A WEEK AT A TIME

HIGH SUMMER

It has been a tough summer, stranger, tellin' you. Here a lot of poor guided wretches paid suns from bucks to two or three hundred of same to see a prize fight and it didn't nearly one round. Next there a million voters standing round tears in their eyes and poll tax tpts in their hands hoping to have a fun in a couple of primary ions for governor this summer the thing just barely lasted one d.

Well-a-day! One thing we can be sure of is that this result was not one of the best votes. We mean the majority voters voted for somebody they didn't vote for, and not just for man they disliked and mistrusted.

It is wise in a case like this, all of the McCraw men and Thompson men Hunter men and Crowley men other men—if any—can be philosophical as always and say we have had a governor as anybody.

WORLD WILL WAG

Used to make us pretty frazzling for the wrong man—as we thought—to be elected governor of Texas. But we have had our choice several times and we can't see improvement in the world in general nor Texas in particular because of those elections. So we are on the world will wag on. Of course we were surprised. And of course we knew there was a man named O'Daniel. But that didn't keep us from standing round joining in the head-shaking us. Head-shaking of weariness, wonder, of admiration and awe, of credulity, resignation, acceptance, amazement, yes, even astonishment.

WANT HAVE TO SHOW

Of course we believed that anybody would show some way to pay by dollars a month to everybody sixty-five would be elected, but didn't know Mr. O'Daniel had done something but say he was in favor of a thing. That's different from saying how it will be done. Maybe we can do it. Wonders will never cease. The impossible is daily being done.

We had heard Governor O'Daniel flour and that he was a capable strainer. But not having a very good radio, we have not to this day read one of the Hill Billy programs. We prided ourselves on being the guy that keeps up with public developments. 'S been a tough summer neighbor. And maybe the moral of all is, "Everybody ought to have a dio."

NUMBER ONE PROBLEM

The South is the nation's number one economic problem." So said President Roosevelt in his recent trip to the Southwest. But we believe we see far enough ahead to tell when sections will be the number one economic problem of the nation.

Not only are foreign markets being cut for cotton, but domestic markets well. The rayon business, which lists of making cloth of cordwood one of the real threats to cotton markets. What to do?

It seems doubtful that cotton can be raised cheaply enough to be put in rayon in competition with cord. Then if demand has been deved by the inevitable forces of economic change and scientific development, we must raise less cotton—more of something else.

UP AND WORRY

Our land is rich and productive. Our climate is adapted to varied production. We can raise feed in a vast quantity that will make the belt people sit up at night and cry. We can raise cattle and hogs people will come a long way to get for feeders—and we do. But we also feed these stock out at much (Continued on Page 4.)

Local Firm Leads In Radio Sales

Carter's Store Has Best Record in U. S.

Nunn Electric Company of Lubbock showed the best sales record for Zenith Radios in the United States last year, and Sherrod Bros. and Carter, of Slaton had the highest rating of all Nunn's distributors, according to report of Nick Carter, local manager.

The local firm is naturally tops in the United States after a record like that. The quota system is used for determining selling records. Sherrod Bros. & Carter sold, for the year just ended, 357 per cent of the quota assigned.

Runoff For Three In County Races

Short Ballot for Second Primary

Jos. R. Griggs, present County Superintendent, who will go into the second primary to try to hold the lead he had in the first and gain enough votes to stay in the office for the four-year term county superintendents enjoy. Claude L. Hale, late entry, got 3,040 votes. He will oppose Griggs in the August contest for the 1586 votes cast for Tarlton last Saturday.

Louie F. Moore received 2,822 votes for District Clerk. He will be interested in some more supporters in the second round which will be held next month.

And here is Royal Furgeson, second man in the Clerk race. His count was 2,108 votes. Doubtless he will soon be out to tell you how he'll like to have enough to put him ahead in the next primary.

T. W. Montgomery, of Lynn County, who ran second in the race for Representative. He goes into the second primary against Alvin R. Allison of Levelland. The count, Allison 10,479, Montgomery 3,598.

Miss Corene Foote, of Tulla, visited in the J. E. Eckert home several days the past week.

Floods Sweep Texas Plains Get Share

Continued Rains Threat to Crops

Destructive floods in southwest Texas have done much damage to Brady, San Saba, Menard, Eden and other towns in the hill country. Austin on the Colorado has had a threat, but nothing to compare with the long-time record of 1935, when the stage reached more than forty feet. The present prospect falls six to ten feet below that.

On the Plains there is no threat of overflows or floods to do any great damage, but heavy rains and continued cloudy weather make observers apprehensive concerning the cotton crop which is a dry weather plant. Reports begin to stir that insects are beginning to show up just below the caprock north of Spur in Dickens county where cotton had already attained a rank growth. Poisoning has begun in efforts to control worms in counties south of Lubbock.

Slaton rainfall this week has been gauged at slightly less than two inches.

Engineer Views Hospital Sites

Capt. C. H. Stratton, Engineer charged with the responsibility for making recommendation for a site for the projected Veteran's Hospital for Texas, was in Slaton Wednesday on business of that project. Congressman George H. Mahon of Colorado, was in the party, as were Hubert Allen and Glenn Hess of Lubbock.

The local committee on sites consists of W. E. Smart, K. L. Scudder, Webber Williams, Fagan Genn, and A. L. Payne. The committee reported that the engineer would not inspect any of the sites proposed north of town but seemed favorably impressed with the one south of Slaton that was visited.

LEADS FOR SHERIFF

Sheriff Tom Abel came out of the first primary with a lead of 1,179 votes over Chas. Middleton, who will go into the second primary to contest for the two thousand votes released from the other two candidates.

Slaton FFA Boys At State Meet

Local Representatives Attend at El Paso

Three delegates representing the Slaton Chapter of the Future Farmers of America, left Wednesday, July 20, for El Paso to attend the annual State Convention. The trip to El Paso was made through New Mexico, via Clovis, Roswell, Alamogordo and Las Cruces. The return trip was by Pecos, Odessa and Brownfield.

El Paso proved to be a very interesting city as well as Juarez, the city across the border. Thursday and Friday were given over largely to the activities of the Convention. On Thursday evening 106 FFA boys were awarded the State Lone Star Farmer degree. Friday the Convention heard reports from the ten areas of the state organization of accomplishments during the past year. Friday afternoon was devoted to committee work and on Saturday these committees made their reports and officers were elected to serve the State organization the coming year.

Attendance from over the State was good. A delegation from Orange, Texas came 900 miles for the gathering which was probably the greatest distance traveled by any group. Boys attending from Slaton with their advisor were: Floyd Reynolds, Rolfe Carter and R. C. Hall, Jr. Mrs. A. C. Strickland accompanied the party. They reported having had a very interesting and profitable trip.

Legion Convention On Screen Here

Friday night, July 29, at the American Legion Hall, there will be a free moving picture of the New York National Convention. All ex-service men, their families and friends, are invited. There will be three reels on the convention, along with an educational picture.

We are advised this is an exceptional picture on the National Convention.

MRS. CONWAY IS BURIED

Mrs. Conway died of injuries sustained in an automobile accident in New Mexico. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gumm, of Amarillo, and seven brothers and sisters.

Lesson for July 31

SAMSON: STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS

LESSON TEXT—Judges 14:5, 6; 15:11-14; 16:15-21. GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.—Ephesians 6:10. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Wasted His Strength. JUNIOR TOPIC—How Strong Was Samson? INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Who Is Strong? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Physical Strength and Moral Weakness.

There is no more tragic individual among the sons of men than the one who entered upon life with every promise of success, who has lived for a time in favor with God and with man, and then because of moral failure is set aside by God, shunned by man, and ends life as a disappointment and a failure. "And yet such disastrous climaxes of what should have been great and victorious careers lie all about us, and nowhere with such frequency and inexcusableness as among those whom God has called to preach, evangelize, and teach His Word. The saddest tragedy in all the world is a man who once knew the power of the Holy Spirit and who now walks the streets of some great city or is buried in the cottage of an unknown countryside, without power, without work, without joy, without the leading of the Lord. He knows a weariness that labor never gives, for he awakens every morning more tired and weary than when he went to sleep the night before" (Wilbur M. Smith).

The life story of Samson brings us the picture of God's patient and gracious dealing with such a failure, reveals the inexorable law of cause and effect in the moral realm as well as the certainty that the wages of sin not repented of and forsaken is death.

I. Physical Strength and Favor With God (15:5, 6).

Samson had the distinction (given to only one other Old Testament character) of having his birth announced beforehand. He was to be a Nazirite and was to "begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistine"—a commission which sin kept him from ever finishing. God gave him the marvelous heritage of a strong and healthy body as well as His own blessing upon him for carrying out the Lord's work. The fact that he is named among the heroes of faith in Hebrews indicates that he did have faith in God. Yet his life was a failure.

Samson would have been a great favorite in this athletic age. Let those who worship the body and glorify physical prowess take note that such strength is not sufficient to guarantee success in life, and may indeed be a source of temptation which may lead to spiritual and moral downfall. Those who live for the flesh "shall of the flesh reap corruption" (Gal. 6:8).

II. Moral Weakness and Spiritual Decay (15:11-14).

The portion of the lesson selected for our consideration from Judges 15 gives only an act of prowess on the part of Samson, but the reader will recognize it as one of the many deeds of Samson done as an expression of his uncontrolled sensual nature. Read the entire chapter and it will be evident that here is a man who, while occasionally responding to God's leading, is on the downward path of moral and spiritual decadence.

Scripture is absolutely honest in relating the facts as they are—and here it is not at all an attractive picture. It never is, although the world tries to make it appear to be. A learned audience of university people laughed with evident appreciation at the statement of a professor that "vice is always more interesting than virtue," little realizing that they thus bore testimony to their own attitude toward sin. If the liquor advertisements were honest enough to picture the agony of a drunkard dying of delirium tremens they would present the real truth, but they would sell no "booze."

III. Failure, Darkness, and Death (16:15-21).

Delilah finally betrayed the foolish Samson who apparently had become so sure of himself that he dared to venture anything. The man who was to be strong for God is now in prison, shorn of his strength, blinded by his enemies, and finally he kills himself even as he slays his enemies (16:23-31). Thus he threw away the life that had become to him but a burden and a disgrace. "Thus he who began never completed his work. The column was broken in the middle. The story ends with a comma and a dash, blistered over by a tear. For the light is turned into darkness, and how great is the darkness" (J. M. Lang).

Now Power Can Defeat God. Be not afraid of sudden fear, neither of the desolation of the wicked, when it cometh. For the Lord shall be thy confidence, and shall keep thy foot from being taken.—Prov. 3:25, 26.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field

WASHINGTON.—There are likely to be some more surprises as developments mature in the "purge" of Democratic senators and representatives who are not 100 per cent supporters of the New Deal legislative program. Indiana furnished the first really big one, after Iowa had furnished the first upset, but there is just no telling what some of the consequences are going to be.

For example, the old Alexandria district in Virginia, represented by Howard Worth Smith, who has voted rather independently, sympathizing with the economic and political views of Senator Carter Glass and Senator Harry Flood Byrd of his state, rather than with those of President Roosevelt. Moreover, Smith is a banker, and hence all right branded as "reactionary" in New Deal eyes.

So the "Secret Six" picked young William E. Dodd Jr., son of the man Roosevelt appointed ambassador to Germany, as a likely challenger to carry the New Deal banner from Alexandria down to Fauquier, and around and about in the district.

But the surprise of this particular fight came when the Young Democratic clubs of the congressional district had a meeting in Alexandria. No trouble was anticipated. Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general, and regarded as the only really politically minded person in the Brain Trust, was to be the orator of the occasion.

Some of the young enthusiasts in the clubs did not bother to be tactful. In the first place they ignored Mr. Dodd, who was waiting around in case he should be called on for a speech. Then some of them figured they did not want Keenan praising Dodd or hitting Smith at their meeting, so they just met him, as he was en route to the meeting, and told him he needn't come 'round. He went back to Washington, but it was hardly a nice way to treat him, to say the least, for he had already written a speech!

They Liked Byrd

Senator Byrd, who is just as objectionable, if not more so, to the New Deal than Representative Smith, appeared during the session and was asked by reporters if he were going to speak. He said not, that he had merely come to award a prize. This was to a lady who had gotten more members for the Young Democratic clubs than anyone else.

But with Keenan "mysteriously" missing, there was a space on the program, so Senator Byrd wound up by talking. Apparently he did not know that Keenan's invitation to speak had been cancelled, unofficially, at the eleventh hour, but he spoke on "tolerance" in the primary campaign, and the need for "harmony." The Young Democrats seemed to enjoy it. In fact some of them said afterwards that it was one of the best speeches Senator Byrd ever made.

Fortunately for "harmony" in the rest of Virginia, Senator Byrd is not up for re-election this year.

But there is no "harmony" where Smith and Dodd are concerned. The congressman refused to sit on the same platform with his adversary at a recent meeting in Manassas, and referred to him as an "upstart."

Which rather surprised diplomatic Washington. The frock-coated gentry had not thought any one would call the son of an ambassador, and a very well-to-do ambassador at that, an "upstart."

But the Old Dominion has its own rules about that sort of thing. At any rate after the Young Democrats had concluded with diplomacy, they made plans for a steamboat excursion on the Potomac!

New Dealers Worry

Underneath the surface there is a great deal of apprehension among New Dealers about the question of providing a refuge for German and Austrian refugees. Nearly everybody advising the White House, as well as those waiting to see, will admit privately that the whole question is dynamite. Anybody touching it is likely to get hurt, no matter which way he moves, and no one can see any political profit in it, on either side.

To start off with, there is the whole immigration policy. The country has been rather strongly committed to holding immigration down to as close a minimum as possible. Naturally there are some people interested, and important because of their close touch with the situation, especially in its earlier stages, who had an idea of keeping up the American standards, so to speak. They wanted to let in the best, and have America absorb only the cream of the offerings.

Another important segment of the majority of all the people which undoubtedly favored immigration restriction had an entirely different viewpoint, though not differing necessarily with the first group named. This second group wanted a period of time, before any further immigration, during which the foreign-born and second generation as well could really be assimilated, and turned into real Americans. They wanted the melting pot to have a chance to work before there was any further foreign dilution.

But politically the group favoring immigration restriction that was the most important was organized labor. Its object was purely selfish, of course.

Our Latin Neighbors

Most of our Latin neighbors have taken a position which seems to preclude their figuring in any big asylum project. Their attitude is that they will welcome immigrants with capital, on the theory that they would help develop the South and Central American countries, and would not threaten to become a drain on the treasuries of the countries offering asylum through failure to earn a livelihood.

As in most international conferences, the function that involves risk of financial loss and has no chance of financial profit is always cheerfully assigned by the other nations to Uncle Sam. This case is no exception.

On the other side, however, literally hundreds of thousands of those politically oppressed who are seeking to get out of Germany and Austria—with every indication that Italy is about to be added to the list—have relatives in the United States who would be willing to do a great deal to help them.

Long before the oppression became so severe under Hitler, in fact ever since the present immigration laws were put into effect, the pressure on the state department, and the labor department, which handles immigration, has been terrific by very important and frequently very wealthy persons in this country who were willing to spend a good deal of money to get their European relatives into the United States.

Will Press for Reform

Confident that the country as a whole must now be convinced of what he has always known—that his program is not wrecking either the capitalistic system or the economic soundness of the country, President Roosevelt will press on for reform. The "proof" that his policies are not hurting the expectation of profits—the heart of the capitalistic system—is seen by the President in the recent sharp advance in stock prices on the New York exchange. Surely, he reasons, people would not be bidding up the prices of stocks in the big corporations if they were sure the Roosevelt policies were going to prevent those corporations making any profits!

Not that the President is satisfied with his present achievements. Proud of them—yes. Content with them—no. Only by a very large measure of additional reform, he believes, can real prosperity be attained. More particularly, only by more reform can prosperity, as his distinguished predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt, said in his campaign speeches of 1912, be "passed around."

Uplifting the downtrodden in the South is, Roosevelt insists, No. 1 on the agenda. Raising of the pay of WPA workers in the South was the first step. Softening of any intended wage differentials under the new wages and hours regulation law is the second. New chapters will follow soon in a movement on a broad front to bring the whole wage scale of the South up to northern standards.

Roosevelt particularly abhors the movement of plants in order to exploit labor, and has the South in mind as one of the worst examples of this type of keeping down so large a percentage of the people in his famous one-third who are undernourished, underclothed and poorly housed.

End Discriminations

In this determination to lift up the South the President is particularly interested in ending discriminations, especially economic discriminations, against the Negro. Well-paid Negro labor is just as essential a part of the market for automobiles, refrigerators and other industrial products, he believes, as any other type of consumer. To just the extent that Negroes are held to the underprivileged class, to just that extent will the common prosperity of the entire country be held back.

The President is determined, for this continuance of his reform program, to have a "liberal" congress. Professions of not being informed as to certain state situations involving senators and representatives who are regarded by the Cohen-Corcoran group as reactionary will deceive no one concerned. The President is tremendously interested and remarkably well informed as to every one of these situations.

In New York the President will be forced to accept Governor Herbert H. Lehman for senator. There it is a question of recognizing that half a loaf is better than no bread. The President found out there was not a chance to defeat Lehman in the Democratic convention, there being no primaries for United States senators or governor in New York.

But for outright "Tories," such as Millard E. Tydings, in Maryland, and Walter George, in Georgia, there will be no compromises, especially as the President knows there is no chance of a Republican senator from Georgia, and does not think there is much risk of a Republican senator from Maryland. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

"CAN'T BEAT IT FOR VALUE!"

Says O. H. Deans about the big, 2-ounce red tin of this popular "makin's" tobacco

THE Deans brothers (O. H., left, and Bruce, right) interrupt Bill Tew (center—selling a plow) long enough to get in some praise for their "makin's" tobacco. Says "O. H.": "You sure get full value with Prince Albert." "Suits me just fine," adds Bruce. Prince Albert twirls up in a jiffy into swell cigarettes. They burn slower, cooler—and you get around 70 of 'em from every 2-ounce tin. Just open a tin—smell Prince Albert's fragrant aroma—you'll know why P. A. gives tastier, mellower, milder, "makin's" smokes.

O. H. DEANS (he's the one on the left) says: "There's a heap of smooth rich taste and good body to a P. A. 'makin's' smoke—and no harshness! For 'makin's' tobacco, that extra-mild Prince Albert just can't be beat." (Nothing like mild, mellow P. A. for pipes, either!)

Infantile Paralysis Prevalent In Summer

AUSTIN.—"Infantile paralysis can be expected to occur more frequently during the next three or four months," predicts Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. "This disease is always more frequent during the hot months.

"The germ responsible for infantile paralysis is so small that it escapes detection even with the most powerful microscopes. The first symptoms are usually vomiting, headache, fever, stiffness of the neck, pain in the legs, irritability and drowsiness. Complete recovery may follow such an illness.
In the more severe cases, the germ penetrates the nervous system, resulting in paralysis of nerves controlling one or more groups of muscles. Some remarkable recoveries have been noted.

"Flies or other insects have not been demonstrated to play a part in the spread of this disease. Infection spreads from person to person with the droplets transmitted by coughing or sneezing. Children and grown people that are healthy may be carriers of the germs. When present in epidemic form, about one child in each hundred is apt to suffer an attack.

"Early recognition and diagnosis are essential. The use of immune serum may be a factor in preventing paralysis. A period of complete rest is essential for muscles that are affected.
If parents note any symptoms of illness in their children, the family doctor should be consulted at once.

BOARD of CITY DEVELOPMENT and CHAMBER of COMMERCE NEWS

A. J. PAYNE, SECRETARY

July 29, 1938.

Regular meeting of the Directors of the B. C. D. & Chamber of Commerce met last Tuesday night with a large majority of the members present.

On invitation from Director C. F. Anderson to the Slaton School Trustees, they were present for the purpose of talking over the prospects of building a gymnasium. President E. R. Legg of the Trustees brought up the condition of the Junior High School building in which same was found to be badly in need of repair. It was decided that an invitation be extended to the tax payers of the Slaton Ind. School Dist., to make a visit to said building, and see what is needed and then, if proper, to ask for a grant from the Governor to make the needed repairs, and build a gymnasium and, if necessary, to vote a bond issue to finance the construction of the buildings.

A highway committee from Big Springs met with our Highway Committee at the B. C. D. office Wednesday afternoon to talk over a highway that is proposed from Big Lake, through Big Springs, Gail and on to either Post or Slaton.

If there are any outstanding bills that are due from the 4th of July celebration, you will please present them to A. J. Payne, Treas., between now and Aug. 1st, for payment.

E. R. Legg, farmer and gin man, brought to this office a bunch of over 15 of the prettiest Millet heads that we have ever seen, grown on his farm east of town. He has 50 acres of this in cultivation.

W. A. Appling returned to Abilene Monday where he is employed with Thornton's Shoe Store of that city.

Senator Nelson Thanks Friends

To the people of West Texas as a whole, and more particularly to those of the 30th Senatorial District, I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the confidence they expressed in me when they went to the polls Saturday.

I had rather to have been defeated for Lieutenant-Governor, and to have received the over-whelming support of those about home who knew me best, than to have won the race and had those about me say by their vote I was unfit for the job I sought.

I am not discouraged nor down-hearted. I feel that for one from the western Plains with a new name in state politics to have polled near 200,000 votes from all sections of Texas is a creditable showing. It is an indication that this section of the State will be recognized by other sections of Texas through the election to high places in our State government before many more years shall have elapsed.

To those in my district who are interested in the education of the youth, both in our towns and in the rural areas; to those who are interested in Texas Technological College, one of the greatest institutions in Texas today; to the aged, the blind and the dependent of this area; to those who are interested in the development of our natural resources and the general expansion and betterment of this area, including farming and ranching, I want all of you to know that I am continuing my study of these problems to the end that I may be of greater service as your State Senator.

It shall be my purpose to work in harmony with the Governor, the next Lieutenant-Governor, the Railroad Commission, the Department of Agriculture, and other agencies of our State government to the end that West Texas may receive her fair share of the fruits of Government.

G. H. NELSON.

More Than Forty Democratic Congressmen Marked For Opposition by His Political Agency

Vincent Meyer, farmer of Johnson county, Kansas, received the first crop insurance policy issued by the Federal Crop Insurance corporation. SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

C.I.O. Proposes a Purge

MORE than 40 members of congress are marked for C. I. O. opposition in the fall elections by a blacklist formulated by John L. Lewis and given out by E. L. Oliver, executive vice president of Labor's Non-Partisan league, the political agency of the Committee for Industrial Organization. Oliver said the opposition to those named was based chiefly on their stand on the wage-hour bill. He indicated it merely was a coincidence that almost without exception those marked for defeat also fought Mr. Roosevelt's government reorganization and Supreme court packing bills.

John L. Lewis

Ten of the fourteen members of the house rules committee, which blocked consideration of the wage-hour measure for many months, were named on the blacklist. Chairman John J. O'Connor was not included but Oliver said he was not in favor with the league.

Among the Democratic rules committee members marked for opposition were Rep. E. E. Cox of Georgia, opponent of administration policies in the house; Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, against whom James Roosevelt and Thomas G. (Tommy the Cork) Corcoran have put up a young radical, William E. Dodd Jr.; and Rep. Lawrence Lewis of Colorado, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

The other Democratic members marked for the purge were Representatives William J. Driver of Arkansas; J. Bayard Clark of North Carolina and Martin Dies of Texas. All four Republican committee members were on the blacklist. They are Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts; Carl E. Mapes of Michigan; J. Will Taylor of Tennessee; and Donald H. McLean of New Jersey.

Included in the Lewis blacklist are Senators Tydings of Maryland, Adams of Colorado and Lonergan of Connecticut.

Among the Democratic representatives marked for opposition are Hatton W. Summers of Texas, A. P. Lamneck of Ohio, Leo Kocalkowski of Illinois, R. L. Doughton of North Carolina, H. B. Steagall of Alabama, C. F. Lea of California, Fred Cummings of Colorado, C. I. White of Idaho, R. L. De Rouen of Louisiana, John Rankin and Will Whittington of Mississippi, H. B. Coffey of Nebraska, Sam McReynolds of Tennessee, J. I. Mansfield, Fritz Lanahan and M. H. West of Texas, S. O. Bland of Virginia and Joe Smith of West Virginia.

'Sneak' Flight Over Ocean

DOUGLAS P. CORRIGAN, a young airplane motor expert from California, couldn't get permission from the air commerce bureau to fly across the Atlantic, so he started off secretly from Floyd Bennett field, New York, and landed at Baldonnel, Ireland, 28 hours and 13 minutes later.

The remarkable feature of the flight was that it was made in a rickety old single-motored Curtiss Robin plane that was not equipped with navigation instruments, radio or the ordinary safety devices. Corrigan did not even carry a parachute.

Having neither flight permit, landing papers nor passport, Corrigan laughingly declared in Dublin that he had intended to fly back to California but set his magnetic compass wrong and flew in the opposite direction. His was the sixth west-east solo flight across the Atlantic. In the opposite direction only Mollison and Beryl Markham have been successful.

Veteran flyers said Corrigan's feat was accomplished against odds of 100 to 1. He himself told the people in Dublin "it was just dumb luck that I got here."

American Minister John Cudahy took care of the aviator at the legation. It was decided that the adventurer should return to this side by boat.

British Monarchs in Paris

KING GEORGE VI and Queen Elizabeth of England went to Paris for a state visit of four days, and this was regarded as a vitally important event politically. Apparently it was undertaken to let the dictator countries know that Great Britain and France would continue to stand firmly as allies.

Britain's foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax; the French premier, Edouard Daladier, and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet held political talks to discuss the world situation during the visit.

Every precaution to insure the safety of the visiting monarchs was taken by the French, fully 100,000 police, reserve officers and soldiers being mobilized to look after them.

H. R. TOLLEY, AAA administrator, announced a national wheat allotment for fall and spring planting of not more than 55,000,000 acres — the minimum allowable under the act.

The action, which came as the result of the 967,000,000-bushel yield forecast for this year on a seeded acreage of 80,000,000, came in the form of an order signed by M. L. Wilson, acting secretary of agriculture.

Details to cover the state allotments on this 30 per cent reduction basis are expected to result in protests in winter wheat areas where the seeding will get under way this fall, despite the minimum loan of 59 to 60 cents a bushel announced by the AAA in hope that a sizable part of the 1938 crop will be kept on the farms.

"The acreage allotment provided for in the agricultural adjustment act of 1938 puts into effect one more phase of the general AAA wheat program," Tolley said. "Both this acreage allotment and the wheat loan are a part of the ever-normal granary program. Loans in years of surplus help farmers hold over their surplus for years of shortage. Acreage allotments keep the surplus within bounds and help maintain prices and income of farmers."

"This acreage allotment contemplates maintaining adequate supplies in this country for domestic consumption, for our usual share of the world export trade, and for adequate reserves equal to 30 per cent of a normal year's domestic consumption and exports."

The order placed the total available supply for the current marketing year at 1,147,000,000 bushels, and the "normal supply" level, as provided for in the farm act, at 866,000,000.

Men of the Mounted

REDCOATS GUARDED
TRAIL OF '98

VOLUMES have been written on what happened here and there during the Klondyke gold stampede, but very little has been said about the handful of Men of the Mounted who brought law and order and decency to many an outlaw camp. The first steps along the historically famous "Trail of '98" were taken two years before, in 1896, when Carmack's discovery just about electrified the whole world, and when thousands of men, and a few hundred women began converging upon the Yukon from all corners of the earth. Eighteen months after the Carmack discovery the population of Skagway had been increased by more than 30,000 newcomers, gold-seekers taking a breathing spell there before heading north into the Yukon goldfields.

The majority of the newcomers were Americans, and whatever they might have been before they hit Skagway, they cast off all desire for law and order. The decent law-abiding element, being in the minority, laid low, outfitted their two or four-man expeditions, and mused silently away toward the Yukon, while the outlaw element hung around Skagway, living on their wits.

From Skagway, the rallying point, the stampede, tugging and carrying their outfits, headed for Lake Bennett where they built their boats and pushed off to the north and into the Lewes river that flowed north through the rugged but rich Yukon goldfields. That is, they pushed north provided the two or three Men of the Mounted stationed on the sixtieth line of latitude were satisfied that the stampede were properly outfitted, had sufficient food, and were not criminals or outlaws or bad characters. During the early days of the rush, the American stampedees kicked up quite a row because they were asked to pay customs and duties at Line 60 and they demanded to know what the Mounted were doing there, on American territory. Although the one hundred and forty-first parallel had not yet been decided upon as the dividing line between American Alaska, and British Canada, the Yukon territory, nevertheless, had been under the British or Canadian flag and government for some time. Most of the stampedees really thought they were heading for their own American Alaska, and it was quite a startling discovery for them to find the Northwest Mounted Police on guard on what the stampedees thought was American territory.

When the vanguard of the '98 hegira were stopped by the Redcoats, there was, of course, considerable argument, a bit of nose punching, and a few shots exchanged. As the crowd grew larger, indignation meetings were inaugurated at which it was voted that the only way out was to tie the Northwest Mounted Police into a bundle and throw it into the lake or some roaring river. One group of foreign-speaking Americans (?) staged a bloody riot, then voted to gather the redcoats, place them aboard a barge or raft, and anchor said barge or raft in the middle of the lake. One Yank climbed to the top of his outfit and called for a thousand men to help him wipe the Mounted off the face of the earth forever. But, he shouted in vain, for in that mob were scoundrels and cutthroats and criminals who, while they did as they pleased in Skagway, were now willing to impress the Redcoats that they were decent, law-abiding miners eminently qualified to take their places beside law-abiding Canadians. Reason was again enthroned as these wily lawbreakers did everything possible to appear to the best advantage to the half dozen men of the Northwest Mounted Police who, during all the rumpus and riot, had stuck to their post on the sixtieth line just a few yards away, watching and listening, and realizing, no doubt, that the several thousand stampedees could soon eliminate half a dozen redcoats if they ever set out to do it.

But, they never set out to do it. Those who came to destroy remained to childishly beg the Men of the Mounted to pass them through into the gold-filled Yukon territory. The human jackals and rascals that had terrorized Skagway, now turned into soft-spoken, well-mannered, sensible and very obedient children as they stood by to be examined by the Mounted. Thus it happens that thousands of bad characters who claim that they were in the Klondyke gold rush really never took one step past the half dozen redcoats that held the Chilcoot and White passes. Half a dozen against thousands. Truly the Redcoats were the Daniels in the lions' den in the Klondyke gold rush of 1898.

Long Run for Fire Department

One of the longest "runs" of fire apparatus on record occurred in February, 1904, when the New York fire department rushed nine engine companies and one hook-and-ladder company, on flatcars, to the great fire in Baltimore, a distance of 180 miles.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

IT WAS a great day on an upstate New York farm more than a half century ago. The biggest pumpkins, the finest apples and the sleekest live stock were being loaded to take to the Fair. Grandmother announced that she was taking her silk crazy patchwork quilt. The family disapproved. The quilt glowed with the richest taffetas and satins of "best" dresses of those they knew and loved. The whole neighborhood marveled over the variety of embroidery stitches and the artistry of the needlework. Yet, they all agreed it was not the sort of thing to take.

All that winter the red ribbons and blue ribbons, won by prize pumpkins and apples and farm animals adorned the mantel shelf. But Grandmother, placidly stitching away in her rocking chair, had tucked away in the pocket of her voluminous skirt, the only cash prize that ever brought home from the Fair. The crazy patch quilt is still a thing of beauty and a center of interest. It is perfectly at home in a modern living room today. Here herewith tells you how to make this kind of quilt and gives you tailed instructions for dozens of stitches and combinations of stitches to be used for embroidering crazy patchwork.

NOTE: If you wish to use the weekly articles for reference, paste them in a scrapbook. They are not included in the Sewing Book No. 1 or 2. CHAPTER XII—Continued

Lou Howard lay on a bunk staring at the ceiling. Buck Conrad, his guard, had turned in for the night. He was sullen and despondent. Why was his father not doing something to get him out of this trouble? He knew Sherm had sent a messenger to Chiswick threatening reprisals if any harm happened to his son. But why didn't he do something instead of just talk?

The prisoner could not get to sleep. He was worried. The best he could hope for was a term in the penitentiary, unless his father could work out some slick scheme for getting him off. The only escape from this was to turn state's evidence. If he did this, his name would be a hissing by-word. He would have to get out of the country.

A faint tapping on the window reached him. He sat up, as well as he could for his bonds, his stomach muscles tightening. A pricking of the skin ran over him.

A voice murmured, "That you, Lou?"

"Yes. Who is it?" he whispered. The saw ripped through a resinous knot, died down for a moment, and attacked another.

"Morg Norris. Listen. Where does this Gray sleep?"

"He's gone to town. Get me out of here, Morg—please."

A second voice asked hoarsely, "Only one fellow in the dog-house with you?"

"Yes. Buck Conrad. All right. I'll tell him."

Conrad awakened at the sound of young Howard's urgent voice.

"What's eatin' you?" he asked sleepily.

"Someone has been calling you. Sounds like Chiswick."

Buck sat up and listened. Someone outside shouted his name. He went to the door, not waiting to light a lamp, and threw it open.

"Who wants me?" he asked.

They were his last words. Two guns roared. The cowpuncher caught at the jamb, and slid down, his knees buckling under him. Morg Norris ran forward and flung another bullet into the prone body. The face of the outlaw was distorted with rage. He had nothing personal against Buck, but the fury of the kill was on him. He spat out a venomous epithet.

"Get out your knife and cut me free," implored Howard.

The second man came into the room. With a jackknife he severed the rope that bound the prisoner. Lou Howard was surprised to note that the sinister face bent over him was unfamiliar.

"Hurry!" urged the young man. "They'll hear the shots and be on us in a minute. We got to get out sudden."

"Let 'em come," boasted Norris, with an imprecation. "We're ready to swap lead with them."

"Anyone else with you?" Lou asked, rising from the bunk.

"No more. We came to get Gray. Lucky for him he's not here. Don't need an army, do we?" The killer wanted to know. He added, cruel laughter in his voice: "Wish it had been the spy Gray we had croaked instead of this dumbskull here."

The three men passed swiftly out of the cabin. Already they could hear voices and the sound of men running. It was time to be gone. Someone came out on the porch of the big house and wanted to know who was there.

Norris was in the saddle. He galloped up to the porch and fired at the man standing there. Out of the foreman's cottage came Dan Brand, sketchily dressed. He blazed away at the young outlaw with a rifle. The bandit wheeled his horse and cantered back to his companions.

"Hit the grit, boys," he ordered. "Gonna be hot here if we stick around."

The stranger gave Lou a foot for a rest and Howard swung to his saddle behind him. As the horses pounded down the road, the roar of guns followed them. Howard looked back anxiously, his heart thumping with fear. Framed in a window, he saw the face of Ruth Chiswick.

The fugitives headed for Tail Holt. They kept to the road. Pursuit would probably be useless, since the outlaws could turn into the brush whenever they heard the sound of riders back of them.

The lights were still blazing in the Golden Nugget when they drew up at the hitchrack. Norris walked into the gambling-house, the other two at his heels.

Mile High and some others were at the bar drinking. A man who started to lift his glass put it down instantly.

"Morg Norris!" he exclaimed.

The card game was suspended. The wheel ceased to turn. All eyes turned upon the three who had just entered the place.

"Don't get on the prod, boys," warned Norris. "I'm here peaceable. Listen to what I've got to spill before you start foggin.' I been out to the L C ranch for a l'il call on Lee Chiswick. I bumped off one of his warriors and brought back with me Lou Howard. I got to apologize for not getting that spy Gray. He wasn't there."

"Didn't I have something to do with all this?" sneered Clint Duke.

"Sure. You went along with me. But I thought of it. I ran the show." The killer swaggered to the bar.

Mile High said, not lifting his eyes from Norris: "You got quite some explaining to do, fellow. Kansas?"

"He was aimin' to give me up to Chiswick's warriors. I had to get him before he got me. Same with Curly. He was firing at me when I wounded him. I could of killed him, but I didn't."

"And I reckon you ran away with the young lady for a joke."

"No, sir. I made a mistake there, but I was taking her back home when Gray's posse bumped into me. She'll tell you I didn't hurt her any. Send for Sherm. We'll have a powwow and fix things up."

"You run hog-wild, then come back and say, 'Forget it, boys.' I got a better memory than that," Mile High flung back.

Morg slid an ugly look at him. But he spoke with unusual restraint. This was not the time to indulge a bad temper.

"I went out to the L C with Duke here and rescued Lou, didn't I,

"Where's he at?" asked Norris.

while you lads were talking about what a heluva hole he was in?"

"That's what he did," young Howard said. "Someone go get Father. We got trouble enough on our hands without fussing among ourselves. Shove that bottle this way, Pete."

The tension relaxed. A Mexican boy was sent to bring Sherm Howard. To an admiring but not altogether friendly audience Norris narrated his adventures. They lasted nothing in the telling.

Howard, senior, arrived ten minutes later. With him came a leather-faced man known as Yorky. The fat man looked at his son, then at Norris, no expression in his wooden face.

"So you're back," he said to the latter.

"Y'betcha! All set for the fattest calf, Sherm."

Howard ignored the attempted blitheness. "I'll listen to you, Morg," he said.

The killer swept a hand in the direction of the rescued man. "Lou, he'll do my talkin' for me," he boasted. "While you were sleeping comfortable, me and Clint risked our hides to get yore boy for you. We had to bump off an L C rider and fight a battle with Chiswick's gang, but we brought Lou back with us."

"Fine. We would have had Lou, anyhow, in a day or two." The fathomless eyes of Howard rested in those of Norris. "Did you bring Kansas back with you too?"

Norris began to bristle. "Kansas was a double-crossing son-of-a-gun."

"You told me the other day a posse killed him. That right?"

The killer hesitated. There was no use holding to that story, since everybody knew that Ruth Chiswick had refuted it. "A fellow has to go through," he said sulkily. "Kansas was fixing to throw me down. It was him or me. I had to beat him to it."

Pete, the bartender, threw in a low-voiced suggestion. "That's right, Sherm. The young lady says Kansas told her he meant to line up with her dad."

"Like to have a little talk with Lou," that young man's father said.

"Afterward I want to see you and Mile High, Morg."

Lou followed Sherm into the little room Curt Dubbs used as an office. The big man closed the door. He sat down ponderously in a chair.

"What you want to see me about?" his son asked nervously.

The older man spread plump white hands. His expressionless eyes were fixed on the other.

"Come clean, Lou," he ordered. "What does this Gray know? What did you tell him?"

Tiny beads of perspiration began to stand out on the forehead of the younger man. "You didn't do a thing for me," he protested, with the violence of weakness. "Left me there to be hanged. If they hadn't got Ruth home safe, that's what would have happened to me, too. You look after your own hide mighty well, but you don't want me to do the same."

"I was doing all I could for you, but never mind that. I've got to know where we stand. What did you tell Gray and Chiswick?"

"What I told under fear of death doesn't count," Lou evaded. "Maybe I said more'n I should. So would you have. So would anyone."

"I'm listening."

Lou told what he had confessed, bit by bit, his father sweating the story out of him.

After the son had finished, the older man sat staring in front of him, piecing together the things that he knew and those that he suspected.

What Lou had told Chiswick did not matter so much. It had been general, and it had dealt only with the attack on the Mexicans. But what he had admitted to the United States marshal would hang or put behind bars half a dozen of the Tail Holt outlaws. The questions Gray had put showed that he had plenty of information and was only seeking confirmation.

Sherm Howard knew he must act quickly. He had to destroy Gray before the marshal closed the net on him. Tomorrow might be too late.

"Tell Morg and Mile High I want to see them in here," he ordered. "You go home and go to bed. Keep your mouth padlocked. Don't tell anybody else what you've told me. If you do, someone is liable to fill you full of lead."

Howard waved the two outlaws to chairs when they entered the room.

"We've got to get busy, boys," he told them. "Lou is right. This fellow Gray is dangerous. While he was at the L C, Lou picked up one or two bits of information. Gray knows a lot more than we think."

"Hmp! Do you expect me to comb the brush for him?" asked Norris.

The big man slumped in the chair and an oblique look at the killer. "If you're looking for him you can be accommodated, Morg. Gray is in town."

"In Tail Holt?" snapped Norris.

"Roosting right here."

"You mean was here," corrected Mile High. "Five or six hours ago. We bumped into him, Morg, in Curly's room."

"Bumped into him and didn't knock him off," jeered Norris.

"You're a fine bunch of warriors."

"Lou was still at the L C," Mile High retorted angrily. "We dassent touch the fellow, for fear Chiswick would hang Lou's hide up to dry. Gray had the gall to tell us so."

"So you said 'Adios, amigo,' and walked out on him," the other young man snarled. "If it had been me, I would sure have sent him to hell in smoke."

"Keep feeling that way, Morg," said Howard evenly. "Lou isn't at the L C any more. Far as I'm concerned it's an open season on Mr. Jeff Gray. We'll all be safer when the dirt is patted down on him in Boot Hill. I'm an old man myself, and peaceable, but if you young bucks are snorting for battle, I can give a guess where you'll find him."

Four eyes fastened to those of Howard.

Investigation Discloses That People of Stone Age Suffered From Toothache

No you can't blame it all on the can opener. The handy gadget, called "the housewife's best friend," has been charged with direct responsibility for toothaches, gum boils and other dental atrocities just because it opened the cans whose ready-to-eat contents could be gulped down without first passing through the process called mastication.

But science has stepped forward and declared that the can opener and the gaudy hued carton are not responsible for all the tooth ills which have been charged against them. At least that is the indicated opinion of Prof. W. M. Krogman of Western Reserve university, Cleveland, Ohio.

"The widespread belief," said Dr. Krogman, "that man's dental ills are attributable solely to modern civilization—its canned and mushy foods, its unbalanced diets and dietary fads, its frantic tempo—is not wholly correct."

"An extensive study which includes thousands of prehistoric, early historic and modern dentitions has revealed that ancient man had plenty of toothaches and that primitive man today (the back-to-nature savage) frequently has work for the dentist.

"It was found that in the old Stone age, over 10,000 years ago, the frequency of dental caries ranged from 5 to 20 per cent of the adult population; in the new Stone age, 20,000 years ago, the frequency ranged from 15 to 45 per cent."

"In the next succeeding ages, the frequency gradually rose until in 3500 B. C., just before the dawn of history, an early Iranian people showed as high as 75 to 90 per cent of the entire adult population afflicted with dental caries—a frequency as high as any 'civilized' group today."

"Man is paying the price not for civilization as such, but for domestication started thousands, perhaps millions of years ago. We can do, and are doing, a little something about it in our vitamin-mineral food-intake studies, but they are like inadequate thumbs in a crumbling dike."

Early Ohio Inhabitants

At the end of the Revolutionary war the only white inhabitants of what is now Ohio, with few exceptions, were Canadian fur traders.

CHAPTER XIII

Lee Chiswick looked down at the body lying on the cot.

"Buck would have been alive now if I hadn't given him the job of guarding that scamp," he said sorrowfully.

"He'd been alive if he had obeyed orders," Dan Brand said. "You got to look at this right, Lee. We told him not to open the door unless he was sure who was there. I reckon he was roused from sleep and didn't stop to use his head."

Ruth stood behind her father, her gaze fixed on the still figure of the cowpuncher. "Who did it?" she asked in a low voice.

"That devil Morg Norris," answered Lee, his face set and rigid. "I recognized him when he rode up to the porch to take a crack at me."

The girl shuddered. The thought stabbed her that she was responsible for the death of Buck Conrad. If she hadn't interfered with the aim of Jeff Gray, he would have put an end to the killer.

"No use trying to follow him in the dark," her brother Frank said. "If we got close he'd take to the brush."

"They'll likely head for Tail Holt to get Lou Howard home," Brand guessed.

The eyes of Ruth grew wide with horror. The paralyzing conviction had come to her that Jeff Gray would not know until too late that the prisoner at the L C had escaped. He would carry on under the impression that he had a hostage in the camp of his friend that Sherm Howard dare not move to his destruction.

She cried out her fear to her father.

For a moment he stared at her, letting her warning sink into his mind. "You're right, girl," he answered. "I don't know how he is playin' his hand, but we've got to let him know there's nothing to keep Sherm from him now."

Lee gave curt orders. "Get the boys together, Dan. See they're armed. Frank, you and Tony run up mounts. We'll take off with what men we have. Round up the men at the line-camps, Bob, and bring them to Tail Holt. This looks like war, and we may need all the help we can get."

Five minutes later, Ruth walked into her father's office and found him examining guns and ammunition.

"What are you going to do with me and Nelly?" she asked.

He looked at her, startled at the problem posed. "By jinks, Ruth, I hadn't thought of that. Can't leave you here alone. Once was too often. And I can't spare any men to guard you. We're short-handed now. Only five of us."

WHAT TO EAT and WHY ★ ★

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Cheese--Prince of Proteins

Noted Food Authority Tells Why You Should Eat More of the Food That Is So Rich in Protective Elements.

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th St., New York City.

FOR many years, men with an inventive turn of mind have dreamed of creating a product that would concentrate all the important food elements in a small tablet or capsule. They have been inspired by a desire to simplify meal preparation without sacrificing nutritive values.

No one has ever succeeded in making a synthetic food that would both satisfy hunger and properly nourish the body. But all the while, the researchers have overlooked the magnificent possibilities of cheese, one of the most concentrated, nourishing, satisfying and versatile of foods.

Cheese—The Body Builder

Cheese is the most concentrated source of protein known. Moreover, the protein is of such high type that if it were the only body-building food in the diet, given in sufficient quantities, it would be adequate not only to maintain life, but to support normal growth.

One-half pound of American Cheddar cheese will supply all the protein required by an adult for an entire day.

Cheese—The Energy Food

In addition to its rich store of protein, cheese is also a fine source of energy.

A cube of Cheddar cheese one-and-one-eighth inches square provides 100 calories or the equivalent in energy value of the lean meat of one lamb chop or one medium-sized potato. One-half pound of Cheddar cheese furnishes 1,000 calories, about half the daily requirement of an adult leading a sedentary life.

Cheese for Mineral Salts

Because milk is rich in minerals, it follows that cheese, which is made from milk, contains these precious substances in highly concentrated form. It is an excellent source of calcium, the mineral which is responsible for building strong bones and sound teeth, and for keeping the heart beating normally. A one-and-one-fourth inch cube of American Cheddar cheese contains as much calcium as an 8-ounce glass of milk.

The individual who does not care for milk as a beverage can easily obtain the necessary calcium from cheese. But it is practically impossible to get adequate amounts of this mineral without either milk or cheese.

In rennet cheese, phosphorus, as well as calcium, is present in the same proportions as in milk, but is much more highly concentrated. As in milk, these minerals are in a form that is most nearly perfect for easy assimilation. Rennet-curd cheese is always high in sulphur and fairly high in iron. Furthermore, the iron is in the most readily assimilated form.

Cheese and Vitamins

Cheese is a splendid source of vitamin A, which promotes growth and increases resistance to disease. It is especially important for eye health and is necessary to prevent the affliction known as night blindness. The amount of vitamin A varies with the type of cheese, but both American Cheddar and Parmesan cheese are extremely rich in this substance, and cream cheese is an outstanding source. Vitamins B and G are also found in whole milk cheese.

With this wealth of food values, one would expect to find cheese appearing on the menu in some form every day. But though the annual production of cheese in the United States exceeds 700,000,000 pounds, it should be much greater. The annual per capita consumption is only 5½ pounds—a woefully small figure when we consider the wide benefits that would result from its greater use.

The failure of American homemakers to use cheese in the amounts that they should is, I believe, due to three factors: first, a lack of knowledge concerning its splendid food values; second, a belief in the old superstition that cheese is not easy to digest; and third, failure to take advantage of the many ways in which it can be served.

Digestibility of Cheese

The foregoing outline of its many food values should give a new conception of its place in the diet. As to its digestibility, studies by the United States Department of Agriculture have entirely disproved the fallacy that it is not completely digestible.

It was found that on an average about 95 per cent of the protein and over 95 per cent of the fat of cheese were digested and absorbed. The various kinds of cheese tested were found to compare favorably in digestibility with the food of an average mixed diet. It was also demonstrated experimentally "that there was practically no difference between cheese and meat with respect to ease of digestion, at least in such quantities as are commonly eaten."

There was also a notion that because it is so high in food value, cheese should only be eaten in small quantities. But scientific tests have proven that cheese may be eaten by normal individuals in large quantities, as the principal source of protein, with entirely beneficial effects upon health.

Place of Cheese in the Diet

There is a case on record of a young man who lived for two years on a daily diet consisting of one-half pound of cheese, a one-pound loaf of whole wheat bread and two pounds of fruit. While this limited diet might prove monotonous to some people, it is possible to utilize cheese as the easiest method of providing important food value, varying the diet, and simplifying meal preparation. For there are more than 200 distinctive varieties of cheese listed by the department of agriculture, ranging from the smooth, delicately flavored cream cheese, which may be given to very young children, to the sharp tanga cheese which is especially popular with men. Fortunately, almost every type can be purchased in packaged form, in sizes that are convenient for large and small families, making it possible to enjoy a wide variety.

Cheese can be used as a main dish; in salads or sandwiches; as a sauce for vegetables; as a dessert. It is desirable at the same time to serve bulky foods, such as fruits and vegetables. Cheese may also be combined advantageously with carbohydrate foods. This is because the balanced diet requires more carbohydrates than proteins. And cheese is essentially a lean food, interchangeable meats and fish.
