Last-Minute Preparations Of Cooking School Being Made

Uncle Ananias says that every going-business, small though it may be, contains the germ of a bigger business.

To make flattery effective you must be somewhat insincere; for example, tell a homely girl that she's pretty.

As soon as a man has learned to make a good living by working, he tries to make a better living without working and the losses from his speculations compel him to go back to work.

Quite a bit of talk is going around about the resignation of Supt. Lemon. Most of the citizens with whom we have talked seem to think Joe Webb is in line for that position. We see no reason why this shouldn't be.

Bill Cates, manager of the West Texas Gas Co. came into our office last week with a smile on his face that reached from here to yonder and a check to pay his advertising bill—a combination you seldom see. Later we happened to remember that Bill (Simon Legree) Cates would be back in a day or two to collect our gas bill which was several times larger than the check he handed us.

All kidding aside though, Bill does have the largest smile in town.

William Green, or Roxbury, Mass., married Charlotte Klayman, and his father married her sister, Sadie. Charlotte last year gave birth to twin girls. Unfortunately, one died. But, as William puts it, "our other little twin, Carol, is the rascal who really complicates matters. Being my daughter makes her my father's grand-daughter. But being his wife's sister's daughter makes the child his niece. Sadie, my wife's sister, is the child's aunt. But Sadie, being my father's wife, is also the child's grandmother. I am a nephew to my wife because my wife is my stepmother's sister. Therefore my child Carol is my wife's grand-niece besides being her daughter. And, because my wife is my aunt by marriage, any child of hers must be my cousin. So I am a cousin to my own daughter. Should Sadie, my wife's sister, have a baby, we'll all go crazy."

Winning Streak Is Broken For Oilers

A CREWS CONTINUES TO BE LEADING SCORER OF TEAM

The Slaton Oilers will play in Ralls Wednesday night, Feb. 23rd.

Southwestern AAU champions hopeful of reclaiming their title, the Slaton Oilers went down 45-40 Wednesday night at the Tech gym before a hard-passing, long range quintet of Dr. Pepper amateurs from Dalles.

The game, which held its slow start until well past half-time before turning into a fast passing and fast shooting meleé, was the Hub city's first taste of independent amateur roundball.

Led by a galaxy of former Texas Tech cage captains and players, the Oilers trailed the Dallas team from the opening moments of the encounter and were unable to hit their stride until the last trace of minutes.

With less than 4 minutes of play Alvin Crews, broke out in front of the Oiler attack by hooking four field goals that almost turned the Bottler's flood.

The Slaton Oilers gave a fine exhibition of what overconfidence can do for a heretofore successful team Thursday night, February 10th, when they were defeated by Lamesa 40 to 37.

A. Crews, F. Morris, J. Neely, H. Snodgrass, and J. Miller were the starters with O. Cannon substituting late in the last half for Morris. Up to that time Myers of Lamesa had been running wild to score repeatedly from the middle of the court, as did Sturdivant. The customary stars for the Oilers did not even twinkle at any time. Neely was high point man.

Undersea Drama In "Submarine D-1"

U. S. Navy Depicted In Palace Sea Story

Proclaimed as the greatest motion picture ever made with an undersea boat as its subject and locale, "Submarine D-1" has been booked as the feature attraction at the Palace, opening today.

It is a melodrama co-starring Pat O'Brien and George Brent, and featuring Wayne ("Kid Galahad") Morris. In the making of it the United States Navy Department deserves as much credit as the movie folks, for it threw open to the Warners its submarine establishments at San Diego, Coco Solo in the Panama Canal Zone, and Newport, R. I.

Pat O'Brien and Wayne Morris play a couple of young submarine crewmen who have developed two great inventions—a device to shoot men safely to the ocean's surface if a ship is sunk, and another device to raise the U-Boat itself.

In the story the D-1 is rammed and sunk during some war game maneuvers, and the boy's inventions get a chance to show their worth.

CONVENTION OF NEIGHBORLY HOMEMAKERS WILL BE WELCOMED BY PALACE THEATRE

"The best things in life are free!" And so is the Slatonite's and Palace Theatre's fascinating and different Cooking School that is just around the corner, opening Monday, Tuesday and Friday mornings at 9 o'clock at the Palace Theatre.

Men have their annual conventions, where they listen to lectures from specialists, experts who have devoted years to studying and experimenting along constructive lines. There the crowds of business men get a fresh viewpoint of their job, new ideas and enthusiasm to carry back to work.

Now comes this practical rally of homemakers to contribute fresh perspective for the "same old job," the monotonous day-in-and-day-out job, yet the most important business in the world.

Going to school in a theatre! It's a grand way to combine fun, inspiration, a neighborly reunion and valuable instruction, all in one free package. It's a grand way to get out of the rut that often threatens the best and most conscientious of home managers.

Just as fresh inspiration for the old job is one of the by-products of the familiar Cooking School, which presents a lecturer in a model kitchen so are new ideas and keen incentive born in the film class for homemakers, with its novel approach and modern setting.

The kitchen that passed the screen test for this picture had to meet the exacting requirements of nationally-known home economics, as well as Hollywood standards of charm, good taste and proportion.

Good news does travel fast, particularly when it is news of a gala party for the community, with gifts, with quality entertainment, cheered by jollity and novelty, and spiced with knowledge—all served hospitably by these two concerns.

All of the popular features of the Cooking School are here: The free recipe sheets, the atmosphere of congenial informality, the wise counsel, the hints on clever short-cuts, the up-to-the minute suggestions for entertaining, the demonstration of delicious and nourishing dishes, the array of modern kitchen equipment and the distribution of daily gifts and real surprises.

This scientific new laboratory of ideas has graduated out of the class where hundreds of women craned their necks in a vain attempt to see what was happening on the stage, or assailed the lecturer with plaintive cries: "Hold it up high, where we all can see."

What to do with left-overs? How to take the gloom out of laundry day? How to save time, energy and temper in meal preparations? How to be attractive in spite of the daily rush? How to make the picrust that men love to eat? How to give first-aid to fallen cakes?

It won't be necessary to ask the questions, for expert home specialists have anticipated these very problems. They know what bothers many an experienced housekeeper, because it is their job to know and to counsel helpfully.

Some familiar Hollywood faces will be recognized in this production, which was filmed and directed in one of the famous West Coast studios. The heroine is a winsome bride, who shares the perplexities of many an older housekeeper. Actually the title should be "It might Happen Here," for the human story has universal appeal. And it might have happened right in this community.

Numerous nationally known firms and progressive merchants from our own community are joining with us in making the entertaining school available. They promise a daily harvest of generous gifts and surprises, which will be distributed in addition to the useful recipe sheets.

Mrs. Oran McWilliams replaces the telegraph operator, Mrs. Herman Shelton, this week in Whalen's Drug.

Miss King, a senior at WTSTC, is a member of Delta Zeta Chi, vice-president of the senior class, president of Cousins hall, secretary-treasurer of the Spanish club, a member of the Madrigal club and of the women's chorus.

OPERETTA IS DIRECTED BY MRS. BUTLER AND MISS HARLAN

The Choral and Glee Clubs of the Slaton High school presented "Uncle Sam's Boys in Camp," an operetta, in the auditorium Friday night, February 11th at 7:30.

"Hail to Dawn" from "Poet and Pheasant" opened the program and was sung by the Choral Club. They also rendered three other numbers.

The Glee Club presented the play tonites at the RMA banquet what a potential goldmine we have in our midst. This attractive, glib speaker mentioned firms and industries that have been taken for granted for so long that indeed we almost had forgotten we had them. Especially did he arouse interest in Deal's Machine Shop, saying that it was one of the most unique seen in the Southwest.

Manager Joe Bob Stevens was amazed at the number of Slaton people who attended the Southland Tournament for Amateur Basketball clubs.

But anyone who doesn't become interested in the Slaton Oilers after seeing them perform must be lacking in red blood corpuscles! They have a reputation and style of play that makes them the main drawing card in any tournament.

Among the fans, usually seen are:
Gertrude King, Ina Binion, Mrs. Alpha Morrow, Clyde Doherty, the Harry Frys, now of Lubbock; the Kirk-patricks, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Phillips, Fagan Genn, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sanders, the Charles Taylors, Wade
Robertson and Mr. and Mrs. Bo Stotts.

Mrs. J. R. McAtee, on an extended visit near Austin, writes an intensely interesting letter telling of the many worthwhile places and things she is seeing while there.

Clever is the word for the Scout exhibits in the local show windows commemorating Scout Week. Those seen at Teague's Drug, Sanders' Grocery and Red Cross Pharmacy are particularly noticeable and show a fine spirit of co-operation.

A low to the Scouts themselves on their management of the city last Friday—they must have all been Eagle Scouts from the way they pounced upon the motorists about town—and we should know!

"PERFECTION SALAD"
AS IT'S MADE IN THE MOVIES

In that delightful new moving picture, "The Bride Wakes Up", you see how Perfection Salad is made.
Really, it is easy—and the principal thing to remember is to use plain Knox Sparkling Gelatine. A package makes four entirely different desserts or salads, six servings each.

PERFECTION SALAD
(6 Servings—uses only 1/4 package)
1 envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine
1/4 cup cold water 1 cup hot water 1/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoonful lemon juice 1/2 teaspoonful salt
1/2 cup cabbage, finely shredded 1 cup celery, cut in small pieces
1 pimiento, cut in small pieces, or 2 tablespoonfuls sweet red or green peppers

Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatine on top of water.
Add sugar, salt and hot water, and stir until dissolved. Add vinegar and lemon juice. Cool, and when mixture begins to stiffen, add remaining ingredients. Turn into mold that has been rinsed in cold water and chill. To serve, remove from mold to bed of lettuce leaves or endive, and garnish with mayonnaise dressing. Or cut salad in cubes, and serve in cases made of red or green peppers, or turn into individual molds lined with canned pimientos.

The only way in which one human being can properly attempt to influence another is the encouraging him to think for himself, instead of endeavoring to instill ready-made opinions into his head.—Sir Leslie Stephen.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

CHOOSING COMPANIONS IN SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 3:7-19, 31-35. GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother—Mark 3:35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Twelve Men Who Went With Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Twelve Men Who Went With Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working With Others for Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Comradeship in Christian Service.

"God can save a man who is all alone on the top of the Alps." So spoke one who sought to discourage another who wanted to give his life for Christian service. No one questions that God could thus carry on His work in sovereign power, and that there are times when He does that very thing. But ordinarily God works through men. It was "the sword of the Lord, and of Gideon" (Judges 7:18).

What a glorious, inspiring truth it is that God calls men into companionship with Him for service. Sinful and weak though they be they may become strong and holy, and do valiant service for Him.

I. The Need of Christian Workers (vv. 7-11).

Although the hostility to Christ was growing apace among the religious leaders, the people thronged about Him in the hope they might have deliverance from the devil and from disease. The need was so great that the Lord Jesus now prepared to call those who were to be His fellow-servants.

The multitudes are in just as desperate need of Christ and of the ministry of His church today. Why, then, do they not crowd the churches and press in around His servants? That is the question over which leaders of the church are puzzled. There may be many reasons, but we suggest two as being at least worthy of careful thought. The first is that we live in a time of apostasy. In the time of Christ men had only begun to hear His message of deliverance. In our day men have heard and heard again and have hardened their hearts.

Another reason is that in many, perhaps most, instances, the church has so far separated itself from the Lord that it has no power. Needy men are not interested in the dead observance of religious forms. They want to see the workings of the power of the Most High God!

Whether men know their need or not, whether they throng our churches or not, their very need of Christ should impel us to serve the Master in reaching them. The love of Christ should constrain us.

II. The Call to Christian Work (vv. 12-19).

Much might be said at this point but we must limit ourselves to two thoughts. Note that the Lord chooses his own workers; we do not choose to work for Him. Then be encouraged by the fact that He chose men of widely differing gifts, temperaments, and personal characteristics.

Then we note that He called some of unusual ability, others with little ability; some learned, and some unlearned—fishermen, a tax-gatherer, and others of various occupations. Note that none were by profession preachers. What a comfort it is to those who are in Christian work to remember that it is not what we are or may have been that counts; it is what Christ is and what He can do through us!

III. Preparation for Christian Work (vv. 31-35).

God has many ways to prepare His servants—but it seems that they all experience the heart-breaking disappointment of misunderstanding and the heart-warming joy of intimate fellowship with the Lord.

Look at verse 21 and you will realize that the family and friends of Jesus thought He was crazy because He devoted Himself so wholeheartedly to the service of His Father. Is it not strange that if a man becomes a scientist he is honored if he ruins his health in zealous research? If he is a business man he may burn the lights late in the pursuit of wealth, but if he chooses to give his life to the greatest of all occupations open to man—service for Christ—his friends and relatives try to deter him by calling him a fanatic.

Beautiful beyond words is the other side of our picture. Those who serve Him are "to be with Him" (v. 14). He sends them forth to preach, and gives them power. Yes, they even become the members of the most intimate family circle. "Behold... my brethren" (v. 34).

Vain Regrets and Grief

Forgive!—the years are slipping by, and Life is all too brief—A time will come when it's too late for vain regrets and grief.

Come Apart and Rest! Even the busiest lives must have their breathing times, when the ordinary strain of effort is relaxed.

Unconscious Benefaction

It may well be that the good we unconsciously do exceeds the sum of all our purposed benefactions.

Can Spring Be Far Away?

WITH Winter almost over, March blizzards to the contrary notwithstanding, you find yourself eyeing the fashion sheets a little more than casually. Indeed you probably already have your needle threaded, just waiting for some nice Spring patterns to make your acquaintance. And here they are, three quick tricks, each pleasantly awaiting your choice, each designed to make some wardrobe happy. Which do you prefer?

Fitted Bodice.

Look your Sunday best in this graceful afternoon frock with its snug and softly shirred waistline. The skirt flares slightly to the front and emphasizes the slimness of the silhouette. Note the saddle shoulder and short, puffed sleeves—details that are unusually becoming and make for distinction. One of the new widely spaced flower patterns in rayon or silk will make your informal afternoons and evening a double delight, and the pattern is a particular joy to work with. So simple, and so pleasing.

Trim Morning Frock.

Don't be caught around the house without your best foot forward. You needn't be, with this crisp and flattering morning frock at your beck and call. Simple as pie, yet charming fresh and youthful, this model dispenses with all fussy details yet achieves an appearance which will see you through the busiest day. The skirt flares a bit from a neatly fitted waistline, and the ric-rac trim, in contrast, adds a note of brightness. Just nine pieces including the belt and pockets. Try dotted swiss or a printed percale.

For the Full Figure.

This charming frock is really more than a house frock—you'll find it flattering enough and dressy enough to wear throughout the day. The slim, straight lines make every provision for comfort. The skirt has a kick pleat at front, the sleeves are full and pleated, and the neck line is just right to be very flattering. Furthermore you can make this dress, of a rayon print or gay percale, in a brief afternoon or evening, resulting in a pretty, runaround model at far less than you usually spend.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1450 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (32 to 38 bust). Size 14 (32) requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch material with short sleeves. Fourteen inch zipper required for front closing.

Pattern 1312 is designed for sizes 14 to 44 (32 to 44 bust). Size 16 (34) requires 3 3/4 yards of 39 inch fabric; 1 3/4 yards braid required for trimming.

Pattern 1444 is designed for sizes 35 to 52. Size 38 requires 4 3/4 yards of 35 or 39 inch material; 1/2 yard required for revers facing in contrast. Bow requires 1/2 yard ribbon.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

TIPS to Gardeners

Locate Crops Logically

IF YOU have a choice of location for your garden, select a place where there is plenty of sun, away from trees. Tree roots take nourishment from the ground and the foliage shades the garden from the sun.

If you have had little experience, your gardening will prove more satisfactory if you grow several vegetables in the easy-to-grow classification. In this group, according to Harold Coulter, vegetable expert, are radishes, beets, Swiss chard and turnips. If your garden is fairly large, spinach, peas, beans and corn can be sown.

Where the garden is small and you wish to get a good volume yield from a limited space, the vegetables to be grown should be selected carefully. Radish, leaf lettuce, beets, carrots, peas and beans are quick growing items which should prove satisfactory.

Before planting, work soil deeply, make the top four inches fine and loose. Plant seeds according to directions on seed packet.

As the Olive

Mark how fleeting and paltry is the estate of man—yesterday in embryo, tomorrow a mummy or ashes. So for the hair's breadth of time assigned to thee live rationally, and part with life cheerfully, as drops the ripe olive extolling the season that bore it and the tree that matured it.—Marcus Aurelius.

GREAT— GREAT— GREAT— GREAT— GRANDCHILDREN

Pedigree Ferry's Seeds are often developed and improved for six, eight, and even ten generations before they are sold. Year after year, at the unique Ferry-Morse Seed-Breeding Institute, the best flower and vegetable plants are selected from each year's experimental crops, and their seeds planted for still another improved generation. By this process, desirable characteristics are strengthened, weaknesses eliminated.

And Ferry's Seeds must prove they will grow. So the Institute makes 50,000 tests for growing ability each year before packaging—and tests each variety for truthness to type!

Ferry's Seeds have grown the finest flowers and vegetables in your locality for years. Assure your garden a perfect start this year—choose pedigreed and tested seeds from the Ferry's Seeds display in your favorite store. 5c a packet and up. 1938 NOVELTIES too! Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)

"Breakfast For Two" At State

BARBARA STANWYCK AND HERBERT MARSHALL HEAD CAST

Teaming two of Hollywood's best-known screen favorites RKO Radio's new laugh-hit, "Breakfast for Two," stars Herbert Marshall and Barbara Stanwyck at the head of a brilliant cast.

The story, which brings the two stars together for the first time, deals with Miss Stanwyck's hilarious efforts to reform Marshall, and to keep him from marrying Glenda Farrell. Marshall is a happy-go-lucky play-boy who has inherited a big steamship company which, under his neglect, is rapidly going into bankruptcy. Miss Stanwyck, a smart business woman as well as a wealthy one, decides to awaken Marshall to his responsibilities, and also to break up his affair with an actress in whose career Marshall has interested himself.

This seems like a praiseworthy decision, but it speedily runs into riotous complications, due chiefly to Marshall's anger at Miss Stanwyck's tactics and his belief that she is trying to ruin him. One crisis leads to another, and soon the whole scheme gets out of hand, with Marshall's two valiant attempts to marry the actress and the desperate efforts of his valet and other characters to intervene all adding to the gaiety and suspense.

HITLER NOW SUPREME BOSS

Takes Control of Reich's Armed Forces, Crushing Army Clique . . . Japan Resents Naval Plans Demand

Brig. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, center, and his staff are shown inspecting the cadet corps at West Point as General Benedict took over command of the military academy as superintendent, thirty-seventh to hold that post since the academy was instituted.

Edward W. Pickard
SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Hitler Seizes Full Power

A DOLF HITLER has made himself the absolute ruler of Germany and has assumed full control of the armed forces of the reich, proclaiming himself "chief of national defense." Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg was removed from the post of war minister; Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goerring, minister of aviation, was made general field marshal; Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch replaced General Werner von Fritsch as commander in chief of the army; seven army generals and six generals of the air force were summarily dismissed.

Reorganization of Germany's diplomatic corps was announced, the ambassadors of several European countries being changed. In the shakeup Joachim von Ribbentrop was recalled from the London embassy and made foreign minister. No new minister of war was appointed, but Gen. Wilhelm Keitel was named chief of the supreme command and will rank as minister.

Monarchy Plot Foiled
BACK of Hitler's sudden grab of absolute power was a movement among high army officers for restoration of the monarchy. It was revealed in Berlin that a secret speech delivered by one general to a group of his fellow officers in which the return of the exiled former Kaiser Wilhelm was urged was reported to the reichsfuehrer and aroused his anger, hastening his determination to assume personal command of the armed forces.

Anyhow, the coup is a crushing victory for the Nazi government group over the army clique that had been growing daily more threatening to Hitler's regime and that was said to be planning to force his gradual retirement.

The monarchists' plot, it is said, included the elevation to the throne of the ex-kaiser's second son, Prince Eitel Friedrich. Heinrich Himmler, head of the Gestapo or secret police, revealed it to Hitler.

The reichsfuehrer with several close advisers went to his Bavarian home and began planning for the next move, to be announced at the meeting of the reichstag scheduled for February 20.

Judging from the utterances of Nazi leaders, Hitler is likely to demand the return of Germany's lost colonies, control of the free city of Danzig, and greater influence in Austria. London correspondents reported that Great Britain was ready to sacrifice a colony to keep European peace, hoping to bring Germany and Italy into a ten-year pact with Britain and France.

What Small Business Wants
TWELVE delegates from the "little business" conference that held such uproarious sessions in Washington were received by President Roosevelt and presented to him a list of 23 proposals for the cure of their economic ills. These had been consolidated and toned down from the proposals conceived by the conference, the condemnation of much New Deal legislation being omitted.

The principal recommendations in the report were for easier credit for small business, repeal of the undivided profits tax, modification of the capital gains tax, equal responsibility of employer and employee for observance of mutual labor agreements, the return of relief to local governments as soon as possible, the abandonment of wage and hour legislation and the immediate investigation of the Wagner labor relations board.

Through Secretary Early, the President announced that a large majority of the recommendations seemed constructive and possible of fulfillment. Others, however, he felt, sounded well but were rather impractical.

It is known that the administration does not want the undivided profits tax completely repealed. Neither does it want relief returned to local governments, abandonment of wage and hour legislation, or interference with the Wagner labor relations board.

Japan Won't Tell Navy Plans

IF JAPAN'S naval leaders have their way, Tokyo's reply to the Anglo-French-American request for information as to Japan's plans for battleship building will be a refusal to divulge them. This was the decision reached at a meeting of the naval ministry and transmitted by Admiral Yonai, navy minister, to Premier Kono and Foreign Minister Hirota. The foreign ministry wished to be moderate, but the admirals were insistent.

J. C. Grew, but the admirals were insistent.

Ambassador Joseph C. Grew presented the American demand to the foreign office in Tokyo, and similar notes were handed in by the British and French ambassadors. They asked the Japanese government to say categorically, on or before February 20, whether or not Japan is building or plans to build battleships in excess of 35,000 tons, the limit fixed in the London naval treaty. It has been rumored for some time that Japan was building or planning to build two battleships of 46,000 tons displacement armed with 18 inch guns. This is denied by a foreign office spokesman.

The three western powers intimated that if Japan's reply was not satisfactory they might be compelled to invoke the escalator clause of the treaty and themselves construct larger and more strongly gunned battleships. The position of Japanese naval men is that, since Japan is not a signatory of the treaty, her plans are no business of others; and furthermore that her navy expansion is entirely "defensive."

Our navy has plans drafted for bigger battleships and guns if their construction is deemed necessary. A vessel of 43,000 tons probably would be the largest able to pass through the Panama canal unless its locks are widened and lengthened.

Hull in Peace Talk
NOTWITHSTANDING the somewhat strained relations with Japan—or because of them—Secretary of State Hull in a nation-wide radio address proposed that all nations make a "determined effort" to promote peace through limitation of armaments and his pet reciprocal trade treaties. He asserted this country proposed to carry out this plan, but reiterated that it would continue to "render adequate our military and naval establishments."

Urging all nations to promote normal healthy international commercial relations as the surest road to peace, Hull said that if the world "shuts its eyes to recent disastrous developments" it would be an open invitation for recurrence of the events of 1914 and 1929.

He abhorred the recent "alarming disintegration" of international relationships, and said that the race to rearm can only result in further impoverishment of all nations.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...
By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—There is hope for world peace and solvency. Some day a little band of diplomats and financiers will meet in the Paris catacombs or a London fog, heavily disguised, and put something over, and Pertinax won't catch them at it. To date, the watchful French journalist has anticipated and cried down every effort, warning all and sundry that, whatever it is, it won't work.

Thus, the studious proposals of Paul van Zeeland, former premier of Belgium, were blasted several weeks in advance of their publication, as just so much eye-wash.

Pertinax is one of the most brilliant and influential journalists of Europe and anything he touches up in advance goes in with two strikes against it. As does the Van Zeeland plan for economic reconstruction.

Walt Disney is readying "Snow White" for France. That probably means that Pertinax is preparing to swing on it, just before it lands there. One American commentator made the film his sole exception in many years of dissent. Nothing like that may be expected from Pertinax.

He is the only full-time dissenter who bats 1.000. He has picked fights with Senator Borah, former President Hoover (being the only man ever to assail an American President with that dignity present), with all the Germans, before, during and after the war, and with all ambassadors of good will.

In 1933, the French government announced it would spend $1,320,000 to build good will in America. Pertinax, fielding that one, pegged over to this country some sour cracks about American materialism. And, just in passing, any French journalist ought to know a lot about materialists. For a few days it looked as if he might overlook the recent Brussels conference, but he was on the job and smeared it in plenty of time to get it a bad press. He is at his best in discovering and exposing Geneva's good will conspiracies.

Some sour cracks about American materialism. And, just in passing, any French journalist ought to know a lot about materialists.

Muddle Is Growing
American shipping men say that they are anxious to operate under their own flag but as the muddle seems to be growing worse instead of better, they are growing impatient. They point out that all the present act does is to equalize construction and operating costs. They would be just as well off if they were to place their construction orders abroad and operate under a more ship-minded jurisdiction. They then would not have to comply with a multitude of restrictions such as are imposed by the merchant marine act.

Some lines are unable to comply with the requirements that they have no interest in lighterage or stevedoring operations. This is essential at some ports, shipping interests maintain.

While troublesome restrictions can be escaped by operating under a foreign flag, American operators realize that the navy must have auxiliaries; that this country's commerce must be protected at times when foreign countries have other uses for their ships, and that ships under the American flag are a guarantee against discriminatory action by foreign governments that handicaps our trade. It is for these reasons, they say, that they have been waiting thus long in the hope that the law might be freed of restrictions they consider unreasonable and that a disposition be shown on the part of the maritime commission to encourage, rather than hamstring, private operation.

Ambassador Kennedy
Joseph Patrick Kennedy, the silk-hat New Dealer, whom the President will send to wear knee pants for the United States at the Court of St. James, is one of the most impressive characters walking the Washington stage. He headed two powerful commissions, got himself whispered for President in 1940. Now he'll negotiate a trade tariff agreement between America and Great Britain. The pact may bind the two countries closer together and make important history.

Mr. Kennedy is Boston Irish, about fifty, with Celtic blue eyes, sandy hair—what's left—expanding waistline. He's dynamic. He works himself and his employees to jitters, and they like it.

Mr. Kennedy's home and his wife and nine children are in swank Bronxville, half an hour or so north of New York. At another estate just out of Washington he sometimes breaks quiet along the Potomac with rousing parties for a mixed company of hot shoits and his hard-worked assistants.

Before the New Deal, Mr. Kennedy had quite some millions in Wall street. Then the President appointed him to head the securities and exchange commission—"so nobody else could clean up," old dealers said.

Constitution-Maker
Pelatiah Webster was a Philadelphia business man, remembered for his advocacy of a revision of the Articles of Confederation by creating a new Constitution in his "Dissertation of the Political Union and Constitution of the Thirteen United States of North America (1783)." He is, therefore, sometimes considered as the originator of the Constitution, though his plan was unlike the product of the federal convention.

Eat Fish in Norway
In Bergen, Norway, fish is served three times a day in nearly all families, and as a result, the life of the community revolves about its fish market. The Bergen housewife is a somewhat fastidious shopper, insofar as fish is concerned, and prefers to have her fish scooped up alive from salt water pools within the market. The serving of fish amounts to a fine art in Bergen.

Washington.—No buyer for the 12 standard cargo vessels for which bids were to be opened by the United States maritime commission was in sight when the bids were called for. None is in sight now. And there are those who say that unless the merchant marine act is amended materially there is doubt that any experienced American operator will buy the new ships.

The merchant marine act was so weighted down by safeguards by suspicious legislators that some believe it is almost unworkable. At the time of its passage, June 29, 1936, it was openly charged that the act had purposely been so hobbled as to make government operation necessary if America is to have a merchant marine.

Public ownership and operation advocates occupy key positions with the commission. They are alleged to be aggravating the present demoralization in the hope of creating a situation in which public operation will be the only alternative. Whether this is true or not, it is quite apparent that before American operators put up any money they will have to be convinced that the commission wants them to succeed and will co-operate wholeheartedly in trying to make private operation successful.

In this connection it is pointed out that many of the executives now associated with the American merchant marine have operated ships under foreign flags. They are familiar with the respective advantages and drawbacks of that form of operation and will be willing to undertake it if conditions are not created promptly to make operation under the American flag more tolerable.

American operators feel that the way they were compelled to sign on the dotted line in the termination of postal subsidies was a bad start for a co-operative effort to establish a permanent American merchant marine. Nothing is causing more apprehension than the labor situation and the difficulty of maintaining proper discipline on shipboard.

Some lines are unable to comply with the requirements that they have no interest in lighterage or stevedoring operations. This is essential at some ports, shipping interests maintain.

While troublesome restrictions can be escaped by operating under a foreign flag, American operators realize that the navy must have auxiliaries; that this country's commerce must be protected at times when foreign countries have other uses for their ships, and that ships under the American flag are a guarantee against discriminatory action by foreign governments that handicaps our trade. Lady of the Camellias Camille, or the lady of the Camellias, had its origin in the life and death at twenty-three of an acquaintance of Dumas' named Alphonsine Plessis, a French courtesan. Her unselfish chart was celebrated in a funeral address by Gautier and is commemorated by a much-visited monument in the cemetery of Pere La Chaise.

"You make a great mistake," said Dorado pleasantly, "two mistakes. It is not so easy to die as you think, also you would be no use to me dead. I wish you only kindness and goodness and a long life as the Senora Pepe Dorado." He paused. "We will enjoy La Barranca together."

She stared at him over the half empty plate, set it aside on the cot but retained the three-tined steel fork. With a single sweeping movement, unbelievably swift, he leaned forward and struck the murderous weapon from her hand so violently it went flying out into the night.

"You want things to be unpleasant, hein?" he cried, his eyes flashing. "Good. From now on you eat with your fingers like the peones. You don't sleep in here where there's plenty of air, no! You sleep inside in the dark—no fire, no air, nothing. Me, I stay here and ten men more."

"All right," said Joyce, a faint light of hope dawning in her eyes. "Can I go now?"

"Yes, now," said Dorado, calming himself by a mighty effort. "Perhaps tomorrow when the priest comes you'll have more sense."

"What good would that do you?" asked Joyce quickly. "You know as well as I no marriage by a priest is legal in Mexico."

"No? You know so much, eh? Then you know that for the world the church is everything." Again he smiled. "After the religious consummation you won't mind so much the civil ceremony." Again he called and the same two men came back to carry cot, mattress and blankets into the innermost room. He followed, waving a brand from the fire into a flaming torch and propelling Joyce before him. He pointed with his chin along the farther reaches of the drift. "Perhaps you think you can climb out that way. Try it and I give you for a present to the men who catch you."

Left alone in darkness Joyce crept to the cot but not to lie down. Dragging a blanket over her shivering shoulders she sat on its edge, elbows on knees and her chin cupped in her hands. It was no good thinking—no good at all—but she could listen, keep on listening. How often had she boasted to herself she was afraid of no man alive! She was afraid now; fear seemed to melt her bones and set the teeth in her head to chattering. Another sound came to her ears, a single snore and soon after a veritable chorus. There was something actually comforting in the harsh dissonance and the longer it continued the more did it soothe her. Presently she fell sidewise, stretched out and tumbled into unconsciousness. She awoke to the flare of a wax match. So it was here—she had slept and the terror was upon her! Her throat thickened and closed tight as she discerned Blackadder's eyes, cavernous and glowing. Not the end after all, she thought drowsily, thank God only another dream. But his whisper took on form, became actual words.

"Joyce, don't make a sound. Listen. Do you see this rope? Wait. I'll light another match. Now look. I'm going to tie the end of it around your waist for safety, but the rest will be up to you." The second match went out but the whisper kept on. "Take the rope in your hands. That's it. Now follow it. Walk as quietly as you can, test out each step before you put down your foot. Just follow wherever it leads." His hands brushed across hers, seized the rope and gave it three sharp pulls. "Good-by, Joyce."

"Good-by."

She had answered automatically but now something in the manner of his final whisper troubled her and she frowned but presently was intent on carrying out his orders to the letter. She had gone quite a distance before she noticed there was no slack. Even her bemused mind knew what that meant; somebody at the other end was taking it in. Suddenly the rope slanted upward so sharply she stumbled and fell to her knees. She was up again in a moment and stood quite still, wondering if the sound of her fall had been heard. Apparently not. She continued, resting more and more weight on the rope as the climb grew steeper. Several yards of the ascent were behind her when a stone that had seemed firm sank away and went rumbling downward. The next instant the roar of a dozen voices reverberated far down, far behind her, so the very earth seemed to shake. Then three lonely shots. Then an answering deafening volley. Now she knew why Helm Blackadder's good-by had lingered so strangely in her ears.

The rope was lifting her, dragging her upward faster than she could place her feet. Her knee struck here, an elbow there, and sometimes her shoulders dug into the damp loam of the disused shaft. Breath went out of her, stayed out. Her hands still clung to the rope, but with a grip like the grasp after death. Her head drooped between her arms, struck and struck again. So this—not that other—was to be the end.

Dirk knelt beside her. "Joyce! For God's sake, Joyce! You've got to speak! Oh, Joyce, wake up. Darling, we've got to get away, you've got to ride!"

"Let up on it," advised Leonardo sharply. "Can't you see she's passed out? Get on your horse, senior, and take her. Hurry!"

Dirk mounted Tronido. "I'm ready; what are you waiting for? What are you doing?"

"You never can tell," said Leonardo, pausing to knot a tie rein to one of the thorn trees. "There's a bare chance the senior who went below may crawl out of this hole alive and if he does he's going to find a horse. Tobalito?"

"Presente!"

"Give me a hand with the seniorita."

Together they lifted Joyce and placed her in Dirk's arms. Sitting on the ridge of the cante he gave her all the saddle he could and trembled for fear Tronido might act badly under the unaccustomed burden, but the horse seemed to know exactly what it was all about. They started, Tobalito as guide in the lead, Dirk next and Leonardo, armed, bringing up the rear. A whinny from the tethered range pony rang out sharply across the desert air. Startled, Tobalito put spurs to his flea-bitten mount. Dirk found a trot galling, but was at ease the minute Tronido reached out into the cradle-like motion of his swinging canter. He shifted Joyce so her head lay against his shoulder, passed the reins to his right hand and with his left held her knees securely. Though her coma persisted he knew she lived by the faint tremor of her breathing and because while at first she had seemed rigid and cold now he could feel his own warmth gradually stealing into her veins.

But he was troubled about something else. "Leonardo," he called over his shoulder. "Do you really think there's a chance Blackadder's still alive?"

"None, senior; he did not wish to live."

"Why do you say that?" Leonardo rode closer, not caring to shout his answer. "He really died when he came to after we'd pulled him out at the place of the fallen bridge. He spoke and told us all, but I could see it was a dead man talking."

"Are you loco?" asked Dirk.

"No, for I've seen it happen before," said Leonardo. "With some men pride takes the place of blood and bone; destroy it and they die. It was so with him. His tongue talked but only to tell us of his shame; I could see his heart and eyes were dead. He knew he could never return to his ancient path, never walk upright except to death. So he died, God and the Virgin rest his soul."

"Then why did you leave the horse?" asked Dirk. "Do you expect a miracle?"

"No," said Leonardo hesitatingly, distressed at being driven into a show of his secret thoughts, "though in my country miracles have often happened. I think I was moved, senior, in the manner of my ancestors, to make a living sacrifice to the memory of a brave man."

Dirk imagined a faint stirring within the burden in his arms, something vaguely different from the mere persistence of life. He peered down at Joyce's face, tilted against his right shoulder, and studied it in the light of the stars. It seemed deathly pale, a patch of moonlight—mere reflection of a far-away reflection. Her eyes were closed and her lips, though half open, never stirred. He spoke to her.

"Joyce, you aren't awake, are you? Can you hear me? Just move something—your hand or your lips. Show you hear me."

There was no answer by sound or sign, nevertheless so strong a feeling of content pervaded him he could not doubt all would yet be well. Tobalito knew better than to follow the barranca too closely; he made a detour through little-used paths known to few but himself. The pace slowed from a canter to a walk and Dirk, glad his companions knew no English, began to talk.

"Joyce, I love you. Whether you can hear me or not doesn't matter in the least since anyway I'll be telling it to you over and over again. I don't know when it began or where it will end, and I don't care. I'm part of you and you of me. There's nothing cheeky in what I'm saying, really there isn't, because it's just something that's happened and can't be helped. I love you. I belong to you the way your hand belongs. You can do anything you like with me except cut me off. If you do that, you'll bleed—bleed to death."

Abruptly his face leaned lower, nearer to hers. "Oh, that's nonsense!" he cried. "How do I know? How can I keep on believing it if you don't say so? Oh, Joyce, darling, please speak, please tell me. How can you be so near my heart and not answer it? I can feel yours and it's still—so still it's almost as if it weren't beating at all. But you can't be dead since I still live. My blood is your blood. Everything I was, everything I'm going to be, has rushed into this moment with you in my arms. Because I love you. I love you."

Tobalito debouched suddenly from the shadowy recesses of an arroyo and came to a halt with Dirk beside him; Leonardo drew level. In plain view, only a few hundred yards away, stood the white mass of La Barranca. To the right was the towering blot of trees, melting into the inky expanse of the lake choked with hyacinths. To the left stretched the illimitable prairie, marked here and there with the black candelabra and exclamation points of cacti. No light showed from the hacienda, yet they knew eyes were watching from every angle as they advanced toward the eastern gate. It swung open at their approach and they entered. Promptly it slammed shut behind them.

Luz took command of Joyce, still inert, and thrust Dirk back when he attempted to follow. Adan Arnaldo, gloomy because poor horsemanship had prevented his joining the rescuing expedition, led him to Don Jorge in his office where he was greeted with the news a courier had come through from Mexico City and tossed dispatches for himself and Blackadder across the now impassable barranca. Dirk opened the long envelope bearing his name with some trepidation and was relieved to find it a personal missive, written in the ambassador's own hand.

"My dear Van Suttart," he read, "at last word has reached me through General Onelia of your whereabouts. For your diligence in following out to the letter the instructions in a certain cable from the department you are to be commended. For assuming I was to be kept in pitch darkness as to your movements, thereby robbing me of sleep and turning my hair from gray to white, I intend urging your dismissal from the service on the grounds of malfeasance unless you return at once to your regular duties. As you have darkened my days, so will I blacken your name—"

Sinkholes Dot Alpena, Michigan, Section; Cause of Phenomena Remains a Mystery

If reporters and photographers had been on the job in Alpena some centuries ago it is probable the same sort of news stories coming from a western state, telling of farms sinking 200 and more feet, would have been written under Alpena date lines, says a correspondent in the Detroit Free Press.

The depressions are still in evidence—the famous sinkholes of Alpena, Presque Isle and Montmorency counties. The three counties have 37 of the sinkholes from 150 to 200 feet deep, many with walls so sheer they can't be climbed. Rock strata exposed for easy study draw numerous geologists and inspire frequent scientific papers.

Scientists do not agree on the causes of the depressions, but it is generally believed that the sinkholes were originally enormous, deep caverns in the limestone. The roofs are believed to have caved in, causing the sinkholes.

One of the sinkholes is believed to be under water in Misery bay. Fishermen report that when water is high in the rivers they find their boats drifting away from one spot in the bay. When the rivers are low their boats drift toward the and I'm not joking—if you don't come back on the run. It may interest you to know my contact with General Onelia arose from his assumption of the ministry of war, our old friend in that post having been crushed by the final straw of the mysterious disappearance of a battery of howitzers."

"Bad news?" asked Adan, noticing Dirk's thoughtful expression. "Not particularly," said Dirk, "but I guess I'll have to rush back if it's only to square myself." "Give us your account of the rescue, my son," said Don Jorge pleadingly. "We have been very patient." "Forgive me, Maxie; I've been rude as well as selfish," said Dirk, and plunged into a detailed account of all that had happened.

As he finished Luz came in search of him with the good news her mistress had awakened and wished to see him. For the first time he entered Joyce's bedroom. It was more cheerful than any other in the house. There was an open fire, burning gaily, and opposite it two high windows looking out upon a walled garden. Between them stood a bed with scrolled back and no footboard. Its towering tester made it seem a throne but Joyce, her dark head half buried in pillows, looked too small for a queen. He sank on his knees and seized her listless hand. "Joyce," he whispered, "didn't you hear? Nothing at all?" "Hear what?" she asked, her eyes studying his face feature by feature.

"When I was holding you in my arms on Tronido," he explained. "You were close to me, your heart against my heart. My lips were beside your ear. Oh, Joyce, you couldn't have stayed unconscious all that time—you must have heard." "But what was it you said?" she insisted, looking him full in the eyes.

"I—I told you I loved you," stammered Dirk desperately. "Was that all?"

"No. I said a lot of things. I think I said some of them over and over again."

"What were they?" He knelt in silence, looking into her grave eyes. His hand dropped hers, the arm he had thrown across her waist grew lax. His head fell forward.

"I don't know," he whispered. "I've forgotten. I can't remember a word."

So swiftly he never knew how it happened her arms were around his neck and she had drawn his head down against her breast.

"Oh, Dirk, darling, of course I heard! I heard all you said and a lot more. It wasn't only your arms that were around me, it was your thoughts. I lay in them and dreamed. I felt safe and happy, glad to be sure I'd bleed if ever I cut you off. You kissed me once in your way, now I kiss you in mine. I'm kissing you with my heart against your face."

A dull boom rent the air and trailing it came a weird howl that passed over the house; there followed a rending of branches in the outer garden and then a terrific explosion. Dirk leaped to his feet and stood transfixed. Joyce sank back against the pillows, wide eyes staring at him questioningly. All the hacienda stirred into life with the hum of a threatened swarm of bees. Shouts were heard, presently punctuated by the thump of Don Jorge's approaching staff. Joyce half rose, her shoulders gleaming white but strong above the yoke of her filmy nightdress. Abruptly she seemed no longer too small to be a queen.

"That was no earthquake," she stated; "it was a gun—a cannon." (TO BE CONTINUED)

Beat Whites of Eggs Once.—After the whites of eggs have been beaten do not beat again when adding to cake mixture. If beaten a second time the air that has already been beaten into eggs in order to make cake light will be beaten out. Fold beaten egg whites in.

Tip for Good Posture.—While walking, swing the legs from the hips and imagine you are walking down hill with arms and shoulders relaxed.

Cheese in Soup.—A piece of cheese the size of a walnut added to potato or onion soup gives it a rich creamy taste.

Cover Apples.—Apples, either baked or as applesauce, have a better flavor when cooked in a covered rather than an uncovered container.

Cutting Fruit Cake.—To prevent fruit cake from crumbling while slicing, dip the knife into warm water frequently.

Scenting Linens.—Persons who use scented soaps and like scented linens can obtain the latter simply by storing the unwrapped soap in the linen drawer or closet.

Indians and State Names

American Indians had an important part in naming many states of the nation. Wyoming was called "M'cheuwomink" by the Indians, a Smithsonian institution survey reveals. Nebraska means "flat water," to the Sioux tribes; Oklahoma is the Choctaw word for "red people," and Missouri got its name from an Algonquin phrase meaning "he of the big canoe." Minnesota, literally translated from the Siouan, means "land of the sky-blue water."
