Lubbock Business Man Endorses Orgatone

"I'm Grateful for the Health and Happiness it has Brought to my Home."

"I'm one of the happiest men in Texas today and I just want to tell my friends what Orgatone has done for my wife," said Mr. J. T. South of 1613 Sixteenth Street, Lubbock, Texas, who owns and operates the J. T. South Gin Company.

"She has suffered so for the past fifteen years," he continued, "with stomach trouble and indigestion that we had almost given up hope. She had very little appetite and what food she did eat would stay in her stomach and make gas and misery for her. Her nerves went all to pieces, and she got weak and run-down and would have to lie down and rest during the day while trying to do her housework. She was very restless and could hardly sleep, lost weight and felt despondent and down hearted all the time. Her liver was in a bad condition and she never found any kind of medicine that would give her much relief until we found Orgatone.

"She is getting wonderful results and we both think Orgatone is the best medicine in the world. Her stomach trouble and indigestion is a thing of the past now and she has such a big appetite that she can hardly get enough to eat. She sleeps good every night and is enjoying life better than she had been in a long time. I'm certainly grateful for the happiness Orgatone has brought to my home by restoring my wife's health. I honestly believe it will help anybody."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Slaton by the Teague Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

Prize Winners in Lubbock County Yard Contest

Mrs. J. C. Stanford, of the South West Ward community, won first place in the Lubbock County Yard Contest. She will receive as a reward from the local Chamber of Commerce, $10 worth of trees, shrubbery or hedges, which will be delivered in the early spring.

Mrs. E. R. Davis, of Acuff, won second place and will receive $5 worth of shrubs. Mrs. R. O. Moore, of Acuff, won third place and will receive $2.50 worth of shrubs.

The five contestants scoring next high are Mrs. V. L. Cade of Union, Mrs. O. F. Corley, of Wolffarth, Mrs. Bryan Landers, of Wolffarth, Mrs. Joe Coleman, of Woodrow, and Mrs. R. M. Middleton, of Hardy. These will all receive $1 worth of shrubs for their yards.

In addition to these prizes, Mr. D. L. Jones, of the Experiment station, has offered an Arizona Cypress tree to the one in each community making the best score on their yard. These trees will go to Mrs. Earl Davis, of Acuff, Mrs. R. M. Middleton, of Hardy, Mrs. A. G. Jones of Carlisle, Mrs. O. F. Corley of Wolffarth, Mrs. Joe Coleman of Woodrow, Mrs. J. M. Savage of Slaton, Mrs. V. L. Cade of Union, and Mrs. J. C. Stanford, of South West Ward. Each of these contestants who received trees will be expected to take care of them so that they will be a permanent addition to their home and to their community. This is also to serve as a start toward the improvement of their home grounds to act as an incentive for adding others later.

The contest was launched in the early spring and the yards were judged first in February by Mr. Richard Center and Mr. Ike Walker, who are specializing in horticulture. At this time there were 22 contestants. In spite of the dry year and many discouragements, 17 of the contestants stayed in the contest and made some improvements.

The records show that there were 106 trees planted, mostly Chinese Elms; 60 Evergreens, 127 shrubs of various kinds, 47 vines planted, 4 yards sodded in Bermuda grass, 6 tamerix windbreaks, besides a large number of tamerix group plantings and screens, and a large number of annual flowers which were not estimated.

ated. 2 rose trellises, 1 pergola, 1 lily pond, 1 swing, 1 hammock, 2 new gates besides a number of gates mended and 4 walks. Several lengths of hose and 1 lawn mower were added to the equipment.

In speaking of her work, Mrs. Stanford says she has never done anything that has brought her so much pleasure as the improving of her yard, and especially the grass. Mrs. Bryan Landers says, "A place where there is not a tree, flower or shrub or anything, is the most lonesome looking thing in the world to me. The plains could have the most beautiful homes of any place, with the right kind of work and planning." Mrs. R. M. Middleton says, "My family and I feel well repaid for our hard work and difficulties in the improvement of our yard."

These contestants will continue their work in improvement that they have started this year, and will act as special demonstrators, working directly under the supervision of the Extension service, and the Experiment Station. A wide yard improvement campaign will be carried on through the clubs, with the object of improving every home, in some way, next year. The cooperation of the County Federation of Woman's Clubs has been offered and with this help, there should be a noticeable improvement during 1930.

CRIME FIGHTERS READY AS "REBELS" THREATEN

"Come up here quick! The Mexican rebel army has just marched into town and is shooting up the district."

This information over the telephone in the excited voice of a resident of Hollywood, Cal., started the Hollywood police in a siren-screaming pursuit of the suspected rebels.

A barrage of rifle shots, shattering the stillness of the Hollywood night, and the blare of a brass band playing a martial air produced the illusion of an enemy invasion. The arms of the law discovered, however, that the noise was produced at the Paramount moving picture studio where scenes of the Boxer rebellion in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," the famous Sax Rohmer story, which will appear, all talking, on the Palace Theatre screen week, were being made.

COLDEST SPOT IN WORLD IS BEING ESTABLISHED N AMARILLO

"The coldest spot in the world" will soon be in existence near Amarillo where the United States is constructing a helium gas plant to supply its dirigible with a non-explosive gas. The process by which helium is extracted from natural gas is by cooling it to 300 degrees below zero, when all the elements in the gas except helium are liquefied, permitting helium to be drawn off from the residue.

At 300 degrees below zero, helium will be liquid, carbon dioxide and methane will be solids, lead and copper like steel and rubber will be as brittle as glass.

The Public's Business

The old dictum that "the laborer is worthy of his hire" has become an economic principle, applicable to capital as well as to labor.

The public's dependence upon electric light and power makes the stability of these companies mandatory upon the companies and of first importance to the public itself. The prosperity of any community and of the electric light and power company serving it go hand in hand.

The electric power companies of America have built their business on the firm and broad foundation of keeping costs to consumers down and service up. Through the application of invention and economies of operation, they have been able to effect material savings which have been shared with the public to attract new business.

In the life of today, the electric light and power business is more than a corporate abstraction. It is the very root of a new system of national economy whose fruits we know to be less toil, more comfort; less confinement, more leisure; less poverty, more wealth created and distributed to lift the level of living for all people.

We Never Expect HARD LUCK

THE ATHLETICS WIN THE WORLD SERIES

Some series, everyone talking about it. Just how did it happen, the boys can tell you. The dope bucket simply got spilled and the colors mixed. Connie Mack, with his team, is to be congratulated. The four games lead one to say the Athletics were just a little the better team. With Ehmkke taking the first dip in the bucket and winning clean, how about the strike outs by the old boy. Connie must have had a hunch, maybe saved him for this event as he had practically been on the bench all season, anyway, he made good. Ten runs in one inning, coming from nothing to score the ten. Fans, did you ever hear of such a performance, especially in a National series. Well, as they say, the breaks were with the Athletics, but don't forget the bats of the A's did the work.

The game, Monday, looked as though the Cubs were setting pretty, with a lead of two, and the A's each inning not scoring, but along in the last half of the ninth, they commenced to swat. French batted for Walberg, and French fanned; Bishop next up; got a base hit, safe at first; Haas did the turn, just a homer over the right field fence, scoring Bishop ahead of him; this tied the score 2-2. Cochrane up, and out at first; Simmons hit a two bagger; of course they walked Jimmie Fox; Miller up, hit into center field and Simmons scored on the hit. The story ends, Athletics won 3-2.

Fine autumn weather for playing, even President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover and others were there for the event. Great sport, baseball. The dopsters will give you all the fine points of the game, as they gather around the hot stove league.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

ROTARY HIGH SPOTS.

The past week being observed over the nation, as Fire Prevention Week, the program of the Rotary Club was given over to the discussion of our needs and how best to obtain them.

The Club was fortunate in having Mayor Reese, Fire Marshal, Tom Abel, Fire Chief Woolever and L. E. Hicks, with them for the occasion. Chief Woolever made the run alone, made the hydrant coupling, put on a Y, had two lines laid, mounting the ladder with two streams on the figurative conflagration, and in a jiffy it was out. Chief Woolever stated one of the worst hazards was that of placing pennies in the fuse box. If the people could have heard his talk on this point they would think twice before making pennies a substitute for perfect fuses. He made a statement that the fire boys had a sack full of pennies at the fire station, we wondered just why these were not placed in circulation, of course, somewhere we have heard of a game they call penny ante, just what the fine points might be we are not advised, of course no reflection is cast on the fire laddies, we suspect they are keepsakes, each one bearing a label other than that of United States of America. Slaton is indeed fortunate in having a Fire Department that is proficient, with an equipment that is a pride to the City and a quota of boys who just know how to fight fires and are always there on time. The program was enjoyable, Floyd Rector discussed the fire insurance phase, and Floyd always gives you food for thought. Slaton has an enviable record, and they are striving to report a lower key rate for the future. Supt. Green promised a hearty co-operation of the schools with the Fire Department, in that fire drills would be maintained in all the schools, thus assisting in keeping the good record Slaton now is fortunate in having.

We still miss the smiling countenance of some of Rotary's members, just too bad we cannot fix the 100 percent firmly in our minds. W. H. (Bill) Smith, returned from a vacation, full of pep, opened the meeting on time and closed on time, no allowance for variations. Glad to see you back, Bill.

Reliability of new Ford as important as beauty, speed, safety and comfort

YOU are buying proved performance when you buy the new Ford. You know exactly what it will do. There is nothing of an experiment about it.

Letters from users show a delivered value far beyond expectations. Almost without exception they stress reliability. You sense a feeling of sincere pride in the oft-repeated phrase—"Let me tell you what my new Ford did."

A well-known tire company, solely to test tires, drove a new Ford more than 90,000 miles in six months. Throughout that time, the car was run day and night, an average of twenty-two hours out of every twenty-four. The entire cost of repair parts was only $38 for the entire 90,000 miles.

Another tire company, making a similar test, drove the new Ford more than 80,000 miles in a short period, at a cost per mile that was fully 60% less than any figure it had previously known.

One of the first of the new Fords was driven from Dearborn, Michigan, to Los Angeles to San Francisco to New York and back to Dearborn—a distance of of 8328 miles—in twenty-one days. Through ice and sleet, up mountain peaks, through desert sands, over macadam and deeply rutted dirt roads, it traveled at an average speed of 40.9 miles an hour.

Practically a year of average driving was done in three weeks, yet the entire trip was made without the need of a single major adjustment or repair.

Another new Ford, as a test of hill-climbing, was driven from San Bernardino, California, over the National Old Trails and Swartout Valley Highway, to the Big Pines Recreation Camp. The entire 36.2 miles were made in high gear—a particularly severe test because of the sharp turns and a stretch of 5.7 miles where the grade rises precipitously from 3000 to 6075 feet.

An example of the stamina and performance of the new Ford was shown in the ascent of Ben Nevis, the highest mountain in Great Britain. This extremely difficult and dangerous climb was made over rock-strewn, almost impassable mountain trails.

Other incidents are even more dramatic. A letter from the East tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield of the new Ford prevented injuries from flying glass when the car was forced off the road into a telegraph pole. A news-reel photographer tells how the brakes on the new Ford saved his life when, speeding through a blizzard to film a shipwreck, he found himself suddenly on the very edge of a 50-foot cliff. From a far western state a husband and father writes gratefully to tell how the sturdiness of the new Ford "saved the lives of my family" when the car was struck by a hit-and-run driver.

Come in—see the new Ford car—and drive it yourself through thickest traffic, up steepest hills, over roughest roads. You will know then that it is an unusual value at a low price.

 - Phacton, $460
 - Business Coupe, $525
 - Fordor Sedan, $625
- (All prices f. o. b. Detroit, plus charge for freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra.)

Long, low and fleet are the lines and strikingly beautiful the colors of the new Fordor Sedan. Richly appointed throughout, in the manner of a custom-built car. An exceptionally comfortable car because of the new transverse springs, Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers and the generous space provided in front and rear compartments.

If you've bunions on your shin—
It's your tonsils!
If your hair is falling out,
If you're suffering from the gout,
If you're getting too darn stout—
It's your adenoids!
If your dome is turning gray,
And you can't eat bales of hay,
If you're failing day by day—
It's your teeth!
Pain in thumb or ache in toe,
When to "Doc" you sadly go,
He will say his little piece—
"Tonsils, adenoids, or your teeth!"

PREVENT FIRES!

Annual Fire Prevention Week, which has just closed, was in a way a commemoration of the great Chicago Fire of 1871, for it was on October 8, 1871 that Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a lantern and started a conflagration which raged two days and nights, killing 250 persons and destroying $195,000,000 worth of property.

Since 1926, those sponsoring Fire Prevention Week disclose, there have been diminishing fire losses. Nevertheless, in the last year for which statistics are available, 1926, ten thousand persons were killed and property worth nearly half a billion was destroyed by fires in the United States.

Most of these fires were preventable. It is said ninety per cent of the deaths and destruction were avoidable. It is up to every citizen to keep in mind always the necessity for constant watchfulness and care to prevent fires. The penalty of neglect in this respect is heavy indeed.

MACDONALD—A PEACE PROPHET.

Ramsay MacDonald's visit to the United States is important for many reasons—but perhaps most important because he comes as a messenger of peace, with the intention of hastening the world-wide peace movement. When Armistice Day comes this year, the outlook for world peace, we hope, will be much brighter because of MacDonald's visit.

We have made many sacrifices for war, says MacDonald—why not make some sacrifices for peace? These words are noble and beautiful. They point at a new era of international understanding, and loving-kindness the world over.

This apostle of peace—this good will messenger from Great Britain—comes not as a Prince or a King to these shores, but as simple Ramsay MacDonald, son of a Scottish farm laborer. When Hoover and MacDonald speak, two men speak who have risen from poverty to great leadership, two men who have treasured and never abandoned the simple, sincere manners of their origins. Let us hope the accomplishment of these two figures, acting in friendship and cooperation, is great indeed.

LINEMEN COUNT.

Football days. What a thrill one can get watching a fast back race with the ball around the end, or a shifty end scoop a long pass out of the air and race across the goal line for a touchdown.

It is these ball carriers who always win our applause, and mighty important they are, too. But how often do any of us stop to realize that their sensational work is made possible only through teamwork, co-operation, and the hard plugging of the men in the line.

The fastest backfield in the world can do little if there are no strong guards, or powerful tackles to hold the line and give them time to get started. The greatest open field runner can be stopped in his tracks without good interference or support from other members of the team whose names appear but little in headlines.

Real sports fans know this to be true in football. Careful observers

Coming

THE MYSTERIOUS DR. FU MANCHU

know it to be true throughout life.

The good work of an organization, a club, or a community depends not alone upon the activities of its leaders whose work attracts public attention, but upon the loyal support they receive from linemen—the fellows who work hard on committees, who are always ready to give help for the sake of the cause rather than for the publicity to be secured.

Slaton, like all other towns, needs more linemen, fellows who are ready to run interference for the others, who are satisfied to stand in the background and give their whole-hearted support and help.

Just as a few sports followers recognize the value of linemen, so a few citizens will give credit to those whose activities lead not to publicity. The opinion of these intelligent persons is all that really counts after all.

INVESTMENTS IN GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

The future of Slaton is dependent upon the young people of today. Their character, vision, and enthusiasm for the city will determine largely the kind of a town we will have in ten or twenty years.

Keeping the boys and girls of high school age "sold" upon the excellence of our community as a place in which to maintain a permanent home is a job of no small importance.

It is in this respect that the community derives great benefit from recreational activities. Boys and girls judge a town entirely by the opportunities it affords for a good time. If it has a good football team, and we have, or a basketball five that earns loyal support, then they find the community a satisfactory place in which to live.

This, of course, is only one argument in favor of wholesome recreation here in Slaton. There are others that are too well known to our citizens to require elaboration. The character of a boy or a girl is formed largely by the use to which leisure time is devoted. If it goes for sports or the type of recreation that demands mental alertness, then one may be sure that the individual will develop into a good citizen.

We have no definite program to offer. But we feel that our service clubs and other organizations might well give the subject careful consideration. Every effort and enterprise advanced to bring wholesome entertainment to Slaton is an investment in good citizenship.

East Ward P. T. A. In Business Meet

The East Ward P. T. A. met Thursday, Oct. 10th, in regular session. No program was given but the time was pleasantly and profitably spent in business.

Everyone was in high spirits as it was the first day's report on our membership drive. There was much friendly rivalry, but the "Twos" landed the victory by one member.

Everyone regretted to give up Mrs. Porterfield, our efficient dietitian, who is leaving Slaton. But her resignation was accepted and Mrs. Gassaway was elected to take her place for the term.

"The Flight of the Zep" on the night of Oct. 25th, will be an evening of merriment for our members and friends. There will be a charge of 10c and 25c. Be sure and come.

Big Producing Cows Require Extra Care

Need Longer Rest and Careful Feeding in Dry Period.

Rations and feeding practices suitable for dry cows depend somewhat on the condition of such cows at the close of their lactation periods.

In the process of selection and breeding, a great many cows are so persistent in producing large quantities of milk that it is practically impossible to keep them in good flesh during the entire lactation period. This means that they are in poor condition at the close of the lactation period.

Practical dairymen are agreed that such cows must have from six to eight weeks of rest following each lactation if they are to produce large quantities of milk year after year. The feeding of such cows during the dry period should be such as to enable them to regain the losses sustained in the previous lactation and before the onset of the demands of the succeeding lactation.

In making rations for cows in milk, the roughage to be fed is the basis on which to compound grain mixtures. The condition of the individual cows governs the amount of grain to be fed. The needs of dry cows on good pasture are very easily met by a simple mixture composed of 300 pounds ground corn or ground barley or hominy feed, 300 pounds ground oats, 200 pounds bran, and 100 pounds linseed meal.

In winter feeding with silage and alfalfa hay available, the addition of 50 pounds of the linseed meal to the mixture given is satisfactory. For silage and other legume hay, add 100 pounds more of the linseed meal. Silage and mixed hay should have the protein content of the grain mixture still further increased by the addition of 75 pounds linseed meal to the amount given for silage and legume hay, the total amount being 275 lbs.

GOVERNMENT WARNS FARMERS TO GO SLOW IN PLANTING WHEAT

Go cautiously in planting wheat, is the advice of the government to farmers.

Last year the government issued a similar warning in regard to potatoes. The Department of Agriculture says that in view of the general tendency for the expansion of acreage in the principal exporting countries, it seems doubtful whether prices of wheat in world markets in the next few years will average much above the levels of the past six years. That is, unless unfavorable conditions result in a series of unusually low yields.

Last year the warning in regard to potatoes wasn't heeded and serious overproduction ruined prices and left field upon field unharvested.

With the Federal Farm Board in action, and a great national cooperative being set up for the wheat interests, growers generally are to see better days ahead and the warning will be widely problematical.

The government warns that may not so auspiciously be next year. The late drought somewhat the Winter wheat seriously cut into the yield in the United States, Australia and Argentina.

United States farmers must meet in the future competition in export markets Canada, Australia and Argentina.

WHEN CHILDREN Need a Laxative

"We have used Theford's Black-Draught in our family for nineteen years. I have found it of great help in raising my family.
"I have given it to all six of my children. Whenever they complain of upset stomach, or begin to look pale and sickly, I make a tea of Black-Draught and begin giving it to them. In a day or two they are all right.
"I give it to them for constipation, and my husband and I both take it. I always give it for colds in winter, for I believe a way to prevent them is to keep the system clean."

MRS. J. A. HIGHTOWER WAS HOSTESS TUESDAY

The Tuesday Bridge Club was entertained this week by Mrs. J. A. Hightower, 855 South 10th St.

All club members were present and after five games of bridge a two course luncheon was served.

Mrs. Hightower was assisted by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. G. W. Shanks.

MRS. L. L. STONE ENTERTAINS WITH APRON-OVERALL PARTY

Mrs. L. L. Stone entertained with an apron and overall party Friday afternoon, at her home in west Slaton, half the guests being attired in sunbonnets and aprons, and the rest in overalls.

After partners were chosen by matching garden tool suckers, Mrs. Stone led the way to the "barn" where bridge was played on the straw. The guests were given kid names for the afternoon, and for each name miscalled a forfeit was paid from the individual's bag of peanuts. Mrs. D. L. Badgley and Mrs. J. K. Rogers won the prize by finishing with the most peanuts. There were sixteen guests, as follows: Meses. J. H. Brewer, P. A. Minor, K. C. Scott, Fred Englund, C. L. Pack, K. L. Scudder, R. W. Ragsdale, Tom Overby, Kirby Brown, D. L. Badgley, C. E. Porter, Roy Cobb, S. A. Peavy, J. K. Rogers, and Miss Elizabeth Smith.

WEDNESDAY STUDY CLUB HAS INTERESTING MEETING

The regular meeting October 16, was well attended and a very interesting program enjoyed.

The hostess was Mrs. Scudder; leader, Mrs. Badgley.

Roll call consisted of current events in the political world.

Mrs. Badgley, the leader, reviewed Emaline Pankhurst and History of the Fight for Suffrage in England.

History of Suffrage in America was discussed by Mrs. Peavy.

Sketch of the Lives of Lucertia Motte; Elizabeth Cady Stanton; Susan B. Anthony; Anna Howard Shaw, were discussed by Mrs. Ragsdale.

Lady Astor and Her Public Career, by Mrs. Porter.

It was a rare program, and much information was given in the discussions that fully show the great work women are doing in our national life.

Refreshments were served to the members and the following guests: Mrs. Raymond Johnson, Mrs. Harvey Austin and Mrs. Herbert Wall. It is said that the guest of honor for the evening was baby Lynn Allen, the small son of Mrs. Wall.

CIVIC AND CULTURE CLUB MET WITH MRS. SHANKLE

The Civic and Culture Club met October 12 in the suburban home of Mrs. R. G. Shankle. The President, Mrs. A. L. Robertson, presided over the business meeting.

The lesson was conducted by the leader, Mrs. M. A. Pember. The previous lessons were discussed briefly by Mesdames Pember, Lanham and Smart. Others having parts on the program were as follows:

Mrs. Fred Schmidt—There is no Plan for Writing the Short Story.

Mrs. P. G. Stokes discussed, There is a Definite Plan for Writing the Short Story.

Each quoted noted authorities, leaving us to decide that some of the authors have a definite plan to write short stories and some do not.

The hostess served a delicious salad course with a milk drink. The plate favors were roses risen in the hostess' garden. Pink roses were given to the charter members, six out of the seven active members being present, cream roses to the other members and to the two guests, Mesdames L. W. Smith and Lillian Butler.

We were glad to welcome Mrs. L. T. Green and Mrs. J. E. Elliott as new members. We adjourned to meet Saturday, Nov. 2, with Mrs. S. E. Staggs. The meeting was postponed from Oct. 26 to Nov. 2, as the County Federation meets at Idalou on Oct. 26.

Marx Quartette
Cuts New Capers
In Film Dazzler

The Marx Brothers, long known as the world's four funniest men, have carried their inimitable fun-making art to the screen. In their first moving picture, the all-talking, all-singing, all-dancing, all-laughing production of the popular stage musical comedy, "The Cocoanuts," they carry their great personalities into film immortality.

The Marx Brothers register perfectly on both camera and microphone. They fit like veterans into this new medium and they make of "The Cocoanuts," which will show at the Palace theatre, starting Sunday for 3 days, a laugh show from start to finish.

Groucho, the talkative member of the Marx quartette, introduces an interminable line of funny chatter that keeps the picture bubbling with laughter. Harpo, with his dumb show and his constantly changing pantomime, is always surprising and Chico pulls some of the funniest stuff in the whole film. His "Viaduct? Why a duck?" passage is particularly convulsing. Zeppo, who always plays straight, is not only the successful foil for his mad brothers but he steps out once or twice for jesting of his own. Joseph Santley and Robert Florey directed together. Irving Berlin, who wrote the music for the original stage presentation, contributed a new theme song, "When My Dreams Come True," and Oscar Shaw and Mary Eaton carry the romantic leads.

VAST OUTDOOR LABORATORY IS ONE OF MAIN REASONS FOR CHEVROLET SUCCESS

Chevrolet test cars at General Motors Proving Ground have already been driven upwards of five millions miles, according to James M. Crawford, chief engineer of the company, who declared last week that use of this vast outdoor laboratory has been one of the principal reasons for Chevrolet's consistent success.

"An average of 12 test cars are in constant operation, purring up steep inclines, plowing through sand, mud and snow, driving into the teeth of heavy winds, testing speed and endurance on the track and subjecting themselves to every known performance trial," he said. These cars are not retired until they have been driven between 30,000 and 50,000 miles.

"After an experimental model attains this mileage it goes to the experimental laboratory to be dismantled. Every part is inspected, all evidences of wear noted. If a detail is not as it should be, work starts immediately developing a new part or process to replace the old.

"The new feature is then built in an entirely new car or three new cars if the operation is vital and this in turn is subjected to the Proving Ground tests. This cycle continues until we have complete satisfaction. In the case of the new six, 100 different experimental models were tested over a period of four years.

"In addition to using the Proving Ground to develop new models and engine features, Chevrolet uses it constantly for checking production cars, and it is this phase of the work that is perhaps the most interesting to the public. "After every thousand miles for the first 5,000 miles they are ridden by the engineers. After this they are ridden at only 5,000 mile intervals. Performance checks are carefully computed after 2,000, 5,000 and 20,000 miles. At the end of 20,000 miles they are completely dismantled and all parts are thoroughly inspected.

"In this way a chart is set up showing the progress made in design and manufacturing practice from month to month and year to year.

"Follow up work on these production cars brings out forcibly the co-operation that exists between the manufacturing and engineering departments. Not only do the engineers have reports on these cars but the manufacturing division receives separate reports from its own organization inspecting these tests. Thus changes in manufacturing methods can be effected almost immediately."

What gets our goat is the fellow we haven't seen for ten years who's insulted because we don't remember him.

ed so one morning they crossed Mississippi and into Calverly. they stepped down from their both gasped and clutched. Reverend Doctor Steddon was yards away from them, studying the off-getting passengers. "Let's see if he knows us," snickered Mrs. Steddon, with a relapse to shyness. "Let's!" said Mem. They knew him instantly, of course. and on the same suit they had left in, and the only change they had seen was a little more white little less hair. He did not know them at all. It seemed to pass him by and note a casual glance at the smart hat and polite traveling suit of his wife. He had expected a change in his sister, but he was probably braced for something loud and gaudy. Her father passed her by. When Doctor Steddon turned and hailed him with a voice that was gladder and more cheerful than she knew, he whirled with heart bounding, and they heard hungry, feasting heart groaning. "Thank Thee, O God! Now lettest thou Thy servant depart in peace." At neither the Lord nor his family did he utter a prayer. His wife had had time far back. Poor thing! She had never known till this year the pleasure of being fashionable; had never understood how, to look her best. Lying under his high chin, Mem forgave his forgiveness for all the mistakes she had caused him. She sat on his white bow tie, twisting at it on his coat and pouring out regret for dragging his wife away from him and causing them to quarrel with her. She said that it was a crime for her to have taken her mother on and left him alone, but he protested: "Do you support I wanted my little traveling in those wicked cities by herself?" This gladdened Mem exquisitely. He showed that, for all her wantonness, she was still in her father's an innocent child who must be protected from the world. Of course, was, rather, the world that needed to be protected from her. But she did not disturb his sweet delusion. The mayor had come down to give Mem welcome, as soon as he could push through the mob of Steddon children that devoured Mem and their mother. The manager of the Calverly Capital, with its capacity of two hundred, pushed the mayor aside and claimed as Steddon as his prize. He had a room waiting for her, and a room at a hotel in case the parsonage was crowded. Doctor Steddon grew Isaian as he turned back: "My daughter stays in her own room!" This brought Mem snuggling to his side. As their car moved off, with a sudden stab she remembered Elwood Farnaby and the far-off girl that he had loved too madly well in that lonely embrasure. How little and awful that Mem had been! There was a foolish unimportance in her very life, the debcle of a marionette world. At Elwood Farnaby was great by virtue of his absence and death. He was a hero now with Romeo and Leander and Abelard and the other geniuses of passion whose shadows had grown gigantically long in the sunset of a tragic punishment for their sins. A horrifying thought came to Mem: she had not died, she would have come his wife and the mother of a premature child. She would have been a laughing-stock, material for glib whispers about the village. And she would have been the shabbiest of lives even here. She would never have known fame or ease or wealth. After lunch she found Dr. Bretherick and had him drive her to the cemetery. "And," she said, "I want to give you the installment I forgot, of my conscience money. Please get it for papa as soon as you can. And there's a little extra." The doctor took the bills with a curious smile. She seemed to feel his ironic perplexity as she mused aloud along a well-thought path. "If I hadn't been a 'fallen woman', I couldn't have saved papa's church from ruin. How do you explain it? What's the right and wrong of it?" The old doctor shook his head: "I'm no longer fool enough, honey, to try to explain anything that happens to us here. According to one way of thinking, your misstep was the wise plan. According to another, good can never come out of evil. Of course we know it does, every day; and evil out of good. So let's be as human as we can, and I guess that's about as divine as we'll ever get down here." He led her out to his woeful little tin wagon and they went larrupping through the streets, out into the cemetery. Mem's only rite of atonement was a glance of remorseful agony cast toward Elwood's resting place. It showed her that the founder of her fortunes was honored only by a wooden headboard already warped and sidelong. "One last favor," she mumbled to Doctor Bretherick. "Get a decent tombstone for the poor boy and let me pay for it." "All right, honey," said the doctor. And the car jangled out of the gates again into the secular road. And that was that. At the supper table the younger children beset her with questions. Gladys was particularly curious and searching in her inquiries. Then came the hour of the theatre-going. Nobody had dared to ask Doctor Steddon if he would accompany his family. He had not made up his own mind. He dared not. The family tacitly assumed that his conscience or his pride forbade him to appear in the sink of iniquity he had so often denounced. The family bade him good-bye and left him, but had hardly reached the gate when he came pounding after. He flung his arms about Mem's shoulders and cast off all his offices except that of a father, chuckling: "Where my daughter goes is good enough for me!" He made almost more of a sensation in the theatre than Mem. There was applause and cheering and even a slow and awkward rising to the feet until the whole packed auditorium was erect and clamorous. Seats of honor were reserved for the great star and her family that reflected her indulgence. As soon as they were seated the young woman who flailed the piano began to batter the keys and Mem's latest picture began to flow down the screen. She could feel at her elbow the rigid arm of her father undergoing martyrdom. She felt it vibrate as her first close-up began to glow, her huge eyes pleading to him in a glisten of superhuman tears. The arm relaxed as he surrendered to the wonder of her beauty. It tightened again when danger threatened her, and she could hear his sigh of relief when she escaped one peril, his gasp as she encountered another. He was like a child playing with his first toy, hearing his first fairy story. He was entranced. She heard him laugh with a boyishness she had never associated with him. She heard him blow his nose with a blast that might have shaken a wall in Jericho. A sneaking side glance showed her that his eyes were dripping. And when the applause broke out at the end of the picture she heard his great hands making the loudest thwacks of all. This was heartbreaking bliss for her. The family rode home in state, the children and the mother loud in comment, the father silent. The old parson had to think it all out. Once at home, he sent the children up to bed and held Mem and her mother with his glittering eyes for a long while before he delivered his sermon: "My beloved wife and daughter, I—ahem, ahum! I want to plead for the forgiveness of you both. I have been wrong headed and stiff necked as so often, but now I am humbled before you in spite of all my pride. It has just come over me that when God said, 'Let there be light,' and there was light, He must have had in mind this glorious instrument for portraying the wonders of his handiwork. Our dear Redeemer used the parable or His divine lessons, and it has come to me that if He should walk the earth again today He would use the motion pictures. "You have builded better than you knew, perhaps, my child—and now I ask you to pardon me for being ashamed of you when I should have been proud. You were using the gifts that Heaven sent you as Heaven meant you to use them. Your art is sacred and you can't, you won't, sully it in your life. God forgive me for my unbelief and send you happiness and goodness and a long, long usefulness in the path you have elected." That night Mem knelt again by her old bed and, on knees unaccustomed to prayer, implored strength to keep her gift like a chalice, a grail of holiness. She woke with an early morning resolve to be the purest woman and the devoutest artist that ever lived. The next day she left the town with all its blessings, no longer a scapegoat, sin laden, limping into the wilderness, but a missionary God-sped into the farthest lands of the earth. It seemed that all Calverly was at the station to wring her hand and waft her salutation. The conductor called, "All aboard!" and hasty farewells were taken in clench of hand and awkward kiss. Mem ran to the rear platform and waved and waved lengthening signals of love to her dwindling family. She noted the absence of her sister Gladys and wondered at it as she went to her drawing-room. There she found the girl ensconced in fairy triumph, smiling like a pretty witch. "What on earth are you doing here?" cried Mem. "Going to Los Angeles with you. I may never be great like you, but I'm going to have a mighty good time trying." There were many questions to exchange and Mem soon learned that her sister had flung off the chains that one or two ardent lovers had tried to fasten about her. And when, with a last faltering reproach she asked her sister if she were wise to toss aside the devotion of a good man, Gladys laughed. "Let love wait! The men have kept us waiting for thousands of years, till they were ready. Now let them wait for us!" There was no gainsaying this. It had been Mem's own feeling when she left Los Angeles and her lovers there. Let love wait, then, till she had made the best of herself. And then let love not demand that she bow her head and shrivel in his shadow; but let him bloom his best alongside. She wondered who that fellow of her destiny would be—Tom Holby, maybe—Austin Boas, or till another perhaps; or others, perhaps, including him! or them! In any case he (or they) had better behave and play fair! As for being a mother, let that wait, too. She was going to mother the multitudes and tell them stories to soothe them! There was far more in this dream than vanity, far more than selfishness. The hope of the world lay therein, for the world can never advance farther than its women. She had a soul to sell and it was all her own, and she was going to market. The dawn was hers for conquest. Mankind was her loved and her beloved. That one-man passion called love could tarry until at least the late forenoon.

The End.

TWO VOLUMES BY TECH PROFESSOR TO BE PUBLISHED

LUBBOCK.—Two volumes written by Professor Thor J. Beck, head of the department of French and German in Texas Technological College, are to be published in the near future by the Modern Language Association of Columbia University. These two books were written by Professor Beck as his dissertation for the doctor's degree and are entitled, "Northern Antiquities in French Erudition and Literature," and "A Study in Pre-Romantic Ideas." The rare honor of having a book published by the University is considered a tribute to the author and is regarded as a distinct contribution to the stock of American erudite books.

LUBBOCK.—Dr. John C. Granbery, head of the departments of history, philosophy, and sociology of Texas Technological College, will be one of the principal speakers before the history section of the Texas State Teachers Association, which meets in Dallas November 28-30.

man, there was started in Indian Territory, (now Oklahoma), a small trading post from which to supply food-stuffs and coffee, to the hardy pioneers.

Housed in a tent on the banks of the Red River, and operated under the partnership name of Waples and Platter, this trading post early became the center of trading activities for hundreds of miles around. History records that it was a success from the beginning, so successful, in fact, that the business was moved shortly to Denison, Texas, then terminal of the Katy Railroad. That early beginning was the nucleus of the present Waples Platter Company, manufacturers and distributors of foods and coffees, an organization which has for many years been a dominant factor in the business and industrial leadership of the great Southwest.

Due to the sound principles upon which this early business was founded and to the keen, far-seeing business judgment of the forebears of the present owners of the business, from this humble tent on the banks of the Red River has grown an institution whose modern manufacturing plants occupy twenty-five acres of land. Headquarters of the company are located at Fort Worth. Twenty-two branch houses located in as many progressive cities of Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma, constitute the supply bases for over 10,000 dealers who sell Waples Platter food products throughout the Southwest. In many respects this institution is self-contained in that it manufactures a majority of the widely known food products which it distributes. Daily a fleet of powerful, company-owned motor trucks plies between its manufacturing plants and the twenty-two strategically located branch houses of the company, carrying new merchandise so that the thousands of dealers have access daily to fresh goods.

"LIGHT'S GOLDEN JUBILEE."

On October 21, the nation will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Edison's invention of the incandescent lamp. Governor Moody has proclaimed this date as the official one for the celebration of "light's golden jubilee," the entire states of Texas will pay homage to the Wizard of Menlo Park.

night of the 21st, with the greatest and most elaborate electrically illuminated displays ever produced in the South.

On the same evening, Henry Ford and Edsel Ford are giving a banquet in honor of Mr. Edison, at Dearborn, Mich. With invited guests from over the nation, there will be enacted that evening in the first laboratory owned by Edison, and by Henry Ford moved to Dearborn, his discovery of the incandescent lamp. This will be given to the country over the radio. A wonderful age in which we live, this great development covering a span of fifty years, wherein we have seen the perfection of so many things that have come so gradually that we can scarcely realize their greatness, but were they to be taken from us, a full realization, doubtless, would come to us of the place they held in our national life. In 1882 Mr. Edison erected his first electrical plant in New York City, and from that beginning, he have seen a world wide growth of the use of electricity. It is a mighty fitting time to pay honor to a great American citizen, discoverer and chemist. The nation pays tribute on this occasion, with the thought that he may continue many days in the land.

"Do good with what thou hast; or it will do thee no good. If thou wouldst be happy, bring thy mind to thy condition, and have an indifference for more than what is sufficient."—William Penn.

THE LOCAL MARKET.

Our newspapers are filled these days with various discussions of the farm problem.

But in the humble opinion of the editor too little thought is devoted to the local market. A few studies have been made of this subject and the results are truly startling.

A county agent recently started some work that may prove to throw a great deal of light on this entire subject of agricultural distress. He induced the Department of Agriculture to lend assistance in a survey of the home market. Accordingly a study was made of the demands for agricultural produce in Altoona, Pa., and of the production of the surrounding country.

It was discovered quickly that only 8 percent of the potatoes consumed in that city are produced in the surrounding territory, although the country thereabout is well suited to potato production. It was also found that another town could consume three times as many eggs as were produced in its tributary territory, although the country is well adapted to poultry raising.

Then let's give widespread publicity to the results of the survey, so that our farmers may know what they can market here locally without difficulty. In time this would certainly prove to be extremely valuable to our farmers.

CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET SIX
—the Car of Universal Appeal!

SINCE January 1st, over a million one hundred and thirty-five thousand six-cylinder Chevrolets have been produced. Naturally, this is an outstanding industrial achievement. But it is more than that. It is a great public endorsement of Chevrolet's policy of progress: to build a quality automobile whose design incorporates every possible feature of progressive engineering . . . whose beauty is distinctive, smart and satisfying . . . whose reliability is assured by fine materials and precision manufacture . . . and whose price is so low as to be within reach of the great majority of the people. We want you to know what this policy has meant in the development of the Chevrolet Six—the modern car of universal appeal. We want you to know that Chevrolet has brought within the reach of everybody, everywhere, all the advantages of smooth, six-cylinder performance. Come in today!

Makes Life Sweeter

Next time a coated tongue, fetid breath, or acrid skin gives evidence of sour stomach—try Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

Get acquainted with this perfect anti-acid that helps the system keep sound and sweet. That every stomach needs at times. Take it whenever a hearty meal brings any discomfort.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has won medical endorsement. And convinced millions of men and women they didn't have "indigestion." Don't diet, and don't suffer; just remember Phillips. Pleasant to take, and always effective.

The name Phillips is important: it identifies the genuine product. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1874.

PHILLIPS Milk of Magnesia

Mid-week service, Wednesday, 7:30 p. m.
Evening service, 7:30 p. m.
Y. P. S. C. E. meets at 5 p. m.
The pastor will preach at both services, on the Sabbath, and we are planning to have a good attendance on account of the special subjects to be presented.
The public will have a hearty welcome at all these services. Come and worship with us, for we want to do you good.

JAMES RAYBURN, Pastor.

CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Nobody loves to be called a quitter, and no one should be a quitter. Quitters never get anywhere, never do any good for themselves or anybody else. The regular, consistent plodder is the fellow that makes things move. Frequently we have to work and wait, and while waiting will have many things to come up calculated to discourage and often quit. Jesus didn't quit because there was opposition, Paul wasn't a quitter, and we should not be. Let us be sure we are right and then go ahead. If things do not work out just as we intended, let's try again, and above all, we must not give up and quit because things don't turn out as we expected.

We are glad to notice the increase in attendance at our services. The attendance last Lord's day was about on an average, notwithstanding the inclement weather. But we are taught not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together. We have a duty to perform and a service to render, cold or hot, rain or shine. The evening attendance was the largest since I have been here. We are expecting a large attendance next Lord's Day.

Visitors are always welcome. A pleasant place to worship.

HIGH DEATH RATE AMONG CIVIL WAR VETERANS

Washington, D. C.—Civil War veterans on the Federal pension rolls are dying at the rate of over 5,000 per month, Lt. Col. W. L. Hazard, of the Federal Bureau of Pensions, stated recently, in explanation of the latest report just issued. Although this list, which was compiled Sept. 30, shows 57,483 Civil War veterans now drawing pensions, in fact over 2,000 more have died since it was prepared.

Col. Hazard added. It was predicted in the Bureau of Pensions that within a year the number of pensioners in this class will be reduced to insignificance, since most of the survivors are eighty-five years of age and older.
In sharp contrast to the Civil War veterans drawing pensions are the widows who number 178,659. The Government is also paying pensions to 714 widows of veterans of the Mexican war and 10 widows of those of the War of 1812. The last survivor of the Mexican war on the pension list died in September.

RAMSAY MacDONALD, ENGLAND'S PRIME MINISTER SAYS GOODBYE

With the quitting of United States soil, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald bade us goodbye. Leaving Niagara Falls to enter the Dominion of Canada, he left with great respect for officialdom and the people of the United States. All courtesy had been extended to Mr. McDonald, while a guest of the country. He stated it was impossible to mistake the meaning of the cordiality shown him and his associates, feeling that the welcome accorded by the people and government have hailed the object of his visit, and the message of good will that he bore from the British people in all parts of the kingdom had found a very responsive accord with the American people.

He has great hopes that a lasting peace may be the outcome of his visit and that the two nations may live in accord and good will toward each other.
