SLATON AREA GETS RAIN, HAIL

Roofs And Windows Damaged At Posey

One to two inches of rain that brightened the prospects for crops in Lubbock County, and hail that did serious damage to buildings in twenty to thirty square miles around Posey last Saturday, brought an end to a week of showers.

The fact that crops had been planted and fewer still were up prevented serious losses in the fields, but early gardens were destroyed and early feed that was up was laid flat.

The chief damage was to houses. Screens were torn from windows in and around Posey and window glass was shattered. Insurance adjustments are being made for broken windows there and for roofs damaged. In Slaton only damage to roofs was reported, and this mainly to composition roofs without protecting coats of

This storm was erratic as most hailstorms are. North toward Plainview, it battered the Abernathy territory, hopped to Posey, then did severe damage south of Post in Scur ry County, where crops were up and subject to heavy losses.

Planting here that was interrupted by the rain last is well under way again now, though some of the tight lands are still too wet for plowing.

MAINTAINING PERSONAL EFFICIENCY

LESSON TEXT-Dan. 1:8-16, 19, 20; I GOLDEN TEXT-Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. PRIMARY TOPIC-How Daniel Pleased

JUNIOR TOPIC-Ten Times Strong. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
In Training for the Game of Life.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Liquor's Effect Upon Working Efficiency.

Personal efficiency is a subject which is receiving much attention in our day. There has never been so much accurate and usable information as we now have regarding diet, exercise, and medical care. The mind as well as the body has come in for attention and scores of books are available on the development and full use of the powers of personality. Some of these are trash, but others are helpful. Business is co-operating with the school and the home in giving boys and girls the opportunity to grow up to be useful and happy members of society. The church adds its important contribution, although we must confess that it is far from what it might be by the grace and power of God. I. A Sound Mind in a Sound Body (Dan. 1:8-16, 19, 20).

Daniel and his three Hebrew companions had been brought to Baby-Ion as captives, and were there chosen to enter the royal school for future service at the court. Every provision was made for the students chosen for that school. Their diet, however, included not only meat which was unclean to the Jew but wine, which Daniel knew to be undesirable. It took holy boldness to ask to be excused from that which the king had prescribed, but Daniel was blessed not only with courage, but with tact and courtesy. A tenday test of a simple diet and water proved so successful that the plan was continued. At the end of the three-year course the Hebrews were not only physically stronger but mentally and spiritually superior.

The experience of Daniel and his brethren is not just an incident eagerly grasped at by "blue-nosed reformers" to prevent their neighbors from "enjoying" intoxicating liquor. The testimony of science, of business, of experience in all ages, proves that the use of even an amount of alcohol so small that the user does not feel its presence materially "reduces endurance, accuracy, and rapidity of muscular action of all kinds" (Emerson). It so cuts down the ability to think clearly and to react promptly to danger that it is absolutely taboo with such responsible workers as railroad engineers. It is not a stimulant, but a narcotic, which dulls the nerve centers. Dr. Edward Rosenow says, "The use of alcohol as a beverage is never justified. There is no such thing as the right use of beverage alcohol."

Such information as the above is available in publications of temperance organizations, books by various writers, and even in publications by state liquor commissions. It is published in newspapers and magazines and circulated by safety organizations and insurance companies. Yet, unbelievable as it may seem, the use of liquor is on the

II. Success in Life Calls for Self-Control (I Cor. 9:24-27).

Paul delighted in illustrations taken from the athletic field. He talked of running a race, of fighting a good fight. He knew the athlete's need of keeping his body under.

The one who serves his school or athletic association in physical competition gladly surrenders his personal liberty to the guidance of the coach. He eats carefully, sleeps full nights, exercises consistently, and above all does not use alcohol in any form. Listen to the words of great athletic coaches-Yost: "I would not waste my time trying to train or develop one who uses al-cohol." Stagg: "Coaches and trainers are dead against the use of alcoholic liquors, even beer."

Paul rightly points out that all these sacrifices are made by men for what is but a transient earthly crown. How much more should we do for the sake of our souls. Temperance instruction may well stress the physical and mental degradation that follows the use of alcohol. but above all let us teach boys and girls that its use has sent countless souls to eternal punishment and separation from God. We should be deeply moved by the loss of personal efficiency, but what shall we say about the loss of a soul?

terials this season than ever. The acceptance of glamorous, gorgeous lines (plain or printed) and spun rayons (new star shining bright in the fabric firmament) as "dress-up" materials is one of the outstanding milestones that marks the progress of fashion.

If you would see piques and cotton voiles and rippled or varied-type cloque cottons, organdies, seersuckers (sheer or sturdy) and gay stripes or plaid ginghams or the new corded cottons, likewise cotton nets and laces "show off" in all their glory, tuning to every phase of fashion from simplest housedress, housecoat or swim suit, to most exquisite wedding ensembles, eveevent presented each year in vari-ous style centers—the Cotton ball that pays homage to "King Cotton." However, sans the Cotton ball, you will not lose out in seeing this season such pageantry of cotton materials and other smart washables as you've never seen before, for all the stores are these days making a countrywide display of the loveliest wash weaves fancy might pic-

It is really a very intriguing thought to know you can go to the most "highbrow" affair and be classed among the best dressed, gowned in a simple wash voile or a pin-tucked batiste laden with val lace edgings, or a tailored gingham that is fashioned decollete, with a full skirt and bolero.

Not that we are losing sight of the style element and the practicality that wash materials ever maintain for sportswear and general utility wear. That side of the question is a subject so exhaustless we will not attempt to touch upon it in these few paragraphs.

There is, however, this conclusive argument in favor of modern wash fabrics whether they be formal or utilitarian to the effect that if you are careful to buy the right sort of washables they carry with them the guarantee of being both non-shrinkable and non-crushable. It is indeed a comfort to the woman who is her own seamstress to know that from now on with these latest improvements in tub fabrics she can buy her patterns exactly the right size without having to allow for possible shrinkage.

In the picture we are showing three "reasons why" dresses of handsome wash materials are outning formals or party frocks, get standing in the spring and summer yourself invited to the spectacular style scene-charming enough to wear most anywhere in the day' social swirl, you'll agree. Fine handblocked linen glowing with colorful naturalistic rose and bud motif (a glorious fabric for the more dressy type of "onlooker" dress) fashions the center model. Miracle of miracles, such a "dressy" sport frock is exactly as practical as its more mundane sisters, for being preshrunk, its "lines" and its colors are permanent, regardless of numerous tubbings. And the same may be said for the gowns that complete the

For the dress to the right soft tailoring brings out the beauty of a most likable spun rayon fabric that you can rely upon to go through tubbings victoriously and that will capture your heart with its colorings and striking patternings. A Mexican motif on the print patterning, gay buttons, a bright raffia belt, carry out the blithe mood of the gay caballero linen print that tailors to perfection in the youthful dress to the left. Any young woman would do well to tuck such a frock away in her vacation trunk. It will insure conquests for her.

Dots, dots, dots are repeating and repeating in the newer silks. Here pictured is a very up-to-the-moment young fashionable wearing a direc-toire double breasted daytime dress styled of smart polka dotted silk. You have the Paris angle of a leading summer style trend when you choose dotted patternings. Note the oval-shape bib of gathered white net and a tie of white pique. The white pique directoire bonnet she wears is the "last word" in millinery showings.

SOME HIGH POINTS IN LATE FASHIONS

Dresses and coats alike have a tendency to pull fullness to the rear or the side with draping, plaits and panels. Long sleeves are by no means out, but many designers, like Lucile Paray, show elbow sleeves for everything, including coats.

Equally as popular as the skirtand-jacket ensemble for sport and daytime wear is the dress with its own jacket or full-length coat. Jackets are moulded to the waist and unbelted; generally single-breasted, simple in line, but feminine in appearance. Down to the hips is the usual length, but Mainbocher shows them tunic length, and Chanel likes waist-length jackets and boleros, many with little bustle-like peplums,

Smartest Spring Dresses Are Seen Featuring Lace

Some of the smartest street and tailored dresses seen this spring are of lace. And not only the solid, fabric-like laces which have been and still are so popular, but the sheerer types which have heretofore been associated only with evening wear. These are seen in the simple one and two-piece versions of the classic day dresses. Sometimes they are all lace, and as often you see them in combinations of lace and fabric.

IRON and COPPER

Shows How You Can Help to Avoid Anemia by Including These Blood-Building Minerals in the Diet

> By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS 6 East 39th Street, New York City

OF ALL the nutrition problems that challenge the home-maker, none is more important than supplying her family's need for iron. This mineral is sometimes described as the supreme element in nutrition because it is an essential constituent of the blood.

-*-How Blood Is Constructed

If you should examine a drop of blood under the microscope, you would observe that it is composed of red cells and white cells. In normal blood there are about 25 million times a million red blood corpuscles. owing their color to the iron-bearing protein hemoglobin. They carry oxygen to all the body tissues, and remove the carbon dioxide formed during the combustion of body

A reduction in the amount of hemoglobin in the blood may cause shortness of breath, quickened respiration and an accelerated heart action. Lack of appetite, weakness, and a slowing of all vital functions may also result from the diminished supply of oxygen to the tissues.

Lack of Iron May Lead to Anemia

In many young people the blood lacking interest in their work, or of milk which constitutes the chief eaten frequently. Dried beans are never heeding the things you tell food during the first six months of inexpensive and when baked with continued, may lead to anemia.

The person who has a tendency toward anemia usually tires eas- Regal Peacock in ily and lacks pep; complains of cold hands and feet; worries over trifles, and may have a complexion that is anything but rosy.

The great danger of an irondeficient diet is that it deprives the body of its chief defense against disease. For when the quality of the blood is poor, one becomes an easy prey to infection. Moreover, if a serious illness occurs, lowered resistance makes it difficult to fight it off.

Two Forms of Anemia

Anemia may be due to loss of blood, deficient blood formation, or to increased blood destruction in the body. The different forms of the disease are sometimes classified as primary and secondary Primary anemia is usually known as pernicious anemia. It is a grave condition in which the marrow of the bones has lost its power to make red blood cells.

Secondary or nutritional anemia may result from loss of blood in an accident, or it may follow a long, infectious illness. For any infection lowers the iron reserve in the body. But the most common cause is a diet lacking in nized as making the baby more sufficient iron over a long period

How Much Iron?

It is believed that about 10 per cent of the total hemoglobin in included in the diet every day.

Investigators have found it difficult to determine the exact iron is a very special need for iron in requirement, but according to the girls from the beginning of adolatest estimates, from 12 to 15 milligrams a day will not only provide adequately for bodily requirements, but will allow a reasonable reserve.

Women Need More Than Men

Women require more iron than men, in proportion to the body weight, to make good the losses that occur during the menses. Expectant mothers need a generous amount of iron, not only to provide for their own needs and for the normal development of the small amount of iron, experiments fetus, but to create a reserve supply in the baby's body which will sorbed and is utilized to good adlast through the period of lacta-sults when an iron-rich food, such as egg-yolk, is introduced very early into the diet. This helps to prevent the slight anemia which was formerly regarded as unimportant, but which is now recogsusceptible to infection and retarding growth.

Children's Requirement High

It is desirable to keep the iron intake at a high level throughout adults is destroyed daily. And for childhood, for it has been discovthis reason iron-rich foods must be ered that better health results when a surplus is allowed above the daily requirement. But there lescence through the eighteenth

Iron-Rich Foods

To maintain top health and prevent the possibility of nutritional anemia, the homemaker must learn to meet the daily iron requirement of her family and not leave this vital matter to chance.

Iron-rich foods include egg yolk, liver, molasses, dried beans and peas, whole grain cereals, lean meat and green leafy vegetables. While milk has only a show that its iron is readily abvantage.

Eggs are such an excellent The percentage of iron in the source of iron that one egg yields of iron.

It is a pity that parsley is so often used only as a garnish, because it has a higher iron content than most green leafy vegetables. Though potatoes contain only a moderate amount of iron, they are usually consumed in suf-This cross-stitched peacock ficient quantities to make them a significant source.

Copper Also Necessary

Investigation has demonstrated that adequate iron alone is not enough to prevent nutritional anemia, for the body cannot convert iron into blood pigment unless copper is also present. Therefore, in order to obtain the full benefits of iron, the diet must contain sufficient copper. Foods that supply copper in abundance are liver, nuts, dried beans and peas. Smaller but significant amounts are provided by whole grain cereals, dried fruits and poultry.

I shall gladly send to every homemaker a list of foods rich in both iron and copper, and also sample menus showing how to plan a balanced, blood-building

I urge you to write for this ma-terial and keep the blood-building foods in mind when planning menus. Never forget for an instant that good blood is the best form of life insurance.

She was one of the prettiest of Boston debutantes, 30 years ago, a rollicking girl with black hair and eyes of Irish blue. Back home from her convent training, she taught her father "Sweet Adeline."

He was John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, and in his campaigns he sang his way to memorable political fame-riding like a surfboard the long, lingering "swipes" of the song taught him by his daughter-"the flower of his heart."

Mrs. Kennedy once told a Boston drygoods clerk that she bought 200 suits and dresses a year. Diplomatic Relations Ruptured . . . John W. Hanes Named Assistant Secretary of the Treasury

On the eve of National Air Mail week the first air mail and passenger service between Juneau and Fairbanks, Alaska, was established by the Pan American Airways as the first link in its route connecting southeastern Alaska with the interior. This photograph shows the scene at Juneau as the plane, a twin motored Lockheed Electra, was about to depart for

SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Ministers Are Recalled

DIPLOMATIC relations between Great Britain and Mexico were broken because of the dispute over Mexico's action in expropriating foreign oil properties.

President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico took the initiative by recalling Primo Villa Michel, Mexico minister at London, and ordering the closing of the legation indefinitely. The

President Cardenas

British government promptly directed Minister Owen St. Clair O'Malley to leave Mexico together with his staff, the legation being put in charge of Consul Gen.

J. Dalton Murray. While the suspension Is a direct outgrowth of the oil seiture, the immediate cause of Cardenas' action was what he considered Britain's "insolent" methods in demanding a claims annuity of $85,-000, due since January 1 for damages to British interests in a revolution years ago. Foreign Minister Eduardo Hay handed a check for the amount to Minister O'Malley, told him of the recall of Minister Michel, and said: "May I be allowed, however, to call your excellency's attention to the fact that not even powerful states with ample resources at their disposal can boast of having fulfilled their monetary obligations."

This, of course, was an allusion to Britain's repudiation of her war debt to the United States.

Labor and political organizations in Mexico lined up solidly in support of Cardenas in the dispute. The majority bloc in the chamber of deputies described the diplomatic break as "absolutely justified." Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, took up the Mexican affair on his return from Geneva. An important factor in the situation is consideration of Britain's oil supply if war should come in Europe. When Mexico seized the oil properties both Great Britain and the United States protested, but later Secretary of State Hull formally acknowledged Mexico's right to take the step. Britain, however, twice demanded prompt return of the properties. Mexico rejected the British contention.

Air Mail Week

CELEBRATION of National Air Mail week, marking the twentieth year of the service, opened when Mrs. Roosevelt accepted, for her husband, a sheet of the new air mail stamps from the Washington postmaster. The anniversary was observed in many parts of the country, a notable event being the first use, in Chicago, of an autogiro to carry mail from the airport to the post office.

Hanes in Treasury Post

DRESIDENT ROOSEVELT nominated John W. Hanes, who has been a member of the securities and exchange commission less than five months, to be assistant secretary of the treasury. It is likely that, before the end of 1938, Mr. Hanes will succeed Roswell Magill as under-secretary of the treasury. Mr. Magill, who is on leave from Columbia university, is anxious to return to his old position, it is reported. Mr. Hanes may not assume his new duties until the reorganization treasury who has been identified with Wall Street investment banking. When selected for the SEC he was a partner in the firm of C. D. Barney & Co. During his recent activities as liaison man between the administration and business he was looked on as the "trouble shooter" for the New Deal.

With his wide knowledge of the securities business, the new appointee will be of value to the treasury, which faces important refinancing operations in the near future.

Fall of Suchow Near

DISPATCHES received in Shanghai said the Japanese forces were closing in on Suchow, great Central China rail junction city, and that its capture was momentarily expected. Thousands of Chinese troops were believed to be trapped escape.

Encirclement of Suchow followed the cutting by Japanese columns of the Lunghai railway at which operations of the invaders had been directed for five months. The Japanese then pushed rapidly toward Suchow, taking the cities of Pihsien and Siaohsien which were desperately defended.

Gen. Count Juichi Terauchi, commander of Japanese forces in North China, moved his headquarters to an undisclosed point "somewhere south of Peiping," assuming personal command of the "final drive" to crush Chinese resistance in the Suchow railway zone.

Japanese naval forces occupied the important port city of Amoy, South China. They also landed at the mouth of the Min river 130 miles north of Amoy, but were driven back to their ships.

N.L.R.B. Wins Point

THE United States Supreme court ordered the Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia to show cause why its orders against the national labor relations board in the Republic Steel company case should not be vacated. The circuit court refused to permit the labor board to withdraw its case against the steel company for the purpose of instituting further proceedings and thus averting judicial scrutiny of its conduct. The lower court also restrained the board from taking any further proceedings in the Republic case pending the certification of the transcript of the record.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL SAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

house of representatives by a wide hostilities were concluded. margin makes the menace of the La-Follette Progressive party much more bearable to Democratic prognosticators than might otherwise be the case.

For the house of representatives, to be elected this fall, will elect the next President in December, 1940-IF a third party should prevent any Presidential candidate from getting a clean majority of the electoral votes.

Since the recent consensus of political experts was taken by Newsweek, the writer has checked carefully with some of the more optimistic Republicans to discover where they expect their gains in the house. The point is that a President is elected by the house, under the Constitution, when no candidate has an electoral college majorityby states, not by individual members. The majority of each state delegation determines how their state will vote in electing a President under such circumstances.

There are 15 states about which there is no doubt whatever. Many of them will have solid Democratic delegations in the next house. Since no political landslide is seen now even by the most optimistic of the Republicans there seems to be no chance that the Democrats will not have a majority in every one of these delegations.

These states are the group from Maryland to Texas, and include: Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Missis-sippi, Louisiana, Texas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Maryland.

Ten more states would be needed, as the Constitution requires a majority of all the states to elect a President in this manner. Which, as the present number of states is 48, would mean a total of 25.

No Hope for G. O. P.

Examining the Republican hope chests, it is interesting to note that states to those already named, in which there is no hope of the Republicans capturing a majority of the congressional delegations.

New York, surprisingly enough, has not had a Republican majority in her house delegation since the 1920 election, despite the fact that she rolled up an enormous majority for Coolidge in 1924, and went for Hoover by a small majority in 1928. Indiana has now only one Republican member of the house. A gain of two, or at most, three seats there is all that the Republicans hope for. Illinois is also apt to continue lopsidedly Democratic in her house delegation. So are Colorado, California, Oregon and Washington.

Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico have only one representative each. but that representative is just as important when the house is electing a President as New York or Pennsylvania. Not even the most optimistic Republican consulted by the writer since the Newsweek poll has any hope of electing a Republican congressman from any of these three little states.

And that makes the ten, which, added to the Southern states enumerated, totals twenty-five.

But there are any number of possibilities to make up for any unexpected local upset.

Arouses Curiosity

Inquiries from all over the country are reaching senators and officials asking private advice as to what is on the horizon to have caused President Roosevelt to make his sudden appeal for prompt start on the construction of two battle-

The general impression on the part of the inquirers seems to be that there have been events in the international situation which caused this sudden move.

It may be authoritatively stated that this is not the case. No one in administration circles pretends that everything in the international situation is rosy. Quite the contrary. But the international picture had nothing to do with the President's haste to get battleship construction started. In fact it is admitted by high officials that if the foreign situation were such that the President thought the United States were likely to be forced into a war within, say, a year, the procedure would be entirely different.

The President would then, it is pointed out, be insisting on a very different type of spending for the intervening period. He would want the money spent on types of weapons which could be completed before the war was over.

It just so happens that, no matter how much the work is hurried, building a battleship is a very slow proceeding. It cannot be cut much under three years. To complete a ship in two years would really be an accomplishment. And this would mean from the time the keel was

Washington .- Concession by even | for something which might reasonthe most optimistic Republicans that ably be expected to be finished in the Democrats will control the next | time to make its weight felt before

Reason for Haste

The real reason for the President's haste on battleship construction is not preparedness but economics. He wants to get men working on this job as speedily as possiblein the mines, the steel mills, the factories and the shipyards. Literally it is part of the pump-priming

This does not mean that the building of battleships is a species of made work. On the contrary, the President's feeling is that the need for the additional ships is very vital indeed. But not for the immediate future.

The answer to all this is Japan. The majority opinion among naval and military experts studying the situation, and advising the President, is that Japan has no intention of provoking a war with the United States in the immediate future. But the same experts believe that Japan is counting on a war with this country eventually, maybe five years from now, maybe ten.

The theory behind these fine new battleships is that each one constructed tends to make that war less likely. The experts in question note with extraordinary interest the comment in Japan on the construction of these ships. Japanese newspapers which usually print just what the high army and navy officers of that country want the people to know are rather bitter about these battleships which congress has been authorizing and appropriating for in the last few months.

When it is considered that these ships will not be completed for from three to five years, at the earliest, this resentment is very interesting.

Curious Puzzles

Some very curious and intricate puzzles are presented by the recent Florida Democratic primary. One of them is accentuated, curiously enough, by none other than Chairthere are more than ten additional man James A. Farley, of the Democratic national committee, in a statement rushed out even before all the returns were in to claim a sweeping victory for the New Deal. Said Chairman Farley:

"The signal victory of Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida, a staunch New Deal advocate, over Rep. J. Mark Wilcox, campaigning for the senate seat on the straight-out issue of opposition to the New Deal," etc.

Now the interesting point raised by Chairman Farley, inadvertently, revolves around his own denunciation of Wilcox. For it would seem to be a logical deduction that every voter who marked his ballot for Wilcox is an anti-New Dealer. Viewed as a contest between two party factions, or between two candidates, Pepper's victory was overwhelming. He had a lead of more than two to one over Wilcox.

But if viewed that the men and women who voted for Wilcox were anti-New Deal, then it would appear that one-third of the Democrats in Florida are against the present Democratic administration in Wash-

That is not enough to make any difference, probably, in the Florida election. No one expects any Southern state to elect a Republican to the senate.

The Pepper Problem

But in Northern and Western states such a loss would spell inevitable disaster in November. It is an axiom in politics that no party can afford to lose 10 per cent of its voters. The Florida primary would seem to indicate a loss of more than 30 per cent.

Another, and entirely different, problem is presented by the fact that Senator Pepper, in his campaign, laid a great deal of emphasis on old age pensions.

It was this campaign by Pepper which led Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, to comment that President Roosevelt and Dr. Townsend would have to roll dice to see who was really the victor in Florida.

Now the question is whether Florida is merely like California, in that a tremendous number of old people have moved there to avoid the more rigorous winters of their native states, or whether this sentiment of the old for security and of the young to be relieved of their obligations to their own old folks is merely typical of all states.

In short: Was Da Townsend right in his assumption that there is so much sentiment for his plan that if put to any real test it would sweep the country?

It is almost impossible, at the moment, for Washington politicians to do anything but guess at the answer. But this much is certain. The fact that Pepper was so extraordinarily successful will not pass unnoticed. Plenty of senators and representatives who have been worried a long tapering head, wide, deep chest, stiff, glossy hair and tapering tail. He is gentle and good natured, but fears nothing and is a good watch dog.

"He can't be all bad," Ruth broke in, her eyes shining like stars. "I knew it all the time, only all the trading there was a fat profit. Be- in," he scolded, "seeing it's none of evidence was against him. I don't believe he is the man who shot at Father at Tail Holt. He may be bad. That is, he may have done bad things. But he isn't mean. He wouldn't lie about it. He'd come straight out, with that defiant, mocking smile of his."

"That's all very well, daughter," Lee assented. "I'll grant you he isn't a villain like that killer Morg Norris. Fact is, I never could quite get myself to think so, spite of all the proof. We sure owe him a lot on account of what he did for Frank. But very likely he's that train robber they want in Texas. Must be some reason he's hiding here. You don't want to get too sympathetic

"No, if we get a chance we might arrest him and send him back to Texas," Ruth suggested scornfully. 'There must be a reward for him.'

"Now — now! No use getting highty-tighty, Miss. He can come and stay at the L C long as he wants. We'll do all we can for him, since we don't know he is an out-law," her father said. "And if we find he is we can kick him out," the girl added. "All he has done is save most of our lives." Her father grinned ruefully. "You're sure a gadfly, Missy. You talk like I was starting right out to hunt this fellow down. No sense in getting all steamed up about it. If we get a chance to help him we will. That's all I can promise." Ruth nodded. She knew her father would pay the family debt if he were given a chance. For herself, she felt a great lift of relief at what her brother had told them.

She desperately wanted to believe in Jeff Gray, to get assurance at least that he was not mean and treacherous. A queer joy flooded her heart.

leff Gray fitted himself easily into the life of Tail Holt. Frequently he dropped into the blacksmith shop of Hank Ransom and listened to tall stories of the days when Hank had campaigned against the Apaches under Generals Crook and Miles. He struck up an acquaintance with the cobbler, little Ed Godfrey.

He showed no curiosity about those he met. When they came and went, where they lived, what their ostensible occupations were, held no visible interest for him. He accepted each man for what he gave himself out to be. The riders drifting in and out of Tail Holt no longer looked at him suspiciously. Curly Connor liked him, and Curly was a leader. The only man who seemed to resent his presence was Morg Norris, and this was discounted by the fact that the surly youth was friendly to few. Sensitive to atmosphere, Gray deduced one day that something unusual was in the air. He saw Norris in momentary furtive talk with Sherman Howard. The big man was giving the other instructions. Norris picked up Kansas and took him out of the Golden Nugget with him. Mile High came in, sauntered over to Howard, held a low-voiced conversation with him, and departed. Presently Gray announced, with a yawn, "Tired of poker," and cashed in his chips. He strolled down to the Alamo corral. Sid Hunt and Kansas were saddling their horses. One of them tied back of the saddle a gunnysack containing oats.

"What about that lame sorrel, Sid?" asked Reynolds. "You be back tonight?"

"You look after it, Jim," Hunt said. "Don't look for us till you see our dust coming up the road." "We got a hen on down Live Oak canyon way," Kansas said with a Back of the horse Hunt kicked him on the ankle. Kansas added a rider to his indiscreet remark: "Or somewheres Each of the men had a rifle strapped beside his saddle.

Gray watched them ride out of town. They took the road to the west, the one Lee Chiswick and his daughter had followed the night of their adventure in front of Sanger's store. Half an hour later, Norris, Mile High, and young Howard left Tail Holt headed in the same direc-

The only custom-house was a shack on the San Pedro river at the point where it runs into the United States. One of the routes followed by smugglers wound through Live Oak canyon. From it the descent to Tough Nut was by an easy grade.

The longer he thought of it the more convinced he was that the raid was against smugglers. A packhorse had accompanied the Norris party, probably to carry back the silver. Moreover, the personnel of the group pointed to something other than cattle - stealing. Neither young Howard nor Kansas were top hands with cows. Why bring them along and leave an expert like Curly at home?

From chance remarks Gray had gathered that Curly was the leader of the rustler group. But Curly was no wanton killer.

It was in the small hours when he reached the ranch. At his approach to the house a dog barked furiously. Presently someone opened the front door and came out on the porch. A voice demanded, "Who's

"Tell Lee Chiswick that Jeff Gray wants to see him," the night visitor answered, at the same time swinging from the saddle on the far side of the horse.

There was a moment of silence. "What you want with him?" Bob Chiswick asked.

"I'll tell him that when I see him," Gray said dryly. "You run along in and tell him I'm here." A head was thrust out of an upper window. "Who is it, Bob?" "Says he is Jeff Gray, Father" Bob called up.

"Wait a minute." The head was withdrawn. Five minutes later Lee Chiswick stepped out on the porch.

Gray told him why he was there. To his son Lee said, "Light a lamp in my office, Bob." To Gray, "Tie your horse and come in."

Gray followed the cattleman into his office and took the chair to which his host waved him. Lee sat across the table from him. Young Chiswick remained standing.

"First off, Mr. Jeff Gray, if that's your name, let's get it clear where you stand. I'll ask you to come clean, sir. Are you one of Sherm Howard's scoundrels?" "Would I be here if I were?"

Gray asked. Ruth stood in the doorway, her dark eyes dilated with surprise. She had flung a wrap over her nightgown and she held it caught close to her slender, gracious body. Above the slippers into which her feet had been thrust there was a glimpse of white ankle.

"I'm not asking for a Yankee answer, sir," Lee said impatiently.

"I'm not giving you one," Gray told him curtly. "I've been in the saddle all night to bring you the tip-off. Take it or leave it."

"There's a story in Tail Holt that you are Clint Doke, the fellow who robbed the Texas and Southern," persisted Lee.

"Not much time for gossip right now if we aim to head off those

"Now you know, you can go back to bed," Lee told her crustily.

"Not just yet, please." Gray smiled blandly. "I'm gaunt as a pieded steer after a long drive. Since you're so sure I'm innocent, Miss Chiswick, how about a cup of coffee and some ham and eggs? I'll have just time for them before we start if you move lively."

"Start where?" she asked. The red - headed man waved a hand debonairly at his host. "Ask Mr. Chiswick. I wouldn't know

Lee said: "Go ahead, girl. Fix him up some food." He added to his son: "Rout Frank and Dan Brand and Buck Conrad out of their beds. See they get horses saddled." Before she left to make breakfast,

Ruth flung a question at Gray. "You are innocent, aren't you?" "I never blocked a brand or ran one over. I never bought or sold a wet horse."

"Did you hear me tell you to rustle some grub, Ruth?" her father asked harshly. "Better fix breakfast for all of us. No telling when we'll eat again." Ruth vanished. Presently they could hear the rattling of stove-lids and the crackling of wood. "I don't know how to take you," Lee complained. "You certainly came through for Frank when he needed a friend. You claim you're not one of Howard's thieves, but you were with them when they ran that bunch of L C stuff up Box canyon. Pat Sorley checked up on your horse's hoofs." "He didn't check up well enough. went up the gulch after the thieves, not with them. They passed close to the line-camp in the night.

Right now I'm giving no information.'

Chiswick threw out a hand in a gesture of defeat. "All right. Have it your own way. I'll take a chance on you. If you're right about it and this bunch you followed are headed for Live Oak canyon, it is a cinch they are not figuring on running off any of my stock. My guess is the same as yours. They have heard word of some silver smugglers on their way to Tough Nut. At least, that would look reasonable to me. Probably they will lie in wait for them at the rock slide. A thousand big boulders crashed down a million years ago, and filled up the trail so a traveler has to wind around among them. It's a fine spot for an ambush. Question is, can we get to the smugglers before they reach the canyon?"

"If not, they will probably be wiped out. You know that killer Morg Norris. He'll figure dead men tell no tales."

"Yes. Three smugglers were drygulched and killed last year. In Skeleton canyon, not in Live Oak. Norris was in that, they say."

"Unless the Mexicans fool them and come up some other way," Gray said, thinking aloud.

"Through Live Oak would be the nearest for them." "Howard must have a spy in Mexico who is in with the smugglers."

"Looks like," Chiswick agreed. Presently Frank Chiswick came into the room. He told his father that the horses were being caught

"I reckon so. How many rifles all told?"

"Four, counting the buffalo gun." The other men trooped into the house for breakfast. They ate by the light of lamps, Ruth and Nelly waiting on them. Plate after plate of biscuits vanished before them. Platters of fried eggs appeared and disappeared. Nelly poured great quantities of coffee. The men ate with the lusty, hearty appetites of hard riders who did not know when they would see food again. During the meal there was little conver-

After breakfast Gray drew Lee Chiswick aside.

"Maybe we're figuring this thing out wrong," he said. "Maybe when Kansas let slip Live Oak canyon, that was just bait for me. Don't you reckon you had better leave a guard at the ranch to look after the women?"

Lee considered this. "No. Men in this country don't make war on women, not even a fox like Sherm Howard."

Gray rode with Lee Chiswick at the head of the little cavalcade.

They came into rough country, a wild jumble of hills and draws which made for slow and hard going. In the darkness the horses felt their own way. From the summit of one of the hills Chiswick pointed down to a gash in the rock wall facing them.

"Canyon Diablo," he said. "That was the Spanish name. We call it Live Oak now."

Chiswick left the rest of his party in a mesquite draw while he and Gray rode forward to reconnoiter. The younger man carried Dan Brand's rifle, since he had not one of his own. They rode cautiously, searching the darkness in front of them with their eyes as they moved forward. Of the two Chiswick was I heard them and went out to see | the more uneasy. Neither of them saw any sign of another party. Finally they drew rein and dismounted. Back of a small elevation 50 yards from the mouth of Live Oak canyon they tied their mounts. Very carefully they covered the remaining distance. Within rifle range were a hundred boulders behind which enemies could Safely they reached the trail. "They're ahead of us." Gray pointed to fresh tracks.

They examined the footprints, striking matches as they stooped to make out the impressions. One horse had a broken front hoof. Another wore very large shoes and stepped a long way. "I've seen both of those tracks before," Chiswick said. "The horses that made them belong to Morg Norris and Mile High," Gray replied. "Where do we go from here? My idea is to follow them into the canyon or along the rim. Chiswick called to the rest of his posse and the others joined them. Brand recovered his rifle from the red-headed man.

"Norris and his crowd are in the canyon, boys," Lee said. "We are going in after them. But get this right. We have no evidence as to why they are here. So we can't cut loose at them promiscuous. Maybe they'll show their hand before we reach them. Anyhow, till I give the word there isn't to be any gunplay. We're law-abiding citizens."

"How many of them are there?" asked Buck Conrad, chewing tobacco stolidly. He was a short, thick, bowlegged man with an imperturbable face.

ONLY a few days are left before the close of our big Cake Recipe Contest. For all entries must be postmarked not later than May 31, 1938.

But there is still time for you to enter a recipe. Send in the directions for that cake which your family says is the best ever . . . which you bake for company . . . or always send to the church fair.

It will only take a few moments of your time to write out the recipe and you have nothing to buy . . . no letter to write. There never was an easier contest! Just fill out the attached coupon calling for your name, address, the brand of shortening, baking powder and flour used in your cake. Clip the coupon to the recipe and mail it to C. Houston Goudiss, author of the "WHAT TO EAT AND WHY" series in this newspaper.

16 Cash Prizes.

The winning cakes will be selected by the experienced home economists on the staff of the Experimental Kitchen Laboratory that he maintains in New York City. The recipe adjudged the best will win $25.00 for the lucky homemaker who submits it. There will be five second prizes of $10.00 each and ten third prizes of $5.00 each.

Prize winning recipes, together with those receiving honorable mention from the judges, will be printed in a booklet, to be distributed nationally.

Simple or Elaborate Recipe.

There are no restrictions as to the type of recipe that may be submitted. Your favorite cake may be plain or frosted. Diplomatic Relations Ruptured . . . John W. Hanes Named Assistant Secretary of the Treasury

SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Ministers Are Recalled

DIPLOMATIC relations between Great Britain and Mexico were broken because of the dispute over Mexico's action in expropriating foreign oil properties. President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico took the initiative by recalling Primo Villa Michel, Mexico minister at London, and ordering the closing of the legation indefinitely. The British government promptly directed Minister Owen St. Clair O'Malley to leave Mexico together with his staff, the legation J. Dalton Murray.

Is a direct outgrowth of the oil seizure, the immediate cause of Cardenas' action was what he considered Britain's "insolent" methods in demanding a claims annuity of $85,-000, due since January 1 for damages to British interests in a revolution years ago. Foreign Minister Eduardo Hay handed a check for the amount to Minister O'Malley, told him of the recall of Minister Michel, and said: "May I be allowed, however, to call your excellency's attention to the fact that not even powerful states with ample reof having fulfilled their monetary obligations."

This, of course, was an allusion to Britain's repudiation of her war debt to the United States.

Labor and political organizations in Mexico lined up solidly in support of Cardenas in the dispute. The majority bloc in the chamber of deputies described the diplomatic break as "absolutely justified."

Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, took up the Mexican affair on his return from Geneva. An important factor in the situation is consideration of Britain's oil supply if war should come in Europe.

When Mexico seized the oil properties both Great Britain and the United States protested, but later Secretary of State Hull formally acknowledged Mexico's right to take the step. Britain, however, twice demanded prompt return of the properties. Mexico rejected the British contention.

Air Mail Week

ELEBRATION of National Air Mail week, marking the twentieth year of the service, opened when Mrs. Roosevelt accepted, for her husband, a sheet of the new air mail stamps from the Washington postmaster. The anniversary was observed in many parts of the country, a notable event being the first use, in Chicago, of an autogiro to carry mail from the airport to the post office.

Hanes in Treasury Post

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT nominated John W. Hanes, who has been a member of the securities and exchange commission less than five months, to be assistant secretary of the treasury. It is likely that, before the end of 1938, Mr. Hanes will succeed Roswell Magill as under-secretary of the treasury. Mr. Magill, who is on leave from Columbia university, is anxious to return to his old position, it is reported.

J. W. Hanes

Mr. Hanes may not assume his new duties until the reorganization of the New York Sto treasury who has been identified with Wall Street investment banking. When selected for the SEC he was a partner in the firm of C. D. Barney & Co. During his recent activities as liaison man between the administration and business he was looked on as the "trouble shooter" for the New Deal.

With his wide knowledge of the securities business, the new appointee will be of value to the treasury, which faces important refinancing operations in the near future.

Woman Ambassador?

THERE is a good chance that the United States will be represented at Moscow by a woman, for Mrs. Charles C. Broy is under consideration for the post of American ambassador to Soviet Russia, which Joseph E. Davies recently relinquished to become ambassador to Belgium. Broy, who is a Texan by birth, is the wife of an American foreign service officer and the wid-tive Thomas U. Sisson of Mississippi. She was recommended for the ambassadorship by the chairmen of the foreign relations and foreign affairs committees of congress, and has the backing of many prominent members of congress. If appointed and confirmed, she will be the first American woman to be an ambassador.

Mrs. Broy was officially presented to Secretary of State Hull by Senator Key Pittman, but the secretary has known her personally for 16 years.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

the most optimistic Republicans that the Democrats will control the next house of representatives by a wide margin makes the menace of the La-Follette Progressive party much more bearable to Democratic prognosticators than might otherwise be the case.

For the house of representatives, to be elected this fall, will elect the next President in December, 1940-IF a third party should prevent any Presidential candidate from getting a clean majority of the electoral

Since the recent consensus of political experts was taken by Newsweek, the writer has checked carefully with some of the more optimistic Republicans to discover where they expect their gains in the house. The point is that a President is elected by the house, under the Constitution, when no candidate has an electoral college majorityby states, not by individual members. The majority of each state delegation determines how their state will vote in electing a President under such circumstances.

There are 15 states about which there is no doubt whatever. Many of them will have solid Democratic delegations in the next house. Since no political landslide is seen now even by the most optimistic of the Republicans there seems to be no chance that the Democrats will not have a majority in every one of these delegations.

These states are the group from Maryland to Texas, and include: Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Maryland.

Ten more states would be needed, as the Constitution requires a majority of all the states to elect a President in this manner. Which, as the present number of states is 48, would mean a total of 25.

No Hope for G. O. P.

Examining the Republican hope there are more than ten additional states to those already named, in which there is no hope of the Republicans capturing a majority of the congressional delegations.

New York, surprisingly enough, has not had a Republican majority in her house delegation since the 1920 election, despite the fact that she rolled up an enormous majority for Coolidge in 1924, and went for Hoover by a small majority in 1928. Indiana has now only one Republican member of the house. A gain of two, or at most, three seats there is all that the Republicans hope for. Illinois is also apt to continue lopsidedly Democratic in her house delegation. So are Colorado, California, Oregon and Washington.

Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico have only one representative each. but that representative is just as important when the house is electing a President as New York or Pennsylvania. Not even the most optimistic Republican consulted by the writer since the Newsweek poll has any hope of electing a Republican congressman from any of these three little states.

And that makes the ten, which, added to the Southern states enumerated, totals twenty-five.

But there are any number of possibilities to make up for any unexpected local upset.

Arouses Curiosity

Inquiries from all over the country are reaching senators and officials asking private advice as to what is on the horizon to have caused President Roosevelt to make his sudden appeal for prompt start on the construction of two battleships.

The general impression on the part of the inquirers seems to be that there have been events in the international situation which caused this sudden move.

It may be authoritatively stated that this is not the case. No one in administration circles pretends that everything in the international situation is rosy. Quite the contrary. But the international picture had nothing to do with the President's haste to get battleship construction started. In fact it is admitted by high officials that if the foreign situation were such that the President thought the United States were likely to be forced into a war within, say, a year, the procedure would be entirely different.

The President would then, it is pointed out, be insisting on a very different type of spending for the intervening period. He would want the money spent on types of weapons which could be completed before the war was over.

It just so happens that, no matter how much the work is hurried, building a battleship is a very slow proceeding. It cannot be cut much under three years. To complete a ship in two years would really be an accomplishment. And this would mean from the time the keel was

Washington.-Concession by even | for something which might reasonably be expected to be finished in time to make its weight felt before hostilities were concluded. feet, sat down by his little brand

Reason for Haste

The real reason for the President's haste on battleship construction is not preparedness but economics. He wants to get men working on this job as speedily as possiblein the mines, the steel mills, the factories and the shipyards. Literally it is part of the pump-priming plan.

This does not mean that the building of battleships is a species of made work. On the contrary, the President's feeling is that the need for the additional ships is very vital indeed. But not for the immediate future.

The answer to all this is Japan. The majority opinion among naval and military experts studying the situation, and advising the President, is that Japan has no intention of provoking a war with the United States in the immediate future. But the same experts believe that Japan is counting on a war with this country eventually, maybe five years from now, maybe ten.

The theory behind these fine new battleships is that each one constructed tends to make that war less likely. The experts in question note with extraordinary interest the comment in Japan on the construction of these ships. Japanese newspapers which usually print just what the high army and navy officers of that country want the people to know are rather bitter about these battleships which congress has been authorizing and appropriating for in the last few months.

When it is considered that these ships will not be completed for from three to five years, at the earliest, this resentment is very interesting.

Curious Puzzles

Some very curious and intricate puzzles are presented by the recent Florida Democratic primary. One of them is accentuated, curiously chests, it is interesting to note that enough, by none other than Chairman James A. Farley, of the Democratic national committee, in a statement rushed out even before all the returns were in to claim a sweeping victory for the New Deal. Said Chairman Farley:

"The signal victory of Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida, a staunch New Deal advocate, over Rep. J. Mark Wilcox, campaigning for the senate seat on the straight-out issue of opposition to the New Deal," etc. Now the interesting point raised by Chairman Farley, inadvertently, revolves around his own denunciation of Wilcox. For it would seem to be a logical deduction that every voter who marked his ballot for Wilcox is an anti-New Dealer. Viewed as a contest between two party factions, or between two candidates, Pepper's victory was overwhelming. He had a lead of more than two to one over Wilcox.

But if viewed that the men and women who voted for Wilcox were anti-New Deal, then it would appear that one-third of the Democrats in Florida are against the present Democratic administration in Wash-

That is not enough to make any difference, probably, in the Florida election. No one expects any Southern state to elect a Republican to the senate.

The Pepper Problem

But in Northern and Western states such a loss would spell inevitable disaster in November. It is an axiom in politics that no party can afford to lose 10 per cent of its voters. The Florida primary would seem to indicate a loss of more than 30 per cent.

Another, and entirely different, problem is presented by the fact that Senator Pepper, in his campaign, laid a great deal of emphasis on old age pensions.

It was this campaign by Pepper which led Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, to comment that President Roosevelt and Dr. Townsend would have to roll dice to see who was really the victor in Florida.

Now the question is whether Florida is merely like California, in that a tremendous number of old people have moved there to avoid the more rigorous winters of their native states, or whether this sentiment of the old for security and of the young to be relieved of their obligations to their own old folks is merely typical of all states.

In short: Was Da Townsend right in his assumption that there is so much sentiment for his plan that if put to any real test it would sweep

the country? It is almost impossible, at the moment, for Washington politicians to do anything but guess at the answer. But this much is certain. The fact that Pepper was so extraordinarily successful will not pass unnoticed. Plenty of senators and representatives who have been worried about their chances for coming Back in the World war days the construction of battleships was stopped so that the skilled labor amployed on them could be utilized back are going to take a chance that the old age pension sentiment is very general indeed. What have they to lose?

in, her eyes shining like stars. "I knew it all the time, only all the evidence was against him. I don't believe he is the man who shot at Father at Tail Holt. He may be bad. That is, he may have done bad things. But he isn't mean. He wouldn't lie about it. He'd come straight out, with that defiant, mocking smile of his."

"That's all very well, daughter," Lee assented. "I'll grant you he isn't a villain like that killer Morg Norris. Fact is, I never could quite get myself to think so, spite of all the proof. We sure owe him a lot on account of what he did for Frank. But very likely he's that train rob-ber they want in Texas. Must be some reason he's hiding here. You don't want to get too sympathetic

'No, if we get a chance we might arrest him and send him back to Texas," Ruth suggested scornfully. "There must be a reward for him."

"Now - now! No use getting highty-tighty, Miss. He can come and stay at the L C long as he wants. We'll do all we can for him, since we don't know he is an out-law," her father said.
"And if we find he is we can kick him out," the girl added. "All he has done is save most of our lives." Her father grinned ruefully. "You're sure a gadfly, Missy. You talk like I was starting right out to hunt this fellow down. No sense in getting all steamed up about it. If we get a chance to help him we will. That's all I can promise."

Ruth nodded. She knew her father would pay the family debt if he were given a chance. For herself, she felt a great lift of relief at what her brother had told them.

She desperately wanted to believe in Jeff Gray, to get assurance at least that he was not mean and treacherous. A queer joy flooded

Jeff Gray fitted himself easily into the life of Tail Holt. Frequently he dropped into the blacksmith shop of Hank Ransom and listened to tall stories of the days when Hank had campaigned against the Apaches under Generals Crook and Miles. He struck up an acquaintance with the cobbler, little Ed Godfrey.

He showed no curiosity about those he met. When they came and went, where they lived, what their ostensible occupations were, held no visible interest for him. He accepted each man for what he gave himself out to be. The riders drifting in and out of Tail Holt no longer looked at him suspiciously. Curly Connor liked him, and Curly was a leader. The only man who seemed to resent his presence was Morg Norris, and this was discounted by the fact that the surly youth was friendly to few. Sensitive to atmosphere, Gray deduced one day that something unusual was in the air. He saw Norris in momentary furtive talk with Sherman Howard. The big man was giving the other instructions. Norris picked up Kansas and took him out of the Golden Nugget with him. Mile High came in, sauntered over to Howard, held a low-voiced conversation with him, and departed. Presently Gray announced, with a yawn, "Tired of poker," and cashed in his chips. He strolled down to the Alamo corral. Sid Hunt and Kansas were saddling their horses. One of them tied back of the saddle a gunnysack containing oats. What about that lame sorrel, Sid?" asked Reynolds. "You be back tonight?

You look after it, Jim," Hunt said. "Don't look for us till you see our dust coming up the road." "We got a hen on down Live Oak canyon way," Kansas said with a grin.

Back of the horse Hunt kicked him on the ankle. Kansas added a rider to his indiscreet remark: "Or somewheres

Each of the men had a rifle strapped beside his saddle. Gray watched them ride out of town. They took the road to the est, the one Lee Chiswick and his daughter had followed the night of their adventure in front of Sanger's store. Half an hour later, Norris, Mile High, and young Howard left Tail Holt headed in the same direc-

Darkness was falling when Jeff Gray rode out of town. He had never been in Live Oak canyon, but he knew from Pat Sorley that it was on the L C range, not more than three or four miles southwest of the ico, thus escaping the Mexican ex-"He can't be all bad," Ruth broke | port duty on silver and the import duty on merchandise. In such illicit trading there was a fat profit. Between El Paso and Nogales there was no port of entry. The only custom-house was a shack on the San Pedro river at the point where it runs into the United States. One of the routes followed by smugglers wound through Live Oak canyon. From it the descent to Tough Nut was by an easy grade. The longer he thought of it the more convinced he was that the raid was against smugglers. A packhorse had accompanied the Norris party, probably to carry back the silver. Moreover, the personnel of the group pointed to something other than cattle - stealing. Neither young Howard nor Kansas were top hands with cows. Why bring them along and leave an expert like Curly at home?

From chance remarks Gray had gathered that Curly was the leader of the rustler group. But Curly was no wanton killer.

Gray did not ride straight for the canyon, but took the road that led to the L C ranch-house. The Chiswicks would know much better than he what to do, since they were familiar with the terrain. If he played a lone hand he might miss the smugglers and let them ride on to destruction.

It was in the small hours when he reached the ranch. At his approach to the house a dog barked furiously. Presently someone opened the front door and came out on the porch.

A voice demanded, "Who's there?" "Tell Lee Chiswick that Jeff Gray wants to see him," the night visitor answered, at the same time swinging from the saddle on the far side of the horse. There was a moment of silence. "What you want with him?" Bob

Chiswick asked. "I'll tell him that when I see him," Gray said dryly. "You run along in and tell him I'm here." A head was thrust out of an upper window. "Who is it, Bob?"

"Says he is Jeff Gray, Father" Bob called up.

"Wait a minute." The head was withdrawn. Five minutes later Lee Chiswick stepped out on the porch. Gray told him why he was there. To his son Lee said, "Light a lamp in my office, Bob." To Gray, 'Tie your horse and come in." Gray followed the cattleman into his office and took the chair to which his host waved him. Lee sat across the table from him. Young Chis-wick remained standing. "First off, Mr. Jeff Gray, if that's your name, let's get it clear where you stand. I'll ask you to come clean, sir. Are you one of Sherm Howard's scoundrels?" "Would I be here if I were?"

Gray asked. Ruth stood in the doorway, her dark eyes dilated with surprise. She had flung a wrap over her nightgown and she held it caught close to her slender, gracious body. Above the slippers into which her feet had been thrust there was a glimpse of white ankle. "I'm not asking for a Yankee answer, sir," Lee said impatiently.

"I'm not giving you one," Gray told him curtly. "I've been in the saddle all night to bring you the tipoff. Take it or leave it."

"Start where?" she asked. The red - headed man waved a hand debonairly at his host. "Ask Mr. Chiswick. I wouldn't know where."

Lee said: "Go ahead, girl. Fix him up some food." He added to his son: "Rout Frank and Dan Brand and Buck Conrad out of their beds. See they get horses saddled." Before she left to make breakfast,

Ruth flung a question at Gray. "You are innocent, aren't you?" "I never blocked a brand or ran one over. I never bought or sold a wet horse." "Did you hear me tell you to rustle some grub, Ruth?" her father asked harshly. "Better fix breakfast for all of us. No telling when we'll eat again."

Ruth vanished. Presently they could hear the rattling of stove-lids and the crackling of wood.

"I don't know how to take you," Lee complained. "You certainly came through for Frank when he needed a friend. You claim you're not one of Howard's thieves, but you were with them when they ran that bunch of L C stuff up Box canyon. Pat Sorley checked up on your horse's hoofs."

Chiswick threw out a hand in a gesture of defeat. "All right. Have it your own way. I'll take a chance on you. If you're right about it and this bunch you followed are headed for Live Oak canyon, it is a cinch they are not figuring on running off any of my stock. My guess is the same as yours. They have heard word of some silver smugglers on their way to Tough Nut. At least, that would look reasonable to me. Probably they will lie in wait for them at the rock slide. A thousand big boulders crashed down a million years ago, and filled up the trail so a traveler has to wind around among them. It's a fine spot for an ambush. Question is, can we get to the smugglers before they reach the canyon?" "If not, they will probably be wiped out. You know that killer Morg Norris. He'll figure dead men tell no tales." "Yes. Three smugglers were drygulched and killed last year. In Skeleton canyon, not in Live Oak. Norris was in that, they say." "Unless the Mexicans fool them and come up some other way," Gray said, thinking aloud.

"Through Live Oak would be the nearest for them."

"Howard must have a spy in Mexico who is in with the smugglers."
"Looks like," Chiswick agreed. Presently Frank Chiswick came into the room. He told his father that the horses were being caught at the bunk-house last night. Do you want him to go?" the young man

"Four, counting the buffalo gun." The other men trooped into the house for breakfast. They ate by the light of lamps, Ruth and Nelly waiting on them. The men ate with the lusty, hearty appetites of coffee and some ham and eggs? I'll hard riders who did not know when they would see food again. During the meal there was little conversation.

After breakfast Gray drew Lee

Chiswick aside. "Maybe we're figuring this thing out wrong," he said, "Maybe when Kansas let slip Live Oak canyon, that was just bait for me. Don't you reckon you had better leave a guard at the ranch to look after the women?"

Lee considered this. "No. Men in this country don't make war on women, not even a fox like Sherm Howard."

Gray rode with Lee Chiswick at the head of the little cavalcade.

They came into rough country, a wild jumble of hills and draws which made for slow and hard going. In the darkness the horses felt their own way. From the summit of one of the hills Chiswick pointed down to a gash in the rock wall facing them.

"Canyon Diablo," he said. "That was the Spanish name. We call it

Live Oak now." Chiswick left the rest of his party in a mesquite draw while he and Gray rode forward to reconnoiter. The younger man carried Dan "He didn't check up well enough. Brand's rifle, since he had not one of his own. They rode cautiously, the more uneasy. He could not be > Neither of them saw any sign of another party. Finally they drew rein and dismounted. Back of a small elevation 50 yards from the mouth of Live Oak canyon they tied their mounts. Very carefully they covered the remaining distance. Within rifle range were a hundred boulders behind which enemies could find cover.

Safely they reached the trail. "They're ahead of us." Gray pointed to fresh tracks.

They examined the footprints, striking matches as they stooped to make out the impressions. One horse had a broken front hoof. Another wore very large shoes and stepped a long way.

"I've seen both of those tracks before," Chiswick said.

"The horses that made them belong to Morg Norris and Mile High," Gray replied. "Where do we go from here? My idea is to follow them into the canyon or along the Chiswick called to the rest of his posse and the others joined them. Brand recovered his rifle from the red-headed man.

"Norris and his crowd are in the canyon, boys," Lee said. "We are going in after them. But get this right. We have no evidence as to why they are here. So we can't cut loose at them promiscuous. Maybe they'll show their hand before we reach them. Anyhow, till I give the word there isn't to be any gunplay. We're law-abiding citizens."

"How many of them are there?" asked Buck Conrad, chewing tobacco stolidly. He was a short, thick, bowlegged man with an imperturb-

The United States post office gets into banking with its postal savings work. In rare emergencies, it aids the federal bureau of investigation in identification by turning over to G-men fingerprints taken of each person who opens a postal savings account.

Occasionally, says a writer in the Washington Post, our post office delves into the business of locating missing people. Here's how its fanciest bit of service works. You pay 3 cents postage; plus 15 cents mini-"There's a story in Tail Holt that | mum registration fee; plus 10 cents ter is then delivered to the addressee only); plus 23 cents for a return receipt showing the address where the letter was delivered and the signature of the addressee!

As for postal savings, Canada, Germany and other countries run banking branches. German post offices, in addition, arrange excursion trips, collect license fees from every radio owner in Germany, maintain buses which serve as traveling post offices. Likewise, traveling post offices are used in Switzerland, Russia and elsewhere.

Back in 1900 Belgium offered an odd service. It was a 10-centime stamp. The detachable tag on the bottom reads in French and Flemish: "Do not deliver on Sunday." If the tag was left on the stamp, the letter wasn't delivered on Sunday. But if you didn't care and tore the tag off, the letter was delivered any day of the week.
