Panhandle-South Plains Fair Boosters Here Friday

The Slatonite is advised that 100 Lubbock citizens, accompanied by the Lubbock High School band, will be in Slaton this Friday, Sept. 20th, for the annual good will and advertising tour for the Panhandle South Plains Fair. This word was received from E. L. Robertson, of Lubbock, who is in charge of the trip.

The delegation will arrive here about 8:15 a. m., and will remain here for a short time while the band plays several selections. Several outstanding speakers will accompany the caravan and one will make a short address.

It is important that citizens of Slaton give the Lubbock citizens a good rousing welcome, by being present and getting acquainted with the visitors. We are advised that souvenirs and novelties will be passed to the school children and the Superintendent has been requested to have the children meet the caravan. Again an opportunity for Slaton to show her hospitality to our neighbors.

Clear Weather Needed for Crop Harvesting Here

If farmers of the Slaton territory favored with clear weather and plenty of sunshine during the next few days and weeks, harvesting of cotton and other crops will soon be under way over the entire territory, it is said by farmers.

Cotton will open rapidly when warm weather is felt for a few days, while many fields are already white and ready for pickers. Some farmers have reported their need of pickers for next week, it was announced yesterday at the office of the Chamber of Commerce. Assistance will be given by that organization in placing pickers with farmers needing such help, it was announced. Pickers wanting work and farmers needing help are invited to report their wants to the Chamber of Commerce.

Churches Secure Census Data Here

Two Slaton churches, the First Christian and the First Baptist, have conducted censuses of the city during the past few days. The first census was taken last week by the First Christian group, while the Baptist committees began their work on Wednesday of this week.

Information gleaned through these censuses will be used to help the Sunday schools and other departments of the two churches enlarge the scope of their work, it was said.

FOOTBALL—THE HAS-BEENS AND WOULD-BES

The Fair at Wilson Friday and Saturday of this week will be an event. The management are all set for a full two days. They are expecting one of the largest attendances this week that they have had since the opening of their Fair.

Slaton is sending a bunch of football "has-beens" and "would-be's", and they are expecting to give the Wilson bunch a terrible drubbing. This will in all events be a rough and tumble scene. The Slaton bunch will give battle Saturday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

Slaton should support Wilson in her efforts to have a fine Fair, and we are sure they will. The line-up of the "Would Be Winners" who are to match with Wilson, is:

Ben Porter, Half, not whole.
Speedy Cannon, Quarter, not half.
Roy Wilmesmeier, Center, not on edge.

Otis Splawn, End, not center.
Bill Huckabay, Center, a would be.
Roy Bullock, Tackle, not afraid.
Duck Woolever, Full Back, not empty back.

W. O. Napps, Tackle, heap big injun.
Leon Austin, End, good for a loop.
St. Luke Shelby, Guard, without a sword.

H. M. Cook, End, say's he can.
Grover Cleveland, Half Back, may go all the way back.

W. A. Grant, Guard, with a palm leaf fan.
Bryan Deavers, Guard, may be.

Charlie Splawn, Tackle, if he is there.

GOLD IN IOWA?

Cresco, Ia.—Gold was discovered near here and caused considerable excitement. The excitement, however, was mostly on the part of the boy who made the "discovery". He picked up a gold nugget on the railroad grading near here and took it to a local jeweler, who gave it an acid test and pronounced it genuine. It was about the size of a small raisin.

Baptist S. S. Classes Enjoy Party Tuesday

Miss Clara Thomas's Sunday School class of the Baptist church were the honored guests at a party given at the club house on Tuesday evening by Mrs. R. L. Ethridge's Sunday school class.

Saturday, 14th, Is Unlucky Day For Local Man

No Friday, the 13th, but Saturday, the 14th, proved the unlucky day for L. E. Worley, local contractor, when the ladder slipped while he was working on an office building for the Lubbock Poultry and Egg Company and he fell fourteen feet to the sidewalk, breaking his leg below the knee.

Mr. Worley was taken to a Lubbock Sanitarium for treatment, where his leg was placed in a cast.

The accident victim is now at his home on 8th Street.

ELINOR GLYN STORY NOW A "TALKIE"

Elinor Glyn, famous author of torrid romances, has given another stirring story to the screen. It is First National's Vitaphone talking picture, "The Man and the Moment," starring Billie Dove at the Palace Theatre, and is a typical Glyn romance. Rod La Rocque plays the man. George Fitzmaurice directed.

BILLIE DOVE AND ROD LA ROCQUE TEAMED

Motion picture fans will see beautiful Billie Dove and popular Rod La Rocque playing together for the first time in "The Man and the Moment," the First National Vitaphone talking picture which comes to the Palace Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Both Miss Dove and Mr. La Rocque as well as the entire cast have stage experience which stood them well in the many talking sequences. It was directed by George Fitzmaurice and is said to be one of the greatest romances ever screened.

Rotarians Plan Special Program For Friday Night

A special program and banquet will be held by the Slaton Rotary Club this Friday night at the Slaton Club House, according to W. H. (Bill) Smith, president of the club. The Rotary-Anns, wives and friends of Rotarians, and the teachers of the Slaton public schools are to be guests of the club at that time.

A program for the occasion has been arranged by a committee consisting of Floyd C. Rector, Abe Kessel and Lloyd A. Wilson. The total attendance is expected to reach 125 or more. The banquet is an annual affair at this time of the year, for the Rotary-Anns and teachers.

Fair at Wilson Friday-Saturday

The second annual community fair at Wilson, ten miles south of Slaton, will be in progress through Friday and Saturday of this week. Friday is the opening day. Plans for the event were complete early this week, according to W. M. Kopecky, president of the fair.

A good attendance and a fine array of exhibits were expected for the fair, which will be held at the high school building in Wilson. Field crops, garden truck, poultry, textiles, canned fruits and vegetables and many other items will be shown. Business men of Wilson arranged a large list of premiums for the winning exhibitors.

Entertainment features will include two automobile races each day, horse races and croquet tournaments. A ten-mile race track has been prepared. Rama Grigg is in charge of all race events.

Officers of the Wilson fair this year are: W. M. Kopecky, president; J. Carl Holden, secretary-treasurer; and Rama Grigg, R. A. Kalich, August Fisher, Mrs. A. L. Faubion and Mrs. H. Watson, directors.

The fair lasted for only one day last year, but its fine success caused the decision to have a two-day fair this year.

In all the scientific talk about the health giving value of spinach we have not yet heard of a physician who has told us the obvious thing, namely that it gives you grit.

Tigers Will Face Clovis Team Here, Friday, Sept. 27

The Slaton High School Tigers will open the 1929 football season by meeting the Clovis, N. M., high school eleven in Slaton on Friday afternoon, Sept. 27, according to Coach Paul W. Wright.

Very little is known here relative to the strength of the Clovis team, but it is expected that the visitors will have a strong aggregation. Coach Wright is working daily with his men, getting them in shape for the go with Clovis here next Friday. It will be the first time the two teams have ever opposed each other.

Seven letter men are on the Tiger line-up, and the remainder of the team is being picked from a field of nearly thirty other candidates for berths on the Tiger squad this season.

The date for the Slaton-Clovis battle was one of the Tigers' open dates, unfilled after the recent season's schedule was completed. Eight other important games were arranged under that schedule. The Tigers yet have two open dates, Nov. 1 and 15.

The game with Clovis will be played at the West Ward field, next Friday afternoon.

Trade Problems Of City Talked At Rotary Meet

Some of the trade problems which confront the merchants of Slaton were discussed by two speakers, Horace G. Sanders and Jess Swint, at the luncheon of the Slaton Rotary Club last Friday at the Slaton Club House.

Among the suggestions advanced by the two speakers relative to faults now existing were lack of proper window displays, lack of sufficient advertising, failure to co-operate properly with each other as merchants, and the influence of larger towns which causes some people to imagine they can get better bargains outside of Slaton, when in reality in most instances they pay higher prices for the same article than would be paid in Slaton.

A talk on "My Impressions of Europe" was given by Abe Kessel, who recently returned from a three months trip to that continent, where he visited his parents and other relatives. He gave interesting accounts of his trip and of the things he saw and experienced while on European soil.

Casey Fine, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Z. Fine, of Posey, who was one of the three Slaton 4-H club boys whose expenses were paid by the Slaton Rotary Club last July when they attended the Farmer's Short Course at A. & M. College, gave an interesting talk on his trip to College Station. He and his father were guests of the club at the luncheon. The other boys who attended the course were guests of the club several weeks ago.

Other visitors at the meeting last Friday were Rev. James Rayburn, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, and his son, Madison; Earl Florence and Mr. Turner, Santa Fe yardmaster here.

A new member of the club was introduced at the meeting. This was Tom A. Worley, Jr., whose classification is "farm implements".

This week's meeting of the Rotary Club will be held Friday night, and will be a ladies' night program, at which all Rotary-Anns will attend, together with all teachers of the Slaton public schools. The program for the meeting has been arranged by Floyd C. Rector, Abe Kessel and Lloyd A. Wilson. It will start promptly at 8 o'clock Friday night at the Slaton Club House. There will not be a noon luncheon of the club this Friday, officers said.

The surfacing of the local streets will start soon at Alpine.

Hereford has shipped three carloads of butter to the eastern markets within one month's time. The Farmer's Creamery has provided a ready market, and interest in dairying is very much on the increase. Cream is being regularly shipped from a radius of up to 60 miles.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

When tongue or breath tells of acid condition,—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescriptional product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

IS VACATION TIME OVER?

The summer, which is generally regarded as "Vacation Time," is over. Children must go back to school and adults must get back to work again. The months of vacations, week-end trips, "taking it easy," are over.

But, one moment, Mr. Business Man. Don't think you can plunge right into work again without realizing that you need some play, too. Why not take the lesson you learned this summer. That every moment of play meant new strength, new energy. Play all year. Take little vacations from time to time. Keep up your exercises. Don't neglect yourself. A little physical culture all year is better than anything else in the world for you.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy"—work the most you can, the best you can, in the interest both of individual success and community prosperity, but don't forget to play, too!

PICK YOUR COTTON

CROP CLEAN

R. E. Overstreet, of Lubbock, director of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association, advises that "Farmers should gather their cotton as carefully and as clean as possible in order to obtain a better grade. The rains of the last few days have been of immeasurable benefit to late fall and should provide a good start in seasoning the soil for another year. Hail damage of the recent rains, however, will offset any good that the rains might have done."

Tulia has a farmer named Mules head who is past 80 years of age, who successfully farms his 100 acre farm alone. This year he had 80 acres of wheat which averaged 20 bushels per acre. All of the work except combining was done by him. The last year was summer fallowed with a team of mules.

Colleen Moore singing "A Wee Bit O' Love" in her first Vitaphone picture, "Smiling Irish Eyes," while James Hall accompanies her with his violin.

Although Colleen Moore has danced in many of her pictures, her dancing is recorded by Vitaphone for the first time in "Smiling Irish Eyes," the first National-Vitaphone special which comes to the Palace Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Colleen learned an Irish jig for this all talking and singing picture, and the rapid steps are punctuated with the clickety-click of her shoes as she goes through the dance. In previous pictures Miss Moore has proven her ability to do everything from toe-dancing to a "buck and wing," and readily picked up the steps for her jig in "Smiling Irish Eyes."

WHIPPET BRAKING SYSTEM PROVIDES AMPLE SAFETY

New Bendix Development is Effective in Making Quick Stops.

A braking system on four wheels that assures the maximum of protection and safety for quick stops has been built into both the Whippet four and six cylinder cars, according to engineers of the Willys-Overland Company, who considered ample braking power equally as vital as quick acceleration in these cars.

In the case of the Whippet Six, a two-shoe brake which is the latest Bendix development is used and gives a much better braking condition than even that which prevailed in the previous model, the engineers say. This, of course, was particularly necessary in view of the increase in weight of the car, it was pointed out.

Investigations conducted by insurance men and traffic experts interested have revealed that the biggest cause of accidents in many cities is the lack of quick braking power in automobiles. This is frequently due, of course, to neglect of the brakes through failure to have them tightened up or adjusted. Most accidents happen, it was found, at street intersections where automobiles frequently collide when the drivers find themselves powerless to stop their cars within short distances.

The braking system in the Whippet has been tested under all kinds of conditions and the distances measured to make certain that they could be brought to an immediate stop. Other tests were made to determine the rate of deceleration to find how rapidly the braking power of a throttled-down motor is effective in stopping the Whippets with the use of the brakes from various speeds.

In fact, the engineers point out that braking power is one of the most important elements in the riding comfort of a car, along with sufficient spring and ease of steering.

MANY FREE FEATURES AT LUBBOCK FAIR THIS YEAR

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 20.—"The people of the Plains will find that their fifty cents will go farther in buying entertainment at the fair this fall than it ever has before," Byron C. Dickinson, president of the Panhandle South Plains Fair says, in commenting on the fair that will be held this fall, Sept. 30 to Oct. 5.

"Fifty cents will take you to everything on the grounds with the exception of the carnival shows," Dickinson says. "And the word 'everything' applies to a free football game each afternoon, six vaudeville and circus acts twice daily, fireworks at night, and many other forms of special entertainment as well as to all the exhibits in the agricultural building, the industrial building, the machinery building, the livestock barns, the poultry building the women's building and other exhibits over the grounds."

Many improvements this year are expected to attract a big number of new people to the fair to smash the 1928 record attendance of over 120,000 people.

County agricultural exhibits are expected from every South Plains County. First prize in this class is $200 and other prizes in proportion. Premiums on live stock, poultry, articles in the Women's department and other prizes are in line with prizes and premiums of leading fairs of the Southwest.

"We're offering the people of West Texas a real fair for a total cost of fifty cents and we are expecting a big attendance," Dickinson says.

Booster trips advertising the fair are being made over the South Plains of Texas and Eastern New Mexico. Friday, Sept. 20, a caravan will swing around a loop to the southeast, making stops at Slaton, Southland, Post, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa, and Wilson, and Tuesday, Sept. 24, another caravan will make a trip to Abernathy, Hale Center, Plainview, Lockney, Floydada, Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenzo, and Idalou.

Already caravans have visited Levelland, Morton, Sudan, Muleshoe, Amherst, Littlefield, Anton, Shallowater, Wolfarth, Ropes, Meadow, Brownfield, Seagraves, Seminole, Plains, in Texas, and Hobbs, Lovington, Tatum, Elida, and Portales, New Mexico.

The Lubbock High School Band and from 25 to 30 cars are going on the trips.

No charge will be made for the football games and as everyone inside the fair grounds will be admitted to the games free, a record breaking crowd is expected each of the six afternoons.

Paul Wright, Slaton coach, will bring his Slaton High School team here Saturday, October 5, for a game with T. P. Hayes Plainview High School Bulldogs. The two teams have played here at the fair several times in the past and each game has proven to be a spectacular contest.

On Friday, October 4, the bi-district champs of 1928, Harry Taylor's Post High School Antelopes, will be here for a game with Coach Elvis E. Gilbreath's fast O'Donnell High School squad.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., St. Louis, Mo.

ARTICLE XXIV

BETTER BOARD FOR FEEDERS.

Proper Housing, Feeding and Care of Fowls Selected for Breeding is of Importance. On the Way They are Banded Depends Much of the Strength and Productiveness of Future Generations.

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

It seems fairly easy for most people to understand that horses, hogs and other animals whose young are born in the same way must be in prime condition at the time of mating or the offspring are likely to be inferior. Consequently, every precaution is taken in the way of careful housing, feeding and conditioning to make sure that animals selected for breeding are in good physical condition. Peculiarly enough, the fact that the same care should be exercised with fowls whose young are hatched from eggs does not seem to be so generally understood. Possibly, the fact that any one egg looks so much like all others causes an instinctive deduction that such is the case. However that may be, the fact remains that the same need exists for proper care of breeding fowls as for any other form of animal life. In this article, therefore, I shall give briefly some of the most important points to be observed in the care of breeders.

As the first step working toward a stronger, more vigorous, high producing flock for the future, you will naturally select only such birds as are most likely to transmit these desirable qualities. They should be one year old or over, and of good size. You will choose only your finest specimens—birds of good form with vigor, perfect health, good individual records, and desirable ancestry. Breeders must be properly fed, housed and cared for if they are to provide eggs of sufficiently high fertility.

Not the least important consideration is proper feeding. As everyone knows, chickens can be fed certain materials in such proportions as to force a relatively high yield of eggs. This should not be done with breeders. What is wanted is quality—not quantity. During the breeding season, you want as many large, perfect, fertile hatching eggs as possible, eggs from which will come strong, vigorous chicks that will live, thrive and grow rapidly. If the breeding female is forced during the winter, she may come into the breeding season in a weakened condition so that her eggs will lack fertility and vitality.

Give breeding birds a good rest after the molt and do not force egg production during the winter. Keep them on what is practically a maintenance ration—a good laying ration with the protein bearing foods such as meat scraps that are reduced in quantity and green foods. Rely mostly on hard grains well buried in litter so they will have to scratch for it.

As the breeding season approaches, gradually go back to a laying ration by increasing from time to time the quantities of protein bearing materials which constitute a considerable part of mash feeds. Be content with a fair normal yield from breeders that are never forced and you are most likely to get eggs of high quality for hatching.

Keep plenty of water, grit, charcoal and shell before your breeders at all times.

Feed breeding birds liberally, but do not overfeed so they become fat and lazy. Keep feeding down to what you can see keeps the fowls in good physical condition and promotes normal egg yield.

As a further guard against excessive fat as well as to insure necessary health and vigor, give your breeders plenty of exercise. Give them run of unrestricted range if possible, preferably where there is some form of green feed. Such a range also affords the opportunity to pick up bugs, worms and similar natural food materials which require exercise to get them.

See that houses are always well ventilated, clean and sanitary. Disinfect frequently with a good Dip & Disinfectant, to keep down lice, mites and disease germs. Remove droppings frequently and change litter often.

As for the type of house best suited for breeders, no special type is required. Any good house of the open front type that is weathertight and free from drafts or dampness will serve the purpose. Allow each bird at least 5 square feet of floor space and I would prefer 10 or more. Better too much space than too little.

In extremely cold weather, guard against frozen combs and wattles.

Adequate feeding is one precaution as properly fed birds have greater stamina. It is also necessary in unusually cold weather to have curtains over the front opening of houses; also to drop curtains before the roosts. In the case of males it is sometimes even desirable to put them in separate boxes or coops covered with burlap, since their large combs and wattles are more likely to freeze than those of the hen.

While it would be possible to elaborate considerably on the foregoing suggestions I believe that enough information has been given to guide any intelligent poultry raiser who wants to get better results from his flock.

Slaton to Play Plainview Saturday, Oct. 5

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 20.—With the Sixteenth Annual Panhandle South Plains Fair only ten days away, officials of that institution are working early and late in order to have every detail in shape when the fair gates open, September 30, for the six day exposition.

Byron C. Dickinson, president of the fair association, and A. B. Davis, manager, are directing the activities of the hundreds of superintendents, directors, employees and other officials.

Three one day booster trips will be made by citizens of Lubbock within the next few days to carry a message of good will and friendship to neighboring towns and to tell the folks over the Plains of Texas of the plans of the fair. Already one trip has been made, which included stops at Levelland, Morton, Elida, N. M., Portales, N. M., Muleshoe, Sudan, Amherst, Littlefield, Anton, and Shallowater.

Booster trips will be made in the next few days to include stops at Abernathy, Hale Center, Plainview, Lockney, Floydada, Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenzo, Idalou, Slaton, Southland, Post, Lamesa, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Seminole, Seagraves, Brownfield, Ropesville, Meadow and other points on the Plains.

"Everything will be in readiness when the fair opens," Dickinson says.

"Bigger and better can be applied to every department of the fair. More expensive free acts and fireworks have been contracted for. Six free football games including teams from Slaton, Plainview, Post, O'Donnell, Lubbock, Lorenzo, Brownfield, Ralls, Crosbyton, Levelland, Tahoka and Littlefield high schools have been scheduled. The games will be free to everyone that enters the general admission gate at the fair."

Superintendents of the poultry, live stock, agriculture, and other departments are expecting the largest and best display of any previous exposition here.

Over 120,000 people marched through the turn stiles last year and a big increase in attendance is expected this year, Sept. 30 to Oct. 6, inclusive, when the Sixteenth Annual exposition is held.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

By Nancy Hart.

DID YOU KNOW—it's the thing to have bath towels in different colors, one for each member of the family? And that most exquisite pastel colors are available—colors that make the bathroom seem like the end of the good fairy's rainbow, with peach, orchid, jade, maize, turquoise, rose, all hobnobbing together in delightful harmony.

In sanitary interests the idea was begun, the motive being to make it easy for each member of the household to detect instantly his or her own towel. For differences in color are comprehended with much greater ease than variations in shape, size or location.

All in all, we think it a charming innovation. Not only does it enliven those old-fashioned dead white bath rooms that are so woefully out of date, but it relieves us of our job of Supervisor of the Racks. When Bobby gets used to his jade towel, he never thinks of reaching for Eleanor's in peach; nor does he dare to besmirch the big, fluffy maize towel that belongs to Dad alone.

Strange that color could settle this annoying family problem without a single word of argument.

RESIDENTIAL USERS TAKE 9 PER CENT OF CURRENT

Of all the electric power sold, residential customers consume about 9 per cent; commercial customers 10; power customers 56; municipalities 4; street railways 9; all others 12. Of all the power generated, only about 83 per cent is actually sold, the remainder being lost in transmission or used by the companies themselves, according to the Electrical World.

WASHINGTON POLITICS.

It will be amusing some months hence to re-read the columns of predictions that have been written since the beginning of the 1929 Congressional bout over tariff. A moderate bill, a good bill, a monstrous bill, no bill at all, so the prophecies run from day to day. At least one thing is certain. It will not be the bill that the House passed, nor anything like it. A certain smugness inspired by the easy victory of the protectionists in the House has wavered before steady shooting, and the ambition seems to be inexhaustible. September 4th found the opposition on the ground and geared for action, and their method of pitching into the fray within an hour after the bill was reported was a noble sight.

SOUTH'S STAPLE CROP THREATENED BY FOREIGN COTTON.

Quoting Mr. Arthur Coleman from the current issue of Holland's, The Magazine of the South. "One American manufacturer uses 89 percent Egyptian cotton because he cannot get as fine or as long cotton in this country. There is no blinking the facts as they exist. American cotton supremacy is not only threatened but is slowly being undermined."

Amazing as it may sound to Southern people who look upon cotton, the bulwark of our very existence, as a matter of course and a never ending source of revenue, much cotton now grown is absolutely useless in the manufacture of anything made in this country except the shoddiest of material. Nearly fifteen per cent of the 1928 crop was untenderable on contract because of short staple, and more of this class is grown each year. Mr. Coleman states, "For many years American short cotton has been shipped to Japan and Europe where it is used in the manufacture of underwear, blankets, cheap rope, twine and other commodities. In those countries it is forced to compete in price with cotton from China and India. Cotton grown with the cheapest of cheap native labor, 'Coolie Cotton,' it has come to be called. In order to compete with this cheap cotton, American cotton must be cheaper."

"Particularly it must be cheaper than Indian cotton, for India raises a short cotton that is the best for uses to which it is put, to be had. There are mills in America where domestic short cotton could not supplant Indian cotton if the American cotton was given away. "India's cotton is stronger and better than American short cotton. China's cotton is better. This is not my opinion. It is a statement of a cotton goods manufacturer who operates one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country and whose product is nationally recognized as one of the best."

Mr. Coleman points out how and why short staple, untenderable cotton, is becoming more popular with Southern farmers; how this affects the price of all cotton; what this means to Southern business and many other facts about cotton which most Southerners who have seen cotton all their lives know little about. The proposition is serious enough that good constructive thought should be given the matter. With our agricultural schools scattered over the Southland, the duty of these schools would seem to us, to be used for the propagation of a longer fiber cotton, the breeding up of the stock we now have and eventually the short fiber becoming a matter of history. There is far too much held over each year which works a detriment to the best grades, and it is largely of the kind mentioned, even the government takes this stock into consideration when placing an estimate. There is indeed a great scope for some good constructive work to save the Southern cotton farmer.

Spur has changed the position of its White Way. The light posts until recently, were in the center of the street, but are now shedding their light from the curb. This expensive move was found necessary because of the posts being a hindrance to traffic.

ROADS FOR THE FUTURE.

It is common for roads that were built a comparatively few years ago to become dangerous because of the amazing increase in motor travel. Narrow surfaces, overly steep hills and unbanked turns constitute a serious menace in these days of congested, high speed traffic.

Progressive communities are protecting their own futures by building wider roads to care for the still greater traffic of tomorrow. It is said on good authority that all highways of importance should be broad enough to carry two lanes of traffic in both directions.

Even in rural districts, where expense of road building is preeminent, low cost oil and asphaltic surfaces are providing the farmer and rural dweller with high grade highways, reasonable to build and maintain. In this modern age, civilization follows the highway and a community with insufficient or poor roads must exist in an undeveloped state.

BETTER CONSTRUCTION REDUCES FIRE WASTE

Teaching carefulness in regard to fire is a never-ending job, in the opinion of C. A. Ludlum, of the National Fire Waste Council.

"It seems to be necessary," he says, "if any impression is to be made, to create, if possible, a habit of caution and carefulness on the part of the individual citizen by constant reiteration and preachment of fire prevention.

"It is admitted and recognized that all fire losses are in the final analysis paid by society and that every fire loss accordingly represents a real loss to society, but the average individual is not much concerned over the final analysis from which he feels himself quite remote.

"Building to resist fire is as important as is the teaching of carefulness, and it should be apparent that all organizations interested in America's fire-safety and the conservation of its created resources should sponsor a safe and sane construction program that would reflect credit upon community intelligence, and combine their resources and informed knowledge to bring about greater fire resistance in buildings."

JOHN A. HOLMES MEETS DEATH AT THE HANDS OF AN ASSASSIN

Borger has again been the scene of a most atrocious murder. This time, a respected and honored citizen, John A. Holmes, district attorney for Hutchinson county met his death, at the hands of an assassin. Friends and associates met at Panhandle Monday to pay their last respects and final tribute to one who became a martyr in the discharge of his duties in upholding the law.

Governor Moody ordered the Texas Rangers, Capt. Tom Hickman and Frank Hamer to assist in the investigation, and to apprehend the criminals. It is shocking to the human mind that there should be at large characters of this kind, and those who would kill a man in the discharge of his sworn duty. The people of Texas are hoping and praying that the miscreants may be brought to justice and pay the penalty of their crime.

JUNIOR HIGH ITEMS.

We have an interesting new student in the person of Robert Suckles, a member of "The Harley Sadlers Troop." He is a very active boy and no doubt will make a good actor. He is in the seventh grade and is taking a part in the story of Columbus, in the United States history class.

About twenty boys are coming out for football this season. Some good material is showing up and we expect to develop a good team this year.

The girls of Junior high are practicing basketball. There is keen competition for places. The team will be selected in the near future.

The pupils of west ward school are trying to raise money for the purchase of basketballs and footballs. They have decided to sell candy and pop at all football games played in Slaton to add to this fund.

Two hundred students have enrolled to date in Junior High and the enrollment continues to increase.

Mr. Green, our new Superintendent, visited west ward Tuesday. We are always glad to have him with us.

Mrs. R. W. Ragsdale is in charge of the West Ward Cafeteria this term, and she is being ably assisted by Miss Joe Ann Coleman.

The attendance of pupils in Junior High has been excellent, notwithstanding the recent heavy rains.

Principal Roberts has requested that the pupils of west ward pay better attention to the time of their arrival on the school grounds in the morning, and reminds us that it is against the rules to come before 8:30. G. T. (ZEKE) BALDWIN, Junior High Reporter.

AGAIN: THE MEXICAN BEET FARMER

The New York Evening World has stepped vigorously into the fight against a higher tariff on sugar with a series of articles the first of which appeared on August 12th.

Says Robert Barry, the World's correspondent:

"With all he has to do, it seems an injustice to press Smoot for facts about the downtrodden American sugar beet farmers he champions" and under the subhead, Horrors of the Sugar Field, the writer gives "on basis of what has been stated officially" the following facts:

"The 'downtrodden farmers' in the sugar beet fields are Mexican women and children for the most part."

"Work in the beet fields is such back-breaking slavery Americans will not undertake it."

"Mexican women and children obtained by unscrupulous labor agents do the job."

"Children as young as six years of age are so employed."

"Boys and girls ten to thirteen, work fourteen to sixteen hours daily under a broiling sun in the early part of the season; when harvesting comes they labor in mud, which oozes through their scant and shabby cotton clothing and cakes on their bodies or in the sudden snow flurries of freezing temperatures of Colorado their hands crack and bleed and their thin garments are frozen to their bodies."

"Nursing mothers, working in the beet fields, have 'dog houses' in which they park their newly born babies so as to have them within reach at feeding time."

"From three to seven persons sleep in every room of the two-room shacks provided for the field laborers and one little boy told Federal inspectors everybody could not sleep at the same time so they had to sleep in shifts."

Mr. Barry quotes the departments of agriculture and labor in contrast to statements made by Charles B. Timberlake, Colorado congressman and beet grower who was chairman of the sub-committee of the House Ways and Means Committee which wrote the sugar schedule.

A teacher was instructing her class in the use of antonyms. "Now, children," she said, "what is the opposite of sorrow?"

"Joy," shrieked the class in unison.

"What is the opposite of pleasure?"

"Pain."

"And what is the opposite of woe?"

"Giddap!"—The Farrow.

What Will you do When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Your After-Summer Complexion

No matter how much you have read and heard about the necessity for preventing bad cases of sunburn and tan, the chances are that this month finds you with at least minor discolorations and probably major ones.

And now as you begin to plan your new fall wardrobe you are realizing that, however becoming tan may be on the beach and with summer frocks, it is not the most becoming complexion with the formal styles and colors of fall.

Will you bleach, then? It is one sure way to be certain of a skin that looks lovely with any color at any time during the coming season. For remember, if you wish to be tan with some colors you can always wear a gypsy powder!

The bleach you use will depend upon the result you wish to obtain. In the first place, there are all varieties of tan to contend with, from the light golden to the deep copper-bronze, which usually remains well into the winter months.

For a mild tan try the following recipes: Make an infusion of parsley and horseradish and apply it to the skin. Horseradish infusion is made by pouring a cup of boiling water on two tablespoons of freshly ground horseradish. Parsley infusion is made in the same way. Cool, strain, mix them and use together.

To remove a deep tan try this stronger preparation: Mix magnesia and rose water into a paste. Leave it on the skin from 15 to 20 minutes and wash off with water softened with oatmeal or almond meal. The oatmeal may be thrown loose into the water or tied into a little cheese-cloth bag.

If you are still suffering from the irritation of sunburn, bathe with lime water and olive oil to which a small portion of boric acid is added. Use one part of lime water to two parts of oil, adding about five percent boric acid.

For severe cases of freckles and tan that do not respond to this treatment, procure a reputable freckle or bleach cream and use according to direction. HELENA RUBINSTEIN.

HORTENSE RAGLAND TO BE STARRED IN OPERA THIS MONTH

Miss Hortense Ragland, a former Post girl, who is receiving praise throughout the East for her singing, is to be in Hammerstein's opening this month, according to word that has been received from her friends here.

She has been singing recently in the Watch Y'r Step Cabaret in Asheville N. C., where her beauty and personality and singing have come in for much praise in the papers in that city.

Miss Ragland is to be starred in Arthtur Hammerstein's light opera, "Madeline" this month.

Miss Ragland is a former Post girl having lived here during her first school days. She won a name and a place for herself in musical circles at that early date by singing at various church and social functions. We extend to her "congratulations" on this latest accomplishment.—Post Dispatch

Anthrax Among Cattle in Nolan Co.

The livestock owners in Nolan County are confronted with a very serious situation, according to reports as anthrax has broken out among the cattle in the vicinity of Sweetwater and in various parts of Nolan County.

The disease cannot be stamped out. The only way of ridding the country of the horrid disease is to vaccinate the cattle every spring, as the germs live from year to year no matter what kind of weather prevails.

The assistant State Veterinarian, Dr. S. A. Burnam, has issued a warning to stockmen to continue the treatment for anthrax.

What Happened Before.
Remember Steddon comes West to avoid revealing the result of an unfortunate love affair to her father.

The Rev. Dr. Steddon, a clergyman of kind heart but narrow mind who attributes much of the evil of the world to the "movies" and constantly inveighs against them. Mem, her lover, Elwood Farnaby having died in an accident, at the advice of Dr. Brethrick, gives her bad cough as an excuse to get to Arizona and from there writes home that she has met and married "Mr. Woodville," a wholly imaginary person. Later she writes again to say that her "husband" has died in the desert. She takes a job as a domestic to avoid being a burden on her parents. A fall prevents her becoming a mother. In Arizona she had met

Tom Holby, a leading man in a motion picture company, and through him gets the opportunity to play a part in a desert drama. With the company is

Robina Teale, a Star, fond of Holby and Leva Lemaire, an extra woman. After her accident, Mem becomes friendly with Mrs. Dack, a poor woman of Palm Springs, Arizona, and takes an interest in her bright little son.

Terry Dack, who has a great gift for mimicry. Inspired by a letter from Leva, Mem plans to go to Los Angeles to take a job in a film laboratory.

She gets a job in a film laboratory, but loses it. She meets a Mrs. Sturgis from her home town, who talks of the evils of the movies and says the stars are forced to sell their souls. Mem then learns her mother is coming to visit her. Mem is worried about her finances.

She sees a casting director, Arthur Tirrey, and abruptly offers herself to him in return for a job in the movies. He tells her the talk about "paying the price" is all rot. Meanwhile the attention of Mr. Bermond, head of the company, is diverted to her and he decides to give her a chance. Soon she finds herself posing with Claymore as her director, obeying his commands in a kind of stupor.

Mem's father reads a publicity story, calling her "the prettiest girl in America" and writes a letter of protest to his wife and daughter. Mem's fame begins to spread, and Claymore, the director, takes an unusual interest in her. He is infatuated with Mem but tries to be aloof and professional to hide the fact from the company.

Now Go On With the Story

He never said anything, however, but he might not have said before a crowd. He never tried to hold her and or snatch a kiss or filch an embrace. Mem was constantly set quivering with expectancy that he would make some advance, some gesture of endearment, yet always unable to decide just what she would do if he did, but he didn't.

The picture and its final retakes were finished on a Saturday afternoon. There was an evening's idleness ahead. Claymore asked Mem to take a drive in his car, a long farewell light about the familiar and unvisited roads. She accepted meekly, something told her that this drive was important to her fate.

Something was always telling her something. Nine times out of ten it was false, but she forgot the failures and recalled the coincidences.

Nobody had yet asked Mem for her respect as an initiation fee or an initiation rite. She was paid a weekly wage based upon her ability, her experience, and her usefulness. She was paid in coin of the realm.

Her price would rise and fall according to the general market for young pictures and her specific class. Her emotions and her beauty were commodities, and Steddon would be quoted on the Soul Exchange as the demand for it rose or fell, as the bidders for it increased or diminished.

Claymore had been chaperoned by a company and his own reverence and discipline. But now she was out on her authority. Both were outside of Bermond inclosure. And they were as helpless together as any other twain whom nothing restrains or separates in the undertow of passion. They were two emotional people without a barrier.

Among the countless things said about the hows and whys of women's surrenders one motive seems to have been too much ignored, though it must have exerted a vast influence as women go more and more into the worlds of business, of art, and of freedom with only themselves for their guardians.

Good sportsmanship, a hatred of smugness, a contempt for too careful self-protection, a disgust for a holier-than-thou self-esteem—these are amiable attitudes of mind that make for popularity. To be a miser of one's graces, a hypochondriacal coddler of one's virtues, is to be unloved and unlovable.

So many a man will gamble, break a law, risk his career, his health, his life, get drunk, steal, slay, and play the fool rather than face the reproach that he is a mollycoddle, a Puritan, a prig, a Miss Nancy, a coward, a Pharisee.

And many a woman who would not yield for love or luxury must have consented for fear of seeming to be overproud, stingy, cold, proudish, disobeying, superhuman, subnormal, un-sportsmanlike.

Mem had been swept once beyond the moorings by a summer storm of devotion to young Farnaby, her first love. Now she was to feel her anchors cut adrift by the gracious gesture of good fellowship with a colleague.

The Ocean Drive stretched along a forest of palms like huge coconuts dark against the gaudy west. The automobiles of every make were so many that they were almost one long automobile, or at least a chain on which they slid as black beads. Their lights were coming out now like early stars in a twilight sky. For miles and miles the highway mounted and writhed along the steep precipices, hugging the rocks to let pass car after car with lamps flashing in front of blurred passengers.

In almost every "bay" where there was a bit of space a motor had stopped and drawn close to the cliffside in the dark, each car a wheeled solitude, a love boat at anchor in a stream of cars ignoring and ignored. There was a strange influence in this recurrent mystery. Everywhere lovers were hiding themselves in conspicuous concealment. Mem felt disgust at the first dozen, amusement or contempt for the next fifty, tolerance for the next, and—Claymore did not speak of them or anything else. He was too busy twirling the wheel and gauging the little distances between the edge of the cliff and the cars that whizzed past.

Halfway up the canon his headlight ransacked a black cove and found no motor in possession of the estuary of night. And here, to Mem's dumb astonishment, he abruptly checked his car, swung in off the road against the wall of rubble, and stopped short with a sigh of exaggerated fatigue.

"Well," he groaned "this is a drive! I'll rest a bit if you don't mind. Pretty here, eh?"

From their cavern of gloom they looked across a fathomless ravine to a mountain on which the risen moon poured a silent Niagara. In the dazzling radiance a creamy shaft of yucca stood, a candle blown out in a deserted cathedral.

The night air was of a strange gentleness, and the cars that shot by threw on light into their retreat.

There was a long, long silence that filled Mem with a terror she could not quite fail to enjoy. She could not tell whether she heard her own heart-beats or his, but excitement was atrob together in the little coach that had brought them so swiftly to this remote seclusion.

Claymore was dumb so long that Mem had time to cease to be afraid of what he would say, and to begin to wish that he would get it said, so that she could know what her answer would be.

She felt a baffling uncertainty of herself. She could not imagine what she might do or say. She had not had much experience of men, but enough to know that before long he would initiate the immemorial procedure that starts with an arm adventuring about a waist and a voyage after a kiss.

She told herself that the only right and proper thing to do would be to resist, protest, forbid, and prevent at any cost the profanation of her sacred integrity. If necessary, she must fight, scratch, scream, escape, run away, appeal for help to any passer-by, or, as a last resort, leap over the cliff and die for honor's sake.

But who was that She and who was that Herself that told each other so many things?

Herself told She that Mr. Claymore could not be treated as an or-

"Sorry to interrupt you, folks, but I need your money."

inary ruffian, an insolent, outrageous knave, a fiend. He had treated her with most delicate courtesy from the first, he had given her his admiration, his praise, his devotion, his mute but evident affection.

If he loved her and revealed his love, she could hardly reward his patient chivalry with prompt ingratitude and violence and fear. That would make her the insulter, not him.

She must be very gentle with him and ask him kindly to forbear and not to spoil the pleasant friendship that she had prized.

If Mr. Claymore should propose marriage, that would make his caresses acceptable—according to some canons, though not to all. But he could not marry her and she did not want to marry him. She did not want to marry anybody just now. She was a free woman in a free country.

She was not free, however, from the witchery of this night, this dream, the vast yearning of this mountaine-cold loneliness of the world.

Her thoughts spun giddily in her mind, all entangled with a skein of romantic threads. She was young and pretty and time was wasting her flowerly graces. Some one bloomed!

While she debated within herself, as doubtless innumerable women have in similar plights, Claymore's own mind was a chaos of equally ancient platitudes of a man's philosophy.

At length he found the courage or the cruelty to slip his arm about Mem's waist and to draw her close to him. He was almost more alarmed than delighted to find that she hardly resisted at all.

He took her hands in his and whispered, "Your poor little hands are cold!"

Then he kissed them with cold lips that he lifted at once to hers and found them warm and strangely like a rose against his mouth.

He was as much amazed as if hers were the first lips he had ever kissed—as if he had just invented kissing. Then is a frenzy of wonder he closed her in his arms with all his power. He did not know that the wheel bruised her side, and neither did she.

But she forgot to debate her duty or to think of her soul. She thought only of the rapture of this communion, and her arms stole around his neck and she clenched him with all the power of her arms.

Mem, swooning she knew not whither, was awakened from her mad rapture by a low voice across her shoulder.

"Sorry to interrupt you, folks, but I need your money!"

She turned and found herself blinded by the glare from a motor halted at a little distance. Dazzled as she was, she could see the gaunt hand that held before her a black pistol with a glint outlining its ugly muzzle.

Claymore was sane enough to attempt no resistance, though he almost perished of chagrin. He endured the insolence of the masked stranger who stole the chain and a wallet and the loose silver.

The blackguard held his clubbed pistol over Claymore's head a moment, then forebore to strike, and dropped from the step with a last warning.

"Sit pretty now and keep 'em up till I git goin' or Ill—"

His car shot around the curve.

Claymore brought down his aching arms. They were too much ashamed of themselves to return to their late post about Mem's shoulders.

A preverse remorse filled their souls with confusion; a remorse because of a wrong remorse, a disgust for an unaccepted temptation and for being so temptable.

A woman never quite forgives a man for not dying for her at the first opportunity. She probably never quite forgives him for dying, either.

So the clever man evades the situation where a choice is required, as the virtuous man evades temptation while it is yet far off.

VOLTAIRE, A MASTER VIRTUE. STAYING POWER.

Frequently a reader encounters these two words: "Voltaire said." I always read what follows; sometimes I do not understand it, occasionally I disagree, but always I recognize a master mind and hand.

Some will not read him; they have heard he was a mean and foolish little man. On the contrary, he was so unusual that he is still encouraging or distressing his fellow men.

If you read of Napoleon you soon note he had a good deal of respect for Voltaire. You have undoubtedly heard of Frederick the Great, who had the advantage of being a king to start with. Voltaire was a much smarter man; he has had far greater influence on the world. In spite of faults inevitable and natural in any human machine, Voltaire came nearer having intelligence than any other living organism.

I give him no credit; he simply had it. Instead of being born a pitiful fool, he was born with the world's greatest mind. Some of the famous prophets were weaklings compared to him; Mahomet's personal history convicts him frequently of being an ass—indeed, I know of no great mystic among rulers who had a really good mind.

Voltaire won his fame as fairly as has evolution; every scholar has added him up, and given him great credit.

This long introduction to a quotation from Voltaire I just encountered in reading: "All men are equal; but it is not birth but virtue which makes them so."

In the gross sentimentalism of our conversation and reading the declaration that we are all equal is a favorite; but remember that a man really able to think says you are only equal to another if you have his virtues.

And virtue is a simple word; it means a high average in the sort of conduct the world has decided is good. The dictionary gives some pages to the word virtue, but it all condenses into this; a high average in fairness, honesty, industry, temperance, usefulness in small or great ways, and thrift in health and business.

And the lowliest of us may profit from the practice of virtue.

I have received many letters in a single delivery of mail, and not one of real interest; but I received one today that caused me to take notice. "The heroics of human life," the writer said, "do not consist in spectacular circumstances; in great deeds, or in the taking of cities, but in the staying powers we have for the monotony of title things that make up the long hard siege of living and behaving creditably." . . . This, it seems to me, is wise; had I encountered it in Emerson or Aristotle, I should have been moved no more than I was by this utterance of one of the plain people of 1929.

Harley Sadler's Personality Shines Through Success

Harley Sadler, who in the last eleven years has jumped from a barnstorming "canvas man" to the owner of one of the best tent shows in the United States, is furnishing for the people of Slaton high class entertainment this week.

Mr. Sadler's personality is a feature that sets him aside from the crowd. A smile for everyone he meets, a big heart and a helping hand for the needy. He treats all alike, from the little boy who delivers his handbills to the preachers who attend his performances and who many times use his tent for services. He is a medium built blond, and is filled with a spontaneous amount of boyish enthusiasm.

Harley's one childhood dream was to be an actor. This ambition remained with him, and in his early youth he became publicity manager for a one-night show and toured the north-west coast of the United States.

"When the call of the tent show gets into your blood, you never want to leave it," said Mr. Sadler. "I left the life of the canvas in 1911 and studied law at Reynold's Military College, but returned to the road in 1912 and have been with it ever since, with the exception of the time in 1917 when I tried to join the army and was rejected."

In 1912 Sadler joined Richard Man-

dell's tent show and was so excited over part work that he did not mention salary. Too, he was afraid he would be "fired" if he should ask for compensation.

The next job was with Renfrow's "Jolly Pathfinders", and then for six years, he barnstormed with first one company and then another. Sometimes a salary was paid; sometimes it was not, and he did all kinds of work from working for canvas and painting props to painting sidewalk signs and helping to pack.

But since 1925 Harley Sadler has been manager of the show which bears his name, and which has been visiting this city for the past eleven years.

Mr. Sadler is married and has one child, Gloria, who is a talented dancer.

"The greatest kick that I get out of life is knowing that I am pleasing the public and making life a little more happy for everyone," said Mr. Sadler. "Comedy is my forte, but I have always wanted to have a part in a play with dramatic moments," he continued. "I am happy in the fact that I believe I have the good will of every city in which I have played and I know our return to one has never failed to meet with generous welcome. I had rather have the good will of the people in the sixty West Texas towns we play, than to be rich. Why, if I had a chance to go to Broadway tomorrow, I would turn it down to keep making the engagements with the tent show."

Mr. Sadler's shows are clean morally and he does not believe in sex stuff and bedroom farces, but rather in clean comedy.

He is a member of the Waco Kiwanis club and of the Sweetwater Rotary club and is always a gracious guest at any kind of a civic program when in our city.

All of these things have made Harley Sadler an outstanding success, and not a success in the monetary sense alone, although he is making money in his business, but in the sense that he is living in accord with his fellowmen, and improving the work in which he delights.

"Very Latests"

By Cecile
For the first cool days of fall—what more charming than this feminine little coat by Lucien Lelong, developed in green crepe and trimmed with grey fox fur? It is still too warm for be-furred collars—yet we do crave the touch of fur. Here the collar and cuff treatment gives us both in a swagger and most comfortable way.

The flared lines of the skirt section, too, are interesting. Trimly flat they lie against the figure at the front and sides, with the circular suggestion occurring toward the center back in a form that gives the dipping back movement which is very new in coats.

Fullness Placed Low on Coats
While well aware that fall coats will be fuller than those we have worn for some time—do we all know that this fullness will be placed low?

Also, that coats will be at least two or three inches longer than formerly? These are two important points to remember—if you are looking for a coat that's very latest.

Dairymen are Cautioned on False Economy

Cow Should be in Good Condition at Calving Time.

Dairymen often make the mistake of cutting down the amount of grain fed to non-producing cows, when the price of feed rises.

"The rise in the prices of feeds that we have witnessed during the last month should not tempt dairy men to feed less grain to cows on pasture, and particularly to dry cows," says Professor E. S. Savage, of Cornell. He calls it false economy to thus lower milk production later on, and thereby to reduce returns and profits for the entire year.

"Feeders who appreciate the need of getting the largest quantity of milk will feed more grain, in addition to pasture," says Professor Savage, "rather than less, and will feed green forage, silage, hay, and grain to maintain present milk flows and to put the dry cows in the best shape for fall freshening."

"The feed and care given the dairy herd during the late summer has a big influence on their production several months later. This is especially true of fall freshening cows. Experiments have shown that a cow produces more milk and butter fat if at calving time she is not only in a good thrifty condition, but also if she carries a far amount of fat. During the first months of her milk flow, a good dairy cow will change this body fat over into milk fat, thus increasing her yield."

A ration recommended by Professor Savage for dairy cows, consists of 300 pounds of corn, meal or hominy, 300 pounds of ground oats or barley, 300 pounds wheat bran, and 100 pounds linseed meal.

The Great Emancipator--

Two-thirds of the power in the industrial plants of the United States is electric. The total amount of electrical energy at work in American industry and American homes is one billion horsepower. This energy is capable of doing the work of ten billion men—five times more than the entire population of the earth.

MACHINERY alone has made human liberty possible. In the civilization of the ancient world, slavery or serfdom was an economic necessity. The only source of power, except for a limited use of wind and water mills, was human or animal.

Today, man's hands have been freed from the bondage of labor by mechanical devices which permit him to live by mind rather than muscle.

The American workman is the most prosperous on earth because each worker has available for the operation of these mechanical devices an average of four horsepower—forty manpower.

Having won economic stability through the medium of cheap and abundant power the American home has emerged from the struggle for subsistence to a new struggle for living. And here again it finds electricity its ally.

Bennett and Hamilton On Simmons Squad

ABILENE.—With 35 men reporting twice daily for stiff workouts, the Simmons University Cowboys are rapidly rounding into shape for a tough season which will start off with two Southwestern Conference teams. Coach Frank Bridges' charges will meet Texas University here on September 28 and T. C. U. at Breckenridge on October 6.

The Simmons coach has stressed fundamentals in the first few days of practice and the rapidity with which the men are improving in blocking, tackling, and charging indicates that the Cowboys will start the season this year with a much more finished team than they did last season.

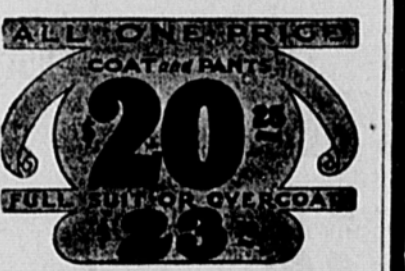

Fourteen letter men have reported. They are: Smith, Jennings, and Gregg, ends; Pearce, Ribble, and Culpepper, tackles; Daniel, guard; Allen and Golightly, centers; Hyde, captain, quarterback; Sanders and Kuhn, halfbacks; Houghton, fullback.

Former squadmen who are pressing letter men hard for their places are: "Stump" Hamilton of Slaton, guard; "Red" Bennett, of Slaton, center; Vernon Stafford of Wellington, end; "Steve" Marshall, of Floydada, fullback.

Hamilton is almost assured of a regular place, Stafford is likely to be a starter, and the big Marshall boy is showing rapid improvement. His punting and line ramming ability are standing him in good stead.

Other squadmen to report were: Davison, McLeod, tackles; Gallimore, Fitzgerald, guards; Crawford, Harris, ends; Cooper, Rushing, Lefty Hamilton, L. Golightly, halfbacks.

Although not large in number the new material offers the most promising array of freshmen ever to try out for the Cowboy team. Every man is a possibility and everyone of them promises to make some letter man hustle to hold his position. The backs

JERSEY HEN LAYS AN EGG WHILE ALOFT IN PLANE

Atlantic, N. J.—The first chicken to lay an egg in a flying air-plane is "Petunia", a local hen. Jack Brogan of Mays Landing is her owner. He took her for a ride in a sightseeing plane and when the trip was over "Petunia" left an egg behind her. Brogan says the hen wanted to show her appreciation to the pilot for his able handling of the plane.

HOME OWNERSHIP.

Men will fight to protect homes but never to protect boarding houses. Patriotism, loyalty to community and country, has its roots deeply imbedded in individual home ownership. No dangerous radical ever owns his own home. When a man possesses the roof over his head he develops a high regard for the rights of others because he has also developed a sense of the importance of his own rights.

This is the broader significance of home ownership—quite apart from the pleasure and satisfaction it brings to the individual. This is the reason that we wish to see Slaton develop into a community consisting entirely of citizens who own their own homes.

It is from the home owner and property owner that we may expect realistic thinking and well directed effort destined to make the community more attractive and more pleasant. It is the property owner who wants to see his community progress, who wants to see it headed by capable and efficient officials, who wants to develop the town into a well ordered community, with its business institutions constantly growing in order that there may be greater opportunities for every individual here.

This is why we advocate home ownership. This is also why we are quite proud of our community. Most of its citizens now live in homes of their own, and we believe that they are better people, more intelligent citizens, because of that fact than are thousands of apartment house dwellers.

HIGHER COSTS OR HEALTH AND SICKNESS

Careless Senators are taking away our vitamins by making tomatoes a luxury. They propose also to increase the cost of sickness through high duties on X-ray apparatus.

The importance of the vitamins and the value of X-ray treatments are two factors in health that medical science has stressed during recent years. Doctors have pointed out that tomatoes are especially rich in the vitamins used to combat rickets, scurvy and similar diseases. Tomatoes are essentially necessary in the diet of invalids and children. We obtain a plentiful, cheap supply of tomatoes from Cuba and other tropical countries during the winter months when they cannot be grown in abundance here. The 100 percent increase in duty proposed by the Senate Finance Committee, if passed, will make these vegetables practically prohibitive except to the very wealthy.

X-ray tubes are now imported free, but X-ray examinations are even at present an expensive burden to the average person. A 30 percent ad valorem duty has been recommended by the Finance Committee. Unless our protectionists are stopped, the importation of tubes will be almost impossible, and specialists have testified as to the inferiority of American made tubes.

A House rate of 70 percent on surgical instruments aroused such indignation that it was reduced to 40 percent by the Senate Committee. A bombardment of scathing comment against the tomato and X-ray schedules, it is hoped, will bring even better results in the case of these two most outrageous and unjustifiable items of tariff tinkering.

THE TRAGIC RECORD.

As another summer draws toward its close the newspapers are crowded with reports of devastating fires. A dropped cigar or cigarette, a campfire incompletely extinguished—such little careless things as these have resulted in the destruction of magnificent forests, great factories and thousands of homes.

The most tragic part of it all is that the waste is entirely unnecessary. It is a matter of moments only to properly put out a fire or step on a burning cigar stub, or properly inspect a building for possible risks. Yet when these small tasks are left undone the result may be one conflagration that wrecks the work of years.

A little care and a little knowledge and a little energy on the part of our citizens would reduce our fire loss to a minimum. The fact that losses have been decreasing, slowly, for two years, is hopeful but inconclusive. Our fire record remains a national disgrace, a black blot on our efficiency and prosperity.

Insurance and fire-resistant construction of buildings and fire patrols in our parks and forests, are necessary protections. But valuable as they are, they can never be a substitute for individual "fire carefulness". And we pay each year for our carelessness with close to half a billion dollars, beside the inestimable loss in business and in human life.
