Local Banker Is Present At Meet On Drouth Relief

J. H. Brewer, president of the First State bank, went to Haskell last Monday to attend the drought relief meeting which had been called there by Gov. Dan Moody. Mr. Brewer represented Slaton and the Slaton Chamber of Commerce at the meeting, which was attended by bankers, county agents and other West Texas citizens interested in plans for drought aid.

Mr. Brewer reported upon returning here that the meeting considered the problem of organizing intermediate credit corporations which would function through the federal land bank at Houston, making credits available, perhaps, on next year's production of crops. The meeting also took action on the question of securing reduced freight rates on livestock and shipments into and from drought areas. Senator Tom Connolly wired a list of counties to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, asking that the reduced rates be immediately made effective in such counties. Lubbock county was included. Action by Secretary Hyde was hoped for.

Mr. Brewer said that Walter S. Posey, Lubbock banker, was named as the Lubbock county man who would take the lead in determining if an intermediate credit corporation should be formed in this county.

County Agent D. F. Eaton was the only other Lubbock county representative attending the Haskell meeting.

Installation of Legion Officers Thursday Night

New officers of the American Legion Post and Legion Auxiliary here will be installed at meetings to be held next Thursday night, September 25, at the Slaton clubhouse. It is announced by Legion Commander D. E. Elliott, Post Commander-Elect J. A. Elliott, and Mrs. E. C. Foster, president of the Auxiliary.

The Tahoka Post of the American Legion has been asked to assist in the installation ceremonies. All members of local Post and Auxiliary are requested to attend officials of both organizations said.

The meeting is to be on Thursday night instead of Friday night, in order to permit the Rotary club to hold a reception at the clubhouse on Friday night for teachers, trustees and wives and friends of the Rotarians, it was stated.

After 46 Years Slaton Woman Sees Brother

Tobe Stewart, of Roswell, New Mexico, arrived Monday for a visit with his sisters, Mrs. B. Forber and Mrs. Leila Moles, and his niece, Mrs. Nina Wilson.

Mr. Stewart and Mrs. Moles had not seen each other for forty-six years and therefore did not know each other when they met. The reunion was greatly enjoyed.

Miss Roma Roper, of Plainview, is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Allen Ferrell and Mrs. Joy Wolfkill.

Local Pastor Will Leave Church On October 1, He Says

Elder J. E. Mullins, pastor of the Church of Christ here since March, 1929, has announced his resignation effective on October 1. The pastor has not announced his future plans, nor have the plans of the church relative to securing a successor been made known.

During his pastorate of a year and seven months, Brother Mullins has done a constructive work in his church and in the community. His congregation has grown and all departments of the work of his denomination have expanded, according to reports by members of the congregation. The pastor's influence in civic and community affairs also has been felt, and he will be missed in these circles, as well as in the religious life of the city and territory.

Lubbock Seeks Radio Station

Application has been filed with the Federal Radio commission for the installation of a radio broadcasting station at Lubbock.

The application, the dispatch disclosed, was for a 500-watt station radiating 1450 kilocycles on unlimited time.

Agitation for a radio broadcasting station has been prevalent at Lubbock for some time but no action had been taken on the matter until this week.

The application for the station was made by Robert H. Jones, Jr., and W. M. Perry, Lubbock business men.

Rotarians Will Give Reception On Friday Night

On next Friday night, September 26, the Slaton Rotary club will give a reception at the Slaton clubhouse for teachers of the Slaton public schools, their wives, husbands or friends; the trustees of Slaton schools and their wives; and the Rotary Anns (wives or friends of Rotarians).

This is the annual affair which the club sponsors at this season of the year. Usually a banquet is given, but a reception was decided upon for this occasion. Letters have been mailed to all expected guests, inviting them to attend. A program will be given, followed by the serving of refreshments. The reception will begin at 8 o'clock.

All members of the club will receive credit for attendance next week by attending the reception. There will be no luncheon at noon next Friday.

J. W. Hood, Abe Kessel and T. E. Roderick compose the committee in charge of the program.

No Action on Road Maintenance Taken

Although in session since Monday the State Highway commission has failed to take any action on the proposed $1,000,000 maintenance program, aimed primarily at relieving financial stress in drought stricken areas and in reducing unemployment. The commission spent most of the time Wednesday attending to detail work incidental to the letting of contracts Monday and the day before.

The maintenance program was submitted to the commission at the request of Governor Dan Moody and the Texas drought relief committee. Most of the projects will be grading and grubbing and the construction of drainage structures, a type of work that requires mostly manual labor. All the work will be done with local labor wherever possible. The program consists of 55 projects in more than 35 counties. This will be in addition of other allotments made regularly by the commission the special maintenance program merely being the advancing of work to this fall and winter that ordinarily would have been done next spring and summer.

Night Classes Will Be Organized At Tech

Fall term night classes will be organized at Texas Tech, including chemistry, geology, English, history, and mathematics for freshmen; business economics and cooperative marketing for business men, and possibly French and German, depending on the number indicating a desire to take the courses in which full college credit will be given.

Responding to a demand for night classes, the college expects to organize them through the extension department. If the demand does not justify organization of a class, the subject, excepting chemistry and geology may be taken by correspondence.

The night courses will be scheduled on different nights of the week so that students will have a wider range of choice in subjects. For each subject successfully completed, a full student college credit toward a degree or a teacher's certificate will be given.

Other subjects may be added to the night classes if there is sufficient demand for them. The fee per extension class subject, yielding a three term hour credit, is $10. Four term hour course fees will be more in proportion to the credit granted. If a subject is taken by correspondence.

Southland Gets First Bale from Smallwood

Southland's first bale of 1930 cotton was brought in last week by G. N. Smallwood, the bale weighing 506 pounds. A premium for the grower was made up by Southland business men. The Farmers Gin of Southland ginned the bale.

Mr. Smallwood is a member of the cotton Co-Op association.

Baptist Association Meet Closes At Post

The annual meeting of the Lubbock Baptist association, which included 4 counties and part of a fifth, closed a two-day session at the First Baptist church, Post, last Friday.

Rev. J. C. McCarty, Lubbock pastor, was elected moderator of the association for the ensuing year, and J. D. Carroll, also of Lubbock, was chosen clerk.

The next annual meeting will be held at Abernathy.

Several Slaton people attended the meetings on Thursday and Friday.

Snyder Tigers Defeat Slaton Tigers, 12 to 6

The Slaton High Tigers lost their first grid battle of the season last Friday afternoon when the Snyder Tigers clawed their way to a 12 to 6 victory.

McClinton, Snyder half, carried the pigskin across for his team on the two occasions when touchdowns were scored. In each instance, he raced about seventy yards after breaking through the Slaton defense and outdistancing his pursuers.

Slaton's lone counter came in the third quarter after a beautifully executed pass, Cannon to Johnson, after which Cooke wormed his way over the stripe for the score.

The visitors were strong on defense holding the Tigers back in the final period when the local eleven was almost within scoring distance, which, if it had happened, would have tied the score.

A fairly good-sized crowd accompanied the Snyder team here for the game.

The game has no bearing on the Slaton team's district standing.

Rotary Program Has 3 Speakers

Dr. W. E. Payne, W. M. "Bill" Cates and Dr. George W. Shanks were the speakers on the luncheon program of the Slaton Rotary club at its meeting last Friday. Each one talked on the subject, "What Rotary Means To Me."

All three of the men stressed the fellowship and service features.

Dr. Paul W. Horn, of the Lubbock club, was among the visitors. He responded to an invitation to speak, and emphasized some strong points in the meaning of Rotary.

The program for this Friday will consist of discussions of the general theme, "The Individual Rotarian's Responsibility In Community Service." Jess Swint, R. H. Tudor, Claude F. Anderson, J. Tom Overby and P. G. Stokes are to be the speakers.

Miss Thelma Wilson returned here Monday evening after an extended visit through Ohio and the Great Lakes region.

Tuesday Is "Slaton Day" At Fair In Amarillo; Wilson To Speak For Slaton Over Radio Tuesday Night

Next Tuesday, September 23, has been designated as "Slaton Day" at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo, which opens next Monday and continues through all the week.

Officials of the Amarillo fair have urged that a large number of Slaton people attend the fair that day. Reduced railroad rates are in effect, it was announced.

Through the courtesy of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, arrangements have been made for L. A. Wilson, secretary of the Slaton Chamber, to speak over the radio from Amarillo on Tuesday night, sometime between 8 and 10 p. m.

Slaton Pastor Helps Hold Snyder Funeral

Rev. W. F. Ferguson, pastor of the First Baptist church here, was called to Snyder last Thursday to assist in conducting funeral services there for Otto S. Williamson, 47, Snyder business man, who died at his home on the preceding Tuesday.

Rev. Mr. Ferguson was formerly pastor at Snyder.

Many Veterans Apply For Disability Benefits

More than 149,000 World War veterans have applied for disability pay for non-service connected disabilities, under the provisions made for them in the law enacted just before the adjournment of Congress and signed by the President on July 3, 1930.

Up to the present time more than 4200 have made application for this allowance to the Dallas office of the U. S. Veterans Bureau which has jurisdiction over 112 counties through Texas, of which district this county is attached.

Lutheran Pastors Say American Legion 'Anti-Christ'

Two hundred pastors of the Wisconsin and Missouri synods of the Evangelical Lutheran churches Wednesday, of this week, went on record as condemning the prayers of the American Legion as "addressed to idols" and "abominable to the sight of a Christian."

Meeting in conference at Milwaukee the pastors failed to take action regarding the Rev. John Henning, pastor of the Iron Ridge, Wis. church, whose ouster was asked by his board of directors because he refused to admit several legionnaires to communion. The Rev. Mr. Henning said he considered the American Legion "Anti Christ since it did not officially recognize Christ in the prayers of the organization."

The pastors approved a statement that "prayers of the American Legion ritual are addressed to idols, and are abominable to the sight of a Christian." While the meeting was called, delegates said previously, to determine if legionnaires should be denied church membership, the convention failed to take action for or against the proposal.

Tigers Will Play Colorado Eleven On Friday Week

The Slaton High Tigers will play the Colorado High school Wolves at Colorado on next Friday afternoon, it is announced. This game was scheduled because the Tigers had been unable to arrange a game within the district for that date.

Little is known here of the strength of the Colorado team, except that Abilene defeated them 18 to 13, last Friday.

It may be expected that the Tigers will have good competition. The game should be a splendid one, and it is hoped by local officials that a number of Slaton fans will accompany the team to Colorado to see the game.

Special Meeting of Legion Is Held

Special meetings of the local American Legion Post and the Legion Auxiliary were held Thursday night at the Slaton clubhouse, members listening in on a national radio broadcasting program relative to the forthcoming National Legion convention in Boston on October 6 to 8. The program was broadcast from historic Faneuil Hall, Boston.

The radio set for receiving the program was furnished the Legion Post by Joe Teague, Jr., of Teague Drug store.

Lubbock Fair Is To Be Excellent Again This Year

"It's going to be something that no one should miss," is the way L. A. Wilson, vice-president of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair, characterized the seventeenth annual fair and exposition that is to be held at Lubbock, September 29 to October 4, inclusive.

"The fair has developed into one of the most successful and one of the most comprehensive expositions in the entire Southwest in the past few years and this year the amusement and educational features of the show are to be especially good," he said.

Mr. Wilson said Lubbock and the rest of this county and section will be needed to help make a success of the Panhandle-Plains Poultry Show, the first show being scheduled for December 10, 11 and 12, and that Slaton people should cooperate with the Lubbock Fair as a fair exchange for their cooperation with the poultry show here.

Methodist W. M. S. Met At Southland

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church met in an all-day session at the First Methodist church, at Southland, September 10. Services opened at 10 a. m. with Mrs. H. W. Ragsdale presiding. Meeting was opened with hymn No. 35, "Have Thine Own Way Lord." Prayer by Crabtree followed by song, "Take Time to be Holy."

Rev. I. A. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church of Slaton, talked on Prayer, reading the 11th chapter of Luke.

Vocal solo by Miss Baker, Southland, Mrs. Rankin, of Southland, gave a brief report on the "voices."

Presiding elder, Rev. Mr. Bickley, of Lubbock, talked on the Bible. Mrs. Grabor, of Post, in her charming way, presented junior church work to the body in a most convincing manner.

Dismissed for lunch by Rev. Mr. Naugle, of Wilson.

Lunch was served cafeteria style by the Missionary society of Southland. The afternoon session was opened with hymn No. 136.

Devotional by Mrs. King, the 14th chapter of St. John.

Prayer.—Mrs. S. H. Adams, Slaton; Mrs. Bickley, of Lubbock, talked on Bible Mission study. Those who failed to hear this talk missed a rare treat indeed.

Reading, Miss Hunt, of Post.

Mrs. Carter Thompson, of Post, talked on Woman's place of service in the church.

Vocal solo.—Miss Hawthorne, of Southland.

Mrs. Nagule, of Wilson, gave a missionary message of the Bible.

Miss Little, Post, talked on her trip to Mount Arral.

There being several auxiliaries present: Slaton, two; Wilson, Post, Southland, Littlefield and Lubbock. The loving cup was awarded Southland as they had 98 per cent of their membership present.

The next Zone meeting will be held at Post.

Mrs. J. L. Sweet was added as a member of the program committee. Benediction by Rev. Mr. Nagule.

MORE PAVING ON SLATON-LUBBOCK HIGHWAY OPENED

Another half mile of paving was opened Wednesday by the State Highway department on Highway No. 7, south of Lubbock when the new slab from the F. W. & D. tracks on Avenue H, south to the turn was uncovered and placed in service.

Judges Go from Here To Lamesa To Judge Laws

Three Slaton people, Mrs. M. A. Pember, Mrs. J. M. Wolfskill and C. A. Bruner, went to Lamesa last Tuesday and officiated as judges in the second judging event of Lamesa's first annual lawn contest. They report a most pleasant visit with the Lamesa people, having been treated with the utmost courtesy and consideration. They were guests of the Lamesa Luncheon club at noon Tuesday, and were shown other courtesies while there, one of these being that each of the three was given a pound of butter from the West Texas Milk Products plant in Lamesa.

The outcome of the lawn contest was not fully known when the Slaton judges left Lamesa late Tuesday, as grades had not been totaled up.

The first judging in the Lamesa contest was held on July 27, at which time Mr. Bruner and Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Green were the judges. On each occasion, the Slaton Chamber of Commerce arranged for the local people to assist Lamesa in their lawn judging. Lamesa people judged Slaton's lawns on August 1.

Mr. Bruner said Lamesa is looking forward eagerly toward the visit of Slaton people on November 11 when their team and the Slaton High Tigers will play their annual football game.

Madden Is Named Receiving Agent of Cotton Co-Op

L. E. Madden, Slaton public weigher, has been named receiving agent here for the Texas Cotton Co-Operative association for this season. He will serve the member farmers of this section, handling their cotton through the Lubbock district office. Mr. Madden said he expects to be able to give one-day service to all local members, if the Lubbock office can handle the work without delay.

Mr. Madden's headquarters are at the Union Compress & Warehouse company's office, on North Ninth Street.

Appointment of Mr. Madden followed a decision made last week by Chamber of Commerce officers that a sub-office of Commerce last week here this season because of the short crop, it being apparent that the sub-office could not be expected to pay its expenses.

Officers Named By Legion Post And Auxiliary

At regular meetings of the local American Legion Post and Legion Auxiliary, held last Friday night at the clubhouse, officers of the two organizations were elected for 1931.

The list of officers chosen by the Legion Post follows:

Post Commander, J. A. Elliott; 1st Vice-Commander, John D. Smith; 2nd Vice-Commander, Art K. Green; Adjutant, L. A. Wilson; Finance Officer, Oscar Killian; Chaplain, Dr. E. C. Foster; Service Officer, G. H. Brown; Sergeant-at-Arms, Calvin H. Robbins; Historian, Briggs Robertson; Liaison Officer, L. A. Wilson, Mess Sergeant, A. J. Kahlich; and Judge Advocate, D. E. Kemp.

Installation of these officers will be held on Thursday night, September 25, next week, at the Slaton clubhouse.

The Tahoka Legion Post has been invited to assist with the formal installation ceremonies.

Officers elected by the Legion Auxiliary, are:

President, Mrs. Fred Tudor; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Alvin O. White; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. P. G. Meading; Secretary, Mrs. Lee Green; Chaplain, Mrs. Laura Rhodes; Historian, Mrs. Oscar Killian; Sergeant-at-Arms, Mrs. Art K. Green; and Executive Committee, Mesdames L. A. Wilson, John D. Smith and G. H. Brown.

Installation of these officers will take place at the Slaton clubhouse on next Thursday night, September 25.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Edmondson and sons returned Wednesday from Norman, Oklahoma, to which place they accompanied their daughter, Pearl, who has entered Oklahoma State Uni-

WHEN'S THE TIME TO QUIT

I rode downtown in a taxicab, and looked at the picture of the driver on the license card which is issued by the police.

Where had I seen a face like that? Suddenly I knew. An acquaintance of mine looks enough like that taxi driver to be his twin.

If the whole truth be blurted out, I doubt if there is very wide difference in intelligence between that taxi driver and my acquaintance. Neither has much education. Neither is well read. Neither can be accused of profound thought.

How is it, then, that one is on the front seat of a cab and the other rides in the back seat of a limousine?

Luck? Undoubtedly there is a lot of luck in every successful career. But I think my acquaintance has at least one quality which the taxi driver lacks. He stuck to his game through some pretty lean and tough years when there was every reason to be discouraged and quit.

The dividing line between success and failure is just a hairline in thousands of cases. One single decision may make all the difference.

A young man has just been promoted into the vice-presidency of a corporation, and given a stock participation that will make him many times a millionaire.

He told me that he started in a branch office of the company as an accountant. Before long he had made himself master of one certain phase of the company's affairs.

He looked around him and above him, and was discouraged. Everywhere his way seemed to be blocked by men who had been there longer, but were young enough so that they would be active for many years.

One night he definitely decided to look for something else. The next day an officer of the company visited his branch, and a violent discussion ensued. The officer upheld one side of the question, my young friend the other. And my young friend knew his facts; he was right.

The argument ended by the officer asking him to come down to New York "for a few weeks." He has been there ever since.

If he had resigned the preceding evening, my young friend would have missed his one great chance.

Hanging over the door to the laboratory of a great automobile company is this sentence: "No one ever would have crossed the ocean if he could have got off in the storm."

I am not writing this piece to try to make any man contented with a poor job. There are plenty of instances where men have made their everlasting fortunes by making a fresh start.

But more often, I think, the battle is won just by sitting tight.

Y. W. A. ELECT OFFICERS FOR THE COMING YEAR

The Y. W. A. met at the home of Miss Ruby Catching, Monday evening in a business and social meeting. The following were elected to office for the coming year:

- President, Cora Sealey.
- Vice-President, Jewel Armes.
- Secretary and Treasurer, Eunice Florence.
- Song Leader, Lois Stallings.
- Reporter, Faye Coltharp.
- Pianist, Ruby Catching.

The society voted to have a rummage sale Saturday, September 20, at the corner of the Commercial hotel building. Anyone wishing to give anything has been asked to call 81 or Mrs. G. J. Catching.

The next meeting will be with Faye Coltharp.

BRIDGE PARTY ENJOYED IN WOLFSKILL HOME

Mrs. Allen Ferrell and Mrs. Joy Wolfskill entertained with a bridge party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Joy Wolfskill, 845 West Lubbock street.

Four tables of bridge were enjoyed with high score going to Mrs. R. W. Ragsdale and low score to Allen Ferrell.

At the conclusion of play a sweet course was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Claude Porter, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ragsdale, Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Shanks, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Tekell, Misses Frances Adams, Jo Hestand, Lula Cone, of Lubbock; Roma Roper, of Plainview; and Messrs. Gilder, Levey, Merl Dutton, Joy Wolfskill and Allen Ferrell.

ELIZABETH SMITH IS BRIDE OF S. J. OLIVER

Miss Elizabeth Smith became the bride of S. J. Oliver Saturday at high noon at Clovis, New Mexico, after the couple had quietly slipped away from friends.

The bride is a member of the local school faculty which position she has held for the past four years. She is a charming young lady and is very popular among the young people of Slaton.

Mr. Oliver, who is connected with the Santa Fe railway, has been here for the past year and is employed as rate clerk.

They returned to Slaton Sunday afternoon and are making their home for the present at the Hotel Forrest.

METHODIST W. M. S. URGE WOMEN TO ATTEND

The Methodist Woman's Missionary society meets every Monday afternoon at three o'clock.

On Monday, September 15, in the absence of the president and the vice-president, Mrs. R. H. Todd presided. Mrs. R. A. Metcalf led the mission study. Those taking parts on the program were:

Mrs. W. E. Olive, Mrs. R. H. Todd and Mrs. R. A. Metcalf.

A vocal duet by Mrs. Todd and Mrs. L. W. Smith was highly appreciated. Miss Hazel Mansker very graciously gave two readings.

The absent members missed a splendid service.

Ladies of the town who are not pledged elsewhere are invited to attend this society.

SLATON COUPLE MARRIED AT CLOVIS ON SATURDAY

Miss Ruth Johnson and Mr. W. A. Clay, both of Slaton, were united in marriage Saturday, September 13, at Clovis, New Mexico.

The groom is connected with the Gulf Refining company here as trucker while the bride is employed at the Slaton laundry.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay will make their home in Slaton.

Felt Bad After Eating

"Before I started taking Black-Draught, three years ago, my health was very bad," writes Mrs. C. C. Carsco, 945 Concord St., Beaumont, Texas. "I suffered constantly from constipation. I had headache when I got up in the morning, and I felt dull and sluggish. I hardly ate a meal that my food agreed with me. Frequently I would have gas on my stomach, and felt awful. I read about Black-Draught, and I thought it might help me. After I had taken it a little while, I felt much better. It relieves constipation. I keep it on hand so when I need a laxative I will have it. In the three years I have been taking it, I have never found anything as good for constipation."

WOMEN who are run-down, nervous, or suffer every month, should take CARDUL. Used for over 50 years.

REGULAR MEETING OF O. E. S. TUESDAY

Announcement has been made by the officers of the local chapter of the Order Eastern Stars that there will be a regular meeting next Tuesday night, September 23, at the Masonic hall.

Members and visitors are invited to be present at this meeting as there is to be initiation.

SCHOOL DAYS

All over the nation, the public schools are in full swing. Shortly the colleges will begin their annual sessions. The greatest of all American industries, education, is running on full time again.

More than 25,000,000 pupils are enrolled this year in the public schools of America, under nearly 800,000 teachers, to whom we pay an average salary of $100 a month, a total bill for teaching alone of more than one billion dollars a year, to which almost another billion must be added for educational expenses. And that is for public grade schools alone, below the grade of high school. In the high schools we have two and a half million pupils, with 140,000 teachers. Then there are State normal schools and teachers' college, in addition to state universities, supported out of public funds, and on top of those are the privately endowed preparatory schools, colleges, universities and professional schools, accounting for nearly another million of students with some 75,000 instructors.

There is nothing else except war for which we spend so much money as for education in this country. And still we have not got as far as some other nations have gone, in proportion to population. Little Denmark has a higher percentage of high school and college graduates. Only about 30 per cent of farm boys of high school age in America ever go to high school; almost 100 percent in Denmark.

Y. W. A. WILL HAVE RUMMAGE SALE ON SATURDAY

The Baptist Y. W. A. members will sponsor a rummage sale Saturday, September 20. A booth will be erected at the corner of Garza and Texas avenue by the Commercial hotel.

Mrs. G. J. Catching, leader of the association, will be very glad to call for anything persons wish to donate to this sale.

MRS. LOVETT HOSTESS TO THE BLUE BONNET CLUB

A regular bi-monthly session of the Blue Bonnet club was held Wednesday, September 10 at the home of Mrs. W. R. Lovett on West Lynn street. With the president, Mrs. L. W. Smith, in the chair during the business hour, plans were made to purchase and make the fall wardrobe for the orphan supported by the club.

The members then spent the afternoon in sewing and conversation after which refreshments were served.

The following members were present:

Mrs. L. W. Smith, Mrs. G. J. Catching, Mrs. J. R. McAtee, Mrs. B. T. Slater, Mrs. Fred Tudor, Mrs. T. A. Kirby, Mrs. C. L. Simmons, Mrs. Hattie Hodges, Mrs. George Caldwell, Mrs. W. P. Shelton, and Mrs. R. G. Kirkpatrick.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. T. Lokey on September 24, at her home on West Garza street.

INDUSTRIES

Economists, statesmen and capitalists are hunting for new industries to take up the slack in permanent employment resulting from the extensions of labor-saving devices in established industries.

One thing that is being seriously considered by one of the great concerns which manufactures mechanical devices, is a machine which can be installed in the home, like a radio or a refrigerator, which will cool the house, or at least the room it is in, in Summer. In the laboratory it is possible to do this now. What is needed is the development of this on a commercial scale, to sell at a price within reach of the average family.

In time, and perhaps in a very short time, something like that will become a great industry.

RUPTURE

EXPERT HERE

C. F. Redlich, Minneapolis, Minn., nationally famous Rupture Appliance Expert, will demonstrate without charge his unequalled method at LUBBOCK TUESDAY, SEPT. 30 at the Lubbock Hotel from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Mr. C. F. Redlich says: The "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief and contract the opening in a remarkably short time.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expertly adjusted device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically everlasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptures which heretofore were considered uncontrollable.

"IF YOU WANT TO HAVE IT DONE RIGHT—SEE REDLICH."

Doctor J. W. Seaver, for many years in charge of the Physical Education of the students of Yale College, has recorded 75 per cent cures with this system.

Mr. Redlich is internationally known and speaks English, German and Spanish.

SCENE FROM ERNIE YOUNG'S REVUE

The above is a scene from Ernie Young's Revue in "Spanish Nights" which appears before the grandstand each night at the Tri-State Fair, Amarillo, September 22 to 27th. There are forty-five people in this company and they carry their own orchestra. They are playing at all of the fairs over the country.

"Looney" Sayings

By LOONEY, "Himself"

Cheer up folks! Nothing is as bad as it seems. It couldn't be. As bad as it looks now, there is a silver lining to it all. As Mr. Sadler said when here: "When things look gloomy and blue, nothing does us more good than a good show and a good laugh." We have a show to start the week off that I guarantee. If you don't laugh and laugh plenty you are too far gone to do any good. This funny picture I am telling you about is Jack Oakie, National nit wit and accent on a "wit" in "The Social Lion," and we give you a special showing at 11:30 Saturday night. You probably wonder why anyone wants to go to the show at "midnight" when it shows again for three days. Did you ever come to see a midnight talkie? It doesn't seem like the same picture the next day. Talking is clearer, like the radio, and the reason, I don't know. Try it and you will see I am right, though.

Thought on one subject: We have Franky Carroll in "The Devil's Holiday," for Wednesday and Thursday. And an outdoor picture for Saturday which is 100 per cent entertainment and perfect talking.

Coming we have some of the biggest of the year—in fact, we have the biggest pictures ever made. "Manslaughter," "Anybody's War," "Return of Dr. Manchu," and some that are not even finished. Among them are "The Big Trail," "Lightnin'," "Liliom," and "Just Imagine." All 100 per cent of just what you like.

ERNEST H. WARD ANNOUNCES FOR MAYOR

Having been solicited by a large number of voters and friends and having been presented with a petition with many more qualified signers than required, I have consented to become a candidate for the office of Mayor in the coming Special Election, September 30.

I do not think that I need an introduction to the Slaton people as I came here in February, 1915, and have been in and around Slaton almost ever since.

I believe that sane economy should be practiced in the expenditures of city funds at all times, and particularly with financial conditions as they now are. A program of strict economy should be used, and if elected I pledge myself to such a program.

Also, I pledge you that, if elected, to this office, I will devote my time and energies to the best interests of Slaton and will be mayor to all people alike and with special favors to none.

I believe that I am qualified for the office and will greatly appreciate your vote and influence.

Respectfully and sincerely yours,
ERNEST H. WARD.

TO THE VOTERS AND CITIZENS OF SLATON, TEXAS

Having been solicited by a large number of voters and citizens, I have decided to make the race for Mayor of our city in the election of September 30.

With times and conditions as they are, and are likely to be for a year, it is going to be very necessary that the city be run on a rigid, economical basis.

Having been one of your city commissioners for the past year and a half has familiarized me with the city affairs and I pledge myself to strict economy if elected mayor of this city. I will dispose of my grocery store and give my entire time to the duties of the office.

I solicit your vote and influence in the coming election. Respectfully yours,

T. M. GEORGE.

GOD OUR RULER

Contributed by C. R. Crutcher, Posey During the dark ages people repeatedly drifted off into wickedness, and according to prophecy were severally punished.

They had sieges of locusts and grasshoppers, droughts and famines. God Our Ruler: It seems now that we are again going back into the old ruts at a rapid speed, crimes of all sorts being on the increase, we are repeatedly desecrating the Sabbath, turning our backs upon God's word.

The same God is Our Ruler: The oil kings and all our millionaires have piled up wealth at the hands of the poor man who toils. The operator invests large amounts of money in labor saving machinery, thereby throwing thousands of poor needy men out of work. The poor man is drafted into the army and sacrifices his life to save a rich man's country.

Why not under the present situation, which is becoming serious, draft the millionaires money into service, to prevent starvation, thereby taking a part of the burden off of the government.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I announce myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor at the Special Election, September 30, 1930.

If elected I shall give my time and best efforts towards making Slaton SAFE and SOUND.

If defeated, I pledge my loyal support to the officials of Slaton to any constructive measures that they may deem necessary, in any emergency that may arise. Very truly,

BUSINESS MEN'S BIBLE CLASS MET AT PEMBER'S

The Business Men's Bible class of the First Methodist church met recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Pember.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Lewis Smith, who called on Rev. I. A. Smith for the invocation, following which Mrs. Pember gave her welcome address from Will Carlton's City Ballads.

After the welcome address the chairman turned the meeting over to President A. J. Payne for a short business session and in this meeting everything was discussed pro and con for the good of the class and church.

Following the business session, delicious refreshments were served of ice cream and angel food cake.

After the benediction by L. T. Green everybody went home feeling happy and better for having been out to the meeting.

The class meets next Friday, September 19, with W. R. Lovett, 415 W. Lynn street.

APPLES

Apple-picking time is upon us. From Georgia to Maine, from Pennsylvania to California, the apple grows almost everywhere in the United States.

Although the apple is not a native of this continent, we have developed so many varieties which are distinctively American, that we look upon the apple as our own. Europe now buys thousands of carloads of American apples every year.

The apple is one of the few edibles that is as good raw as when cooked as raw. Cooking does not spoil an apple, but converts it into something new and strange. Who ever heard of a baked orange? But a baked Rhode Island Greening, swimming in a rich syrup composed of its own juices and all the sugar it can carry, browned to a turn and enriched with a liberal baptism of thick fresh cream, is there anything that comes to the table quite as good as that?

Apple pie! Europe may claim the apple, but we have first claim on apple pie. No French chef ever learned how to make an apple pie. The English call them "apple tarts" and leave out the cinnamon and most of the sugar and make the crust out of something more like an inner tube in texture than the flaky substance which melts in your mouth and which every good American cook knows how to mix and roll.

King George the Second, who was a sort of royal dumbbell, is said to have marvelled, on first eating an apple dumpling, how the apple got inside the dumpling. He would have marvelled more if he could have had a genuine American baked apple dumpling, for the English idea of a dumpling is to wrap it up in a rag and boil it. Baked apple dumpling, with a "hard" sauce compiled of lots of granulated sugar and lots more butter, all beaten together with a liberal flavoring of nutmeg, may not be the food of the gods, but it comes pretty close to the nectar and ambrosia which Ganymede used to serve on Olympus.

And cider! But hush. Cider has an unfortunate habit of abeying one of the laws of Nature which was not repealed by the Volstead act. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, the apples which are not good quite good enough for pies are not going to waste on the ground, as they used to do, however we may deplore that fact.

RULERS OF AMERICA

Mr. James W. Gerard, once United States Ambassador to Germany, made public the other day a list of 64 men who, he said, were the real rulers of America. There was not a single politician or office-holder in the list. It was composed of the men who operate the great industries, banks and newspaper organizations of the nation.

Some of the nation's richest men were on Mr. Gerard's list, of course; but many men of great wealth were not included. The rich men whom he named are men who actively manage the investment and operation of their own wealth, like Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. But the great majority of these "Rulers of America" are hired men. They work for other people, manage other people's money and property for them.

They rule or help to rule America.

not because they are men of wealth but because they are men of brains and ability. Walter P. Gifford, president of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, does not own as much as one percent of the company which he manages. Owen D. Young, Chairman of the General Electric Company, is a hired man working for the company's stockholders. Such power as those men and others similarly situated exert is theirs because they have proved their ability to build and operate great organizations of capital and men.

That is the American principal, to which we all subscribe; that a man is entitled to go as far as his abilities will permit, provided he does not gain power at the expense of others. And it is safe to say that for sheer ability the men whom Mr. Gerard calls "Rulers of America" have it all over the general run of public officials.

PANHANDLE LUMBER CO. BOOSTS TRI-STATE FAIR

The Panhandle Lumber company, with yards located throughout the Panhandle-Plains, is so convinced of the need of encouraging farmers to attend the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo, September 22 to 27, and see the progress being made throughout the territory in diversified farming, that it is using commanding newspaper advertising toward that end, in every city where the company has a yard and newspaper is located.

John E. Hill, general manager of the company, states the situation on diversified farming as follows: "Diversified farming is both practical and profitable in the Panhandle-Plains; and the future of our area depends in no small degree upon the realization of this by our farmers. Our company is taking an active interest in advertising the forthcoming Tri-State Fair at Amarillo because we are convinced that the agricultural exhibits at this annual event will visualize this year as never before the possibilities for profit and success in diversified farming."

The Tri-State Fair is on a better footing this year than ever before, according to Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the Tri-State Fair association. The free gate feature, the $18,000 in cash prizes, the new automobile building and exhibit, and numerous new and better attractions are some of the improvements in the fair to which Mr. Hawk points as assuring a record exposition this year in both interest and attendance.

TELEGRAMS DELIVERED UNSEALED DURING HOLIDAYS

Unsealed telegrams will be delivered by the Western Union Telegraph Co., during the celebration of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, which starts at sundown of September 22, according to an announcement made today by C. B. Beal, manager of the local Western Union office. This special service has been provided in order that Orthodox Hebrews may comply with a Mosaic law which prohibits their tearing anything during the holidays.

The exceptionally large volume of greeting telegrams sent during the Jewish New Year celebration has induced the telegraph company to provide special facilities for their transmission this year, as in previous years. Not only will additional operators and messengers be assigned to offices in Jewish sections but the company has provided a special Jewish New Year blank and envelope which will be used for all greeting telegrams. In addition on a number of suggested phrasings for these messages have been compiled for the convenience of patrons.

The company announced also that it has made provisions for the sending of cabled greetings to European countries. Messages may be sent for as little as $1.00 to these countries.

How Can He Get Around That?

By Albert T. Reid

THE BILL FOR CRIME

The national crime commission has reported that crime costs the United States $13,000,000 a year. The losses due to crime and fraud can of course be only guessed at and estimated, but they are something enormous and incredible. The national income is somewhere around $90,000,000,000 a year, and if crime costs us $13,000,000 about 15 per cent of our income goes to the yellow crooks who infest the nation.

Our people become indignant about rates of taxation which are only a small fraction of this loss. But they do not seem to get so much stirred up over the vastly bigger bill for crime and fraud, and seem to think that it is hopeless to combat it.

In some way the United States, with all its enormous advantages, has become the most lawless of the so-called civilized countries. Something in our easy going national temperament, permits these abuses to flourish.

Crime can not be wholly put down while so many people are selfish and brutal. But it could be reduced to a small fraction of what it is. It seems singular that our achieving American people, who have accomplished such wonders in the field of science, are so deficient in their ability to conduct human relations, and are less successful than the European nations in putting down this lawless conduct.

Our political mistakes have much to do with the success of crime. Political influences are permitted to interfere with the work of police, courts, and all the forces that tend to reduce the crime. People will have to stop voting for candidates because they are the best hand shakers, before they put down crime very much.

Job Printing Neatly Done Here.

A NEW DEGREE

The chief physician came up to an inmate of a private insane asylum, slapped him on the back, and said with comforting accents:

"Well, old man, you're all right. I've just pronounced you cured of the delusion which afflicted you. You can run along now and write your people that you'll be back home in two weeks as good as new."

The patient departed gaily to write his letter. He had finished it and sealed it, but as he was licking the postage stamp it slipped through his fingers and fell on the back of a cockroach that was passing and stuck there. The patient hadn't seen the roach—what he saw was the stamp zigzagging over the floor and following a crooked trail, go up the wall and along the ceiling over head. In depressed silence he tore the letter into bits and dropped the pieces to the floor.

"Two weeks, H—!" he said, "I won't ever get out of here. I'm worse off than I was when I came in here."

MORE MONEY GROWS

Almost everybody has seen the tables of compound interest issued by savings banks showing how much you would have at the end of ten or twenty years if you invested a certain amount at compound interest. Most of us have speculated on what a fortune we could pile up for our grandchildren or great-grandchildren if we could leave our money out at compound interest for, say a hundred years.

Those computations don't always work out, however, as the trustees of funds left by Benjamin Franklin 140 years ago discovered.

Franklin set up two funds of a thousand pounds—$5,000—each, to be lent at 5 per cent interest for the benefit of young working men in the cities of Philadelphia and Boston. In 100 years, Franklin computed, each city would have a fund of 131,000 pounds. Of this, 100,000 pounds was to be used for public improvements and the remaining 31,000 pounds reinvested at 5 per cent for another hundred years. At that time each city would have some $20,000,000 he figured.

Franklin died in 1790. In 1890 the Philadelphia fund, instead of amounting to about $650,000, as he had calculated, was only $90,000. The Boston trustees had been able to do a little better with their investments, and had nearly $300,000, but still less than half of what the donor had estimated.

In other words, neither set of trustees had been able to keep the whole of the principal constantly invested at 5 per cent a year, with safety. Financial and social conditions changed so much in a hundred years that none of the forms of investment suggested by Franklin was available before the century was over.

The great growth of fortunes in America, as elsewhere, has not been in investments in business or industry, but in land. A little more than 100 years ago John G. Wendel, a fur trader, bought several parcels of land on Manhattan Island. His entire investment is said to have been less than $100,000. None of the land has ever passed out of the Wendel family. All but one of the Wendels died and the sole owner today is Miss Ella Wendel, granddaughter of the original investor, now past eighty years old. The assessment for tax purposes of her Manhattan real estate for 1930 is $43,421,000. Its actual value is said to be in excess of $100,000,000.

There is no surer way to insure independence to one's descendants than to buy real estate in any growing community and hang on to it.

SHEETS

To determine why cotton fabrics wear out, the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics has made a laboratory of 400 sheets discarded by a big Washington hotel.

The results of the tests have been submitted to manufacturers of sheeting, who are trying to find ways to make sheets which will wear longer in the parts where these gave out.

Not a matter of great national importance, perhaps, but an illustration of the way in which scientific research by the Government aids manufacturers and incidentally helps to provide the public with better goods.

It is not the way we see ourselves as the way we appear to others that counts most in a world of thought and action.

Some of our people deny that they amount to nothing in the community, as anyway they counted one in the census.

Recovering Gold from the Ocean

New Methods of Salvaging Enables Divers To Bring Treasure Up from Wrecks

Modern science and invention has at last found a way to recover much of the treasure which lies under the sea. Divers equipped with modern apparatus only a few days ago found the wreck of the "Egypt," with $5,000,000 in gold on board, in 400 feet of water off the coast of Spain. Recovery of the treasure now only waits upon favorable weather for the operation of opening the sunken ship's strong-room and lifting the gold to the surface.

The "Atlantida," sunk by a German submarine in 1915, had $25,000,000 of gold on board. She lies in somewhat less than 400 feet of water, off the south coast of Ireland. It is entirely within the realm of possibility that this treasure may be salvaged within the next few years.

Scores of other wrecks of ships known to contain large quantities of gold, silver or other non-perishable valuables lie on the sea bottom in different parts of the world, just out of reach of the old-fashioned diving apparatus, but within range of modern equipment in which a man can go speedily and safely to a depth of 400 feet an even more. Beyond doubt, the treasures of many of these wrecks will be recovered, richly rewarding the men who finance the treasure-hunt before very long.

Up to now, deep-sea divers have not been able to go down much more than 125 feet, because of the pressure of the water upon the flexible rubber diving suits. Water pressure increases at a rate of more than two pounds with every foot of depth; at 100 feet the pressure is 200 pounds to the square inch. That means that the diver's body must withstand that enormous pressure while the air pumped into his rigid helmet must equal that pressure also, to keep the water from seeping in and drowning him.

For many years inventors have been trying to construct rigid metal diving suits which would withstand pressures up to 800 or 1,000 pounds to the square inch, within which a man could descend without subjecting his body and lungs to the pressure. The principal difficulty has been in providing any way in which the diver, once at the bottom of the sea, could see anything, for it was harder to make a glass window that would stand up under pressure, than to make a steel shell which would not be crushed by the weight of water. Dr. Williams Beebe, the naturalist, recently experimented with a steel sphere having a quartz window nearly a foot thick, in which he descended more than 1,100 feet at the end of a cable, to study deep-sea fish life.

But if Dr. Beebe had discovered a wreck full of gold at that depth it wouldn't have done him any good, because there were no arms, grippers or fingers on the outside of his sphere with which to pick up the treasure. That has been another difficulty in treasure-hunting at great depths—the difficulty of operating any sort of grappling device which could be operated from within the apparatus.

Just before the war a Cleveland inventor produced a diving suit which he claimed would operate successfully in 300 feet of water. He was going down to the bottom of Lake Huron, where the "Chippewa" has lain for more than 50 years with several thousand tons of copper ingots from the northern Michigan mines in her hold. The value of her cargo, at the present price of copper, is above the million dollars. One or two efforts at dredging have brought up some of the copper, so the location of the wreck is precisely known. But nobody was willing to spend the $100,000 or so that it would have taken to equip a salvage expedition to go after the "Chippewa's" copper.

If the Italian engineers who have descended to the wreck of the "Egypt" succeed in getting the $5,000,000 out of her, there doubtless will be a rush of capital to finance other such expeditions. Under the laws of treasure-trove, property found at the bottom of the sea belongs, in general, to those who find it. Sometimes an insurance company may have a claim against it, if the treasure can be identified, but there is plenty of it lying around under water to which nobody can put forth a valid title.

Off the little harbor of Tobermory, on the coast of Scotland, lies the wreck of the treasure-ship of the Spanish Armada, sunk in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Spanish coins and ingots of gold have been washed ashore by storms for more than 300 years. That is a promising field for treasure-hunting.

An English company was formed some twenty years ago to recover the treasure which was being carried around the Peninsula of Jutland, which is Denmark. The ship was wrecked off the Skager-Rack, in comparatively shallow water, but with a shifting, sandy bottom, swept by strong currents and exposed to frequent storms. By means of an apparatus similar to a sand-sucker dredge something like $5,000,000 of gold was recovered from the wreck at an expenditure of less than $1,000,000.

The apparatus used by the Italians working on the "Egypt" is simple but extremely effective. The diver is fully protected against pressure, has ample windows through which to observe what there is to be seen, with a powerful reflector throwing an electric light beam thru the water, and has hooks which can be operated from within by means of which a chain or cable can be made fast to anything which could be hauled up. At 400 feet, however, objects only a few feet away are practically invisible.

The "Egypt" was rammed by the French freighter "Seine" on May 20, 1922, in a thick fog. More than 100 passengers and members of the crew were drowned, while 230 were saved. The ship was on the way from London to Bombay. The exact location was, of course, known, and it required only apparatus capable of descending to the depths, to enable the treasure hunters to reap their reward.

HAPHAZARD VOTING

It is somewhat amazing that our country is governed as well as it is, when you consider how careless people vote. If business corporations acted with as little thought as the average voter gives to his ballot, they would go into bankruptcy. Business men decide on their plans as the result of prolonged study and frequently of expensive research.

The average voter gives little thought to politics. He has instinctive preferences that express themselves when he enters the voting booth. Also much depends upon his mood of the moment. If he has had plenty of work and good wages, he is apt to vote for the party in power. If times are dull or his business suffers, then he feels a desire to hit somebody and he votes accordingly.

The American people have plenty of chances in their newspapers to read about political affairs. The radio brings the addresses of the candidates into their homes. If they get the wrong people in office, it is the result of haphazard voting.

The people who fail to read the newspaper appeals of candidates, and fail to listen to the politicians on their radios, are failing to protect their own interests. Their taxes, the condition of business, the regularity of employment, the progress of education and public welfare, depend on the kind of government we get.

The candidates and parties claim that they alone are protecting the interests of the people, and have a correct idea of how to run the government, and that the opposing people are incompetent or worse. The wide awake voter should want to know how far these claims are correct, and how far they are mere "applesauce." And having formed an opinion, it would seem as if he would want to express it at the election taking place in Texas on November 4.

FOOTBALL ENTHUSIASM

Baseball is called our national game, and yet it does not seem to arouse the intense enthusiasm that is created by football. Possibly this may be because there are many more baseball games, so that sport has become an old story to some extent.

But if it was possible to provide seats for all applicants where the game could be seen to good advantage, some of the leading football contests would probably draw crowds of several hundred thousand people a piece. It is doubtful if baseball could do that. Something in football thrills the hearts of the people. It is full of dramatic surprises, it has the clash and conflict of a real fight, so that people love it.

Educators think that the students devote too much time and energy to this sport. But the college alumni keep demanding that their alma mater strengthen its football team, and will contribute liberally for expensive coaches and equipment. Producing a winning football team seems to do more to push a college ahead in popularity, than producing a superior record for scholarship among its students.

It would be foolish to talk of abolishing football, but sometimes a thing that can't be abolished can be controlled. If football players are allowed to slip through a course without having gotten the benefit of it, a school or college has given a false idea of life to its students and the community.

If this standard is lived up to, there need not be any anxiety about football players. They are obtaining social opportunities denied to most boys, and giving them chances for business openings later. If they are taught that they must do their work faithfully and well, live clean lives, and exercise self restraint, football will do them good and not harm.

Fine things for the gardener to put fertilizer on his plants, but he also needs to fertilize them with some of his own perspiration.

Some folks who fail to answer the doorbell when the census taker rings, found the policeman ringing the same before long.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Giles Chittenham, distressed over the suicide of his younger half-brother Rodney, returns to Europe from America, where he had made an unhappy marriage. Rodney had killed himself because a notorious woman, Julie Farrow threw him over. Giles is introduced to Julie Farrow by his friend Lombard, in Switzerland. He resolves to make her fall in love with him, then throw her over as she threw Rodney. She tells him she has made a bet with her friend "Bim" Lennox that she can drive her car to the top of St. Bernard pass and back. Giles challenges her to take him with her and she accepts. They start out in the face of a gathering snowstorm.

Chittenham discovers, to his amazement, that the girl beside him in the car appeals to him as no other woman has ever appealed. And something intangible convinces him that her feeling toward him is similar to his own toward her. "Do you believe in love at first sight?" he asks her as the car coils up the mountain toward the hotel.

Now go on with the story Chittenham's face softened. "I think you're adorable," he answered.

For a moment they looked at one another silently, then Julie said in a queer, breathless way:

"I can't make you out... I've never met a man like you before... I suppose you're just amusing yourself... I suppose you don't mean a word you say—that you're just flirting..."

"Is that what you really suppose?" Chittenham asked. He took her by the shoulders, turning her to him. "Is that what you really suppose?" he asked again.

"No... yes... at least..." she was like a little girl, confused and shy. "Oh, did you really mean it when you said... when—you know what you said... about love at first sight... I mean—you're so strange, and I..." Chittenham's pulses were throbbing in strange fashion. No woman had ever made him feel as he felt now, and it angered him. Was this the strange fascination of her which had conquered Rodney? Was this what the boy had meant when he said, "Wait till you see her! There's something different—quite different about her to any other woman—"

She had told him that she had never cared for any one in all her life, that she was afraid of caring! but now something in her tremulous girlishness and faltering voice gave the lie to those words. Yesterday seemed a great way off—in another world. America and Sadie were wiped out and forgotten, even the memory of Rodney faded until it seemed only a ghost in the background of the present unreality as Chittenham drew Julie Farrow into his arms and kissed her unresisting lips.

It was late the following day when they reached Montreux. They had to leave her car at the hotel and make the descent with an experienced driver, for the road was deep with snow. The drive down was very silent.

Julie looked utterly happy, and it was in vain that he told himself that it must be only because she had added yet another conquest to her already long list, and that it was nothing whatever to do with him personally.

There was a little half smile on her lips, a sweet dreaminess in her eyes. It seemed an eternity ago since he had first held her in his arms.

He wished he could forget the softness of her hair against his face, and the warm pressure of her lips.

No woman had ever before stirred his pulses so strangely; no woman's arms about his neck had ever made him feel that the world be well lost if only he could so hold her for ever. But she had only been playing, even as he had! No doubt she would be just as relieved as he was that the little game was finished.

For Chittenham meant it to finish as soon as they reached Montreux. He would never willingly see her again; once he was away from her he would forget the clasp of her arms and her kisses.

She did not seem to notice his silence, and presently, glanced down at her, he saw that she was asleep.

Chittenham looked at her and longed to gather her in his arms as he had done last night.

He looked away from her with a little cold feeling round his heart.

Why were such women allowed to be? What right had they to wander through the world bringing trouble and tragedy to every man who crossed their path? The woman who had sent Rodney to his death...

Well, he would have paid back part of the debt, if not in full. He would have paid back part of the debt if he had caused her one sleepless night, or one tear.

Julie slept with her cheek against his arm all the way back to Montreux. When they were close to the town Chittenham gently roused her.

She flushed, meeting his eyes. Her eyes were so happy—he wished she would not look so happy; it made him feel mean—as if he had pretended to give a child a beautiful gift, knowing that when she opened the box she would find only a stone.

"I'll look much prettier when you see me again," she said. She squeezed his hand and turned away.

"Au revoir, till to-night then."

Chittenham went on to the hotel where he was to meet Lombard. It was nearly dinner time when he was dressed, and Lombard tapped at the door.

Lombard fidgeted about the room. "So you got snowed up!" he said. "There's something I want to tell you, Chittenham."

"Go ahead. What is it? Have you been getting into a mess while I was up on high?"

"It's only that I made a silly mistake yesterday about Miss Farrow. Can't think how I did it."

Chittenham looked up sharply.

"A mistake! What do you mean?" Lombard flushed, and his eyes grew a little anxious.

"I made a damned silly mistake. Quite unintentional, of course. But the fact is... well she's not the girl Rodney knew after all—she's not the Julie Farrow he was so mad about. It came out last night when I was talking to Miss Lennox. They've both got the same name—Julie Farrow—they're cousins, you see, but this one isn't the one Rodney was so mad about—she's in London at this moment—the one here is her cousin."

Chittenham turned, his face flushed, his eyes furious—

"What in hell are you talking about?" he demanded thickly.

"My dear chap, I've just told you. It was a mistake—quite an innocent one on my part naturally. After all there's no harm done, is there? What difference can it make? Miss Farrow will never know..."

"Never know!" Chittenham flung past him and out of the room. He went downstairs, took his coat from the lobby and went out into the gathering dusk.

Not Julie Farrow! not the woman who had driven Rodney to his death!

Not Julie Farrow, the woman who had lain in his arms last night; not the woman to whom he believed he was paying back a bitter debt—not the cold, calculating adventuress whose kisses and sweet, whispered words he had taken with a covert sneer.

"It's possible to be just as happy down on earth as it is on the heights..."

She had said that to him, her hand in his, just before they parted; she said that, believing in him, trusting him, loving him! Not knowing that he was a married man! not knowing perhaps any of the tragic happenings which had led up to this, the worst tragedy of all.

What would she say when she knew? how could he explain what possible excuse could he find for his actions which would not seem utterly caddish and despicable in her eyes?

It was as if some one had torn down a veil that had blinded and deceived him.

He remembered a hundred and one little things which should have warned him, told of his mistake.

He knew now that when last night Julie had said she loved him it was the truth also. And there was Sadie...

What a sport of the gods!

He felt like a man in a dream. He tried to believe that he had only to rub his eyes and he would find that the horse before him had vanished and find that he was back again in South America, that he had never come to Switzerland with Lombard, never met Julie Farrow on the little lake steamer.

And then one of the windows leading on to a balcony opened—the sound of voices floated down to him thru the quiet evening, and a woman's figure was silhouetted against the light.

Julie? For a moment the pounding of Chittenham's heart almost choked him, then with a breath of relief he saw that it was not Julie, but Bim Lennox.

Presently he heard her voice—quietly cynical.

"I can't see any signs of your Ronica, Julie dear?"

Chittenham drew further back into the shadows as he heard Julie's laugh and the little confident note in her voice when she answered.

"He will come. I am not at all afraid."

So she had told Bim as he had been sure she would. Chittenham gritted his teeth and clenched his hands. He was to be spared nothing.

He turned and with an effort went up the steps.

He could hear voices from that balcony room and muffled laughter as the maid turned to him to ask his name. He braced himself and went forward.

Julie Farrow was there alone.

Chittenham heard the door shut behind him, but he did not move forward. There was a mist before his eyes, blinding him, then he heard Julie laugh nervously.

"I believe you are more afraid of me than I am of you," she said.

She was very pale—in her white frock she looked almost like a ghost, but she was smiling happily, and when he made no movement towards her she raised herself a little on tiptoe and softly kissed him.

"Isn't it the same now we are down on earth again?" she asked with a note of banter in her voice, though it shook a little with emotion.

Chittenham tried to speak, but he could not.

He read a shadow of questions in her eyes, that changed into vague fear.

"Why... is anything the matter?" she asked uncertainly.

Is it the same now we are down on earth?" he asked hoarsely. "You haven't found that last night was just a dream?—that we were two dreamers, and that now we are awake?"

She laughed at that, shaking her head.

"The earth is so much—so very much more real than the mountain tops were, dear," she said softly.

She bent her head and lightly brushed his coat sleeve with her cheek.

"I told Bim—" she said. "I was so happy, I just had to tell some one..." And then as if struck by his silence she looked up swiftly to ask: "You don't mind? you're not angry?"

"Angry...?" How could he answer? what could he say? He released her hands, and moved a step from her.

"I've something to tell you," he said abruptly.

"Tell away then!"

Chittenham looked away from her.

"It's about last night... last night."

"Yes."

"You told me you knew him."

"Yes. I often met him when he was with my cousin Julie."

Chittenham caught a hard breath. Then it was true.

"You knew Lombard, too?" Do you know that at first he mistook you for your cousin—the other Julie Farrow?"

"Lombard told me that you were the other Julie, that you were the woman Rodney had cared so much about."

She met his gaze directly, but unsuspectingly; suddenly she smiled.

"Well, what difference does that make? I'm not, and you know it now." She frowned a little in perplexity. "It's not anything to look so tragic about surely, is it?"

Chittenham's eyes wavered, for a moment he hesitated desperately, searching for yet some means of escaping, then he told her.

"I went up to St. Bernard with you yesterday believing you were the woman my brother had loved. I wanted to pay back some of his debt. I wanted to hurt you as I believed you had hurt him. I wanted to make a fool of you as I knew you had made of him. I thought Fate was playing into my hands when you agreed to take me with you yesterday. I thought I was being damned clever... It seemed so easy to make love to you... you seemed to make it easy for me..."

"Giles!" Her voice was a wounded cry.

Wichita Man Says Didn't Feel Like Working, But Argotane Gives Him Strength and Energy

"I honestly never felt better in my life," said Marvin McClendon, of 311 Lee street, Wichita Falls, Texas. Mr. McClendon is employed at the Albright Transfer company.

"I've had stomach trouble for some time," he continued "and always felt tired and worn out and no-account, and never felt like doing my work. Sometimes when I had to take a long run, driving a truck, I would feel so bad, it would nearly kill me and I couldn't hardly make it. I didn't digest and I was awfully constipated. I was quite nervous and restless and never got a good night's sleep.

"I saw where Argotane was advertised so highly for just such trouble as I had, and began taking it. I haven't taken one bottle and certainly feel like a different person. I am also taking the iron for my blood and it, too, is helping me. I eat anything I want now and it doesn't bother me at all. I'm not nervous, and sleep fine every night. My constipation has been relieved, and in fact I feel better and stronger in every way. I can make a long drive now, and it doesn't even make me tired out as it used to. I am glad to recommend Argotane for I know it is a good medicine."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Slaton at Teagues Drug store.

Business men sometimes say that their home town is asleep, but its people are never too sleepy to notice an advertisement that offers real bargains.

"Very Latests"

BY CECILE.

For autumn and early winter the simple velvet wrap for evening is most appropriate—and most comfortable when unadorned by those heavy fur trimmings we welcome a little later on. Just now, black and white is favored by the younger set—always alert for the note that's new. And one of the simplest and most effective wraps for the young girl is this one illustrated, which Henri Bendel has created of black and white velvet in double tiers that are shirred softly, the white forming a deep cape in the back and extending down the front in wide reverses. A tiny shirred collar of the black velvet adds a soft frame to the face.

With the youthful dance frock of silk net or of tulle such a wrap is particularly charming, although almost any type of evening gown appears to advantage under velvet.

The overblouse appears in ever increasing numbers, and in designs most unusual as to line. The gore and the bias line are skillfully adapted by Vionnet in a series of models which feature the soft kerchief neckline favored by this courtier. A second Paris model flaunts a circular jabot and circular collar and cuffs to emphasize the flaring lines of the new suits. The vague for basque shirring finds expression in another blouse of pale aquamarine crepe which uses a narrow band extending from the waist line toward the neck as an anchor for rows of shirring which gather in the fully front sections of the blouse. Bows are used quite extensively as trimming and bioses are rather long, often slightly bobbed and belted with drawn through a self-covered buckle an inch-wide belt of self material or one of pearl, silver or rhinestones, according to the type of the blouse. Satin and the imported crepes are favorite materials; plain colors null—among them the entire beige range, eggshell, bois de rose, tea rose, yellow, a new rusty orange shade, French Blue and aquamarine.

caught together with long, thin links of gold. These are in modified choker length. Two long strands of bean-shaped beads of brown shades, worn knotted midway down the front, are extremely smart with the beige or egg-shell blouse and tailored suit in long and shorter models.

Whatever else may happen
Now that the country's dry,
The sailor, he will have his port,
The farmer have his rye.
The cotton mill has got its gin,
The seagast has its bar,
And each of us will have a beer
No matter who we are.—Two Belles.

A few days after William Nelson of Brocton, Mass., misplaced his glass eye, he found a group of small boys using it in a marble game.

The "handwriting" of many college students might have been footwriting as far as ability to read it is concerned.

If what we hear is true, some of the most popular measures in Congress are plots and quarts.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

El Paso had the first cottonseed hull greens (golf) in the history of that ancient game. Many golf courses in other parts of the United States where dry climate and wind conditions made sandgreens difficult to maintain are using the El Paso invention.

A man gets into trouble marrying two wives. Some get into trouble marrying one.
