Doctorate Degree Awarded Local Superintendent of Schools Monday

P. L. Vardy Receives Doctorate

Slaton's Superintendent of Schools, P. L. Vardy, received one of two doctorate degrees awarded at the spring commencement at Texas Tech Monday evening.

Vardy received his bachelor's degree from Tech in 1929, with a major in mathematics and science. His master's degree was awarded by the Lubbock school in 1937, with a major in mathematics and education.

Subject of the doctoral dissertation was "A Survey of the Small Schools of Texas."

Bank Moves To New Quarters

Offices of Citizens State Bank were open this week in their new building, at the intersection of Texas Avenue and Garza. The bank began doing business in their new location Monday.

Formal opening and Open House will be held in the near future, but actual dates have not been set.

Street Improvement Bond Receives Vote of Approval Tuesday--105-14

By a vote of 105 to 14, Slaton voters Tuesday approved a $30,000 street improvement bond issue.

Funds will be used to repair and seal-coat all asphalt-paved streets in Slaton, with the exception of those now being paved.

The issue was submitted to the voters at this time in order to make necessary repairs to the streets before they were in such condition that repair would be impossible.

Estimated cost of repairing and seal-coating the streets is $210 per block. Cost of new paving, the other alternative to the repair and seal-coat, would be about $2,000 per block.

Deterioration of the streets was attributed largely to the excessive moisture and freezes during the past winter. Reports of the same situation in other towns on the South Plains indicate that Slaton is not alone in the situation.

Completion of paving work on some 22 1/2 blocks in town has been held up because of the rains which have fallen recently. City officials said this week that workmen had been in town ready to complete the work, but that rains had fallen at such times as to make the laying of paving impossible.

They pointed out that the base for the new paving must be completely dry before the surface can be laid.

Election tallies by wards are as follows:

Ward 1: For—44; Against—5.
Ward 2: For—31; Against—4.
Ward 3: For—14; Against—2.

Rotarians Hear Discussion of Famous Portraits

Frederic de Vries showed reproductions of the famous portraits of the Twelve Disciples at the meeting of the Slaton Rotary Club Thursday noon. He commented on how the photographer, Sunne Richards, went about obtaining her models for the portraits.

Bruce Pember was in charge of the program and introduced the speaker.

"This is a story about a woman," de Vries said at the beginning of the program. The woman was the author of the pictures, Sunne Richards. A picture of each disciple was displayed on a lighted easel, and a brief description of their particular character was given.

Visitors included Oscar Crain and Don Calvert, both of Lubbock and Larry Bownds and Don Boyd of Slaton.

Melvin Kunkel, incoming Rotary president, stated that the Slaton and Post Rotary clubs would entertain a foreign student for eight weeks this summer.

Babb Will Replace Gilbert as High School Principal Here

Announcement of the appointment of Truett Babb principal of Slaton High School was made this week. He will replace John M. Gilbert who retired this year.

Gilbert, who had been principal of the school here for about eight years, moved on May 31 to Waldron, Arkansas, where he will operate a stock farm. He had been in the teaching profession for some 33 years.

Babb has been vocational agriculture teacher in the Slaton school system since 1954. He has had 16 years in the teaching field, and has his master's degree from Texas Tech.

Superintendent P. L. Vardy said that four vacancies exist at present in the staff of the school system.

Discussion of Cotton Industry's Future Planned Tonight at High School Auditorium

Cotton leaders from Slaton, Posey, Southland, and Hackberry areas will meet tonight at 8 p.m. at Slaton High School auditorium to hear a three-part analysis of the cotton industry.

Bill Alsbaugh, in announcing the meeting, said that E. W. Sears of Memphis, Tennessee, Dale Anderson of Oklahoma, and John Gregg of Lubbock, members of the National Cotton Council field service staff, will explain in detail cotton's competitive situation at home and abroad, industry activities aimed at increasing consumption of its products, and potentials for cotton provided it competes effectively in price, quality and promotion.

Alsbaugh pointed out the seriousness of the challenge to the country's cotton, not only from a host of man-made fiber substitutes, and foreign cotton production, but also from the many goods and services being offered consumers and promoted aggressively.

The Cotton Council presentation, he explained, will employ numerous slides to portray graphically where the cotton industry stands at present, what is being done about its situation, and where it is headed.

The Council field representatives will describe the progress that is being made to achieve a competitive price for cotton through efficiencies in production, marketing, processing, and manufacturing.

The presentation will analyze the role of quality in cotton's competition for markets, revealing how the fiber not only must appeal to consumers but also to the textile mill and those who merchandise textile products. It will give specific examples of how consumption has been expanded by capitalizing on research and promotional opportunities.

In a summarizing statement the speakers will emphasize the alternatives for cotton: (1) a substantial increase in markets by keeping pace with the rapid expansion in population and standards of living at home and abroad; or (2) dwindling markets, reduced acreage and volume, and a constantly shrinking income not only for the cotton industry but for all who are dependent on it.

Enforcement Planned for Dog Ordinance

City officials said this week that strict enforcement of Ordinance 61, dealing with dogs running at large, would begin within the next few days.

The ordinance, which requires that a dog wear a rabies vaccination tag as well as a license tag from the City of Slaton, has been in effect since 1929.

Under provisions of the ordinance, all dogs "found upon the streets or in the alleys of the City of Slaton, and not under leash, in violation of the foregoing provisions of the ordinance, shall be taken by the Dog Catcher and placed in the City Pound."

Dogs placed in the pound will be kept for a period of three days, and at the end of that time they shall be killed unless redeemed by the owner or other persons.

In order to redeem a dog, a pound fee of $1.10 per day must be paid.

Balanced Training For Teachers Is Insured Under New State Program

Contrary to some popular opinion, Texas school teachers are receiving much more training in subject matter, or "what to teach," than they received in so-called "how to teach" courses.

So says the TEXAS OUTLOOK, the Texas State Teachers Assn. magazine, in an article in its June issue. The story quotes Dr. Emmitt Smith, director of teacher education for the Texas Education Agency.

Balanced training for teachers is insured, says the article, under a new state-supervised program begun in 1955. Planning for it began in 1952, long before Sputnik spotlighted education.

Under this program, no more than one-fifth of a student teacher's training may be devoted to education, or "how to teach," courses. Before that, nobody bothered officially about a balanced program.

A typical student studying to be a teacher in Texas, Smith explains, will follow a course which includes:

Two-fifths (or about 45 hours) devoted to liberal arts (social sciences, science and mathematics, the humanities, the arts, etc. Much of this includes potential subject matter material.)

One-fifth (24 hours) for specialization, or subject matter field (above the liberal arts level) in the student's major teaching field.

One-fifth (24-hours) for professional education (human development, school organization and curriculum, history and philosophy of education, and practice teaching).

One-fifth (24-hours) for electives. A student may use this to develop a second subject-matter teaching field with a minimum of 18 semester hours.

Practice teaching, which makes up six of the 24 hours allotted to professional education, involves both "how" and "what" to teach, so no more than half of it should be charged against "how to" courses.

"Critics agree with me," explains Dr. Smith, "when I say that no teacher should go into a school without knowing something of the organization of a school and its curriculum."

"And," he adds, "they agree that a teacher should have the sort of 'internship' which practice teaching provides. They just haven't realized that these are the things which the maligned 'how to teach' courses include."

Much responsibility is placed on the colleges who train teachers under the new program. State agencies exercise "open skies inspection" to keep them on the right track, assisted by people from public schools and other colleges.

Under the program, colleges must: (1) Train teachers within quality standards set by the State Board of Examiners for Teacher Education; (2) screen out unqualified students; (3) certify that the student has completed the total approved program; and (4) recommend him for certification to teach.

Before a college program is approved, a team of Texas educators visits the campus to study the program. Each term includes: a superintendent of schools, a public school teacher, a college dean, a professor of education, and a professor from an academic department such as government or mathematics.

At present, 543 separate teacher training programs in 46 senior colleges and universities in Texas are operating under temporary approval, subject to the "visiting team" re-examination, which began in eight colleges this spring. The remaining colleges will be checked by the spring of 1960.

No training program is automatically approved, and not all win approval, Smith declares. Neither does one "visit" constitute the final exam for the program; follow-ups will come periodically.

Overseeing the entire program is the State Board of Examiners for Teacher Education, first appointed in 1952. It is an advisory group of educators appointed by and responsible to the State Board of Education, a board of laymen elected by the public. The examiners include seven representatives each from colleges, school superintendents, and public school instructors.

Development of such an important program has taken time. The new teacher training standards went into effect in September, 1955, so the full effects won't be felt until the 1959 crop of "new law" teachers graduates.

The teacher shortage can be blamed in part for charges that "teachers don't know enough about what they teach," the OUTLOOK points out. State standards require that every teacher work in his major or minor subject field. But the teacher supply emergency has forced exceptions to the rules, and at times teachers must teach subjects for which they are not adequately prepared.

Governor, Traffic Experts Aiming For Lowest Death Toll Since 1949

Texas have a good chance to reduce their annual traffic death toll to the lowest figure since 1949, but only if they will continue to improve their driving as they have thus far this year.

Governor Price Daniel, chairman of the Texas Traffic Safety Council and leaders of the State's all-out highway safety crusade, has been advised by the Department of Public Safety that Texas motorists for the first 21 weeks of the year show a decrease of 117 over the same period of 1957. This represents a drop of 14 per cent.

A total of 836 traffic deaths were recorded through the 21st week of 1957, while only 719 are estimated for the same period of the present year.

And the DPS told the Governor: "If—and this is the big IF—Texas will continue to improve their driving as much as they have thus far this year, there is a possibility that motor-vehicle deaths may even fall below the 1949 total of 1,957 persons."

23 Per Cent Gain

The 1949 total was the lowest traffic toll of any year since 1945. Should the 1958 death list drop that much, the reduction would be 582 in the number of deaths, or about 23 per cent under the 1957 figure. The Governor's traffic safety campaign has set a minimum goal of 254 fewer victims than last year, or about 10 per cent.

The Governor has now named eight additional Texans to membership on the official Texas Traffic Safety Council, and they will also serve as the executive committee of the Governor's Highway Safety Commission. Members of the latter group are now being appointed and will be announced soon.

Members of the Council named by law are the Governor, who is chairman; Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., vice chairman; Attorney General Will Wilson; Dr. J. W. Edgar, state commissioner of education; State Highway Engineer, D. C. Greer; and John H. Winters, commissioner of the department of public welfare.

Other Members
The new members include Judge Olin Culberson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission; Coke Stevenson, Jr., administrator of the Texas Liquor Control Board; Miss Eudora Hawkins of Abilene, chairman of the Safety Division of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. J. M. Daniel of Bryan, state safety chairman for the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers; Bryan Collins of Austin, president of the Associated General Contractors of Texas; Fred Nahas of Houston, radio executive; Don Hill of Dallas, regional director of the National Safety Council; and J. O. (Jim) Musick of Austin, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, who will also serve as secretary of the Council.

Governor Daniel said one of the principal objectives of the program is establishment of local traffic safety councils. Since April 23, when the Governor launched the program with local meetings throughout the State, 106 new local councils have been organized.

Slow Down

Governor Daniel has also approved the 1958 "Slow Down and Live" campaign, to be staged nation-wide under sponsorship of the Association of State and Provincial Safety Coordinators. He signed a wooden cutout in the shape of the map of Texas to signify Texas' consent to national headquarters of the Association in Madison, Wisconsin. There, it became the 18th state map to be fitted into a giant jigsaw puzzle of the United States to show state participation. Musick has been State Director of the "Slow Down and Live" campaign in Texas ever since its inauguration in 1954.

This campaign features summer driving safety between the Memorial Day holiday in May and the Labor Day weekend in early September, and, of course, includes the Fourth of July. The Department of Public Safety's statistical division says the Memorial Day holiday in Texas has never taken more lives than any other ordinary day in Texas, but the Fourth of July and Labor Day weekends are among the "killer" periods of each Texas traffic year.

Once The Land Of Raw Materials, Texas Now Offers New Horizons In Manufacturing of Finished Products

If you are wearing a cotton shirt—as all Texans should—how much do you estimate the cotton grower received for the cotton which went into it?

It works out like this. From five pounds of cotton goods the shirt maker cuts about 12 shirts. A 500 pound bale of cotton brings the farmer an average of $150.

There is, of course, some loss in spinning the raw cotton into the finished cloth, yet on the basis of 12 shirts from five pounds of cloth we have 1200 shirts from a 500 pound bale of cotton.

If we generously allow a full 50 per cent loss in spinning and for the weight of starch and other filler materials we still have a total of 600 shirts from a bale of cotton.

600 shirts at $2.00 each—$1,200
600 shirts at $3.00 each—$1,800
600 shirts at $4.00 each—$2,400

Between the $150 bale of cotton and the $1,200 to $2,400 finally paid for the shirts there is a vast amount of labor, selling packaging and distribution cost. The raw cotton must be cleaned, carded, spun and woven. Then it must be bleached, dyed, printed and finished before it is ready for the shirt manufacturer who must employ designers, a vast array of costly machinery, and considerable labor, both skilled and semi-skilled. While no one engaged in the process of turning raw material into the end product may make more than a fair profit, it does appear that the people who participate in finishing cotton into an end product fare better than the farmer who gets $150 a bale.

The big point is—the shirt as it finally reaches Mr. Texan's bedroom where he patiently extracts 29 pins and puts it on for the first time, means much more to Texans if it is made here, from Texas raised cotton, and finished and sold to the enterprise which produces the end product. Corn in its raw state, as the farmer sells it, brings around $2 a bushel. The same corn processed into breakfast food, packed in a handsome, four-color package, complete with recipes, and containing a "fascinating gift for the children," brings $16 for the same number of pounds as in the original bushel of corn. Here again, no one makes an unfair or exorbitant profit from the sales of dry cereal breakfast food—the point is, the cost of processing the corn, and the labor which goes into it, the money spent for packaging and distribution may be earned a thousand miles from the corn field.

Says a Texas druggist, "I can throw a rock from my store into a cotton patch. I sell surgical cotton for 20 cents a ounce, or $3.20 a pound. The cotton raised a stone's throw from my store brings the farmer 20 to 30 cents a pound, depending upon the grade, staple and color."

In other words, the grower receives 30 cents a pound for cotton, which when it is cleaned, sterilized and packaged brings $3.20 a pound, leaving $2.90 and retailing costs. The more of these costs we can hold here in Texas the more prosperous we are bound to be.

We need only to consider the world's famous raw material economies: the Pacific basin countries with their raw rubber, copra, hemp, sisal—Africa, India; Australia—with raw wool. And we find backward, poverty-stricken people, all because they have been unable to process their raw materials into end products. European processors and manufacturers grew rich from the low-priced raw materials of their colonies.

The list of Texas products now packaged, advertised and sold under brand identification is growing rapidly. Texas pecans were once sold only in their shells, with the shelling and packing industry concentrated in St. Louis and Chicago. Today a number of progressive companies are shelling, salting, and packaging pecans in consumer-size units, and building a steady, year-round demand for the nutritious meats.

We used to say, about pecans, that one year they were so low-priced no one could afford to gather them, and the following year, so high priced no one could afford to use them. The price fluctuations were so great that the big users of pecan meats, the candy, baking and confectionary industries found it difficult to produce pecan products steadily.

Although Texas bakers and candy factories have always used some pecans it remained for the New Orleans praline factories and the famed DeMet's of Chicago to prove pecan candy could be sold nationally, on a year-round basis. Today pecan candy is a growing item for Texas manufacturers, but it still remains for somebody to produce a pecan-candy bar that will rival the Hershey chocolate-almond bar in sales volume.

The list of products to be made from Texas raw materials is endless. In certain of the hill countries the natives have always processed small quantities of charcoal. With the risk of back yard barbecuing the demand for charcoal has brought charcoal lumps and briquets to Texas from Arkansas and as far away as Mt. Clemens, Michigan. In 1957 a cotton ginners at Lockhart organized a company to produce charcoal lumps and briquets on a mass production

CAN WE STAND THE DRAIN?

No state problem looms so great, yet in no state problem is the solution more evident than in that of traffic accidents and congestion. While scientific research forges tirelessly in search of preventatives and cures for cancer, heart disease and other dread killers, progress is comparatively slow in controlling traffic accidents — where oddly enough, more knowledge is available.

We know many of the facts. We have already developed the "vaccines" which will protect us from much traffic tragedy and strangulation of traffic movement.

It is understandable that the public's heart goes out to victims of disease and that the public supports national fund-raising campaigns, contributing millions of dollars to scientific research for prevention and for care of those struck down by the diseases. But why does the same public remain relatively apathetic to traffic—accepting death and injury with a fatalistic attitude?

No one has the complete answer. Yet the solution is at hand. Tested and proven methods have been used successfully in many communities and often the results have been immediately apparent.

Community support for rigid traffic control, traffic engineering, public education, efficient traffic courts, active safety councils with a local program geared to a statewide campaign (such as those conducted by the Texas Safety Association) or national movement (National Safety Council). These are the "vaccines" for traffic protection.

Locally, or on a statewide basis, we cannot endure the annual drain on our manpower and resources exacted each year by traffic accidents and congestion. More than 122,000 injuries, 2,539 lives and the staggering cost of over $277,000,000, not to mention the untold misery and suffering left in the wake of traffic smash-ups, are too much to endure.

There is not one among us who can honestly say to himself: "There's nothing I can do." There is plenty we can do! and must do!

We cannot stay out of it and we cannot be undecided—as an individual or a city. If we don't become part of the solution, we are part of the problem! There is no other choice.

HEAD FELT PROBLEM

Not long ago a farm weekly posed for its readers that question which seems to disturb so many people: What can be done with old felt hats, short of throwing them away? Readers on the distaff side responded with a bevy of suggestions.

One woman cuts old felt hats into such shapes as animals, flowers, and so on, sews safety pins to the bits and uses them for lapel ornaments. Old felt hats are transformed into rugs in some households; in others they become covers for chair backs and arms. One grandmother fashioned booties for the latest arrival.

It all sounds mighty ingenious. But shucks, ladies, we don't worry about what to do with our old felt hat. We just put it on and go fishin'.

MEMO TO A BOY

This is a note to the boy—he was 15 or 16, perhaps—who whizzed through an intersection on a motor scooter a few days ago and almost shook hands with death. The boy won't remember the incident; he is not even aware that there was an incident.

A ball game on the corner lot had caught the boy's attention, and his head was turned to the right as his fast little scooter entered the cross street. He didn't see the car bearing down, a bit too fast, on his left; he didn't see it skid to a jarring stop. He didn't even hear the screech of tires, because just then someone made a hit and the yells from the ball game were all he heard.

That boy is alive today, but not thanks to his alertness. We say to him, and to all the others who love the sensation of zipping along on motorized wheels: Look both ways at the intersections. You're too young to shake hands with death.

No use fighting it, men—sacks appeal to women as an aid to sex appeal.

A hot war is a war between nations. A cold war is a war between notions.

Earliest Cotton Is Of Best Quality Texas Safety Association Urges

South Plains farmers who want to produce quality cotton this year are being urged to produce early cotton.

Cotton authorities generally agree that the earliest cotton is the best cotton and makes the best grades, paying off for the farmer who makes the effort to produce it.

Texas cotton buyers say that there is an opportunity this year for farmers to get the highest premiums ever for cotton of good grades in all staple lengths because of a national shortage of the better grades.

Being boosted as a primary step—and one of the first ones—in the production of early cotton is early season insect control, proved as effective for many years by Texas insect researchers.

Results of research at the Lubbock Experiment Station show that early insect control pays off in added production and added dollars to South Plains farmers.

The South Plains program for quality cotton production, backed by all segments of the industry, calls early season insect control a key factor.

Thrips and fleahoppers, the insects which usually bother

Butler is first mentioned in the Bible in the Book of Genesis.

Vegetables related to the cabbage include kale, cauliflower, broccoli and Brussels sprouts.

Coffee is about 2 per cent caffeine, tea from 2 to 2.5 per cent.

Bermuda grass thrives best in the extreme South.

South Plains cotton in the early part of the season, can be effectively controlled and such control will usually result in better grades of cotton.

Failure to control these insects may delay the maturity of the crop by a period of from two weeks to a month.

STRENGTH FOR THE WEEK

Matt. 24:35—"Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

God's Word stands secure—men may fail to receive—Many refuse to believe—But God's eternal truths stand. Like the laws of nature: Man cannot break the laws of nature—he may run afoul of God's laws and be broken on them—but he cannot break nor change God's eternal laws.

Men may try to hide from the facts presented in God's laws—but that does not change the law. And man will be judged of God according to the way man has obeyed or refused to obey God's law—whether that man is a church member or a person who will have nothing to do with the church. God's laws are for God's creatures. These laws are not to deny man any good thing—but rather to teach man how to live with himself and his fellow beings.

Jesus himself said that he came not to judge the world but to save the world. John 12: 47 Jesus came that man might have life even more abundantly—John 10:10.

Guilt causes men to try to hide from God and the responsibilities God has imposed upon them. But when man will try to be the creature God intended that he should be—God

"With the automatic timer and perfect heat control, I can always count on baking eighteen perfect cakes from my double oven every time."

"I have baked over 4,000 pounds of cake in my electric range and not a single failure."

"Even after baking over 4000 pounds of cake, I still get a thrill when I take eighteen "just right" cakes from my ELECTRIC double oven!"
says Mrs. John Ward, 1907 W. 6th St., Plainview, Texas

"My double oven electric range turned my hobby into a business — thanks to the controlled heat in the ovens. The ovens are a big help in my baking business, but I use them for family meals, too. I can bake one dish at a low temperature while I'm baking bread at a higher temperature in the other oven. Incidentally, I used the first profits from my cakes to pay for my new electric range. Now they're put aside for a college educational fund for our children."

"For years I had the false impression that cooking electrically was a slower process, but my electric range proved to me just how wrong I was. One wonderful feature of cooking electrically is that it cooks clean. Pots and pans don't get that "burned-on" look and the range itself is so very easily cleaned. I like my electric range because it is fast, clean, thrifty and dependable. In fact, I like everything about it. The deep well has so many uses from baking potatoes to making pots of soup."

Have you had your free demonstration of the electric range of your choice? If not, see your Ruddy Kilowatt dealer and get your certificate for two free bug lamps. Yellow bug lamps, which fit ordinary sockets, eliminate most of the light that insects see, yet provide a soft, comfortable light for outdoor living.

Cherie Arrants Marries Leroy Poer in Church Rites

Miss Cherie Arrants, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Arrants, became the bride of Leroy Poer in a double ring ceremony read in First Methodist Church Friday at 5:30 p.m.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Poer. The Rev. James B. Sharp officiated at the service before an archway of cathedral tapers with a background of emerald fern trees and baskets of white peonies.

Mrs. Webber Williams, organist, played traditional wedding music and accompanied Mrs. M. G. Davis as she sang "Because," "At Dawning" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was wearing a gown of diamond white imported Swiss organdy. Designed with low neckline outlined with applied motifs of organdy, the gentle dropped waistline had de-mure embroidered short sleeves complemented by gloves. A waltz-length buffant skirt was accented by a flowing tunic over a lower ruffled pouf of Swiss organdy.

Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was joined to a plateau-type cap covered with orange blossoms. She carried a crest of white rosebuds centered with a white orchid and streamers of white satin ribbon and Stephanotis.

Miss Barbara Arrants was her sister's maid of honor. She was dressed in an apricot colored dress of nylon chiffon over taffeta. Fashioned with a Sabrina neck line that dipped to a bow, back draped with folds of chiffon, the molded bodice had tiny shirred short sleeves and terminated with crushed cummerbund. Joining this was a waltz-length skirt, fully shirred, over layers of net and taffeta. A small hat held a circular veil. She carried a nosegay of Princess Pat Roses.

Beverly Arrants, also a sister of the bride, was a junior bridesmaid. She was dressed in mint green nylon organdy designed with a low neckline and a fitted bodice that was accented with a crushed sash that held a bustle bow in back. She carried a basket of yellow rosebuds.

Charles Poer, brother of the groom, served as best man while Lee Ham and Jerry Don Ross were ushers.

At the reception which followed in the home of the bride's parents, Misses Susanne Neill, Betty Haliburton, Paulette Dowell, Sharon Smith, Kathy Smith, Sandra Wells, Dixie Clark, Martha McCormick, Dorothy Heaton and Pam Maxey, comprised the houseparty.

Yellow punch and a double ring cake were served from a table laid with a Home-Irish linen cutwork cloth, centered with an arrangement of yellow calla lilies and candy tuft in a silver bowl. Silver candleholders with yellow tapers and a silver punch bowl completed the table appointments.

When the couple left for a trip to Ruidoso, New Mexico, the bride was wearing a blue silk sheath dress, white accessories and a white orchid.

Southland Woman Tells of Recent Flight To Holy Land

(The following is an account in brief, written by Mrs. G. W. Basinger of Southland, Texas, who along with a group of 22 other persons, has just returned from a 30-day tour of the Bible Lands.)

Five persons from New Mexico joined me at Lubbock on April 7, 1958, from where we left by plane for New York. The rest of the group of 22 joined us in New York. Of the total, 19 were Baptists and three were Methodists, with 6 Baptist preachers, and one Methodist preacher and his wife.

New York was great; we saw the Dave Garroway show and hoped that some of the people in Southland and nearby towns were peeping in and saw us. On Tuesday, April 8, we left New York for Paris, France, and the beginning of our air tour of Europe and the Middle East. We were flying at 21,000 feet at 350 mph in a Super Starliner Constellation. It was very modern and comfortable, and we had supper and breakfast on the plane before we landed in Paris. The flight took 9 hours over the Atlantic.

The 9th of April we landed in Paris, France, and by the first of the week, planned to be in Egypt. Our tour covered some timely spots in the European continent, and the land of the Bible, including the area of St. Paul's Missionary work.

Surely every Christian longs to walk where Jesus Christ walked and visit the actual sites of His birth and earthly life. I had never dared to dream of such an opportunity, a tour of the Bible Lands, until a few months ago.

The party paused at Mars Hill, the scene of much of St. Paul's preaching to hear Rev. Wayland Boyd, of Crosbyton deliver a sermon in that historic spot.

Saturday afternoon, April 12, we flew to Athens, Greece, where Paul did missionary work at Mars Hill. Paul preached his great sermon on the unknown God in this exact spot. Monday we drove to Corinth where Paul preached extensively and established the church of Corinth.

Rev. Wayland Boyd of Crosbyton, Texas, preached on Mars Hill. We all sat on the side of the hill, and were deeply impressed with the wonderful sermon he brought. Monday evening we flew to Cairo, Egypt and visited the Land of Goshen, where the Hebrews were in bondage for 400 years.

At the First Baptist Church there, we had a wonderful welcome, and the message was dedicated to our group. They had us sing some of our songs for them, and we enjoyed it very much.

Our stay in Beirut, Lebanon, was restful and good. After Egypt, it was a paradise. Coming from Cairo, we flew east and south to the Suez Canal, across the Gulf of Suez, which is a branch of the Red Sea, and then flew over the wilderness of Mount Sinai, where Moses received the law. We went on to the Gulf of Aqaba and turned north to Jordan, then to Israel. Arabia and Jordan are all on the Gulf from Jordan in Lebanon. At Egypt, we landed at Ammon, the capital of Jordan. We then flew north from Ammon to Damascus, and west to Beirut to avoid touching or flying over Israel. While there, an incident occurred near Tyre, which kept us from visiting in the area.

Beirut is on the lovely blue Mediterranean Sea. We stayed there three nights. We drove into the hills overlooking the city and were thrilled at the beautiful city by the sea. From the hill we saw several snow-capped peaks far away in the hills. The groves of the Cedars of Lebanon were beautiful, and the streets were filled with new American cars. We then went to Jerusalem and spent a week there sightseeing. On Sunday we went to worship at Calvary and the empty tomb.

Rome and Grey Airport in Paris: First we went to the Grande Hotel De Louvre, near the world famous Museum Louvre. There were four million busy people in Paris. They are little people and seem to be in an awful hurry. We found them friendly and helpful in lightening our load, especially in the exchange of tourist money.

The hotel was fine, but it rained all the time we were there. The food was on the dreary side—tough roast beef and hard bread, but it was exciting. There was much to see. It was awful cold while we were there, and little cars raced up and down narrow, twisted streets. We saw the Eiffel Tower, and Paris from the Tower which is over 550 feet high. The next day we went to St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome, where we saw the Pope bless the people. Our impression was it helped but little. We saw the statue of Peter that has been venerated by kissing and touching until his bronze toe is kissed away. The church is huge, monstrous and cavernous. We saw the ruins of Rome, but all the pomp and glory is gone. Broken columns mark the grave of lost glory. The Mamertine prison in which the mighty Paul was kept and from which he evangelized Rome, was a cold, dark cell, but it produced some gems.

Cairo: This is where we had a camel ride. My driver was very thoughtful, especially begging for a tip. I tipped him and they sang, "The camels are coming," and shouted "Hi-Ho, Silver!" The Muslims are fasting for a month—they eat before sun-up and after the sun goes down. We were all on a sailboat on the Nile River when the gun sounded at dusk; they grabbed their lunch, ate a few bites, and began singing again.

We visited the Mission Field of Old Asia Minor and then on to Vienna, Austria, and sightseeing in Vienna. From there we went to Brussels, Belgium, for the World's Fair, where Mrs. Collier from Crosbyton and I took in the Fair. It rained all day, but we kept a log, as we did not want to miss anything. The nights were beautiful with lights of all colors

The Atomium at the World's Fair at Brussels, Belgium where displays of all kinds of appliances from all over the world are housed. A restaurant is in the top dome reached by an elevator.

The Atomium at the Fair was a beautiful sight. Mrs. Collier, Mrs. Owens and I visited it. You reach the top by elevator and the sides by escalator. There is a restaurant in the top, and displays throughout of appliances from different U.S. and European manufacturers. It was very interesting.

After visiting the Fair, we left on May 9 for New York. We were 14 hours crossing the Atlantic Ocean. We had a storm with winds 100 miles an hour, and had to fly around it taking 14 hours coming home.

We arrived in Lubbock at 4:17 p.m., Saturday, May 10, and were all glad to be back in America.

Luncheon Meeting Closes Club Year

A luncheon in the home of Mrs. E. R. Legg last Wednesday was the final meeting of the club year for the Civic and Culture Club.

Nineteen members and one guest were seated at the long dining table and at quartet tables on the split-level screened-in porch. Spring flowers were used in profusion throughout the house and centered each of the tables.
