived in Texas, at least the temperatures point that way.

RHEUMATISM
 Much intense pain and suffering has been caused by rheumatism. At this time of the year it is more noticeable.

Rheumatism is a general term applied to pain regardless of its location in the body, and is often named according to its location. It is lumbago if it affects the lower part of the spine. It is called Sciatica if it is affecting the nerves in one or both legs. It is called Neuralgia if it is affecting the nerves of the skin. However, rheumatism in the spine could be called Arthritis if there is inflammation in the spinal column. Also, a Herniated or Slipped Disc between two vertebrae in the spinal column may have the same symptoms as rheumatism of the spine.

Nerve irritation accompanied by an over-abundance of poison in the body is the cause of rheumatism. Focal infections such as abscessed teeth help to form more toxin; however, toxin in the body merely aggravates an already irritated nerve and causes more pain.

The primary cause of rheumatism must be located and corrected to get permanent relief.

HERNIATED AND SLIPPED DISC CASE SAVED FROM OPERATION UNDER CHIROPRACTIC CARE

Case History No. 3451; Man; Age 36; Entrance symptoms and Case History: Severe pains in lower spine and unable to walk or work. Came to the STEPHENS CHIROPRACTIC, "Where Thousands Have Been Restored to Health," with a stooped and painful condition. This case was advised to have an operation of his lower spine but he wanted to determine if chiropractic would help him.

WHAT CHIROPRACTIC HAS DONE FOR HIM

After a full length X-Ray picture of his spinal column on a 14x36 inch film it determined the extent of a slipped disc of the 5th lumbar vertebra. Under proper chiropractic attention this particular case was not only saved from a spinal operation; but, was soon restored to health. He said, "When I first came to see you I only thought chiropractic was good for nerves. I didn't know that it was good for a slipped disc. I feel as tho I was a new man. Thanks to you and chiropractic."

CARLOADINGS UP

Santa Fe carloadings for week ending June 6, 1953 were 23,779 compared with 22,233 for the same week in 1952. Cars received from connections totaled 12,064 compared with 10,360 for same week in 1952. Total cars moved were 35,843 compared with 32,593 for same week in 1952. Santa Fe handled a total of 36,341 cars in preceding week of this year.

Water Extension Work Designed To Equalize Pressure

A carload of 3300 feet of 6 inch water extension arrived in Slaton Saturday. Unloading was completed Tuesday morning.

The pipe will be laid from 18th and Crosby north to Dickens, east to 18th, then north between Crosby and Dickens to 12th, and will connect with the main at 12th and Crosby. Small service lines will be tied to this line.

Water Superintendent Forrest Davis says the extension is being laid to equalize water pressure in the central and west part of town.

Three fire hydrants will be installed, according to Mr. Davis. Some people have been too far from fire hydrants to get full benefit on insurance. The placing of the new hydrants will lower insurance rates in the areas. They will be placed at 12th and Dickens, 16th and Crosby, and at 17th and Dickens.

The Superintendent estimates total cost of the job at $6000 to $7000. City water works employees will do all of the work. No contractor will be hired. Funds are to come out of a bond issue for water and sewer improvement.

It is estimated that the work will be complete 10 to 15 days after it is begun. Work will not start until some necessary fittings arrive.

SANTA FE DIVIDEND

Swimming Classes To Begin Monday

Want to learn to swim? Swimming lessons will get underway Monday morning, June 15, at the Slaton swimming pool, it was announced Tuesday by Truett Fulcher, pool manager.

Classes will be conducted in two groups: for ages 6 through 12, and for ages 13 and up.

For the "13 and up" group, class will begin at 9 a.m. Monday. Sessions will last for one hour and will continue for two weeks.

"And we want adults who want to learn to swim to feel free to take part in this class," Fulcher emphasized.

For the "6 through 12" group, class will begin at 10 a.m. Monday, and will operate on a like schedule.

There'll be no charge for either class other than the standard admittance charge at the pool. New classes will begin each two weeks.

Fulcher emphasized that both classes are for beginners. No advanced swimming classes are planned at this time.

Advance registration is not necessary. Fulcher said those desiring to enroll in either class need only to show up Monday morning at class time.

In event sufficient interest should develop, a night class for adult beginners may be scheduled. Starting time for such a class—designed to meet the needs of those who work days—would be about 7 p.m.

During the pool's first five days of operation, total attendance was 1,346. That's a daily average of 269 swimmers. Grass receipts have been averaging in the neighborhood of $75 daily. Heaviest turnout so far was on Friday, June 5, when an official attendance of 334 was recorded.

For the present, pool opening time is 2 p.m., Fulcher said.

CHICK CHATS

COCCIDIOSIS IS RANGE DANGER

Coccidiosis is one of the commonest and most damaging diseases of poultry. It is found wherever poultry are raised. It usually occurs during warm, humid weather.

When young chickens are put out on range at 6 to 8 weeks, there is a strong chance they will pick up coccidiosis. Therefore, it pays to expect and, if possible, prevent the disease.

Choice of a good range will help in preventing "coxy." If birds are placed where other chickens have ranged previously (within the last year or so), the chances of their getting "coxy" are increased. On the other hand, if clean range is used, birds stand a much better chance of escaping heavy outbreaks.

Keep Down Contamination

The objective of the poultry-raiser should be to keep the coccidia—the tiny parasites that cause coccidiosis—at a minimum. This can be done by moving the range shelters, feeders, and waterers regularly. Be sure the range is well-drained and do not allow water to stand there. Keep grass cropped short.

Coccidiosis preventives are employed in feed or water by poultrymen who prefer to insure prevention. These preventives are drugs given at low concentrations on a continuous schedule. They permit a mild infection, but do not allow it to become acute.

Other poultrymen like to use a coccidiosis control in the event the disease breaks out. This method works fairly well, if the control is applied promptly.

Different Kinds of "Coxy"

It should be understood that there are different kinds of coccidiosis. The cecal type—which is characterized by hemorrhaging of the blind guts—is well-known, but other types are becoming common. Although not so definite in their characteristics, the various types of intestinal coccidiosis are economically important, causing much loss over a long period.

Cecal coccidiosis and intestinal coccidiosis may occur in a flock at the same time. Some preventive and control drugs are effective against both types.

THIS and THAT FROM HERE and THERE

It Sez Here—

A three-ring courtroom circus is in progress in Hollywood. Actor John Wayne's wife wants a divorce and $9,350 per month alimony to support her in the style her husband got her accustomed to. This kind of cabbage is guaranteed to cure heart trouble, and Mrs. Wayne is in quite a coma. She asks $1,518 per month to pay life insurance premiums on Wayne's life. After all, he might die, and what good is a withered cabbage patch. The court as always lends a bended ear to pleas of a female snip who ought to be measuring ribbon behind Macy's downstairs. The dame is even demanding $650 per month from Wayne as support for her mother and $5 per hour for a caddy to carry her iced beer over the tailored greens of her swank golf club! Only $301 is demanded for such necessities as telephone bills. We'll never understand why the law and our court system endures this blackmail. Instead of rewarding the dame with a man's income, the judge would serve justice better to invite the lady out behind the courthouse, there to play O Promise Me on her bo-hind with a two-inch log chain. Some day some common sense is going to creep into the common law. That'll be the day when a woman who spends the best part of her husband's life making a jackass out of him will be required to assume at least a 50 per cent likeness to the beast—community property, you know.

ways digs worms and turns them into hard-shelled profits, as well as tender broilers. A hen doesn't starve to death waiting for the worms to come to the surface, nor cackle because of hard times. She saves her breath for digging and her cackle for results.

Ramblin' With Royce—

Well, it's been quite a spell since we had so much vacant space in the Enterprise that we had to fill it up with bits of nonsense. But since we do have some extra space we will torture you with a small "hand-out" again, as did the lady, sniffing, opened her purse and handed the pitiful object a few coins, with the admonition: "I hope you will not spend this for vile liquor."

Once Over Lightly—

Speaking of fine, new schools—wouldn't it be nice if we had the oil money Harry Truman tried to give us, but which was so grandly refused by Price Daniel and our little guy, that rootin' - tootin', teacher - bootin' Allen Shivers.

The biggest give-away program in history has now been completed by said Messrs. Daniel and Shivers. The much-heralded bill to quitclaim to Texas the offshore oil out to the 10.5-mile limit has now been signed by Eisenhower. The net effect was to give away the large majority of our offshore oil on the continental shelf.

You will recall that President Truman offered Texas 37 1/2 per cent of the revenues on oil from the shelf. This was turned down by the "whole-hog-or-nothin'" team of Shivers and Daniel.

They have gotten their 10 1/2-mile quitclaim bill through, and now discover what's happened to them. It's murder, what this did to Texas! The submerged land the new bill gives us has an estimated potential of 1.2 billion barrels of oil. OUTSIDE the 10 1/2-mile mark the estimated reserves are about 9 billion barrels. Which is the most—100 per cent of 1.2 billion, or 37 1/2 per cent of 9 billion? In addition, the state will have no control whatsoever over this large producing area, either on proration or tax-wise. As for the 1.2 billion barrels, the oil companies will have all of it except what we're able to glean from it in taxes. In short, my friends, those dynamic young statesmen gleefully swapped 3.825 billion barrels of oil for exactly 1.2 billion barrels.

Just Between You, Me and the Gatepost—

A flower peddler on Groucho Marx's show said that he worked on Wall Street. Marx was quick to point out that he (Groucho) lost his shirt on Wall Street in '29, "and," he continued, "you can also lose your plants there."

Getting Out On The Limb—

Most of us don't trust people for two reasons: First because we don't know them; and second, because we do.

—The Post Dispatch

Strickinly Speaking—

We see by the Gallup Poll that the people voted overwhelmingly for all people over 65 to have a driver's examination at least every two years, at least. But from what we can gather from daily papers concerning wrecks on the highways that kill and maim, it is not the oldsters generally who are driving. If there is an older in the bunch, he is usually a rear-seat rider. Most of the time, who are mentioned as the youthful.

World's Greatest Potato Race

That's the 2200-mile dash on the Santa Fe with 1,350,000,000 potatoes

Somebody east said, "Pass the potatoes!"
Out in California, the fertile San Joaquin Valley heard them. And look what happened. Santa Fe started moving 14,000 to 15,000 carloads of potatoes to hungry markets all over the Midwest and East, 36,000 to 40,000 pounds to a carload. As high as 550 carloads per day at peak of harvest. That's more than 1,350,000,000 potatoes. And that's a lot of spuds.
Bag 'em. Load 'em. Roll 'em. And hustle. Somebody east said, "Pass the potatoes!"
From America's largest fleet of refrigerator cars owned by an individual railroad, these yellow

Santa Fe "refers" are dispatched to the "Potato Capital of the West."
There the cars are cleaned, checked, loaded, switched. And iced fast (a car a minute, if you please). These potatoes can't wait!
In servicing the cars as they speed east, new icing docks at Bakersfield and Needles, Calif., Belen, N. Mex., Waynoka, Okla. and Kansas City work the clock around. Electronically-controlled "hump" yards speed the switching.

SANTA FE PRECISION—SANTA FE SPEED
On-time delivery calls for full-time precision to keep these schedules "on the advertised."
After the potatoes come the wheat... citrus fruits... grapes... melons... and green vegetables all year long—flooding east from Santa Fe country to you. Everything from avocados to zucchini.
It costs Santa Fe millions of dollars to serve you so—and provide you with Super Chiefs, too! But we're proud to say they are earned dollars. Not one penny comes from the taxes you pay.

PROGRESS THAT PAYS ITS OWN WAY

How To Get Things
in Shape On Farm
Summer Weather

temperatures over much of the country during the past few days are a good indication that summer weather is here to stay. And according to W. S. Allen, agricultural engineer for the Texas Extension Service, it means getting in shape around the farm for the hot weather season.

The equipment used during the winter should be cleaned and made ready for the summer. This would include checking the filter in the oiling of the fan and bearings. Other heating equipment should be cleaned and ready for the summer.

Things should be checked in and out for damage from winter weather. Window frames, window screens, sills, the condition of putty, paint finish, weathering inside and out should be checked for rot or other damage. Porches, stairs and should get special attention. Blistered paint stained walls are usually good evidence that repairs are needed now. Hot weather, points out the specialist, may make the faulty conditions worse and more difficult to repair.

Now is the time, says the engineer, to get the cooling equipment in top shape. Electric motors should be cleaned and oiled and all wiring checked. New filter pads may be needed on the evaporative coolers and water lines and valves should also be checked. If a cooling system is to be installed, better get the job done now in order to beat the heat.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

BY VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN, Tex.—Before leaving Austin, the legislators said to each other, "Goodbye, see you at the special session."

It is expected that Governor Shivers will call them back when the courts make a final decision on the natural gas tax.

If the tax is upheld, the state will have available the money that has been piling up since the tax was passed by the previous legislature, plus a monthly return of some $1 million.

Governor Shivers has predicted that the court test will come to an end in the fall.

Reviewing the session, Governor Shivers commended the legislators as a hard-working lot who had put through about 75 to 85 per cent of the program he requested.

He thus revised upward a previous estimate that only a small fraction of his program was completed.

Lawmakers deserve praise, the governor said, for passing some legislation and for defeating other bills.

It was well, he thought, that no new taxes were passed, no expensive state services were inaugurated, and no punitive measures were taken against either labor or management.

As to legislation passed, the governor thought these measures were good:

Authorizing new tuberculosis hospitals at San Antonio and Harlingen; setting up a stronger water conservation program; establishing a state toll road authority; increasing the pay of state employees $180 per year; toning down the auto safety inspection law; providing three-day jail sentences for driving while intoxicated; and taking steps to study and deal with alcoholism.

The chief executive also thought favorably of these proposed constitutional amendments, to be voted on by the people in November next year.

Permitting Texans in the armed services to vote; authorizing use of a surplus in the Confederate Pension fund for state buildings; boosting the ceiling on state welfare expenditures from $35 million to $42 million; and permitting women to serve on juries.

There were several of the governor's proposals that the legislature failed to put into effect, including:

Revising the election code; congressional and judicial redistricting; raising the money for road building; financing new buildings at Southwestern Medical School at Dallas, the University of Texas cancer research hospital and dental school, the deaf school and the prison system; and providing public school teachers a salary raise.

Increasing the teachers' pay was the hottest and most controversial issue of the session.

Teachers asked for $600 per year additional salary—they got nothing, although a compromise, had they accepted it, would have given them $306.

"It wasn't so much the money," the teachers' spokesman complained. "It was the principle of the thing."

They said that administration leaders never considered any way of financing the pay increase except by hiking local property taxes.

School people also balked at the administration's insistence that state payments to school supervisors and counselors be eliminated.

A statement was issued by the Texas State Teachers Association to the effect that it "should not be and has not been in the position of being willing to cripple or sacrifice its school program for the conditional promise of a small salary increase when the principles involved were so far-reaching." The association said it would continue its fight for salary raises at the next session and pointed out that a special session could be called to deal specifically with this problem.

In addition to the proposed constitutional amendments listed above, these additional ones were passed by the Legislature and will be submitted to the people:

Increasing the pay of elected state officials, including members of the Legislature; giving precinct, county, and district officials four year terms instead of two-year terms; permitting teacher retirement systems and state employee retirement system credits to be transferred; forbidding the state to assume any debt on bonds issued to build toll roads; allowing state and local government workers to go under the federal social security plan; and authorizing counties under 10,000 population to keep separate tax assessor-collectors by local option.

Some of these issues are controversial—you'll be hearing more about them as election time approaches.

Frank D. Quinn, chairman of the state parks board said in a speech here that the tourist business can be the state's biggest—but it is handicapped by a rule against state advertising. . . . Want a job? The Texas Highway Patrol is looking for new recruits. . . . Draft quota for Texas in July is 1,268 men, smallest since September. . . . You can have a television set in your car. . . . A bill preventing same was found to be unconstitutional.

time of order.
Slaton has two overhead reservoirs of 50,000 and 70,000-gallon capacity, and three underground reservoirs with a combined storage capacity of 550,000 gallons.

"A good rain is what we really need," Davis asserted. The water superintendent pointed out that Slaton was using in the neighborhood of 1 1/2 million gallons of water per day in May until a one-inch rain fell. On the following day, usage dropped to 388,000 gallons.

Such a rain now would be a solution to the problem, at least for the present.

But until it comes, volunteer curtailment of water usage will have to be the answer unless an official restriction is to be put on water use.

HERE CAN YOU HAVE MORE FUN THAN IN SLATON? TEENAGERS HAVE FULL SCHEDULE OF ACTIVITIES

Teenagers of Slaton are finding more enjoyable activity at this year than ever before in the courts. They are taking advantage of it and have of the favorite teen activities this summer is the weekly dance on the tennis courts. A group has formed a square club, elected officers and has a regular schedule. With the help of adults who volunteer time and know-how, the club is learning to follow the directions of the caller in the ever-popular pastime of dancing, a favorite form of recreation in America since the days. They hope and expect to be so good before season is over that they will be sent a square to Lubbock to appear on television. And indications point to a continuation of their goal. They are dancing fast.

Officers of the club are: president, L. C. Strube; vice president, Collins; secretary, Joene; treasurer, Sue Corley; chairman, Bert Lively; Bobby Tefertiller; refreshment committee chairman, Joan. The club meets on the courts every Thursday night 8 p.m.

They extend an invitation to parents and townspeople to come out and watch, and there always more spectators than dancers. Adult callers and callers are: Earl Reasoner, Dick and Ben Davis, with assistance from their wives. Chaperone last Thursday night were R. A. Thompson and Mrs. A. G. A. Club is indebted to the VFW for the use of their loud-speaker system, the Earl Reasoners for use of their records, and Red Wilson for the use of her portable record player. The club is operating on funds secured thru sale of cakes and was able to purchase additional records last week.

All area teenagers are invited to attend each Thursday. There will always be adequate instruction for beginners. And it is fun. Comments from those present last week indicate that they all had a marvelous time. One boy remarked to one of the sponsors, "If I had to work this hard at a job, I'd quit, but this is fun."

The most popular teen activity this summer is swimming. Of the 1,340 people who went swimming in Slaton's new municipal pool, 553 were teenagers. Those figures are from the first 5 days the pool was open.

Tiger Town is open this summer and is providing fun for folks who enjoy games, parties and dancing. The teen recreation center is open Tuesday and Saturday nights and on Saturday nights there is ballroom dancing to recorded music. The steering committee provides adult chaperones and parents are invited to drop in at any time to observe activities. Planned point parties with a chaperone providing the games are in line for the near future. All teen agers are welcome. If you don't know the young people here, go to Tiger Town; you'll meet them there and they'll be happy to have you with them. It's a good summer to be young in Slaton.

Sometimes Confusing, But Always Fun

Predictions For 1963 From Absent Guest Of Honor Enliven Party In Adams Home

Inscribing refulgent meteors with a dentist chisel—painting a new face on the moon with a broom—hiding in a cobalt cloud of misty mystery! Fictional rather than factual? Possibly so today, but not tomorrow, according to Mrs. Owen Afreth of Chapaqua, Westchester, New York, who was guest of honor at a buffet supper given Sunday night by Miss Frances Adams.

A most unusual feature of the party was that the honored guest could not appear. Mrs. Afreth, who had been visiting with her parents in Slaton, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith, was hurriedly called back to New York. However, her personality permeated the party in "Rebecca-like" fashion, for it was she who predicted the above in the form of written "fortunes" for the other invited guests who included Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Gay, Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jennings, Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs.

B. Fredric de Vries, Slaton, and Mr. George Link, Spur. "Dr. Gray with his wife, residents of Lubbock 'back in 1953', wrote fortune-telling Peggy Afreth, whose predictions were as of 1963, "is practicing dentistry on the planet Venus and has acquired quite a collection of chisel—" shooting-stars.

"Marinelli de Vries, who has won the highest honors on Earth for her photographs and portraits in oils, is painting portraits of all the satellites for inter-planetary competition," continued Mrs. Afreth.

"Miss Adams can be seen parading among the shooting stars with her ten fawn-colored Great Danes on a leash," concluded the party honoree.

ONE YEAR AGO IN SLATON
Taken from June 13, 1952

Slaton's first Clean-up Day was definitely successful according to the chairman of the drive, Dr. Glen Payne. This was Slaton's first, and Dr. Payne feels that a very good start was made.

Lewis Hollingsworth experienced that once-in-a-lifetime thrill of golf when he canned a hole-in-one Saturday afternoon on the Par 3, 146-yard No. 6 hole at Levelland Country Club.

Anything can happen and usually does when a town whose citizens have civic pride and the right kind of spirit decides to celebrate its birthday. Last week Edward L. Miller went to Lubbock. So what? So he's cultivating an Abe Lincoln beard for Frontier Day, and "he's five feet, eighteen inches" tall, has features a little like Lincoln's only not as rugged, and he wore his Lincoln type top hat. He heard one man remark to his buddy, "I thought Abe Lincoln was dead."

Nat Heaton last Friday night attended what turned out to be a really hot political rally at the Posey Community Center. Heaton, a candidate for judge of the County Court at Law, had been in the meeting some two-and-a-half hours when someone reported that his car, a 1950 Oldsmobile sedan, was on fire. Nat went to look. Sure enough, it was.

Due to the cloudbursts and hailstorms that brought thousands of dollars in damage to crops and property in a number of sections of this part of Lubbock County, a large number of the farms must be replanted if cotton seed can be secured to do the work. "There is a serious shortage of cotton seed for planting," said J. S. Edwards, "and anyone who has seed for sale will find a ready market to the farmers south and east of Slaton."

All the people of the area surrounding Lubbock will now be able to secure direct, definite and official information in this city on all War Production Board rules and regulations dealing with controlled and restricted materials and equipment, at regular and stated periods.

LONE STAR
Agriculture
The Texas Department of Agriculture

By John C. White, Commissioner

Poultry Pointers

Few farms are complete without at least some chickens—both fryers and layers. Even though commercial flocks may not be practical, the few extra pennies earned in egg production or the money saved in raising meat for the frying pan really add up in a year's time.

In order to successfully raise chickens for home consumption, or for the market, it is important to look after the "little things" as well as the bigger problems. It may pay dividends to spend a few minutes checking on these profit leaks:

Hang up those empty feed sacks or pile them neatly on a rack. This is the best way to keep used bags in good condition. A few pains in opening sacks so as not to tear them will pay off.

Don't allow birds to waste feed. Use feeders that prevent waste and fill them only 1/2 to 2/3 full.

Make a practice to wipe off light bulbs and reflectors in the pens every so often. It is surprising how much light is lost simply because bulbs and reflectors are filmed over.

Check up on the favorite laying haunts of your chickens. Eggs are lost because birds don't lay them in the nests. Dark corners, under the nests and roosts, should be wired off so birds just can't lay in those hard to get at places where eggs are either broken or get dirty.

Work out a plan to cull and sell loafers if you are trying for good egg production. Non-laying birds are lost to the market because the farmer didn't get rid of them while they were in good condition.

A good poultryman is first of all a good manager. No matter how big or how small an operation he has, mass production can never substitute for good management.

The Texas Department of Agriculture publishes a poultry and egg bulletin each day in Austin. A written request will bring this service to you free of charge. The request should be addressed to: Market News Service, Texas Department of Agriculture, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas.

Mrs. C. O. Townsend of Clovis and her daughter, Mrs. Red Rodgers of Lubbock, visited Mrs. Townsend's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Townsend, last week end.

Mrs. Bob Brasfield, Bobby, Carolyn, Travis and Brenda, spent last week visiting relatives at Quanah, Childress, and Roaring Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hunter and sons, Carol and Michael, will leave June 15 for Tucumcari, N. M., where they will visit Mrs. Hunter's mother, Mrs. R. S. Mobley. They have not completed plans for their vacation, but plan to spend part of it at home resting.

4-H club members from all sections of Texas will be at Texas A. and M. College on June 25 to participate in the various state judging and demonstration team contests.

SUBSTITUTE NEWSBOY Manuel George gets his Slatonites and instruction on the route he is to sell in absence of regular newsboy James Vardy, who has mumps. (Slatonite Staff Photo)

Meet A Newsboy

Slatonite newsboy, Manuel George, is 11 years old and will be in the fifth grade next year. He is a substitute newsboy who has a different route almost every week. He has been kept busy during the recent siege of mumps, measles, appendicitis that has plagued the regular newsboys. He hopes to be busy all summer too. Not that he wants the boys to be sick. He hopes that there will be at least one on a vacation trip with his parents every week.

Manuel is tall and slim, has black hair and very dark eyes that nearly always have a twinkle in them. He is handsome and friendly and full of that boundless energy that seems to be a part of all newsboys.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Spero George, 225 East Panhandle. In the family group are Kathy, 5, Jimmy, 4, Sue who is almost 18, and a sister-in-law Jolene, who is Gus' wife. Manuel's brothers, Gus and Nick are in the Navy, and a brother, Floyd, is married and lives in Galveston. Gus is expected home from Korea the 20th of this month. Nick is stationed at New Orleans and will be home in three months.

Manuel's favorite subjects in school are spelling and arithmetic. His favorite pastimes are squirting people with a water gun, going swimming, going to Danny's house to ride bicycles. He likes winter better than the other seasons because then there is snow and you can make snow ice cream and ski and have snowball fights.

He thinks some of that snow ice cream would taste good right now.

February 10 is Manuel's favorite day; it's his birthday. Baseball is his favorite sport; he likes to pitch. If he could do anything in the world he wanted, regardless of cost or distance, he would go to Greece and visit his cousins. They have boats and he could go fishing with them.

His girl friend? Oh, ah, uh— he has one and she likes him too, but he doesn't want to tell her name. No one knows but his mommy. Two of his good friends are Stephanie Johnson and Carol June Courtwright, and it could be that one of them is "the" one.

Manuel's ambition is to get married and buy a boat at San Diego and be a fisherman. Next to that he would like to be a truck driver and drive a big truck like those parked between the Slatonite and Brush Motor Freight... or a big GMC diesel.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Stroud, Butch and Sandra, of San Angelo, visited recently with Mr. Stroud's mother, Mrs. Cora Stroud.

Mrs. Hoyt Meador accompanied her father, Mr. W. T. Terry to Dallas Tuesday where Mr. Terry was to have surgery performed on his eye Wednesday.

Linda Kay Reed, 9, is spending a few days with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Butler. Linda Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Reed of Posey, is attending the Bible school.

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

WASHINGTON—There will be a lot of talk in Congress during the next several weeks about wings. It will be in connection with the size of the Air Force and the amount of money to increase it which Congress should appropriate for the new fiscal year that begins July 1.

This debate, as in the past, will tend to confuse many members of Congress and taxpayers alike.

There already is argument as to whether the goal of 143 wings set by the Truman Administration for January, 1955, should be reduced to one of 120 wings for June 30, 1955, as proposed by the Eisenhower Administration.

It might be added that the Air Force's size has increased from 87 wings in mid-1951 to 103 at present.

All of which logically raises the question in the non-military mind of what precisely is a wing.

To begin with, a wing is the major Air Force combat unit. It is an elastic, self-contained unit, designed to operate independently and to be self-supporting.

A wing, the Air Force says, is composed of four groups—a combat group plus one group each for medical care, maintenance of aircraft, and air base installations and operations.

Combat groups contain varying numbers of aircraft, with the number depending on the type of operation or mission.

A fighter group contains 75 aircraft. A heavy bomber group contains 30 aircraft. Other types of combat groups contain numbers of aircraft varying between those two figures.

Under the basic structure, to which some exceptions are made, a combat group contains three squadrons in peacetime. Each squadron contains one-third of the aircraft in the group. In time of war, an extra squadron may be added to certain types of combat groups.

While that is as closely as the definition of a wing can be pinned down for the layman, it still is, of necessity, vague. That is pointed out to illustrate the difficulty encountered by most members of Congress in trying to decide how many wings there should be.

Thus the debate over 143 versus 120 wings is apt to generate a good deal more heat than light, not to mention a considerable amount of political oratory.

THE SLATON SLATONITE

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1953

Those in Congress who oppose the proposed reduction in the number of wings contend that it would reduce our air strength.

They ask how it can be that, as the Administration claims, less appropriations for the Air Force can mean a stronger Air Force.

At least one member of Congress has demanded that Defense Secretary Wilson resign for making such a claim. Another member has suggested that the cut was dictated by the Budget Bureau without due consideration for what it would mean in loss of air strength.

The thing to be remembered during this debate is that military aircraft are not delivered the year they are ordered. It takes two or three years, or more, to design, build and test them.

The Administration claims that 143 wings is only an unrealistic "paper" goal that could not be met by January, 1955. It says all of the present wings are not fitted out in full or adequate combat strength by expediting deliveries of aircraft, Wilson says, the Air Force can be built to 120 full-strength wings by mid-1955.

Because it feels the 143-wing goal could not be met anyhow, the Administration proposes that Congress permit the Air Force to draw $5 billion less from the Treasury during fiscal year 1954 than Mr. Truman recommended. The Air Force already has $40 billion in Congressionally endorsed checks which it can draw on the Treasury whenever it needs the money.

When it cashes those checks, that is spending which affects the federal budget which the Administration hopes to balance. The Administration proposes that Air Force check-cashing during fiscal year 1954 be held to $2.3 billion less than Mr. Truman proposed.

Wilson says that could be done by effecting various savings without reducing actual air combat strength. The National Security Council agrees.

An air-minded Congress, however, may disagree.

Mrs. J. E. Caldwell, who underwent major surgery at Mercy Hospital last week, returned home Saturday morning. Her mother, Mrs. M. L. Seay of Abernathy, who is staying with her during her illness, says she is making a very fast recovery. Mrs. Seay has never seen anyone get along better following an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Loke, Teresa Ann and Alvis Joe went to Lubbock Sunday to visit Mr. Loke's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Praytor.

Livestock - Poultry External Parasites Will Cut Profits

The battle between man and the insect kingdom goes on continuously. Whenever sanitation and control programs become ineffective, the bugs take advantage of the situation and rapidly increase in numbers with a corresponding increase in damages done. The annual toll taken by external parasites from the producers in Texas of livestock and poultry amounts to millions of dollars. Right now the extra dollars are needed to help keep production on the black side of the ledger.

The entomologists of the Texas A.M. College System have released a publication, C-324, "A Guide for Controlling External Parasites of Livestock and Poultry in Texas," and it is available at the office of all county agricultural agents.

The entomologists point out that external parasites are present the year round and that lower production of meat, milk and eggs result when the bugs are not controlled. In addition, diseases are spread and infested livestock and poultry go down in condition because of the loss in energy and from annoyance. Organic insecticides, they say, will control the major external parasites and there is little excuse for allowing them to exist.

Included in the guide are formulas, mixing instructions and methods of application for a great number of insecticides along with an even longer list of the parasites that do the most damage. The information is given in a condensed form and is based on experiments conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine and Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture.

SHORT GRASS

by gpt

The banner headline in last week's issue of the Slatonite said something about "Swimming Pool Opens To Public."

A more meaningful banner might have been, "Who Says We Ain't Progressive?" That $80,000 splotch of water and concrete represents one of the biggest forward steps Slaton has taken for many years, and its worthwhileness is evident from the hundreds and hundreds of people who are enjoying its use.

Now that the pool is open, it seems pretty much a case of peaches and cream. But getting it built was more a matter of blood, sweat and tears.

Had we the time to close up the Slatonite for about a week so that each staff member could temporarily pursue his favorite pastime on a full-scale basis, I think I would use part of my time off to go around and waggle my ears at all of the folks who told me, "That swimming pool won't be anything decent if they do manage to get it open."

That is precisely the attitude that backers of the pool project had to fight from the beginning. It is the same attitude that stands in the way of other worthwhile projects here. But that attitude and those behind it got a good country licking with the completion of the swimming pool—and for what it's worth—I'd like to pass along my heartfelt thanks to EVERYONE who had any part whatsoever in giving Slaton one of the finest swimming pools in these parts.

The Slaton Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development, which operates on a ridiculously low amount of money, has forged from its annual pittance a recreational enterprise that will be enjoyed by thousands of people now and in the years ahead.

Doggonit, it makes me feel mighty good to see our little city take such a big step forward. It's the sort of thing that makes a city "go places."

The other day a Slatonite reader asked me why this newspaper carries so much "trivial" news and so little of hold-ups, knifings, and "really big stories like the dailies have."

A few others have asked the same question. As I recall, it's one I attempted to answer in this column a year or so ago.

At any rate, I'd say the matter concerns around one's interpretation of "trivial."

Weeklies, whether they're published in Slaton, Texas, or Shawano, Wisconsin, are sort of a clannish lot with a grass roots philosophy about newspapering.

Most of them would prefer to give space to a marriage than to a murder attempt with a meat axe. They would rather tell how the bride looked than to give a detailed description of how a child's body looked after it had been crushed under a speeding car. We'd rather tell who has twins, not tuberculosis.

Whereas in the big city it's "the evil that men do" that makes the front page, in the small city it's the good: the civic meetings, the church get-togethers, the neighborliness.

Vincent Sheean, widely-known author, has aptly described the big city newspaperman as "a professional observer at the peep show of misery."

We'll side with Jane S. McIlvaine, country editor's wife and author of the recent book, "It Happens Every Thursday." She says, "When people put down the evening daily with its image of distress emblazoned across the front page, they want to turn to their own local weekly and reassure themselves with accounts of the law-abiding, the conventional, the customary doing of people they know."

This newspaper makes an honest effort to cover "all the news that's fit to print," to borrow the New York Times' fine slogan. It would not be a worthy servant of this community if it did not do so. But you're still likely to get more news in the Slatonite about teas and twins than sex and sins.

With us, that is not a "trivial" philosophy.

In addition to swimming, Slaton's young people have been having themselves a whale of a good time learning to square dance on the park tennis courts each Thursday evening.

A choice rumor now—and one I'd sorta been looking for—is that certain folks want to see a stop put to it.

Sin, they may be calling it. Or a close neighbor.

If there's the least harm in a group of our young people scrambling through a few fast squares under the bright lights in the park where anyone can watch, I fail to see it.

A person may have sinful thoughts at home, at church, at a movie, at a dance . . . most anywhere. It depends on the person. One of the least likely situations in which such thoughts may occur is during a fast-moving square dance—if you keep up with the other seven guys and gals, there just isn't any time left for thinking about anything else.

And aside from the merits of square dancing, which I personally consider a mighty wholesome form of recreation for folks of all ages, it's my presumption that our young people can doggone well keep on square dancing if they want to on the simple basis that this country of ours is still a free one, and that a person still has the right to do what he wants to as long as he doesn't infringe upon the rights of others.

This week's nomination for one of Slaton's most pleasant people: Ed Gorom, new pastor of the First Christian Church.

While I'm bumblin' my way through this thing, my favorite brunette is cozily ensconced in my favorite chair with her nose in a little volume entitled, "The Predicament of Modern Man." Doubtless a profound analysis will be forthcoming shortly.

One of the several predicaments of this modern man is that if his favorite brunette doesn't stop diving into our meagerly-stocked refrigerator for "a little something" to give all of the stray cats and dogs who have passed the word

C-324. "A Guide for Controlling External Parasites of Livestock and Poultry in Texas" is available without cost at all offices of county agricultural agents. The new publication contains the latest information on the use of chemicals for controlling insects on herds and flocks.
