Spread Of Insects Fought By Government

For the past six months Department of Agriculture specialists have been warning United States farmers that this year would be most favorable for insect pests. About all we've done here is to hope they wouldn't be so bad. But already we are seeing enough insects in Lubbock County to convince us that there is a full stand of some insects. Notably moths, or candle flies, or whatever you want to call them.

News dispatches tell us the hoppers are already hatched out in enormous numbers a few miles southeast of us in Scurry County, and all along the north line of the Panhandle. Fortunately the federal government was "laying" for the critters and hundreds of thousands of pounds of poison bait have been distributed and spread in the attempt to control them before they grow wings and take off for other parts of the country.

THERE are, perhaps, more false notions concerning fats than any other class of foods.

Some homemakers, considering them as "fattening" only, try to eliminate them entirely from the diet. Others have the impression that foods containing fat are difficult to digest, and for this reason deprive their families of many delicious and healthful foods. Both + by such a critical condition. Hitler must have realized that the time was not ripe for aggressive action against the Czechs, for German authorities in Berlin solemnly assured Dr. Vojtech Mastny, Czech minister to Berlin, and the Czech military attache that Germany planned no military expedition against Czechoslovakia. This eased the situation somewhat, but the British cabinet continued to urge Benes and his government to make all possible concessions to Hitler concerning the demands of the Sudeten German minority. It was believed the Fuehrer would ultimately get about everything he wants from the Czechs without a fight. Both France and Britain were bringing strong pressure to bear on Berlin, and the British especially were determined to avert general war if it could be done.

In Oriental countries, where large populations live in great poverty, fat is usually scarce and it is necessary to consume huge quantities of food in order to meet the daily fuel requirements. As a result, most of the people develop distended abdomens.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, it was said, was working out a plan under which his government would play the part of mediator. The scheme was based on autonomy for the 3,250,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia with freedom in municipal and educational affairs.

Henlein's German party in the Sudeten districts of Czechoslovakia was winning victories in municipal elections, and this made the Nazis quite cocky in their attitude. They refused to negotiate with the government until their safety had been guaranteed.

There is also experimental evidence that at least a small amount of one or more of the unsaturated fatty acids must be supplied by the food if normal nutrition is to be maintained. And two competent investigators found, experimentally, that the presence of fat in the diet tends to conserve vitamin B in the body.

Some fats, especially those from animal sources, are rich in vitamins A and D, and fats made from vegetable oils may contain vitamin E.

Fat and Hunger

Perhaps the greatest service performed by fat is its ability to give "staying power" to the dietto satisfy hunger. In this respect, it directly affects the disposition and may influence the ability to enjoy life.

The shortage of fats in European countries during the World war graphically demonstrated how a deficiency of this class of foods can destroy the morale of entire nations.

With supplies cut off or very greatly curtailed, the warring countries found it necessary to ration fats closely. As a result, their people were always hungry and dissatisfied, even when their actual needs were satisfied. In this connection, it is interesting to note that a slice of bread and butter or margarine will delay the onset of hunger longer than a slice of bread and jam, even though the number of calories may be the same.

Different Fats Compared

As sources of energy, the different food fats are very similar. Thus, the homemaker's choice may be determined by preference.

-*-Digestibility of Fats

Because of their ability to retard digestion somewhat and thus give satiety value to a meal, the impression has grown up that fats are "difficult" to digest. This results from confusing the length of time required for digestion and the completeness with which a food is digested.

us" (II Cor. 5:14) was the all-sufficient moving force back of the greatest life of service rendered by any man. It is this personal devotion to the One whom we love "because he first loved us" (I John 4:19), which makes Christianity "different from all other religions. Christianity alone acts through this natural and deep hunger of mankind with a personalized religion which can be a satisfying joy and pleasure. Yet at this point Chris-tians fail the most and make difficult the work of serving Jesus. They see religion as a job to be done, a form to be observed, a duty to be fulfilled" (W. R. King).

We need to renew that devotion to Christ which expresses itself in true worship. Prayer is too often asking for things; praise, thanking for things (unless we become so engrossed with them that we forget to return thanks); and worship, which is a coming to God in adoration and thanksgiving for what He is rather than what He can give, is forgotten. Our Heavenly father wants us to show love toward Him. The act of Mary was pure personal devotion and worship, and its fragrance lives to this day.

I. Wasted-But Eternally Saved (vv. 3-9)

The dark hours of betrayal and death were before our Lord. All around Him was hostility. Even in the inner circle of the disciples there was misunderstanding and bickering. If we jump up this bunch of wolves before the smugglers arrive, they can give us the horse-laugh and say they just rode put for a picnic. If we don't show up till after the Mexicans, the smugglers are liable to be rubbed out. We'll have to just jog along and hope for the best."

Gray dawn was beginning to sift into the darkness and bleach it with light. Lee held the lead, Jeff Gray at his heels.

Day poured down into the canon. In an incredibly short space of time nothing was left of the blackress of night but a swirling mist. The men could see one another, not as shifting shadows but as individuals. All of them were conscious of a definite relief.

The leader drew up his horse. "Getting close to the rock slide," he said evenly. "They may be there or they may not. We're fixed so we have to guess at what these fellows want." Lee's glance rested for a moment on Gray. "Maybe I'm the one who is to fall into the trap and this talk of smugglers doesn't mean a thing. Ride as loose as you can, boys. Not too close together. If they fire at us we'll hunt cover, each man for himself. There will be plenty of boulders there, or any-

"We're too late!" Chiswick cried. 'Come on, boys."

He slid from the saddle and ran toward the bend, moving with the heaviness that comes from middle age. Gray passed him before he was halfway to the turn.

The man was Lou Howard. During his flight he had dropped the rifle because it interfered with speed.

"Reach for the sky," Gray ordered. "No funny business or I'll drill you through.'

A bullet whistled past his head. He swung from the saddle and moved forward. In his hand was a forty-four, ready for action. The rifle he had left beside the horse.

"Don't you!" shrieked Howard. "You Reep back." "Get 'em up," snapped Gray.

"Quick." The hands of Howard went up, the weapon in one of them.

"Don't kill me," he begged. Gray disarmed him.

"You'll be safer tied up," the captor said. "Keep you from being killed by one of the boys when they get to you. Move over this way.' The crook-nosed man took the rope from the saddle and tied up Howard swiftly and thoroughly. He

Ruth spent some anxious, restless hours. She found herself on the front porch a dozen times, her gaze sweeping down the road to look for the returning posse.

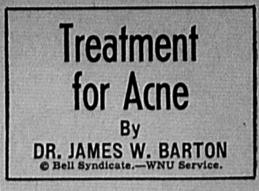

With Nelly's help she laid in a supply of cooked food for the returning warriors. Whether successful or the reverse, they would certainly be hungry.

After ail, it was Nelly who first saw the approaching rider. "Someone coming this way," she called to her mistress. Swiftly Ruth went to the door. A horse was cantering heavily up the road. The distance was too far for identification of either man or beast, but there was something unusual changed her mind. about the gait of the animal. Pimples disfigure the skin and cause so much embarrassment that the individual is apt to develop an inferiority complex which interferes with business and social progress.

The Modern Treatment.

Formerly treatment was by salves and lotions, cutting down on certain foods, and keeping the intestines active. Today the internal treatment is by some gland extract -usually pituitary extract-and the external treatment is by X-ray. In fact, X-ray treatment is considered the best single treatment.

What is known as the viosterol treatment discovered by two members of the staff of the University of Chicago-as used on themselves and later on a number of studentshas given excellent results in many cases. Ten drops of viosterol were taken daily in a half glassful of water, gradually increasing the dose them. Through her he could strike until at the end of two weeks 20 drops were being taken daily. Twenty drops were taken daily for two more weeks. The treatment was repeated after an interval of 10 days. Then followed the gland treatment-anterior pituitary-injected twice weekly for two months.

Fortitude and Duty True fortitude I take to be the possession of a man's self, rounded the curve was one of the wildest confusion. Frightened by the firing, two saddled horses were bucking wildly in the dry bed of the stream. The men who had been riding them lay on the ground, one of them face down and the other in a twisted heap. Two others in Mexican costume were racing down the canyon to escape, while three masked men shot at them with rifles as they ran. Another masked man was struggling with a pitching mule.

Gray flung a bullet at the nearest of the marksmen. The man whirled, caught sight of him, and ripped out a startled oath. He gave a cry of warning, fired once wildly toward the men pouring round the bend, and turned to run. He caught at the bridle of one of the plunging horses and tried to mount. His foot could not find the stirrup nor could he fling himself astride the back of the animal. A bullet struck the pommel of the saddle to which he was clinging. With a yell of terror he let go and flew down the gorge, dodging in and out of the rocks as he went. Though the face of the man was covered by a bandanna except for the eyes, Gray recognized him as young Howard.

Taken by surprise, the other bandits thought only of flight. One ran limping to a horse, pulled himself to the saddle, and galloped off. Another plunged to the ground, as if he had stumbled, but did not rise again. The remaining two, penned in the rocks, answered the fire of the attackers.

"Get to cover, boys," Lee ordered. "We'll drive them into the open. Don't take any chances."

A saddled horse, snorting with fear, came out from the big boulders close to the spot where the two masked men crouched. The nearest outlaw seized the bridle and mounted. His companion clambered on behind, and the animal dashed down the canyon.

"Bring up the horses," Lee called to his son Frank. "We'll take after | the explosion came down in boomthese fellows."

Gray turned over the body of the masked man lying in the sand. He recognized the face of Sid Hunt, the cowboy he had seen in Yell Sanger's store when he first arrived in Tail Holt.

The crook-nosed man helped himself to the dead man's rifle and reach the summit while they were cartridge-belt. He caught one of still in sight. The animal he rode the horses left by the outlaws and started down the gulch.

"Better wait for the orders of the old man," Brand advised.

"I'll just ride ahead and keep in touch with these fellows," Gray called back.

He passed a laden pack-mule. Part of the load was silver, he guessed. The mule had got over its fright and was picking at the shrubbery.

"I need you along to keep me company."

left him lying in an open place on the trail.

A quarter of a mile farther down the canyon there ran into a steep rocky gulch narrow as a Titan's sword-cleft. Far up this Gray could see two men and a horse. He turned up the gulch after them. In the rainy season water poured down this rocky bed, but vegetation had small chance in such terrain. Whatever soil there might once have been had long since washed down into the gorge below.

The horse took the narrow bed of the trough like a cat, its muscles standing out hard as steel while it reached from one foothold to another. A bullet ricocheted from a flat rock above Gray and plowed into the rubble close to the front hoofs of the gelding. The sound of ing echoes. One of the men near the top of the gulch had fired at

"Nice to meet up with you again, Missy," he said.

"Who are you?" she asked, dread in her heart.

But she knew who he was. She had seen him at Tail Holt just before and after her father had been wounded. His name was Morgan Norris, and he was the man Jeff Gray suspected of firing the shot. "Never mind the name. Just call me one of yore admirers. First off, we want horses. While Kansas is catching and saddling I'll help you get some food together. We're in some hurry, and we'll take it with us.

"What's happened?" the girl asked, her eyes on the bloodstained handkerchief tied agound his left arm below the elbow.

Norris ripped out a violent ob-scene oath. "Keep yore trap shut, girl, and do like I say," he ordered. "You've been hurt - wounded,"

In reviewing the chemistry of this vast industry before the Rochester chapter of American Chemical society, Dr. Charles F. H. Allen, of the Eastman laboratories, remarked that the jar in which some of these beautifiers come may be worth more than their contents. Six cents for the container, 2 cents for the contents, 2 cents for profit is Dr. Allen's analysis of a 10 cent sale.

This helps to explain why one college professor gave up teaching for cosmetics, with the remark: "It's easier and more profitable to decorate the outside of girls' heads than the inside."

In Dr. Allen's opinion the cheapest modern perfume is better than the His glance swept swiftly the coun- kind for which the ancient and me-

The eyes of the killer glittered. He said softly, a silken threat in his voice, "Saddle two more horses.'

Kansas felt a chill run down his back. "Good God, Morg-"

"Make tracks, fellow," Norris interrupted, his stabbing gaze fixed on the other.

Kansas backed out of the room. 'All right, Morg. All right. Just as you say. I sure ain't lookin' for trouble with you."

Ruth said to Norris, keeping her voice steady with an effort, "You wouldn't do that to two girls."

Perfumes made from flowers have a base of essential oils. "Each oil may average as many as 25 components, some more important than others," says Dr. Allen. It is far harder to analyze a vitamin or hormone than one of these oils.

The chemist not only found out what constituents of oils are worth anything in a perfume but synthesized them. Most of the cheap good perfumes rely on these synthetic products for their scent.

Musk is the indispensable base of perfumes. And musk was synthesized long ago.

. . . As to Left-Handedness

I can remember sitting in class in my early school days and seeing a teacher come unexpectedly upon a youngster writing with his left hand. The youngster received a sharp blow with a ruler, pointer, or other object. In addition the teacher took pains to tell the youngster and the class in general that left-handedness was a physical defect just as was spinal curvature, round shoulders, knock knees and flat feet. In fact there might be something wrong with the brain itself.

From time to time during the past 15 or 20 years, research workers have shown that left-handed youngsters are at least as bright as other children, and have no more defects-epilepsy, bed-wetting-than normal children.

Some months ago Dr. Joseph J. Michaels (Boston Psychopathic hospital) and Dr. Sylvia E. Goodman (State Psychopathic hospital, Ann Arbor, Mich.) in the Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, recorded a study of 468 children of whom about 11 per cent were left handed. Their figures show that among these left-handed children there were no more cases of bed-wetting, temper tantrums, sleep disturbances, dreaming and failures in school than among those who were right handed. There was, however, a slight association of stammering, thumb-sucking and nail biting with the ones who were left handed.

The results of these investigations would show that while left-handed children are as bright as those who write with the right hand, they are, to a slight degree, more nervous because stammering, thumb-sucking and nail biting are definitely "nervous" symptoms.

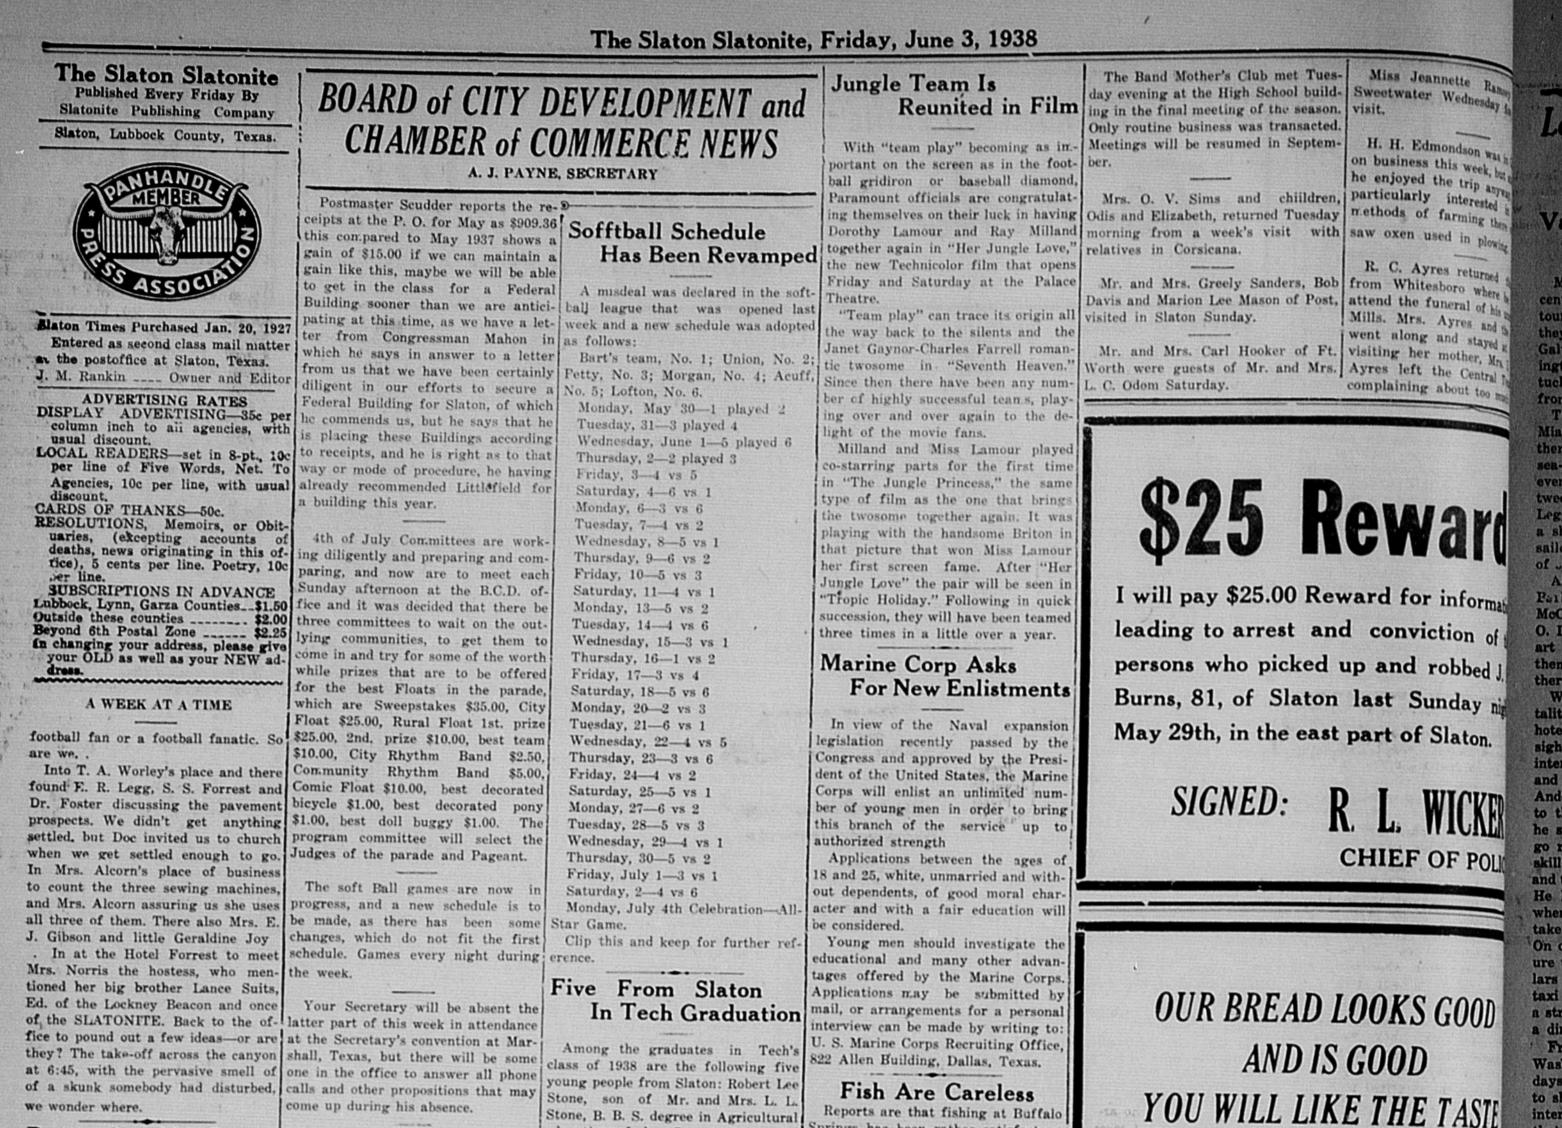

Largest City in Area

Zamboanga, a small town at the southern extremity of the Philippines archipelago, is now the largest city in the world in area. It achieved the distinction as the result of a charter giving it a total area of 1,059 square miles. Tokyo previously held the world record with an area of 833 square miles, followed by London (699 square miles, Los Angeles (442.5), Berlin (348), and New York (310). In point of population, however, Zamboanga is not near the largest city in the Philippines. It boasts only 101,048 inhabitants.

MODERN servicing based on the exclusive Ford Factory Reconditioned Engine and Parts Exchange Plan is one of the greatest advancements in truck economy in the last ten years ... And this service is exclusive with Ford.

First . . . Maintenance costs are lower. You can get a Ford Factory reconditioned engine installed in your truck at less than the cost of an ordinary engine overhaul.

Second ... Time is saved and with this plan you have the satisfaction of keeping your Ford V-8 truck in the "pink" of condition.

After many thousands of miles of hard, constant performance, any truck is entitled to some rejuvenation—operating parts are all subject to the wear of work but only Ford owners can get replacement or maintenance service at such low cost. Washington .- The strong stand taken by Joseph P. Kennedy as to what must be done about labor disputes in the merchant marine if the been completely scuttled through Perkins and the national labor relations board while Joe tells reporters he will wear long pants to the court receptions.

The senate commerce committee, which at first adopted the recommendations of Kennedy for compulsory mediation of labor disputes of water carriers, and a prohibition of strikes until after the mediation board had acted in such controversies, cut his stiff, mandatory provisions from the new shipping bill. The senate followed its committee. Though striking out the substance, the senate curiously enough re-tained the shadow. For in the "shadow" were some lucrative jobs, nice $10,000 commissioner type jobs of the lame duck variety. Copying the railroad mediation board, the proposed new board (of course the house may strike this out in conference) would have no real power at all. More astonishing, it is deliberately short circuited by a direct statement that the national labor relations board is not deprived of any of its functions!

only for mediation in case both par- success, even though it meant the ties to the water controversy favor it, and are not compulsory in any sense of the word. They are much more in line with the mild treatment of striking seamen and dock workers recommended by Secretary Perkins than with the views expressed by Joe Kennedy.

It was shortly before Kennedy left Washington to take his diplomatic post that he, as chairman of the maritime commission, and Miss Perkins as head of the Labor department locked horns before the senate commerce committee, of sachusetts in the Northeast, and Illinois, Iowa and the whole group of so-called Mormon states-Utah, Idaho, Nevada-in the mountain region. The Democratic end of the balance of power, of course, was the solid South.

The disease which has hit the Republicans of the Northeast, and most of the other one-time Republican states as well, is loss of leadership.

For years J. Henry Roraback was the dictator of Connecticut. He was the Republican boss, national committeeman, and what have you. No one thought of doing anything in the Republican party without consulting Henry. There were little centers of dissent, notably in New Haven, where the rebels even dared to select their own congressman. United States is ever to get one has But Roraback's ability began to slip, and, so great had been the fear of the influence of Secretary of Labor him, that despite this slipping, obvious to all who knew him, no one dared to take the initiative toward perfecting a new organization.

Made It Tougher

To make the problem tougher for aspiring Republicans, it so happened that even before Roraback's slipping had become apparent, Connecticut elected a Democratic governor who was a great personal friend of Roraback's. Roraback praised him publicly. So as that once great political mind weakened the Democrats were developing patronage as well as organization.

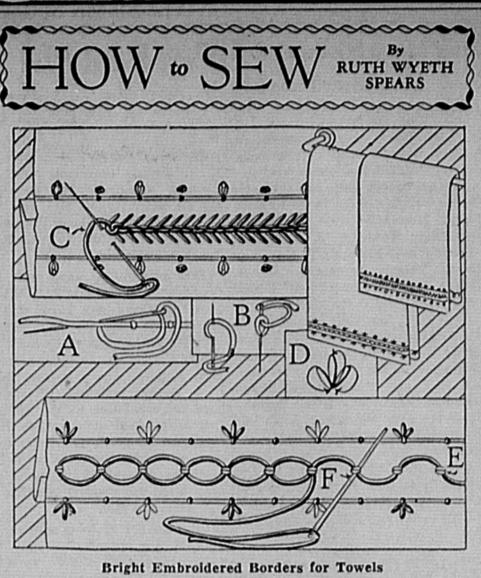

Finally Roraback died, but he did not leave a strong successor. There had been no regent during the period of disintegration. New wouldbe leaders, so to speak, started from scratch, with more interest in their personal advancement than in buildng up a strong organization.

At the present moment there are three distinct factions aspiring to state control of the G. O. P., and any number of little groups not allied with the Big Three. No one of the The substitute provisions provide Big Three would be pleased at the election of Republicans in place of Democrats, by any of the other forces.

Were They Surprised?

Utility officials and army officers alike were flabbergasted by reports of the President's conference with Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson and Power Commissioner Basil Manly as to a proposed new survey of the national power situation, from the standpoint of national defense.

The President said this matter which Senator Copeland, of New York, is chairman. West coast ship-ping was tied up very generally by strikes at the the strikes of the strikes at the strikes of the strik

Strange Facts Night Worker Wilts at 90°

WHY do expensive gardenias wilt and drop their blossoms when grown in greenhouses? The common garden varieties, grown out of doors in warm climates, keep their blossoms fresh until picked. In mid-winter when they bring the highest prices the sweet scented white blossoms often fall from their stems before they can be shipped from the greenhouses. Cornell university's department of horticulture has just solved the mystery for the florists. Most plants do not grow during the night. Gardenias are night work-

Curtis Keyes discovered gardenias work in two shifts. Like other workers they gather food in daylight hours, but when night falls the glamorous gardenia begins to grow. Daylight is the signal for the shift back to the foodmaking process, when the plant gathers sunshine, moisture and carbon dioxide to make starch. Night temperatures in greenhouses must be reduced to 58 or 60 degrees for the hard-working gardenia. The usual high temperatures of 80 and 90 degrees cause the blossoms to wilt and drop from the stem.

In America and Europe the book of complete directions for of gardenia is raised for its large The top border is royal blue and every article illustrated. Price 25 orange fruit. Got Something YouWant to Sell?

Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want.

These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about, getting of less and less value each year.

the various waterfront unions, because they are comparatively young, declared that the shipping industry was not "ripe" for com-pulsory arbitration, and contended that anything savoring of it would be more harmful than helpful. President Roosevelt, consulted by senators, refused to take sides.

Then the committee senators proceeded to exercise their own judgment. They sided with Kennedy. But after this decision something happened. John L. Lewis is not without resources when it comes to pulling political wires. Especially as everyone in Washington knows that he has it in his power simply by sulking after last week's Pennsylvania primaries to return anti-New Deal Senator James J. Davis to the senate, and throw the state government at Harrisburg, with 30,000 employees, over to the Republicans. The admirals who were so anxious to get a real auxiliary fleet for the navy in the event of war are frantic over what has been done to the bill. They frankly admit, in pri-vate, that the building of a merchant marine is impossible under the senate bill, or without something like the Kennedy recommendations. But there seems no prospect of Kennedy and the admirals having their way, despite the President's very definite desire to do everything possible to strengthen the navy, everything of course except to antag-onize the labor leaders.

Real G. O. P. Problem

Connecticut is one of the real problems for the Republican party, and of enormous interest because it is typical of a great many other states, some of which have more and some less electoral votes. It is a tower of strength to the New Deal, and a staunch bulwark against the on Capitol Hill are legion, were menace of the LaFollette move- afraid that perhaps Harold L. Ickes ment.

The disease from which the Connecticut Republicans are suffering is the same malady which affects the Republicans in New York, Penn-sylvania, New Jersey and Rhode Island. All four of these states were always regarded as just about sure Republican in a presidential election, despite the prognosticators' sil-New York was "pivotal" and doubt-

He said if anything should happen the District of Kennedy argued that the railroad Columbia could not borrow power mediation board, which functions from Baltimore or vice versa. In satisfactorily in the settlement of the city of New York, he said, there disputes involving rail carriers, is no physical connection between might widen its scope of jurisdiction one side of the Hudson and the

Of course the President was simply illustrating to the newspaper men the kind of information he wanted mapped out. Actually there is a power line between Baltimore Miss Perkins pleaded for main-tenance of the "status quo," argued that tolerance must be shown to some emergency.

Actually also New York city is protected against failure of its normal supply. There is a connection, made for that purpose, with the power lines of the Niagara and Hudson company. Incidentally the President was enormously interested, about two years ago, when some of the power companies cut their connections at certain state borders, notably the New York-Connecticut border, in the hope of escaping federal regulation and the death sentence of the public utility holding company act.

Here's Amazement

But this is not the amazing part of the story. What really surprised the army and the utility men was that there is a marvelously accurate survey of the whole situation right in the government's possession. It was made by the army engineers.

Unfortunately, this report is con-fidential. In fact, it is regarded by the army as a very important part of its war plans, and is kept on tap with other plans for industrial mobilization.

Why Assistant Secretary Johnson did not mention this to the com-mander in chief of the army, the President, when they were talking about this survey, and emphasizing its national defense aspects, is rather a mystery to some, but is explained, with political logic, by others.

The President, these others point out, is not in precisely a friendly mood toward the army engineers. He still remembers with some bitterness the strength which the army engineers developed as a lobbying force a few weeks ago on Capitol or somebody else in the administration might at some time persuade the President to take the engineer's functions away from them, and transfer them to PWA or elsewhere.

So the army lads went to work; and when they were through the senate reorganization committee actually wrote a provision into the ly chatter during campaigns, that bill, to the broad general effect that the functions of the army engineers were not to be tampered They were the backlog-especially with. Presents Students Miss Mary Harlan Jeannette Ramsey Music Classes End With Two Recitals

In a recital at the High School Auditorium Tuesday evening, Miss Frances Jeannette Ramsey presented Wayne Catching in a senior piano recital. A group of selections from the classics were the vehicle through which the performer demonstrated a technique not to be found where talent and training have not been of the superior type. Young Catching is one of three Slaton boys who recently received state-wide publicity because of their making up the entire class of Slaton's senior plano pupils. Milton Kessel and Dick Ragsdale served as ushers.

Last Friday evening at the High School Auditorium, Miss Ramsey presented in a Class Recital the following pupils: Joy Holloman, Martha Lou Loveless, Oleta Stewart, Billy Shelton, Leona Burton, Anne Evans, Billie Jean Jarman, Nina Ray Hickman, Bobby Smith, Dorothy Lee Jones, Phyllis McReynolds, Charlene Lee, Jean Bechtel, Glenna Williams, Elizabeth Stokes, Ruby Stewart, Dick Ragsdale, and Marion Bechtel.

Fagan Genn, Jr., returned last Saturday from Waxahachie where he "spent the winter with his grandparents attending school. He will be here this summer with his father, local lumberman.
