

...se people are hungry much of
...has an overabundance of food.
...cial problems and special responsi-

...blems is how to store the surpluses of ...products that have piled up as a result of the ...port program. Grain is being stored in ships, wareh.
...petroleum tanks, circus tents and even a blimp hanger.

Another problem is how to dispose of the surplus without unduly upsetting markets. That is not as simple as it might seem. If we give away wheat and dairy products in needy parts of the world, other nations that also produce and sell those things naturally object. Even if we simply sell our surplus foods at the going world prices, other producing nations protest that we are "dumping."

The problem is so complicated that Secretary of Agriculture Benson is going abroad himself next fall to try to work out a solution. It will not be easy. Selling off our surplus food is important, but keeping the good will of friendly nations and bolstering their economies is important also.

ASIA AT GENEVA

There have been some reports that Asian matters will be brought up at the Geneva talks. It is said that India's Prime Minister Nehru who has been conferring with Prime Minister Eden has urged Mr. Eden to sound out President Eisenhower on the possibility of including the East on the Geneva agenda.

Any of these reports might certainly be true. Mr. Nehru has lately been in Russia and it could be possible that Russia has asked him to put out some feelers in the West on the Formosa and Communist China situation.

The West has made it clear, however, that it intends to confine its topics to the European scene. If Russia were to express an interest in discussing Asia at this time, it would be interpreted that the Soviet's interest in European peace has cooled. The West also does not think that Russia, England, France and the United States constitute the full body of power necessary to discuss Asian problems.

It should not be assumed by Russia, the East or the American people who have sons in the East that the West is not interested in finding solutions which will keep peace in Asia. But in four or six days only a limited number of topics can be covered. In view of the nations represented it seems natural that the talks should concern the state of Europe.
No more can be demanded of our statesmen than one set of subjects at a time and the sets in a reasonable order, with a definite effort to keep first things first. The purpose of the Geneva conference is to discuss problems of Europe.
Asia can be discussed in its own time.

CONGRESSIONAL DELAYS

It's hot in Washington, D. C., these days and like the rest of us the members of congress work better when the temperature is more moderate. Yet it is possible that Congress will not reach adjournment on schedule. If it should it will be because some legislation will get fast handling—too fast, maybe—and other legislation, some of it very necessary, will be postponed until next year.

For some reason Congress manages to go along in low gear for the first half of each session, then has to turn on the speed in the last weeks. This means that some work is neglected and some is not done as well as it might be.

Perhaps if long, meaningless speeches that find their way in the Congressional record were never made some time could be saved in the early days of a session. Full debate of an issue is one thing but often Senators and Representatives intend to impress constituents rather than to contribute anything to the discussion of a bill.

Congress works hard—that fact must not be overlooked.
But it wastes time, too. And it might be possible for those in charge to schedule legislation more evenly so that bottlenecks don't occur at the end of the sessions. It is certainly a problem the members of Congress should want to do something about.

CURTAIN BLOCK PULLED ASIDE

A SURGEON'S LARGEST FEE

Once there lived in a town in the Central West a widowed mother with a seven-year-old son, who had been blind most of his life. The mother worked hard so that that blind son might have the best. The mother naturally dreamed, longed and prayed for the day when she could have ample funds to take her son to a surgeon who might cure his blindness.

Through her friends, the case came to the attention of a certain young surgeon. He brought the case to the attention of a great and kindly surgeon who examined the lad's eyes carefully and then told the mother that an operation might be successful. She gave her permission, but told the surgeon that she had no money.

This is what that great surgeon replied: "My education, training and talent came from generous church friends—and God. I look upon my skill as a Stewardship, and I never think of money in connection with my work, so you do not need to worry about that, my dear woman. I am interested, giving sight to this blind boy, just as our Saviour did in the long ago."

The operation was finally performed, and then came days of anxious waiting. The mother stayed near her son, cheering him and telling him that very soon the many yards of bandage would be removed and that he MIGHT see.

At last the great surgeon announced that the bandages could be removed. He himself did not know what he would find beneath those bandages. The nurse worked patiently beside the bed, her knuckles tense and white as she gripped the frame of the bed. The room was very quiet. Carefully the bandages were laid aside, and when the last strip was removed, everyone waited breathlessly as the little boy opened his eyes and smiled a smile of pure delight. Then his eyes rested for the first time upon his own mother and he said simply:
"Why mother, you are just as beautiful as I have always dreamed you would be!"

In the bed beside the boy sat a small teddy bear. An arm was gone, a leg broken, but that teddy bear had kept vigil through all the anxious days and nights in the hospital. As is the case with so many children, the boy could not go to sleep without that teddy bear. It was his most precious possession. On the day that the happy mother and son were leaving the hospital, the boy walked up to the great surgeon and said, "Doctor, here is my teddy bear.
We can't pay you money, so I am giving you my teddy bear to pay for my operation!" When they reached home, a huge package was awaiting the lad. He hurriedly opened the package to find the largest and finest teddy bear that money could buy. But, in a famous surgeon's office in a large eastern city, carefully placed under glass on top of a beautiful bookcase, triumphantly sits a little brown, battered teddy bear. One arm was gone, a leg broken, one eye was lost, but that teddy bear's one good eye was shining. On a little card just in front of the teddy bear, the doctor has written: "THE LARGEST SINGLE FEE I HAVE EVER RECEIVED FOR PROFESSIONAL SER-VICES."

Dr. Edgar Hallack, Baptist missionary to Brazil, spoke to Slaton Rotarians Thursday on Brazil and conditions there. He was presented by Roy Belt, who was in charge of the program for the day. Hallack has lived in Brazil since 1943, where he is executive secretary of Baptist Sunday School in Brazil. Brazil is a country larger than the United States, he said, and the people there are very interesting. "They're only one race... the human race." The race is predominately dark, being made up of an intermingling of Negro and White and Indians. Practically all European nationalities are a part of the race, too, he said.

The language of Brazil is Portuguese, Dr. Hallack said. "Over half the coffee trees in the world are located in Brazil, and the country produces wonderful long staple cotton. Untold agricultural resources enable the country to produce rubber, sugar cane, cocoa, oranges, bananas and nuts. The cattle are a mixed breed, being crossed with Brahmans.

"Land can be homesteaded in Brazil, and this provides an excellent opportunity for someone with available capital."

One of the fundamental differences between Brazil and the United States lies in the fact that in the U. S. people are believed to be honest, and are so treated in their business dealings, Dr. Hallack said. In Brazil, things are just the opposite. There you are presumed to be dishonest, and all business dealings are carried on with that fact in mind.

"This presumption that everyone is dishonest," he said, "stems from the manner in which the country was settled. Where the United States was settled by people seeking God, Brazil was settled by people searching for gold." He stated that it was a characteristic that had carried down from generation to generation, and had caused some very marked characteristics on the nation today.

"The greatest thing in the world is to be an American," Hallack said, "and the best way to prove it is to go to a foreign country to live."

Visiting Rotarians at the meeting included Rufus Grisham, George Brassell, James Gammill, Bill Ponder, Jack Spratt and Earl Collins, all of Lubbock.

Included in guests were W. R. Wood, Lubbock, Dickey Thomas, junior Rotarian for September; Mickey Blake, the Rev. J. T. Bolding, and Richard Perry, all of Slaton.

THE MYSTERY FARM APPEARING in the last issue of the Slatonite is owned by W. L. Bednarz family. The farm is located southwest of Slaton. The family has resided on the farm since buying it in 1949.

Mystery Farm Owner Is W. L. Bednarz

The W. L. Bednarz farm appeared in last week's Slatonite as the "Mystery Farm" of the week. The farm is located southwest of Slaton.

The farm was thought by Mrs. Bednarz to have been first put under cultivation somewhere around 1920 and is a part of what was once the S. R. Cade estate.

According to J. H. Brewer, Cade came to the Slaton area around 1917 and started farming south of town. At that time, Brewer said, Cade had the only farm in that area.

Mrs. Bednarz is the former Irma Macha of Tahoka. He is a native of Slaton.

The couple was married in 1937 and lived on the R. J. Bednarz place until 1949, when they moved to their present location.

Mr. and Mrs. Bednarz have three children, two boys and a girl. Eugene the oldest is 17, Billy is 12, and the youngest is Jeanette, 7. Since buying the farm, the family has constructed all the buildings and added many improvements to the place.

The family belongs to St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Mr. Bednarz is affiliated with the Knights of Columbus and is also a member of the Farm Bureau.

Cotton, as it is with most of the other area farms, is the chief crop on the 160 acre farm, according to Mrs. Bednarz.

If Bednarz will drop by the Slaton Farm Store, he will receive an attractive aerial photograph of his farm.

MRS. R. H. TODD JR. is shown as she is showing an antique English porcelain teapot, which is about 200 years old and the oldest of her antiques, to her children; David, John Mark and Carol Ann. This is only one of the many antiques in their home.

Slaton Women Give Their Favorite Tested Recipes

Mrs. R. H. Todd Jr. chose a Sublime Loaf for her recipe and says they enjoy it a great deal. It is good dessert for a party and is very economical.

- Sub-Lime Loaf
- 1 cup coconut
- 1 stick margarine
- 2 cup crushed vanilla wafers
- 1 pkg. Lime Jello
- 1 cup hot water
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 T. lemon juice
- 1 cup chilled and whipped evaporated milk.

Method: Sauté the coconut in the margarine until golden brown, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add the crushed vanilla wafers and mix well. Press half of the mixture into the bottom of a 9x12 pan. Dissolve the gelatin in hot water, stir in the sugar and lemon juice. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in the whipped milk. Turn on the crumb mixture in pan. Top with remaining crumbs and chill until firm. Cut into squares. Serves 8.

Although Mrs. Todd is a busy mother and housewife she finds time for outstanding activities and has taken on a big responsibility for the next two years, as she is beginning a two year term as president of the Daughters of the Pioneer Study Club. She says the members are starting the club year with a great deal of enthusiasm as this is their twentieth anniversary. The club was organized in 1935 by the Civic and Culture Club, with Mrs. Cecil Scott, the only charter member, still in the club. Mrs. Todd says she is still very active in the club and is well loved by the members.

Several of the club's programs for the year are based on "Looking Down Memories Lane", with the first program being "Down Memory Lane", others "A Hit Parade Favorite (1935-1955)" "What I Remember" and "Through the Years". The club has planned a style show for Oct. 3 to be in the new high school auditorium with Dunlaps furnishing the clothes and the models. They plan for this to be one of their outstanding events of

ADVENTURES EXPERIENCED BY DE VRIES IN THE OLD WEST

Twirling the sixshooter that killed Billy the Kid . . . tossing honeyed crackers to begging black bears . . . shaking hands with the lead dog of a world famous Alaskan sled dog team, are only a few of the more than 2000 thrills and chills experienced by Fredric and Marinell de Vries and Marinell's son, David, who returned this week from a more than 2000 mile motor trip through Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Utah.

Stops included a four-day visit at Casper, Wyoming with Mr. and Mrs. Ken Ball, a pioneer family of the territory which did not choose to join the Union until 1870. There was Hell's Half Acre, an eerie chasm in which Indians are said to have driven herds of wild buffalo for slaughtering. A full day was spent circling about the wild and fantastic 2,213,000 acre Yellowstone National Park, home of Old Faithful geyser which shoots boiling water nearly every hour hundreds of feet into the air. Almost as striking as the geysers are the bubbling and boiling pools of clear water, mud and clay of which the Dragon's Mouth was especially ferocious. Among this great wild-life sanctuary roam grizzly bear, black bear, moose, deer, antelope and bison.

A day and night was spent in Salt Lake City, home of the Mormon Temple and Tabernacle, the latter sufficiently large enough to accommodate an audience of 10,000 and so acoustically perfect that a small pin dropped at one end of the auditorium can be heard as it falls to the floor at the opposite end of the building. Here, too, is the great Salt Lake, four to seven times as salty as the ocean and so buoyant that swimmers bob up and down like corks in a pan of water.

One of the most pleasant stops of the two weeks journey was at Bingham, Utah, sight of the world's largest open-pit copper mine. Here more than 40 steam scoop shovels can be seen digging valuable ore
