Local Business Men Underwrites Special Train

1,000 POULTRY SHOW CATALOGS MAILED TO EXHIBITORS; PLANS BEING COMPLETED FOR SHOW

Work of mailing 1,000 catalogs of the first annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry Show, to be held in Slaton on December 10, 11 and 12, was practically completed yesterday in the local Chamber of Commerce office. The catalogs are being sent to local poultrymen and to prospective poultry exhibitors in the 54 Northwest counties that are included in the regional show's territory.

The show will open on Wednesday, closing Friday, this year, whereas the local poultry show in Slaton has always opened on Thursday, ending on Saturday. The show will be held in the Talley-Ragsdale building, formerly occupied by the Acorn store, one block west of the square.

Judges of the show will be I. L. Bandy, of Godley, Texas a licensed American Poultry association judge, who will make all awards for breed types, which will be entered in pens and singles; and D. H. Reid, of the extension department, Texas A. & M. college, who will make the awards for birds entered as flocks, and which will be judged strictly on a production basis.

A county premium list has been included, offering first, second, third and fourth cash prizes to counties having the best displays in the show. Five flocks (forty-five birds) will constitute a county display. A flock consists of eight females and one male bird. There must be as many as three county displays before these premiums will be awarded.

The premiums for flocks and for pens and singles are liberal, and four cash prizes are offered for winners in each division, pens and singles and flocks. This makes it possible for the exhibitor to get his entry fees back if he wins nothing more than fourth prize. A ribbon will go to each fifth prize winner.

Attractive premiums are also listed for club boys and girls.

An outstanding feature of the show will be the Poultry Short Course on Thursday, the second day of the show. These meetings will be held in the Texas Theatre, next door east of the poultry show building. The program will begin at 10:30 a. m. with an address on "Sanitation and Equipment," by R. B. Galoway, of Amarillo. At 11 a. m. D. H. Reid, of the Texas A. & M. college extension service will speak on "Selection of Breeding Pens, Mating, Standardization of Flocks."

At 2 p. m. I. L. Bandy, of Godley, Texas, one of the show judges, will speak on "Selecting and Fitting Birds for Show Purposes." He will be followed by R. C. Mowery, of Tech college, who will speak at 2:30 on "Care and Feeding." Following Mr. Mowery's address, D. H. Reid will speak at 3 o'clock on "Standardization of Poultry and Eggs."

The annual meeting of the officers of the show and the exhibitors will be held on Wednesday night, December 10, at the Slaton clubhouse. Vocational agricultural teachers of the Panhandle-Plains section will have their meeting at noon on Friday, continuing into the afternoon.

Slaton Man Will Speak To Legion Post, O'Donnell

At a special meeting of the O'Donnell Legion Post next Monday night in that city, L. A. Wilson, Liaison Officer of the local Legion Post, will deliver an address pertaining to the meaning of Armistice Day.

Arrangements for this meeting and the address by the Slaton speaker were completed through the State Legion Department. Likewise, arrangements were made for a Brown-field man to speak to a special meeting of the Slaton American Legion Post and Auxiliary here Monday night.

Armistice Day Parade, Program Tuesday Morning

A public parade and program, in observance of Armistice Day, will be held next Tuesday morning beginning at 10 a. m. the event being sponsored by the local American Legion Post, with Slaton public school teachers and pupils co-operating.

Pupils for the four Slaton schools will join with Slaton ex-service men in a parade around the public square, ending at the bandstand on the city lawn, where a brief patriotic program will be observed, after which those attending will have ample time to get their lunches before leaving on the special train for Lamesa at 12:30 o'clock.

All ex-service men, whether they are members of the American Legion or not, are urged to meet at the city hall at 9:30 a. m. and join in the parade at 10 a. m.

The program will be open to the public, and everybody is invited, said J. A. Elliott, commander of the Legion Post here.

Music and Talks Feature Meeting of Rotary Club

Slaton Rotarians had an unusually interesting program Friday, consisting of special music and talks on Halloween.

Miss Leslie Louise Head, teacher of violin in Slaton public schools here; Miss Jeannette Ramsey, teacher of piano in the schools here; and C. V. Head, local architect, were the musical entertainers. Miss Head gave violin numbers, accompanied by Miss Ramsey at the piano. Violin duets were then given by the brother and sister, duo Mr. Head and Miss Head, accompanied by Miss Ramsey. These numbers were appreciated very highly by club members.

"The Origin and Meaning of Halloween" was the subject discussed by T. E. (Rod) Roderick. Horace G. Sanders told of some of his Halloween pranks when he was a boy. Robert H. Tudor and Jess Swint were scheduled to reveal some of their youthful depredations at Halloween time, but were not present when called upon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Price and T. A. White, of Lubbock, were among the guests at the luncheon.

The program for this Friday will include talks on various angles of "Communism," by L. T. Green, C. C. Hoffman, Jr., and Lloyd A. Wilson. A vocal quartette will be given by Walter E. Olive, Claude F. Anderson, Jeff R. Graham and Marvin C. Overton, Jr.

Retail Merchants Directors Meet

"The directors of Slaton Retail Merchants association held their regular monthly meeting last Monday night. Mrs. Lee Green, secretary, states that a very fine session was had.

The Retail Merchants are bending every effort to make a success of the First Annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry Show. In conjunction with the Slaton Chamber of Commerce, which organization has charge of the work, several matters were discussed that are of vital importance to Slaton and its people, as reported by Mrs. Green.

The pole-sitters and tree-sitters will come down as cold weather comes on, but the corner grocery-sitters will be at it all winter.

Will Carry Football Fans To Annual Battle Between Tigers and Tornados; To Leave Here At 12:30 P. M. Get Aboard

Both Teams Primed for Coming Contest On Armistice Day

Low Fare Is Given

Outstanding Classic of the Year; Mammoth Crowd Expected

A special train has been chartered to carry Slaton football fans to Lamesa next Tuesday to witness the annual Armistice Day clash between the Slaton High Tigers and the Golden Tornados, of Lamesa.

The train will leave Slaton at 12:30 and arrive at Lamesa at 2 p. m. The roundtrip train fare is only $1.10 the lowest rate ever granted for a similar trip to Lamesa, according to local Santa Fe officials.

When the train arrives at the Lamesa station, plenty of courtesy cars will be waiting to carry all Slaton fans from the depot to the football field, and these cars will also transport Slaton people back to town from the field after the game is ended. This assurance was given local Chamber of Commerce officials on Wednesday when information relative to this matter was asked for in a telephone message.

The adult admission fee for the game will be $1.00, and for school children, 50 cents, it was announced by Lamesa school officials. Local school authorities sought to have the rate reduced, but were not successful. However, these rates have been in effect when Lamesa and Slaton teams have played for the past several years. Considering the low rate on train fare, the cost of seeing the game will be very low, anyhow. Members of the Slaton High pep squad will be entered free, and also those in the band, which has been organized during the past few days.

A large delegation of Slaton people will make the trip, it is expected. Tickets for the special train are being sold by a committee composed of J. H. Brewer, chairman; Carl W. George, L. T. Garland, L. T. Green, Dr. W. E. Payne, Jim Elliott, Ben Mansker, Henry Jarman, H. H. Edmondson, T. E. Roderick, J. S. McDonald, J. E. Rucker, and H. G. Sanders. A minimum of 200 tickets must be sold in order to meet requirements of the railroad company. All who plan to make the trip to Lamesa are urged to go on the special train so as to prevent anyone having to bear the financial loss in chartering the train. The trip by train will be much more economical than by automobile, it has been pointed out. Members of the ticket sales committee are urging the early purchase of tickets.

Annual C. of C. Banquet Is Set for January 13

The annual banquet and membership meeting of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce is to be held on Tuesday night, January 13, it was decided at a meeting of the board of directors of that organization.

A special committee in charge of arranging details of the affairs was appointed, as follows: T. E. Roderick, J. A. Elliott and R. D. Hickman.

The committee plans to arrange a snappy program, with an interesting speaker to deliver the principal address. The banquet will be held at Slaton Clubhouse.

This event will be open to any Slaton citizen who wishes to attend, regardless of whether membership in the Chamber of Commerce is maintained or not, it is announced.

Banquet tickets will be placed on sale several days ahead of the date of the meeting, with a sales committee in charge of disposing of reservations.

Legion Meeting Monday Night At Clubhouse

A special meeting of Luther Powers Post, American Legion, and the local American Legion Auxiliary will be held at Slaton Clubhouse next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, according to J. A. Elliott, local Legion commander, and Mrs. F. B. Tudor, president of the Auxiliary.

A special address on the spirit of Armistice Day will be given at the meeting by a speaker representing the Brownfield Legion Post. Refreshments will be served.

All members of both organizations are urgently requested to attend this meeting.

2,128 Bales for Season Received By Slaton Gins

The five Slaton gins that are operating this season had received a total of 2,128 bales of cotton up to last Saturday, it was shown by a compilation of figures on ginnings at that time. This was a gain of 469 bales over the total for the previous Saturday.

Favorable weather for the past two weeks made possible the resumption of cotton picking generally. Feed crops also are being harvested rapidly, although the yield, like that of cotton, is small, due to the drought. Ginnings said last Saturday that they estimated that the cotton crop here has been two-thirds harvested.

Figures for the Slaton gins do not include receipts at the Posey, Union and McClung gins, all located near here.

Slaton was mightily well represented Saturday afternoon at Lubbock, witnessing the football game between the Amarillo Sandies and the Lubbock Westerners. Fine game.

Mrs. E. C. Foster returned home Tuesday after a visit with relatives and friends at Iowa Park. Doctor Foster met her at Lubbock and conveyed her home, that is part way, he made Mrs. Foster walk on Highway No. 7 for some distance. The doctor states there is no good luck in a horseshoe, for he picked up half of one and that is the reason he gives for making Mrs. Foster walk home.

Mrs. Carl W. George and son, Carl, Jr., spent Monday in Lubbock visiting relatives.

Judge R. A. Baldwin was there, and confided that he thought seriously of briefing the game between the Sandies and Westerners, but being of a modest and retiring nature, decided he would surely be penalized 50 yards so desisted, further stating he would be on hand for the Slaton-Lamesa game and in due time give an account of that meet. So matters are in statu quo.

Nearly 70 per cent of the manufactured gas sold in the United States is used in home.

IN FLANDERS FIELD

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still singing bravely fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sun-set glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie

In Flanders Field.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from falling hands we throw
The torch—be yours to hold it high!
If ye break with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow

DAVID DALLIS

Director of Community Players of Lubbock, who plays the "Toby Lead" in "The Nobody" which will be presented at The Texas Theatre Friday night. Mr. Dallis will play the part of Jasper Murphy, a red headed freckled Arkansas boy who longs to be a prizefighter.

ASH TRAYS AND BUZZERS

Years ago I had an appointment with a corporation president. The secretaries, door men and general factotums in the great man's outer office made it clear that their boss was Some Pumpkins and that I was assuming a great deal in asking to see him.

When I finally wroked my way thru the last of them and stood in the president's private office, I saw in the corner a red-faced, bald-headed man seated at a plain wooden desk. His coat was off and his sleeves were rolled up to reveal a pair of solid, hairy arms.

"Ah, Mr. Barton," he said, "would you mind standing on guard beside that door? My tailor has just sent me over a pair of cooler pants, and I want to put them on."

So I stood guard while he stepped out of one pair of pants and into another, chatting sociably all the time.

I was reminded of this incident by the remark of a friend who was recently transferred from the branch office to the New York headquarters of a certain business.

Some of the men in the organization were jealous of his promotion, and he has carefully watched his step. The president gave me my choice of two offices," he told me. "One was a grand room on the executive floor. The other a queer little dump two floors below. I took the little office. It will be perfectly all right until I show that I need something better. I have enough problems at the beginning without the additional handicap of a luxurious office.

An office manager who has watched men come and go in a big corporation tells me that he can predict just about how long a new man will last. "If his first requisition is for a lead pencil and a blotter and some ink, I put him down as permanent. But when a man sends me an initial requisition for an ash tray and an electric buzzer I notice he never stays over a year.

Napoleon was quite a trial to his soubriers because he did not pay more attention to the trappings of his office. When Bourrienne was telling him that he must do so and so or the older reigning families in Europe would not recognize him, he had the sure answer of a man who knows his strength.

"If it comes to that I will destroy them all," he exclaimed. "Then I will be the oldest sovereign among them."

Generally speaking, those who like lots of fuss are light weights. The surer a man is of his capacity the less he cares for externals—including all fancy trappings and criticism of the uninformed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brannon returned home after a few days spent in Amarillo on business.

John D. Fry, division manager of the Panhandle Lumber company with headquarters at Amarillo, was a Slaton visitor the past few days.

Humility isn't much of a virtue if you cultivate it because you are afraid to fight.

PANHANDLE CONFERENCE OF LUTHERAN MISSOURI SYNOD AT WILSON, NOV. 7

From November 7 to 10, the Panhandle Conference of the Lutheran Missouri Synod will be held at Wilson, in St. Paul's Lutheran church of which Rev. M. J. Scaer is pastor.

Topics on various religious questions will be read and discussed, besides other matters of vital interest to the church.

On Friday night of this week, November 7, there will be a special service at St. Paul's church. Rev. W. G. Buchschacher, of Big Spring, will have the confessional address, and Rev. W. J. Luecke, of Littlefield, will deliver the sermon. The services begins at 7:30.

The following pastors are expected to attend the conference: Rev. H. Hartenberger, of Perryton; Rev. H. Frerking, of Amarillo; Rev. H. Stroebel, of Canyon; Rev. W. H. Remmert, of Plainview; Rev. A. Groeschel, of Rhea; Rev. W. J. Luecke, of Littlefield; Rev. H. Hoffmeyer, of Lubbock; Rev. A. Allman, of Sparenburg; Rev. W. G. Buchschacher, of Big Spring; and Rev. W. H. Bewie, of Austin. The latter is field secretary of missions of the Texas district, and will also represent the president of the district, Rev. C. M. Beyer, of Wichita Falls. The services on next Sunday, November 9, will also be of a special nature, when the 400th anniversary of the Augsburg Confession will be celebrated. The Augsburg Confession is acknowledged as the oldest confession in Christendom. Lutherans point with pride to the sound political principles set forth in the Augsburg Confession. In regard to it President Hoover recently wrote to the American Lutheran, a religious publication: "The effects of these historical events are reflected in our national life and institutions, in religion through the predominant numbers of adherents to Protestant faiths and in government through the principle of separation of church and state. It is fitting that we should commemorate the persons and events from which these mighty forces have sprung." The speakers for this jubilee occasion next Sunday will be the Rev. W. H. Bewie, of Austin, and the Rev. H. Frerking, of Amarillo. The former will speak in the morning at 10:30 in the German language, and the latter in the afternoon at 3 o'clock in the English language. The public is cordially invited to these services.

The American Red Cross in Action

A class in Life-Saving at one of the 1930 Red Cross institutes. Here are learned all the rules of water safety—protection for self and others.

Wreckage at Frost, Texas, from a 1930-model tornado. Almost as soon as the twister had roared over the horizon the Red Cross was on the job with food, clothing, medicine and organized relief.

A recent Red Cross demonstration of artificial respiration. The prone pressure method has proved its efficacy in thousands of cases of drowning, electrocution, and suffocation.

AMERICAN RED CROSS AFIELD

What does the Red Cross do? What makes its call—in the words of President Hoover—so "mandatory upon the heart of the Nation?"

The Red Cross job is big. In a single year the expenditure, community, national and international, runs to nearly $10,000,000. Often it is higher. Every day the call upon the Red Cross grows more urgent.

What do the figures show—those mute, cold statistics that tell but half the story of Service? They show:

More than 450,000 First Aid certificates have been issued; more than 300,000 individuals instructed in Life Saving.

Assistance extended in a single year to the victims of 75 disasters in 40 states.

50,000 nurses on the roll of the Red Cross; 800 nurses in public health work, 11 in itinerant activities, 1500 teaching home hygiene and care of the sick.

120,000 children and adults taught nutrition each month.

Service of the kind that is beyond the scope of Government to 50,000 disabled World War veterans and the 245,000 men of the regular Army and Navy.

10,000 families being assisted by Civilian Home Service.

7,000,000 members of the Junior Red Cross corresponding with Juniors in foreign lands, thus furthering the cause of international understanding; cheering the sick, brightening school rooms, learning ideals of service for others.

Half a million volunteer workers—exemplifying the very heart and spirit of the Red Cross—making 3,000,000 surgical dressings, 210,000 garments, 190,000 Braille pages for the fingers of the blind in twelve months.

16,200 Chapters and Branches engaged in this service program made possible by the annually-tendered support of more than 4,000,000 adult members.

Look at the pictures on this page. Multiply the incidents according to the above figures. Watch each precious membership dollar as it stretches to meet the increasing demands. Then ask yourself, "What shall MY PART be?"

All happy at the most recent of the annual parties for disabled war veterans on the White House lawn in Washington! Veterans and enlisted men of Army and Navy, whether sound or otherwise, are grateful for Red Cross service.

These school girls enjoy the periodical checking of height, weight and teeth by the Red Cross public health nurse.

This little fellow is getting a running start in life, for the mother has been taught in a Red Cross class of Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick.

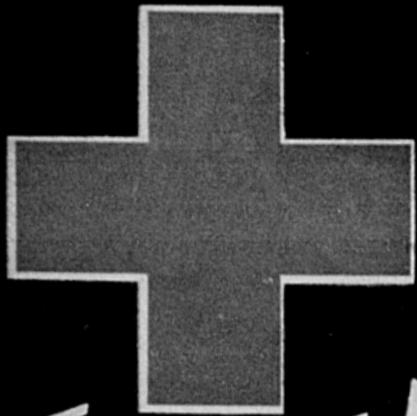

An Easter basket brings to a little patient in Children's Hospital, Detroit, courage to face an operation for mastoiditis. Smiles like these brighten the faces of 7,000,000 Juniors and untold thousands who are remembered by the children of the Red Cross.

Days of Gold Rush Are Past

Romance of Great Gold Fields Played An Important Part In World Development

By CALEB JOHNSON
 "Gold, Gold, Gold, Gold—Hard to get, and heavy to hold."
 From the beginning of recorded time, the pursuit of gold has been perhaps the most fascinating occupation known to man.

If the history of gold prospecting were fully written, it would cover the entire history of adventure, discovery, and exploration. It was the pursuit of gold that brought the Spaniards to America and resulted in the settlement of this continent. The lure of gold drew the pioneers over the Rocky mountains to California. The discovery of gold in Australia and in South Africa laid the foundation for the present control and prosperity of those regions.

The rewards are so great for the fortunate prospector who discovers a gold mine, that every new rumor of such a discovery starts a gold rush, in which thousands and tens of thousands risk everything in the hope of getting, not exactly something for nothing, but great wealth at little cost to themselves. It is a gamble, of course, for every such prospector, but it is a gamble in which those who win are not taking anything away from those who lose.
 But the great gold rushes of the past are matters of the dead and buried past, and there in now no likelihood of another great gold strike anywhere in the world. That is the considered opinion of the gold delegation of the League of Nations, which has just completed a world wide survey of the gold situation. Since the year 1915, there has been no increase in the annual production of gold, and the League's experts say that in the next ten years the annual supply of gold will have fallen off at least 25 per cent.

 The known gold fields of the world are becoming exhausted and almost the whole earth has been combed for new and undiscovered gold fields.
 There are a few points which have not yet been thoroughly prospected, but geologists regard the likelihood of finding gold in those places as very remote. There are desert areas in Australia, Central Asia and Northeast Africa, and tropical regions at the headwaters of the Amazon and Orinoco rivers in South America which have not yet been thoroughly explored. There are still some gold possibilities in Labrador and Northern Canada, and there is a fair chance that some appreciable gold deposits still remain to be discovered in Montana and Nevada, but there is no likelihood that can be foreseen, at present, of any such enormous gold deposits as those which caused the gold rush to California in 1849, the rush to the Klondyke in 1897, the gold rush to the Rand in South Africa, and the other historical gold rushes of the past.
 There are gold mines which have been consistent producers for fifty years, and more, and which are still so far from petering out that they can be relied upon, in all probability, to produce millions of gold annually for fifty or more years to come. Perhaps the world's most consistent gold producer is the Homestake Mine at Lead, South Dakota, discovered by the late George Hearst, and now owned by his son, William Randolph Hearst.

There are mines in California, in Australia, and in South Africa, which produce their hundreds of thousands, or even millions of gold annually, though at a constantly rising cost of production. There may be, of course, new Homestake mines discovered, but it takes more than a single mine to start increase in the world's gold supply. Only the discovery of a gold field, covering perhaps hundreds of square miles, as the great gold fields of history have done, would be an important factor in the gold situation.

There are enormous supplies of gold which geologists have discovered but which are unavailable because chemistry has not yet found a way of separating the gold from the other elements with which it is combined.

There are immense deposits of finely pulverized gold in the sands of the Adirondack Forest Reserve in New York state. The writer once owned a half interest in a gold mine on the shore of the Black River near Lowville, New York. We had 250 acres of sand, which was probably 200 feet deep, and we could prove to the satisfaction of anybody that every cubic yard of that sand contained at least $40 of gold. We had literally hundreds of millions of dollars in gold right there on our property. But this gold was not only so finely pulverized that it would float on water, but it was also mixed with finely pulverized iron and other metals that no way could be discovered to separate the gold except at a cost of nearly $50 a cubic yard, a net loss of nearly $10 per ton. Perhaps chemical science will find a way, some time, of separating this Adirondack gold at a profit. One Boston syndicate has spent several hundred thousand dollars experimenting to that end, and they may hit it in time. If they do there will be another gold rush into northern New York.

One advantage of gold production over the production of any of the other metals is that there is never any fluctuation in the market price of the product. An ounce of gold is $20 and $20 is an ounce of gold for gold is money, and money is gold. So that while there is a considerable risk in mining copper, et us say, at a cost of $24 a ton, to get a return of $25 worth of copper, there is no risk at all in spending $24 to extract $25 worth of gold. Copper worth today $25 may be worth tomorrow only $18, but gold worth $25 today will be worth $25 next year, ten years from now, or one hundred years from now.

Economists are concerned over the gold situation because of the effect of a diminishing gold supply upon money supplies on the prices of commodities. Every important addition to the world's supply has resulted in a reduction in the price of all other commodities, because gold is the standard by which the whole civilized world measures prices. But the whole theory of the proper relation of a nation's gold reserve to its currency and credit system has been steadily undergoing a revision, especially since the war, and the probability is that the time will come when gold will be relatively less important in financial and economic affairs than it is today. But that is something for economists and financiers to worry about. The fact remains that the nation having the largest gold reserve has always been the wealthiest and the most independent, and that will continue to be the case probably throughout the lifetime of anybody who reads this.

Right now the two wealthiest countries in the world are the United States of America and France, because they are the two countries which have the largest amount of actual gold in the vaults of their treasuries and banks. In this country we have more than four billion dollars in gold, which is more gold than ever was gathered under one flag in the history of the world, while France has been steadily building up its gold reserve since the war, until today that nation has nearly half as much as the United States, and in proportion to population is actually wealthier than we are.

At the end of the day every man knows whether or not he has done a fair day's work.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following little guests:

Arthemiese Hill, Ray Champion, Jr., Juanita Elliott, Billie Allen, Samuel Phillips, Vina Louise Ervin, Mozell Fogerson, Dorothy Alexander, Billie Edgar Wilson, Ema Fay and James Irving Thornton, William Curtis Kidd, Max and Mary Ethelyn Myatt, and Bob and Charles McCasland.

MRS. J. D. RHYNE

There is a reason why Konjola is America's best known medicine, and that reason can be summed up in just three words—Konjola makes good, even when all else tried has failed. Consider, as a typical example of Konjola's 32 ingredients at work, the case of Mrs. J. D. Rhyne, 616 East Eleventh street, Amarillo, who says:

"I was in a terrible condition for many years, with constipation, nervousness, indigestion and kidney and liver ills. It seemed no use to try medicines and treatments further, for I kept growing worse right along. I lost weight and had headaches and dizzy spells and bilious attacks. Food caused indigestion, and many a night I lay awake until two or three o'clock. But words can not express my sur-

WHAT IS GOOD WILL

And, what is it worth? The old German philosopher, Kant of Koenigsburg, wrote—"There is no good in the world but the good will." If this is true, then good will is worth whatever it may cost in time, trouble and money.

To obtain good will, a light and power company must have character, just as an individual must have character if he is to have the respect of his neighbors.

It must have spirit. Something in addition to the material properties and bodily labor must be put into the enterprise to make it live.

The history of the light and power industry is one of character and spirit. The price of good will has been great, but the resulting public confidence has made it worth while.

ARMISTICE DAY

Many emotions stir the heart as the swiftly passing year brings us to Armistice Day once more. We think first of those dear boys asleep in the soil of France, but whose names are forever enrolled on the list of fame. We think of those quiet cemeteries, made beautiful with flowers and vines by grateful hands, which will forever testify to those deeds of valor and generosity. We think of the sorrowful homes in our country in which a shadow is forever cast by the departure of these loved ones. The rest of us made temporary money sacrifices which have more or less passed. We still pay some taxes caused by the war, but these are an infinitely small item compared with the loss which has darkened many homes.

We think of those dear boys in our hospitals, or limping about our streets who bear forever the crippled marks of that struggle. Have we forgotten them amid the busy scenes of daily life? If so, let us keep them ever in mind and cheerfully make whatever contributions are necessary for their comfort, also for the training of those who could be made self-supporting.

These are sad thoughts. But there are others full of encouragement. We can think that on that day 12 years ago, it had been thoroughly demonstrated that our country had not lost its soul as the result of its prosperity. It was shown that our people could rise to a great emergency; could cooperate with a great movement for the protection of liberty and justice. It was demonstrated that our youth were not lacking in capacity for great deeds of heroism. We can well be proud of these memories which the nation cherishes forever as one of its choicest possessions.

NOVEMBER 11, 1930

Armistice Day once more returns, full of memories of the tragic World War. Probably never in the history of our country was there such an outburst of spontaneous joy. The enthusiasm of the impromptu celebrations of that event in 1918 passed all records. It told of the intense strain under which the American people had been living. The culminating thought of the present Armistice Day celebrations, should be that war is a most insensate act of human folly and must not be permitted to occur again, if there is anything that our people and government can do to stop it. There are dependent people who say that no such change in human nature is possible. The nations have always fought and always will, it is argued. Still, the human race has abolished many other follies. Take the delusion of witchcraft for instance. A few centuries ago the idea commonly prevailed that our daily life was being bedeviled by witches who exercised their malignant influence over their victims. People were accused and condemned to death for being witches. It was said that people had always believed in witches and always would. But all the same, the witchcraft delusion has disappeared.

Wars result from delusion just as crazy as the witchcraft idea, and they do infinitely more harm than the witchcraft fear ever did. It is inconceivable that the bright, achieving, scientific people of our day are going indefinitely to drag around the crushing chain of great armaments, and that every once in a while they are going to break loose in one of these cruel wars. That does not mean that any one nation can suddenly disarm. But the peoples of all lands are awake to the folly of war and they propose that it shall stop.

"BUY NOW"

Philadelphia deserves credit for initiating the "Buy Now" movement, which is being taken up by Chambers of Commerce all over the United States.

It is sound advice. If everybody would act upon it, business would pick up rapidly.

Everybody needs something. Many are holding off their purchases hoping for better times. So long as they continue to hold off, business will not improve. The way to make business better for everybody is to buy now.

That does not mean merely to "do your Christmas shopping early," tho that advice, always sound, is sounder than ever this year. It means going ahead with the purchases you would like to make but have been hesitating about making.

If everybody, or even half the people of the United States were to act on this advice and buy now, the backbone of the business depression would be broken. That does not mean that the return of prosperity would be instant, but it would be greatly hastened.

Every retail purchase not only depletes the merchant's stock, making it necessary for him to order new goods, but it puts money or credit in the merchant's pocket with which to pay for the new goods he orders. His order in turn, added to those of other retailers, has the same effect upon the wholesaler and distributor, and those, in turn, go back to the mills for their fresh stocks.

YOUR dollar, once passed across the merchant's counter, will thus do its share toward increasing factory payrolls. Prosperity can only be restored by putting dollars into circulation—your dollars and your neighbor's dollars.

"Buy now," is a good slogan.

THE FARM BOARD IS LEARNING

The Federal Farm Board has had about sixteen months of experience in its work of administering the Cooperative Marketing laws. Its members have learned a great deal in that time. In the beginning they were new to the job. Only one of them, Chairman Legge, had had anything which might be called national experience in agricultural problems. The others were able enough men, but their individual experience was limited to territorial activities or to the marketing of certain commodities.

There is evidence that the Farm Board members are acquiring a national point of view, and that they have discovered several fundamental facts, concerning which there seemed at the beginning to be some doubt among the Board members. Those facts, as stated by Mr. Teague in a recent address, are:

Agricultural problems will not be solved by legislation.

The law of supply and demand cannot be ignored.

The greatest assistance to agriculture by the Government will be the gradual development of grower-owned marketing systems.

Now that the Farm Board has learned those things, and we have Mr. Teague's word for it that all of the members now accept them as truth, there is hope that more rapid progress may be made in bringing agricultural marketing to a point where the growers really get what their products are worth.

AUTUMN

Europeans hardly know what Americans are talking about when we speak and write of "glorious autumn weather" and prate of the loveliness of our "Indian Summer." Climatic conditions are different on the two sides of the Atlantic. Over there Spring is the season of which poets sing, the loveliest period of the year. Summer follows Spring and then, with the briefest of intervals, Winter comes.

Spring in most parts of the United States is hardly distinguishable from Summer. Winter drags on, then suddenly Summer is at hand. But after Summer comes Autumn, the long weeks when the few light frosts merely whet the zest for the out-of-doors, when the leaves turn to brilliant colors unmatched anywhere else in nature and impossible to depict by art in their full gorgeousness. Is there anything more beautiful than a forest-clad hillside when the leaves are turning? The pale yellow of the birch, the brilliant scarlet of the sugar maple, the yellow browns of the elms and the soft maples, the purplish tones of the ash, backgrounded against the several greens of the different evergreens, make a blend of riotous color such as no painter has ever succeeded in catching on his canvas.

The leaves fall, the frosts sharpen, and then comes the hunting season, the "Indian Summer" the like of which is known nowhere else in the world. This Autumn season is one of the elements, and not the least important one, of our American heritage.

BEAVERS

The first European settlers in America found a curious animal in the new world. The beaver, which builds its nests like little log houses, in the middle of a stream or swamp, and then builds a dam to raise the water level so that its enemies cannot reach the entrance to its home except by diving, is more than an interesting little animal. It was the source of the greater part of the wealth of the early Colonists.

Beaver fur, it was soon discovered, made a better felt for hats than wool or any other of the readily obtainable furs. We speak today of the tall silk hat of fashion as a "beaver," but it is merely a remote descendant of the fashionable beaver fur hats of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. An immense commerce between the Old World and the New was built up on beaver furs as the principal export from this side, and beaver fur, now mainly obtained from Canadian sources, is still one of the most highly prized pelts.

The proclivity of the beaver to build dams is being utilized in the Palisades Interstate Park, lying in New York and New Jersey. A large swamp needed a dam to make it into a lake. Several families of the 350 beavers that live in the park were trapped and moved to the swamp. They proceeded to build their houses there and to construct the dam just where it was needed. Although no longer an important item in commerce, the beaver is still useful.

HEAT

The newest vision of science is a substance which will take the place of steam for heating purposes. Diphenyl, a substance obtained from benzene, is said by the American Institute of Chemical Engineers to be much better for this purpose. It is a solid which melts at a temperature of 157 degrees and vaporizes at 492 degrees.

A house heating plant using diphenyl would have boiler and pipes full of this solid, which would gradually become liquid as the fire was started, and would circulate through pipes and radiators like water. It holds heat better than steam, and is said to give off more of the heat from the boiler furnace than steam does.

SPEED

Thirty-five minutes from the time he left the William Penn airport in Philadelphia with photographs of the World's Series baseball game, Capt.

Frank Hawks delivered the pictures in a New York newspaper office. It took him 20 minutes, flying at 270 miles an hour, to cover the 90 miles between Philadelphia and the Queens Borough airport in New York. Then fifteen minutes in a speed boat took him to Manhattan.

This was faster than the pictures could have been sent by telegraph. Telegraphing photographs is now being done every day, but it takes half an hour or so for the details of a picture to be transmitted over the wire. Over long distances, of course, the airplane could not compete, but in this case it was the swifter method.

Second Sheets at this office. Cheap.

The people who listen to the political speeches over the radio, don't get any immediate chance to answer them, but they will have a chance to talk back on election day.

The golf players don't always seem to be able to hit the ball, but anyway they manage to hit either the earth or the air.

The Communist calls on the people for uprisings, but the only ones the people seemed interested in are uprisings in the stock market.

There is said to be plenty of money in circulation, but it seems to keep circulating so fast that we can't see it.

"Looney" Sayings

By LOONEY, "Himself"

Here we are with bells on this week. Starting off with one of the biggest pictures of the year and keeping the good work up.

Sunday, for three days, we have Charles Rogers and Nancy Carroll in "Follow Thru." This film not only has two of the screen's best stars but it also is photographed all in natural color of the new improved kind and I may state that we have the beaded sound screen which is especially made to show color films and the coming "third dimension" films.

Wednesday and Thursday we have a dandy film with two stars. This is "Anybody's Woman," with Ruth Chatterton and Olive Brook. Something you will really like.

Coming! We have Constant Bennett in "Common Clay." As great a story as "Sonny Boy," and with a kick like "Party Girl." Look forward to this.

Don't forget we have "The Nobody" tonight at the Texas theatre, on the stage.

HIGH SCHOOL P.-T. A MET ON TUESDAY AFTERNOON

The high school P.-T. A met Tuesday afternoon at the high school. That interest in the work is growing was evidenced by the fact that the largest group of members ever present, attended the meeting. A number of teachers could not attend this meeting.

Mrs. Wolfskill, president, presided over the session. After the business was transacted an interesting program was rendered.

Mrs. Rhoads discussed the "Duties of the President." Mrs. Savage then gave us the "Duties of the 1st Vice President." This was followed by a discussion of the "Duties and Qualifications of Secretary and Treasurer," by Mrs. Lanham.

Prayer was offered by Rev. James Rayburn.

The next meeting will be held on the third Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. The evening meetings are held to permit the fathers, as well as mothers, to attend the program. At this meeting a delightful social hour will feature the first part of the program and this will be followed by an interesting program in which the health nurse, of Lubbock, will be the outstanding speaker for the evening.

You are urged to attend this meeting. Don't forget the date.

Tigers Win Over Tahoka, 34 to 0

Playing the best brand of football they have displayed this season, the Slaton High Tigers romped away to 34 to 0 victory over the Tahoka High Bulldogs last Friday afternoon in a game here, played before a large crowd of fans from both schools.

The dope sheet, so often proving unreliable, was thoroughly untrustworthy last Friday. Slaton had been due to win over Tahoka by a very narrow margin, according to comparative scores of the Slaton-Brownfield and the Tahoka-Brownfield games. However, the Tigers functioned so smoothly that the Bulldogs were at their mercy throughout the encounter.

Slaton scored in each of the four quarters, registering two touchdowns in the third period, while the Bulldogs were never able to get in striking distance of the Tigers goal line. As compared with Lamesa's victory over Tahoka 19 to 6 the Slaton eleven should wallop Lamesa soundly next Tuesday, but again there's that unreliable dope bucket, which may be overturned.

Minor and Ketner were Tahoka's most brilliant stars last Friday, while Armes, Cannon, Johnson and the other eight members of the Tigers displayed themselves creditably for the Tigers.

TENTH INSTALLMENT

Through his friend Lombard, Giles Chittenham meets the "other Julie," the notorious woman who ruined Rodney's life. She tells him that she is going to die; the doctors have given her up as incurable and she is leaving England. She is worried about her cousin, the girl Chittenham loves. That Julie—his Julie—is going in fast company, among them a common little American girl named Sadie Barrow.

And Sadie Barrow is Giles Chittenham's wife. He did not know that she was in England. That night he meets her at a party at his mother's home. They pretend to be strangers.

Giles learns that Sadie Barrow, his wife, has gone for spiritualism and is attending seances by a medium named Chryer.

He calls on Julie, who is cold to him. He reproaches her for her reckless life. They quarrel, and she leaves with Lawrence Schofield. Her friend, Mim Lennox, tells Giles that Julie really loves him. Lombard calls on him and says he is in need of money.

Now go on with the Story "My dear fellow, isn't it almost the only thing any one is ever in a fix about? How much do you want?"

Lombard gulped down his whiskey. "It's awfully sporting of you—if I could have five hundred. It's only a temporary loan—"

Giles laughed shortly. "Do you take me for a millionaire?"

"I tell you, it's only temporary."

"I'll lend you fifty if it's any use."

There was eloquent silence, then Lombard turned.

"Look here, Chittenham, it's serious. I'm frightfully up against it. You've got to let me have it," he said despairingly.

"Got to!"

For a moment the two men looked at one another silently, then Chittenham laughed.

"Sorry, but that's a thing no man can say to me." He made another move to the door, but Lombard caught his arm.

"Chittenham."

Chittenham stood still.

"What do you want it for? What have you been up to?"

The other man's eyes fell.

"I can't tell you."

"All right, then you won't get anything."

Lombard looked up suddenly.

"Oh, yes, I shall," he said with detestable inflection.

There was an ugly silence.

"Oh, yes, I shall—" he said again as Chittenham did not speak. "And if you refuse I shall tell Schofield and any one else who might be interested, that you and Julie Farrow spent the night together up at St. Bernard."

It was such an unexpected challenge that for a moment Chittenham could find no words. Then with a great effort he pulled himself together.

"And do you think any one will believe you?" he asked.

Lombard laughed.

"They'll be glad enough to believe me. Scandal is the salt of life to Julie's friends. She's not altogether popular as it is, and if I tell them—it's no use getting violent—" he added hurriedly as he saw Chittenham's hands clench into fists. "I'm in a position to prove what I say, remember."

"Prove it, then, and be damned!"

"Very well—" Lombard shrugged his shoulders and perked back into the center of the room.

"I'll make it a hundred," he said.

A slyly amused smile crossed Lombard's face, and Giles broke out savagely:

"Damn you; do you think I'm afraid for myself? If it were only a question of that, I'd give you the biggest thrashing you ever had, and kick you out in the street. But as there is some one else in the case—"

"And some one for whom you have a great regard, eh?" Lombard sneered. "My dear fellow, don't think I'm not sympathetic. I know a great deal more than you think I do. For instance—our mutual friend, the charming little American—"

"What the hell do you mean?"

"Only that I overheard last night—quite by accident—something which both of you apparently are most anxious to keep from the rest of the world. I've always found that it's most dangerous to talk secrets in a crowded room, and your wife, you will agree, has rather an insistent voice—"

"You sneaking bound—"

Lombard shrugged his shoulders.

"As you please! I'm not in a position to resent anything you say. After all, it's common knowledge that opportunity makes the thief—"

"And if I refuse to give you anything at all?"

"Then probably Mrs. Chittenham will be very pleased to buy her information from me."

"Then go to her, and be damned to you."

"So Julie Farrow's reputation is nothing to you, after all?"

Giles went very white. He knew he was in Lombard's power. "Get out or—"

The door closed hurriedly between them.

It was not true that Julie had promised to marry Lawrence Schofield, but when, after her stormy interview with Chittenham, he again urged her to accept him, she suddenly gave in. She felt over-wrought and weak, almost as if the combat between herself and the man she loved had been a physical one.

Lawrence Schofield's kindly devotion was like a cool hand laid on her feverishness, and when once again he asked if she could not make up her mind to marry him, she suddenly gave in—

"Very well—if you are willing to take the risk."

"I am quite willing."

He wanted to go straight away and buy her the finest diamond ring in London, but Julie would not allow it.

"Not yet. You must give me a little time to get used to it. I don't want people to know just yet."

He was disappointed, but he fell in with her wishes.

"Just as you wish. Everything shall always be just as you like."

Sudden tears filled her eyes.

"That's foolish of you," she told him. "But it's dear of you too. I'm not half good enough for you, Lawrence."

It was a bright sunny afternoon, so he would not let her go back to the flat when they had lunched.

"I'm going to take you for a drive in the country. London is racketing your nerves to pieces."

They stopped at a little country inn for tea. In one of the rooms somebody was playing a gramophone, and there was the sound of laughter and dancing feet.

"They sound happy, don't they?" Julie said with an effort.

"I hope they are as happy as we are," Schofield answered impulsively. "My greatest happiness will be in giving you everything you want."

Julie laughed brokenly.

It was on her lips to say that if she had been rich she would not have consented to marry him. It was more than she could bear; she started distressfully to her feet.

"Shall we go? It's getting dark and the country is so dreary when it gets dark."

They drove back to London and dined together.

"What shall we do now?" Schofield asked.

"I don't mind what we do," Julie said. "Go to a theatre, if you like. I can go home and change."

But he would not allow that; he said he could not bear to let her out of his sight on this day of all days. In the end they went to a cinema. Julie did not care for the picture; but at any rate it did away with the need to talk, and the darkness was restful.

She only looked at the screen when Schofield drew her attention to something being shown upon it. It was as if Fate were relentlessly pursuing her determined to torment her and keep her pain alive, for the second picture was of the Monastery at St. Bernard and of the snow-clad mountains.

Julie sat up stiffly, her heart beating fast.

"I've been there—" she said in a strange little voice. "I drove my car up there only a month or two ago."

She laughed with shaken excitement. "I stayed at the hotel . . . it's so cold and cheerless."

"It looks wonderful," Schofield said. "I've never been out of England myself," he added humbly.

"Yes—it was wonderful," Julie whispered. She sat with her hands clasped together, her eyes fixed on the screen. It was as if someone had taken her back three months, and was making her live those few hours of complete happiness once more.

"That's the Monastery—" she said wildly. "If only I could die too—"

"You could hardly see it for the snow when we were there—"

"We?" Schofield said quickly. "You were not alone then."

"There are always a great many tourists," Julie answered.

A newsboy came along crying his news.

"Tragic death of a well-known society beauty . . ."

"I'll get a paper," Schofield said.

They stopped under a lamp to read the short paragraph on the front page.

"What is it?" Julie asked. She bent lower to read the words. Then suddenly she gave a cry. "It's Jewel My cousin Julie! Oh, poor Julie . . ."

The details were meagre, and without entire corroboration, but it appeared that Julie—the other Julie who had unwittingly brought about the tragedy of her cousin's life—while on her way to India, where she had been going for a holiday—was suddenly missed from the ship, and was presumed to have fallen overboard. There followed a brief account of her life—her popularity in society—her marriage and divorce—her vogue as a beauty—her tremendous luck and good fortune in every way.

"Everyway except in happiness—" Julie said passionately. "She never had any happiness . . . oh, poor Julie! The tears were running down her cheeks."

They drove back to the flat and she bade him good-night.

She wondered if Bim had heard about the tragedy. She opened the door. She held the newspaper still clutched in her hand. There was a little movement in the room and some one pushed back a chair from in front of the fire.

"Jewel is dead—" Julie said, sobbing. "I suppose you know. She's dead . . . she's been lucky to the end, you see . . . I only wish I were dead too . . ." Then she broke off with a little choking cry, for it was not Bim who rose to meet her, but Giles Chittenham.

There was a tragic silence. Chittenham made a quick step forward.

"Julie . . . what is it—?"

Julie laughed sobbingly.

"My cousin—the other Julie . . . the one you wanted to punish—you'll never be able to hurt her now—she's dead . . ."

She almost threw the newspaper at him, and, dropping into a chair, she hid her face in her out-flung arms.

He laid the paper down on the table and looked at Julie. He could not think of anything save that she was unhappy, and with sudden impulse he went down on his knees beside her and took her into his arms.

"Julie!"

For a moment she resisted violently. "Don't how dare you! leave me alone . . ."

Then quite suddenly her resistance was gone, and she ceased to struggle.

She looked at him with tragic eyes.

"If only it had been me—" she said wildly. "If only I could die too—"

"You don't mean that. There's much happiness in store for us—and together. Listen to me—Julie, you must listen—"

She shivered away from him, her shoulders hunched, her face averted.

"I suppose I can't stop you saying what you want to, but it's no use. I don't know why you have come back. I told you I never wanted to see you again—"

"I came because I love you and because I know you love me—"

"You are very sure of that!" she said bitterly.

"I am proud to be sure. Look at me Julie."

"No." She bit her lip to keep back the sob that would rise to her throat. "If only you would go away and leave me—"

"I am not going. You belong to me—"

"Your wife would not be pleased to hear you say that," Julie said hoarsely.

Chittenham put his hands on her shoulders and forced her to turn to him.

"If you can look me in the eyes and say honestly that you do not love me, and that you wish me to go away and never come back, I will believe you," he said.

There was poignant silence. Julie raised her tear-drowned eyes, weary defiance, and her lips but no words came.

Chittenham laughed triumphantly.

HELIUM

Instead of being a rare gas, obtainable only at a high cost, as it was a few years ago, helium, the lightest of all the elements except hydrogen, is now obtained in practically unlimited quantities from the government-owned gas wells in Texas and Oklahoma.

 A movement has been started to induce the President and the Secretaries of War and Navy to permit the exportation of helium gas for use in commercial airships in other countries. Nothing could do more to aid in the development of dirigibles, and such an action on the part of our officials would go far toward better international relations. But the probabilities are that the advocates of war and the timorous ones who think the rest of the world is lying in wait to pronounce upon the United States will make a vigorous protest against letting any other nation have something which might be used in making war upon us.

Believe It or Not

Fanny Ward, America's most youthful actress, who looks thirty or less, owns up that she was sixty years old last winter.

the new year, got under way in January, during New York Automobile Show week. In as much as formerly a portion of each meeting centered upon the presentation of Chevrolet's annual new model, considerable speculation has been aroused here over a probable tie-up between the meetings and an early announcement of a new Chevrolet for 1931.

H. J. Kling'er, vice-president and general sales managers of Chevrolet, remained noncommittal on the subject of a new car, other than to state that a part of the star chamber sessions with his dealers would be on this subject. He explained the holding of the meetings earlier this year by stating that normally November and December are dull months in the industry, and dealers are better able to leave their places of business during these months than in January or February. He pointed out further that by holding the meetings now, the dealers would have complete information on 1931 plans before the turn of the year, and would be able to put them into effect two months earlier than formerly, thus better preparing themselves for the early spring rush of business.

AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY ADOPTING NEW POLICIES

A significant sign of the aggressive policies to be adopted by the automobile industry toward making 1931 rank with past years in volume is seen here in the announcement that Chevrolet's annual dealer meetings are to get under way next week, two months in advance of the customary date.

Four groups of sales officials from the home office, each fripp accompanied by a full carload of theatrical equipment, stag hands, electricians, etc., are scheduled to hold fifty meetings at many central points during the next five weeks, which will be attended by upwards of 20,000 Chevrolet dealers and associated bankers located in every section of the country.

In previous years these meetings, which are held to acquaint the dealer organization with company plans for

Won Three, Lost Three, Tied One Is Tiger Record

Although hoping for a victory over the Lamesa Tornados next Tuesday when the Slaton High Tigers meet them in the annual Armistice Day scrap, Slaton football fans are not very certain as to how the game will end. They realize that the Tigers will have to fight, and they will go to Lamesa to back them to the limit.

Comparing the Slaton-Brownfield tilt, a scoreless tie, with the 40 to 0 defeat given the Lamesa lads by the Terry County boys, it seems that Slaton should win the tussle with Lamesa next Tuesday.

So far, the Tigers have played seven games, winning three, losing three and tying one. This does not make an impressive record, but here are the seasons results:

- Slaton 6—Snyder 12
- Slaton 0—Colorado City 7
- Slaton 0—Brownfield 0
- Slaton 34—Idalou 0
- Slaton 0—Spur 40
- Slaton 34—Tahoka 0

This makes a total of 87 points for the Tigers to 59 for their opponents. Only the game with Brownfield, Idalou and Tahoka were conference games.

If Slaton beats Lamesa next Tuesday, the Tigers will continue in the race for the district title, at least for a while. Brownfield, in that case would meet Slaton again, at Slaton, to break the tie recently played at Brownfield. After that, Slaton would have to face winners of other subdivisions of the district, is she defeated Brownfield.

Leveland, in the northwest; Floyd, in the northeast; and Spur in the southeast section of the district might be the contenders. Spar has clinched the championship of her section.

Semi-final games will be played on Thanksgiving Day.

Slaton Library Available To All

A number of newcomers in Slaton have related the difficulties of locating a library in the city and an equal number of old-timers have revealed their ignorance of a free library which is within easy reach and accessible to all.

The new librarian, Miss Rutilla Eubanks, of Lubbock, has recently taken charge of the county libraries in Lubbock county and she is endeavoring to build up and increase the circulation of books in all libraries, in order that a greater number of people may enjoy the privilege of reading the best books—both fiction and non-fiction.

The Slaton library is in the west side of the Slaton clubhouse and is open from nine in the mornings to five in the afternoon, except for an hour at lunch time.

Any person who has signed a borrower's application card, obtained from the local librarian, Miss Thelma Poteet, may take out two books for a period of two weeks. If the books are not returned or renewed at the end of this time a fine of three cents a day will be charged until the books are returned to the library. Otherwise there is no charge.

Miss Eubanks is exceedingly anxious that the people of Slaton take advantage of this opportunity made possible by the county tax payers.

City Grader Put In Use After Repairing

According to city officials of Slaton, the old street grader has been reconditioned and is apparently as good as new. This was done at a very small cost and while it greatly improved the grader it has also improved its durability.

The grader is now in constant use in order that the streets of Slaton may be kept in first class shape.

Former Slaton Man Is Some Scrapper

The Peacock Military Academy, in the issue of October 27, 1930, recounts the actions of Lieut. Robert L. Sledge, a former Slaton resident and son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Sledge, of this city.

Lieut. Sledge, who is science instructor at the Peacock Military Academy, recovers his lost motorcycle when he spies it and the thieves during a football game, October 10. While Lieut. Sledge and his wife, and Lieut. Colburne O'Neal and his wife were in a car at the football game between Peacock and St. Mary's, they saw two strangers riding Lieut. Sledge's motorcycle which had been stolen a few days previously. Immediately Lieut. Sledge and O'Neal pursued the robbers, who fled. Slowly but surely the motorcycle riders were overtaken. The motorcycle stopped, so did Lieut. Sledge. (Might as well mention that Lieut. Sledge has an army medal for winning the boxing championship.) Out jumped Sledge from his car, the thieves started to run but before much territory could be covered one of them was detained by a closed fist of Lieut. Sledge.

When the robber woke up, it is rumored that he claimed a west bound freight hit him; anyway he is still applying beefsteak and mercurochrome, according to the authorities.

The motorcycle was recovered with all parts intact.

Mrs. Charlie Marriott, Mrs. Jim Vaughn, and Mrs. Jennie Newland, of Tonkawa, Oklahoma, and Miss Audrea Marriott were Lubbock visitors Monday afternoon.

Texas will have a million and a half acres under irrigation when present projects are completed, tripling the irrigated area of 1920, which was a half a million acres.

Texas has more farm-owned motor vehicles than any other state in the union with 357,000 passenger cars and 42,600 trucks, according to American Research Foundation, Ohio is second, Illinois third, Iowa fourth, Pennsylvania fifth and New York sixth.

Miss Eubanks is exceedingly anxious that the people of Slaton take advantage of this opportunity made possible by the county tax payers.
