LEGION MAKES SPECIAL RATE ON POST DUES

Annual Fees for 1930 Very Low Until November 18.

An effort to break all previous membership records by Nov. 18, the American Legion Post has announced a special low rate on the 1930 membership dues which is to remain in effect until Nov. 18. Any veteran, at that date, will be able to pay his dues for the small sum of $2.25, local dues being suspended until Nov. 18, according to D. E. Kemp, Commander.

The decision to make this special rate was reached Thursday at a special meeting of the Post's executive board. The plan is in keeping with the campaign now being made by the national Legion organization to recruit a large number of members all over the United States in order to push all possible vigor a campaign to "proper hospitalization" for disabled veterans. All veterans, whether they have been members of the Legion before this or not, will aid national campaign for "proper hospitalization" by paying dues promptly, Commander Kemp said, and will receive the benefit of the special rate until Nov. 18. After that time, the local dues will be added to the $2.25, this amount being the state and national dues at this time.

They have not definitely decided upon amount for local dues in 1930, will reach that decision at an early date," it was said by Commander Kemp.

McK-Dell Moved to Larger Quarters

The McK-Dell Gift Shop moved last week from 108 Texas Avenue to 109 Texas Avenue, into the building formerly occupied by the A. E. F. Blundell and McGinnis. The purpose of the move is to give the shop more room, as their business expands.

The front section of the building is converted into an up-to-date shop, displaying a large selection of goods and novelties for every occasion, especially the Christmas season. The rear of the building will be used as the wholesale department which at present they have twelve men and ladies under their supervision.

Football Victim Improving

Lawrence Evans, right guard on the High football team and who was the victim of a broken limb in a game, is slowly improving in a hospital. Lawrence has suffered a severe pain, he is cheerful and has a good appetite. He only wishes to play in the game Monday night when the Tigers are to face the Tornados.

Bob Allen is Slowly Improving

Bob Allen, who was seriously injured in a car wreck near Snyder four weeks ago and who has been in a Lubbock hospital is reported to be slowly improving. It is thought that another operation is necessary.

Texas Motorcade Visited in City Wednesday Noon

The Texas Good-Will Motorcade, traveling over the Glacier to Gulf highway, reached Slaton about noon Wednesday, although several members of the party straggled behind on account of muddy roads. The party was met at Southland Wednesday morning by a group of twenty-five Slaton citizens, headed by D. E. Kemp, local commander of the American Legion. The Slaton delegation piloted the visitors into the city where they were met by the students of the high school and by many Slaton business men who heard addresses delivered from the bandstand on the city hall lawn.

Ernest C. Cox, of Corsicana, state commander of the American Legion, and D. E. Kemp, of San Antonio, chairman of the state park board, made addresses. Judge Kemp introduced the two speakers, and they proceeded on their journey toward Amarillo after speaking here.

As the party neared the city limits Wednesday morning, the city's large new fire truck met the group and piloted them to the public square for the program here.

Commander Cox stated while here that he would re-visit this city next Spring, remaining for a longer stay than was possible this week.

Many prominent Texas officials who were scheduled to be in the party were late in making their appearance and passed through the city without stopping, on account of the necessity of their catching up with other members of the party.

Thursday was the time set for the group to visit Palo Duro Canyon, near Amarillo, to inspect the park, which is a proposed state park site.

Officers of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club, the City Commission, the Retail Merchants' Association and other local bodies cooperated with the American Legion officials in welcoming the visitors to Slaton Wednesday.

No New Problem in Paving for Lubbock Co. Just Old One

The Lubbock Journal, through one of its staff, in the evening issue of Nov. 4, concludes that a new problem enters the paving project in the county. This is erroneous, it is but going back to the beginning. Slaton has two petitions that are being circulated and signed, the Journal is correct in that, one petition recites paving the highways 7 and 9, and 53 east of Lubbock, the other petition recites the paving of 7 and 9. Why not, these highways are designated for Federal and State aid. We are not advised that there are any others at the present time. Quoting from the article in the Journal of the 4: "Indications are that proponents of the election in road district number 2, which is composed of all of Lubbock county except the southeast portion, in which Slaton is located, will oppose any attempt to call a county-wide election."

We suspect that the "indications" are correct, well, it is just a case of passing the buck. Lubbock wants what she wants, regardless of the rest of the county. It is immaterial to Slaton whether or no the Lions, Tigers, Bear Cats or Bob Cats have their committees, they can never bury the issue, that of paved highways brought in an orderly manner for the benefit of the entire county, and through a county wide vote.

Indeed this is not asking too much from the big brother, when he gets the all day sucker, to at least let his little sister have one drag.

Slaton Tigers vs. Paducah Dragons

The Tigers visited the Dragons in the town of Paducah, for the yearly contest with the pigskin. A few from Slaton made the trip. Owing to the bad weather, the crowd that expected to go, gave it up. However, it was a rather slow game, kind of practice for the boys. The final outcome was 32-0, in favor of Slaton. Get ready for Lamesa, Monday, Armistice Day, November 11th.

Complete Plans For Armistice Program Given

Plans for the Armistice Day program, which will be given here next Monday morning, have been announced by American Legion officers here.

The pupils of the Slaton schools will parade to the public square, reaching the square at 10:30 a. m., where the members of the local Legion Post and other World War veterans will form in line with the parade, marching around the public square to the city hall bandstand, at which point, if weather conditions permit, a public ceremony will be given by the Legion, assisted by the school children and other citizens composing the audience. The program at the bandstand is scheduled to get started at 10:45 a. m., thus permitting observance of the "silent period" at 11 o'clock.

The exact program has been arranged as follows:

Announcement, by Post Commander D. E. Kemp; prayer by Chaplain E. C. Foster; Song, "America," by audience; brief address by Post Commander; brief address by L. A. Wilson, Post adjutant; brief address by P. G. Meading, judge advocate of the Post; brief address by F. C. Rector, a member of the Post; closing remarks by Post Commander Kemp. All of these parts will be ceremonial. Following the ceremony, George Deupree, Lubbock attorney, will deliver a patriotic address. A special Legion announcement will then be made, and the meeting will close with the entire audience singing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Everybody is invited to participate in the program by attending and in this way helping to give proper observance of Armistice Day in this city, it was announced yesterday by Legion officers.

All members of the local Legion Post are requested to meet promptly at the city hall at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning in order to get ready for the parade. New service caps for the Post members will be here for distribution at that special meeting Monday morning, Commander Kemp has said, and every member is urgently requested to come to the city hall on time, 9:30 a. m., Monday.

Rotary Club Has Report; Several Visitors Attend

At the luncheon meeting of the Slaton Rotary Club last Friday, a report on the presidents' and secretaries' convention for the 41st Rotary District, held last July at Sweetwater, was given by Lloyd A. Wilson, vice president of the club, who, in company with Tom J. Abel, sergeant-at-arms, attended the meeting.

The report was delayed until last Friday because there had not been a previous opportunity to hear the report at any club meeting. Wilson gave the full report, Abel being absent from Friday's meeting. The report contained many items of interest for the conduct of Rotary Clubs, and the members expressed the belief that the suggestions would be beneficial to the Slaton club.

Visitors at Friday's meeting included R. J. (Bob) Murray, Dr. Ballinger, Rex Westerfield and Walter S. Posey, of Lubbock. Murray and Posey made short talks.

The club's program for this Friday will include a vocal quartet to be arranged by Claude F. Anderson. Three classification talks will be made by John W. Hood and Bernie E. Payne. W. H. (Bill) Smith will speak on the "Significance and Meaning of the First Object of Rotary."

Legion Post Will Meet Friday Night

A short business session will be held at 7 o'clock Friday night by the Luther Powers Post of the American Legion, according to local officers. Plans will be made for the Armistice Day parade and program next Monday morning, it was said. All members are urged to attend promptly at 7 o'clock, on account of other meetings on the same night making it necessary to adjourn the Legion meeting earlier than usual, it was stated by officers.

Armistice Day Proclamation is Issued by Mayor

Mayor W. G. Reese has issued a proclamation calling upon the people of the City of Slaton to properly observe Armistice Day, which comes on next Monday, Nov. 11. He urges business men and others who may have them to display flags that day and in every possible way to give proper observance to this important holiday.

The mayor's official proclamation follows:

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE CITY OF SLATON:

Whereas, next Monday, Nov. 11, is a legal holiday in Texas and in practically all the states of the nation, and

Whereas, it is considered fitting that the citizens of this city and of the state of Texas should join in observance of Armistice Day, the day upon which the peace of the world was restored after many long months of hostilities which involved most of the nations of the world, and

Whereas, we, as citizens of Slaton, who are engaged in the various pursuits of peaceful industry, should be anxious to express our gratitude for the blessings of peace which we, as a nation, enjoy, and

Whereas, we should be glad to do honor to all those who made any kind of sacrifice, whether at home or in foreign lands, in the cause of this glorious peace, now

Therefore, I, W. G. Reese, Mayor of the City of Slaton, Texas, and by virtue of the authority thus vested in me, do hereby proclaim the eleventh day of November, 1929, as a holiday, and call upon all citizens of said city to join in properly observing the day by displaying the American flag wherever possible, and to otherwise join in the day's observance in full appreciation of its true meaning and as an expression of thankfulness for the blessings of peace which we are privileged to claim as our own.

Witness my hand and official seal of the City of Slaton, this the 5th day of November, 1929.

W. G. REESE,
Mayor, City of Slaton, Lubbock County, Texas.

War Trophies of Legion Shown at City Hall Here

A variety of war trophies, including many weapons of warfare captured by American soldiers during the World War, are now on display in a specially constructed case in the lobby of the city hall here. The case was completed Wednesday and the trophies are now in position for public inspection at any time, Legion Commander D. E. Kemp said yesterday.

The glass-enclosed case, which houses the trophies, will remain permanently in the city hall lobby, by permission of the city commission, until the local Legion Post erects its own building, which is contemplated for some future time, Legion officers said.

Included among the pieces now displayed in the city hall are: rifles, machine gun ammunition, several bayonets, projectiles, helmets, a machine gun, and several other pieces. The trophies became the property of the Post last Spring after completion of a successful membership campaign for the present year.

Eppler Baby Buried Tuesday

William E. Eppler, nine months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Eppler, died Tuesday, November 5th, at one a. m., as a result of a month's illness with typhoid fever.

The deceased was a grandson of Mrs. Belle Privett, who resides in south Slaton.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 from the home of Mrs. Privett with interment in Englewood cemetery.

Mrs. Eppler, mother of the child, is seriously ill with typhoid fever. The family have been in Slaton only a short time, coming here from Coleman.

C. of C. Smoker Meeting Held on Tuesday Evening

The quarterly "smoker" meeting of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce was held Tuesday night at the Slaton Clubhouse.

T. A. Worley, Jr., vice president of the Chamber, presided, and several important matters of current community and city interest were considered. A program of music was furnished by B. E. Clark and Coke Oliver, local Santa Fe men who are conceded to be artists in the handling of their stringed instruments.

Discussions were held with reference to giving Lamesa and Floydada people hearty receptions to this city when the football games are played by the Slaton Tigers and these two teams on Nov. 11 and Nov. 28. It was agreed that committees here would be given charge of arranging for an adequate number of cars to meet the special trains which these towns will doubtless run to Slaton on those two dates. These cars will convey the visitors from the trains to the athletic field and back to the trains again after the games end. This courtesy to the visitors is believed to be a fine thing for Slaton people to practice, and it is hoped the entire citizenship will co-operate in showing these courtesies, Chamber of Commerce officers declared.

Plans were laid at the meeting for several representatives of the Chamber of Commerce to make the trip Wednesday morning to Southland to help the American Legion and other local organizations extend a welcome to the Texas Good-Will Motorcade, which came through Wednesday, en route from San Antonio to Amarillo. A report was heard at the meeting with reference to John Rayburn's trip to El Paso two weeks ago when he represented Slaton in the "My Home Town" contest at the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. John was present at the meeting to give a personal account of his trip, and he did it in a very interesting manner.

Aside from giving Slaton his best in representing the city in the "My Home Town" contest, John declared he enjoyed the business sessions of the convention, and brought back with him many points of information relative to convention events. He also said he had time to visit some of the places of interest in and near El Paso, and that this opportunity was truly educational for him.

Near the close of the meeting a discussion was held with reference to the county's road-paving problem, and the decision of the body was that Slaton would prefer and should support a county-wide paving program in preference to a district paving program, as has been agitated in some parts of the county during the past several months.

C. & C. Club to Sponsor Play

The Civic and Culture Club will sponsor a play entitled "Simba", which will be presented at the Palace Theatre on November 13-14-29.

The story of "Simba" is given by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson of their adventures in the jungles of Africa and is reported to be quite interesting.

The purpose of this attraction is to raise funds to be added to the Students Loan Fund, which the Civic and Culture Club maintain for the purpose of helping worthy girls and boys to finish their high school education. The money is loaned to the individual at a low rate of interest. Mrs. Fred Schmidt is chairman of this Loan Fund and is doing beneficial work in that line.

Tickets for the play will be obtainable from any member of the club. Mrs. Lee Green, Mrs. E. L. Blundell and Mrs. A. L. Robertson compose the publicity committee.

Many of the people face charges, particularly about the first of the month when the dreaded bills come in.

MRS. TOWER ILL.

Mrs. G. W. Tower, who lives at 545 Garza, is reported to be quite ill as a result of a severe case of the flu.

Her condition has been considered serious for several weeks, however, at the last reports she was doing as well as could be expected.

LAMESA PLANS SPECIAL TRAIN FOR GAME HERE

Big Delegation Will Invade Slaton for Grid Clash

"Lamesa will send 500 people to Slaton next Monday by special train to witness the annual Slaton-Lamesa football game," said William A. Wilson, secretary of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce, in a telephone conversation Thursday morning with L. A. Wilson, secretary of the Slaton Chamber.

The Lamesa secretary said there would be many people coming to Slaton in their private automobiles, making, he believed, a total of between 700 and 1,000 Lamesa people who would see the Slaton-Lamesa game, to be played in Slaton Monday afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock.

"Lamesa is keenly interested in the Slaton-Lamesa game and will back the Lamesa Tornados with all their might next Monday," said the Lamesa secretary. He said Lamesa may bring their band with them, but this had not definitely been decided Thursday morning.

Plans have already been laid to meet the special train here with a sufficient number of cars to convey all the visitors from the train to the athletic field, provided Lamesa does not bring her band along. Wilson said if the Lamesa band should come, the entire Lamesa delegation will want to parade through town following the band, and then proceeding to the athletic field.

Committees will be organized to secure cars to meet the train here, if word is received from Lamesa that the band will not accompany them here. Otherwise, Slaton cars will not be organized to meet the special.

The Lamesa train will leave Lamesa at 12:30 o'clock Monday noon, according to Wilson, and should arrive in Slaton at about two o'clock, he said.

Local interest in the Monday game is very intense, and the largest crowd to have seen a football game here this season is expected for Monday afternoon.

The Tigers will be in good condition for the tilt, it is expected. They have been training hard all this week in preparation for the clash with the Tornados.

The Lamesa eleven has not lost a game this season, having defeated Levelland, Tahoka, Carlsbad, N. M., Midland and other teams they have played. The Lamesa aggregation is known to be a strong outfit, and the Slaton Tigers will be forced to work hard if they win a victory Monday.

Since Monday is a holiday, being Armistice Day, it is believed that there will be many people here from surrounding South Plains towns to see the game, in addition to the enormous crowds which will attend from Lamesa and Slaton.

G. R. M. Club Met Wednesday Night at McGinnis Home

Means by which money may be raised for the purpose of sending the club to the Santa Fe Apprentice Boys Convention at San Bernardino, Calif., were discussed.

The meeting is reported to have been extremely interesting as well as profitable for each member present.

Slatonite Want Ads Bring Results

SLATONITE RECOGNIZED BY COURTS.

Hon. Clark M. Mullican, Judge of the District Court, 99th Judicial District of Texas, in session at Lubbock, Texas, issued to the editor of the Slatonite an order forbidding him to publish testimony in a habeas corpus hearing before his court. The order was that no person, firm, corporation or association shall hereafter print, publish, distribute, or circulate in any manner, in the county of Lubbock State of Texas, any of the testimony adduced at said Habeas Corpus hearing until after a jury had been selected in the above entitled and numbered cause in a trial on its merits.

Naturally the Slatonite is for law and order and with the good grace always displayed in our columns we bow to the edict of the court. There is still a question in our mind as to just what a newspaper's prerogatives might be in a case of this character, while suppressing from the newspapers the proceedings of the court in its hearing, still the mass gathered at the hearing cannot be stopped from a discussion of what was heard. It is true, Judge Mullican desired to obtain an end, that when the case should come for trial there would be no grounds for a change of venue.

This is proof that Judge Mullican desires to have an efficient court, and all law respecting citizens cannot but admire the position taken, even though we may not agree in detail as to the procedure, however, as stated we are law abiding, with all the respect for the courts.

McMurry Home Coming, Nov. 11th

Plans have been completed for the second annual Home Coming Day for all ex-students of McMurry College located at Abilene.

November 11 has been set as the date for this event which is also the date of the annual clash of the Hill Billies of Daniel Baker and the Indians of McMurry.

The plans include a reunion of the Was Wah Taysees and the Indian Head Association.

Dads and Mothers Day is to be observed the same day as the Home Coming. An organization of mothers and fathers of McMurry students is contemplated. The parents of the students will meet at 10:30 on the morning of the 11th for the purpose of organizing. This is expected to promote a more binding tie between the College and its patrons.

The Home Coming promises to be the day of all days for students and visitors. An elaborate program has been completed including a barbecue for the students and visiting alumni and parents, at noon. All organizations will have booths for registration, information and gathering of ex-members. In the afternoon the annual event of the season will take place—the battle between the Hill Billies and Indians—will be fought on Donaldson Field. All students are expected to attend with their parents and sit with them as far as possible.

According to J. Arlie Garner, president of the Alumni Association, a great number of exes are expected and are being prepared for. At least sixty percent of the fathers and mothers are expected.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Jarman have returned from a visit with their daughter at Merkel, and also a visit with relatives and friends in Oklahoma.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Autry, of Amarillo, spent several hours in Slaton Tuesday morning as the guests of Mrs. Lee Green. They were enroute to Amarillo from a trip to San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. George witnessed the S. M. U.-Texas U. game in Dallas last Saturday and visited with Willie George, and spent Saturday night in Blooming Grove with T. M. George, Jr., and family.

The majority of the Slaton High football boys were in Lubbock Sunday to see Lawrence Evans, who is a patient in a Lubbock sanitarium, as a result of a serious injury received in a recent game.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Marriott and children, Pauline and Charles, Jr., left Wednesday overland for Wellington, Kansas and Tonkawa, Okla., where they will visit for about two weeks with Mrs. Marriott's relatives and with Mr. Marriott's mother.

Ray Darwin and Walter Hord witnessed the Tech-Baylor game at Waco Saturday, and of course we do not know what else they might have witnessed, as they returned home in a rather "round-about" way. But anyway, they report a grand time.

Word has been received that Milton Thomas, a former Slatonite, has resigned his position with Myer & Myer, of Amarillo, and has accepted a position with Carter-Houston of Lubbock, as manager of their clothing department and display man.

Mr. and Mrs. Theron Lane and children are visiting Mrs. Lane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Florence, and family, this week. They made the trip with Dr. Lane of Comanche, who is visiting his brother-in-law, J. W. Hood, and attending court, as a witness in the Clay Lester murder case.

J. R. McAtee, long a resident of Slaton, contemplates eventually to make Richland Springs his home, where he is now engaged in commercial lines. Mr. McAtee was with us for a few days, having left Tuesday for the new home. We are all very sorry that this estimable family should leave our midst, where they have been so active in all the good things for Slaton. We wish them much success in the new home.

"Best Investment I Ever Made," Declares Farmer

Kidneys Had Bothered Him for Over Two Years, Says Plainview Man—Orgatone Restores Him.

"I don't believe I ever spent money to such good advantage in my life as I did when I bought Orgatone," said E. L. Young, a prosperous farmer who lives on Route 3, Plainview, Texas, while in the Plains Drug Store.

"About ten years ago," he continued "my stomach started bothering me and ever since that time I have never felt the same until I took Orgatone. I was so run down and felt so bad most of the time that I simply wasn't worth a nickel so far as any kind of work was concerned, and it was a real effort most of the time for me to try to do my work. My stomach got in such a bad shape that I had to be very careful what I ate, and when I had to leave off good solid food that I had always been used to I knew I must be getting in pretty bad shape. But even these light foods hurt my stomach and I would almost die with pain after eating. My kidneys bothered me so at night, that I could hardly sleep and would get up in the mornings with a bad pain in the small of my back that would sometimes bother me all day long. I had a very bad case of constipation which caused me to be taking some kind of heavy purgative all the time and this together with my other troubles sure kept me in misery and I had about decided I would never be in shape to enjoy good health again.

"Put I commenced reading in the papers about so many people right here in Plainview that were receiving such good results from Orgatone I decided to try it myself, and I am a well man now and for this reason I think the money I have spent for Orgatone is about the best investment I ever made in my life. Before I finished my first bottle I began to eat better and could feel my strength coming back to me. I knew then the medicine was getting results, so I at once bought another bottle. Well, today I am enjoying the dividends on that investment, which is health better than I have had in years. I have not only been relieved of that kidney disorder but my stomach is in as good shape as it ever was. I am eating three rousing meals a day, enjoying my ham and eggs again for breakfast, and never have a sign of gas on my stomach, or shortness of breath. My strength has all come back to me and I can do as much work now as any man on the place."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Slaton by the Teague Drug Store, who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

H. A. Moore, of Brundage, sold $3,000 worth of sweet peppers off a five-acre plot sown to that crop, which he found to be largely immune to insect attack and in good demand.

I was in bad health for several years, under care of Doctors for three years. I do not think I could have lived much longer. I am in better health today than for several years weigh more than I ever did in my life. I believe I am rid of an awful disease that the other Doctors failed to cure.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Armistice Day will always be an occasion for pride and patriotic sentiment. It should always be a day of gratitude for the wonderful service and sacrifice of the World War veterans. The most of us, who never saw any real war, and who came no closer to that conflict than subscribing to liberty bonds or making surgical bandages, have no conception whatever of the horror of it.

War was dreadful enough before that awful struggle, but it seemed at the time as if the most fiendish ingenuity and the most devilish skill had been devised to make war as cruel as possible. Everything that science could do in the way of barbar-ity and savagery was used. Men who could go through that hell and not show fear have faced the most terrible things that earth has to offer. We called on these soldiers to go through this awful experience, and they responded very cheerfully. The only complaint was that they were too bold and daring and took too many risks.

They created for our country and themselves an imperishable crown of glory. They accomplished far more than had been thought possible for hastily trained troops, and proved themselves able to cope with the most veteran soldiers.

As they did so much for us, the American people must never fail in gratitude to them. We must always do them honor, and yield them a place of special dignity and affection, and do everything that we can to assist these disabled ones, life was ruined, and we can never make up for the loss they suffered. Let Armistice Day be the time when we show the warmth of our feeling for them, and make them realize that we shall cherish them forever.

NOVEMBER 11, 1918.

How many thoughts go back 11 years as Armistice Day dawns; how clear that one day stands out in our memories; and what a wonderful day it was for those many families who had boys on the firing line. They will never forget the sigh of relief with which they heard the bells ring and the celebrations begin.

After those bitter months of fear and dread, it seemed the most wonderful thing that the world was again at peace, and that the insanity of war had gone by. That was a day also of the most buoyant hope. Our people felt that they had fought a war to end war, they had made great sacrifices, and that as a result, as soon as the soldier boys came home, we were going to see our country lifted to a higher plane, with many of the old evils and burdens that afflicted us done away.

Those roseate hopes were not to any extent fulfilled. The world sank back to the same old level of selfishness.

And yet people who say that the war was fought for nothing make a great mistake. A very menacing power, the threat of which had constituted a world peril for many years, was removed from the face of the earth.
Three autocratic governments, which had ruled tyrannously and selfishly over the masses of the people, and which threatened war and carnage as long as they existed, were humbled to the dust. Their removal gave the world a chance to rebuild itself on new foundations, and we are just beginning to realize the benefit that was conferred.

The favorable outlook for peace in the world today could never have existed, had it not been for the mighty work done by the allied armies, in which our country had its own great share. To the men who fought for us on the battle front, we owe everlasting gratitude. They did their work with superb courage and skill and determination. Should we not measure up to this high standard by showing equal force and effectiveness in our life as American citizens.

Officers Abel and Selman had their line out, and when the men came for the booze they were taken into custody along with the 3 gallons, they were turned over to the county sheriff, Wade Hardy.

Sixteen other arrests were made Saturday night and Sunday by the same officers, these covered gambling and vagrancy. The city bastille was crowded with boarders, some of them had to appear before Judge Phillips where fines were assessed with the trimmings, and others before his Honor the Mayor, W. G. Reese, and likewise, had to pay. Monday, down in little Africa, two colored women got into an altercation over the question of money purloined, the outcome was some shooting, but no one hit, and a good job of cutting, where one of the women was badly cut by the other with a tidy butcher knife. The one cut is confined to her bed, the other languishes in the city boarding house.

Another Old Time Santa Fe Man Answers Last Call

Edwin L. McCann was born at Newburg, N. Y., on May 7, 1852, and passed away at the home of his son, William L. McCann, 1111 South Washington Avenue, Wellington, Kan., at 3:34 a. m., October 23, 1929, at the age of 77 years, 5 months and 1 day. He had been in poor health for the past 16 years and had been bedfast, lacking 3 days, for 14 months before death. He was the son of John and Mary McCann of Newburg, N. Y. To this union were born four sons and two daughters, of whom father, mother, one daughter and three sons have passed away. There remain one daughter, Mrs. Anna Brown, of Bluffton, Ind., and one son, Charley McCann, of Muncie, Ind., to survive their brother, Edwin.

Mr. McCann was married to Rebecca Otley on November 19, 1875, at Greenwich, Ohio. To this union four sons were born: Charley E. McCann, of Galveston, Tex.; James M. McCann, of Tucson, Ariz.; William L. and George J. McCann, both of Wellington. All the sons were present Saturday for these services. His wife, Rebecca, passed away on June 7, 1913, at her home at 1123 South Washington, this city. Besides the four sons, two grandsons, one sister, one brother, a number of nephews and nieces survive Mr. McCann.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge at New London, Ohio, and the Elks lodge, of Wellington.

Mr. McCann had a long and successful career with the Santa Fe railroad. He started in its employ in 1888, first at Newton, Kan.; was then transferred to Wellington after only one month's service at Newton. His rise was rapid and his ability as a bridge constructor, builder and water service engineer soon placed him in charge of immense jobs. The work was always completed within the time allotted and in better condition than expected. He served the Santa Fe from 1888 until 1916, when he was retired on pension. It is said of him that he had contributed as much toward the building of the Santa Fe railroad as any man in its employ.

Even since his retirement, he has been consulted frequently and his judgment was always good in any projects the road had planned. His failing health covered a long period of time and his suffering was unusual, but his capacity for action and development never dwindled. Many wonderful bridges and finest road beds will endure for untold years as a memorial to his ability. He was known among his friends as a stalwart man of industry, character and honesty, and his place in his line of work will be difficult to supply.—From the Wellington News.

HENRY FORD—MOTOR GENIUS.

Through the courtesy of P. G. Stokes, proprietor of the Slaton Motor Co., the Slatonite was presented with a volume compiled by the author, William A. Simonds, covering the history of Henry Ford, who as a young fellow in 1880, made his way to the city of Detroit seeking a job. His whole thought was to learn of engines. Even at that time Henry Ford had a vision, and it was to produce an engine that would take the place of the team drawn vehicle. He came from a good family of farmers, and Henry was a farmer in his earlier day, but being so obsessed with the idea of creating a new engine, he obtained a job a $2.50 per week, his board was the same, so he had to look for something to do at night, and got a place in a watch repair shop. This added another $1.00 to his weekly stipend.

From this on, his history reads like a sure enough dream. It took Mr. Ford practically 20 years to reach the point of production that would show a profit. Many and varied were the vicissitudes through which Mr. Ford passed before reaching his peak production. That he has been a benefactor to men is all self evident. He is a humanitarian, and the welfare of his employes is constantly his watchword. The book gives numerous illustrations of the wonderful Rouge plant, one entire chapter is given to a trip through the factory, and descriptions covering same. What appears to be one of Mr. Ford's great hobbies is the Henry Ford Trade School. Preference is given to sons of Ford workers. It is claimed that there is a waiting list all the time of over five thousand.

That Henry Ford is an optimist there can be no question, one of his trite sayings, "Another perfectly good rule is to be optimistic. What I mean is for you to believe that good is stronger than evil and will eventually triumph." "Last of all, don't be too proud to do anything within your power to push the business in which you are engaged. Fool pride gets in the way of a man's advancement. So don't be afraid of overalls or a little grease or dirt if such things are a part of the job to be done. Foolish pride never gets a man anywhere. It is a great hindrance."

Mr. Ford states, "These rules will work because I have tried every one of them."

Probably the great outstanding thing in Mr. Ford's life has been his faith, his great willingness to wait and work to make his dreams come true. If one wished to epitomize his career the saying of St. Paul's: "Now Faith is a substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Mr. Ford had the faith—and with it he has moved mountains in the life of the American people.

Synopsis

What Happened Before.
At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clary, Leeson, an ornate, meets Lucy Harkness, known as Devil-May-Care because of her adventurous, eventful life. In a game in which winners for the evening are chosen, Lucy is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful heart-breaker. Leeson is a bit jealous. Tim Stevens tells her they are going aboard his boat, the Minerva, and she accedes in order not to be "a quitter". Tim is sorry that he won her company, Lucy says she is and that evidently Fate has changed it. Tim thereupon tells her to stop looking regretfully at Leeson.

Aboard Stevens' boat, the Minerva, Stevens tells Lucy of his love for her. When she replies with contempt for him, he grows violently angry and she becomes afraid of him. He says he will never let her go from the Minerva until she cepts him. To escape him, she jumps into the water from her cabin window, swimming a short distance under water.

Now Go On With the Story

The Minerva was making, she was an easy seven knots; unless she had seen her or the slight splash of her dive she would not be observed, for though the stream gleamed, it was the pale light of stars that was reflected; moon, being new, cast no beam on the sea. It would be several months before Stevens would give the Minerva, before the course of the Minerva could be altered, its searchlight to play upon the waters. Only a diver could aid them in finding that accident could hardly be aided by a thirty-foot swim beneath water. Time enough to exhaust himself thus when discovery was imminent.

Her feet sagged until they hung right down; the tired arms relaxed that black hair, shiny in the first of the sun, dipped below the water. And then her toes touched hard. She kicked violently, and her head came above the surface. There, right before her, green and lovely the morning, was land. She had a tired, too hopeless to see it; swimming on her side, she'd not look ahead for, oh, hours, it seemed. Here it was, white sand, fragrant gle. She mustered all her remaining strength. It was only a few yards, it couldn't be more than that, where the shelving beach would meet the jungle, and let her walk.

A path! That meant people. If she could only reach a house, get inside. If she only had a blanket, to keep the sun, the flies, the ants. There was a house. A shack, but it looked like the Codden house to Lucy Harkness. A veritable castle of unpainted boards. She staggered toward it, on a makeshift veranda, with a table above it, chairs, a table, and there was a bed inside. A bed!

She leaned for a moment against a coconut palm. A nut fell, crashing on the veranda a land crab, startled by the sound, looked up, saw a great white figure that stretched toward the veranda. He scuttled across the cracked boards, as the great white figures advanced, stumbled across the veranda and into the hut.

How could the crab know that it was the most harmless human in the world, just now; merely a half-drowned, semiconscious girl, naked as one had ever seen her since she was a baby, as nothing had ever seen save the sun, the sea, the jungle, and the crab?

Lucy Harkness stirred, and an instant ache rushed through her body. It was the delicious ache that follows complete exhaustion and subsequent rest.

"Oo!" said Lucy Harkness. "I could eat," she said slowly, judicially, "at least six eggs, four lamb chops, a dozen slices of hot buttered toast—"

"And six pepsin tablets," said a husky voice.

Instinctively she drew tight the raggy pajamas. The voice might have come from the room in which she stood, yet there as no one here. She stepped to the door, noticing for the first time that it stood ajar, and peeped through it.

Smiling gaily at her, the while he stirred a gallowish mess in a frying-pan that steamed above an open fire, stood a tall, slim man. He wore khaki knickers, and his white shirt had short sleeves and no collar. His hair was quite gray; green sun-glasses hid the color of his eyes; his nose was twisted slightly, as though once broken, and his wide thin lips curved in a grin that showed white teeth. For the rest, he was clean-shaven, and his hands seemed extraordinarily muscular.

"God gave me more than I deserve," she responded, "including a good digestion. Why didn't you build the fire on the windward side, and then I'd have smelled the coffee and gladdened your eyes with my presence so much sooner."

"Always a purchase price," he sighed. "Some women are bought with jewels, some with rank, and you, it seems, with coffee."

Unaware that she did so, she nodded. This was a man who could instantly catch your mood, drop into file, and march along with you.

"I'm not sure that a suit of pajamas is sufficient clothing to justify my presence at your breakfast table," she said.

"You had less on when I found you," he said dryly.

"Prudery," she retorted, slightly angered at her blush, "should begin and end at home. Behold, friend landlord, somewhere in these silken swathes, Lucy Harkness, at your service, knight of the jungle and the sea, feeder of the forlorn, rescuer of languered maidens. No, you're looking at the wrong sleeve. This is I, in the left sleeve."

He waved a gay hand at her.

"Nymph of the rosy dawn, Fergus Faunce, M. D., greets you. If you put both feet in a slipper you'll find under the bed, and jump out here, you will concede that I'm as good at a recipe as I hope you'll grant I am at a prescription."

This was nice. A gentleman, and one of easy, fluent speech, of lazy gaiety, and friendly camaraderie. She stepped back, rescued the slippers, laughed as she put her own small feet into them, and then, seeing a flannel dressing gown, reached for it. Her hand dropped back. Something in the dry quality of his voice, as he reminded her of this morning's nudity lingered in her memory. The pajamas were sufficient clothing. She shuffled out upon the veranda.

"Where do you live?" he asked, breaking a long silence.

"North. On the Lake Trail. We go along the County Road; I'll show you."

CHAPTER II

"Perhaps, Tim," she said "you don't understand women as well as you thought."

He reached out a shaking hand, but she easily avoided his grasp.

"Oh, not that, Tim, yet!"

She sank easily into a wicker chair; her gray eyes met his wondering stare calmly.

"For God's sake, Lucy, tell me—"

"What?" She smiled.

He, too, sat down, carefully, cautiously, as though he were uncertain of each movement that his big body made.

"I went to Mrs. Clary. She said . . . she'd talked to you, and . . . Lucy, what did you do? God! can't you understand how I felt? Nearly insane—"

"Fear does that," she said.

"Fear? You don't know me. It was . . . what I'd done to you . . ."

"Lucy, before God I was insane, crazy! Modane and the Japs had to hold me . . . from jumping overboard. The thing I wanted most on earth . . . was gone. Oh, Lucy! Lucy! can you ever, ever—"

"Listen, Tim; I think I like you better brutal than appealing. After all, I owe you something. We live for experience, don't we? Without experience we're dead, eh? Well, then, last night I lived. Of course the price one pays for experience isn't always too pleasant. . . I landed, naked, on a beach. I found a hut, entered, and fainted. A man found me there; he clothed me in his own pajamas, put me to bed. He happened to be a gentleman, but even so. . ."

"Lucky for him that you can say he was a gentleman," said Stevens.

She laughed.

"My chivalrous friend! You who would have dishonored me, who drove me into the sea, can glower at the mention of another man, can knot your fists. The only thing that makes the human race tolerable is its ridiculous quality."

"Who was he?" demanded Stevens.

"The very question he asked!" she laughed. "I didn't tell him, but I will tell you. Dr. Fergus Faunce, Tim,

And I think, if I asked him to, he'd operate on you without a diagnosis."

"You told him what . . . what had happened?" he asked.

"My dear man! Lucy Harkness doesn't advertise the fact that she's a fool. And to tell what had happened would be to admit that I knew so little of character that I trusted myself with a wild beast. Which would make me out a fool."

"Go on," he muttered. "I deserve it all."

"Humility is so engaging a trait," she said. "I suppose you do really believe that perhaps you deserve a scolding. I wonder if you realize that it's only by the grace of Fate you aren't facing a murder charge."

"It's by the grace of Fate that you aren't dead," he rejoined. "It was that, Lucy, that drove me mad. Not fear for me, but horror for you."

"It doesn't occur to you, Lucy, that I never dreamed you'd . . . mind? I . . . thought you loved me. The rest . . . Lucy, how could you have thought that I intended. . . I wanted to talk to you as I said. And you—I heard you open the port-hole, knew what you feared, and . . . I know . . . I had no right, no possible excuse for running away with you, but I meant to stop at Miami—"

"And produce the ring and minister, eh?" she jeered. "Of course you didn't intend to break down my door—"

"Before God, Lucy, I had no thought! I was mad. You don't understand what it is to be so obsessed with some one that . . . Wait till you love. But to hurt you . . . I was bluffing, making you think I'd go to the extreme length of keeping you on board the Minerva for weeks, but . . . And then I thought you were drowned."

He put his hands over his face, as though to shut out the dreadful picture.

"If I had wanted some one as crazily as all that, and believed that someone drowned, swishing around in the tide, I'd have joined that one I loved so much," she said coolly.

"And you think, Lucy, that I intended to live?" he demanded.

"You're not a ghost, Tim," she jeered. "You're here, in the flesh, safe and sound, pleading for me to overlook a slight error caused by boyish enthusiasm."

"Because I can't find words—no one could—to palliate what I did! How can I say, 'I'm sorry I did something that made you almost kill yourself'? But you ask why I'm alive. In another hour, had I not heard that you were alive, I'd have been dead. I was going to tell Mrs. Clary what had happened. Then, at my house, I was going to settle some affairs. An hour at most. Then . . . I'd have been as dead as I thought you were. As for Modane and the crew, I gave them nothing. I told them to keep their mouths shut for an hour. I explained that you'd had a blinding headache, gone mad from pain—"

"And Lucy Harkness was to be remembered as a suicide?" she sneered.

"Better that than to have known what really occurred. Oh, not to save my name! To save your memory!"

"Most noble man!" she murmured mockingly. "In another moment you'll have forgotten all about it and be asking me to marry you."

"Why not?" he blazed. "At least, you know how much I want you, and—"

"And that, of course, must overcome my resistance. Tim, it must be strange to meet a woman who isn't madly in love with you."

"All right, sneer!" he cried. "A moment ago you were . . . kind, Lucy. But now . . . is it all ended? Because if it is, I'm going straight from this patio to my house, and do what I'd intended to do."

She stared at him. The film had left his blue eyes and there was a gleam of almost mad determination in them. Somehow, the weakness that his too-great good looks sometimes gave his features, was entirely gone. "Quitters drop out before the race is ended," she said softly.

"Don't talk in puzzles. I want straight talk," he cried.

"How do I know?" she asked. "You commit the unforgivable. I preferred death to what I thought you had in store for me. And yet . . . I receive you; I listen to your excuses. Let's start from there, Tim Stevens."

His too-full lower lip seemed to lose its sensual appearance, to flatten with purpose.

It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois.
